THE TITLE.

The Order for the Administration] The Title of this Office in the Prayer Book of 1549 was, "The Supper of the Lord, and the Holy Communion, commonly called the Mass." It is evident that the Reformers did not see any reason why this Sacrament should not still be commonly called "The Mass," but the name soon dropped out of use after the introduction of the vernacular into Divine Service, and it was not printed as a third title in 1552, or in any subsequent Prayer Books.

the Lord's Supper] As the name "Mass" was used after the introduction of the reformed Office, so that of "Lord's Supper" was used before, it being found in the "Mirror of our Lady" which was printed in 1530, and in Daye's translation of Hermann's Consultation, which was first printed in 1547. The term is borrowed from 1 Cor. xi. 21, where St. Paul applies it to the Agapæ or love-feasts which then accompanied the celebration of the Holy Eucharist<sup>1</sup>. How the singular and inexact use of it which is handed down in our Prayer Book arose, it is difficult to say; and it is a transference of a Scriptural term from one thing to another which cannot be wholly justified. The name thus given to the holy Sacrament has led many to confuse the Lord's Last Supper<sup>2</sup> with the institution of the Sacrament itself, which it is expressly said took place "after supper" [Luke xxii. 20], and "when He had supped" [1 Cor. xi. 25].

or Holy Communion] Among other names given to the Eucharist, Cardinal Bona mentions this as an ancient one; and says of the term that it is applied not only to the use of the Sacrament, but also to the sacrifice of it, because without the communion of the Celebrant there is no sacrifice. His words are, ". . . sed quia in ea sit consecratio, et participatio corporis et sanguinis Christi, et ideo sine communione esse non potest." The name is Scriptural in the strictest sense, St. Paul saying, "The Cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the Communion of the Blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not the Communion of the Body of Christ?" [1 Cor. x. 16.] St. Paul uses the term not primarily of the fellowship which Christians thus maintain with each other by means of the Sacrament, but of the fellowship which is thus originated through the communion established between the Head and His members by communication to them of His Body and His Blood in that Sacrament. As our Church has happily consecrated the term Bible by calling the book of the Scriptures the "Holy Bible," so by the prefix "Holy" to the word "Communion" a sacred distinctive title is given to the Sacrament which it designates, expressive of its relation both to God and man.

THE INTRODUCTORY RUBRICS.

at least some time the day before] In the Liturgy of 1549 and 1552 the direction was "overnight, or else in the morning, afore the beginning of Matins, or immediately after." This implies, as Cosin remarks, "a certain distance of time between Morning Prayer and High Service. A rule which is at this time duly observed in York and Chichester, but by negligence of ministers, and carelessness of people, wholly omitted in other places" [Works v. 83]. It also shows the intention of the Church, that Mattins should be said before the Celebration of Holy Communion, which is to be inferred likewise from the fact that on Palm Sunday the Proper Second Lesson at Mattins is Matt. xxvi., and the Gospel is Matt. xxvii., and on Good Friday the Proper Second Lesson is John xviii., and the Gospel is John xix. This is a very ancient rule of the Church of England; as, e.g., in some constitutions of the Province of Canterbury, A.D. 1322, it is ordered, "Let no parish priest celebrate mass till he hath finished matins, prime, and undern<sup>3</sup> [terce]." Grindal, in his injunctions as Archbishop of York, in 1571, ordered the Morning Prayer, Litany, and Communion to be said together "without any intermission;" there being, doubtless, some local or temporary reason for his so doing.

And if any] These disciplinary Rubrics formed part of the First Reformed Liturgy of 1549. The English, like the Scottish and Continental Reformers, laid great stress on discipline. The definition of the Church in the Homily for Whitsunday includes among its marks, "The right use of Ecclesiastical Discipline;" and that in the Catechism of 1553, "Brotherly correction and excommunication, or banishing those out of the Church that will not amend their lives." Compare also Art. 33, and Canon 26. The disuse of it amongst ourselves, is due partly to the sturdy individualism and indisposition to submit to authority which is part of our national character, and partly to the fact that no sufficient method was devised of supporting the Curate in the exercise of this part of his duty. It is perhaps, to some extent, sume not to come to the Lord's Table, until he hath openly declared himself to have truly repented and amended his former naughty life, that the Congregation may thereby be satisfied, which before were offended; and that he hath recompensed the parties, to whom he hath done wrong; or at least declare himself to be in full purpose so to do, as soon as he conveniently may.

<sup>1</sup> See St. Chrysostom, Hom. xxvii., on this passage.

<sup>2</sup> Pictures are still the books of the unlearned, and many persons derive their impressions of the Institution of the Eucharist from Leonardo da Vinci's picture of the Last Supper. This picture was painted for the refectory of the Dominican convent of S. Maria delle Grazie at Milan, and was intended to represent, as an appropriate subject for such a place, our Lord's parting meal with His disciples. It is sometimes copied in sculpture (as at Durham Cathedral), or in paintings or painted glass (as at St. Nicholas, Newcastle), and placed over the altar, and thus the error is propagated.

<sup>3</sup> Johnson's Canons, ii. 338.

Matt. v. 23. vi.
14. xviii. 35.

¶ The same order shall the Curate use with those betwixt whom he perceiveth malice and hatred to reign; not suffering them to be partakers of the Lord's Table, until he know them to be reconciled. And if one of the parties so at variance be content to forgive from the bottom of his heart all that the other hath trespassed against him, and to make amends for that he himself hath offended; and the other party will not be persuaded to a godly unity, but remain still in his frowardness and malice: the Minister in that case ought to admit the penitent person to the holy Communion, and not him that is obstinate. Provided that every Minister so repelling any, as is specified in this, or the next precedent Paragraph of this Rubrick, shall be obliged to give an account of the same to the Ordinary within fourteen days after at the farthest. And the Ordinary shall proceed against the offending person according to the Canon.

Inserted by Cosin, in 1661.

¶ The Table, at the Communion-time having a fair white linen cloth upon it, shall stand practically compensated for by the voluntary abstinence from the Lord's Table of all "open and notorious evil livers."

the Lord's Table] The word Altar, retained in the Liturgy of 1549, was entirely dropped in the Revision of 1552. The motive was the necessity (1) of disabusing the minds of the people of the gross and superstitious notions with reference to the Eucharistic Sacrifice (amounting to a belief in an actual reiteration of the sacrifice of the Cross), which had gradually grown up during the latter centuries of the mediæval period; and (2) of bringing back into its due prominence the truth (which the denial of the cup, and the usually exclusive communion of the Celebrant, had most grievously obscured), that this holy ordinance is intended to be a means of heavenly communion with Christ by the spiritual feeding on His most precious Body and Blood. The consequence of this, and of some other changes made at the same time in the same direction (such, for instance, as the removal of the Prayer of Oblation from its place immediately after the Consecration, the placing of the Altar—during the century which immediately followed the Reformation—in most instances "table-wise," in the middle of the Chancel or of the Nave, so that the Celebrant standing, as usual, at the middle of the long side, faced south instead of East), has been the partial obscuration of the sacrificial aspect of the Holy Eucharist, and the almost exclusive concentration of popular belief on its communion aspect. Only those ignorant of theology can maintain that there is any contradiction between the two. They are in truth correlative and mutually complementary. The Holy Communion is, (1) A solemn presentation and pleading before Almighty God of the one, only, unique, and absolutely sufficient Sacrifice once and for ever finished upon the Cross, and the earthly counterpart of that perpetual presentation of it, and of Himself, which is made in Heaven by the one and only true Priest, Who "ever liveth to make intercession for us" in His "unchangeable Priesthood," as our "High Priest for ever" [Heb. vii.—x.]. And in this aspect that whereon it is celebrated is rightly called, and in ordinary speaking we do call it, an "Altar" [Heb. xiii. 10]. It is (2) A Feast, after an heavenly and spiritual manner, upon that one Sacrifice so pleaded and presented, i. e., upon the Body and Blood of Christ, and in this aspect the Altar is rightly called a "Table" [1 Cor. x. 16—21], though the word "Altar" is twice used by St. Paul, 1 Cor. ix. 13, and Heb. xiii. 10, in connexion with the "partaking" of it. In Scriptural usage the words are synonymous, i. e., different names for the same thing in different aspects, or as respects different uses of it. See Isa. lxxv. 11. Ezek. xxiii. 41—xxxix. 17—20; xli. 22; xlv. 15, 16. Mal. i. 7. 12. 1 Cor. x. 16—21. The word "Altar" is still retained throughout in the Form for the Coronation of the Kings and Queens of England in Westminster Abbey [see "Burder's Religious Customs"], and is used throughout the "Office of Institution of Ministers into Parishes or Churches," set forth in the General Convention of the American Branch of the English Church in 1804 and 1808. In the Apostolic Fathers the word "Table" is never used for "Altar," and in the Ecclesiastical writers of the first three centuries after Christ only once. [See also the Introduction to this office, p. 158.]

It may be added that the term "Communion Table" is not to be found in the Prayer Book, the table being invariably viewed as the Table of the Lord, and not of the Communicants.

a fair white linen cloth] To understand the force of a law, we must understand the meaning which was given to its words at the time when it was imposed. The application of this rule to these words of the rubric will show us that they mean a beautiful linen cloth, not one that is simply clean. So "fayre" is translated "pulcher, venustus, decorus, bellus," in the Promptorium Parvulorum; and of the seventeen meanings given to this adjective by Johnson, that of pulcher only is to be found in the English Bible. Thus the Bible speaks of "fair colours" [Isa. liv. 11], and "fair jewels" [Ezek. xvi. 17, and sqq.], and of One Who is "fairer than the children of men" [Ps. xlv. 3]. Linen which is simply clean and white, is called in the Bible "pure and white" [Rev. xv. 6], or "clean and white" [Rev. xix. 14], or "fine linen," the two former adjectives being both renderings of the same word, which is καθαρόν, in the original. Hence a "fair white linen cloth" does not mean merely a "plain, clean linen cloth," but a white linen cloth which has been made beautiful for its special purpose by the addition of fitting ornamentation.

Since the invention of "damask" linen, the ornament thus wrought in the course of manufacturing the fabric has been very generally adopted; but plain, undamasked linen may be made much more "fair" by means of embroidery; and common sense will show that the word "white" limits the colour of the "linen cloth," not of its ornamentation.

In recent times a custom has been introduced of spreading a large white cloth over the Lord's Table, in the same manner as an ordinary table is prepared for a meal. This is, however, an innovation introduced into the Church at a time when all such arrangements were left to pew-openers and sextons. The "fair white linen cloth" here ordered, and that with which the Celebrant is directed to cover "what remaineth of the consecrated elements," are the corporalia of the ancient rubrics, otherwise called palla linea; a third being used by custom to cover the middle part of the Altar during the celebration. The object of using such a cloth is not to give the idea of a meal; but to carry out the symbolism of the "linen clothes," in which our Lord's body was wound before it was placed in the sepulchre, and which were found there, laid in exact order, after the Resurrection [John xx. 7]. It is a memorial also of that shining raiment, "exceeding white as snow" [Mark ix. 3], in which His transfigured Body appeared to the three disciples; and it is further observable that fine or white linen is ever represented as the clothing of those who dwell in Heaven.

The custom of the Church is to have the linen cloth two or in the Body of the Church, or in the Chancel, where Morning and Evening Prayer are appointed to be said. And the Priest standing at the North-side of the Table shall say the Lord's Prayer, with the Collect following, the people kneeling.

OUR Father, which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, As it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us from evil. Amen.

The Collect.

ALMIGHTY God, unto whom all hearts be open, all desires known, and from whom no secrets are hid;

Job xlii. 2.
1 Kings viii. 39.
Ps. xlv. 21.
li. 2. 10—12.
Matt. xxii. 37.

PATER noster, qui es in cœlis; Salisbury Use.
sanctificetur nomen tuum: adveniat regnum tuum: fiat voluntas tua, sicut in cœlo, et in terra. Panem nostrum quotidianum da nobis hodie: et dimitte nobis debita nostra, sicut et nos dimittimus debitoribus nostris: et ne nos inducas in tentationem: sed libera nos a malo. Amen.

DEUS cui omne cor patet, et omnis voluntas loquitur, et quem nulum latet secretum; purifica per in-three inches wider than the ritual mensa, i. e., the slab of the table, and sufficiently long to hang down nearly to its base at the north and south ends.

in the Body of the Church, or in the Chancel] The explanation of these words is that it was the custom for the communicants to kneel all at once in the chancel, the clergy carrying the consecrated elements to them as they knelt<sup>1</sup>. But the number of communicants was sometimes too large for the chancel to hold all at once, and when moveable altars were substituted for fixed ones, it was permitted under such circumstances to transfer them to the nave, and celebrate there instead of in the chancel. Thus the Archbishops and Bishops, in their "Interpretations" of Queen Elizabeth's Injunctions, direct, "Item. That the table be removed out of the choir into the body of the church, before the chancel door, where either the choir seemeth to be too little, or at great feasts of receivings. And at the end of the Communion to be set up again" [on the high footpace, that is] "according to the Injunctions<sup>2</sup>" [Cardw. Doc. Ann. i. 205; see also Canon 82]. This practice of removing the Lord's Table from its place led to great irreverence, and to a perverted notion of the holy Sacrament; but it continued in many, perhaps in most churches, until the time of Charles I. Neale writes, "When the sacrament was administered in parish churches, the communion table was usually placed in the middle of the chancel, and the people received round it in their several places thereabout." This was, of course, a very different thing from what the rubric allowed, and the reforming Bishops of Charles I.'s days ordered the Table to be placed at the east end of the chancel only. Neale continues, "It is almost incredible what a ferment the making this alteration at once raised among the common people all over England" [Neale's Hist. of Puritans, ii. 221, ed. 1822].

In Cosin's Durham Book, the whole of this rubric of 1552 is altered into the following form, which is similar to that in the Scottish Prayer Book of 1637:—

The TABLE always standing in the midst at the upper end of the Chancell (or of the Church where a Chancell is wanting), and being at all times covered with a carpet of silk, shall also have at the Communion-time a faire white linnen cloth upon it,

<sup>1</sup> Chancel rails were first ordered by Archbishop Laud, chiefly for the purpose of keeping dogs away from the holy Table. They were forbidden by Parliament in 1641. Where there are Chancel screens, Altar rails are not necessary.

<sup>2</sup> "They that shall be admitted to the Holy Communion, as soon as they have made their oblation, must go together to that place that shall be appointed unto them, nigh to the altar . . . They then which shall be admitted to the Communion of the Lord's board shall stand in that place, the men in their proper place, and the women in their place, and there they shall give thanks, and pray religiously with the pastor."—Daye's transl. of Hemmann's Consult., f. 220, ed. 1547 with patin, chalice, and other decent furniture, meet for the high mysteries there to be celebrated.

the Priest standing at the North-side] This means at the north-side of the Table's front, no other boundary-line of the rectangular mensa than that in front being taken account of in directing the ministrations of the Celebrant. This seems always to have been the rule of the English Church, except in such unsettled days as those referred to in the last note. Curtains (sometimes called altar-veils) at the north and south ends, appear to have been always used in England, instead of the baldachin or canopy which surrounds the altars of foreign churches; but solid pillars were substituted for these in the elaborate classical "altar screens" of the seventeenth and eighteenth century. The disuse of the latter seems to require a more general return to the curtains than has yet been made, for the purpose of adding dignity to the Lord's Table. In Durham Cathedral those which were anciently in daily use were of white silk.

THE LORD'S PRAYER.

In the ancient Use of Salisbury the Lord's Prayer formed part of the Introductory Service which was said by the Celebrant before he went up to the Altar, and probably in the Vestry. This seems to have been the practice of the Primitive Church, the third Council of Carthage [A.D. 397] decreeing, "Ut . . . cum altari adstititur semper ad Patrem dirigatur oratio: fuit hoc exemplo Christi, Qui discipulos docens orare, exordium precationis ad Patrem direxit." The first Prayer Book [A.D. 1549] ordered that "the Priest, standing humbly afore the midst of the Altar, shall say the Lord's Prayer, with this Collect," before the Introit was sung; and probably the custom soon arose of saying it aloud. It is, however, still to be said by the Priest alone, as the history of the Service shows; and as is also indicated by the manner of printing the "Amen," which is not to be repeated by the people, but said, like the rest of the Prayer, by the Priest. The Lord's Prayer is not indicated at all in this place in Merbecke's book, and was not printed at length until much later.

As in all other parts of Divine Service, the Prayer of our Lord is here used with a special object. It is a royal Antiphon of Prayer which supplies the key-note of that which is to follow; and the Celebrant uses it as a prevailing intercession with the Father that he may be found not unworthy in the execution of his special office. With the same intention it should be heard by the people, since the offering to be made in the Holy Eucharist is theirs as much as it is that of their leader who stands at their head in front of God's altar.

THE COLLECT.

This Prayer, which is commonly called the "Collect for

1 John iv. 16, 17.
20.
Luke i. 46, 47.

Cleanse the thoughts of our hearts by the inspiration of thy Holy Spirit, that we may perfectly love thee, and worthily magnify thy holy Name; through Christ our Lord. Amen.

fusionem Sancti Spiritus cogitationes cordis nostri; ut Te perfecte diligere, et digne laudare mereamur. Per Christum Dominum nostrum. Amen.

¶ Then shall the Priest, turning to the people, rehearse distinctly all the TEN COMMANDMENTS; and the people still kneeling shall, after every Commandment, ask God mercy for their transgression thereof for the time past, and grace to keep the same for the time to come, as followeth.

Minister.

Exod xx. 1—17.

GOD spake these words, and said; I am the Lord thy God: Thou shalt have none other gods but me.

People.

Ps. xxxiii. 22.
1 Kings viii. 57,
58.
1's. cxix. 111, 36.
34.

Lord, have mercy upon us, and incline our hearts to keep this law.

Minister.

Thou shalt not make to thyself any graven image, nor the likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or in the earth beneath, or in the water under the earth. Thou shalt not bow down to them, nor worship them: for I the Lord thy God am a jealous God, and visit the sins of the fathers upon the children, unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me, and shew mercy unto thousands in them that love me, and keep my commandments.

People.

Jer. xxxi. 33.
Heb. viii. 10.

Lord, have mercy upon us, and incline our hearts to keep this law.

Minister.

Thou shalt not take the Name of the Lord thy God in vain: for the Lord will not hold him guiltless, that taketh his Name in vain.

People.

Lord, have mercy upon us, and incline our hearts to keep this law.

Minister.

Remember that thou keep holy the Sabbath-day. Six days shalt thou labour, and do all that thou hast to do; but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God. In it thou shalt do no manner of work, thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, thy manservant, and thy maid-servant, thy cattle, and the stranger that is within thy gates. For in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day: wherefore the Lord blessed the seventh day, and hallowed it.

People.

Lord, have mercy upon us, and incline our hearts to keep this law.

Minister.

Honour thy father and thy mother; that thy days may be long in the land, which the Lord thy God giveth thee.

Purity," also formed part of the Introductory Prayers of the Celebrant in the Sarum rite, and is not found in any other of the English Liturgies or in the Roman. It appears again in a "Missa ad invocandum gratiam Spiritus Sancti" at the end of the Sarum Missal, and this Mass is attributed by Muratori [ii. 383] to St. Gregory. It is also found in the Sacramentary of Alcuin, and at the end of the York Litany: so that it is probably a Prayer of the early Church, but preserved almost solely by the Church of England.

The Prayer for Purity now forms, naturally, a part of the public Service, and in making it so, it was doubtless the intention of those who reconstructed our Liturgy to make it a Prayer of the people with the Celebrant, for themselves, as well as his own prayer with reference to his special work of celebration. Standing at the head of his flock, the Priest offers up this preliminary Prayer to God for himself and them, that all may be prepared by His mercy for the solemn rite in which they are about to take their respective parts as Priest and Christian laity.

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS.

turning to the people] Turning from the position in which he stands to pray when he faces the altar, to that in which he exhorts, when he faces the people. In the Scottish Liturgy of 1637, this rubric ended as follows: "The people all the while kneeling, and asking God's mercy for the transgression of every duty therein; either according to the letter, or to the mystical importance of the said Commandment."

The use of the Ten Commandments in the Communion Service is quite peculiar to the English Church. It is probably derived from the custom of reciting and expounding them at certain intervals, which is so frequently enjoined by the ancient Synods and the Bishops of the Church of England. Poullain introduced them (probably in metre) into his jejune Liturgy; but it is most probable that he did so in imitation of the old English custom.

The translation of the Decalogue used here, and in the Catechism, is not that of our present version, but that of the "Great Bible" of 1539-40.

People.

Lord, have mercy upon us, and incline our hearts to keep this law.

Minister.

Thou shalt do no murder.

People.

Lord, have mercy upon us, and incline our hearts to keep this law.

Minister.

Thou shalt not commit adultery.

People.

Lord, have mercy upon us, and incline our hearts to keep this law.

Minister.

Thou shalt not steal.

People.

Lord, have mercy upon us, and incline our hearts to keep this law.

Minister.

Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbour.

People.

Lord, have mercy upon us, and incline our hearts to keep this law.

Minister.

Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's wife, nor his servant, nor his maid, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor any thing that is his.

People.

Lord, have mercy upon us, and write all these thy laws in our hearts, we beseech thee. Luke xviii. 13. Ezek. xxxvi. 27.

¶ Then shall follow one of these two Collects for the Queen, the Priest standing as before, and saying,

Let us pray.

ALMIGHTY God, whose kingdom is everlasting, and power infinite; Have mercy upon the whole Church; and so rule the heart of thy chosen servant VICTORIA, our Queen and Ps. cxlv. 13. Dan. iv. 34. 35. Ps. cxlii. 6. cii. 13. Prov. xxi. 1. 2 Chron. xxxi. 20.

In the American Prayer Book the Commandments are followed by our Lord's Summary of the Decalogue from Matt. xxii. 37—40: the use of which is also allowed instead of that of the Decalogue by the Scottish Liturgy.

The respond after each Commandment is somewhat similar in phraseology to the Prayer which follows them in Poullain's Liturgy. The version used at Glastonbury, and printed at London, in 1552, is as follows: "Seigneur Dieu, pere de misericorde, qui nous as par ton serviteur Moysse donné le decalogue, pour nous instruire en la plaine justice de ta loy: vueilles la tellement imprimer en noz cueurs par ton saint Esprit, qu'en toute nostre vie nous n'ayons autre desir ou plaisir, sinon de te servir et obeir en toute sainteté et justice, par Jesus Christ ton filz. Ainsi soit il<sup>1</sup>." But this respond is, in reality, a Christian application of the Law in the words of Jeremiah xxxi. 33, and Psalm cxix. 36, and as already made by St. Paul in Hebrews viii. 10. It may be clearly traced in the Vulgate: "Inclinavi cor meum ad faciendas justificationes Tuas . . ." [Ps. cxix. 111]. "Inclina cor meum in testimonia Tua . . ." [Ibid. 36] ". . . et custodiam illam in toto corde meo" [Ibid. 34].

Before the Commandments were formally introduced into the Communion Office, in 1552, the Collect for Purity was followed by the Introit, as in the ancient Service; and, as in it also, the Introit was followed by the Kyrie Eleison said nine times.

The Kyrie thus said appears to represent the ancient Litany element [the Greek ectene] of the Eucharistic Office, and especially when it was sung in an expanded form, as it was on all "double" festivals. At the end of some Missals there are several pages, "De cantu Kyrie Eleison," and these contain nine such expanded forms, Kyrie generally beginning the first three lines, Christe the second three, and Kyrie the third three; all the nine lines ending with "Eleison." Mr. Maskell has referred to these expanded forms of the Kyrie at p. 23 of his Ancient Liturgy of the Church of England, and has printed two of them. Translations of two are also here given from a Missal of 1514 as specimens:—

"Lord, Almighty, Father unbegotten, on us wretched ones have mercy.

<sup>1</sup> L'Ordre des prieres et ministere ecclesiastique . . . et la Confession de Foy de l'Eglise de Glastonbury en Somerset . . . A Londres, 1552.

Lord, Who hast redeemed Thine handiwork, by Thine own Son have mercy.

Lord, Adonai, blot out our sins, and on Thy people have mercy. Christ, the splendour of the Father's glory and the image of His substance, have mercy.

Christ, Who didst save the world at the Father's bidding, have mercy.

Christ, Salvation of men and eternal life of angels, have mercy. Lord the Spirit, the Paraclete, Bestower of pardon, have mercy.

Lord, Fountain of mercy, sevenfold in grace, have mercy.

Lord, most gracious Pardoner, proceeding from Both, most bounteous Bestower of Spiritual gifts, have mercy.

Lord, the Maker of all creatures, have mercy upon us.

Thou who blottest out our sins, have mercy upon us without ceasing.

Let not Thy handiwork perish; but graciously have mercy upon it.

Christ, the only Son of the Father, born of the Virgin, have mercy upon us.

Thou that by Thy Blood savedst a ruined world from death, have mercy.

Hear the Prayer of those who now cry unto Thee, and in tenderness have mercy.

Gracious Spirit, fill us with Thy grace, have mercy.

Thou who flowest from the Father and the Son continually have mercy upon us.

Holy Trinity, trinal Unity, together to be worshipped, Loosen the bonds of our sins, redeeming us from death.

Let us all now cry aloud with sweetly-flowing voice, O God, have mercy."

An interesting feature of these expanded forms of the Kyrie is the retention of Greek words, which indicates their Eastern origin, and that the associations connected with them were precious to the Church of England.

COLLECT FOR THE SOVEREIGN.

[the Priest standing as before] That is, at the northern part of the front of the Altar, looking towards the East.

Both these Collects appear to have been composed in 1549, but the second is very similar in its phraseology to the first Collect or Matt. xxii. 21.

 Rom. xiii. 1—6.
 1 Pet. ii. 13, 14.
 19.
 Prov. xxiv. 21.
 1 Tim. vi. 14—16.
 Rev. iv. 8. v. 13.

Governour, that she (knowing whose minister she is) may above all things seek thy honour and glory: and that we, and all her subjects (duly considering whose authority she hath) may faithfully serve, honour, and humbly obey her, in thee, and for thee, according to thy blessed Word and ordinance, through Jesus Christ our Lord, who with thee and the Holy Ghost liveth and reigneth, ever one God, world without end. Amen.

¶ Or,

Ps. xciii. 2.
 Prov. xxi. 1.
 Rev. xvii. 17.
 Ps. lxxviii. 70—72.
 Prov. viii. 15, 1.
 Ps. cxlii. 12—15.
 Deut. xxxiii. 29.
 John xvi. 23.

ALmighty and everlasting God, we are taught by thy holy Word, that the hearts of kings are in thy rule and governance, and that thou dost dispose and turn them as it seemeth best to thy godly wisdom: We humbly beseech thee so to dispose and govern the heart of VICTORIA thy Servant, our Queen and Governour, that, in all her thoughts, words, and works, she may ever seek thy honour and glory, and study to preserve thy people committed to her charge, in wealth, peace, and godliness. Grant this, O merciful Father, for thy dear Son's sake, Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

¶ Then shall be said the Collect of the day. And immediately after the Collect the Priest shall read the Epistle, saying, The Epistle [or, The portion of Scripture appointed for the Epistle] is written in the — Chapter of — beginning at the — Verse. And the Epistle ended, he shall say, Here endeth the Epistle. Then shall be read the Gospel (the people all standing up), saying, The holy Gospel is written in the — Chapter of — beginning at the — Verse. And the Gospel ended, shall be sung or said the Creed following, the people still standing, as before.

the Missa pro Rege given at p. 27, of which the first words are “Deus in cujus manu sunt corda regum.” There seems to have been considerable variety in the Missæ pro Rege et Regina: and it is possible that these Collects are both of them taken from some ancient sources not yet recognized.

The insertion of this Prayer for the Sovereign may be thus accounted for. The Sovereign was mentioned in the ancient Canon, in that of the first Prayer Book, and in the Prayer for the Church Militant, when that Canon was afterwards broken up into three portions as we now have it. But in the first Prayer Book one of the final rubrics directed that on Wednesdays and Fridays, if there was no celebration, the Communion Service should yet be said as far as the end of the Offertory. When so used, the memorial of the Sovereign in the Canon would not be said, and this Collect was probably inserted to supply the deficiency. It would also be said constantly that those who did not remain to receive (and therefore did not hear the Canon), might still hear, and take part in, a Prayer for the Sovereign and the Church. When the Canon was broken up, and that part of it which now forms the Prayer for the Church Militant was removed to an earlier part of the Office, it was directed to form part of the Offertory even when there is no Celebration: and thus the second memorial forms not only part of the Canon, as in ancient days, but of the Service used when there are no communicants. Temporary reasons connected with the disloyalty of the times had probably some influence in fixing this Collect upon the Church.

Viewing the Ten Kyries preceding as a representative, in some degree, of the primitive Ectene, or Great Collect, the Collect for the Sovereign is not without a certain propriety as to its Liturgical position. One of the petitions in that Eucharistic Litany is, “For our most religious and God-protected Sovereigns, for all the Palace and their Army, let us beseech the Lord. R. Lord, have mercy upon us.”

It should also be added that “Memoria” were said with the Collect for the day under the old system of the Church of England, and that the use of the present memorial Collect for the Sovereign may represent an ancient custom. The Rubric was as follows:—“Deinde dicitur oratio, sic determinando, Per omnia sæcula sæculorum. Amen. Et si aliqua Memoria habenda est iterum dicat Sacerdos Oremus ut supra. Et quando sunt plures collectæ dicendæ, tunc omnes Orationes quæ sequuntur sub uno, Per the Collect of the day] Some notes on the history of the Collects de Tempore will be found at p. 69; some special rules connected with their use at p. 24.

Dominum, et uno Oremus dicuntur. Ita tamen quod septenarium numerum excedere non debent secundum usum Ecclesiæ Sarum.”

If Memorial Collects, on account of national or diocesan afflictions or necessities, should ever be issued by the authorities of our Church, the proper place to use them is after the Collect or Collects of the day, both here, and at Mattins and Evensong.

shall read the Epistle] For notes on the history of the Epistle and Gospel as used in the Communion Office, see p. 70. The Epistle was anciently read from a lectern near the Altar, from which sometimes both it and the Gospel also were read. At Durham Cathedral, before its iniquitous spoliation, “at the North End of the High Altar there was a very fine Lectern of Brass, where they sang the Epistle and Gospel, with a great Pelican on the height of it finely gilt, billing the blood out of her breast to feed her young ones, and her wings spread abroad, whereon lay the Book, in which they sung the Epistle and Gospel: it was thought to be the finest Lectern of Brass in this country<sup>1</sup>.” But this lectern doubtless stood on the north of the Altar because it was used for the Gospel. The proper side from which to say the Epistle is the south.

The following is Cosin's alteration of this rubric in the Durham Prayer Book:—

Immediately after the Collects, the Priest, or the Epistler appointed, shall turn to the people and read the Epistle in the place assigned for it, beginning thus: The Epistle is written in the Chapter of — and ending thus: Here endeth the Epistle. And the Epistle ended, the Priest or the Gospeller appointed shall read the Gospel, saying first: The Holy Gospel is written in the Chapter of — And the people all standing up shall say: Glory be to Thee, O Lord. And at the end of the Gospel he that readeth it shall say: Here endeth the holy Gospel. And the people shall answer: Thanks be to Thee, O Lord.

Then shall he read the Gospel] The highest reverence has

<sup>1</sup> “Davies' Rites of Durham,” written by an eye-witness of the spoliation. There was another brass Lectern in the midst of the Quire for the music-book, and a wooden one for the Lessons lower down, near the Quire door.

[See also Ap. Creed in Mattins and Evensong.]
 Titus i. 9.
 Mark xii. 32.
 Exod. vi. 3.
 1 Cor. viii. 4—6.
 Gen. i. 2.
 Heb. xi. 3.
 John xiii. 13.
 i. 14 18.
 Ps. ii. 7.
 Col. i. 15 17.
 Heb. i. 3.
 John ix. 5. xii. 35, 36. xiv. 11.
 x. 30. ii. 3. 9.
 Col. i. 16.
 John iii. 13. vi. 38. i. 14.
 Gal. iv. 4.
 1 Tim. ii. 5.
 1 John iv. 2, 3.
 John xix. 16—18.
 Matt. xx. 28.
 John xix. 38—42.
 1 Cor. xv. 3, 4.
 Ps. cx. 1.
 Col. iii. 1.
 Matt. xvi. 27.
 1 Pet. iv. 5.
 Luke i. 33.
 Rev. xi. 15.
 2 Cor. xiii. 14.
 John vi. 63.
 John iii. 6, 17, 18.
 John xv. 26.
 Rev. iv. 8.
 Matt. iv. 10.
 Isa. vi. 3.
 Acts xxviii. 25.
 2 Pet. i. 21.
 Heb. xii. 23.
 Acts ii. 42, 47.
 Eph. iv. 1, 3—6.
 Acts ii. 38. xxii. 16.
 Rev. xx. 12, 13.
 1 Cor. xv. 52, 53.
 2 Pet. iii. 13.
 Heb. ii. 5. vi. 5.
 Rev. i. 7. xxii. 20.

Filioque.

I BELIEVE in one God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth, And of all things visible and invisible :

And in one Lord Jesus Christ, the only-begotten Son of God, Begotten of his Father, before all worlds, God of God, Light of Light, Very God of very God, Begotten, not made, Being of one substance with the Father; By whom all things were made, Who for us men, and for our salvation came down from heaven, And was incarnate by the Holy Ghost of the Virgin Mary, And was made man, And was crucified also for us under Pontius Pilate. He suffered and was buried, And the third day he rose again according to the Scriptures, And ascended into heaven, And sitteth on the right hand of the Father. And he shall come again with glory to judge both the quick and the dead: Whose kingdom shall have no end.

And I believe in the Holy Ghost, The Lord, and Giver of life, Who proceedeth from the Father and the Son, Who with the Father and the Son together is worshipped and glorified, Who spake by the Prophets. And I believe one Catholick and Apostolick Church. I acknowledge one Baptism for the remission of sins, And I look for the Resurrection of the dead, And the life of the world to come. Amen.

ΠΙΣΤΕΥΟΜΕΝ εἰς ἓνα Θεόν, Πατέρα παντοκράτορα, ποιητὴν οὐρανοῦ καὶ γῆς, ὁράτων τε πάντων καὶ ἀοράτων.

Πιστεύο in the Greek Liturgies.

Καὶ εἰς ἓνα Κύριον Ἰησοῦν Χριστὸν, τὸν Υἱὸν τοῦ Θεοῦ τὸν μονογενῆ, τὸν ἐκ τοῦ Πατρὸς γεννηθέντα πρὸ πάντων τῶν αἰώνων· [Θεὸν ἐκ Θεοῦ] Φῶς ἐκ Φωτὸς, Θεὸν ἀληθινὸν ἐκ Θεοῦ ἀληθινοῦ· γεννηθέντα, οὐ ποιηθέντα, ὁμοούσιον τῷ Πατρὶ· δι' οὗ τὰ πάντα ἐγένετο· τὸν δι' ἡμᾶς τοὺς ἀνθρώπους, καὶ διὰ τὴν ἡμετέραν σωτηρίαν, κατελθόντα ἐκ τῶν οὐρανῶν, καὶ σαρκωθέντα ἐκ Πνεύματος Ἁγίου, καὶ Μαρίας τῆς παρθένου, καὶ ἐνανθρωπήσαντα· σταυρωθέντα τε ὑπὲρ ἡμῶν ἐπὶ Ποντίου Πιλάτου, καὶ παθόντα, καὶ ταφέντα, καὶ ἀναστάντα τῇ τρίτῃ ἡμέρᾳ κατὰ τὰς γραφάς· καὶ ἀνελθόντα εἰς τοὺς οὐρανοὺς, καὶ καθεζόμενον ἐκ δεξιῶν τοῦ Πατρὸς· καὶ πάλιν ἐρχόμενον μετὰ δόξης κρῖναι ζῶντας καὶ νεκρούς· οὗ τῆς βασιλείας οὐκ ἔσται τέλος.

Καὶ εἰς τὸ Πνεῦμα τὸ Ἅγιον, τὸ Κύριον, καὶ τὸ ζωοποιόν, τὸ ἐκ τοῦ Πατρὸς ἐκπορευόμενον, τὸ σὺν Πατρὶ καὶ Υἱῷ συμπροσκυνούμενον καὶ συνδοξαζόμενον, τὸ λαλῆσαν διὰ τῶν προφητῶν· Εἰς μίαν ἁγίαν καθολικὴν καὶ ἀποστολικὴν ἐκκλησίαν· ὁμολογοῦμεν ἓν βάπτισμα εἰς ἄφεσιν ἁμαρτιῶν, προσδοκῶμεν ἀνάστασιν νεκρῶν, καὶ ζωὴν τοῦ μέλλοντος αἰῶνος. Ἀμήν.

ἁγίαν not in the Liturgy of St. Mark.

The Salisbury Latin version of the Nicene Creed was as follows:—

“Credo in unum Deum, Patrem omnipotentem, factorem cœli et terræ, visibilibus omnium et invisibilium. Et in unum Dominum Jesum Christum, Filium Dei unigenitum, Et ex Patre natum ante omnia sæcula: Deum de Deo, Lumen de Lumine, Deum verum de Deo vero, Genitum non factum, consubstantiali Patri, per quem omnia facta sunt. Qui propter nos homines et propter nostram salutem descendit de cœlis, Et incarnatus est de Spiritu Sancto ex Maria virgine, Et homo factus est, Salisbury Use.

always been given by the Church to the Eucharistic dispensation of the Gospel: doubtless from a recognition of the solemn association between such an use of it and the Personal WORD of God, Whose message it is. In the Eastern Church the Book of the Gospels is carried in procession to the Altar, this rite being called the Little Entrance, as the procession of the Elements to the Altar is called the Great Entrance. In the Church of England lighted tapers used to be held on either side of the Gospeller while he was reading, and Incense burned, to signify that the Gospel is from Him Who is the Light of the World, and that the reading of it is a memorial offered before God. The versicle, “Glory be to Thee, O Lord,” is also handed down to us from the ancient Church, was printed in the earlier Prayer Books, and has been retained with a firmer hold than most ritual traditions by subsequent generations.

Standing at the Gospel is a custom significant of this reverent instinct of the Church. The historian Sozomen, who wrote in the fifth century, knew of only one exception to this custom, which was that of the Bishop of Alexandria. St. Chrysostom bids the people “stand with soul and ear erect” when the Gospel is read, and in the Apostolical Constitutions of the fifth century is the direction, “When the Gospels are in reading, let all the Priests and Deacons, and all the people, stand up in great quietness; for it is written, ‘Be still, and hearken, O Israel!’ and, again, ‘But do thou stand here and listen!’” Upon this custom Hooker writes, “It sheweth a reverend regard to the Son of God above all other messengers, although speaking as from God also. And against Infidels, Jews, Arians, who derogate from the honour of Jesus Christ, such ceremonies are most profitable.”

At the end of the Gospel, the Celebrant moves to the centre of the Altar, to say the Creed. In Merbecke, and in all other Services, the first words of the Creed, “I believe in God the Father,” are assigned to the Priest alone, the Choir and people joining in at the next words.

Crucifixus etiam pro nobis sub Pontio Pilato, passus et sepultus est. Et resurrexit tertia die secundum scripturas, et ascendit in cœlum, sedet ad dexteram Patris, Et iterum venturus est cum gloria iudicare vivos et mortuos, Cujus regni non erit finis. Et in Spiritum Sanctum Dominum et vivificantem, Qui ex Patre Filioque procedit, Qui cum Patre et Filio simul adoratur et conglorificatur, Qui locutus est per prophetas. Et unam sanctam Catholicam et Apostolicam Ecclesiam. Confiteor unum baptisma in remissionem peccatorum, et expecto resurrectionem mortuorum, Et vitam venturi sæculi. Amen."

The following is an interesting English version of the Nicene Creed, taken from our Lady's Mirror. Printed in 1530, it is yet almost exactly identical with that adopted in 1549. There are much older English versions:—

"I byleue in one god ye father almyghty, maker of heuen and of erthe, and of al thynges vysyble and inuisyble, and in one lorde iesu cryste, the only begotten sone of god: borne of the father before al worldes. god of god. lyghte of lyghte. very god of very god. bygotten and not made, and of one substance wyth the father. By whome all thynges are made, whiche for us men and women, and for oure helthe cam downe from heuens. And he was incarnate of the holy gooste of the vyrgyn marye, and he is made man. He was crucyfied also for us under ponce pylate, suffered passyon, and was buryed. And he arose the thyrd daye after scriptures, And he ascēded in heuen and syteth on the fathers ryghte hande. And he shall come agayne with glory to deme the quycke and the deade. Of whose kyngdome shall be none ende. And I byleue in the holy goste, lord and quykner. which proceedeth of the father and of the sonne. which is worshiped, and glorified togyther wyth the father and wyth the sonne, whych hathe spoke by the prophetes. And I byleue on holy comon and apostly chirche. I knowlege one baptyem in remyssyō of synnes. And I abyde the resurreccyon of the deade. And I abyde the lyfe of the worlde to come. Amen."

Mirror of our Lady version,
A.D. 1530.

THE NICENE CREED.

The recitation of the Creed in the public ministration of the Holy Eucharist was first introduced by Peter the Fuller, Bishop of Antioch in 471, and adopted by Timotheus Bishop of Constantinople in 511. In the West it was adopted first in Spain, by the Third Council of Toledo in 589, as an antidote to the Arian heresy, with which the Spanish Church had been infected; then in France in the time of Charles the Great, and lastly in the Roman Church under Pope Benedict VIII. in 1014. Originally the Creed seems to have been used only in the instruction of catechumens, and as their profession of faith when baptized; and also as that of Bishops at their ordination<sup>1</sup>.

One of the most interesting of the early creeds is that of Casarea, because it was adopted by the Council which assembled at Nicea in 325, to condemn the errors of Arius, as the basis of that profession of the Faith which,—with the addition made at the Second General Council of Constantinople in 381, (from "the Lord and Giver of life" to the end,) to meet the heresy of Macedonius,—was confirmed and finally adopted by the Third General Council of Ephesus in 431, and by the Fourth, that of Chalcedon, in 451. [See Hammond's "Definitions of Faith and Chances of the Universal Church."]

The Nicene, or, more correctly, the Niceno-Constantinopolitan Creed, from the solemn sanction thus given to it by the great Œcumenical Councils, stands in a position of greater authority than any other; and amid their long-standing divisions is a blessed bond of union between the three great branches of the One Catholic Church—the Eastern, the Roman, and the Anglican, of all whose Communion Offices it forms a part. It is very seriously to be regretted that the American portion of the Anglican Communion has made its use in the Communion Office optional, giving the Apostles' Creed as an alternative.

The shorter draught of the Creed as it came from the Nicene Council contained the words Θεὸν ἐκ Θεοῦ, which the Council of Constantinople omitted as unnecessary, and the words Deum de Deo do not occur in the Creed as given in the Gelasian Sacramentary. [Muratori, Lit. Rom. i. 540.] But they have since been universally restored throughout the Western Church.

The words "et Filio" or "Filioque" of the Procession of the Holy Ghost, have, as is well known, never been admitted into the Creed by the Eastern Church. They were first introduced, probably, as an additional protest against the Arian denial of the full Godhead of the Son, by the Spanish Church, at the great Council of Toledo in 589; or, according to Bingham, at the still earlier Council of Bracara in 411. Some however think that they cannot be traced with certainty higher than the Toledan Council of 633. [Gueté, Papauté Schismatique, p. 335.] The addition first became of importance towards the end of the eighth century, when the doctrine of the procession of the Holy Ghost from the Son was wielded as a theological weapon against the adoptionist heresy of the Spanish Bishops, Felix and Elipandus.

It was then generally adopted through Gaul and Germany, chiefly through the influence of Charlemagne, who is said to have written the hymn Veni, Creator; and although Pope Leo III., on the subject being referred to him by a Council held at Aix-la-Chapelle in 809, declined to sanction it, and caused a copy of the Creed without the "Filioque" to be engraved on silver plates and set up in St. Peter's: Pope Nicholas I., the great rival of the patriarch Photius, half a century later, insisted, in spite of the protests of the Greeks, on its insertion throughout the churches of the West. The dispute was embittered by the growing assumptions of the Roman See, which have always been steadfastly resisted by the Eastern Church; and the rupture was unhappily completed on July 16, 1054, when the legates of Pope Leo IX. laid on the altar of St. Sophia at Constantinople a writ of Excommunication against Michael Cerularius the Patriarch, which was answered by an anathema on the part of the Patriarch and his clergy.

The resistance of the Easterns to the insertion of the "Filioque" seems to have been influenced principally by these considerations. 1. An objection to the doctrine, if it was intended to assert that the Holy Spirit proceeds from the Son in the same sense, that, namely, of eternal derivation, in which He proceeds from the Father. This they thought was to trench on the great fundamental verity of one sole Ἀρχή, or Originating Principle, in the Godhead. The being the sole fount of Deity was, they argued, not one of the Substantial attributes of Godhead as such, since then it would belong equally to each of the Three Blessed Persons; but the distinctive Personal attribute of the Father only, as it is the distinctive Personal attribute of the Son that His Godhead is eternally derived from the Father by way of Generation, and of the Holy Spirit that His Godhead is eternally derived from the Father by way of Procession. And they maintained that the passages of Holy Scripture urged in defence of the eternal Procession of the Holy Ghost from the Son, referred only to His temporal mission by the Son; and that on so mysterious a subject it was safer to keep strictly, as the Œcumenical Councils had done, to the plain letter of Holy Scripture, which affirms expressly that

<sup>1</sup> Some of the earlier creeds may be seen in Harvey's History and Theology of the three Creeds, Heurtley's Harmonia Symbolica, Walchius' Bibliotheca Symbolica, and Bingham's Antiquities, X. iii. 4. See also pp. 17—21 and 36—38 of this work.

¶ Then the Curate shall declare unto the people what holy-days, or fasting-days, are in the week following to be observed. And then also (if occasion be) shall notice be given of the Communion; and the Banns of Matrimony published; and Briefs, Citations, and Excommunications read. And nothing shall be proclaimed or published in the Holy Ghost proceedeth from the Father, but does not affirm expressly that He proceedeth from the Son.

2. An objection to any unauthorized interpolation in the universally accepted Creed of Christendom, resting on the universally admitted authority of the Second and Fourth General Councils, especially when it originated in a local Church of the then unsettled and unlettered extreme West, and afterwards enforced by the Papal See very much by way of asserting and establishing its insolent claims of supremacy, and of dominion over the Faith of the Church.

At the English Reformation the question was not raised, and the Creed in this respect continued as before<sup>1</sup>.

Then the Curate shall declare unto the people We happen to have two very ancient notices that were given out to the people during Divine Service in the early Church. The one is the notification of Easter, which was given on the feast of the Epiphany, according to the Ambrosian rite, and which will be found in a note at p. 104. This is placed after the Collect "Super Populum" in the Missal of St. Ambrose, and was probably, therefore, read at an analogous part of the Service to that directed above. The other is a notice by St. Augustine in the following words:—"I suggest to you, Beloved, what ye know already. To-morrow dawns the anniversary day of the Ordination of the venerable Lord Aurelius. He asks and admonishes you by my humble ministry that you will, of your charity, grant him a meeting with all devotion at the basilica of Faustus. Thanks be to God." [Serm. cxi. Ben. ed., lxi. Oxford transl.] In mediæval times it was the custom (according to Cardinal Bona) to give out notices of feasts and fasts after the Benediction, which occurred in the part of the Service that comes between the Consecration and the Communion, and he gives some examples of these and other notices (including one of Baptism) from a Roman Sacramentary written before the ninth century. [Rer. Liturg. ii. 16.] The practice of interpolating such notices in the Communion Office is therefore one of great and apparently Primitive antiquity. In the Church of England it appears to have been the mediæval custom to associate the bidding of Holydays with the bidding of Prayers, a list of Festivals having been found written on the same parchment, from which the former was evidently read, in a fourteenth century MS. printed by L'Estrange<sup>2</sup>.

The Sixty-fourth Canon directs as follows:—

"CANON 64.

Ministers solemnly to bid Holydays.

Every Parson, Vicar, or Curate shall, in his several charge, declare to the people, every Sunday, at the time appointed in the Communion-book, whether there be any Holydays or Fasting-days the week following. And if any do, hereafter, wittingly offend herein, and being once admonished thereof by his Ordinary, shall again omit that duty, let him be censured according to law, until he submit himself to the due performance of it."

And then . . . of the Communion The notice here directed does not refer to either of the Exhortations subsequently printed, as they are ordered by the rubric preceding them to be used after the Sermon, this notice being before it. There is some confusion in the rubrics, both of which belong to an unhappy time of rare celebrations and communions; and neither of them come into operation where the Holy Communion is regularly celebrated, as it undoubtedly should be, every Sunday. In the one rubric the parenthesis "(if occasion be)" indicates that such notice is left to the discretion of the minister; and in the other the meaning plainly is, that the exhortations are to be used on the Sunday or Holyday preceding the Communion, if the celebration of it is not a regular part of the Sunday Service, and "warning" is therefore necessary.

the Banns of Matrimony published This portion of the rubric has been altered by the Delegates of the Press at Oxford, and the Syndics at Cambridge, without any authority whatever, in all Prayer Books printed during the last sixty years. The authoritative rubric is as above, and could only be altered by the same constitutional authority which imposed it<sup>3</sup>. By Lord Hardwicke's Act, 26 Geo. II., c. 33 (1753), it was enacted that "all Banns of Matrimony shall be published in an audible manner in the Parish Church according to the form of words prescribed by the rubric affixed to the Office of Matrimony in the Book of Common Prayer, upon three Sundays preceding the Solemnization of Marriage, during the time of Morning Service, or of Evening Service (if there be no Morning Service in such church upon any of those Sundays) immediately after the Second Lesson, and all other the rules prescribed by the said rubric concerning the publication of Banns, and the solemnization of Matrimony, and not hereby altered, shall be duly observed<sup>4</sup>."

It will be seen that this clause does not define any thing with respect to the time of publication at the "Morning Service," leaving it still to take place after the Nicene Creed, or (which is the same thing when there is no Sermon) "immediately before the sentences for the Offertory." A judicial decision on this subject, and some further particulars, will be found in the notes to the Marriage Office.

Briefs These were letters patent issued by the Sovereign, directing the collection of alms for special objects named in them. They were granted for building and repairing churches, and for many benevolent purposes (such as the compensation of losses by fire), which are now provided for by societies or public subscriptions. Great abuses arose out of Briefs, and a statute was passed to regulate them in Queen Anne's reign. [4 Anne, c. 14.] The abuses still continued, however, as will be seen by the following particulars of ninety-seven briefs for repairing or rebuilding churches or chapels, and forty-seven briefs for accidents by fire, inundations, &c., issued between Michaelmas, 1805, and Michaelmas, 1818:—

| Michaelmas, 1805,to Michaelmas, 1818. |                | Estimates ofmoney required. |       | Sumscollected. |        | Net proceeds. |       |
|-------------------------------------------|----------------|---------------------------------|-------|--------------------|--------|---------------|-------|
|                                           |                | £                               | s. d. | £                  | s. d.  | £             | s. d. |
| 97 briefs for churches, &c. . .           | 125,240 19 4½  | 35,857                          | 6 7½  | 14,297             | 14 4½  |               |       |
| 47 ——— accidents, &c. . .                 | 34,884 15 3½   | 31,656                          | 12 8½ | 14,606             | 18 7   |               |       |
| 144                                       | £160,125 14 8½ | 67,513                          | 19 4½ | 28,904             | 12 11½ |               |       |

An attempt was again made to reform the system in 1821, but with so little success that Briefs were at last abolished, in 1828, by 9 Geo. IV., c. 28. "King's Letters," which were only discontinued five or six years ago, were documents of a similar character, and one granted by Charles II., for Chelsea Hospital, (but never used,) is among Archbishop Sancroft's papers in the Bodleian. These were granted, in recent times, to the Incorporated Societies for Church Building, Missions, and Education.

Citations "A citation is a judicial act, whereby the defendant, by authority of the judge (the plaintiff requesting it), is commanded to appear, in order to enter into suit, at a certain day, in a place where justice is administered." [Burn's Ecc. Law.] They were read after the Offertory in the Mediæval Church. The only kind of Citation ever heard in church at the present day is the "Si quis" of candidates for Holy Orders, calling upon any persons who know reasons why they should not be ordained to declare those reasons to the Bishop.

Excommunications These are sentences of ecclesiastical censure passed by competent authority, that is, by some eccle-

<sup>1</sup> The standard works on the Nicene Creed are those of Bishop Bull and Bishop Forbes of Brechin. There is an admirable old English exposition of it, with the above translation, in "the Mirror of our Lady."

<sup>2</sup> Alliance Div. Off. p. 262. Ang. Cath. Lib. Ed.

<sup>3</sup> See pp. xli.—xliii.

<sup>4</sup> See also 4 Geo. IV. c. 76, 1823.

the Church, during the time of Divine Service, but by the Minister: nor by him any thing, but what is prescribed in the Rules of this Book, or enjoined by the Queen, or by the Ordinary of the place.

¶ Then shall follow the Sermon, or one of the Homilies already set forth, or hereafter to be set forth, by Authority.

¶ Then shall the Priest return to the Lord's Table, and begin the Offertory, saying one or more of these Sentences following, as he thinketh most convenient in his discretion.

Matt. v. 16.
[1]

LET your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.

Matt. vi. 19, 20.
[2]

Lay not up for yourselves treasure upon the earth; where the rust and moth doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal: but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven; where neither rust nor moth doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal.

Whatsoever ye would that men Matt. vii. 12.
[3] should do unto you, even so do unto them; for this is the Law and the Prophets.

Not every one that saith unto me, Matt. vii. 21.
[4] Lord, Lord, shall enter into the Kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven.

Zacchæus stood forth, and said unto Luke xix. 8.
[5] the Lord, Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have done any wrong to any man, I restore four-fold.

Who goeth a warfare at any time 1 Cor. ix. 7.
[6] of his own cost? Who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof? Or who feedeth a flock, and eateth not of the milk of the flock?

If we have sown unto you spiritual 1 Cor. ix. 11.
[7] things, is it a great matter if we shall reap your worldly things?

siastical judge or ordinary. Canon 65 fully explains this part of the rubric. [See also Palmer's Orig. Liturg. ii. 384.]

And nothing shall be proclaimed] Many Acts of Parliament required that parochial notices respecting purely secular matters should be publicly read in church; and the example had been followed in respect to numberless matters of the same kind without the same authority. All such enactments were repealed by 7 Will. IV., and 1 Vict. c. 45, which thus practically enforced the authority of the rubric.

Then shall follow the Sermon] No authority is here given for that use of the academical gown in preaching which was once so common. Nor is it clear whether the Celebrant, if he is also the preacher, is to lay aside his Vestment. The ancient custom was to preach from the altar steps, and pulpits were far from being universal in churches when this rubric was first inserted. For a sermon preached from the pulpit the Eucharistic Vestment seems scarcely fitting, though it would be strictly so if the sermon was preached from the altar.

The only form of prayer before sermon which has any authority whatever is that enjoined in the Fifty-fifth Canon.

"CANON 55.

The form of a Prayer to be used by all Preachers before their Sermons.

Before all Sermons, Lectures, and Homilies, the Preachers and Ministers shall move the people to join with them in Prayer in this form, or to this effect, as briefly as conveniently they may: Ye shall pray for Christ's holy Catholic Church, that is, for the whole congregation of Christian people dispersed throughout the whole world, and especially for the Churches of England, Scotland, and Ireland: and herein I require you most especially to pray for the King's most excellent Majesty, our Sovereign Lord James, King of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, and Supreme Governor in these his realms, and all other his dominions and countries, over all persons in all causes, as well Ecclesiastical as Temporal: ye shall also pray for our gracious Queen Anne, the noble Prince Henry, and the rest of the King and Queen's royal issue: ye shall also pray for the Ministers of God's holy Word and Sacraments, as well Archbishops and Bishops, as other Pastors and Curates: ye shall also pray for the King's most honourable Council, and for all the Nobility and Magistrates of this realm; that all and every of these, in their several callings, may serve truly and painfully to the glory of God, and the edifying and well-governing of His people, remembering the account that they must make: also ye shall pray for the whole Commons of this realm, that they may live in the true faith and fear of God, in humble obedience to the King, and brotherly charity one to another. Finally, let us praise God for all those which are departed out of this life in the faith of Christ, and pray unto God that we may have grace to direct our lives after their good example; that this life ended, we may be made partakers with them of the glorious resurrection in the life everlasting; always concluding with the Lord's Prayer."

This is a modernized form of the ancient "Bidding of the Bedes," but is seldom used except in Cathedrals and Colleges<sup>1</sup>. It was enjoined on preachers in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, on account of the iniquitous use which was made of their so-called prayers before the sermon by the Puritans; some of whom made it a weekly vehicle for teaching sedition and schism<sup>2</sup>. It may be doubted whether the Bidding Prayer was ever intended to be used for Sermons preached during the Communion Service. When it was inserted in the Canons, Sermons were often preached apart from prayers, as at Paul's Cross, and as the University Sermons are still preached at Oxford and Cambridge. In similar cases it would still be very appropriate.

THE OFFERTORY.

The solemn oblation of the elements to be consecrated for the Holy Communion has always formed a prominent feature of the Liturgy<sup>3</sup>. In the Eastern Church the elements are prepared in

<sup>1</sup> For ancient forms of this see Liber Festivalis, L'Estrange's Alliance of Div. Offices, Maskell's Mon. Rit. iii. 342. Coxe's Forms of Bidding Prayer with Introduction and Notes. 1840.

<sup>2</sup> See a single instance, extending from p. 97 to p. 109 of Mr. Coxe's volume.

<sup>3</sup> The writer, commonly called Dionysius the Areopagite, tells us that after the exclusion of the Catechumens and persons under penance, the ministers and priests "then place upon the altar of God the holy bread and the cup of blessing." [De Eccles. Hierarchia, cap. 3. Op. Tom. i. p. 187 D.]

1 Cor. ix. 13, 14. [8] Do ye not know, that they who minister about holy things live of the sacrifice; and they who wait at the altar are partakers with the altar? Even so hath the Lord also ordained, that they who preach the Gospel should live of the Gospel.

2 Cor. ix. 6, 7. [9] He that soweth little shall reap little; and he that soweth plenteously shall reap plenteously. Let every man do according as he is disposed in his heart, not grudgingly, or of necessity; for God loveth a cheerful giver.

Gal. vi. 6, 7. [10] Let him that is taught in the Word minister unto him that teacheth, in all good things. Be not deceived, God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth that shall he reap.

Gal. vi. 10. [11] While we have time, let us do good unto all men; and specially unto them that are of the household of faith.

1 Tim. vi. 6, 7. [12] Godliness is great riches, if a man be content with that he hath: for we brought nothing into the world, neither may we carry any thing out.

1 Tim. vi. 17—19. [13] Charge them who are rich in this world, that they be ready to give, and glad to distribute; laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they may attain eternal life.

Heb. vi. 10. [14] God is not unrighteous, that he will forget your works, and labour that proceedeth of love; which love ye have shewed for his Name's sake, who have ministered unto the saints, and yet do minister.

To do good, and to distribute, for- Heb. xiii. 16. [15] get not; for with such sacrifices God is well pleased.

Whoso hath this world's good, and 1 John iii. 17 [16] seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?

Give alms of thy goods, and never Tob. iv. 7. [17] turn thy face from any poor man; and then the face of the Lord shall not be turned away from thee.

Be merciful after thy power. If Tob. iv. 8, 9. [18] thou hast much, give plenteously: if thou hast little, do thy diligence gladly to give of that little: for so gatherest thou thyself a good reward in the day of necessity.

He that hath pity upon the poor Prov. xix. 17. [19] lendeth unto the Lord: and look, what he layeth out, it shall be paid him again.

Blessed be the man that provideth Ps. xli. 1. [20] for the sick and needy: the Lord shall deliver him in the time of trouble.

¶ Whilst these Sentences are in reading, the 1 Cor. xvi. 1, 2. Deacons, Churchwardens, or other fit per- Rom. xvi. 26. son appointed for that purpose, shall re- Gal. ii. 10. ceive the alms for the poor, and other Acts vi. 3. devotions of the people, in a decent basin, Matt. v. 23, 24. to be provided by the Parish for that pur- Eccles. vii. 10. pose, and reverently bring it to the Priest; 31, 32. who shall humbly present and place it upon the holy Table.

the Prothesis, the northern of the chapels on either side of the altar, with a special service, called "The Office of the Prothesis," and are taken to the altar with much ceremony in a procession called "The Great Entrance." Then they are offered to God with a Prayer of Oblation, the following being that appointed in the Liturgy of St. Chrysostom, which is now generally used in the East and in Russia:—

"Lord, God Almighty, Only Holy, Who receivest the sacrifice of praise from them that call upon Thee with their whole heart, receive also the supplication of us sinners, and cause it to approach to Thy holy Altar, and enable us to present gifts to Thee, and spiritual sacrifices for our sins, and for the errors of the people; and cause us to find grace in Thy sight, that this our sacrifice may be acceptable unto Thee, and that the good Spirit of Thy grace may tabernacle upon us, and upon these gifts presented unto Thee, and upon all Thy people. Through the mercies of Thine only-begotten Son, with whom Thou art to be blessed, and with the all-lowly, and good, and quickening Spirit, now and ever, and to ages of ages."

In the unreformed Liturgy of the Church of England, a short Anthem, called "Offertorium," was sung at this part of the service, and then the Celebrant said the following prayer:—"Accept, O holy Trinity, this Oblation which I offer to Thine honour,

[in honour of the Blessed Mary and of all Thy Saints<sup>1</sup>,] for my sins and offences, for the wealth of the living, and for the rest of all the faithful departed. May this new sacrifice be acceptable to Almighty God, in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

In the Communion Office of 1549 there was no special prayer connected with the Oblation of the elements; but there was the following rubric:—"Then shall the Minister take so much bread and wine as shall suffice for the persons appointed to receive the Holy Communion, laying the bread upon the corporas, or else in the paten, or in some other comely thing<sup>2</sup> prepared for that purpose: and putting the wine into the chalice, or else in some fair or convenient cup prepared for that use (if the chalice will not serve), putting thereto a little pure and clean water<sup>3</sup>, and setting both the bread and wine upon the altar."

<sup>1</sup> No doubt this is a late insertion.

<sup>2</sup> Probably a "ciborium" was meant.

<sup>3</sup> This ancient custom of mingling a small quantity of water with the wine is one which many good men have recommended and practised. Wheatley remarks respecting the usage: "It must be confessed that the mixture has, in all ages, been the general practice, and for that reason was enjoined to be continued in our own Church by the first Reformers. And though in the next Review the order for it was omitted, yet the practice of

¶ And when there is a Communion, the Priest shall then place upon the Table so much Bread and Wine, as he shall think sufficient. After which done, the Priest shall say,

Let us pray for the whole state of Christ's Church militant here in earth.

Deut. xxxii. 40.
1 Tim. ii. 1, 2.
Phil. iv. 6.
2 Sam. xvi. 4.
Acts xxiv. 17.
Heb. xiii. 16.
Gal. vi. 6.
Ps. xx. 1, 3. vi. 9.
John x. 15, 16.
xvii. 17. 20.

ALMIGHTY and everliving God, who by thy holy Apostle hast taught us to make prayers, and supplications, and to give thanks, for all men; We humbly beseech thee most mercifully [to accept our alms and If there be no oblations, and] to receive these our prayers, which we offer unto thy Divine Majesty; beseeching thee to inspire continually the universal Church with the spirit of truth, unity, and concord: And grant, that all they that do confess thy holy Name may agree in the truth of thy holy word, and live in unity, and godly love. We beseech thee also to save and defend all Christian Kings, Princes, and Governours;

shall the words [of accepting our alms and oblations] be left out unsaid.
Eph. iv. 1—4.
Rom. x. 9, 10.
1 Cor. i. 10.
2 Cor. xiii. 11.
John xiii. 35.
1 Sam. x. 24.
Ps. cxliv. 10.
1 Tim. ii. 1, 2.
Exod. xviii. 21, 22.
Prov. xi. 14.
Deut. i. 17.

After which followed, "The Lord be with you," "Lift up your hearts," and the Sanctus with its Preface.

The substance of this rubric is retained in that which immediately precedes the Prayer for the Church Militant, and its significance was heightened in the revision of 1661 by the introduction of the word "oblations" into that prayer. The rubric and the words of the prayer together now give to our Liturgy as complete an "Oblation of the Elements" as is found in the ancient Offices. This should be distinctly shown by the reverent method of "placing" the bread and wine upon the Lord's Table; so that it may be seen they are placed there as a devout offering to God of His creatures of bread and wine that He may accept them at our hands (as the Lord accepted the five loaves from His disciples), to be by Him eucharistized to the higher sphere and purpose of the new creation. A separate Prayer of Oblation is still used in the Office for the Holy Communion when celebrated at Coronations. It is as follows:—"Bless, O Lord, we beseech Thee, these Thy gifts, and sanctify them unto this holy use, that by them we may be made partakers of the Body and Blood of Thine only-begotten Son Jesus Christ, and fed unto everlasting life of soul and body."

A secondary part of the Offertory is the collection and offering of "alms for the poor, and other devotions of the people." The words "accept our alms" were inserted where they now stand in 1552, but the rubric directing the churchwardens to put them "into the poor men's box," it is doubtful whether they were offered upon the altar. Perhaps it was this doubtful character of the rubric which led to such a distinct direction as that which we now have, and which was inserted in 1661. This direction should also regulate the collection of alms in Church at other services.

The idea of an offering of alms at the Holy Communion arises out of the idea of the oblation of the elements. The elements are the materials of the sacrifice about to be offered to God and partaken of by the communicants; and (as under the Jewish system) such materials are provided by those who are to benefit by the sacrifice. But since so small a quantity of material is not recognizable as an offering from many individuals, each supplements it according to his ability with an offering of money to be applied as alms for the poor, whom "always ye have with you," or for some sacred object connected with the work of Christ and of the Church. Such an offering at such a time is very significant; for, first, "we thereby acknowledge God's sovereignty over all, and His great bounty to us in particular," that "all things come of Him," and of His own do we give Him; fulfilling His command of not "appearing before Him empty;" and, secondly, the people acknowledge and fulfil their duty of providing for the maintenance of God's Priests, of God's Poor, of God's Church, His consecrated fabrics and His holy services.

In his Durham Book, Cosin made a re-arrangement of, and some additions to, the Offertory sentences, which are worth notice. He annexed the following direction to the printer:—"Print the first thirteen of these sentences at a distance from the six following: and those six at a distance from the four next after: and the last (being the 26) at a distance by itself." This classification may be understood by comparing the following numbers and additions with the numbers affixed to the sentences in the margins above. The two from Tobit were included by Cosin in the third class, but appear to have been erased by the Revision Committee, though still printed in the Prayer Book.

I.

1, 2, 3, 4. 12, 13, 14, 15. Gen. iv. 3. Exod. xxv. 2. Deut. xvi. 16. Ps. xvi. 7, 8. Mark xii. 41; and Luke xxi. 3, 4.

II.

6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11.

III.

5. 16. 20. 19 [17, 18, these two, from Tobit, erased by San-croft].

IV.

Blessed be Thou, O God, for ever. Thine, O Lord, is the greatness and the glory. For all that is in the heaven and in the earth is Thine. Both riches and honour come of Thee; and of Thine own do we give unto Thee. As for me, in the uprightness of my heart I have willingly offered all these things. And now have I seen with joy Thy people who are here present to offer willingly unto Thee. 1 Chron. xxix. 11—13. 17.

Another classification may be suggested, as follows:—
For general use, 1, 2, 3, 4. 9. 12, 13. 15. 18.

„ the poor, 5. 17. 19. 20.

„ „ support of Churches, Clergy, and Missions, 6, 7, 8. 10.

„ special Church charities, 11. 14. 16.

„ Hospitals, 20.

§ Prayer for the Church.

The "Oremus" of this prayer is formed from the title of an ancient prayer for the living and the departed, which was in use before the Reformation, and which is printed (from a volume of Hours dated 1531, and belonging to J. D. Chambers, Esq.) in it was continued in the King's Chapel, all the time that Bishop Andrewes was dean of it." "We ought by no means to censure others, who put water into the Cup, for they have the consent of the Church Catholic of all ages with them in this particular. This practice remained universal for the first 1500 years after Christ in all Churches, excepting that of Armenia. Pfaffius shows that the cup of blessing among the Jews did for the most part consist of wine mixed with water, and from thence concludes that the Primitive Church took this practice from them, as it is certain they did several others." [Johnson, Unbl. Sacrif., Part ii. ch. i. § iv. vol. ii. p. 84.] "It seems to me to have been an Apostolical use, and very probably practised by Jesus Christ Himself; therefore I cannot but wish that it might be restored." [Ibid. p. 203. See also Palmer, Origines Liturg., chap. iv. § 9; and Dr. Littledale's pamphlet, "The Mixed Chalice."]

Symbolically the mixture of water with the wine represents the union of the human with the Divine nature in the Incarnation. It is also a lively memorial of Him Who for our redemption did shed out of His most precious side both Water and Blood.

Rom. xiii. 3, 4.
1 Pet. ii. 13, 14.
Phil. i. 1, 2.
2 Thess. iii. 1.
Eph. vi. 18, 19.
1 Tim. iv. 12.
Matt. xxviii. 19, 20.
Acts xx. 7.
1 Cor. xiv. 26, 40.
Neh. viii. 2—5.
Rev. ii. 11.
James i. 19, 21.
2 Tim. iii. 15—19.
Luke i. 74, 75.

and specially thy servant VICTORIA our Queen, that under her we may be godly and quietly governed: And grant unto her whole Council, and to all that are put in authority under her, that they may truly and indifferently minister justice, to the punishment of wickedness and vice, and to the maintenance of thy true religion, and virtue. Give grace, O heavenly Father, to all Bishops and Curates, that they may both by their life and doctrine set forth thy true and lively Word, and rightly and duly administer thy holy Sacraments: And to all thy people give thy heavenly grace; and especially to this congregation here present; that, with meek heart and due reverence, they may hear, and receive thy holy Word; truly serving thee in holiness and righteousness all the days of their life. And we most humbly beseech thee of thy goodness, O Lord, to comfort and succour all them, who in this transitory life are in trouble, sorrow, need, sickness, or any other adversity. And we also bless thy holy Name for all thy servants departed this life in thy faith and fear; beseeching thee to give us grace so to follow their good examples, that with them we may be partakers of thy heavenly kingdom: Grant this, O Father, for Jesus Christ's sake, our only Mediator and Advocate. Amen.

Heb. xlii. 3.
Ps. cxlv. 9.
ciii. 13—17.
2 Cor. i. 3, 4.
Ps. xxxi. 7.
Rev. xiv. 13.
vii. 13—17.
Heb. xi. 13, 39.
40. xii. 1, 2.
vi. 12.
Col. i. 12.
2 Tim. iv. 18.
1 Tim. ii. 5.

A.D. 1661.

the "Directorium Anglicanum" [p. 53, 2nd ed.]. This prayer is entitled, "¶ A generall and devout prayre for the goode state of oure moder the Churche militant here in erth." The general character of the prayer is similar to that of the present Church Militant Prayer, but it ends with the following words,—"et omnibus fidelibus vivis et defunctis, in terra viventium vitam æternam pariter et regimen concedas."

Prefaces of a similar kind to that here ordered were affixed to each of the nine collects for Good Friday in the Salisbury Missal; and the first of them began, "Oremus, dilectissimi, nobis in primis pro ecclesia sancta Dei . . .," the preceding rubric ending, "Et primo pro universali statu ecclesie." It was adopted before the Consecration Prayer of the Liturgy of 1549, in the form, "Let us pray for the whole state of Christ's Church," and the ancient phrase "militant here on earth" was added in 1552. Bishop Cosin altered it in his Durham Book to "Let us offer up our prayers and praises for the good estate of Christ's Catholick Church," making the same change in the title of the prayer in the first rubric at the end of the Communion Office. In the latter place it was so printed in all the Sealed Books, and it is so written in the duplicate MS. of the Prayer Book sent to Ireland. In some of the Sealed Books it was, however, altered to the present form by the correcting Commissioners. But it is still to be found printed in Cosin's form in many Prayer Books of a date near to the time of the revision, from which it may be concluded that it was not altered in all the Sealed Books.

The Prayer for the Church Militant is the first portion of the Canon as it was re-formed in 1549 [see the Appendix to this Office]. It was separated from that part of the Canon more immediately associated with the act of Consecration, in 1552, and thrown back into this early part of the service. At the same time, the commendation of the congregation present was put in its present short form, instead of in one which specified that they were met to commemorate the death of Christ. Bishop Cosin wished to restore the passage in a bracket, with a marginal rubric, as follows:—

"[And we commend especially unto Thy merciful goodness this Congregation which is here assembled in Thy Name, to celebrate the Commemoration of the most precious death and Sacrifice of Thy Son and our Saviour Jesus Christ.]"

He also desired to insert after the words "their life," a full

When there is no Communion these words thus inclosed [ ] are to be left out.

and definite commemoration of the departed, after the pattern of the older Liturgy, and as it had been adopted in the Scottish Office of 1637. His MS. insertion in the margin of the Durham Book is as follows:—

"And we also bless Thy holy Name for all these Thy servants, who having finished their course in faith do now rest from their labours. And we yield unto Thee most high praise and hearty thanks for the wonderful grace and virtue declared in all Thy Saints, who have been the choice vessels of Thy grace, and the Lights of the world in their several generations: most humbly beseeching Thee that we may have grace to follow the example of their stedfastness in Thy faith, and obedience to Thy holy commandments: that at the day of the general Resurrection, we and all they which are of the mystical Body of Thy Son may be set on His right hand, and to hear that his most joyful voice, 'Come, ye blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world.' Grant, &c."

A prayer similar in character to the Prayer for the Church Militant is found in all Liturgies, although placed in closer connexion with the Consecration Prayer<sup>3</sup>. The object of the prayer, whatever its position, is to present a supplication for all members of the Church at the time when the offering up the Eucharist makes intercession a special duty of love, and gives to it a special hope of prevailing power. Condensed as our present form of this prayer is, yet its comprehensiveness is very observable; and, though it is brief, it is as all-inclusive as the Litany. Having made the verbal offering of the Alms and of the Oblations, it proceeds to pray for the living under five principal divisions, which it would be well to mark in the typographical arrangement of the prayer by beginning a fresh paragraph for each. 1. For the Catholic Church. 2. For Christian Princes. 3. For the Bishops and Clergy. 4. For the People. 5. For the Afflicted. This prayer is, indeed, so exhaustive as to render it unnecessary to use the Litany immediately before the Communion Office, as part of the same continuous service. In Churches where Mattins, Litany, and Holy Communion, are thought to make too long a <sup>3</sup> In the Scotch Communion Office this Prayer (which in its commemoration of the departed is fuller than ours, and keeps more closely to the Liturgy of 1549) follows immediately after the Prayers of Consecration and Oblation. This is its position in the Liturgies of St. James, St. Basil, St. Chrysostom, and the Clementine; but in the Alexandrine Liturgy of St. Mark, and in the Mozarabic and ancient Gallican Liturgies, the great Intercessory Prayer for Living and Dead preceded the Consecration. In the Latin forms, Roman, Ambrosian, and Anglican, the Commemoration of the Living preceded Consecration: that of the Departed followed it.

For the general similarity between this prayer and similar ones in the Primitive Church, compare Tertull. Apol. 39, and St. Cyril's fifth Catechetical Lecture on the mysteries.

<sup>1</sup> It is also found at fol. 192 of the Liber Festivalis of 1515, first printed in 1483 by Caxton.

¶ When the Minister giveth warning for the celebration of the holy Communion, (which he shall always do upon the Sunday, or some holy-day, immediately precedings,) after the Sermon or Homily ended, he shall read this Exhortation following.

Lev xxiii. 1—4.
2 Chron. xxxv. 6.
Rev. iii. 20.
Heb. xiii. 10.
xii. 28.
Acts ii. 41, 42.
1 Cor. xi. 23—25.
Gal. vi. 14.
Heb. ix. 22, 11,
12, x. 12, 14.
Col. i. 12.
Luke xxii. 19.
1 Cor. ii. 24.
Heb. x. 26.
Ps. cxvii. 12, 13.
Eph. v. 20.
Heb. xiii. 15.
Rom. v. 8.
John vi. 53—56.
Gal. ii. 20.
1 Cor. x. 16.
xi. 26, 27.
Ezek. iii. 18, 19.
1 Cor. xi. 29, 28.
2 Cor. xiii. 5.
1 Cor. xi. 31.
Jer. xlii. 20.
John xiii. 10, 11.
Rev. xix. 8.
Isa. lxi. 10.
Matt. xxii. 11—
13.
1 Cor. x. 21.
John vi. 35, &c.
1 Cor. x. 16.
ii. 27, 28.

DEARLY beloved, on — day next I purpose, through God's assistance, to administer to all such as shall be religiously and devoutly disposed the most comfortable Sacrament of the Body and Blood of Christ, to be by them received in remembrance of his meritorious Cross and Passion, whereby alone we obtain remission of our sins, and are made partakers of the Kingdom of heaven. Wherefore it is our duty to render most humble and hearty thanks to Almighty God our heavenly Father, for that he hath given his Son our Saviour Jesus Christ, not only to die for us, but also to be our spiritual food and sustenance in that holy Sacrament. Which being so divine and comfortable a thing to them who receive it worthily, and so dangerous to them that will presume to receive it unworthily; my duty is to exhort you in the mean season to consider the dignity of that holy mystery, and the great peril of the unworthy receiving thereof; and so to search and examine your own consciences, (and that not lightly, and after the manner of dissemblers with God; but so) that ye may come holy and clean to such a heavenly feast, in the marriage-garment required by God in holy Scripture, and be received as worthy partakers of that holy Table.

Matt. xxii. 11.

The way and means thereto is; First, to examine your lives and conversations by the rule of God's commandments; and whereinsoever ye shall perceive yourselves to have offended, either by will, word, or deed, there to bewail your own sinfulness, and to confess yourselves to Almighty God, with full purpose of amendment of life. And if ye shall perceive your offences to be such as are not only against God, but

Hag. i. 5.
Isa. viii. 20.
John xii. 47, 48.
2 Tim. iii. 16.
Ps. cxix. 130.
John iii. 19, 20.
Eccl. vii. 20.
2 Cor. vii. 10, 11.
Job xxxiv. 31, 32.
Matt. v. 23—26.
Luke xix. 8.
Exod. xxii. 6, 7.
Lev. xxvi. 40.
Numb. v. 7.
Josh. vii. 19.
Ps. xxxii. 5.
2 Sam. xii. 13.
Ps. li. 2.
Prov. xxviii. 13.
Dan. ix. 20.
Matt. iii. 6.

service at once, as indeed they do, it would be better to let the Communion follow immediately after Mattins, using the Litany as a separate service in the afternoon. This would obviate the sameness of repeated prayers for the same persons and objects, which, more than the actual time taken, is the cause of the common complaints of the length of the Morning Service. Particular intercession should be privately made after the word "adversity" and "fear," and the Priest should make a short pause, to allow those present thus silently to commend to God any for whom they are specially bound to pray.

If it be thought by any to be an omission that in this prayer we do not pray for "all sorts and conditions of men," Heathen as well as Christian, but only for Christ's Church, it should be remembered that our Lord Himself in His Eucharistic Intercession expressly says, "I pray not for the world, but for them which Thou hast given Me" [John xvii. 9]. Very observable also is it that the earnest prayer for unity, which is found in the great intercessory Prayer that forms part of every known Christian Liturgy, is a close following of our Blessed Lord's own example at the first Institution of the Eucharist [John xvii. 20—23].

In commemorating the departed at the time of celebrating the Holy Eucharist, the Church of England simply does as every known Church has done from the earliest age in which its Liturgical customs can be traced. The following are some Primitive examples:—

Liturgy of St. James. See Introduction to this Office, p. 156. The first words of commemoration, "... that they may find mercy and grace with all Thy Saints ..." will be found exactly similar in character to those of the Church Militant Prayer.

Liturgy of St. Mark. "Give rest to the souls of our fathers and brethren that have heretofore slept in the faith of Christ, O Lord our God, remembering our ancestors, fathers, patriarchs, prophets, apostles, martyrs, confessors, bishops, holy and just persons, every spirit that has departed in the faith of Christ, and those whom to-day we keep in memory."

Liturgy of St. Clement. "Let us commemorate the holy martyrs, that we may be deemed worthy to be partakers of their trial. Let us pray for all those who have fallen asleep in the Faith."

Liturgy of St. Chrysostom. "Further, we pray for the blessed and ever-memorable founders of this holy abode, and for all our fathers and brethren that have fallen asleep before us, and lie here, and the orthodox that lie every where." [From the Ectene.] "And, farther, we offer to Thee this reasonable Service on behalf of those who have departed in the Faith, our ancestors, fathers, . . . and every just spirit made perfect in the Faith." [From the Prayer of Oblation.] "And remember all those that are departed in the hope of the resurrection to eternal life, and give them rest where the light of Thy countenance shines upon them." [From the commemoration of the diptychs of the departed.]

It will thus be seen how great a deviation it would be from Primitive Christianity to omit all mention of the deceased members of Christ, at the time when celebrating the great Sacrament of Love by which all the whole Church is bonded together. And it must be considered as great matter for thankfulness, that in all the assaults made upon the Liturgy of the Church of England by persons holding a more meagre belief in things unseen, the Providence of God has preserved the prayer for the whole Church, departed as well as living, in the Prayer for the Church Militant.

THE EXHORTATIONS.

These short homilies were introduced into the Communion Office at a time when the Church of England laity were in danger of two extremes. The first was that almost total neglect of Communion which had sprung up during the Middle Ages: the second was that fearful irreverence towards the Holy Communion which arose from the dreadful principles held respecting it by the Puritans: an irreverence so great as to call out even an Act of Parliament for its suppression. [1 Edw. VI. c. 1, 1547.]

In the face of these dangers, and when Sermons were but rarely preached in comparison with later times, these Exhortations were placed where they are, for instruction of the people, as well as for a hortatory purpose. Although extremely valuable as statements of doctrine, they are not so necessary in times when sermons respecting the Holy Communion are so common as they

1 John i. 9.
Matt. v. 23.
Numb. v. 7.
Luke xix. 8.
Matt. vi. 14.
Eph. iv. 32.
Col. iii. 13.
1 Cor. xi. 29.
John xiii. 27.
1 John iii. 20.
2 Sam. xii. 13.
Luke xi. 4.
xvii. 3, 4.
Mark xi. 25.
Matt. xviii. 34, 35.
Col. iii. 13.
1 Cor. xi. 29.
2 Tim. iii. 1, 2.
Luke xi. 52.
Rom. iii. 8.
1 Cor. vi. 9, 10.
Col. iii. 8.
1 Cor. x. 21.
xi. 31.
Luke xxii. 3—6.
21, 22.
Matt. xxvii. 3—5.

Heb. x. 19—22.
xii. 22, 24.
1 John iii. 20, 21.
Rom. xiv. 5.
Ps. lii. 8.
James v. 16.
Isa. i. 4.

also against your neighbours; then ye shall reconcile yourselves unto them; being ready to make restitution and satisfaction, according to the uttermost of your powers, for all injuries and wrongs done by you to any other; and being likewise ready to forgive others that have offended you, as ye would have forgiveness of your offences at God's hand: for otherwise the receiving of the holy Communion doth nothing else but increase your damnation. Therefore if any of you be a blasphemer of God, an hinderer or slanderer of his Word, an adulterer, or be in malice, or envy, or in any other grievous crime, repent you of your sins, or else come not to that holy Table; lest, after the taking of that holy Sacrament, the devil enter into you, as he entered into Judas, and fill you full of all iniquities, and bring you to destruction both of body and soul.

And because it is requisite, that no man should come to the holy Communion, but with a full trust in God's mercy, and with a quiet conscience;

therefore if there be any of you, who by this means cannot quiet his own conscience herein, but requireth further comfort or counsel, let him come to me, or to some other discreet and learned Minister of God's Word, and open his grief; that by the ministry of God's holy Word he may receive the benefit of absolution, together with ghostly counsel and advice, to the quieting of his conscience, and avoiding of all scruple and doubtfulness.

¶ Or, in case he shall see the people negligent to come to the holy Communion, instead of the former, he shall use this Exhortation.

DEARLY beloved brethren, on — I intend, by God's grace, to celebrate the Lord's Supper: unto which, in God's behalf, I bid you all that are here present, and beseech you, for the Lord Jesus Christ's sake, that ye will not refuse to come thereto, being so lovingly called and bidden by God himself. Ye know how grievous and unkind a thing it is, when a man hath prepared a rich feast, decked his table with all kind of provision, so that

2 Tim. ii. 24, 25.
Luke xxii. 32.
John xx. 22, 23.
2 Cor. ii. 10, 11.
Isa. xii. 2.
John xxi. 23.
Luke x. 16.
Matt. xvi. 19.
xviii. 18.

2 Cor. v. 20.
Cant. v. 1.
Isa. lv. 1, 2.
Rev. xxii. 19.
Luke xiv. 16—23.
Matt. xxii. 2—6.
8, 9.

now are; and they are out of character with the habits of a Church in which there is a regular celebration of the Holy Communion on all Sundays and Holydays. The rubric does not seem to enjoin their constant use; but to require this form of Exhortation to be used at those times when the Minister thinks it necessary to "give warning," that is, to exhort his people, respecting "the celebration of the Holy Communion;" and when so used they are to be used upon "the Sunday, or some Holyday immediately preceding" that on which the celebration is to take place. The tone of the rubric and of the exhortations is plainly fitted to a time of infrequent communions.

§ The first Exhortation.

The original of this formed part of the "Order of Communion" set forth in 1548, when a great endeavour was being made to revive the practice of actual Communion among the laity. Who was its author is unknown. It underwent some alterations in 1552, the most important of which was the omission of the following admirable passage respecting Confession and Charity, with which it ended in 1549, "requiring such as shall be satisfied with a general Confession, not to be offended with them that doth use, to their further satisfying, the auricular and secret Confession to the Priest; nor those also which think needful or convenient for the quietness of their own consciences particularly to open their sins to the Priest, to be offended with them which are satisfied with their humble confession to God, and the general confession to the Church; but in all these things to follow and keep the rule of charity; and every man to be satisfied with his own conscience, not judging other men's minds or acts, whereas he hath no warrant of God's Word for the same."

In 1661 some changes were made by Bishop Cosin, the principal being the prefix of the first paragraph, which is in his handwriting in the margin of the Durham Book.

The concluding paragraph of this Exhortation is very important as indicating that, while the Church of England advises auricular confession in these cases [see notes on Visitation of the Sick], it is yet not considered to be of absolute necessity before the receiving of the Holy Communion, as in the Roman and Eastern Churches, whose laity, as a rule, communicate much less frequently than do those of the Church of England. It is permitted and recommended, and perhaps even enjoined to such as find it necessary for their own comfort; for in the English of 1548 the phrase "let him come" was more probably imperative than merely permissive. It can hardly be questioned that the Church of England regards private Confession as occasional and remedial, not as habitually desirable; as medicine, not regular food. In estimating the teaching of the Prayer Book on this subject, it must always be remembered that an authoritative priestly absolution is provided, both in the Communion Office and in the daily Mattins and Evensong, which only differs from a private absolution in being addressed to individuals as included in a congregation and not separately. [See note on the Absolution in the Communion Office.] The prominence given, in the Revision of 1552, to the Confession and Absolution in the Daily Office, and the intention of the Church, made clearer still in that of 1661, that they should be taken for an effectual Absolution of all them that truly repent and unfeignedly believe, seem to indicate a wish to discourage frequent private Confession, by rendering it less necessary. [See p. 4.]

Ministry of God's Word] This does not mean that the priest is to read some part of the Holy Bible to the penitent, but to give him the "benefit of Absolution." In the language of the period, "God's Word" was a term applied to words pronounced in the Name and by the authority of God, as well as to the Holy Bible. It was just coming into use for the latter, but the former was its more established and popular sense.

§ The second Exhortation.

This Exhortation was inserted in 1552, as Cosin thinks at the instance of Bucer, and was then placed between the Church Militant Prayer and the Ordinary Exhortation on giving warning of Communion. Bucer, in the following passage [Censura, c. 27],

Matt. vi. 12.
 Heb. iii. 7-12.
 x. 25, 38, 39.
 Numb. ix. 10.
 Isa. lxx. 13.
 Acts xvii. 30, 31.
 Matt. xxi. 28, 29.
 Rom. ii. 4.
 Heb. xii. 25.
 Gal. vi. 7, 8.
 Prov. i. 24-27.

there lacketh nothing but the guests to sit down; and yet they who are called (without any cause) most unthankfully refuse to come. Which of you in such a case would not be moved? Who would not think a great injury and wrong done unto him? Wherefore, most dearly beloved in Christ, take ye good heed, lest ye, withdrawing yourselves from this holy Supper, provoke God's indignation against you. It is an easy matter for a man to say, I will not communicate, because I am otherwise hindered with worldly business. But such excuses are not so easily accepted and allowed before God. If any man say, I am a grievous sinner, and therefore am afraid to come: wherefore then do ye not repent and amend? When God calleth you, are ye not ashamed to say ye will not come? When ye should return to God, will ye excuse yourselves, and say ye are not ready? Consider earnestly with yourselves how little such feigned excuses will avail before God. They that refused the feast in the Gospel, because they had bought a farm, or would try their yokes of oxen, or because they were married, were not so excused, but counted unworthy of the heavenly feast. I, for my part, shall be ready; and, according to mine Office, I bid you in the Name of God, I call you in Christ's behalf, I exhort you, as you love your own salvation, that ye will be partakers of this holy Communion. And as the Son of God did vouchsafe to yield up his soul by death upon the Cross for your salvation; so it is your duty to receive the Communion in remembrance of the sacrifice of his death, as he himself hath commanded: which if ye shall neglect to do, consider with yourselves how great injury ye do unto God, and how sore punishment hangeth over your heads for the same; when ye wilfully abstain from the Lord's Table, and separate from your brethren, who come to feed on the banquet of that most heavenly food. These things if ye earnestly consider, ye will by God's grace return to a better mind: for the obtaining whereof we shall not cease to make our humble petitions unto Almighty God our heavenly Father.

Luke xlv. 16-24.
 Matt. xxiv. 45, 46.
 1 Pet. v. 2.
 2 Cor. v. 20.
 Jer. l. 5.
 Heb. ii. 3.
 x. 25.
 Luke xxii. 70.
 Matt. xxvii. 40.
 50.
 Acts iv. 12.
 1 Cor. xi. 23-25.
 Luke x. 16.
 Numb. ix. 13.
 Heb. x. 38, 31.
 Prov. xx. 2.
 2 Cor. viii. 12.
 Heb. x. 38, 39.
 Deut. xxxii. 29.
 2 Tim. ii. 7.
 Ps. ii. 12.
 1 Sam. xii. 23.
 1 Kings xviii. 37.
 Rom. x. 1.

¶ At the time of the Celebration of the Communion, the Communicants being conveniently placed for the receiving of the holy Sacrament, the Priest shall say this Exhortation.

1 Pet. ii. 11.
 1 Cor. x. 16.
 xi. 28.

DEARLY beloved in the Lord, ye that mind to come to the holy Communion of the Body and Blood of our Saviour Christ, must consider how Saint Paul exhorteth all persons diligently to try and examine themselves, before they presume to eat of that Bread, and drink of that Cup. For as

[GOOD men and women, y charge yow by the Auctoryte of holy church, that no man nother woman that this day proposyth here to be comenyd [communicated] that he go note to Godds bord, lase than he byleue stedfastlych, that the sacrament that he ys avysyd here to reseue, that yt ys

[Harleian MS., 2383.]

pleads earnestly for frequent Communion:—"Modis omnibus instandum, ut qui præsentes sunt communicent. Sed sunt qui in eo nobiscum sentiunt, quo autem id obtineant non veris utuntur rationibus. Alii enim eo rarius S. Cœnam celebrant, ut in anno vix plures quam ter aut quater. Alii populum qui ad prædicationem Evangelii et preces confluit omnem dimittunt, ut Cœnam celebrent cum iis tantum qui volunt eâ communicare. Nam ex eo quod Dominus usum hujus Sacramenti commendavit discipulis suis, ut cœremoniam pertinentem ad solennem sui inter nos celebrandam memoriam, quæ sane a nobis celebrari debet omni die Dominico. Item, ex eo quod Apostolus, 1 Cor. xi. eandem cœnam omni frequentiori cœtui deputat, et quod Ecclesia Apostolica legitur ita fractione panis perseverasse, ut in doctrina Apostolorum, Act. II.; apparet ergo Ecclesias priscas illud ex cœta Apostolorum traditione accepisse, ut Sacram Cœnam singulis diebus Dominicis et Festis, immo quoties tota conveniebat Ecclesia, exhiberent."

As this Exhortation originally stood, it contained a strong passage about the ill effects of habitually remaining to "gaze" without receiving the Communion, which shows that the habit was an extremely common one at that time. This paragraph, which followed the words "hangeth over your heads for the same," was crossed out in Cosin's book, apparently by Sancroft, as Secretary to the Committee, the ink being of the colour used by him, and not of that used by Cosin.

§ The third Exhortation.

conveniently placed] After the Offertory sentences the Liturgy of 1549 has this rubric: "Then so many as shall be partakers of

Acts ii. 38—47.
John vi. 68, 69.
54—56. xv. 4.
xvii. 20—23.
1 Cor. xi. 27—32.
Acts xx. 21.
1 John iv. 7—12.
Ps. xxvi. 6.
i. 14.
cxvi. 12, 13, 17.
2 Cor. ix. 15.
Rev. v. 19.
John iii. 13.
Phil. ii. 6—8.
Luke xix. 10.
i. 78, 79.
Matt. iv. 14—16.
Col. i. 12, 13, 21,
22.
Gal. iii. 26.
Exod. xii. 24—27.

See Cypr. de Laps.

the benefit is great, if with a true penitent heart and lively faith we receive that holy Sacrament; (for then we spiritually eat the flesh of Christ, and drink his blood; then we dwell in Christ, and Christ in us; we are one with Christ, and Christ with us;) so is the danger great, if we receive the same unworthily. For then we are guilty of the Body and Blood of Christ our Saviour; we eat and drink our own damnation, not considering the Lord's Body; we kindle God's wrath against us; we provoke him to plague us with divers diseases, and sundry kinds of death. Judge therefore yourselves, brethren, that ye be not judged of the Lord; repent you truly for your sins past; have a lively and stedfast faith in Christ our Saviour; amend your lives, and be in perfect charity with all men; so shall ye be meet partakers of those holy mysteries. And above all things ye must give most humble and hearty thanks to God, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, for the redemption of the world by the death and passion of our Saviour Christ, both God and man, who did humble himself, even to the death upon the Cross, for us, miserable sinners; who lay in darkness and the shadow of death, that he might make us the children of God, and exalt us to everlasting life. And to the end that we should alway remember the exceeding Godds body flesche and blode, yn the forme of bred; & that (which) he receyvythe afterward, ys no thyng ells but wyne & water, for to clense yowr mowthys of the holy sacrament. Furthermore, y charge yow that no man nother woman go to Godds borde lase than he be of ys synnys clen confessyd, & for hem contryte; that ys to sey haunyng sorow yn yowr herts, for yowre synnys. Furthermore, I charge yow yf ther be eny man or woman, that beryth yn his herte eny wrothe or rancor to eny of his evencristen [fellow-Christian] that he be not ther howselyd, ther to the tyme that he be with hym yn perfyte love & cheryte, for ho so [whoso] beryth wrethe or evyll wyll yn herte, to eny of hys evencristen, he ys note worthy hys God to receyue; and yf he do, he reseyvythe his dampnacyon, where he schuld receyue his saluacion. Furthermore, y charge yow that none of yow go to Godds borde to day, lasse than he be yn full wyll & purpose for to sese and to withstond the deds of syn. For who proposyth now to contynue yn syn aþene after hys holy tyme he is note worthy to receyue his God; & yf he do hyt ys to hym grete perell. Furthermore I charge all strangers bothe men and women, that none of yow go to godds borde, yn to tyme that ȝe haue spoke with me, other [or] with myn asynys. Furthermore, y charge yow bothe men the Holy Communion shall tarry still in the quire, or in some convenient place nigh the quire, the men on the one side and the women on the other side. All other (that mind not to receive the said Holy Communion) shall depart out of the quire, except the Ministers and Clerks." This implies that "the Ministers," i. e. the Deacon and Subdeacon, and the "Clerks," i. e. the Choristers, might remain in the quire, and others in the body of the church, during the celebration, even if not intending then to communicate.

See Hamlet v. 1.

This Exhortation, to be used at the time of the Communion, appears to be handed down in principle, and partly in words, from the habit of the unreformed Church of England. The old English form placed parallel to it<sup>1</sup> was evidently known, perhaps familiar, to those who wrote it; and the position of the Confession and Absolution at the end of it appears to indicate that the Reformers adopted no new system when they introduced these into our office in their present form, but simply remoulded what they found already in use.

Whether this was the general habit of the Church of England before the Reformation or not, certainly now one of the most remarkable of the peculiar features of the Anglican Communion Offices is the anxious carefulness shown by the Church to ensure that communicants shall approach the Lord's Table after due preparation and with right dispositions. Not only in the previous notice, but in the course of the Service itself, they are warned of the danger of unworthy Communion, and the necessity of self-examination is insisted upon. The words of the Invitation are also very emphatic: "Ye that do truly and earnestly repent you of your sins." The lowly self-abasement of the general confession; the reminder that turning to Him "with heartly repentance and true faith" is the condition of God's forgiveness, and that our Saviour's "comfortable words" are addressed only to those who "truly turn to Him," are all of the same character. The admixture of grave warning and tender encouragement in this Service is indeed truly wonderful. There is nothing like it in the Offices of any other Communion, as (however others may be, in some features, grander and more striking) there is no Service more touchingly beautiful than the Communion Service of the Church of England, when performed as it ought to be. This peculiarity has probably conduced largely to the growth amongst us of a feeling, with respect to Holy Communion, which goes far to compensate for the almost universal neglect of the Church's <sup>1</sup> Maskell's Mon. Rit. iii. 348.

Luke xxii. 19.
John xiii. 13.
xv. 13.
Eph. ii. 13, 18, 19.
John iii. 2.
1 Cor. xi. 23—25.
Luke xxii. 15, 17.
19, 20.
Ps. xxiii. 4, 5.
cxvi. 13, 14.
cxliii. 10.
Heb. xiii. 15, 20, 21.
2 Cor. i. 3.
Rev. iv. 8.
Luke i. 74, 75.

great love of our Master, and only Saviour, Jesus Christ, thus dying for us, and the innumerable benefits which by his precious blood-shedding he hath obtained to us; he hath instituted and ordained holy mysteries, as pledges of his love, and for a continual remembrance of his death, to our great and endless comfort. To him therefore, with the Father and the Holy Ghost, let us give (as we are most bounden) continual thanks; submitting ourselves wholly to his holy will and pleasure, and studying to serve him in true holiness and righteousness all the days of our life. Amen.

¶ Then shall the Priest say to them that come to receive the holy Communion,

1 Cor. v. 7.
2 Cor. vii. 10, 11.
1 Cor. xiii. 4—7.
1 John iv. 7—11.
Rom. vi. 4, 6.
2 Cor. v. 14, 15.
17.
Mark x. 49.
Heb. x. 22.
1 Cor. x. 16.

YE that do truly and earnestly repent you of your sins, and are in love and charity with your neighbours, and intend to lead a new life, following the commandments of God, and walking from henceforth in his holy ways; Draw near with faith, and take this holy Sacrament to your comfort; and make your humble confession to Almighty God, meekly kneeling upon your knees.

¶ Then shall this general confession be made, in the name of all those that are minded to receive the holy Communion, by one of the Ministers; both he and all the people kneeling humbly upon their knees, and saying,

Rev. xv. 3, 4.
Acts xvii. 24, 28.
31.
Isa. lix. 12.
Amos v. 12.

ALmighty God, Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Maker of all things, Judge of all men; We acknow-and women that have the servants, that take the heed that they be well governed in taking of meats & drynks, for the perell that may be fall, thorow forfeiting of meats & drynks . . . . . Also take shall kneel adown upon your knees, saying after me, y cry God mercy, and our lady saynt mary, & all the holy company of hevyn, & my gostelyche fadyr, of all the trespasses of syn that y have don, in thowte, word, other [or] yn dede, fro the tyme that y was bore, yn to this tyme; that ys to say in Pryde, Envy, Wrethe, Slowthe, Covetyse, Gloteny, & Lechery. The v. Commandements, dyuerse tymys y broke. The werks of mercy note y fullyllyd. My v. wyttys mysse spend, etc.

Misereatur vestri omnipotens Deus, etc.

Absolutionis forma.

Deus noster Jesus Christus, pro sua magna misericordia, etc.]

Μετὰ φόβου Θεοῦ, καὶ πίστεως, καὶ ἀγαπῆς προσέλθετε.

Liturgies of SS. James and Chrysostom.

¶ His finitis, . . . accedat sacerdos cum suis ministris ad gradum altaris, et dicat ipse confessionem, diacono assistente a dextris et subdiacono a sinistris. Hoc modo incipiendo.

Salisbury Use.

ALmighty everlasting God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Maker of all things, the Judge of direction, that intending communicants should signify their names to the Curate beforehand, and to obviate the necessity of the Minister "repelling" any. For there is more risk of persons refraining who ought to communicate, than of persons communicating who ought to refrain.

Daye's transl. of Hermann's Consult., A.D. 1547.

It should be observed that the last paragraph forms a doxology, and ought to be said as such.

§ The Invitation.

The germ of this Invitation is to be observed in the above Exhortation of the Mediæval Church. It is first found, as it now stands, in the "Order of Communion" of 1548. It was no doubt originally intended as an actual invitation, to those who were about to communicate, to leave the body of the congregation and pass into the chancel. The "Order of Communion" was an English appendix to the Latin Office, and the latter having been already completed, as far as the Communion of the Priest, the Invitation of course (with the Confession, Absolution, and Comfortable Words) followed the Consecration, instead of preceding it as now. It may be taken as a verbal substitute for the kiss of peace. Cosin suggested the words, "Draw near in full assurance of faith," probably with the view of indicating that the Invitation is now for an approach of the heart, not of the body. It should be read by the Celebrant.

Dan. ix. 5, 6.
Prov. xxiv. 9.
Matt. xii. 36, 37.
Luke xv. 18.
Deut. ix. 7.
Rom. ii. 8, 9.
Job vii. 20, 21.
xlii. 5, 6.
2 Cor. vii. 10, 11.
Ezek. xvi. 62, 63.
xxxvi. 31, 32.
Ps. xxxviii. 4.
li. 1.
Rom. iii. 24, 25.
1 John ii. 1, 2, 12.
Rom. vi. 4, 6, 13.
1 Thess. iv. 1.
2 Cor. v. 14, 15.
1 Tim. i. 17.

ledge and bewail our manifold sins and wickedness, Which we from time to time most grievously have committed, By thought, word, and deed, Against thy Divine Majesty, Provoking most justly thy wrath and indignation against us. We do earnestly repent, And are heartily sorry for these our misdoings; The remembrance of them is grievous unto us; The burden of them is intolerable. Have mercy upon us, Have mercy upon us, most merciful Father; For thy Son our Lord Jesus Christ's sake, Forgive us all that is past, And grant that we may ever hereafter Serve and please thee, In newness of life, To the honour and glory of thy Name; Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

¶ Then shall the Priest (or the Bishop being present) stand up, and turning himself to the people, pronounce this absolution.

ALmighty God, our heavenly Father, who of his great mercy hath promised forgiveness of sins to all them that with hearty repentance and true faith turn unto him; Have mercy upon you, pardon and deliver you from all your sins, confirm and strengthen you in all goodness, and bring you to everlasting life; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Matt. vi. 14.
Isa. lv. 7.
John iii. 16.
2 Sam. xii. 13.
Acts x. 43.
Isa. xxx. 18.
Gal. i. 4.
1 Cor. i. 7, 8.
Eph. iii. 14.
1 Pet. v. 10, 11.

all men, we acknowledge, and we lament that we were conceived and born in sins, and that therefore we be prone to all evils . . . .

Confiteor Deo, beatæ, quia peccavi Salisbury Use.
nimis cogitatione, locutione, et opere:
mea culpa . . . .

And we are sorry for it with all our hearts . . . . Daye's transl. of Hermann's Consult., A.D. 1547.

Have mercy upon us, most gentle Father, through thy Son our Lord Jesus Christ . . . .

¶ Et sciendum est, quod quicumque sacerdos Salisbury Use.
Officium exsequatur, semper episcopus si
præsens fuerit, ad gradum altaris dicat Confiteor, Misereatur, et Absolutionem.

BECAUSE our blessed Lord hath left this power to his congregation, that it may absolve them from sins, and restore them in to the favour of the heavenly Father, which being repentant for their sins, do truly believe in Christ the Lord . . . .

Misereatur vestri Omnipotens Deus Salisbury Use.
et dimittat vobis omnia peccata vestra, liberet vos ab omni malo, conservet et confirmet in bono; et ad vitam perducat æternam. Amen.

THE CONFESSION AND ABSOLUTION.

From the ancient form of Exhortation given above, it will be seen that public confession and absolution before Communion were not a novelty when introduced into the Order of Communion of 1548, and subsequently into the full Communion Office of 1549. There was indeed a form of confession in the ancient office (which will be found in the Appendix to the Liturgy, and at p. 5), yet this cannot be considered as the Confession of the people, but rather as that of the Celebrant and his Ministers. One was therefore used by the people before their too rare reception of the one element in ante-Reformation times, and this was methodized into its present form in 1548. It originally stood after the Consecration, and referred therefore to Communion only; but in 1552 it was placed in its present position, probably with the very reasonable and pious view that as "we are unworthy to offer any sacrifice" to God, so before we offer that sacrifice, the offering of which is our bounden duty, it is fit that we should make open confession of our unworthiness, and receive the benefit of Absolution. There is, indeed, an analogy between this and the washing of the disciples' feet by our Lord before the Institution. "Ye are clean," said He, when He had done this to them: or, as St. John records, "Now ye are clean through the word which I have spoken unto you." [John xvi. 3.]

So by the absolving word of God, even of "Our Lord Jesus Christ," Who hath power on earth to forgive sins, and "who hath left power to His Church to absolve all sinners who truly repent and believe in Him," all such may approach the solemn moment of Consecration, cleansed and prepared by the act of the Church, crowning their own penitence and confession.

The present position of the Confession and Absolution may thus be regarded as another recognition of the Priesthood of the Laity, and of the share which they have in the subsequent offering of the Eucharistic Sacrifice by their leader and representative who stands at the altar.

Both the Confession and Absolution owe some expressions to Hermann's Consultation, but there is no ground for supposing that the idea of them was taken from thence. Hermann's Confession is a long and homiletic kind of form, of which the only words at all similar to that of our Office are those given above. What slight association is traceable between the two, may be further seen by a reference to the note on the Absolution, in the "Order for the Visitation of the Sick."

Until 1661 the rubric directed the Confession to be said "in the name of those that are minded to receive the Holy Communion, either by one of them, or else one of the Ministers, or by the Priest himself." The Puritans objected to this, saying, "We desire it may be made by the Minister only," and that "it is a

¶ Then shall the Priest say,

Isa. xl. 1.
Matt. xiii. 9.
Rev. ii. 7.

Hear what comfortable words our Saviour Christ saith unto all that truly turn to him.

S. Matt. xi. 28. COME unto me all that travail and are heavy laden, and I will refresh you.

S. John iii. 16. So God loved the world, that he gave his only-begotten Son, to the end that all that believe in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.

Hear also what S. Paul saith.

1 Tim. i. 15. This is a true saying, and worthy of all men to be received, That Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners.

Hear also what S. John saith.

1 S. John ii. 1. If any man sin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous; and he is the propitiation for our sins.

¶ After which the Priest shall proceed, saying,

Lam. iii. 41.

Lift up your hearts.

Answer.

Ps. xxv. 1.
cxviii. 1.
cxlvii. 1.

We lift them up unto the Lord.

Priest.

1 Cor. xiv. 16.

Let us give thanks unto our Lord God.

Answer.

2 Thess. i. 3.

It is meet and right so to do.

Hear ye the Gospel. John iii.

GOD so loved the world that he gave his only-begotten Son, that all which believe in him, should have life everlasting.

Daye's transl. of Hermann's Consult., A.D. 1547.

¶ Or 1 Tim. i.

This is a sure saying, and worthy of all embracing, that Jesus Christ came into this world to save sinners.

¶ Or John iii.

The Father loveth the Son, and hath given all things into his hands; he that believeth in the Son hath life everlasting.

¶ Or Acts x.

All the prophets bear witness unto Christ, that all that believe in him receive remission of their sins through him.

¶ Or 1 John ii.

My little children, if any have sinned, we have a just Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ, and he is an atonement for our sins.

Sursum corda.

Salisbury Use.
All ancient Liturgies.

Habemus ad Dominum.

[Mozarab. Leve-mus.]

Gratias agamus Domino Deo nostro.

Dignum et justum est.

private opinion, and not generally received in the Catholic Church, that one of the people may make the Public Confession at the Sacrament, in the name of all those that are minded to receive the Holy Communion." Cosin altered the rubric to, "by one of the Ministers, or the Priest himself, both he and all the people kneeling humbly upon their knees, and saying." The Puritans apparently wished to prevent the people from saying it at all.

THE COMFORTABLE WORDS.

The use of these texts of Scripture is peculiar to the English Liturgy, and seems to have been derived from the Consultation of Archbishop Hermann. Before Communion and after Consecration the Liturgy of St. Mark directs the 42nd Psalm to be said, and that of St. James has the 23rd, 34th, 145th, and 116th in the same place. There is some analogy between this custom and our own, but it can scarcely be considered the precedent which led to the present usage.

Perhaps the object of their introduction was the obvious one suggested in the title of "comfortable words," that of confirming the words of Absolution with those of Christ and His Apostles; and of holding forth our Lord and Saviour before the communicants in the words of Holy Scripture to prepare them for "discerning" His Body in the Sacrament.

THE PREFACE.

This portion of the Communion Office is found almost word for word in every known Liturgy, in every part of the Catholic Church, from the earliest times; and there can be no doubt that it is a correct tradition which assigns it to the Apostolic age.

The originals are here given from the Ancient Greek Liturgies. "Ἄνω σχῶμεν τὰς καρδίας. Ἐχομεν πρὸς τὸν Κύριον. Εὐχαριστήσωμεν τῷ Κυρίῳ. Ἀξίον καὶ δίκαιον. Ἀληθῶς ἅγιόν ἐστι καὶ δίκαιον, πρέπον τε καὶ ὀφειλόμενον, σὲ αἰνεῖν, σὲ ὑμνεῖν, σὲ εὐλογεῖν, σὲ προσκυνεῖν, σὲ δοξολογεῖν, σοὶ εὐχαριστεῖν. [St. James.] Δέσποτα Κύριε Θεέ, Πάτερ παντοκράτωρ. [St. Mark.] ὃν ὑμνοῦσιν οἱ οὐρανοὶ τῶν οὐρανῶν, καὶ πᾶσα ἡ δύναμις αὐτῶν . . . ἄγγελοι, ἀρχάγγελοι [St. James], &c. at much greater length than in the Western Prefaces . . . Ἄγιος, ἅγιος, ἅγιος Κύριε Σαβαώθ, πλήρης

¶ Then shall the Priest turn to the Lord's Table, and say,

Ps. xxix. 2.
He. xiii. 15.
Ps. xxxiv. 1.
Eph. v. 20.
Rev. xix. 5, 6.

These words [Holy Father] must be omitted on Trinity Sunday.

IT is very meet, right, and our bounden duty, that we should at all times, and in all places give thanks unto thee, O Lord, Holy Father, Almighty, Everlasting God.

¶ Here shall follow the proper Preface, according to the time, if there be any specially appointed: or else immediately shall follow,

Isa. vi. 2.
Rev. iv. 8.
Rev. vii. 9—12.
Luke ii. 13, 14.
Heb. xii. 22, 23.
Isa. vi. 3.
Ps. xcvii. 6.
1 Chron. xxix. 10
—14.
Ps. lxxii. 18, 19.

THEREFORE with Angels and Archangels, and with all the company of heaven, we laud and magnify thy glorious Name; evermore praising thee, and saying, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God of hosts, heaven and earth are full of thy glory. Glory be to thee, O Lord most High. Amen.

VERE dignum et justum est, æquum et salutare, nos tibi semper et ubique gratias agere, Domine Sancte, Pater Omnipotens, æterne Deus.

¶ Sequuntur Præfationes.

ET ideo cum Angelis et Archangelis, cum thronis et dominationibus, cumque omni militia cœlestis exercitus, hymnum gloriæ tuæ canimus, sine fine dicentes:

Sanctus, Sanctus, Sanctus, Dominus Deus Sabaoth. Pleni sunt cœli et terra gloria tua: Osanna in excelsis. Benedictus qui venit in nomine Domini: Osanna in excelsis.

ὁ οὐρανός, καὶ ἡ γῆ τῆς δόξης σου. Ὡσαννὰ ἐν τοῖς ὑψίστοις. εὐλογημένος ὁ ἐρχόμενος ἐν ὀνόματι Κυρίου ὡσαννὰ ἐν τοῖς ὑψίστοις. [St. James.]

It seems more than probable that this long thanksgiving prayer (the εὐχαριστία ἐπὶ πολὺ of Justin Martyr., Apol. i. ch. 86), which, beginning with the Sursum Corda, included also the Invocation of the Holy Spirit, the recitation of the Words of Institution, and the Prayer of Oblation, and closed with the Lord's Prayer, is alluded to by St. Paul, in "Else when thou shalt bless with the Spirit, how shall he that occupieth the room of the unlearned say Amen at thy giving of thanks [ἐπὶ τῇ σῇ εὐχαριστίᾳ], seeing he understandeth not what thou sayest?" [1 Cor. xiv. 16.]

The "Sursum Corda" is referred to by St. Cyprian, in his treatise on the Lord's Prayer [A.D. 252], where he says, "It is for this cause that the Priest before worship uses words of introduction, and puts the minds of the brethren in preparation, by saying, 'Lift up your hearts;' that while the people answer, 'We lift them up unto the Lord,' they may be reminded that there is nothing for them to think of except the Lord." [Cyp. de Orat. 20.] St. Cyril of Jerusalem, a century later, also comments upon them in these terms: "After this the Priest cries aloud, 'Lift up your hearts.' For truly ought we in that most awful hour to have our heart on high with God, and not below, thinking of earth and earthly things. The Priest then, in effect, bids all in that hour abandon all worldly thoughts, or household cares, and to have their heart in heaven with the merciful God. Then ye answer, 'We lift them up unto the Lord;' assenting to him by your avowal. . . . Then the Priest says, 'Let us give thanks to the Lord.' For in good sooth are we bound to give thanks, that He has called us, unworthy as we are, to so great grace; that He has reconciled us who were His foes; that He has vouchsafed to us the spirit of adoption. Then ye say, 'It is meet and right:' for in giving thanks we do a meet thing and a right; but He did, not a right thing, but what was more than right, when He did us good, and counted us meet for such great benefits." [Cyril. Catech. Lect. xxiii. 3, 4.] These versicles are also referred to by St. Chrysostom [de Euch., de Pœnitentia], by St. Augustine [de Dono Perseverant. xiii.], and by Cæsarius of Arles [Hom. xii. xvi.].

The use of the Sanctus is of equally ancient date. St. Cyril speaks of its long Preface in a passage following that just quoted, and then goes on to say: "We make mention also of the Seraphim, whom Isaiah, by the Holy Ghost, beheld encircling the throne of God, and with two of their wings veiling their countenances, and with two their feet, and with two flying, who cried, 'Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God of Sabaoth.' [Isa. vi. 1. Rev. iv. 8.] For this cause, therefore, we rehearse this confession of God, delivered down to us from the Seraphim, that we may join in hymns with the hosts of the world above."

It is very remarkable that in all the Ancient Liturgies, both of East and West, the saying of the Sanctus is given to the choir and people. The Celebrant having recited the Preface, or Introductory part of this great act of Eucharistic Thanksgiving, the "Triumphal Hymn" itself, as the Liturgies of St. Basil and St. Chrysostom call it, is taken up by the whole body of the worshippers who, as kings and priests unto God, join in that solemn act of adoration of the ever-blessed Trinity. To mark this Catholic custom the Sanctus itself ought to be printed as a separate paragraph, and so it was printed in 1549 and 1552. In choirs, and places where they sing, both it and the Gloria in Excelsis ought always to be sung in the same manner as the Creed. In this our highest, most glorious, and most joyous service our highest efforts ought to be used to make it as worthy as we can of Him to whom it is offered, and to bring out as fully as we can its character of adoring thanksgiving.

In the Primitive and Mediæval Liturgies the Sanctus concluded with the words, "Hosanna in the Highest, blessed is He that cometh in the Name of the Lord, Hosanna in the highest." In translating it for the Office of our Prayer Book, the four latter words were changed to "Glory to Thee, O Lord, in the highest;" and the present termination was substituted in 1552, thus displacing the Hosanna altogether.

No reason can be assigned for this deviation from ancient custom<sup>1</sup>. But there was, perhaps, some popular superstition, now lost sight of, which made it seem desirable to drop the words in question. The Mirror of our Lady [A.D. 1530] comments upon the Sanctus as then used in the following words: "This song Sanctus is the song of Angels, and it is said to the Blessed Trinity, as is said before in the hymn Te Deum at Mattins. The second part thereof, that is, Benedictus, is taken from the Gospel, where the people on Palm Sunday came against our Lord Jesus Christ, and said to Him the same words in

<sup>1</sup> In the Clementine Liturgy, however, the Sanctus and the Hosannah are placed separate, and at a considerable distance from each other.

¶ PROPER PREFACES.

¶ Upon Christmas day, and seven days after.

Luke ii. 14. 11.
John i. 14.
Matt. i. 20, 21.
Luke i. 35.
1 Pet. ii. 22.
Heb. vii. 26.
2 Cor. v. 21.
1 Tim. i. 17.

BECAUSE thou didst give Jesus Christ thine only Son to be born as at this time for us; who by the operation of the Holy Ghost was made very man of the substance of the Virgin Mary his mother, and that without spot of sin, to make us clean from all sin. Therefore with Angels, &c.

¶ Upon Easter day, and seven days after.

1 Pet. i. 3.
1 Cor. xv. 19, 20.
Exod. xii. 3—14.
1 Cor. v. 7.
John i. 29.
Heb. ii. 14, 15.
1 Cor. xv. 55, 57.
John vi. 47.
Rev. v. 12.

BUT chiefly are we bound to praise thee for the glorious Resurrection of thy Son Jesus Christ our Lord: for he is the very Paschal Lamb, which was offered for us, and hath taken away the sin of the world; who by his death hath destroyed death, and by his rising to life again hath restored to us everlasting life. Therefore with Angels, &c.

¶ Upon Ascension day, and seven days after.

Eph. v. 20.
Matt. iii. 17.
Luke xxiv. 50, 51.
Acts i. 2—4, 9.
John xiv. 2, 3.
John xvii. 24.
Col. iii. 1—4.
Rev. i. 5, 6.

THROUGH thy most dearly beloved Son Jesus Christ our Lord; who after his most glorious Resurrection manifestly appeared to all his Apostles, and in their sight ascended up into heaven to prepare a place for us; that where he is, thither we might also ascend, and reign with him in glory. Therefore with Angels, &c.

¶ Upon Whitsunday, and six days after.

John xiv. 16, 26.
John xvi. 26.
Acts ii. 1—4.

THROUGH Jesus Christ our Lord; according to whose most true promise, the Holy Ghost came down as at this time from heaven with a sudden great sound, as it had been a mighty wind, in the likeness of fiery

PRÆFATIONES.

*Hæc præfatio dicitur in die Nativitatis Domini Salisbury Use.
... et quotidie per hebdomadam, et in die Circumcisionis.*

Sequens Præfatio dicitur in die Paschæ et per totam hebdomadam...

ET te quidem omni tempore, sed in hac potissimum die gloriosius prædicare, cum Pascha nostrum immolatus est Christus. Ipse enim verus est agnus qui abstulit peccata mundi, qui mortem nostram moriendo destruxit, et vitam resurgendo reparavit. Et ideo cum angelis, &c.

Salisbury Use.
Greg. Gelas.

Sequens Præfatio dicitur in die Ascensionis Domini, et per octavas, et in octavis, et in Dominica infra octavas...

Salisbury Use.

PER Christum Dominum nostrum, Qui post resurrectionem suam omnibus discipulis suis manifestus apparuit, et ipsis cernentibus est elevatus in cælum, ut nos divinitatis suæ tribueret esse participes. Et ideo cum angelis, &c.

Salisbury Use.
Greg. Gelas.

Sequens Præfatio dicitur in die Pentecostes et per hebdomadam....

Salisbury Use.

The same Holy Spirit did once descend down from Heaven in the similitude and likeness of fiery tongues, and

Inst. of Christian Man. Paraph.
of Creed. A.D.
1557.

praising and joying of His coming. And so they are sung here in the mass, in worship of our Lord's coming in the Sacrament of the Altar. And therefore at the beginning of Benedictus ye turn to the altar and make the token of the Cross upon you in mind of our Lord's Passion, which is specially represented in the Mass." [Mirror, f. clxxxviii.] It is not unlikely that the last period of this comment gives an indication of the reason why the change was made. A more satisfactory explanation that may be given, however, is that the Benedictus is not part of the song of the angels, and is therefore inconsistent, strictly speaking, with the words of the Preface.

The presence of angels at the celebration of the Holy Communion has been believed in by the Church from Primitive times, and in all parts of the Christian world. [See 1 Cor. xi. 10.]

§ Proper Prefaces.

Besides these five proper Prefaces, the Sarum Missal had one for Epiphany and seven days after, one for Ash-Wednesday and Ferial days in Lent, one for Festivals of Apostles or Evangelists, and one for the Festivals of the Blessed Virgin. The Trinity Preface was used on all the Sundays after Trinity, and at every

John xvi. 13.
Acts ii. 7.
iv. 5, 6, 13.
Rom. xv. 16, 19.
x. 18.
2 Cor. iv. 6.
1 Pet. i. 10, 12.
Luke i. 67, 78, 79.
John xvii. 3.

tongues, lighting upon the Apostles, to teach them, and to lead them to all truth; giving them both the gift of divers languages, and also boldness with fervent zeal, constantly to preach the Gospel unto all nations; whereby we have been brought out of darkness and error into the clear light and true knowledge of thee, and of thy Son Jesus Christ. Therefore with Angels, &c.

¶ Upon the Feast of Trinity only.

WHO art one God, one Lord; not one only Person, but three Persons in one Substance. For that which we believe of the glory of the Father, the same we believe of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, without any difference or inequality. Therefore with Angels, &c.

¶ After each of which Prefaces shall immediately be sung or said,

THEREFORE with Angels and Archangels, and with all the company of heaven, we laud and magnify thy glorious Name; evermore praising thee, and saying, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God of hosts, heaven and earth are full of thy glory: Glory be to thee, O Lord most High. Amen.

¶ Then shall the Priest, kneeling down at the Lord's Table, say in the name of all them that shall receive the Communion this Prayer following.

WE do not presume to come to this thy Table, O merciful Lord, trusting in our own righteousness, but in thy manifold and great did light down upon all the Apostles and disciples of Christ, and inspired them also with the knowledge of all truth, and replenished them with all heavenly gifts and graces.

Sequens Prefatio dicitur in die Sanctæ Trinitatis [et in omnibus Dominicis usque ad Adventum Domini . . .] Salisbury Use.

QUI cum unigenito Filio Tuo et Spiritu Sancto unus es Deus, unus es Dominus, non in unius singularitate Personæ, sed in unius Trinitate Substantiæ. Quod enim de tua gloria revelante te credimus, hoc de Filio tuo, hoc de Spiritu Sancto, sine differentia discretionis sentimus . . . una voce dicentes.

Salisbury Use.
Greg. Gelas.

¶ Item in aliis Præfationibus conclusio.

ET ideo cum Angelis et Archangelis, cum thronis et dominationibus cumque omni militia cœlestis exercitus, hymnum gloriæ tuæ canimus, sine fine dicentes:

Sanctus, Sanctus, Sanctus, Dominus Deus Sabaoth, pleni sunt cœli et terra gloria tua; Osanna in excelsis; benedictus qui venit in nomine Domini; Osanna in excelsis.

Oremus.

DOMINE, sancte Pater, omnipotens, æterne Deus, da nobis hoc corpus et sanguinem Filii tui Domini Dei nostri Jesu Christi ita sumere, ut

York Use.
Salisbury Use.
Greg. ap. Menard.
p. 265.
Mozarab. Lit.

Gen. xviii. 27.
Dan. ix. 18.
Luke xviii. 13.
Ps. v. 7.
Heb. iv. 14—16.
Gen. xxxii. 10.
Luke vii. 6, 7.

wedding celebration. The Liturgies of the Eastern Church have but one invariable Preface, much longer and fuller than those of the West, throughout the year. In the Latin Church the variety of Prefaces was anciently much greater than it is now. The Sacramentaries of SS. Leo, Gelasius, and Gregory, which have been the great sources of liturgical forms for all the Churches of the West, contain a Preface for nearly every Sunday and Festival throughout the year. The same is true of the Mozarabic Missal, in which the Preface is called "Illatio," and of the ancient Gallican Liturgies, whose name for it is "Contestatio." The number was reduced to ten about the end of the twelfth century, in the English, and in all other Western Missals but the Ambrosian and the Mozarabic. The ancient Missals always contained the musical notation of the various Prefaces as well as of the Creed, and the Lord's Prayer; and the Intonation of the Gloria in Excelsis.

§ The Prayer of Humble Access.

This Prayer, together with the Invitation, "Ye that do truly," the Confession, Absolution, and Comfortable Words, which it then immediately followed, was placed in the Liturgies of 1548 and 1549 between the Consecration and the Communion. It is similarly placed in the Scottish Liturgy of 1637; and in the present Scottish Office. Archbishop Laud says: "If a comparison must be made, I do think the order of the Prayers as they now stand in the Scottish Liturgy to be the better and more

Rom. x. 12.
Ps. c. 5.
Heb. xii. 23.
John vi. 53—58.
1 Cor. vi. 11.
Heb. ix. 13, 14.
Rev. vii. 14.
John vi. 34.

Cf Syrian Lit. of St. James.

mercies. We are not worthy so much as to gather up the crumbs under thy Table. But thou art the same Lord, whose property is always to have mercy: Grant us therefore, gracious Lord, so to eat the flesh of thy dear Son Jesus Christ, and to drink his blood, that our sinful bodies may be made clean by his body, and our souls washed through his most precious blood, and that we may evermore dwell in him, and he in us. Amen.

¶ When the Priest, standing before the Table, hath so ordered the Bread and Wine, that he may with the more readiness and decency break the Bread before the people, and take the Cup into his hands, he shall say the Prayer of Consecration, as followeth.

agreeable to use in the Primitive Church; and I believe they which are learned will acknowledge it." The change was made in 1552, and like some others made at the same time is difficult to account for, except on the ground of some temporary influence and danger. In the Liturgies of 1548 and 1549, after "drink His blood" was added "in these holy mysteries," which words were omitted in 1552, and proposed for restoration by Cosin. In the Eastern Liturgies the Prayer which answers to this is called the Prayer of Inclination, and is said immediately before the Communion of the People.

In the Salisbury Missal this Prayer was said in the singular number; but the York Missal had it in the plural as given above.

The emphatic sense of "so to eat" must not be overlooked in the use of this Prayer. The sense of it may be best seen by a paraphrase:—"We are not worthy to gather up the crumbs under Thy Table, but of Thy mercy Thou dost grant us the flesh and blood of Thy dear Son: Grant us so to eat and drink that precious Gift that His promise may be altogether fulfilled, that we may eat and drink of these after the manner of those to whom He is Life unto Life; and not after the manner of those to whom the WORD of Life Itself is Death unto Death."

Bishop Cosin proposed to place this Prayer immediately before the Communion: the reasons already given for the place of the Confession and Absolution seem, however, to justify its retention here.

THE PRAYER OF CONSECRATION<sup>1</sup>.

This is the central portion of the "Canon of the Mass" as it was rendered in the English Liturgy of 1549. The original form <sup>1</sup> The manner in which Bishop Cosin desired to restore the ancient mode of Consecration and Oblation may be best seen by printing his marginal alterations in their proper order. A comparison of these with the Offices of 1549 and 1637, as printed in the Appendix, will give a complete view of this Prayer.

"Here followeth the Prayer of Consecration.

"When the Priest, standing before the Table, hath so ordered the Bread and Wine that he may with the more readiness and decency break the Bread before the people, and take the Cup into his hands, he shall say as followeth,

"Almighty God, our heavenly Father, who . . . His precious death and sacrifice . . . we most humbly beseech Thee, and by the power of Thy holy word and Spirit, vouchsafe so to bless and sanctify these Thy gifts and creatures of Bread and Wine, that we receiving them according to Thy Son . . . in remembrance of Him, and to show forth His death and passion, may be partakers of His most blessed Body and Blood.

"Who in the same night that He was betrayed *took Bread, and when He had blessed, and given thanks He brake it and gave it to His disciples saying Take,

* At these words [took Bread] the priest is to take the Paten into his hands: at [brake it] he is to break the Bread: and at [this is My Body] to lay his hand upon it.

At the words [took the Cup] the priest mereamur per hoc remissionem peccatorum nostrorum accipere et tuo sancto Spiritu repleri: quia tu es Deus, et præter te non est alius nisi tu solus. Qui vivis et regnas Deus.

of the whole will be found in the Appendix to the Communion Office.

When the Priest, standing before the Table] In the Prayer Book of 1552, the rubric merely directs the Priest, after saying the Prayer of humble access "kneeling down at God's Board," to say the Prayer of Consecration standing up. In the Scottish Book of 1637, the rubric is:—"Then the Presbyter, standing up, shall say the Prayer of consecration as followeth; but then during the time of consecration he shall stand at such a part of the holy table, where he may with the more ease and decency use both his hands." The natural meaning of the present rubric is that the Celebrant, who, during the Prayer of humble access, has been "kneeling down at the Lord's Table," shall now stand "before" it, i. e., at the middle of its front, facing east, and having "so ordered the Bread and Wine," &c., shall, without changing his position (for which there is no direction), "say the Prayer of Consecration." The phrase "before the people" means, not turning towards them, but (1) In front of, at the head of them, as their representative and spokesman. (2) In full view of them, in the one place where he can best be seen by all present. The action of turning round, or half round, to the people, holding the Paten in the left hand, and breaking the Bread with the thumb and forefinger of the right hand, is quite unjustified by the rubric, and a kind of action very unsuitable to the solemn dignity with which this part of the Office should be invested.

eat, this is My Body which is given for you, doe this in remembrance of Me.

"Likewise, after supper, he took the Cup, and when He had blessed and given thanks He gave it to them, saying, Drink ye all of this: for this is My Blood of the New Testament, which is shed for you, and for many for the remission of sins, do this as oft as ye shall drink it in remembrance of Me. Amen.

is to take the Chalice into his hands: and at [this is My Blood] to lay his hand upon every vessel [be it Chalice or Flagon] in which there is wine to be consecrated.

"Immediately after shall follow this Memorial, or Prayer of Oblation.

"Wherefore, O Lord and heavenly Father, according to the Institution of Thy dearly beloved Son, our Saviour Jesus Christ, we Thy humble servants do celebrate, and make here before Thy divine Majesty, with these Thy holy gifts, the memorial which Thy Son hath willed and commanded us to make: having in remembrance His most blessed passion and sacrifice, His mighty resurrection, and His glorious ascension into heaven, rendering unto Thee most hearty thanks, for the innumerable benefits procured unto us by the same, and we entirely desire Thy fatherly goodness, mercifully to accept this our Sacrifice of praise and thanksgiving: most humbly beseeching Thee to grant, that by the merits and death of Thy Son Jesus Christ, now represented unto Thee, and through faith in His Blood who maketh intercession for us at Thy right hand, we and all Thy whole Church may obtain remission of our sins, and be made partakers of all other benefits of His Passion. And here we offer and present unto Thee, O Lord, ourselves, our souls and bodies." [As in 1549. See Appendix.]

Ps. cxix. 156.
Rom. v. 8.
Acts iii. 18.
Eph. i. 7.
Gal. iii. 13.
Isa. liii. 10.
Heb. vii. 27.
ix. 28.
x. 10—14. 26.
Acts iv. 12.
1 John ii. 1, 2.
Luke xxii. 19, 20.
1 Cor. xi. 23—26.
28.

1 Cor. x. 16, 17.
Luke xxii. 19, 20.

(a) Here the Priest is to take the Paten into his hands:

(b) And here to break the bread:

ALMIGHTY God, our heavenly Father, who of thy tender mercy didst give thine only Son Jesus Christ to suffer death upon the Cross for our redemption; who made there (by his one oblation of himself once offered) a full, perfect, and sufficient sacrifice, oblation, and satisfaction, for the sins of the whole world; and did institute, and in his holy Gospel command us to continue, a perpetual memory of that his precious death, until his coming again; Hear us, O merciful Father, we most humbly beseech thee; and grant that we receiving these thy creatures of bread and wine, according to thy Son our Saviour Jesus Christ's holy institution, in remembrance of his death and passion, may be partakers of his most blessed Body and Blood: who, in the same night that he was betrayed, (a) took Bread; and, when he had given thanks, (b) he brake it, and gave it to his disciples, saying, Take,

O GOD heavenly Father, which of thy tender mercy didst give thine only Son Jesu Christ, to suffer death upon the cross for our redemption; who made there (by his one oblation once offered) a full, perfect, and sufficient sacrifice, oblation, and satisfaction, for the sins of the whole world; and did institute, and in his holy Gospel command us to celebrate a perpetual memory of that his precious death, until his coming again: hear us, (O merciful Father,) we beseech thee; and with thy Holy Spirit and word vouchsafe to bless and sanctify these thy gifts and creatures of bread and wine.

... ut nobis corpus et sanguis fiat dilectissimi Filii tui Domini nostri Jesu Christi. Salisbury Use.

Qui pridie quam pateretur, accepit panem in sanctas ac venerabiles manus suas, et elevatis oculis in cœlum ad Te Deum Patrem suum Omnipotentem,

B. of Com. Prayer
A.D. 1549.

Cf. 3rd of Ten
Articles of A.D.
1536.

Here the Priest] The marginal rubrics for the manual rites were omitted in the Revision of 1552. The two directing the Priest to take the Bread, and then the Wine, into his hands, were restored in 1661, and the other three directing the Breaking of the Bread, and the laying of the hand on the Bread, and on the Wine, were then first inserted. In the case of the first marginal rubric there is a needless and awkward change from that of 1549. It is the Bread, not the Paten, the Priest should take into his hands. If he takes the Paten, he must certainly put it down again before he can conveniently comply with the next direction.

And here to break the Bread] The breaking the Bread before consecration, though apparently "most agreeable with the institution of Christ," is peculiar to the English Rite. In all other Liturgies it occurs after the Consecration, usually after the Lord's Prayer, with which the long Consecration Prayer invariably closes, and shortly before the dipping of a portion into the cup before actual communion, a rite which is found in all the great Liturgies of East and West. The laying of the right hand on each element during the utterance of the words of consecration is also peculiar to the English Rite. It seems to come most nearly in the place of the act of making the sign of the cross, which in the unreformed Use the Celebrant did as he said the word benedixit over each element.

that we receiving these thy creatures of bread and wine] In this place the Invocation of the Holy Ghost was inserted in 1549. This occurs in every ancient Catholic Liturgy of both East and West, excepting only the Roman, and those derived from it (if indeed the Roman or Petrine family of Liturgies did not itself also originally contain it), and the Holy orthodox Church of the East has always thought it essential to the act of consecration. It was omitted in 1552, probably in deference to the scruples of Bucer. It was inserted in the Scottish Book of 1637, and forms part of the existing Scottish and American Communion Offices, where it follows the Words of Institution and the Prayer of Oblation, as in the Eastern Liturgies. The clause in our present Office contains an implied or oblique invocation of the Holy Ghost, since it is only through His divine operation that we, by receiving God's "creatures of Bread and Wine," can "be made partakers of Christ's most blessed Body and Blood." But we may be allowed to wish, with Bishops Horsley and Wilson, and the best informed English Divines, that the direct Invocation had been left untouched.

§ The Words of Institution.

The whole Western Church has always held that the Consecration of the Holy Eucharist is effected and completed by the recitation of our Lord's words of Institution<sup>1</sup>. They are of such solemn importance, as bringing our Lord Himself in to be the Consecrator of the Holy Sacrament, that they should be uttered with deliberation and distinctness, the Celebrant taking ample time for the manual gestures. Bishop Cosin marked off as separate paragraphs the words beginning, "Who in the same night," and "Likewise after Supper:" and it is much to be wished that this mode of printing the prayer was adopted. The Sarum rubric for the pronounciation of the words "Hoc est enim corpus meum" is as follows:—"Et debent ista verba proferri cum uno spiritu et sub una prolatione, nulla pausatione interposita."

Previously to the words "blessed and brake," the Liturgies of St. Mark, St. James, St. Clement, and that of Malabar, and all the great Western Liturgies, except the Mozarabic, insert that "our Lord looked up to Heaven," and the Sarum and Roman Liturgies direct the Celebrant to lift up his eyes to Heaven. This is not mentioned in the Gospel accounts of the Institution, though our Lord may well have done so, as it is mentioned He did in blessing the bread at the Feeding of the Five Thousand, and tradition may have preserved it. The Liturgies of St. Basil and St. Chrysostom do not notice it. After "given thanks" all the ancient English Liturgies, the Roman, Ambrosian, and Mozarabic, the Liturgies of St. Mark, and St. Basil, and of Malabar, insert "He blessed," both for the Bread and the Cup; the Liturgy of St. James and the Clementine for the Cup only; and the Liturgy of St. Chrysostom for the Bread only.

he brake it] There cannot be too great exactness and reverent formality on the part of the Celebrant in consecrating the <sup>1</sup> On this subject see Neale's Introd. to Hist. of the Holy Eastern Church, III. v. 9; and Freeman's Princ. Div. Serv. II. ii. pp. 190—199.

(c) And here eat, (c) this is my Body which is given to lay his hand upon all the bread. for you: Do this in remembrance of me. Likewise after supper he (d) took the Cup; and, when he had given thanks, he gave it to them, saying, (d) Here he is to take the cup into his hand: Drink ye all of this; for this (e) is my Blood of the New Testament, which is shed for you and for many for the remission of sins: Do this, as oft as ye shall drink it, in remembrance of me. Amen.

Matt. xxvi. 27, 28.

Tibi gratias agens bene✠dixit, fregit, al. Hic stat signum fractionis [Hic tangat hostiam dicens] deditque discipulis suis, dicens, Accipite et manducate ex hoc omnes.

Hoc est enim corpus meum.

Simili modo posteaquam cœnatum est, accipiens et hunc præclarum calicem in sanctas ac venerabiles manus suas, item Tibi gratias agens, bene✠dixit, deditque discipulis suis, dicens Accipite et bibite ex eo omnes. [Hic elevet parumper calicem, ita dicens,] elements by means of which, when consecrated, an acceptable sacrifice is to be carried up to the Father, and the Body and Blood of the Lord Jesus Christ received by the communicants. The Priest having, therefore, taken the Bread into his hands at the words "took bread," should raise his hands in front of his breast, break the Bread by separating it into two portions, and then hold the separated portions one in each hand in such a manner that they may be visible to the communicants. He should then replace the fragments on the Paten, take the Paten in his left hand, and hold his right hand over it whilst saying the words, "This is My Body which is given for you." He should then raise the Paten slightly in both hands, and, bowing his head, hold it in front of him whilst saying the words, "Do this in remembrance of Me," and then replace it on the Altar and cover it. Similarly after the Consecration of the Wine he should raise the Chalice slightly in both hands, and hold it in front of him whilst saying the words of Consecration, and then replace and cover it<sup>1</sup>.

Hic est enim calix sanguinis mei novi et æterni testamenti, mysterium fidei, qui pro vobis et pro multis effundetur in remissionem peccatorum.

This is the most solemn part of the whole ministration of the Liturgy. Standing before the flock of Christ in the Presence of Almighty God, the Priest stands there as the vicarious earthly representative of the invisible but one true and only Priest of the Heavenly Sanctuary: acting "in His Name," and "by His commission and authority" [Article xxvi.], he brings into remembrance before the Eternal Father the one only and everlasting Sacrifice which was once for all made and "finished upon the Cross" [Article xxxi.], but is perpetually pleaded, offered, and presented, by the One Everlasting Priest and Intercessor in Heaven. For Christ as our Great High Priest, Who "ever liveth to make intercession for us," and Who is the ever-acceptable Victim and Propitiation for our sins, doeth indeed no more that which He pronounced to be "finished" on Calvary, but evermore pleadeth for our sake that which then He did. And this He does in two ways. (1) In Heaven, openly, as one may say, and by His own immediate action. (2) On Earth, mystically, but as really, acting mediately by the earthly Priest as His visible instrument. The Action is the same in both cases, and the real Agent is the same; for Christ, since Pentecost, is as really (though supernaturally and spiritually) present on earth, in and by the ordinances of His own Institution, as He is since the Ascension in Heaven naturally and corporally. "Where two or three are gathered together in His name," (and where so truly are we so gathered as when we meet to celebrate the great Memorial Sacrifice specially appointed by Himself?) "there is He in the midst of us;" not so much as the acceptor (for such is sometimes mistaken to be the only meaning of this text) as the leader and offerer of our worship, invisibly acting through His visible instrument and representative. The great and only Sacrifice once made can never be repeated. But it is continually offered, i. e., brought into remembrance and pleaded, before God. They who are called "Priests" because, and only because, they visibly represent to the successive generations of mankind the one immortal but invisible Priest, are through God's unspeakable mercy privileged to bring it into remembrance before Him, by His order, Who said, "Do this for a Memorial, a Commemoration of Me." Thus the Priest's action in offering our Christian Sacrifice may be described (1) as the earthly counterpart of that which Christ continually does in Heaven: (2) as the commemoration of that which, once for all, He did on Calvary. The Priest makes the Oblation actually and verbally when he says the words, "Do this," &c., and afterwards verbally, and with greater fulness, in the "Prayer of Oblation" which follows the actual communion<sup>2</sup>.

Amen] But although the celebrating Priest stands thus before God offering up to Him this holy Oblation, he does it in company with all the faithful, at whose head he stands. And to signify their co-operation with him in his great act, they say "Amen" to his Eucharistic words and acts, adopting them as their own. On this point a venerated writer of our own day has written as follows:—

"It is the unquestionable doctrine both of the Old and New Testament, that, without prejudice to the special official Priesthood of the sons of Aaron in the one dispensation, and the successors of the Apostles in the other, all the people of God, with the true Melchizedec at their head, are 'a kingdom of Priests, a royal priesthood,' and every one is a 'king and priest unto the Father, to offer up spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God by Jesus Christ.' None may doubt that the chief of those spiritual sacrifices is that which causes all the rest to be acceptable,—Christ Himself offered up to the Father by the offering of His Body and Blood in the Holy Communion. Accordingly, the Christian people have been instructed from the beginning to take their part in that offering, by the solemn Amen especially, wherewith they have always responded to the Prayer of Consecration. There is hardly any point of our ritual which can be traced more certainly than this to the very Apostolic times. Every one will remember St. Paul's saying, 'When thou shalt bless with the Spirit, how shall he that occupieth the room of the unlearned say Amen at thy giving

<sup>1</sup> Covers were provided for Chalices during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, but Chalice veils of linen are now generally used.

<sup>2</sup> On the Eucharistic Sacrifice, see Hickeys' "Christian Priesthood," Johnson's "Unbloody Sacrifice," the Bishop of Brechin's "Theological Defence," pp. 10—80, 104; Keble's "Eucharistical Adoration," II. 36, &c. Many more works might be named, but these are comparatively accessible to the theological student. See also the Introduction to the Communion Office, p. 152 of this work.

¶ Then shall the Minister first receive the Communion in both kinds himself, and then pro- of thanks, seeing he understandeth not what thou sayest?" [1 Cor. xiv. 16]—words which, in a singular way, bear witness both to the share (ρόμος) which all Christians have in the priesthood of Melchizedec, and to the distinction which nevertheless exists between those who might bless, and laymen (ἰδιῶται) who were not permitted to do so. . . . Justin Martyr mentions the "Amen" uttered by the people at the end of the Consecration as a special circumstance of the Christian Eucharist." Tertullian, St. Chrysostom, and St. Ambrose also all expressly allude to the emphatic response of "Amen" at the close of the Consecration Prayer.

[Ad corpus dicat cum humiliaſione antequam [Salisbury Use.] percipiat.]

THE COMMUNION.<sup>1</sup>

Then shall the Minister first receive There is no express direction as to the posture of the Celebrant himself in receiving, unless (which seems hardly likely) the words "all meekly kneel-

<sup>1</sup> The alterations proposed by Bishop Cosin after the Prayer of Consecration are here given as they stand in his Durham Book:

Then shall the Priest, that celebrateth, receive the Holy Communion in both kinds upon his knees, and when he taketh the Sacrament of the Body of Christ, he shall say,

The Body of our Lord Jesus Christ, which was given for me, preserve my body and soul unto everlasting life. Amen. I take and eat this for the remembrance of Christ who died for me, and I feed on Him in my heart by faith with thanksgiving.

And when he taketh the Sacrament of Christ's Blood, he shall say,

The Blood of our Lord, which was shed for me, preserve my body and soul unto everlasting life. Amen. I drink this for the remembrance of Christ who shed His blood for me, and am thankful.

Then shall he stand up and proceed to deliver the Holy Communion, first to the Bishops, Priests, and Deacons, (if any be present,) in both kinds: and after to the people in due order, into the hands of all humbly kneeling and so continuing, as is most meet, at their devotions and prayers unto the end of the whole Communion.

And when he delivereth the Sacrament of the Body of Christ to any one he shall say,

The Body of our Lord Jesus Christ, which was given for thee, preserve thy body and soul unto everlasting life. [And here each person receiving shall say, Amen. Then shall the priest add, Take and eat this for the remembrance of Christ who died for thee, and feed on Him in thine heart by faith, with thanksgiving.

And when he delivereth the Cup to any one he shall say,

The Blood of our Lord Jesus Christ, which was shed for thee, preserve thy body and soul unto everlasting life. [And here each person receiving shall say, Amen. Then shall the priest add, Drink this for the remembrance of Christ who shed His blood for thee, and be thankful.

If there be another Priest or a Deacon to assist the chief minister, then shall he follow with the Cup; and as the chief minister giveth the Sacrament of the Body, so shall he give the Sacrament of the Blood, in form before prescribed.

If any Bread or Wine be wanting, the Priest is to consecrate more, as is before appointed, beginning with [Our Saviour Christ in the same night] for the blessing of the Bread, and at [Likewise after Supper, &c.] for the blessing of the Cup.

In the Communion time shall be sung (where there is a Quire),

O Lamb of God that takest away the sins of the world, have mercy upon us: and, O Lamb of God that takest away the sins of the world, grant us Thy peace: together with some or all of these sentences of holy Scripture following:—Rom. xi. 33; Ps. ciii. 1—5; Luke i. 68. 74, 75; 1 Cor. i. 30, 31; John v. 13; John viii. 31, 32; Matt. xxiv. 13; Luke xii. 37, 40; John xii 35, 36; Rom. xlii. 12—14; 1 Cor. iii. 16, 17; 1 Cor. vi. 20; John xv. 8. 12; Eph. v. 1, 2; Rom. viii. 23; Apoc. v. 12, 13.

And where there is no Quire, let the Communicants make use of the same at their own private and devout meditations.

When all have communicated, he that celebrateth shall return to the Lord's Table, and reverently place upon it what remaineth of the consecrated elements, covering the same with a fair Linen cloth, and then say,

The Lord be with you.

Answer.

And with thy spirit.

Priest.

Let us pray.

Almighty and everliving God . . . world without end. Amen.

Then shall be said or sung,

Glorify to God on high . . . the Father. Amen.

[Divided by Cosin into four paragraphs.]

Then the Priest . . . blessing.

[Benediction as now.]

ing" are intended to apply to him as well as to those to whom he delivers the Communion. The usage of the Catholic Church generally, both East and West, is for the Celebrant after kneeling in adoration to receive standing, because his receiving is part of his official action as Priest. The Eastern Church, following, no doubt, herein the earliest custom (for we know from Tertullian, that even to kneel in prayer on a Sunday was thought unbecoming the Christian joyfulness and triumph of the day), does not even require her communicants generally to kneel, but to reverently bow the head. As will be seen by the note below, Bishop Cosin proposed to introduce a rubric on the subject, enjoining the Celebrant to kneel while receiving, and to use the words he uses to others.

The most ancient form in the delivery of the elements was "The Body of Christ," and "The Blood of Christ," to each of which the people answered "Amen." [Ambros. De Myst. iv. 5, Aug. Sermon. 272.] In the time of Gregory the Great it was "The Body of our Lord Jesus Christ preserve thy soul," to which by the time of Alcuin and Micrologus [xxiii.] was added "unto everlasting life." The usual form in England appears to have been "The Body of our Lord Jesus Christ preserve thy body and thy soul unto everlasting life. Amen." After the restoration of the Cup the forms provided in 1548 were, "The Body of our Lord Jesus Christ, which was given for thee, preserve thy body, &c.," and "The Blood of our Lord Jesus Christ, which was shed for thee, preserve thy soul, &c.," with which compare, "that our sinful bodies may be made clean by His body, and our souls washed through His most precious blood," in the Prayer of Humble Access. In 1549, "Preserve thy body and soul" was said in each case, as now, probably after the above ancient form.

The ancient words with which the Celebrant received, as directed in the Salisbury Missal, are given in the text. They were the same in that of Bangor. The other two great Uses of the Church of England had as follows:—

York.—"Corpus D. N. J. C. sit mihi remedium sempiternum in vitam æternam. Amen:" and, "Sanguis D. N. J. C. conservet me in vitam æternam. Amen. Corpus et Sanguis D. N. J. C. custodiat corpus meum et animam meam in vitam æternam. Amen." Hereford.—"Corpus D. N. J. C. sit animæ meæ remedium in vitam æternam. Amen:" and, "Sanguis D. N. J. C. conservet animam meam in vitam æternam. Amen." In the modern Roman use it is only "custodiat animam meam in vitam æternam. Amen," at the Celebrant's reception both of the Bread and of the Cup, and at the delivery of the Bread to the communicants.

The clauses now subjoined in each case, "Take and eat," &c., and "Drink this," &c., were in 1552 substituted in place of the first, which were then dropped altogether, but were restored at the restoration of the Prayer Book under Elizabeth in 1559, and prefixed, as now, to the new forms.

L'Estrange [Alliance of Divine Offices] says:—"Excellently well done was it of Q. Elizabeth's Reformers to link them both together: for between the Body and Blood of Christ in the Eucharist, and the Sacramental Commemoration of His Passion, there is so inseparable a league, as subsist they cannot unless they consist. A Sacramental verity of Christ's Body and Blood there cannot be, without the commemoration of his Death and Underneath these alterations of Cosin's, on the page which contains the Prayer of Consecration, there is written the following note in Sancroft's hand:—

"My LL, y<sup>e</sup> BB. at Elie house orderd all in y<sup>e</sup> old method, thus: First y<sup>e</sup> prayer of Address, We do not presume, &c. Aft y<sup>e</sup> Rubrick When y<sup>e</sup> priest stands, &c., y<sup>e</sup> prayer of Consecrōn unalterd (only one for own, and Amen at last), wth the marginal Rubrics. Then (y<sup>e</sup> memorial or prayer of Oblation omitted, and y<sup>e</sup> L<sup>d</sup> prayer) follow y<sup>e</sup> Rubrics and Forms of Participation and Distribution to y<sup>e</sup> end of y<sup>e</sup> Rubrick, when all have cōicated, &c. Altogether as in this book; only y<sup>e</sup> Rubrick, In y<sup>e</sup> Cōmō time shall be sung, &c., wth y<sup>e</sup> sentences following, wholly omitted. And y<sup>e</sup> y<sup>e</sup> Lords Prayer and Collect, O L<sup>d</sup> and Heav. F., &c. &c. to y<sup>e</sup> end."

ceed to deliver the same to the Bishops, Priests, and Deacons, in like manner, (if any be present,) and after that to the people also in order, into their hands, all meekly kneeling. And, when he delivereth the bread to any one, he shall say,

John vi. 33. 51.
54.
1 Cor. xi. 24.

THE Body of our Lord Jesus Christ, which was given for thee, preserve thy body and soul unto everlasting life. Take and eat this in remembrance that Christ died for thee, and feed on him in thy heart by faith with thanksgiving.

¶ And the Minister that delivereth the Cup to any one shall say,

John vi. 54—56.
1 Cor. xi. 26.
Ps. cxvi. 12, 13.
1 Thess. v. 23.

THE Blood of our Lord Jesus Christ, which was shed for thee, preserve thy body and soul unto everlasting life. Drink this in remembrance that Christ's Blood was shed for thee, and be thankful.

¶ If the consecrated bread or wine be all spent before all have Communicated, the Priest is to consecrate more according to the form before prescribed: Beginning at [Our Saviour Christ in the same night, &c.] for the blessing of the bread; and at [Likewise after Supper, &c.] for the blessing of the cup.

AVE in æternum sanctissima caro Christi: mihi ante omnia et super omnia summa dulcedo. Corpus Domini nostri Jesu Christi sit mihi peccatori via et vita. In No<sup>mi</sup>ne Patris et Filii et Spiritus Sancti. Amen. Hic sumat corpus . . .

¶ Deinde ad sanguinem cum magna devotione, dicens,

AVE in æternum cœlestis potus mihi ante omnia et super omnia summa dulcedo. Corpus et Sanguis Domini nostri Jesu Christi prosint mihi peccatori ad remedium sempiternum in vitam æternam. Amen. In No<sup>mi</sup>ne Patris, et Filii et Spiritus Sancti. Amen. Hic sumat sanguinem . . .

Corpus Domini nostri Jesu Christi custodiat corpus tuum et animam tuam in vitam æternam. Amen.]

[Ritus Baptizandi. De extrema Unc-tione.]

Passion, because Christ never promised His mysterious (yet real) presence, but in reference to such commemoration: nor can there be a true commemoration without the Body and Blood exhibited and participated; because Christ gave not those visible elements, but His Body and Blood to make that Spiritual Representation." This view gives to the latter clause the character of an oblation in the case of each communicant.

to the Bishops, Priests, and Deacons] i. e., actually taking part in the Service, not when merely present unofficially among the congregation. Compare the Rubric of 1552, "And next deliver it to other Ministers, if any be there present, that they may help the chief Minister." So also the Scotch Liturgy of 1637, "that they may help him that celebrateth."

in order] i. e., first the men and then the women, according to the practice usual in some of the best-ordered churches.

into their hands] Communicants ought instead of taking it with their fingers to receive the consecrated Bread in the palm of the right hand, according to St. Cyril's direction in his fifth Catechetical Lecture, "Making thy left hand a throne for the right which is about to receive a king, hollow thy palm, and so receive the Body of Christ, saying thereafter the Amen."

And, when he delivereth] 1548 and 1549 have, "And when he delivereth the Sacrament of the Body of Christ he shall say to every one these words." The practice of saying the words only once for each group of communicants as they kneel before the altar is contrary to the plain direction of the Prayer Book and of Canon 21, and inconsistent with the individualizing love of Christ and of His Church for souls. The large number of communicants is no excuse for it. The remedy for that difficulty is to divide the number by more frequent celebrations. The question was raised at the last Revision, and the Bishops answered those who desired that it might "suffice to speak the words to divers jointly," in these words: "It is most requisite that the minister deliver the Bread and Wine into every particular communicant's hand, and repeat the words in the singular number; for so much as it is the propriety of Sacraments to make particular oblation to each believer, and it is our visible profession that by the grace of God Christ tasted death for every man." [Cardwell, Conf. p. 354.]

It is a very ancient and primitive custom for the communicant to say "Amen" on receiving the consecrated elements. The Apostolical Constitutions and St. Cyril [Catech. Myst. 5. 18] attest its use in the East; Tertullian, Saints Ambrose, Augustine, Jerome, and Leo in the West. Bishops Andrewes, Cosin, Sparrow, and Wilson recommend it. The Scotch Liturgy of 1637 directs it.

During the actual delivery of the elements the Antiochene Liturgy of St. James, and the Mozarabic Liturgy, direct the 34th Psalm to be sung, a custom alluded to both by St. Jerome and by St. Cyril of Jerusalem.

The English Liturgy of 1549 directed the clerks "in the Communion time" to sing the Agnus Dei, "O Lamb of God," &c.

The American Liturgy orders "a Hymn, or part of a Hymn, from the Selection for the Feasts and Fasts," &c.

The form of Communion Service in the "Simplex ac pia deliberatio" of Archbishop Hermann of Cologne, directs that where there are Clerks the Agnus Dei should be sung both in German and in Latin, and if there be time the German hymns, "Gott sey gelobet," and "Jesu Christu onser heylandt." Among his suggestions submitted to Convocation, Bishop Cosin made one to a similar effect, as shown in a preceding note; and a relic of the custom still remains at Durham Cathedral, where a soft voluntary is played during the Communion. [See also p. lxiv.]

If the consecrated bread or wine be all spent] The Com-

¶ When all have communicated, the Minister shall return to the Lord's Table, and reverently place upon it what remaineth of the consecrated Elements, covering the same with a fair linen cloth.

¶ Then shall the Priest say the Lord's Prayer, the people repeating after him every Petition.

OUR Father, which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, As it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us from evil: For thine is the kingdom, The power, and the glory, For ever and ever. Amen.

Then the Deacon, taking the sacred paten, and holding it over the sacred chalice, . . . with care and reverence covers it with the veil. In like manner he covers the paten with the asterisk, and that with its veil. Liturgy of St. Chrysostom.

PATER noster, qui es in cœlis; sanctificetur nomen tuum: adveniat regnum tuum: fiat voluntas tua, sicut in cœlo, et in terra. Panem nostrum quotidianum da nobis hodie: et dimitte nobis debita nostra, sicut et nos dimittimus debitoribus nostris: et ne nos inducas in tentationem: sed libera nos a malo. Amen.

munion Office of 1548 makes provision for the consecration of a second or third Chalice, "or more likewise," in case of need arising from the small size of the Chalices in use before the Reformation, when only the Celebrant partook of the Cup; but makes no such provision in case of the failure of the consecrated Bread. The Liturgies of 1549 and 1552 make no provision for either case. The present rubric was added at the last Revision.

covering the same with a fair linen cloth] The name for this fair linen cloth in the Western Church has always been the Corporal: in the Eastern Church it is called the Veil. It is mentioned in the Liturgy of St. Chrysostom, and in the Sacramentary of St. Gregory there is a prayer for its benediction. It has been already mentioned that the idea of the corporal is associated with the linen clothes in which the Body of our Lord was wrapped when laid in the Sepulchre. Its use is a witness to the doctrine of the Church respecting the effect of Consecration upon the Elements. Were the Elements sacred only so far as they were partaken of, there could be no reason for specially directing the Priest to place what remaineth reverently upon the Lord's Table, for no more reverence towards them would be needed than that respect which is shown for every thing used at the Holy Communion. Still less would there be reason for so strikingly symbolical a custom as that of covering the Elements that remain with a white linen cloth: a custom which had always been ritually associated with the reverence paid to our Lord's natural Body; and with nothing else. In retaining such a custom as this, and defining it by a rubric at a time [A.D. 1661] when all rubrics were cut down to such an absolute minimum as must be insisted on, we have a clear proof that they who did so, believed a special sanctity to belong to the elements by virtue of their consecration, and also believed that this sanctity belonged to those elements whether or not they were received by the communicants. Evidence to the same effect is afforded by the sixth rubric at the end of the office.

The tone of thought on this subject in the Primitive Church is also indicated by a rubric in the Liturgy of St. Chrysostom: "Then the Deacon . . . gathers together the Holy Things with fear and all safety; so that not the very smallest particle should fall out, or be left." St. Cyril also writes, "Give heed lest thou lose any of it. . . . If any one gave thee gold-dust, wouldest thou not with all precaution keep it fast, being on thy guard against losing any of it, and suffering loss? How much more cautiously then wilt thou observe that not a crumb falls from thee, of what is more precious than gold and precious stones." [Catech. Lect. xxiii. 21.]

THE PRAYERS OF OBLATION AND THANKSGIVING.

§ The Lord's Prayer.

The repetition of the Lord's Prayer as the key-note of oblation and thanksgiving is a custom handed down to us from the Primitive Liturgies. After the Consecration, and before the Communion, says St. Cyril, "we say that Prayer which the Saviour delivered to His own disciples, with a pure conscience styling God our Father<sup>1</sup>." [Catech. Lect. xxiii. 11.] It is accordingly found here in every ancient Liturgy, except that of St. Clement. In the Gallican Liturgy (as now in the Mozarabic form of it) the Lord's Prayer was here preceded by a Proper Preface, in the same manner as the Tersanctus; and in all it was followed by the Embolismus, a prayer which was an expansion of the petition, "Deliver us from evil."

The words of St. Cyril plainly show that the Lord's Prayer was repeated, in this place, by the people as well as by the Celebrant. St. Gregory of Tours also refers to the same practice, in describing the miracle of a dumb woman who received speech at this moment to say the Lord's Prayer with the rest. St. Gregory the Great [Ep. lxiv.] says, "Among the Greeks it is the custom for the Lord's Prayer to be said by all the people, but among us by the Priest only:" and his words are found in the "Mirror of our Lady" [fol. clxxxix], showing that the custom of his day was also that of the Mediæval Church of England. It is, however, certain that the Gallican Liturgy required it to be said by all the people as well as by the Priest; and as the customs of the ancient English Church were analogous to those of that Liturgy, we may conclude that our present habit is a return to the usage of the Primitive Church in England as well as in the East.

In the Sarum Missal the Lord's Prayer was included in the Office to be said by the Clergy in the vestry after the Service at the Altar was ended. It is probable, therefore, that this custom influenced its present position—after Communion as well as after Consecration,—the public and the private recitation of it being thus combined.

§ The Prayer of Oblation.

It has been already remarked, in the Introduction to this Office, that if there is any room for doubt as to the completeness of the Oblation as made by the acts and words of Consecration, that doubt may be entirely dispelled by the consideration that this definite Prayer of Oblation is used while "what remaineth of the

<sup>1</sup> St. Cyril goes on to give the Exposition of the Lord's Prayer, which will be found at p. 31.

¶ After shall be said as followeth.

Ps. l. 14. 23.
cxvii. 17.
1 Pet. ii. 5.
Heb. xiii. 15.
Eph. vi. 18.
Heb. ix. 22.
Eph. i. 7.
v. 25—27.
1 Cor. i. 30.
Rom. viii. 32.
Prov. xxiii. 26.
Rom. xii. 1.
1 Cor. vi. 20.
Ps. lxxv. 4.
1 Cor. x. 16.
Eph. i. 3.
Luke xv. 18, 19.
Isa. vi. 5.
2 Cor. viii. 12.
Ps. xix. 14.
cxvii. 22.
Luke xvii. 10.
2 Chron. xxx. 18, 19.
Rom. v. 8, 9.
Eph. ii. 18.
Rom. xvi. 17.

O LORD and heavenly Father, we thy humble servants entirely desire thy fatherly goodness mercifully to accept this our sacrifice of praise and thanksgiving; most humbly beseeching thee to grant, that by the merits and death of thy Son Jesus Christ, and through faith in his blood, we and all thy whole Church may obtain remission of our sins, and all other benefits of his passion. And here we offer and present unto thee, O Lord, ourselves, our souls and bodies, to be a reasonable, holy, and lively sacrifice unto thee; humbly beseeching thee, that all we, who are partakers of this holy Communion, may be fulfilled with thy grace and heavenly benediction. And although we be unworthy, through our manifold sins, to offer unto thee any sacrifice, yet we beseech thee to accept this our bounden duty and service; not weighing our merits, but pardoning our offences, through Jesus Christ our Lord; by whom, and with whom, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, all honour and glory be unto thee, O Father Almighty, world without end. Amen.

TE igitur, clementissime Pater, per Jesum Christum Filium tuum Dominum nostrum, supplices rogamus ac petimus ut accepta habeas et benedicas hæc dona, hæc munera, hæc sancta sacrificia illibata, . . . pro quibus tibi offerimus vel qui tibi offerunt hoc sacrificium laudis . . .

Salisbury Use.
Canon.

Supplices te rogamus . . . ut quotquot ex hac Altaris participatione sacrosanctum Filii tui corpus et sanguinem sumpserimus, omni benedictione cœlesti et gratia repleamur. . . .

. . . . non æstimator meriti, sed veniæ, quæsumus, largitor admitte. Per Christum Dominum nostrum. . . . Per ipsum et cum ipso et in ipso est tibi Deo Patri Omnipotenti in unitate Spiritus Sancti omnis honor et gloria. Per omnia sæcula sæculorum. Amen.

consecrated Elements" is standing upon the Lord's Table. While that which has just been called many times the Body and Blood of our Lord Jesus Christ, and as such "reverently" placed on the Lord's Table, and covered "with a fair linen cloth," still remains there, the Celebrant solemnly beseeches our Lord and Heavenly Father to accept "this our sacrifice of praise and thanksgiving," that is, our Eucharistic Sacrifice; and he further says, that though we are unworthy to offer any sacrifice whatever, yet this one it is our bounden duty to offer to God, Whom we pray to pardon our unworthiness, and accept us and our work through Christ.

Yet there is reason to regret that this Oblation is not made—as it was in the Liturgy of 1549, and as it is now in the Scottish and the American Liturgies [see Appendix]—before instead of after the administration. Bishop Cosin has this remarkable note on the subject: "Certainly it" (the above arrangement) "was the better and more natural order of the two; neither do I know whether it were the printer's negligence or no thus to displace it. . . . I have always observed my lord and master, Dr. Overall, to use this Oblation in its right place, when he had consecrated the Sacrament, to make an offering of it (as being the true public Sacrifice of the Church) unto God; that 'by the merits of Christ's death,' which was now commemorated, 'all the Church' of God might receive mercy, &c., as in this prayer; and that when that was done he did communicate the people, and so end with the thanksgiving following hereafter. If men would consider the nature of this Sacrament, how it is the Christian's Sacrifice also, they could not choose but use it so too. For as it stands here, it is out of its place. We ought first to send up Christ unto God, and then He will send Him down to us." [Works, v. 114.]

Dr. Overall, it should be remembered, was Bishop of Norwich, and was the author of the latter portion of the Catechism relating to the Sacraments. Thorndike also [Just Weights, ch. 22] says, "That Memorial or Prayer of Oblation is certainly more proper there (immediately after the Prayer of Consecration) than after the Communion." The suggestions submitted to the Revisers of 1661 included the proposal of a "Memorial or Prayer of Oblation," much resembling that of 1549, to follow immediately the words of Consecration. Its displacement was, we cannot doubt (if not, as Cosin suggests, accidental), one of those alterations which Bishop Horsley, in his well-known letter to the Rev. J. Skinner, on the subject of the Scotch Liturgy, condemns as made "to humour the Calvinists," and, "in his opinion, much for the worse."

[That . . . we and all thy whole Church] The double supplication is here to be noticed. The prayer is that (1) "we" and (2) "all Thy whole Church," and it is also that "we may obtain remission of our sins," and that "all Thy whole Church" may receive "all other benefits of His passion." The latter phrase looks towards the ancient theory of the Church that the blessed Sacrament was of use to the departed as well as to the living. It is a general term used by men who were fearful of losing all such commemoration, if inserted broadly and openly, but yet feared lest no gate should be left open by which the intention of such commemoration could enter. One is reminded of the ancient Litany supplication, "By Thine unknown sufferings."

This view is confirmed by the words of Andrewes and Cosin. "Where," says the latter, "by all the whole Church is to be understood, as well those that have been heretofore, and those that shall be hereafter, as those that are now the present members of it. . . . The virtue of this Sacrifice (which is here in this prayer

¶ Or this.

Eph. v. 20.
2 Cor. ix. 15.
Matt. v. 6.
Ps. xxiii. 1—6.
John vi. 51. 53—57.
1 Pet. ii. 7.
John x. 11.
xv. 13, 14.
Rom. viii. 32.
1 Cor. x. 16, 17.
Rom. xii. 4, 5.
Eph. v. 30, 32.
iv. 15, 16.
1 Pet. i. 3, 4.
Col. i. 12—14.
John xv. 9, 10.
Eph. vi. 24.
2 Cor. xii. 9.
Acts ii. 42.
1 John i. 3, 7.
ii. 24.
iii. 6.
Eph. ii. 10.
iii. 20, 21.

ALMIGHTY and everliving God, we most heartily thank thee, for that thou dost vouchsafe to feed us, who have duly received these holy mysteries, with the spiritual food of the most precious Body and Blood of thy Son our Saviour Jesus Christ; and dost assure us thereby of thy favour and goodness towards us; and that we are very members incorporate in the mystical body of thy Son, which is the blessed company of all faithful people; and are also heirs through hope of thy everlasting kingdom, by the merits of the most precious death and passion of thy dear Son. And we most humbly beseech thee, O heavenly Father, so to assist us with thy grace, that we may continue in that holy fellowship, and do all such good works as thou hast prepared for us to walk in, through Jesus Christ our Lord, to whom, with thee and the Holy Ghost, be all honour and glory world without end. Amen.

¶ Then shall be said or sung,

Luke ii. 14.
Matt. xxi. 9.
1 Chron. xxix. 13.
Neh. ix. 5.
Ps. lxxvi. 9.
civ. 31.
Rev. xi. 17

GLORY be to God on high, and in earth peace, good will towards men. We praise thee, we bless thee, we worship thee, we glorify thee, we give thanks to thee for thy great glory,

ALMIGHTY and everlasting God, we give thanks to thy exceeding goodness, because thou hast fed us with the body of thy only-begotten Son, and given to us this Blood to drink. We humbly beseech thee, work in us with thy spirit, that as we have received this divine Sacrament with our mouths, so we may also receive and ever hold fast with true faith thy grace, remission of sins, and communion with Christ thy Son. All which things, thou hast exhibited unto us in these sacraments, through our Lord Jesus Christ thy Son, which liveth and reigneth with thee, in unity of the Holy Ghost, very God, and very man for ever. Amen.]

[Daye's transl. of Hermann's Con-
sult., A.D. 1547.]

ΔΟΞΑ ἐν ὑψίστοις Θεῷ, καὶ ἐπὶ γῆς εἰρήνη, ἐν ἀνθρώποις εὐδοκία. Αἰνου-μέν σε, εὐλογοῦμέν σε, προσκυνοῦμέν σε, δοξολογοῦμέν σε, εὐχαριστοῦμέν σοι, διὰ τὴν μεγάλην σου δόξαν, Κύριε

"γὰρ ἐξ ὁμωνύμων"
Codex Alexan-drin. Mus. Brit. εὐδοκία in MS.

of Oblation commemorated and represented) doth not only extend itself to the living, and those that are present, but likewise to them that are absent, and them that be already departed, or shall in time to come live and die in the faith of Christ." [Works, v. 351. 517.]

So too Bishop Andrewes, to whom Cosin [ibid.] refers, in his answer to Cardinal Perron:—

"The Eucharist ever was, and by us is considered, both as a Sacrament and as a Sacrifice. A sacrifice is proper and applicable only to divine worship. The sacrifice of CHRIST's death did succeed to the sacrifices of the Old Testament. The sacrifice of CHRIST's death is available for present, absent, living, dead (yea, for them that are yet unborn). When we say the dead, we mean it is available for the apostles, martyrs, and confessors, and all (because we are all members of one body): these no man will deny.

"In a word, we hold with St. Augustine, in the very same chapter which the Cardinal citeth: 'Quod hujus sacrificii caro et sanguis, ante adventum CHRISTI, per victimas similitudinum promittebatur; in passione CHRISTI, per ipsam veritatem reddebatur; post adventum [? ascensum] CHRISTI, per Sacramentum memoriæ celebratur.'" [Minor Works, Ang. Cath. Lib. p. 19.]

§ The Thanksgiving.

A prayer of thanksgiving formed a conspicuous feature in all the Primitive Liturgies, but it had dropped out of the mediæval service, except in the form of a private prayer of the Celebrant. That which was introduced into our Liturgy was partly taken from Hermann's Consultation: but there is much resemblance between it and the corresponding part of the Liturgy of St. James, which is as follows:—"We give Thee thanks, Christ our God, that Thou hast vouchsafed to make us partakers of Thy Body and Blood, for the remission of sins, and eternal life. Keep us, we beseech Thee, without condemnation, because Thou art good, and the lover of men. We thank Thee, God and Saviour of all, for all the good things which Thou hast bestowed on us; and for the participation of Thy holy and spotless mysteries. . . . Glory to Thee, Glory to Thee, Glory to Thee, Christ the King, Only-begotten Word of the Father, for that Thou hast vouchsafed us sinners and Thy unworthy servants to enjoy Thy spotless mysteries, for the forgiveness of sins, and for eternal life: Glory to Thee."

It should be remembered that the words "who have duly" apply to all who have received, "duly" being the English word for "rite," i. e., according to proper form and ordinance.

§ The Gloria in Excelsis<sup>1</sup>.

The use of a Hymn of Thanksgiving after the Communion may be reasonably associated with what is recorded of our Lord and

<sup>1</sup> " . . . quod incipitur semper in medio altaris quandocunque dicitur." [Sar.] "In medio altaris erectis manibus incipiat Gloria in Excelsis Deo." [Ebor.] "Quo dicto eat sacerdos ad medium altaris: et elevando manus suas dicat, Gloria in Excelsis Deo." [Herford.]

John xiii. 13.
xx. 28.
John i. 14.
Rev. v. 12—14.
John i. 29.
Heb. i. 3.
John xiv. 14.
1 John v. 14.
Mark xvi. 19.
Acts vii. 55, 59.
1 Tim. vi. 15.
Rev. xv. 3, 4.
Rom. ix. 5.
John xvii. 5.
Eph. ii. 18.

O Lord God, heavenly King, God the Father Almighty.

O Lord, the only-begotten Son Jesu Christ; O Lord God, Lamb of God, Son of the Father, that takest away the sins of the world, have mercy upon us. Thou that takest away the sins of the world, have mercy upon us. Thou that takest away the sins of the world, receive our prayer. Thou that sittest at the right hand of God the Father, have mercy upon us.

Rev. xv. 4.

For thou only art holy, thou only art the Lord, thou only, O Christ, with the Holy Ghost, art most high in the glory of God the Father.
Amen.

βασιλεῦ, ἐπουράνιε, Θεὲ Πατὴρ παντοκράτωρ.

Κύριε γιὲ μονογενῇ, Ἰησοῦ Χριστέ, καὶ Ἅγιον Πνεῦμα, Κύριε ὁ Θεὸς, ὁ Ἀμνὸς τοῦ Θεοῦ, ὁ Υἱὸς τοῦ Πατρὸς, ὁ αἴρων τὰς ἁμαρτίας τοῦ κόσμου, ἐλέησον ἡμᾶς, ὁ αἴρων τὰς ἁμαρτίας τοῦ κόσμου [ἐλέησον ἡμᾶς,] προσδέξαι τὴν δέησιν ἡμῶν, ὁ καθήμενος ἐν δεξιᾷ τοῦ Πατρὸς, ἐλέησον ἡμᾶς. [An addition in a later hand.]

Ὅτι σὺ εἶ μόνος ἅγιος, σὺ εἶ μόνος Κύριος, Ἰησοῦς Χριστὸς, εἰς δόξαν Θεοῦ Πατρὸς. Ἀμήν.

His Apostles at the first Institution of the Holy Eucharist; that, "when they had sung an hymn," they left the upper chamber as having thus concluded the sacred service. [Matt. xxvi. 30.] The hymn or psalm then sung was probably part of the great Hallel, i. e., of Psalms 113—118, of which an account will be found in the Notes on those psalms. Or it might be, as Archdeacon Freeman considers [Princip. Div. Serv. II. ii. 377], the "Praise-song" still in use among the Jews, and in which he traces some remarkable coincidences of expression with our Lord's great Eucharistic Prayer. In the Armenian Liturgy the 34th Psalm, and in the Constantinopolitan the 23rd Psalm, are sung after the Communion.

The ordinary position of the Gloria in Excelsis in ancient Liturgies was, however, at the beginning, not at the end of the Office. It occupied such a position in our own Liturgy until 1552, when among the other changes made was that of turning the Gloria in Excelsis into a Post-Communion Thanksgiving. At the same time was added a third "Thou that takest away the sins of the world," having in view probably the threefold Agnus Dei which was until then used as a Post-Communion. The only other Liturgy in which it has such a position is, according to Palmer [Origin. Liturg. iv. § 23], that in use among the Irish monks of Luxovium in Gaul in the seventh century. Bold as was the change thus made by the Revisers of 1552, there is so striking an appropriateness in the present position of the Gloria in Excelsis that there is reason to rejoice at the alteration rather than to regret it: and it may be truly said that there is no Liturgy in the world which has so solemn and yet so magnificent a conclusion as our own.

The Gloria in Excelsis,—or, as it is called in the Oriental Church, "The Angelical Hymn," or "Great Doxology,"—is of great antiquity, having been used from very early times as a daily morning hymn [προσευχὴ ἑωθινή] in combination with what is evidently the germ of the Te Deum. [See p. 11.] This use of it is mentioned in the Apostolical Constitutions [vii. 47], where a text somewhat differing from the above is given [Daniel's Thesaur. Hymnolog. ii. 269]: and it is also quoted and directed to be used by St. Ananasius in his treatise on Virginity. [De Virgin. tom. ii. p. 122, Bened.] St. Chrysostom frequently mentions it, especially as used by ascetics for a morning hymn: and the title of it in Athelstan's Psalter is "Hymnus in die Dominica ad Matutinas."

Its introduction into the Liturgy appears to have been gradual. It does not appear to have been thus used in the East, except among the Nestorians, at any time; but the first words of it are found in the Liturgy of St. James, and another portion of it in that of St. Chrysostom: "Thee we hymn, Thee we praise; to Thee we give thanks, Lord, and pray to Thee, our God." The germ of it was evidently used in Apostolic times, and perhaps the holy martyr Polycarp was quoting it, when among his last words he said, Διὰ τοῦτο καὶ περὶ παντῶν σὲ αἰνῶ, σὲ εὐλογῶ, σὲ δοξάζω. [Euseb. Ecc. Hist. iv. 15.]

Ancient liturgical writers state that the Gloria in Excelsis as now used was composed by Telesphorus, Bishop of Rome, A.D. 123—138, but it does not appear that he did any thing more than order the first words, the actual Angelic Hymn, to be sung in the Mass. Aleuin attributes the latter part of it to St. Hilary of Poitiers [A.D. 350—367], whose name has also been associated with the Te Deum: but it is clear that it was in use in its complete form when Athanasius wrote his treatise on virginity, and that it was then too familiar to the Church for a recent composition. The truth may possibly be that St. Hilary separated the ancient Morning Hymn of the Church into two portions, the first of which we know as the Gloria in Excelsis, and the second as the Te Deum. Symmachus, Bishop of Rome, A.D. 500, definitely appropriated the Angelical Hymn to its present use as an Eucharistic thanksgiving, placing it in the position before spoken of, at the beginning of the Communion Office.

It appears to have been an ancient custom to expand the Gloria in Excelsis somewhat in the same manner as the Kyrie Eleison [see p. 167]. The following is such an expanded form, arranged for the Festival of our Lord's Nativity:—

"Gloria in excelsis Deo, et in terra pax hominibus bonæ voluntatis. Laudamus Te, Laus Tua, Deus, resonet coram Te rex. Benedicimus Te, Qui venisti propter nos Rex angelorum Deus. Adoramus Te, Gloriosum regem Israel in throno Patris Tui. Glorificamus Te, veneranda Trinitas. Gratias agimus Tibi propter magnam gloriam Tuam, Domine Deus Rex celestis, Deus Pater Omnipotens. Domine Fili unigenite Jesu Christe, Domine Deus, Agnus Dei, Filius Patris, qui tollis peccata mundi, miserere nobis. Qui tollis peccata mundi suscipe deprecationem nostram. Qui sedes ad dexteram Patris miserere nobis, In sede maiestatis Tuae. Quoniam Tu solus sanctus, Deus fortis et immortalis: Tu solus Dominus, Cælestium, terrestrium, et infernorum Rex: Tu solus altissimus, Rex regum regnum Tuum solidum permanebit in æternum, Jesu Christe. Cum sancto Spiritu in gloria Dei Patris. Amen."

This is given by Pamelius [Liturgicon ii. 611], and he also prints another which was used at the Dedication of a Church. Although there is much beauty in such an arrangement, the reverent remark of Cardinal Bona is very applicable. He says, after quoting these two forms, "Non desunt alia exempla, sed ista superflua sunt, ut quisque agnoscat temerario quorundam ausu, seu potius simplicitate, ac zelo qui non erat secundum

¶ Then the Priest (or Bishop if he be present) shall let them depart with this blessing.

Deut. xxi. 5.
Heb. vii. 7.
Phil. iv. 6, 7.
2 Thess. iii. 5.
Numb. vi. 23—26.
Ps. cxxxiv. 3.
Eph. i. 3.
2 Cor. xiii. 14.

THE peace of God, which passeth all understanding, keep your hearts and minds in the knowledge and love of God, and of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord: And the blessing of God Almighty, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, be amongst you, and remain with you always. Amen.

¶ Collects to be said after the Offertory, when there is no Communion, every such day one or more; and the same may be said also, as often as occasion shall serve, after the Collects either of Morning or Evening Prayer, Communion, or Litany, by the discretion of the Minister.

Zech. xii. 10.
Rom. viii. 26.
Ps. xxxii. 8.
1 Thess. v. 9.
1 Pet. i. 9.
1 John ii. 17.
James iv. 14.
Ps. cxlvi. 5, 6.
Heb. xiii. 6.

ASSIST us mercifully, O Lord, in these our supplications and prayers, and dispose the way of thy servants towards the attainment of everlasting salvation; that, among all the changes and chances of this mortal life, they may ever be defended by thy most gracious and ready help; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

[Deinde si episcopus celebraverit, diaconus ad populum conversus baculum episcopi in dextera tenens, curvatura baculi ad se conversa dicat hoc modo. Humiliate vos ad benedictionem.

PAX Domini ✠ sit semper vobiscum.]

Benedictio Dei Patris et Filii et Spiritus Sancti, et pax Domini, sit semper vobiscum. Leofric's Exeter Pontifical. at maneat.

ADESTO, Domine, supplicationibus nostris: et viam famulorum tuorum in salutis tue prosperitate dispone: ut inter omnes viæ et vitæ hujus varietates, tuo semper protegantur auxilio. Per Dominum.

Salisbury Use.
Missa pro inter
gentibus.
Greg. ibid.
Celas., ad Prim.

scientiam, inserta hæc Angelico hymno fuisse, quæ Ecclesiasticam gravitatem minime redolent, cultumque divinum non augent, sed diminuunt<sup>1</sup>." [Rer. Liturg. II. iv. 6.]

THE BLESSING.

This beautiful Benediction is peculiar to the English Liturgy, both as to form and place. It is plainly intended to be a substitute for the Benediction anciently given after the Lord's Prayer and the Fraction of the Bread, and before the Agnus Dei. The latter half of it is analogous to a Benediction used in Anglo-Saxon times and given in the Appendix to Hickeys' Letters, as well as in the Exeter Pontifical [see also Confirmation Office]: the former half is a reversion from the old Liturgical form to one containing more of the actual words of Holy Scripture: "And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep <sup>1</sup> The following interpolated version is taken from "The Mirror of our Lady," and shows to what length such free handling of ancient forms has been carried by indiscreet persons:—"Glory be to god, on hy. And peace in erthe to men of good wyll. we prayse the. we blysse the. we worship the. we glorify the. we thanke the. for thy grete glory Lorde god heuenly kyng. god father almyghty. Lorde only sone of mary Jesu cryste. Lorde god. lambe of god. sone of the father that doest away the synnes of the worlde haue mercy on vs. by the moste pyteful prayer of thy mother mary vyrgyn. Thou that doest away the synnes of the worlde. receyue oure prayer. that we mote colynewally please the and thy holy mother mary vyrgyn. Thou that syttest on the righte syde of the father. haue mercy on vs. by ye suffrages of mary. that is mother and daughter of her sone. For thou only art holy. mary only is mother and vyrgyn. Thou only arte lorde. Mary only ys a lady. Thou only arte hyest. father and sone of mary. Jesu criste to the holy goste in glory of god the father. Amen." Such forms are said by Daniel [Thesaur. Hymnol. ii. 273] to be in almost all German Missals of the middle ages; and there was one of a similar kind ordered by the later Sarum Missals to be sung daily at the Mass in Lady Chapels.

your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus." [Phil. iv. 7.] This former part alone was used in "The Order of Communion" of 1548.

A comparison of the modern and ancient rubrics (for the latter of which see the Burntisland edition of the Sarum Missal, 622 f.) will show that this Blessing is to be considered a special sacerdotal act, belonging of right to the episcopal office, and devolving from it to the Priest, in the absence of the Bishop. As Absolution conveys actual pardon of sins to the true penitent, so does Benediction convey a real benefit to the soul when received in faith at the mouth of God's minister.

This Benediction is commonly used on other occasions in the full form in which it is here given; but it seems better to use it thus only in connexion with the Holy Communion, and at other times to begin with "The Blessing of God Almighty," as at the end of the Confirmation Service, and as was the ancient custom. Bishop Cosin inserted it thus at the end of the Burial Office, but the Commissioners substituted 2 Cor. xiii. 14.

THE OCCASIONAL COLLECTS.

The rubric which precedes these Collects originally extended only as far as "Every such day one:" all that follows was added in 1552. Bishop Cosin amended it thus:—"Collects to be said one or more at the discretion of the Minister, before the final Collect of Morning and Evening Prayer, Litany, or Communion, as occasion shall serve: as also after the Offertory, or Prayer for the estate of Christ's Church, when there is no Communion celebrated." But although this emendation was not erased, the rubric was printed in the old form. By "before the final Collect," Cosin meant before what is headed the "third" Collect in Morning and Evening Prayer. He erased the words

Hab. i. 12.
Jer. x. 23.
Ps. xxviii. 9.
cxix. 35-37.
1 Thess. v. 23.
2 Thess. iii. 5.
Ps. lxxxix. 13.
13. xviii. 8.
lxxxvi. 2.
John x. 28, 29.
Rom. viii. 35, 38,
29.

O ALMIGHTY Lord, and everlasting God, vouchsafe, we beseech thee, to direct, sanctify, and govern, both our hearts and bodies in the ways of thy laws, and in the works of thy commandments; that through thy most mighty protection, both here and ever, we may be preserved in body and soul, through our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

Ps. xcv. 7, 8.
Luke viii. 15, 16.
2 Tim. iii. 16.
James i. 21, 22.
John xv. 2.
Col. i. 5, 6, 9, 10.
Phil. i. 11.
1 Cor. iii. 6.

GRANT, we beseech thee, Almighty God, that the words which we have heard this day with our outward ears, may through thy grace be so grafted inwardly in our hearts, that they may bring forth in us the fruit of good living, to the honour and praise of thy Name; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Ps. lxxix. 8.
Jer. x. 23.
Ps. xxxvii. 5, 23.
1 Cor. x. 31.
Phil. i. 6.
Heb. iii. 14.
1 Pet. iv. 11.
Rom. vi. 22, 23.
xi. 36.

PREVENT us, O Lord, in all our doings with thy most gracious favour, and further us with thy continual help; that in all our works begun, continued, and ended in thee, we may glorify thy holy Name, and finally by thy mercy obtain everlasting life, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Ps. xxxvi. 9.
Prov. ii. 6.
James i. 5.
Matt. vi. 8, 31, 32.
Rom. viii. 26.
Ps. ciii. 13, 14.
Luke vii. 6, 7.
xviii. 13, 14.
Rev. iii. 17, 18.
Heb. iv. 14, 16.

ALMIGHTY God, the fountain of all wisdom, who knowest our necessities before we ask, and our ignorance in asking; We beseech thee to have compassion upon our infirmities; and those things, which for our unworthiness we dare not, and for our blindness we cannot ask, vouchsafe to give us for the worthiness of thy Son Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

John xvi. 23, 24.
26, 27.
Heb. x. 19.
1 Kings viii. 59.
Ps. xxxiv. 15, 17.
cxvi. 1, 2.

ALMIGHTY God, who hast promised to hear the petitions of them that ask in thy Son's Name; We beseech thee mercifully to incline

DIRIGERE et sanctificare et regere dignare, Domine Deus, quæsumus, corda et corpora nostra in lege tua, et in operibus mandatorum tuorum: ut hic et in æternum, te auxiliante, sani et salvi esse mereamur. Per.

Salisbury Use.
ad Prim.
Greg. ibid.

[FINALLEMENT, nous te prions que la parole laquelle nous avons ouye presentement, prenne racine en nos cœurs, tellement qu'elle rende ses fruitz en temps convenable. Et nous donne les choses expedientes et necessaires, tant a la vie spirituelle que corporelle. Ainsi que nous le demandons en l'oraison, que ton Filz Jesus Christ nous à apprise, Nostre Pere . . .]

[Poullain's L'Ordre, &c., 1552 ed.]

ACTIONES nostras, quæsumus, Domine, et aspirando præveni et adjuvando proseguere: ut cuncta nostra operatio et a te semper incipiat, et per te cœpta finiatur. Per.

Salisbury Use.
Canon Missæ ad
ann. Greg.
Sabb. in xii. lect.
mensis primi.

“second” and “third” before “Collect” in both headings, and introduced between them, at Evening Prayer, the ancient Prime Collect, “O Almighty Lord and everlasting God,” under the title of “The Collect for grace and protection.” From this correction, and from its being set aside, it is evident that these Occasional Collects, which Cosin wished to use before the third Collect, are intended to be used after it, and not after the Prayer of St. Chrysostom, which is nowhere called a “Collect” in the Book of Common Prayer. It seems as if the conclusion of the Service with the third Collect [see p. 25] was considered by some to be too abrupt; and that, therefore, discretion was given to use one of these Collects in addition.

The first, second, and fourth of these Occasional Collects are translated from ancient forms, used for many ages in the Church of England. The third is found in the Book of Prayers printed by Pollanus; but it is in reality a paraphrase of the prayer ‘Ο ἐνὶ χήσας ἡμᾶς Θεὸς τὰ θεῖά σου λόγια in the Liturgy of St. James. [Neale's Ed. p. 48.] The fifth and sixth appear to be compositions of the Reformers, the latter reading like a paraphrase of the prayer of St. Chrysostom.

Matt. xxi. 22.
1 John iii. 21, 22.
v. 14, 15.
Phil. iv. 19.
Ps. l. 15.
cxv. 17, 18.
Eph. i. 3.

thine ears to us that have made now our prayers and supplications unto thee; and grant, that those things which we have faithfully asked according to thy will, may effectually be obtained, to the relief of our necessity, and to the setting forth of thy glory;
through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

¶ Upon the Sundays and other Holy-days (if there be no Communion) shall be said all that is appointed at the Communion, until the end of the general Prayer [For the whole state of Christ's Church militant here in earth] together with one or more of these Collects last before rehearsed, concluding with the Blessing.

al. For the good state of the Catholic Church of Christ.

¶ And there shall be no celebration of the Lord's Supper, except there be a convenient number to communicate with the Priest, according to his discretion.

¶ And if there be not above twenty persons in the Parish of discretion to receive the Communion; yet there shall be no Communion, except four (or three at the least) communicate with the Priest.

THE FINAL RUBRICS.

These "Cautelæ Missæ" were inserted in 1552, superseding some longer rubrics which had been placed here in the Prayer Book of 1549: but some important alterations were made by Cosin, some of which were adopted by the Commissioners in 1661.

Upon the Sundays and other Holy-days] The Liturgy of 1549 here ordered that when there were "none to communicate with the Priest" he should still "say all things at the altar, appointed to be said at the celebration of the Lord's Supper, until after the Offertory," concluding with "one or two of the Collects aforewritten," and the "accustomed blessing." The present paragraph was substituted in 1552, but without the words "Sundays and other" before "holy-days," and without the direction to conclude with the Blessing. These were added in 1661. The Scottish Liturgy of 1637 does not order the Blessing to be given.

It is observable that our Communion Office contains absolutely no hint as to whether or when, on occasion of a celebration, persons present in the Church and not intending then to communicate are to withdraw. Still less is there any warrant for the practice of dismissing the non-communicants with one or two of the preceding Collects and "The grace of our Lord." The Church clearly intends, however, that the Alms should always be collected from the whole of the congregation, and that all should stay to the end of the Prayer for the Church Militant. Then, "if there be no Communion," the Priest is to dismiss the whole congregation with one or more of the Collects and the Blessing. The Service would then be what Durandus [Div. Off. iv. 1. 23] calls a "Missa Sicca," i. e., when "the Priest, being unable to celebrate, because he has already done so, or for some other reason, puts on his stole, reads the Epistle and Gospel, and says the Lord's Prayer, and gives the Benediction." The same sort of service is said by Socrates [Hist. Eccl. bk. v. ch. 22] to have been in use in the Church of Alexandria.

If, on the other hand, there is a celebration, non-communicants are permitted, not commanded, to withdraw; whilst communicants, drawing nearer towards the chancel and the altar (tarrying "still in the quire, or in some convenient place nigh the quire, the men on the one side, and the women on the other side," 1549), so as to be "conveniently placed for the receiving of the Holy Sacrament," are more specially addressed in the Exhortation, "Dearly beloved in the Lord, ye that mind to come," &c. With regard to the question of non-communicating attendance, it is best left open, as the wisdom of the Church has left it. The presence of persons, who, being regular communicants at certain intervals, may not feel prepared to receive at every celebration, but yet may scruple to leave the Church, and may wish devoutly to use the opportunity for prayer and intercession, cannot fairly be called non-communicant attendance, and could not be forbidden without needless cruelty. The probably rare occurrence of the presence of persons who have never communicated, and are not preparing to do so, ought to be discouraged. But it would in most cases be wise to encourage young persons preparing for their first Communion to remain throughout the whole Service. The fact of never having witnessed the actual Celebration and Communion, joined to the natural shyness of the English character, has probably in numerous cases delayed the first Communion for years.

the whole state of Christ's Church militant here in earth] This phrase was altered by Cosin into "the good estate of Christ's Catholic Church." It was similarly written in for the Printers, and so printed in the Sealed Books, but altered with the pen in several of them. It stands as Cosin wrote it, however, in many later Prayer Books.

a convenient number] This is defined, by the next rubric, to be "four (or three at the least)" besides the Priest himself. The rule is in agreement with the directions given by several ancient Councils. The forty-third Canon of the Council of Mentz [A.D. 813] forbade priests to say Mass when there was no one else present. That of Paris [A.D. 829] says in its forty-eighth Canon, that "a blameworthy custom has in very many places crept in, partly from negligence, partly from avarice, viz. that some of the priests celebrate the solemn rites of masses without ministers." A Council at York [A.D. 1195] decrees that no priest shall celebrate, "sine ministro literato," and many others of a similar kind might be quoted.

Yet there is no essential reason why this rule should be enforced. Should a celebration and communion take place in the chamber of a sick person, "in time of plague . . . when none of the parish or neighbours can be gotten to communicate with the sick in their houses for fear of the infection," and only the priest and the one sick person are there, it is quite as valid as if "four, or three at the least" were present. The reason, moreover, assigned by Councils and by Liturgical writers against Solitary Masses is that there is an indecorum and absurdity in saying "The Lord be with you," and similar versicles, when there is no one present: a difficulty which has been supposed to be met by the suggestion that the priest addresses himself to the absent Church "as present by faith and communicating in the Sacraments by charity."

On the whole it must be considered that the rule is one of expediency, and not of principle. It arose out of two conflicting causes, (1) The anxiety of the Clergy to offer up the Holy Eucharist day by day for the benefit of the Church, and (2) the indifference of the laity to frequent Communion. Bishop Cosin wrote, "Better were it to endure the absence of people, than for

- ¶ And in Cathedral and Collegiate Churches, and Colleges, where there are many Priests and Deacons, they shall all receive the Communion with the Priest every Sunday at the least, except they have a reasonable cause to the contrary.
- ¶ And to take away all occasion of dissension, and superstition, which any person hath or might have concerning the Bread and Wine, it shall suffice that the Bread be such as is usual to be eaten; but the best and purest Wheat Bread that conveniently may be gotten.
- ¶ And if any of the Bread and Wine remain unconsecrated, the Curate shall have it to his own use: but if any remain of that which was consecrated, it shall not be carried out of the Church, but the Priest and such other of the Communicants as he shall then call unto him, shall, immediately after the Blessing, reverently eat and drink the same.
- ¶ The Bread and Wine for the Communion shall be provided by the Curate and the Church-wardens at the charges of the Parish.

the minister to neglect the usual and daily sacrifice of the Church, by which all people, whether they be there or no, reap so much benefit. And this was the opinion of my lord and master, Dr. Overall." [Works, v. 127.] Yet the "four, or three at the least" was written in a slightly varied form of the rubric which he inserted in the Durham volume. Perhaps it is one of those rules to which exceptions may sometimes be made under the wise law, "Charity is above rubrics."

in Cathedral and Collegiate Churches, and Colleges] The word "Colleges" was inserted by Cosin, who also erased the words "except they shall have a reasonable cause to the contrary," and inserted after "Sunday" "or once in the month." It is to be hoped that the next generation will be entirely without experience of "Cathedrals, Collegiate Churches, or Colleges" where this rule of a weekly celebration is transgressed.

it shall suffice that the Bread] This rubric stood thus in the Prayer Book of 1549:—"For avoiding of all matters and occasion of dissension, it is meet that the bread prepared for the Communion be made, through all this realm, after one sort and fashion: that is to say, unleavened, and round, as it was afore, but without all manner of print, and something more larger and thicker than it was, so that it may be aptly divided in divers pieces: and every one shall be divided in two pieces, at the least, or more, by the discretion of the minister, and so distributed. And men must not think less to be received in part than in the whole, but in each of them the whole body of our Saviour Jesu Christ." It was altered to its present form in 1552.

Bishop Cosin proposed to substitute the following:—"Concerning the Bread and Wine, the Bread shall be such as is usual: yet the best and purest that conveniently may be gotten: though wafer Bread (pure and without any figure set upon it) shall not be forbidden, especially in such churches where it hath been accustomed. The Wine also shall be of the best and purest that may be had."

This was scarcely in accordance with the interpretation put upon the existing rubric by the Elizabethan Injunctions [A.D. 1559], and by Archbishop Parker. The former directs as follows:—"Item, Where also it was in the time of K. Edward the Sixth used to have the Sacramental bread of common fine bread, it is ordered for the more reverence to be given to these holy mysteries, being the Sacraments of the body and blood of our Saviour Jesus Christ, that the same Sacramental bread be made and formed plain, without any figure thereupon, of the same fineness and fashion round, though somewhat bigger in compass and thickness, as the usual bread and wafer<sup>1</sup>, heretofore named singing cakes, which served for the use of the private Masse." Archbishop Parker, when appealed to as to the meaning of the rubric, wrote, "It shall suffice, I expound, where either there wanteth such fine usual bread, or superstition be feared in the wafer-bread, they may have the Communion in fine usual bread; which is rather a toleration in these two necessities, than is in plain ordering, as it is in the injunction." [Correspondence, p. 376.] He also wrote to Sir Wm. Cecil, "As you desired, I send you here the form of the bread used, and was so appointed by order of my late Lord of London" [Grindal] "and myself, as we took it not disagreeable to the injunction. And how so many churches have of late varied I cannot tell; except it be the practice of the common adversary the devil, to make variance and dissension in the Sacrament of unity." [Ibid. 378.] Parker was also consulted by Parkhurst, Bishop of Norwich, on the subject. He first referred him to the rubric and Injunction, and in a subsequent letter wrote, "I trust that you mean not universally in your diocese to command or wink at the loaf-bread, but, for peace and quietness, here and there to be contented therewith." [Ibid. 460.] In his Visitation Articles, Parker also inquired, "And whether they do use to minister the Holy Communion in wafer-bread, according to the Queen's Majesty's Injunctions?"

Thus the contemporary interpretation of the rubric was plainly that the Sacramental Bread was usually to be in the form of wafers, but that for peace and quietness' sake, where wafers were objected to, "the best and purest Wheat Bread that may conveniently be gotten" might be permitted. Such an interpretation was also given to the rubric by the practice of learned men like Andrewes, by the custom of Westminster Abbey, the Royal Chapels, and the practice of learned Clergymen, such as Burton, author of the Anatomy of Melancholy, who was Vicar of St. Thomas', Oxford.

In the Oriental Church fermented or leavened bread is used: but the general practice of the Western Church has been to use bread prepared without fermentation, as being purer.

And if any of the Bread and Wine remain unconsecrated] This is a recognition of the right which the Christian Ministry has to "live by the altar." See 1 Cor. ix. 4—14. Gal. vi. 6.

but if any remain of that which was consecrated] These words were inserted by Bishop Cosin. They bear important testimony as to the opinion held by the Revisers of 1661 in respect to the effect of consecration. Some remarks on the Reservation of the Holy Eucharist for the use of the Sick will be found at p. 289.

shall be provided . . . at the charges of the Parish] In the Primitive Church the Elements were offered by the people, probably in successive order, the bread being taken from that which was offered for the love-feasts. In some churches of France this very ancient custom is still kept up, under the name of "l'offrande." Large circular cakes of bread, surrounded by lighted tapers, are, during the offertory, carried on a sort of bier by two deacons or sub-deacons from the west end of the Church up to the Altar, and after being blessed (hence called pain béni) and cut up into small pieces are carried round in a basket and distributed among the congregation. A similar relic of the Primitive Church is maintained at Milan, where ten bedesmen and two aged women form a community for the purpose; two of whom, vested in black and white mantles, carry the Oblations up to the choir, where they are received by the Deacon.

In all the ancient Bidding Prayers of the Church of England there is a clause, "ye shall pray for him or her that this day gave the holy bread," or "the bread to be made holy bread of," "and

<sup>1</sup> Cardwell prints "water," after Sparrow; but this seems to have been a printer's error.

¶ And note, that every Parishioner shall communicate at the least three times in the year, of which Easter to be one. And yearly at Easter every Parishioner shall reckon with the Parson, Vicar, or Curate, or his or their Deputy or Deputies; and pay to them or him all Ecclesiastical Duties, accustomed due, then and at that time to be paid.

¶ After the Divine Service ended, the money given at the Offertory shall be disposed of to such pious and charitable uses, as the Minister and Church-wardens shall think fit. Wherein if they disagree, it shall be disposed of as the Ordinary shall appoint.

WHEREAS it is ordained in this Office for the Administration of the Lord's Supper, that the Communicants should receive the same kneeling; (which Order is well meant, for a signification of our humble and grateful acknowledgement of the benefits of Christ therein given to all worthy Receivers, and for the avoiding of such profanation and disorder in the holy Communion, as might otherwise ensue) Yet, lest the same Kneeling should by any persons, either out of ignorance and infirmity, or out of malice and obstinacy, be misconstrued and depraved; It is here declared, That thereby no adoration is intended, or ought to be done, either unto the Sacramental Bread or Wine there bodily received, or unto any Corporal Presence of Christ's natural Flesh and Blood. For the Sacramental Bread and Wine remain still in their very Natural Substances, and therefore may not be adored, (for that were Idolatry, to be abhorred of all faithful Christians) and the Natural Body and Blood of our Saviour Christ are in Heaven, and not here; it being against the truth of Christ's Natural Body to be at one time in more places than one.

for him that first began and longest holdeth on, that God reward it him at the day of doom" from which it may be seen (as from much other evidence) that this custom of the blessed bread maintained its hold in England as late, at least, as the sixteenth century. It was discontinued because the bread so blessed was superstitiously regarded by many ignorant persons as equivalent to the Holy Sacrament itself.

The present rubric may be considered as an adaptation of this custom, but it is quite certain that the wafers for consecration must always have been provided under the special direction of the clergy, though certainly at the cost of the Parish.

The 20th Canon provides that the wine shall be brought to the Altar in a metal flagon or cruet, of pewter or silver, thus forbidding any domestic vessel such as a glass bottle.

the money . . . shall be disposed of] This rubric was added in 1661. It is a modification of the following, which was the one proposed by Bishop Cosin:—

¶ After the Divine Service ended, the money which was offered shall be divided, one half to the Priest [erasure, "to provide him books of Divinity"], "the other half to be employed to some pious or charitable use for the decent furnishing of the Church, or the relief of the poor, among whom it shall be distributed if need require, or put into the poor man's box at the discretion of the Priest and Church-wardens, or other officers of the place that are for that purpose appointed."

This was substantially taken from the Scottish book of 1637: and offers some guide as to the purposes to which it was intended that the Offertory money should be applied.

THE DECLARATION ON KNEELING.

This Declaration was first added to the Communion Office at the last Revision in 1661. It was framed, though with a most important difference in the wording, from the Declaration which, as a sort of afterthought, was inserted in the majority but not in all of the copies of the Prayer Book issued in 1552 [see p. xxxii]. This affirmed that "no adoration was done or ought to be done, either unto the sacramental Bread or Wine there bodily received, or unto any real and essential presence there being of Christ's natural Flesh and Blood." It was probably framed by Cranmer, and intended merely [see the Rev. T. W. Perry's exhaustive volume entitled "The Declaration on Kneeling"] as a protest against the doctrine of Transubstantiation, and the low notion of a carnal presence which had come to be the interpretation too commonly put on the phrase "real and essential presence." The Declaration of 1552 was "signed by the King," [Strype's Cranmer, bk. ii. ch. 33.] but it was never ratified by the Church, and is wanting in all editions of the Prayer Book from Elizabeth's Accession to the Restoration. At the Savoy Conference the Presbyterians desired its restoration. The Bishops replied, "This rubric is not in the Liturgy of Queen Elizabeth, nor confirmed by law; nor is there any great need of restoring it, the world being now in more danger of profanation than of idolatry. Besides the sense of it is declared sufficiently in the 28th Article of the Church of England." [Cardw. Conferences, p. 354.] Whilst partly adopting it, the Revisers of 1661 (under the influence, as it seems, of Bp. Gauden, probably at the suggestion of the venerable Gunning) made the important change of substituting the word "corporal" for the words "real and essential." Thus they retained the protest against Transubstantiation, whilst they removed all risk of the Declaration, or "Black rubric" as it was sometimes called, being misunderstood as even an apparent denial of the truth of the Real Presence.

"Natural" is not here used in the sense of ψυχικόν, i. e. the Adamic body of 1 Cor. xv. 44, for the Lord's body ceased to be "natural" in that sense, and became πνευματικόν after the Resurrection change. It is used in the sense of "material" (as our Lord demonstrated to St. Thomas it still continued to be even after the Resurrection change), and "having extension in space," and so occupying a definite position in space, i. e. localized, qualities not at all contradictory to those implied by πνευματικόν, which does not mean "merely spiritual," any more than ψυχικόν means "merely consisting of ψυχή," but rather means "fully indwelt by, and solely animated by πνεῦμα," and, as such, although material, possessing powers and capabilities which do not belong to the merely natural body. Further, in thinking of the powers and capabilities of the Lord's Body it must be always remembered that, whether before or after the Resurrection, it was, and is, the Body of the Everlasting Word, and so absolutely unique in God's Universe, in such wise that the powers and capabilities of the bodies, whether "natural" or "spiritual," of other beings can be no measure for It, nor their limitations predicable of It.

APPENDIX TO THE COMMUNION OFFICE.

[I.]

THE ANCIENT LITURGY OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND, ACCORDING TO THE USE OF SARUM.

THE Priest, having first confessed and received Absolution, said the Hymn, "Veni, Creator," whilst putting on the holy vestments, and then the Collect, "Deus, cui omne cor patet," Ps. xliii. Judica me, with the Antiphon, "Introibo ad altare Dei, ad Deum qui lætificat juventutem meam;" followed by "Kyrie," "Pater noster," and "Ave Maria." All this, apparently, was done in the Sacristy.

The "Officium," or Introit, having been begun, the Priest proceeded "ad gradum Altaris," and there, (with the Deacon on the right and the Sub-deacon on the left side of the Altar,) said "Confiteor," &c.; to which they responded with "Misereatur," &c. Then they said the "Confiteor," and the Priest responded with "Misereatur," and "Absolutionem."

He then kissed the Deacon and Sub-deacon, saying "Habete osculum pacis et dilectionis, ut apti sitis sacrosancto altari, ad perficiendum officia Divina;" and then going up to the altar, and standing before the midst of it, said secretly, "Take from us, we beseech Thee, O Lord, all our iniquities, that we may with pure minds enter in unto the Holy of Holies. Through Christ our Lord." He then signed himself with the cross in his forehead, saying, "In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen."

Then, taking the censer from the Deacon, he censured the Altar in the middle and at each horn, and gave it back to the Deacon, who censured him.

All this was done during the singing of the Introit by the Choir. Then, after "Kyrie Eleison," &c., the Priest, standing before the midst of the Altar, presented the "Gloria in excelsis Deo;" after which he returned to the "dexter horn" of the altar, for according to Sarum Use, the Priest, having gone to the "dexter horn" after the "Anera a nobis," remained there until the Epistle, or, if assisted by Epistoler and Gospeller, until the Creed, excepting only when he had to present the "Gloria in Excelsis."

Then the Priest, having crossed himself on the forehead, turned to the People with Ÿ. The Lord be with you. Ry. And with thy spirit. Then, turning to the altar, he said the Collect.

The Sub-deacon then going from the Altar through the Choir, read the Epistle, sometimes from a pulpit, sometimes from the step of the Choir; after which the Gradale, and Alleluia, and sometimes a Sequence or Tractus were sung.

Then the Deacon, having first censured the middle of the Altar, went down through the Choir, preceded by the two taper-bearers and the censer-bearer, and read the Gospel from the same place from which the Epistle had been read, the Sub-deacon holding the Book, the taper-bearers one on each side, and the censer-bearer behind him. After the announcement of the Gospel the Choir turned to the Altar and sang "Glory be to Thee, O Lord;" but during the reading of the Gospel they turned towards the reader. The Gospel finished, the Deacon kissed the Book, and taking it from the Sub-deacon, carried it back in front of his breast, and the Priest, moving to the midst of the Altar, presented the first words of the Creed, "I believe in one God." The Sarum Use directs the Choir to turn to the Altar at the Creed, and to bow, 1. at "And was incarnate;" 2. at "And was made man;" 3. at "And was crucified."

After the Creed, the Priest, saying first "The Lord be with you," said the "Offertory," which consisted of a few verses of Holy Scripture, most frequently from the Psalms.

After the "Offertory" the Deacon handed to the Priest the Chalice containing wine and water, and upon it the Paten containing some bread. The Priest then raised the Chalice slightly in both hands, "offerens sacrificium Domino," and saying the prayer, "Suscipe, Sancta Trinitas, hanc oblationem quam ego indignus peccator offero in honore tuo, beatæ Mariæ et omnium Sanctorum tuorum, pro peccatis et offensionibus meis: et pro salute vivorum et requie omnium fidelium defunctorum. In Nomine Patris et Filii et Spiritus Sancti acceptum sit omnipotenti Deo hoc sacrificium novum." He then replaced the Chalice and Paten and Bread upon the Altar, and covered them with the Corporale; and taking the censer from the Deacon, censured the oblations, saying, "Let my prayer, O Lord, be set forth in Thy sight as the incense." Then the Deacon censured the Priest, and an acolyte censured the Choir.

Then the Priest going to the "right horn" of the Altar washed his hands, saying, "Cleanse me, O Lord, from all defilement of mind and body, that I may be able with purity to fulfil the holy work of the Lord." Then, returning to the midst of the Altar, he bowed, and said, "In the spirit of humility and with contrite hearts may we be accepted of Thee, O Lord; and may our offering be so made in Thy sight, that it may be accepted of Thee this day, and may please Thee, O Lord my God."

Then, crossing himself "In the Name," &c. and turning to the people, he said, "Pray, brethren and sisters, for me, that this my sacrifice, which is also equally yours, may be accepted by our Lord God;" and the Clerks answered, "The grace of the Holy Spirit enlighten thy heart and thy lips, and the Lord graciously accept this sacrifice of praise at thy hands for our sins and offences."

Turning back to the Altar, the Priest then said the "Secretæ," corresponding in number to the Collects said before the Epistle; and again saluting the People with "The Lord be with you," began the Anaphora, or more solemn part of the Communion Service, which was as follows:

Priest. Lift up your hearts.

Answer. We lift them up unto the Lord.

Priest. Let us give thanks unto our Lord God.

Answer. It is meet and right so to do.

<sup>1</sup> The "Gloria in Excelsis" was not said during Advent, nor from Septuagesima to Easter Eve.

Priest. It is very meet, right, and our bounden duty, that we should at all times, and in all places, give thanks unto Thee, O Lord, holy Father, Almighty everlasting God: through Christ our Lord. Through whom the Angels praise Thy Majesty, Dominions adore Thee, and Powers tremble before Thee. The Heavens, and all the Hosts of them, and the blessed Seraphim, together in united exultation praise Thee. With whom we pray that Thou wouldest command our voices also to be admitted, evermore humbly praising Thee and saying:

Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God of Hosts: heaven and earth are full of Thy glory: Hosanna in the highest. Blessed is He that cometh in the Name of the Lord: Hosanna in the highest.

[Then immediately, joining his hands and raising his eyes, he began the Canon of the Mass, as follows,]

Most merciful Father, we humbly beseech Thee, through Jesus Christ Thy Son our Lord, that Thou wouldest accept and bless these gifts, these offerings, these holy undefiled sacrifices,

Which, before all things, we offer unto Thee for Thy holy Catholic Church, which do Thou vouchsafe to keep in peace and unity, and to rule and govern it throughout the world, as also Thy servant N. our Pope, and N. our Bishop, and N. our King, and all orthodox believers of the Catholic and Apostolic Faith.

Remember, O Lord, Thy servants and Thy handmaidens, N. and N., and all here present, whose faith and devotion are known unto Thee: for whom we offer unto Thee, and who themselves also do offer unto Thee, this sacrifice of praise for themselves and all their friends, for the redemption of their own souls and the hope of their own salvation and deliverance, and who pay their vows to Thee, the eternal, living, and true God:

In communion with, and having in devout remembrance, first, the glorious and Ever-Virgin Mary, Mother of Jesus Christ our Lord and God, as well as also Thy blessed Apostles and Martyrs, Peter, Paul, Andrew, James, John, Thomas, James, Philip, Bartholomew, Matthew, Simon, and Thaddæus: Linus, Cletus, Clemens, Sixtus, Cornelius, Cyprian, Laurence, Chrysogonus, John and Paul, Cosmas and Damian; and all Thy Saints: by whose merits and prayers do Thou grant, that we may evermore be defended by the help of Thy protection. Through the same Christ our Lord. Amen.

This oblation therefore of us Thy humble servants, as well as of Thy whole family, we pray that Thou, O Lord, wouldest favourably receive; and wouldest dispose our days in Thy peace, and deliver us from eternal damnation, and make us to be numbered with the flock of Thine elect. Through Christ our Lord. Amen.

Which oblation do Thou, O God Almighty, vouchsafe to make altogether blessed, meet, and right, reasonable, and acceptable, that to us it may become the body and blood of Thy most dearly beloved Son, our Lord Jesus Christ. [Here the Priest raised the Host saying,]

Who the day before He suffered, took bread into His holy and venerable hands, and lifting up His eyes to heaven, [here he raised his eyes,] to Thee, O God, His Father Almighty, and giving thanks to Thee, He blessed, and brake it, and [here he touched the Host] gave it to His disciples, saying, Take and eat ye all of this, For this is My Body. [After these words the Priest bowed himself towards the Host, and then raised it above his forehead that it might be seen by the people, and then reverently replaced it in front of the Chalice. He then uncovered the Chalice, and taking it in his hands, said,]

In like manner after they had supped, taking also this noble cup into His holy and venerable hands, and giving thanks to Thee, He blessed it, and gave it to His disciples, saying, Take and drink ye all of this. [Here he raised the Chalice slightly, saying,]

For this is the cup of My Blood of the new and everlasting covenant, the mystery of faith, which shall be shed for you and for many for the remission of sins. [Here he raised the Chalice to his breast, or above his head, saying,]

As oft as ye shall do this, ye shall do it in remembrance of Me. [Here he replaced the Chalice on the Altar, and covered it.]

Wherefore, O Lord, in memory of the same Thy Son Christ

our Lord and God, of His blessed Passion as well as of His Resurrection from the grave and glorious Ascension into Heaven, we Thy servants, and also Thy holy people, offer to Thine illustrious Majesty of Thine own gifts which Thou hast given, a pure offering, an holy offering, an undefiled offering, even the holy bread of eternal life, and the cup of everlasting salvation.

Upon which vouchsafe to look with favourable and propitious countenance, and to accept, as Thou vouchsafedst to accept the gifts of Thy righteous servant Abel, and the Sacrifice of our Patriarch Abraham, and that which Thy High Priest Melchisedech offered unto Thee, a holy sacrifice, an offering undefiled.

We humbly beseech Thee, Almighty God, command these to be carried by the hands of Thy holy angel to Thine altar on high, in the sight of Thy Divine Majesty, that as many of us as by partaking of this altar have received the holy body and blood of Thy Son, may be fulfilled with Thy grace and heavenly benediction. Through the same Christ our Lord. Amen.

Remember also, O Lord, the souls of Thy servants and handmaids N. and N. who have gone before us with the sign of faith, and now do sleep in the sleep of peace: to them, O Lord, and to all that are at rest in Christ, grant, we beseech Thee, a place of refreshment, of light and peace. Through the same Christ our Lord. Amen.

To us sinners also Thy servants, who trust in the multitude of Thy mercies, vouchsafe to give some portion and fellowship with Thy holy Apostles and Martyrs, with John, Stephen, Matthias, Barnabas, Ignatius, Alexander, Marcellinus, Peter, Felicitas, Perpetua, Agatha, Lucy, Agnes, Cecilia, Anastasia, and with all Thy Saints, into whose company do Thou, we beseech Thee, admit us, not weighing our merits, but pardoning our offences. Through Christ our Lord.

Through Whom, O Lord, Thou evermore createst all these good things, sanctifiest, quickenest, blessest them, and givest them to us.

Through Him, and with Him, and in Him, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, all honour and glory be unto Thee, O God, the Father Almighty, world without end. Amen.

Let us pray.

Taught by His wholesome precepts, and guided by His divine instruction, we are bold to say:

[Here the Deacon took the Paten, and, standing on the right of the Priest, raised it up on high uncovered, and held it so, to the words. Grant, of Thy mercy, peace in our days.]

The Priest meantime raising his hands, said:]

Our Father, &c.

Choir. But deliver us from evil.

Priest, secretly. Amen.

Deliver us, we beseech Thee, O Lord, from all evils, past, present, and future: and, the blessed and glorious and Ever-Virgin Mary, the Mother of God, and Thy blessed Apostles, Peter and Paul and Andrew, and all Thy saints, interceding for us,

[Here the Deacon gave the Paten to the Priest, who, first making the sign of the cross with it in front of himself, placed it on the Altar, saying,]

Grant of Thy mercy peace in our days, that we being aided by the help of Thy mercy, may evermore be both free from sin, and also secure from all disturbance.

[Here the Priest uncovered the Chalice, and, bowing reverently, took the Host, and, holding it with his thumbs and forefingers over the Chalice, broke it into three parts; saying, at the first breaking,]

Through the same Thy Son, Jesus Christ our Lord.

At the second,

Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, ever one God.

And then, holding two portions in his left hand, and the third in his right hand over the top of the Chalice, aloud,

World without end.

Choir. Amen.

Priest. The peace of the Lord be with you evermore.

Choir. And with thy spirit.

[Then the Priest, with the Deacon and Sub-deacon, said,]

O Lamb of God, That takest away the sins of the world : Have mercy upon us.

O Lamb of God, That takest away the sins of the world : Have mercy upon us.

O Lamb of God, That takest away the sins of the world : Grant us Thy peace.

Or, in Masses for the departed,

O Lamb of God, That takest away the sins of the world : Grant them rest.

Adding eternal at the third repetition.

[Then the Priest dipped the third portion of the Host into the sacrament of the blood, making the sign of the cross, and saying,]

May this holy commingling of the body and blood of our Lord Jesus Christ be to me and to all who receive it health of mind and body, and a healthful preparation towards the attainment of everlasting life. Through the same Christ our Lord. Amen.

[Before giving the Peace, the Priest said,]

O Lord, holy Father, Almighty everlasting God, Grant me so worthily to receive this holy body and blood of Thy Son Jesus Christ our Lord, that I may thereby receive the remission of all my sins, and be filled with Thy Holy Ghost, and have Thy peace ; for Thou art God alone, and beside Thee there is none else, Whose glorious kingdom and dominion endureth evermore, world without end. Amen.

Priest, to the Deacon. Peace be to thee, and to the Church of God.

Answer. And with thy spirit.

[Before communicating, the Priest, holding the Host with both hands, said these private prayers :]

O God the Father, the source and origin of all goodness, Who moved by pity didst will that Thine Only-begotten should descend to the lower parts of the earth and take flesh, which I unworthily hold here in my hands, [bowing to the Host,] I adore Thee, I glorify Thee, I praise Thee with the whole intention of my mind and heart, and pray that Thou wouldest not forsake us Thy servants, but wouldest forgive our sins, that we may be able to serve Thee, the only living and true God, with pure heart and chaste body. Through the same Christ our Lord. Amen.

O Lord Jesu Christ, Son of the living God, Who by the will of the Father and the co-operation of the Holy Ghost, hast by Thy death given life unto the world : Deliver me, I beseech Thee, by this Thy holy body and blood from all my iniquities and from all evils ; and make me to be always obedient unto Thy commandments, and suffer me not to be separated from Thee for ever, O Saviour of the world, Who with the Father and the same Holy Ghost livest and reignest ever one God, world without end. Amen.

May the sacrament of Thy body and blood, O Lord Jesu Christ, which, although unworthy, I receive, be not unto me for judgment and condemnation ; but of Thy pity be profitable unto me for salvation both of body and soul. Amen.

[Then, with an act of humble reverence he said, before receiving,]

Hail evermore, most holy flesh of Christ, to me before and above all things the sum of delight. May the body of our Lord Jesus Christ be unto me a sinner the way and the life.

In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

[Here he took the body, first making a cross with it before his mouth. Then with humble reverence and devotion towards the blood, he said :]

Hail evermore, heavenly drink of Jesus' blood, to me before and above all things the sum of delight. May the body and blood of our Lord Jesus Christ be profitable to me a sinner for an everlasting remedy unto eternal life. Amen.

In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

[Here he took the blood ; and then bending himself, said with devotion the following prayer :]

I yield Thee thanks, O Lord, holy Father, Almighty everlasting God, Who hast refreshed me with the most holy body and blood of Thy Son our Lord Jesus Christ ; and I pray that this sacrament of our salvation, which I, an unworthy sinner, have received, may not come into judgment or condemnation against me according to my deserts, but may be for the advancement of my soul and body unto life eternal. Amen.

[Then followed immediately the cleansing of the vessels, the Priest carrying the Chalice to the "dexter horn" of the Altar, and the Sub-deacon pouring in the wine and water. After this the following prayers were said,]

That which outwardly with our mouth we have taken, grant, Lord, we may with pure mind inwardly receive ; and may the gift vouchsafed in this life be to us a healing remedy unto that which is to come.

Lord, may this communion cleanse us from sin, and make us partakers of Thy heavenly blessings.

[The Priest then washed his hands, the Deacon in the mean time folding the Corporals. After which the Priest with his assistants said the "Communion," (usually a verse from a Psalm,) and after that the Post-communion collect or collects, followed by the "Ite, missa est" to mark the conclusion of the service. He then, standing before the midst of the altar, with his body inclined and his hands joined, said secretly,]

O Holy Trinity, may this my humble duty and service be pleasing unto Thee : and grant that this sacrifice which I unworthily have offered before the eyes of Thy Majesty, may of Thy mercy be favourably accepted by Thee, for myself and for all those for whom I have offered it : Who livest and reignest, ever one God, world without end. Amen.

[This done, he raised himself, signed the Cross upon his forehead, with the words, In the Name, &c., and left the Altar, saying, as he went, the first fourteen verses of the Gospel according to St. John.]

[II.]

THE FIRST VERNACULAR LITURGY OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

A.D. 1549.

The Supper of the Lord, and the Holy Communion, commonly called the Mass.

* * * * *

The Priest standing humbly afore the midst of the Altar, shall say the Lord's Prayer, with this Collect.

Almighty God, unto whom all hearts be open, and all desires known, and from whom no secrets are hid : Cleanse the thoughts of our hearts, by the inspiration of Thy Holy Spirit : that we may perfectly love Thee, and worthily magnify Thy holy Name : through Christ our Lord. Amen.

Then shall he say a Psalm appointed for the Introit ; which Psalm ended, the Priest shall say, or else the Clerks shall sing,

iii. Lord, have mercy upon us.

iii. Christ, have mercy upon us.

iii. Lord, have mercy upon us.

Then the Priest standing at God's board shall begin, Glory be to God on high.

The Clerks. And in earth peace, good will towards men, &c.

Then the Priest shall turn him to the people, and say,

The Lord be with you.

The Answer. And with thy spirit.

The Priest. Let us pray.

Then shall follow the Collect of the day, with one of these two Collects following for the King. [Collects the same as at present.]

The Collects ended, the Priest, or he that is appointed, shall read the Epistle, in a place assigned for the purpose, saying.

The Epistle of St. Paul, written in the Chapter of
to the

The Minister then shall read the Epistle. Immediately after the Epistle ended, the Priest, or one appointed to read the Gospel, shall say,

The holy Gospel, written in the Chapter of

The Clerks and people shall answer, Glory be to Thee, O Lord.

*The Priest or Deacon then shall read the Gospel: After the Gospel ended, the Priest shall begin,
I believe in one God.*

The Clerks shall sing the rest.

After the Creed ended, shall follow the Sermon or Homily, or some portion of one of the Homilies, as they shall be hereafter divided: wherein if the people be not exhorted to the worthy receiving of the holy Sacrament of the body and blood of our Saviour Christ, then shall the Curate give this exhortation, to those that be minded to receive the same.

Dearly beloved in the Lord, ye that mind to come, &c.

In Cathedral churches or other places, where there is daily Communion, it shall be sufficient to read this exhortation above written, once in a month. And in parish churches, upon the week-days it may be left unsaid.

And if upon the Sunday or holyday the people be negligent to come to the Communion: Then shall the Priest earnestly exhort his parishioners, to dispose themselves to the receiving of the Holy Communion more diligently, saying these or like words unto them.

Dear friends, and you especially upon whose souls I have cure and charge, on next, I do intend, by God's grace, to offer to all such as shall be godly disposed, the most comfortable Sacrament of the body and blood of Christ, &c.

Then shall follow for the Offertory one or more of these Sentences of Holy Scripture, to be sung whiles the people do offer, or else one of them to be said by the Minister, immediately afore the offering.

Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven. Matt. v.

Lay not up for yourselves, &c.

Where there be Clerks, they shall sing one, or many of the sentences above written, according to the length and shortness of the time, that the people be offering.

In the mean time, whiles the Clerks do sing the Offertory, so many as are disposed shall offer to the poor men's box every one according to his ability and charitable mind. And at the offering days appointed, every man and woman shall pay to the Curate the due and accustomed offerings.

Then so many as shall be partakers of the Holy Communion shall tarry still in the quire, or in some convenient place nigh the quire, the men on the one side, and the women on the other side. All other (that mind not to receive the said Holy Communion) shall depart out of the quire, except the Ministers and Clerks.

Then shall the Minister take so much Bread and Wine, as shall suffice for the persons appointed to receive the Holy Communion, laying the Bread upon the Corporas, or else in the Paten, or in some other comely thing prepared for that purpose: And putting the Wine into the Chalice, or else in some fair or convenient cup, prepared for that use (if the Chalice will not serve), putting thereto a little pure and clean water: And setting both the Bread and Wine upon the Altar: Then the Priest shall say,

The Lord be with you.

Answer. And with thy spirit.

Priest. Lift up your hearts.

Answer. We lift them up unto the Lord.

¶ Priest. Let us give thanks to our Lord God.

Answer. It is meet and right so to do.

The Priest. It is very meet, right, and our bounden duty that we should at all times, and in all places, give thanks to Thee, O Lord, holy Father, Almighty everlasting God.

Here shall follow the Proper Preface, according to the time (if there be any specially appointed), or else immediately shall follow,

Therefore with Angels, &c.

PROPER PREFACES

[as at present].

After which Preface shall follow immediately,

Therefore with Angels and Archangels, and with all the holy company of heaven, we laud and magnify Thy glorious Name, evermore praising Thee, and saying,

Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God of Hosts: heaven and earth are full of Thy glory: Hosanna in the highest. Blessed is He that cometh in the Name of the Lord: Glory to Thee, O Lord, in the highest.

This the Clerks shall also sing.

When the Clerks have done singing, then shall the Priest, or Deacon, turn him to the people, and say,

Let us pray for the whole state of Christ's Church.

Then the Priest, turning him to the Altar, shall say or sing, plainly and distinctly, this prayer following:

Almighty and everliving God, which by Thy holy Apostle hast taught us to make prayers and supplications, and to give thanks for all men: We humbly beseech Thee most mercifully to receive these our prayers, which we offer unto Thy Divine Majesty, beseeching Thee to inspire continually the universal Church with the spirit of truth, unity, and concord: And grant that all they that do confess Thy holy Name, may agree in the truth of Thy holy Word, and live in unity and godly love. Specially we beseech Thee to save and defend Thy servant Edward our King, that under him we may be godly and quietly governed. And grant unto his whole Council, and to all that be put in authority under him, that they may truly and indifferently minister justice, to the punishment of wickedness and vice, and to the maintenance of God's true religion and virtue. Give grace (O heavenly Father) to all Bishops, Pastors, and Curates, that they may both by their life and doctrine set forth Thy true and lively Word, and rightly and duly administer Thy holy Sacraments: and to all Thy people give Thy heavenly grace, that with meek heart and due reverence they may hear and receive Thy holy Word, truly serving Thee in holiness and righteousness all the days of their life. And we most humbly beseech Thee of Thy goodness (O Lord) to comfort and succour all them, which in this transitory life be in trouble, sorrow, need, sickness, or any other adversity. And especially we commend unto Thy merciful goodness this congregation which is here assembled in Thy name, to celebrate the commemoration of the most glorious death of Thy Son: And here we do give unto Thee most high praise, and hearty thanks, for the wonderful grace and virtue, declared in all Thy Saints, from the beginning of the world: And chiefly in the glorious and most blessed Virgin Mary, mother of Thy Son Jesu Christ our Lord and God, and in the holy Patriarchs, Prophets, Apostles, and Martyrs, whose examples (O Lord) and steadfastness in Thy faith, and keeping Thy holy commandments, grant us to follow. We commend unto Thy mercy (O Lord) all other Thy servants, which are departed hence from us, with the sign of faith, and now do rest in the sleep of peace: Grant unto them, we beseech Thee, Thy mercy, and everlasting peace, and that, at the day of the general resurrection, we and all they which be of the mystical body of Thy Son, may altogether be set on His right hand, and hear that His most joyful voice: Come unto Me, O ye that be blessed of My Father, and possess the kingdom, which is prepared for you from the beginning of the world: Grant this, O Father, for Jesus Christ's sake, our only Mediator and Advocate.

O God, heavenly Father, which of Thy tender mercy didst give Thine only Son Jesu Christ, to suffer death upon the cross for our redemption, who made there (by His one oblation, once offered) a full, perfect, and sufficient sacrifice, oblation, and satisfaction, for the sins of the whole world, and did institute, and in His holy Gospel command us to celebrate, a perpetual memory of that His precious death, until His coming again: Hear us (O merciful Father) we beseech Thee; and with Thy Holy Spirit and Word vouchsafe to bless and sanctify these Thy gifts, and creatures of bread and wine, that they may be unto us the body and blood of Thy most dearly beloved Son Jesus Christ: Who, in the same night that He was betrayed, took bread, and when He had blessed, and given thanks, He brake it, and gave it to His disciples, saying: Take, eat; this is My body which is given for you: do this in remembrance of Me.

Here the Priest must take the bread into his hands.

Likewise after supper He took the cup, and when He had given thanks, He gave it to them, saying: Drink ye all of this, for this is My blood of the New Testament, which is shed for you and for many, for remission of sins: do this, as oft as you shall drink it, in remembrance of Me.

These words before rehearsed are to be said, turning still to the Altar, without any elevation, or showing the Sacrament to the people.

Wherefore, O Lord and heavenly Father, according to the institution of Thy dearly beloved Son, our Saviour Jesu Christ, we Thy humble servants do celebrate, and make here before Thy Divine Majesty, with these Thy holy gifts, the memorial which Thy Son hath willed us to make: having in remembrance His blessed Passion, mighty Resurrection, and glorious Ascension, rendering unto Thee most hearty thanks, for the innumerable benefits procured unto us by the same, entirely desiring Thy fatherly goodness mercifully to accept this our Sacrifice of praise and thanksgiving: most humbly beseeching Thee to grant, that by the merits and death of Thy Son Jesus Christ, and through faith in His blood, we and all Thy whole Church may obtain remission of our sins, and all other benefits of His Passion. And here we offer and present unto Thee (O Lord) ourself, our souls, and bodies, to be a reasonable, holy, and lively sacrifice unto Thee: humbly beseeching Thee, that whosoever shall be partakers of this Holy Communion, may worthily receive the most precious body and blood of Thy Son Jesus Christ, and be fulfilled with Thy grace and heavenly benediction, and made one body with Thy Son Jesus Christ, that He may dwell in them, and they in Him. And although we be unworthy (through our manifold sins) to offer unto Thee any sacrifice: yet we beseech Thee to accept this our bounden duty and service, and command these our prayers and supplications, by the ministry of Thy holy Angels, to be brought up into Thy holy Tabernacle before the sight of Thy Divine Majesty; not weighing our merits, but pardoning our offences, through Christ our Lord; by Whom, and with Whom, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, all honour and glory be unto Thee, O Father Almighty, world without end. Amen.

Let us pray.

As our Saviour Christ hath commanded and taught us, we are bold to say, Our Father, which art in heaven, hallowed be Thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation.

The Answer. But deliver us from evil. Amen.

Then shall the Priest say,

The peace of the Lord be always with you.

The Clerks. And with thy spirit.

The Priest. Christ our Paschal Lamb is offered up for us, once for all, when He bare our sins on His body upon the cross; for He is the very Lamb of God, that taketh away the sins of the world: wherefore let us keep a joyful and holy feast with the Lord.

Here the Priest shall turn him toward those that come to the Holy Communion, and shall say,

You that do truly and earnestly repent you of your sins to Almighty God, and be in love and charity with your neighbours, and intend to lead a new life, following the commandments of God, and walking from henceforth in His holy ways: draw near and take this Holy Sacrament to your comfort, make your humble confession to Almighty God, and to His holy Church here gathered together in His name, meekly kneeling upon your knees.

Then shall this general Confession be made, in the name of all those that are minded to receive the Holy Communion, either by one of them, or else by one of the ministers, or by the Priest himself, all kneeling humbly upon their knees.

[Here follow the Confession, the Absolution, the Comfortable Words, and the Prayer of Humble Access.]

Then shall the Priest first receive the Communion in both kinds himself, and next deliver it to other Ministers, if any be there present, (that they may be ready to help the chief Minister,) and after to the people.

And when he delivereth the Sacrament of the Body of Christ he shall say to every one these words:

The Body of our Lord Jesus Christ, which was given for thee, preserve thy body [and soul] unto everlasting life.

And the Minister delivering the Sacrament of the Blood, and giving every one to drink, once and no more, shall say,

The Blood of our Lord Jesus Christ, which was shed for thee, preserve thy [body and] soul unto everlasting life.

If there be a Deacon or other Priest, then shall he follow with the Chalice: and as the Priest ministereth the Sacrament of the body, so shall he (for more expedition) minister the Sacrament of the blood, in form before written.

In the Communion time the Clerks shall sing,

ii. O Lamb of God, that takest away the sins of the world: have mercy upon us.

O Lamb of God, that takest away the sins of the world: grant us Thy peace.

Beginning so soon as the Priest doth receive the Holy Communion, and when the Communion is ended, then shall the Clerks sing the Post-Communion.

Sentences of Holy Scripture, to be said or sung every day one, after the Holy Communion, called the Post-Communion.

If any man will follow Me, let him forsake himself, and take up his cross, and follow Me. Matt. xvi.

Whosoever shall endure unto the end, he shall be saved. Mark xiii.

Praised be the Lord God of Israel, for He hath visited and redeemed His people: therefore let us serve Him all the days of our life, in holiness and righteousness accepted before Him. Luke i.

Happy are those servants, whom the Lord (when He cometh) shall find waking. Luke xii.

Be ye ready, for the Son of Man will come at an hour when ye think not. Luke xii.

The servant that knoweth his master's will, and hath not prepared himself, neither hath done according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes. Luke xii.

The hour cometh, and now it is, when true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and truth. John iv.

Behold, thou art made whole sin no more, lest any worse thing happen unto thee. John v.

If ye shall continue in My word, then are ye My very disciples, and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free. John viii.

While ye have light believe on the light, that ye may be the children of light. John xii.

He that hath My commandments, and keepeth them, the same is he that loveth Me. John xiv.

If any man love Me, he will keep My word, and My Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and dwell with him. John xiv.

If ye shall bide in Me, and My word shall abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done to you. John xv.

Herein is My Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit, and become My disciples. John xv.

This is My commandment, that you love together, as I have loved you. John xv.

If God be on our side, who can be against us? which did not spare His own Son, but gave Him for us all. Rom. viii.

Who shall lay any thing to the charge of God's chosen? it is God that justifieth; who is he that can condemn? Rom. viii.

The night is past, and the day is at hand; let us therefore cast away the deeds of darkness, and put on the armour of light. Rom. xiii.

Christ Jesus is made of God, unto us, wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctifying, and redemption, that (according as it is written) He which rejoiceth, should rejoice in the Lord. 1 Cor. i.

Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy. 1 Cor. iii.

Ye are dearly bought; therefore glorify God in your bodies, and in your spirits, for they belong to God. 1 Cor. vi.

Be you followers of God as dear children, and walk in love, even as Christ loved us, and gave Himself for us an offering and a Sacrifice of a sweet savour to God. Eph. v.

Then the Priest shall give thanks to God, in the name of all them that have communicated, turning him first to the people and saying,

The Lord be with you.

The Answer. And with thy spirit.

The Priest. Let us pray.

Almighty and everliving God, we most heartily thank Thee, &c.

Then the Priest turning him to the people, shall let them depart with this blessing:

The peace of God (which passeth all understanding) keep your hearts and minds in the knowledge and love of God, and of His Son Jesus Christ our Lord: And the blessing of God Almighty, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, be amongst you and remain with you alway.

Then the people shall answer,
Amen.

Where there are no clerks, there the Priest shall say all things appointed here for them to sing.

When the Holy Communion is celebrate on the work-day, or in private houses: Then may be omitted, the Gloria in Excelsis, the Creed, the Homily, and the Exhortation, beginning, Dearly beloved, &c.

[III.]

THE SCOTISH LITURGY.

[A.D. 1764.]

In the Communion Office of the Church of Scotland, the Offer-tory is followed immediately by the Sursum Corda, Preface, and Sanctus. It then proceeds as follows:—

Then the Presbyter, standing at such a part of the Holy Table, as he may, with the most ease and decency, use both his hands, shall say the Prayer of Consecration, as followeth:

All glory be to Thee, Almighty God, our heavenly Father, for that Thou, of Thy tender mercy, didst give Thy only Son, Jesus Christ, to suffer death upon the cross for our redemption; Who (by His own oblation of Himself once offered) made a full, perfect, and sufficient sacrifice, oblation, and satisfaction, for the sins of the whole world, and did institute, and in His holy Gospel command us to continue, a perpetual memorial of that, His precious death and sacrifice, until His coming again.

For, in the night that He was betrayed (here the Presbyter is to take the paten into his hands) He took bread, and when He had given thanks (and here to break the bread), He brake it, and gave it to His disciples, saying, Take, eat (and here to lay his hands upon all the bread), This is My Body, which is given for you: do this in remembrance of Me.

Likewise, after supper (here he is to take the cup into his hand), He took the cup; and when He had given thanks, He gave it to them, saying, Drink ye all of this (and here to lay his hands upon every vessel [be it chalice or flagon] in which there is any wine to be consecrated), for this is My Blood, of the New Testament, which is shed for you, and for many, for the remission of sins: do this, as oft as ye shall drink it, in remembrance of Me.

Wherefore, O Lord, and heavenly Father, according to the institution of Thy dearly beloved The Oblation.

Son, our Saviour, Jesus Christ, we, Thy humble servants, do celebrate and make here, before Thy Divine Majesty, with these Thy holy gifts, which we now offer unto Thee, the memorial Thy Son hath commanded us to make; having in remembrance His blessed Passion and precious Death, His mighty Resurrection and glorious Ascension; rendering unto Thee most hearty thanks for the innumerable benefits procured unto us by the same.

And we most humbly beseech Thee, O merciful The Invocation. Father, to hear us, and, of Thy almighty goodness, vouchsafe to bless and sanctify, with Thy Word and Holy Spirit, these Thy gifts and creatures of Bread and Wine, that they may become the Body and Blood of Thy most dearly beloved Son.

And we earnestly desire Thy fatherly goodness, mercifully to accept this our Sacrifice of praise and thanksgiving, most humbly beseeching Thee to grant, that by the merits and death of Thy Son, Jesus Christ, and through faith in His blood, we and all Thy whole Church may obtain remission of our sins, and all other benefits of His Passion.

And here we humbly offer and present unto Thee, O Lord, ourselves, our souls and bodies, to be a reasonable, holy, and lively sacrifice unto Thee, beseeching Thee, that whosoever shall be partakers of this Holy Communion, may worthily receive the most precious Body and Blood of Thy Son, Jesus Christ, and be filled with Thy grace and heavenly benediction, and made one body with Him, that He may dwell in them, and they in Him.

And although we are unworthy, through our manifold sins, to offer unto Thee any sacrifice; yet we beseech Thee to accept this our bounden duty and service, not weighing our merits, but pardoning our offences, through Jesus Christ our Lord;

By Whom, and with Whom, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, all honour and glory be unto Thee, O Father Almighty, world without end. Amen.

Let us pray for the whole state of Christ's Church.

Almighty and everliving God, Who by Thy holy Apostle hast taught us to make prayers and supplications, and to give thanks for all men; We humbly beseech Thee, most mercifully to accept our alms and oblations, and to receive these our prayers, which we offer unto Thy Divine Majesty; beseeching Thee to inspire continually the universal Church with the spirit of truth, unity, and concord: and grant that all they that do confess Thy holy Name, may agree in the truth of Thy holy Word, and live in unity and godly love.

We beseech Thee to save and defend all Christian Kings, Princes, and Governors, and especially Thy servant Victoria our Queen, that under her Commemoration of the Living. we may be godly and quietly governed; and grant unto her whole Council, and to all who are put in authority under her, that they may truly and indifferently minister justice, to the punishment of wickedness and vice, and to the maintenance of Thy true religion and virtue.

Give grace, O heavenly Father, to all Bishops, Priests, and Deacons, that they may, both by their life and doctrine, set forth Thy true and lively Word, and rightly and duly administer Thy holy Sacraments.

And to all Thy people give Thy heavenly grace, that with meek heart and due reverence they may hear and receive Thy holy Word, truly serving Thee in holiness and righteousness, all the days of their life.

And we commend especially to Thy merciful goodness the congregation which is here assembled in Thy name, to celebrate the commemoration of the most precious death and sacrifice of Thy Son, and our Saviour, Jesus Christ.

And we most humbly beseech Thee, of Thy goodness, O Lord, to comfort and succour all those, who in this transitory life are in trouble, sorrow, need, sickness, or any other adversity.

And we also bless Thy holy Name, for all Thy servants, who having finished their course in faith, do now rest from their labours.

And we yield unto Thee most high praise, and hearty thanks, for the wonderful grace and virtue declared in all Thy Saints, who have been the choice vessels of Thy grace, and the lights of the world in their several generations: most humbly beseeching Thee, to give us grace to follow the example of their stedfastness in Thy faith, and obedience to Thy holy commandments; that at the day of the general resurrection, we, and all they who are of the mystical body of Thy Son, may be set on His right hand, and hear His most joyful voice, Come, ye blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world.

Grant this, O Father, for Jesus Christ's sake, our only Mediator and Advocate. Amen.

Then shall the Presbyter say,

As our Saviour Christ hath commanded and taught us, we are bold to say, Our Father, &c.

Then the Presbyter shall say to them that come to receive the Holy Communion, this invitation:

Ye that do truly and earnestly, &c.

[Then follow the Confession, the Absolution, the Comfortable Words, and the Collect of Humble Access, as in the English Office.]

Then shall the Bishop, if he be present, or else the Presbyter that celebrateth, first receive the Communion in both kinds himself, and next deliver it to other Bishops, Presbyters, and Deacons, (if there be any present,) and after to the people in due order, all humbly kneeling. And when he receiveth himself, or delivereth the Sacrament of the Body of Christ to others, he shall say,

The Body of our Lord Jesus Christ, which was given for thee, preserve thy body and soul unto everlasting life.

Here the person receiving shall say, Amen.

And the Presbyter or Minister that receiveth the Cup himself, or delivereth it to others, shall say this Benediction,

The Blood of our Lord Jesus Christ, which was shed for thee, preserve thy body and soul unto everlasting life.

Here the person receiving shall say, Amen.

If the consecrated bread or wine be all spent before all have communicated, the Presbyter is to consecrate more, according to the form before prescribed, beginning at the words, All glory be to Thee, &c., and ending with the words, that they may become the Body and Blood of Thy most dearly beloved Son.

When all have communicated, he that celebrates shall go to the Lord's Table, and cover with a fair linen cloth that which remaineth of the consecrated elements, and then say,

Having now received the precious Body and Blood of Christ, let us give thanks to our Lord God, who hath graciously vouchsafed to admit us to the participation of His holy Mysteries; and let us beg of Him grace to perform our vows, and to persevere in our good resolutions; and that, being made holy, we may obtain everlasting life, through the merits of the all-sufficient Sacrifice of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Then the Presbyter shall say this Collect of Thanksgiving, as followeth,

Almighty and everliving God, we most heartily thank Thee

&c. [And the Office closes with the "Gloria in Excelsis," the Peace, and the Blessing, as in the English Use.]

[IV.]

THE AMERICAN LITURGY.

The order and arrangement of the Communion Office of the American Church is the same as our own, with this one important difference, viz. that the Prayer of Oblation and the Invocation have been restored to their place in immediate connexion with the Prayer of Consecration, which now closely resembles that of the Scottish Liturgy, and is as follows:—

All glory be to Thee, Almighty God, our heavenly Father, for that Thou of Thy tender mercy didst give Thine only Son Jesus Christ to suffer death upon the cross for our redemption; who made there (by His one oblation of Himself once offered) a full, perfect, and sufficient sacrifice, oblation, and satisfaction for the sins of the whole world; and did institute, and in His holy Gospel command us to continue, a perpetual memory of that His precious death and sacrifice until His coming again: For in the night in which He was betrayed, (a) He took bread; and when He had given thanks, (b) He brake it, and gave it to His disciples, saying, Take, eat; (c) this is My Body, which is given for you; do this in remembrance of Me. Likewise, after supper, (d) He took the cup; and when He had given thanks, He gave it to them, saying, Drink ye all of this; for (e) this is My Blood, of the New Testament, which is shed for you, and for many, for the remission of sin: do this, as oft as ye shall drink it, in remembrance of Me.

Wherefore, O Lord and heavenly Father, according to the institution of Thy dearly beloved Son our Saviour Jesus Christ, we, Thy humble servants, do celebrate and make here before Thy Divine Majesty, with these Thy holy gifts, which we now offer unto Thee, the memorial Thy Son hath commanded us to make; having in remembrance His blessed Passion and precious Death, His mighty Resurrection and glorious Ascension; rendering unto Thee most hearty thanks, for the innumerable benefits procured unto us by the same. And we most humbly beseech Thee, O merciful Father, to hear us; and, of Thy almighty goodness, vouchsafe to bless and sanctify, with Thy Word and Holy Spirit, these Thy gifts and creatures of bread and wine; that we, receiving them according to Thy Son our Saviour Jesus Christ's holy institution, in remembrance of His Death and Passion, may be partakers of His most blessed Body and Blood. And we earnestly desire Thy fatherly goodness, mercifully to accept this our Sacrifice of praise and thanksgiving; most humbly beseeching Thee to grant, that by the merits and death of Thy Son Jesus Christ, and through faith in His blood, we, and all Thy whole Church, may obtain remission of our sins, and all other benefits of His Passion. And here we offer and present unto Thee, O Lord, ourselves, our souls, and bodies, to be a reasonable, holy, and living sacrifice unto Thee; humbly beseeching Thee, that we, and all others who shall be partakers of this Holy Communion, may worthily receive the most precious Body and Blood of Thy Son Jesus Christ, be filled with Thy grace and heavenly benediction, and made one body with Him, that He may dwell in them, and they in Him. And although we are unworthy, through our manifold sins, to offer unto Thee any sacrifice; yet we beseech Thee to accept this our bounden duty and service, not weighing our merits, but pardoning our offences; through Jesus Christ our Lord; by Whom, and with Whom, in the unity of the Holy Ghost, all honour and glory be unto Thee, O Father Almighty, world without end. Amen.

The Oblation.

Here shall be sung a Hymn, or Part of a Hymn, from the Selection for the Feasts and Fasts, &c.

[V.]

THE PRESBYTERIAN FORM.

[This presumptuous and irreverent parody of the Liturgy is reluctantly reprinted, for the sake of historical completeness, from the "Directory" of 1644<sup>1</sup>. When the children asked for bread, this was the stone which was provided for them during the persecution of the Church by the Puritans, from 1645 to 1661. Ed.]

Of the Celebration of the Communion, or Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

The Communion, or Supper of the Lord, is frequently to be celebrated; but how often, may be considered and determined by the ministers, and other church-governors of each congregation, as they shall find most convenient for the comfort and edification of the people committed to their charge. And, when it shall be administered, we judge it convenient to be done after the morning sermon.

The ignorant and the scandalous are not fit to receive the sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

Where this sacrament cannot with convenience be frequently administered, it is requisite that public warning be given the Sabbath-day before the administration thereof: and that either then, or on some day of that week, something concerning that ordinance, and the due preparation thereunto, and participation thereof, be taught; that, by the diligent use of all means sanctified of God to that end, both in public and private, all may come better prepared to that heavenly feast.

When the day is come for administration, the minister, having ended his sermon and prayer, shall make a short exhortation:

"Expressing the inestimable benefit we have by this sacrament, together with the ends and use thereof: setting forth the great necessity of having our comforts and strength renewed thereby in this our pilgrimage and warfare: how necessary it is that we come unto it with knowledge, faith, repentance, love, and with hungering and thirsting souls after Christ and His benefits: how great the danger to eat and drink unworthily.

"Next, he is, in the name of Christ, on the one part, to warn all such as are ignorant, scandalous, profane, or that live in any sin or offence against their knowledge or conscience, that they presume not to come to that holy table; showing them, that he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh judgment unto himself: and, on the other part, he is in an especial manner to invite and encourage all that labour under the sense of the burden of their sins, and fear of wrath, and desire to reach unto a greater progress in grace than yet they can attain unto, to come to the Lord's table; assuring them, in the same name, of ease, refreshing, and strength to their weak and wearied souls."

After this exhortation, warning, and invitation, the table being before decently covered, and so conveniently placed, that the communicants may orderly sit about it, or at it, the minister is to begin the action with sanctifying and blessing the elements of bread and wine set before him (the bread in comely and convenient vessels, so prepared that, being broken by him, and given, it may be distributed amongst the communicants; the wine also in large cups), having first, in a few words, showed that those elements, otherwise common, are now set apart and sanctified to this holy use, by the word of institution and prayer.

Let the words of institution be read out of the Evangelists, or out of the first Epistle of the Apostle Paul to the Corinthians, chap. xi. 23, I have received of the Lord, &c. to the 27th verse, which the minister may, when he seeth requisite, explain and apply.

Let the prayer, thanksgiving, or blessing of the bread and wine, be to this effect:

"With humble and hearty acknowledgment of the greatness of our misery, from which neither man nor angel was able to deliver us, and of our great unworthiness of the least of all God's mercies; to give thanks to God for all His benefits, and especially for that great benefit of our redemption, the love of God the Father, the sufferings and merits of the Lord Jesus Christ the Son of God, by which we are delivered; and for all means of grace, the word and sacraments; and for this sacrament in particular, by which Christ, and all His benefits, are applied and sealed up unto us, which, notwithstanding the denial of them unto others, are, in great mercy continued unto us, after so much and long abuse of them all.

"To profess, that there is no other name under heaven by which we can be saved, but the name of Jesus Christ, by whom alone we receive liberty and life, have access to the throne of grace, are admitted to eat and drink at His own table, and are sealed up by His Spirit to an assurance of happiness and everlasting life.

"Earnestly to pray to God, the Father of all mercies, and God of all consolation, to vouchsafe His gracious presence, and the effectual working of His Spirit in us; and so to sanctify these elements both of bread and wine, and to bless His own ordinance, that we may receive by faith the body and blood of Jesus Christ, crucified for us, and so to feed upon Him, that He may be one with us, and we one with Him; that He may live in us, and we in Him, and to Him who hath loved us, and given Himself for us."

All which he is to endeavour to perform with suitable affections, answerable to such an holy action, and to stir up the like in the people.

The elements being now sanctified by the word and prayer, the minister, being at the table, is to take the bread in his hand, and say, in these expressions, (or other the like, used by Christ or His Apostle upon this occasion:)

"According to the holy institution, command, and example of our blessed Saviour Jesus Christ, I take this bread, and, having given thanks, break it, and give it unto you; (there the minister, who is also himself to communicate, is to break the bread, and give it to the communicants;) Take ye, eat ye; this is the body of Christ which is broken for you: do this in remembrance of Him."

In like manner the minister is to take the cup, and say, in these expressions, (or other the like, used by Christ or the Apostle upon the same occasion:)

"According to the institution, command, and example of our Lord Jesus Christ, I take this cup, and give it unto you; (here he giveth it to the communicants;) This cup is the new testament in the blood of Christ, which is shed for the remission of the sins of many: drink ye all of it."

After all have communicated, the minister may, in a few words, put them in mind

"Of the grace of God in Jesus Christ, held forth in this sacrament; and exhort them to walk worthy of it."

The minister is to give solemn thanks to God,

"For His rich mercy, and invaluable goodness, vouchsafed to them in that sacrament; and to entreat for pardon for the defects of the whole service, and for the gracious assistance of His good Spirit, whereby they may be enabled to walk in the strength of that grace, as becometh those who have received so great pledges of salvation."

The collection for the poor is so to be ordered, that no part of the public worship be thereby hindered.

<sup>1</sup> "The Directory for the Public Worship of God, agreed upon by the Assembly of Divines at Westminster, with the assistance of Commissioners from the Church of Scotland, as a part of the covenanted uniformity in religion betwixt the Churches of Christ in the Kingdoms of England, Scotland, and Ireland."

AN INTRODUCTION

TO THE ### OFFICES FOR HOLY BAPTISM.

---

THE ecclesiastical word Βάπτισμα, from which our familiar English word is derived, always associates itself with the idea of purification, although such an association of ideas was not necessarily connected with the classical βαπτίζω, βάπτω, from which it is formed. On the other hand, although the original classical word has the primary sense of dipping, (that is, of more or less immersion in some fluid,) this sense is not necessarily connected with the ecclesiastical word. It is used in the New Testament with several applications: as, for example, to the baptism of the Jews by St. John the Baptist [John i. 26]; to ceremonial washings of the person and of vessels used for eating and drinking [Mark vii. 4. Heb. ix. 10]; to the ministry of our Lord [Matt. iii. 11]; to the Passion of our Lord [Luke xii. 50. Mark x. 38]; to the operation of the Holy Ghost upon the Apostles [Acts i. 5]; and, lastly, in its most customary sense, to the rite of Holy Baptism, instituted by Christ [Matt. xxviii. 19. Acts viii. 36. Eph. iv. 5. 1 Pet. iii. 21]. In all these applications of the word, the idea of purification is plainly latent, even when it is so metaphorically used as in the case of our Lord's words, "I have a baptism to be baptized with;" for although He had no sin from which He could be purified, yet was He "made sin for us," and also "made perfect through sufferings" [Heb. ii. 10]. It is moreover observable, that after the institution of the rite of Christian Baptism by our Lord, the word is not any longer used in other senses in Holy Scripture, (except historically,) but is restricted to the one which it has commonly held in all subsequent ages.

§ History of Holy Baptism.

It appears from the Holy Gospels that the ordinance of Christian Baptism was a sacramental climax which had been arrived at, and developed out of, other and inferior ordinances. St. John the Baptist prepared the way for our Lord's ministrations among the Jews by leading them to confess their sins; and this confession of their sins was followed up by a Baptism of which no further particulars are given to us than that those who received it went down into the water [Matt. iii. 16]; and we are not told whether any words were used at the time of the immersion<sup>1</sup>. Of this rite our Lord Himself was pleased to partake, and by doing so consecrated the element of water to its future and higher use. A Baptismal rite was also used in the ministrations of our Lord, but not by Himself [John iii. 26; iv. 2]; and from the manner in which this was spoken of by the disciples of St. John the Baptist, it would appear that there was no outward distinction between this rite and that which he had used. In both cases an ancient custom of the Jews<sup>2</sup> appears to have been adopted, signifying by a ceremony of ablution the cleansing away of an old life for the purpose of beginning a new one, as a proselyte to a new and a stricter faith. In the case of Jewish baptisms the change signified was from heathenism to Judaism; in that by St. John and our Lord from a sinful life as Jews to a good life as the disciples of the Baptist or of Christ. This significant use of water as the outward sign of admission to a new spiritual condition ought doubtless to be regarded as a preparation, by the Providence of Almighty God, for the sacrament which was to be instituted by our Lord.

There were also certain verbal and typical preparations made for that institution by our Blessed Lord Himself. At the outset of His ministry occurred His interview with Nicodemus [John iii. 1—15], in which He spoke of a result of Baptism which had evidently never been supposed to accompany it hitherto. Men were to be born of water and the Spirit that they might enter into the kingdom of Heaven: and although Nicodemus must have been familiar with the Baptism of proselytes, the idea of new birth by the use of Baptism was evidently novel to him<sup>3</sup>. At the close of His ministry, our Lord washed the feet of His disciples, teaching them that the act, as performed by Him, was not only a sign of humility, but also a means of spiritual purification; a truth the full meaning of which was not then revealed to them, but would be at a later period, when its revelation was to be a part of the instructions given for their appointed work [John xiii. 4—10]. And in the midst of His ministry Jesus had taken little children in His arms and blessed them, that by His touch and word they might be admitted (even without other sacrament) to the kingdom of God, and that the Church might learn for ever to suffer little children to come to Him, and forbid them not. Lastly, when blood and water flowed from the side of the Lord, the connexion between His Death and the two Sacraments was unmistakably symbolized.

Thus, by the course of His Providence, our Lord had prepared the Jews, and the Apostles especially, for the institution of Christian Baptism. (1) They had become familiar with the use of water as an external sign of a spiritual change; (2) they had been instructed (by words the meaning of which was to be developed to them by the Holy Ghost) that the use of water was to be not a sign only, but also the means of spiritual cleansing and new birth into the kingdom of God; and (3) it had been shown them that even little children were capable of entering that kingdom. And, thus prepared by our Lord's words and acts, the Apostles received His last command and commission, "Go ye therefore, and teach [μαθητεύσατε, see margin of English Bible] all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." Their work was, as it had been hitherto, to "make disciples;" as they had long been doing, they were to admit to discipleship by baptizing, i. e. by immersing their converts in water: but the rite was now to be distinguished from all previous baptisms by being administered with the most solemn words that man can use, an invocation of the One God in three Persons<sup>1</sup>. [Matt. xxvii. 19.]

<sup>1</sup> "John," says the Venerable Bede, "baptized with the baptism of repentance to confession of sins and amendment of life; and he preached the coming baptism of repentance in Christ for the remission of sins; in which latter baptism alone is remission of sins given to us, as the Apostle testifies." [Homil. xlviii.]

See Lightfoot on Matt. iii.

<sup>3</sup> This seems beyond doubt, notwithstanding the alleged Jewish use of the expression "new birth" in connexion with the baptism of proselytes.

The subsequent parts of the New Testament show that the Apostles carried out this command of our Lord in its most literal sense. When a multitude had been converted on the Day of Pentecost, and asked, "Men and brethren, What shall we do?" St. Peter's immediate answer was, "Repent, and be baptized every one of you" [Acts ii. 38]; and the same day there were added to the little flock which then made up Christ's mystical Body about three thousand souls. When the people at Samaria "believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women" [Acts viii. 12]. So it is recorded of the eunuch, Saul, the household of Cornelius, the household of Lydia, the Philippian gaoler "and all his," the household of Stephanas, and many others, that they were baptized according to our Lord's commands as soon as they had been converted to belief in Him: and the cases recorded furnish evidence sufficient to give us a moral certainty that the Apostles universally baptized, or caused to be baptized all, in every place, who desired to be added to the Church.

§ Administration of Baptism in the Primitive Church.

Of the manner in which the Sacrament of Baptism was administered in the Apostolic age we have no detailed record beyond the fact that it was ordinarily by immersion, and that the invocation of the Blessed Trinity accompanied the immersion. St. Paul twice speaks of being "buried in baptism" [Rom. vi. 4. Col. ii. 12], and St. Chrysostom uses the expression "a certain burial in water" [Hom. in Johan. xxv.] with an evident reference of the Apostle's words to the act of immersion in baptism. Shortly after the time of the Apostles, Tertullian describes the rites of Baptism in general terms as follows:—"To begin with Baptism, . . . we do in the Church testify, under the hand of a chief minister, that we renounce the Devil, his pomps, and his angels. Then are we thrice dipped," or, as in another place, "we dip not once but thrice, at the naming of each Person of the Blessed Trinity . . . pledging ourselves to something more than the Lord hath prescribed in the Gospel. . . . After this, having come out from the bath, we are anointed thoroughly with a blessed unction . . . next to this the hand is laid upon us, calling upon and inviting the Holy Spirit through the blessing . . . some undertaking the charge of us, we first taste a mixture of honey and milk, and from that day we abstain a whole week from our daily washing" [Tertull. de Coron. v. 3, adv. Prax. xxvi., de Bapt. vii. and viii.]. From St. Cyprian, in the following century, we learn that the water was "first cleansed and sanctified by the priest" (or Bishop), "that it may be able, by Baptism therein, to wash away the sins of the baptized:" and that interrogatories were used, "Dost thou believe in eternal life, and remission of sins through the holy Church?" [Cyp. Ep. xlix. 6; lxx. 1, 2.] In the latter half of the fourth century St. Cyril of Jerusalem gave his lectures on the Mysteries to the recently baptized; and the first three being on the rites before and after Baptism, we may gather in some detail what was the custom of the Church in that day. "First ye entered into the outer hall of the Baptistery, and there facing towards the West ye heard the command to stretch forth your hand; and as in the presence of Satan ye renounced him . . . with arm outstretched to say to him as though actually present,

'I renounce thee, Satan, and all thy works, and all thy pomp, and all thy service.' Then thou wert told to say, 'I believe in the Father, and in the Son, and in the Holy Ghost, and in one Baptism of repentance.' And these things were done in the outer chamber. As soon as ye entered into the inner chamber, ye put off your garment, and this was an image of putting off the old man with his deeds. Then when ye were unclothed, ye were anointed with exorcised oil from the very hairs of your head to your feet, and were made partakers of the good olive-tree, Jesus Christ. After these things, ye were led to the holy pool of Divine Baptism, as Christ was carried from the Cross to the Sepulchre, which is before our eyes<sup>2</sup>. And each of you was asked whether ye believed in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, and ye made that saving confession, and descended three times into the water, and ascended again; here also covertly pointing by a figure to the three days' burial of Christ . . . And at the selfsame moment ye died and were born; and that water of salvation was at once your grave and your mother. After you had come up from the pool of the sacred streams the unction was given, the emblem of that wherewith Christ was anointed. This holy ointment . . . is symbolically applied to thy forehead and thy other senses; and while thy body is anointed with visible ointment, thy soul is sanctified by the Holy and Life-giving Spirit. And ye were first anointed on your forehead . . . then on your ears . . . then on your nostrils . . . then on your breast. When ye are counted worthy of this holy Chrism ye are called Christians, verifying also the name by your new birth" [Cyril, Catech. Lect. xix. xx. xxi.]. To these early customs of the Church it may be added that white garments were worn by the newly baptized for eight days or more after their Baptism<sup>3</sup> [Ibid. iii. 16; xxii. 8], and that a new name was given, as Peter and Paul received new names on their conversion, whose names, with that of St. John, were "used by many among the faithful" [Euseb. vii. 25].

The earliest Baptismal Office that has been handed down to modern times is that contained in the Sacramentaries of Gelasius and St. Gregory; of which the following summary (taken from the Easter-Eve Service of the latter) will give a sufficient view<sup>4</sup>.

§ Administration of Baptism in the Sixth Century.

[1] The clergy and people being assembled in the church at the eighth hour [2 P.M.], the clergy went within the sacrum, having on the customary vestments; and two tapers being lighted, and held at each corner of the altar by two notaries or readers, another reader went up to the ambon, and read eight Lessons concerning the creation of man, the temptation of Abraham, and other appropriate subjects from Exodus, Isaiah, and Jonah,—after each of which was said a Collect founded on the preceding lesson; and before the last Collect was sung, "Like as the hart desireth the waterbrooks," &c.

[2] A procession was formed from the altar "ad fontes," the "school" or quire singing the "Litania septena"; the taper-bearers, and a minister carrying the ampulla of consecrated oil, going before the Bishop, who was supported by a Deacon on either side.

[3] The prayers for the Benediction of the font were said by the bishop, who, at a particular part of them, divided the water with his hand in the form of a cross; at a second, held the taper in the water; and, at a third, breathed on the water thrice, afterwards pouring in the chrism in the form of a cross, and spreading it with his hands<sup>5</sup>.

<sup>2</sup> This was said in Jerusalem.

<sup>3</sup> See Notes to the 1st Sunday after Easter, p. 107.

<sup>4</sup> The admission as Catechumens of those who were afterwards to be baptized took place as a separate ceremony some time previously. It has not been thought necessary to give any account of this service above, as, although incorporated with that for Baptism in later times and in our own office, it was really a separate rite.

<sup>5</sup> See some notice of the Litania Septena, and the analogous Litania Septiformis, at p. 47. Menard [Notes 91] seems to consider that these were identical, but the Litania Septena was probably sung by those only who were in Holy or in Minor Orders.

<sup>6</sup> St. Augustine notices the custom of signing the water with the cross in his 118th Homily on St. John. and in his 181st Sermon de Tempore.

<sup>1</sup> The Institution of the Sacrament of Baptism is not to be looked for in an exemplary action of our Lord, as in the case of the other Sacrament; for we are expressly told that our Lord did not baptize. [John iv. 2.] The view taken above is substantially that of the ancient handbook of the Clergy, the Pupilla Oculi, in which is the following passage:—"Baptismus Christi fuit institutus materialiter et inchoative; quando Christus tactu suæ mundissimæ carnis vim regenerativam aquis contulit. Præceptive; quando dixit Nichodemus, nisi quis renatus &c. Effective; quando Christus passus est in cruce Usus fuit inchoatus; quando misit discipulos suos ad prædicandum et baptizandum. Promulgatus ad omnes; post passionem, Matthæi ult." [Pupil. Oculi iii. 24.]

[4] When the benediction of the water was ended, the "infants" were baptized, first the boys and then the girls; the Interrogatories being first made of those who brought them in the following form:—"Quis vocaris? Resp. Ill. Item interrogat Sacerdos: Credis in Deum Patrem Omnipotentem, Creatorem cœli et terræ? Resp. Credo. Interrogat: Et in Jesum Christum Filium ejus unicum Dominum nostrum, natum et passum? Resp. Credo. Interrogat: Credis et in Spiritum Sanctum, Sanctam Ecclesiam Catholicam, Sanctorum Communionem, remissionem peccatorum, carnis resurrectionem, vitam æternam? Resp. Credo. Interrogat: Vis baptizari? Resp. Volo: Et dicit. Et ego baptizo te in nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti." Then when the newly baptized was taken from the font he was given to one of the priests, who made the sign of the cross upon the crown of his head with the chrism, saying, "Almighty God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Who hath regenerated thee by water and the Holy Ghost, and hath also given to thee remission of all thy sins, anoint thee with the chrism of salvation unto eternal life. Amen<sup>1</sup>." After this the baptized infants and adults were confirmed by the Bishop, the names being given by him during the act of Confirmation; and the service was ended with the Holy Communion.

The mediæval Offices for Baptism were founded on this ancient and perhaps primitive one; but several ceremonies were added, and the offices were much increased in length. They were divided into three distinct parts, the first of which was entitled, "Ordo ad faciendum Catechumenum;" the second, "Benedictio Fontis;" and the third, "Ritus Baptizandi." Those of the Salisbury Use are partly represented in the right-hand column and in the foot-notes of the following pages, but it may be useful to give a summary, showing the exact order of their several parts, and the ceremonies with which the sacrament was administered.

§ The Administration of Baptism in the Mediæval Church of England.

α] Admission of a Catechumen.

[1] The child being held without the doors of the church, the priest made the sign of the Cross upon its forehead and breast, saying, "I place the sign of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ on thy forehead . . . and on thy breast." Then he placed his hand upon the head of the child, while he offered a prayer, beseeching God to open to it the door of His mercy, and grant it the grace of Baptism.

[2] Salt, over which an exorcism had been said, was placed in the mouth of the child with the words, "N. Receive the salt of wisdom, that God may be gracious to thee unto life everlasting. Amen." This was followed by a prayer that God would send His holy angel to take care of His servant N., and bring him to the grace of Baptism.

[3] An exorcism and adjuration of Satan to forsake the child was then said; followed by another signing with the cross, and a prayer that the child might be turned from darkness to light, and made fit to receive Baptism.

[4] The Gospel was then read.

[5] The ears and nostrils of the child were touched with saliva.

[6] The Lord's Prayer, Hail Mary, and Creed, were said by the priest, sponsors, and congregation.

[7] The child was again signed with the cross, the words "Trado tibi signaculum," &c. being said; and afterwards the priest, taking him by the right hand, led him within the church, saying, "Enter thou into the house of God: that thou mayest have eternal life, and live for ever and ever. Amen."

β] Benediction of the Font.

[1] A Litany was said, similar to that in ordinary use, as far as the end of the Invocations.

[2] The Benediction followed, with similar prayers and ceremonies to those of the Gregorian Sacramentary.

γ] The Baptism.

[1] The child being brought to the font, the priest placed his right hand upon him, asked his name, and made the interrogatories of abrenunciation.

[2] The priest anointed the child with chrism, in the form of a cross, on the breast and between the shoulders.

[3] Then followed the profession of faith, and the "Quid petis?" and "Vis baptizari?"

[4] The act of Baptism followed, with trine immersion, as shown further on in the service itself.

[5] This was followed by the signing with the cross, as in the Gregorian Office.

[6] The chrism, or white vestment, was put upon the child with the words, "N. Receive a white, holy, and spotless vesture, which thou shalt bear before the judgment-seat of our Lord Jesus Christ, that thou mayest have eternal life, and live for ever and ever. Amen."

[7] A lighted taper was placed in the hand of the child, with the words, "N. Receive a burning light that cannot be taken out of thy hand: guard thy baptism, keep the commandments, that when the Lord shall come to the wedding, thou mayest be able to meet Him in company with His saints in the heavenly bride-chamber; that thou mayest have eternal life, and live for ever and ever. Amen."

The changes made in the above Office in 1549 were not very great, but considerable alterations were made in 1552, and all the ancient ceremonies have now disappeared from the English Service except the signing with the cross. It is scarcely necessary to add that these ceremonies are no part of the essentials of Holy Baptism, and that so much popular superstition had grown up around them as to make their abolition appear desirable to those who reconstructed the Offices of the Church of England<sup>2</sup>. The successive alterations which were made will be found in the notes to the various parts of the services for the Public and Private Baptism of Infants. The Office for the Baptism of Adults was an addition of 1661.

§ The Essentials of Holy Baptism.

The words of our Lord to the Apostles seem so clear as to place beyond a doubt what is essential to a true Christian Baptism: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost" [Matt. xxviii. 19]. Yet questions have arisen, from very early ages, as to the matter and form with which the Sacrament is to be administered, and also as to the person by whom it is to be administered. Tertullian, in the opening of his treatise on Baptism, speaks of a sect which denied the necessity of water in Baptism [Tertull. de Bapt. i.]; and St. Augustine refers to the rejection of water because created by the evil one, and therefore in itself evil, as one of the heresies of the Manicheans. [Aug. de Hæres. xlv.] In the twelfth century, the Cathari, or Puritans,

<sup>2</sup> At the end of the Office a Gospel was inserted [Mark ix. 17-29], which was to be used, if desired, for the prevention of the falling sickness,—"quia secundum doctores maxime valet pro morbo caduco"

There is, however, a touching anecdote on record which seems to indicate that, like some other changes, these were forced upon the Convocation by considerations of expediency rather than principle. During the reign of Queen Mary, a Mrs. Hickman, whose husband had fled out of the country, "was sent down to a gentleman's house in Oxfordshire for her approaching confinement, as she was not able to bear the voyage to Germany. But when her child was born she was in a dilemma about the baptism, not liking to have it baptized by a 'Romish priest' according to the ritual then of late restored. So she contrived to send a message to the Bishops then in prison at Oxford to know what she should do, and their answer was, that she might safely employ the priest, for that 'the Service for Holy Baptism was of all the Services, that in which the Church of Rome had least departed from the truth of the Gospel and the primitive practice.'" This anecdote is given in Massingberd's Lectures on the Prayer Book, p. 123, from the leaves of a copy of Beza's New Testament, belonging to a descendant of the family. The testimony is valuable, as two of the imprisoned Bishops, Cranmer and Ridley, were connected with every step taken in the Reformation of the ancient Offices.

<sup>1</sup> This prayer is found at an earlier date, in the fourth century. See St. Amrose de Myst., iii. 7.

denied the necessity of the Sacrament altogether, but adopted a ceremony which they called baptism with fire, as a substitute for that with water. The Waldenses also regarded water as unnecessary to a spiritual baptism; and the Flagellants of Germany, Poland, Hungary, and France, held that the only true baptism was one in blood, effected by scourging the body. With respect to the form of words in which the person is to be baptized, it is sufficiently evident that all who have rejected the doctrine of the Blessed Trinity must necessarily have modified and adapted to their own principles the words used by the Church, if they continued to administer a rite in imitation of Christian Baptism. The Arian form is given by St. Jerome [cont. Lucif.], and the Eunomian by Epiphanius [Hæres. lxxvi.]; but both are too irreverent towards the second and third Persons of the Holy Trinity to be set down here.

Such practices gave rise to strict definitions on the part of the Church, which are represented by the questions in our Office for Private Baptism of Children: "Because some things essential to this Sacrament may happen to be omitted through fear or haste, in such times of extremity; therefore I demand further of you,

"With what matter was this child baptized?"

"With what words was this child baptized?"

In the first rubric of the Office for Public Baptism, also, the font is directed to be filled with "pure water;" and in the Catechism "the outward visible sign or form of Baptism" is clearly stated to be "Water; wherein the person is baptized In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." Such distinct language being used by the Church of England, it may also be well to add that which was used by the Council of Trent: "If any one shall say, that true and natural water is not of necessity for Baptism, and, on that account, shall wrest to some sort of metaphor those words of our Lord Jesus Christ, 'Except a man be born of water and of the Holy Ghost,' let him be anathema." [Sess. vii. Can. ii. de Bapt.] It may also be added that cases of necessity have occasionally arisen, in which pure water was not at hand for the purpose of baptism, when wine, or even sand, has been used as the element or material of Baptism: but sound theologians have always ruled that this ceremony could not be a true and valid administration of the Sacrament. Such cases of emergency may arise, even in the present day, among missionaries; and it is therefore well to point out this general consent of the Church to take our Lord's words in their literal sense, "baptizing them with water," and to follow literally the practice of His Apostles as recorded several times in the New Testament. [Acts viii. 36; x. 46. 1 Pet. iii. 20. Cf. also Ezek. xxxvi. 25.]

The form of words used by the Church of England is that which is used by the whole Western Church, and that which has been so used from time immemorial. In the Eastern Church a similar form is used, but in the third person, and with a passive verb: "The servant of God, N., is baptized in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." The essential part of the form is the distinct mention of each Person of the Blessed Trinity with reference to the act of Baptism; and both East and West therefore agree in naming (1) the person, (2) the act of Baptism, and (3) the three several Persons of the Holy Trinity. The most ancient records of the Church point to the Western form, as shown in the citation made above from the Sacramentary of St. Gregory, and this form differs from the Eastern in also naming the person baptizing, "I baptize thee:" but it may be considered that this is included in the Eastern form, since the statement that the person "is baptized" comprehends elliptically the words "by me, who am now performing the act, and speaking the words." Such an explanation of the Eastern form cannot, however, justify any, the slightest, departure from the other in the Church of England<sup>1</sup>.

The original mode of administering Holy Baptism was undoubtedly by the descent of the person to be baptized into a stream or pool of water. It is probable that the person baptizing also stood in the water [Acts viii. 38], and poured some of it with his hand upon the head of the other, as the latter bowed himself three times (at the naming of each Person of the Trinity by the baptizer) into the stream. St. Paul gave a beautiful symbolical meaning to this practice of immersion, when he said, "We are buried with Him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life" [Rom. vi. 4]. When fonts were made in churches, they were made with a descent of seven steps, symbolizing the sevenfold gift bestowed by the Holy Ghost [Isidore de Ecc. Off. ii. 24]; and this implies a considerable depth of water, reaching to about the waist of an ordinary-sized man. The practice of trine immersion also appears to be of primitive origin. It is mentioned by Tertullian, and other early Fathers, in passages already quoted; and also by St. Ambrose, in his Treatise on the Sacraments; St. Basil, in his work on the Holy Spirit; and St. Leo, in his fourth Epistle: and all give substantially the same account of the practice with that given by St. Ambrose: "Thou wast asked, Dost thou believe in God the Father Almighty? Thou didst answer, I believe, and didst dip into the water, that is, thou wast buried. Again wast thou asked: Dost thou believe in Jesus Christ our Lord, and in His Cross? Thou didst answer, I believe, and didst dip into the water: therefore also thou wast buried with Christ: for whosoever is buried with Christ, shall rise again with Christ. A third time wast thou asked: Dost thou believe in the Holy Ghost? Thou didst reply, I believe; and a third time didst thou dip into the water." The Apostolical Constitutions of the fifth century even forbade the practice of single immersion, decreeing in their fiftieth Canon: "If any bishop or priest does not perform the one initiation with three immersions, but with giving one immersion only into the death of our Lord, let him be deposed. For the Lord said not, Baptize into My death; but, Go—baptizing them in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." Yet there seems to have been an early necessity for guarding against error in the use of this trine immersion, and St. Gregory of Nyssa writes: "We immerse to the Father, that we may be sanctified: we immerse to the Son also to this same end: we immerse also to the Holy Ghost, that we may be that which He is and is called. There is no difference in the sanctification." The practice of immersion, whether trine or single, was not, however, regarded as an essential feature of Baptism. The Philippian gaoler "was baptized, he and all his, straightway," in prison, and in the middle of the night; and immersion in such a case seems extremely improbable. It seems almost equally unlikely in the case of Cornelius and his household. In days of persecution, when Christian rites could only be administered in secret, immersion could not have been universal: and there is abundant evidence that "clinic baptism,"—that is, the baptism of those who were on their death-beds,—was very common in those primitive days. Respecting the usage in the latter case, St. Cyprian wrote to Magnus [A.D. 255] in the following words: "You have inquired also, dearest son, what I think of those who in sickness and debility obtain the grace of God, whether they are to be accounted legitimate Christians, in that they are sprinkled, not washed, with the saving water. . . . I, as far as my poor ability conceiveth, account that the Divine blessings can in no respect be mutilated and weakened, nor any less gift be imparted, where what is drawn from the Divine bounty is accepted with the full and entire faith both of the giver and the receiver. . . . Nor should it disturb any one that the sick seem only to be sprinkled or affused with water, when they attain the grace of the Lord, since Holy Scripture speaks by the Prophet Ezekiel, and says, 'Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be cleansed from all your filthiness, and from all your idols will I cleanse you; a new heart will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you.'" He then goes on to refer also to Numbers xix. 7, 19, 20; viii. 5–7; xix. 9; and adds, "Whence it is apparent that the sprinkling also of water has like force with the saving washing, and that when this is done in the Church," not, i. e., by heretics, "where the faith both of the giver and receiver is entire, all holds good, and is consummated and perfected by the power of the Lord and the truth of faith." [Cyp., Ep. lxi. 11, 12.] The principle thus so plainly set forth by St. Cyprian has ever since been generally accepted by the Church, and ablution, or the actual touch of water during the invocation of the Blessed Trinity, has always been accounted the essential feature in the administration of Holy Baptism. Whether that ablution is effected by the more complete method of immersion, or by the less perfect one of affusion, the result is the same: care being always taken that the actual contact of the water with the person is really effected. And thus the rubric of the English Office leaves it discretionary whether the infants or adults to be baptized shall be dipped in the water, or have water poured upon them; security being provided for the actual contact of the water by the exclusion of mere sprinkling, which is not recognized at all in the Church of England, and can never be considered a safe method of applying the water, or a reverent way of obeying the command of our Blessed Lord, however much it may, as a minimum of obedience, fulfil the required conditions.

<sup>1</sup> It is supposed that the Eastern form was adopted as a standing refutation of the error that the virtue of Baptism was derived from the person ministering it: an error apparently referred to in the words of the Apostle, "Every one of you saith, I am of Paul; and I of Apollos; and I of Cephas; and I of Christ." [1 Cor. i. 12.]

§ The Minister of Baptism.

Having said so much about the matter and form of Holy Baptism, it remains to be considered who is the proper minister of the sacrament.

There can be no doubt that in the first instance our Blessed Lord gave to His Apostles a commission to "baptize all nations," and that such a commission was to be handed on to those who were to take up their work after their deaths, those whom they ordained for that purpose according to the words of their Master, "As My Father hath sent Me, so send I you." Very early in the history of the Apostolic Church also, we find a deacon, Philip, baptizing at Samaria, and the Apostles, St. Peter and St. John, ratifying his act by confirming those whom he had baptized. From this it may be concluded that as the Bishops are the one principal channel through which ministerial authority is conveyed from our Lord, the Fountain of all such authority, to others, so they undoubtedly commissioned inferior ministers to baptize in the very beginning of the Christian Church.

But the question soon arose whether the nature of Holy Baptism was not such as to make a Bishop, Priest, or Deacon, absolutely essential to its right administration; and upon this subject three theories have been held. (1) The first and strictest of these was that maintained by St. Cyprian, who esteemed that Baptism only to be true and effective which is administered by those who have been ordained by orthodox Bishops, and are in communion with the Church. (2) The second theory was much more generally held in the early Church, viz., that even schismatics and heretics could give true Baptism, provided they were in holy orders. (3) A third, and this was that held by St. Augustine, made the essence of the Sacrament to consist in the application of the water with the proper words of Invocation, by whomsoever this was done. The Council of Arles [A.D. 314] decided by their eighth Canon against the first theory, and in favour of the second; a decision practically confirmed by the nineteenth Canon of the Council of Nicea, which directed the re-baptism of those only who had been baptized by the followers of Paul of Samosata, and so not in the Name of the Blessed Trinity. No further decision on the subject was ever given by a General Council, and thus the question still remained open whether those who were not in Holy Orders could, by the proper use of water and the proper Invocation, administer a true Baptism. In ancient times this question was not one of very extensive bearing, as none but the Clergy ever baptized, except in cases where there was danger of death, and no clergyman could be found. But in modern times it has become a matter of primary importance, as a considerable portion of the people of England, and the majority of those born in Protestant countries, are baptized by persons who have never been ordained by Bishops, and who are not therefore either Priests or Deacons in the sense of the Church of England, of Churches of the Roman communion, or of the Eastern Church.

The validity of such Lay Baptism was maintained by Tertullian [de Bapt. xvii.], who however adds that a woman is as much forbidden to baptize as to teach in the Church. It was allowed by the Patriarch of Alexandria in the case of some boys baptized by Athanasius when he himself was a boy. [Rufin. i. 14.] St. Augustine maintained it to be valid, not only in cases of necessity, but under other circumstances also. [Aug. de Bapt. vii. 102, cont. Parmen. ii. 13.] St. Jerome also allowed it in case of necessity; and the Council of Illiberis or Elvira [A.D. 300] decided in its thirty-eighth Canon that no re-baptism was necessary for those who had been baptized in an emergency by laymen, but only that the persons so baptized should be brought to the Bishop for Confirmation, if they should survive. Without citing any further authorities, it may be sufficient to give the emphatic words of Hooker, "Yea, 'Baptism by any man in case of necessity,' was the voice of the whole world heretofore." [Ecc. Polit. V. lxi. 3.] He also affirms in his subsequent argument, that even Baptism by women in case of extreme necessity was valid, and not to be reiterated.

The principle thus laid down has been definitely stated from time to time by English synods from a very early age; and the "Pupilla Oculi," which was a standard book of instructions for the Clergy in the mediæval period, has some exhaustive statements on the subject [ii. 2], which plainly show that it was the practice to recognize Baptism as valid, by whomsoever administered, if given with the proper matter and form of words; which practice undoubtedly continued up to the time of the Reformation. This is, at the same time, shown most clearly and authoritatively by the rubric placed at the end of the Ritus Baptizandi in the Salisbury Manual, which is as follows:—"¶ Notandum est quod quilibet sacerdos parochialis debet parochianis suis formam baptizandi in aqua pura, naturali, et recenti, et non in alio liquore, frequenter in diebus dominicis exponere, ut si necessitas emergat scient parvulos in forma ecclesie baptizare, proferendo formam verborum baptismi in lingua materna, distincte et aperte et solum unica voce, nullo modo iterando verba illa rite semel prolata, vel similia super eundem: sed sine aliqua additione, subtractione, interruptione, verbi pro verbo positione, mutatione, corruptione, seu transpositione sic dicendo: I christene the N. in the name of the Fadir, and of the Sone, and of the Holy Gost. Amen. Vel in lingua latina, sic: Ego baptizo te, N. in nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti. Amen. Aquam super parvulum spargendo, vel in aquam mergendo ter vel saltem semel."

The substantial part of the above rubric was retained in the Book of Common Prayer in the following words:—

"¶ The Pastors and Curates shall oft admonish the people that they defer not . . . And also they shall warn them that without great cause and necessity they baptize not children at home in their houses. And when great need shall compel them so to do, that then they minister it on this fashion. ¶ First, let them that be present call upon God for his grace, and say the Lord's Prayer, if the time will suffer. And then one of them shall name the child, and dip him in the water, or pour water upon him, saying these words: ¶ N. I baptize thee in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen. And let them not doubt, but that the child so baptized is lawfully and sufficiently baptized . . ." After the Hampton Court Conference, in 1603, the above rubric was altered to meet the prejudices of the Puritans, the words "lawful minister" taking the place of "one of them." In 1661, this was further altered to "the Minister of the Parish," and at Bishop Cosin's suggestion was added "(or in his absence, any other lawful Minister that can be procured):" and these successive alterations have been supposed to narrow the theory of the Church of England respecting Baptism, and to restrict its valid administration to Bishops, Priests, and Deacons. But, although these additions and alterations were probably made with the object of checking Lay Baptisms, it cannot be said that they contain any decision against their validity; nor, indeed, can it be supposed, for a moment, that the prudent men who superintended the various revisions of the Prayer Book would have reversed, merely by a rubric, the long-established tenet of the Church of England that Lay Baptisms are in some cases necessary, and are not to be repeated. Moreover, in the questions to be asked by the Clergyman of those who bring a privately-baptized child to the Church to be received, it is expressly stated that the "things essential to this Sacrament" are the "matter" and the "words," no notice being given that the person who performed the ceremony was one of these "things essential" more than those who were present. Lastly, although there were supposed to be about 300,000 persons in England who had been baptized by laymen, at the time when the Clergy were restored to their duties in 1661, no public provision was made by the Church for rebaptizing them, nor does it appear that any doubt whatever was thrown upon the validity of their baptism by those who revised our offices<sup>2</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> Another rubric added this caution: "¶ Non licet laico vel mulieri aliquem baptizare, nisi in articulo necessitatis. Si vero vir et mulier adessent ubi immineret necessitatis articulus baptizandi puerum, et non esset alius minister ad hoc magis idoneus præsens, vir baptizet et non mulier, nisi forte mulier bene sciret verba sacramentalia et non vir, vel aliud impedimentum subesset." But midwives were constantly licensed by the Bishops to baptize in case of necessity [Burn's Ecc. Law, Art. Midwives] down to quite recent times. It may also be added that surgeons frequently baptized children in danger of death at the present day. [Blunt's Directorium Pastorale, p. 156.] In 1584 the Puritans presented a memorial to Archbishop Whitgift, praying, amongst other things, "that all baptizing by midwives and women may from henceforth be inhibited and declared void." The Archbishop replied that the Baptism of even women is lawful and good, "so that the institution of Christ touching the word and element is duly used," and he adds that no learned man ever doubted that such was the case, though some of late by their singularity in some points of religion had given the adversary greater advantage than any thing else could do.

Lay Baptism being thus allowed to be valid in case of necessity, it is yet clear that its validity depends upon the manner of its administration, not upon the reality of the necessity; and hence even if there is no such necessity, it must still be accounted valid, provided the proper matter and form are used. And Baptism by those who have not received Holy Orders (however they may lay claim to ministerial authority) being of this latter class, it must be granted that the question of its validity resolves itself into a question of the actual administration by water and the proper words of the sacrament. No doubt there is much uncertainty respecting this; for many Dissenters attaching little importance to Baptism, it is reasonably to be supposed that they would be sometimes indifferent about exactness in administering it. For cases of doubt the hypothetical form, "If thou art not already baptized," &c., is provided; and by its use an unconscious iteration of Baptism is avoided, while at the same time the certainty of its administration is secured.

It is hardly necessary to add that Lay Baptism should be resorted to only in great extremity; and that when the Sacrament is administered by one who is not ordained without such necessity, the person baptizing is guilty of a great sin, even though his act may bring a blessing to the person baptized. His act cannot be undone, but it ought not to have been done.

§ The Effect of Holy Baptism.

It remains now to speak of the spiritual benefits which result from Holy Baptism to those who duly receive it according to the ordinance of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. They are spoken of in the Offices as "a washing and sanctifying with the Holy Ghost, a deliverance from the wrath of God, a receiving into the ark of Christ's Church, a remission of sins by spiritual regeneration, an embracing with the arms of God's mercy, a gift of the blessing of eternal life, a participation of God's everlasting kingdom, a bestowal of the Holy Spirit, a being born again and made heir of everlasting salvation, a release from sins, a gift of the Kingdom of Heaven and everlasting life, a burial of the old Adam, and raising up of the new man, an enduing with heavenly virtues, a mystical washing away of sin, a regeneration and grafting into the body of Christ's Church, a death unto sin and a living unto righteousness, a putting on of Christ." In the Catechism the effect of Baptism is first stated in the familiar words in which every child replies, that "therein I was made a member of Christ, the child of God, and an inheritor of the kingdom of heaven:" and, secondly, in the definition of the inward and spiritual grace of the Sacrament, where it is described as "a death unto sin, and a new birth unto righteousness: for being by nature born in sin, and the children of wrath, we are hereby made the children of grace."

These blessings and benefits of Holy Baptism, thus set forth with such an overflowing fulness of language, are all comprehensively included in the Scriptural term "Regeneration;" the first use of which recorded in the New Testament is by our Blessed Lord when He said to Nicodemus, "Except a man be born again, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot see, he cannot enter into, the Kingdom of God." [John iii. 3. 5.] This language of our Lord is also that of His Apostles, as of St. Paul: "According to His mercy He saved us by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost, which He shed on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Saviour; that being justified by His grace, we should be made heirs according to the hope of eternal life" [Titus iii. 5-7]: and of St. Peter, "Being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and abideth for ever" [1 Pet. i. 23]. The mode by which God effects this regeneration is a mystery. "We know it," says Dr. Pusey, "in its author, God; in its instrument, Baptism; in its end, salvation, union with Christ, sonship to God, resurrection from the dead, and the life of the world to come." We only know it not, where it does not concern us to know it, in the mode of its operation<sup>3</sup>. But though we do not know the manner in which God effects regeneration by the rite of Baptism, we are able to follow up the language in which the Church has ever been accustomed to speak of Holy Baptism, and to trace out its efficacious operation under the two heads indicated by St. Cyril's words, "at the self-same moment, ye died and were born" [Catech. Lect. xx. 4]; and by our English Catechism in the expression, "a death unto sin, and a new birth unto righteousness."

I. That which is comprehended under the first of these heads, "a death unto sin," is the breaking off from that chain of spiritual relationship between the baptized and Adam, by which they are, first, inheritors of a nature prone to evil rather than good; and, secondly, inheritors of the penalty due to sin.

(1) The inheritance of a fallen nature is not merely an historical circumstance, but a practical power exercising its influence upon those whose nature it is. The moral habit of this fallen nature is among the lowest regions of moral intuition, or conscience, and of moral power. Good is naturally alien to it; evil is naturally its choice. It is, normally, incapable of spiritual perception, for "the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness unto him; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned" [1 Cor. ii. 14]; and hence belief in miracles or sacraments is scarcely possible for those who are wilfully rejecting Baptism, and must always be difficult to the unbaptized, even when their condition arises from no fault of their own. But these characteristics of a fallen nature are removed by Holy Baptism. The nature is new-born; and with new birth come new faculties, such as a higher kind of conscience, faith, and moral strength. It has broken off its bondage to the Fall, has become dead to the strongest and primary influences of it; and receives a tendency to rise towards good and the Author of good rather than to sink towards evil and the Evil One.

<sup>1</sup> It must not be forgotten that "minister" in the Book of Common Prayer means "executor officii," and that if it was used here in that sense, the addition of "lawful" does not by any means of necessity restrict it to a clergyman. The "altius minister ad hoc magis idoneus" of the rubric given in the preceding note, shows that the word "minister" was used even of a lay person in the case of the ministration of Baptism, long before the Reformation.

<sup>2</sup> The judgment of Lord Brougham in Escott v. Mastin goes very fully into the question of Lay Baptism and decides in favour of the Catholic principle.

<sup>3</sup> Scriptural Views of Holy Baptism, p. 23.

(2) There is also conveyed in Baptism a "death unto sin" in respect to the penalty which is its due,—the wrath of God, and the punishment which is an inevitable consequence of that wrath. This is the "remission of sins" which is connected with the "One Baptism" in the Nicene Creed. It is solemnly named to God in the ancient prayer before Confirmation which was said immediately after Baptism in the Primitive Church, and which is still retained in our English Confirmation Service:—"Almighty and ever-living God, who hast vouchsafed to regenerate these Thy servants by water and the Holy Ghost, and hast given unto them forgiveness of all their sins . . ." This remission extends to all actual sin in adults who come with penitence to Holy Baptism, as well as to original sin in all; and is so complete that, although an "infection of original sin" remains even in the regenerate, yet an entirely new life is begun in the favour of God, Who no longer regards the sin of the unregenerate condition in which the baptized person previously was, nor visits him with the punishment which must otherwise have fallen upon him. Hooker speaks of this as "that act of grace which is dispensed to persons at their baptism, or at their entrance into the Church, when they openly professing their faith, and undertaking their Christian duty, God most solemnly and formally doth absolve them from all guilt, and accepteth them to a state of favour with Him." [Serm. on Justification.] In the same manner Bishop Jewell declares in his Defence of the Apology of the Church of England: "We confess, and have evermore taught, that in the Sacrament of Baptism, by the death and blood of Christ, is given remission of all manner of sin, and that not in half, in part, or by way of imagination, or by fancy, but whole, full, and perfect, of all together; so that now, as St. Paul saith, 'there is no condemnation to them that be in Christ Jesus.'" [Def. of Apol. II. xi. 3.] As when Naaman washed in Jordan "his flesh came again like unto the flesh of a little child," so the waters of Baptism effect that cleansing of our fallen nature from the leprosy of sin of which our Lord spoke when He said, "Except ye be converted and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of Heaven" [Matt. xviii. 3].

II. A new birth unto righteousness includes, first, Adoption by God, and, secondly, Union with our Lord Jesus Christ.

(1) In adopting as His children those who were previously alienated from Him, our merciful Father establishes a new relation between Himself and those whom He adopts, giving them a claim to paternal love and the privileges of sonship. This adoption is often called Justification in the New Testament, as where St. Paul says, "According to His mercy He saved us by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost, which He shed on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Saviour; that being justified by His grace, we should be made heirs according to the hope of eternal life." [Tit. iii. 5—7.] God is the efficient cause of this justification; our Lord Jesus Christ is the meritorious cause of it; and Holy Baptism is the instrumental cause of it. And when God, for the sake of Christ's merits, and by the instrument of Baptism, has thus made them "heirs of eternal life," His children are entitled (through His free gift, and not by their deservings) to assisting grace by which they may be enabled to do His will while they are in a state of probation; and to that everlasting life which He has promised to those who are faithful and steadfast, when their state of probation is ended.

(2) A mystical union is effected in Baptism, by some unintelligible and supernatural operation, between the baptized and our Lord Jesus Christ. They are united to the Body and Soul of His human nature, and since that is inseparable from the Godhead, they are also through it united to His Divine Nature. By means of the union thus effected with the Person of their Mediator, they receive through Him the Divine gift of grace to which the Father's mercy entitles them. That grace is an active principle working in them to mould them to the pattern of Him of Whom they have become members. By it they are enabled both to know and to do the will of God; and a moral perfection of which the natural life is not capable becomes easy in the Christian life through this co-operating power of Christ. Through the same grace is derived an illumination of the mind by which it is enabled to grasp the knowledge of Divine truth, and in faith to receive those mysteries which are at present beyond the power of even an illuminated Christian understanding; they who wash at the Divine command, "come again seeing." And, lastly, this union with Christ through Baptism plants the germ of eternal life in the nature of the baptized person, restoring an immortality that was lost by the Fall; and reopening the Vision of God to the eyes of man.

Thus, then, the effect of Holy Baptism may be once more summed up in the words of the Apostle, "Know ye not that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into His death? Therefore we are buried with Him by baptism into death; that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. For if we have been planted together in the likeness of His death, we shall be also in the likeness of His resurrection . . . Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord." [Rom. vi. 4—11.]

THE MINISTRATION OF PUBLIC BAPTISM OF INFANTS, TO BE USED IN THE CHURCH.

¶ The people are to be admonished, that it is most convenient that Baptism should not be administered but upon Sundays, and other Holy-days, when the most number of people come together; as well for that the Congregation there present may testify the receiving of them that be newly baptized into the number of Christ's Church; as also because in the Baptism of Infants every Man present may be put in remembrance of his own profession made to God in his Baptism. For

BAPTISMUS PUERORUM.

[ORDO AD FACIENDUM CATECHUMENUM.

BENEDICTIO FONTIS.

RITUS BAPTIZANDI.]

Salisbury Use.

..... the Pastors shall warn the people that ..... they bring their children to be baptized at those hours, when, after the custom, the people resort together, to hear the Lord's word.

Daye's transl. of Herman's Con-
sult. A.D. 1547.

THE TITLE AND INTRODUCTORY RUBRICS.

Public Baptism . . . . to be used in the Church] The administration of Holy Baptism has always been, from the very beginning, a public ceremony, except in cases of urgency: not because publicity is in any way essential to the efficacy of the Sacrament, but that it might be given in the face of the Church. One of the Rubrics at the end of the ancient office for Baptism in the Church of England is as follows:—"¶ Non licet aliquem baptizare in aula, camera, vel aliquo loco privato, sed duntaxat in ecclesiis in quibus sunt fontes ad hoc specialiter ordinati, nisi fuerit filius regis vel principis, aut talis necessitas emergerit propter quam ad ecclesiam accessus absque periculo haberi non potest." In 1552 the word "Public" was expunged from the title of this Office, but it was restored in 1661.

Infants] Baptism has been given to Infants from the time of its first institution. No direct record of the custom of the Apostles is contained in Holy Scripture, but the fact that they baptized whole households is indirect evidence that the Sacrament was not denied to children. Our Lord's act and words in blessing little children, and requiring the disciples to suffer them to come to Him and not to forbid them, is the strongest testimony that could be given short of the connexion of this command with the actual rite of Baptism, of His will on the subject. About A.D. 148, Justin Martyr writes, that there were in his time "many of both sexes, some sixty and some seventy years old, who had been made disciples to Christ from their infancy;" and Irenæus, not long after, speaks distinctly of "infants and little children, and boys and young men and old men," all being alike new born to God by Holy Baptism [adv. Hæres. ii. 22, al. 38]. St. Cyprian, writing to Fidus [Ep. lxiv.], says, "We all judge that the mercy and grace of God is to be denied to none born of man," and the Epistle is written to contradict the opinion of Fidus, that infants ought not to be baptized until they are eight days old, St. Cyprian declaring that no infant can be too young to be baptized. St. Augustine speaks of "infants baptized in Christ," and says, "In babes born and not yet baptized, let Adam be acknowledged; in babes born and baptized, and thereby born again, let Christ be acknowledged." "Infants too," he writes in another place, "are carried to the Church; for if they cannot run thither on their feet, they run with the feet of others, that they may be healed . . . . . If when infants are carried, they are said to have no birth-sin at all, and they come to Christ; why is it not said in the Church to those who bring them?—'Away with these innocents hence; they that are whole need not a physician, but they that are sick; Christ came not to call the righteous, but sinners.' It was never so said; nay, nor ever will it be so said." [Ang. Sermon 174 and 176, Ben., 124 and 126, Oxf. transl.] In the primitive Office for Baptism, which is noticed in the previous Introduction, "infants" are distinctly mentioned; and the twenty-seventh Article of Religion testifies to the ancient practice of our own Church, when it says, "The Baptism of young children is in any wise to be retained in the Church, as most agreeable with the institution of Christ."

The necessity of Holy Baptism to salvation is so urgent, and the blessings conferred by it so great, that Infants should be brought to the font as early as possible. Baptism is often delayed until the mother is able to be present with her child; but however pleasing this may be to her feelings, such a delay is very undesirable, for the spirit in which children are brought to Baptism should be that in which our Lord vouchsafed to come to Circumcision,—“I made haste, and delayed not, to keep Thy commandments.” The Rubric at the commencement of the Office for Private Baptism, plainly shows the mind of the Church on this subject: “The Curates of every Parish shall often admonish the people, that they defer not the Baptism of their children longer than the first or second Sunday next after their birth, or other holy-day falling between, unless upon a great and reasonable cause, to be approved by the Curate.”

THE INTRODUCTORY RUBRICS.

Sundays, and other Holy-days] In the Primitive Church the seasons of Epiphany, Easter, and Pentecost were those at which Baptism was administered, except urgent necessity required its administration at other times; and the two latter were the times which cause also it is expedient that Baptism be ministered in the vulgar tongue. Nevertheless (if necessity so require), Children may be baptized upon any other day.

¶ And note, that there shall be for every Male-child to be baptized two Godfathers and one Godmother; and for every Female, one Godfather and two Godmothers.

¶ When there are Children to be baptized, the Parents shall give knowledge thereof over night, or in the morning before the beginning of Morning Prayer, to the Curate. And then the Godfathers and Godmothers, and principally used in the Western Church. The third Canon of the Council of Maçon [A.D. 585] forbids Baptism at any other time than Easter, meaning probably the whole season between Easter Eve and Whitsuntide, and many mediæval councils repeat the injunction. One of the Rubrics of the Salisbury Manual is as follows:—"¶ Solemnis baptismus celebrari solet in Sabbato sancto Paschæ et in vigilia Pentecostes, et ideo pueri nati infra octo dies ante Pascha, vel infra octo dies ante Pentecosten, debent reservari ad baptizandum in Sabbato sancto Paschæ vel in vigilia Pentecostes, si commode et sine periculo valeant reservari." From 1549 to 1661 the following rubrical Introduction, taken from Hermann's Consultation, stood before the Offices for Baptism, but the present Rubric was substituted in the latter year:—"It appeareth by ancient writers, that the Sacrament of Baptism in the old time was not commonly ministered but at two times in the year, at Easter and Whitsuntide; at which times it was openly ministered in the presence of all the congregation: which custom (now being grown out of use), although it cannot for many considerations be well restored again, yet it is thought good to follow the same as near as conveniently may be<sup>1</sup>. Wherefore the people are to be admonished, that it is most convenient that Baptism should not be ministered, but upon Sundays and other holy-days, when the most number of people may come together: as well for that the congregation there present may testify the receiving of them that be newly baptized into the number of Christ's Church; as also because in the baptism of infants every man present may be put in remembrance of his own profession made to God in his baptism. For which cause also it is expedient that baptism be ministered in the English tongue. Nevertheless (if necessity so require), children ought at all times to be baptized either at the Church or else at home." But the tendency of the Rubrics, in later times, has been that indicated in the last note: and additional facilities were offered to the people for the Public Baptism of their children in Church, with the intention, probably, of discouraging lay-baptisms at their own houses.

In primo deferatur infans ad valvas ecclesiæ, Salisbury Use. et inquirat Sacerdos ab obstetrice, utrum sit Ad faciend. infans masculus an femina. Deinde, si in- Catechum. fans fuerit baptizatus domi: et quo nomine vocari debeat . . . . . Masculus autem

It should be clearly understood also that the facilities offered for Public Baptism are extended to every Sunday and Holy-day by an express Canon of the Church, and do not depend only on the construction to be put upon the Rubric. It is as follows:—

"Canon 68.

"Ministers not to refuse to Christen or Bury.

"No Minister shall refuse or delay to christen any child according to the form of the Book of Common Prayer that is brought to the Church to him upon Sundays or Holy-days, to be christened, or to bury any corpse that is brought to the Church or Churchyard, convenient warning being given him thereof before, in such manner and form as is prescribed in the said Book of Common Prayer. And if he shall refuse to christen the one, or bury the other (except the party deceased were denounced excommunicated majori excommunicatione, for some grievous and notorious crime, and no man able to testify of his repentance), he shall be suspended by the Bishop of the diocese from his ministry by the space of three months."

In interpreting this Canon, due regard must be paid to the expression, "according to the form of the Book of Common Prayer," since this "form" limits the time of Baptism to "after the last lesson" at Morning or Evening Prayer, and the clergyman would not be bound to baptize a child brought to the Church at a later time of the service, or when there is neither Mattins nor Evensong. "Convenient warning" has also been defined as being "warning of the intention to bring," and reasonably means at least the evening before, as in the rubric.

And note . . . two Godfathers and one Godmother] The Rubric on this subject, at the end of our ancient baptismal office, is as follows:—"Non plures quam unus vir et una mulier debent accedere ad suscipiendum parvulum de sacro fonte: unde plures ad hoc simul accedentes peccant faciendo contra prohibitionem canonis, nisi alia fuerit consuetudo approbata: tamen ultra tres amplius ad hoc nullatenus recipiantur." Yet in a Legatine Council, held at York by Hubert, Archbishop of Canterbury, in 1195, and in a Constitution of Edmund, Archbishop of Canterbury in 1236, there is a provision exactly similar to that in our present Rubric: "Ad levandum vero puerum de fonte, tres ad plus recipiantur; videlicet in baptismo maris duo mares et una femina; in baptismo feminae, duæ feminae, et unus masculus; quod enim amplius est a malo est." [Gibson's Codex, 439.] The primitive practice of the Church appears to have been identical with that of the Eastern and the Latin Church at present, in which only one Sponsor is required, although two are permitted. [Duty of Parish Priests, iii. 10; Conc. Trident. xxiv. 2.] In the ancient English exhortation, printed at the end of this Office, it will be seen, that one Godfather and one Godmother are named: and it may be doubted whether three Sponsors were ever actually required until 1661, when the present Rubric was inserted by Bishop Cosin. The twenty-ninth Canon forbids parents to be sponsors for their own children, and in this follows the old Rubric: "¶ Similiter pater vel mater non debet proprium filium de sacro fonte levare . . . .," but this Canon was altered by the Convocation of Canterbury in 1865, and the prohibition scarcely holds now. This change practically reduces the number of sponsors to one again, as the father and mother are already responsible, in the highest degree, as Christian parents: but it would be well for the spirit of the ancient rule to be carried out by some one who is not the parent taking the baptized child from the hands of the priest who has baptized it<sup>2</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> In Cranmer's answer to the Devonshire rebels, he speaks of the consecration of the font at Easter and Whitsuntide as having become an unmeaning ceremony, for "except it were by chance, none were baptized, but all were baptized before." Strype's Memorials of Cranmer, ii. 533. Eccl. Hist. Soc. The custom of blessing the fonts on Easter Eve sprung out of the primitive usage, which also restricted this benediction to the Bishop.

<sup>2</sup> The above rubric ends: "nec baptizare, nisi in extrema necessitate articulo, tunc enim bene possunt sine præjudicio copulæ conjugatis ipsam

the people with the Children, must be ready at the Font, either immediately after the last Lesson at Morning Prayer, or else immediately after the last Lesson at Evening Prayer, as the Curate by his discretion shall appoint. And the Priest coming to the Font (which is then to be filled with pure Water), and standing there shall say,

Eph. iv. 5.

HATH this Child been already baptized, or no?

¶ If they answer, No: Then shall the Priest proceed as followeth.

Job xiv. 4. xxv.
4.
Ps. li. 5.
John iii. 6. xiv.
6.

DEARLY beloved, forasmuch as all men are conceived and born in sin; and that our Saviour Christ

statuetur a dextris Sacerdotis: mulier vero a sinistris.

BELOVED in Christ Jesu, we hear Daye's transl. of Herrnan's Con suit., A.D. 1547. daily out of the word of God and learn by our own experience; that immediately after the last Lesson] In the Primitive Church it was the custom to confirm Infants as soon as they were baptized, and then to administer to them a small particle of the consecrated bread moistened with the consecrated wine. Hence Baptism was administered (as may be seen by the ancient Sacramentary of St. Gregory) immediately before the celebration of the Holy Eucharist. This was probably the custom also in the mediæval Church: and in Daye's translation of Archbishop Hermann's book [A.D. 1547] are the words, "Our mind is that the handling of the Sacrament of Christ's body and blood, called Eucharistia, may be joined with Baptism, and that they which bring the Infants to Baptism may use the body and blood of our Lord Jesus Christ after the manner and institution of the Primitive Church<sup>1</sup>." In the Prayer Book of 1549, the times appointed for Baptism were "either immediately afore the last Canticle at Mattins, or else immediately afore the last Canticle at Evensong," as by the present Rubric.

And the Priest coming to the Font] In the Prayer Book of 1549 the sponsors were directed to be ready at the church door, where the priest came to them, and said the first part of the service as far as the Exhortation before the Interrogatories. This Rubric and benediction followed: "¶ Then let the Priest take one of the children by the right hand, the other being brought after him. And coming into the Church toward the font, say, The Lord vouchsafe to receive you into His holy household, and to keep and govern you always in the same, that you may have everlasting life. Amen." This usage was dropped in 1552. In 1661 the Presbyterians wished the font to "be so placed as all the congregation may best see and hear the whole administration;" but the Bishops replied, "The font usually stands, as it did in primitive times, at or near the Church door, to signify that Baptism was the entrance into the Church mystical: 'we are all baptized into one body' [1 Cor. xii. 12], and the people may hear well enough." A large stone font, actually filled with pure water, and having a drain by which the blessed water may be let off after the Baptism, is plainly contemplated by the Rubric, and is directly enjoined by the eighty-first Canon. Some decorous vessel should be provided for bringing the water to the font, so as to avoid the use of an ordinary domestic pail or can. The ancient Salisbury Rubric is instructive: "¶ Presbyter autem si poterit semper habeat fontem lapideum, integrum, et honestum, ad baptizan- dum: si autem nequiverit, habeat vas conveniens ad baptismum quod aliis usibus nullatenus deputetur, nec extra ecclesiam deportetur."

THE INTRODUCTORY SERVICE.

The ancient division of the Baptismal Office into three parts is still to be clearly traced, as will be seen from the subsequent notes, and marginal references in the right-hand column. The Introductory portion answers to the Admission of a Catechumen; and extends as far as the end of the Collect which precedes the exhortation to the Godfathers and Godmothers.

Hath this Child been already baptized, or no?] The actual words of this question were substituted for the rubrical direction, "The Priest shall ask whether the children be baptized or no," in 1661. In Bishop Cosin's Durham Book, the MS. rubric as amended by him stands, "And the Priest, coming to the Font, which is then to be replenished with pure water, and standing there shall say, Hath this child been already baptized or no? Or if there be more, Hath any one of these children? varying the Form only in those words which are requisite to express a difference of the sex or number of the children." The question is one of importance, as, in the words of Hooker, "iteration of Baptism once given hath been always thought a manifest contempt of that ancient apostolic aphorism, 'One Lord, one Faith, one Baptism,' baptism not only one inasmuch as it hath every where the same substance, and offereth unto all men the same grace, but one also for that it ought not to be received by any one man above once" [Ecc. Polit. V. lxii. 4]. This is the unvarying doctrine of the Church, the only diversity of opinion on the subject being in respect to what constitutes true baptism. Care should therefore be used on both sides to secure a distinct answer to this question with respect to every child brought to the font; so as to avoid mistakes and accident through deafness or want of understanding.

If they answer, No:] For the course to be followed in case the contrary answer "Yes" is given, see the notes at the beginning of the Office for Private Baptism.

Dearly beloved, forasmuch as all men] The address which follows, although partly suggested by that in Archbishop Hermann's "Consultation," seems to have been adopted with a knowledge of that in the ancient Baptismal Office of the French Church, which is not unlikely to have been handed down from the time of Polycarp and St. John. The following is a translation:—"Very dear Brethren, let us, in the venerable office of the present mystery, humbly pray our Almighty Creator and Restorer, who deigned to repair, through grace, the glories of our nature, lost through sin, that He will transfuse efficacy into these waters and by the presence of the Majesty of the Trinity, give power to effect the most holy regeneration; that He will break in pieces baptizare, nisi fuerit aliquis alius præsens qui hoc facere sciret et vellet. As parents are the means of transmitting original sin to their offspring [2 Pet. i. 4], the reason of this rule is sufficiently evident. Innocent and holy as the married state is [and ἐπιθymia does not imply sin: cf. Gal. v. 17], yet this should not be overlooked as a reverent reason against any baptism of a child by its father without extreme necessity, and à fortiori against the unseemliness of such a Baptism in the face of the Church.

<sup>1</sup> This partly accounts for the strictness of the 29th Canon in requiring that Sponsors shall be communicants.

Matt. xviii. 19, 20.
Eph. ii. 3.
Acts i. 5.
Tit. iii. 5, 6.
Acts ii. 41, 47.
1 Cor. xii. 12—14.
Rom. vi. 3, 4, 11.

saith, None can enter into the kingdom of God, except he be regenerate and born anew of Water and of the holy Ghost; I beseech you to call upon God the Father, through our Lord Jesus Christ, that of his bounteous mercy he will grant to this Child that thing which by nature he cannot have; that he may be baptized with Water and the holy Ghost, and received into Christ's holy Church, and be made a lively member of the same.

¶ Then shall the Priest say,

Let us pray.

Gen. vi. 13, 17,
18, vii. 21—23.
1 Pet. i. 20, 21.
Exod. xiv. 26—
31.
1 Cor. x. 1, 2.
Matt. iii. 13—17.
Acts xxii. 16.
Mark xvi. 16, x.
13—16.
1 Cor. vi. 11, vii.
14.
Acts ii. 47.
1 Thess. i. 10.
1 Cor. xiii. 13.
1 Pet. v. 9.
Rom. xv. 13.
Col. iii. 14.
John xvi. 33.

ALMIGHTY and everlasting God, who of thy great mercy didst save Noah and his family in the ark from perishing by water; and also didst safely lead the children of Israel thy people through the Red Sea, figuring thereby thy holy Baptism; and by the Baptism of thy well-beloved Son Jesus Christ, in the river Jordan, didst sanctify Water to the all we, from the fall of Adam, are conceived and born in sins . . . .

Let us pray.

Daye's transl. of Herman's Con-
sult., A. D. 1547.

FURTHER, Almighty God, which in old time didst destroy the wicked world with the flood, according to thy terrible judgment, and didst preserve only the family of godly Noah, eight souls, of thy unspeakable mercy: and which also didst drown in the Red Sea obstinate Pharaoh the king of the Egyptians, with all his army and warlike power, and causedst thy people of the head of the dragon upon these waters; and that the debtors being buried with Christ by Baptism, the likeness of death may so take place here, that the perishing may be saved, and death may only be felt in the destruction here on earth through Jesus Christ."

Then shall the Priest say, Let us pray] There is no rubric here directing the position of the Priest or the People: the Durham book, however, shows the practice of the Church. A rubric is there inserted after "Let us pray," "And here all the congregation shall kneel down," which rubric is printed in the Service for "Baptism of such as are of riper years," and therefore defines the position of the people. That of the clergyman has already been defined by the rubric, "The Priest coming to the Font . . . and standing there." Both are confirmed by the rubric following these two prayers, "Then shall the people stand up, and the Priest shall say." The clergyman should not kneel at all during the administration of the Sacrament of Baptism, unless at the Lord's Prayer, when the rubric, "Then shall be said, all kneeling," may possibly include him as well as the people. His standing during the former parts of the Office is in token that he is the minister of God, commissioned authoritatively to give the outward sign by which inward grace is conveyed. The "all kneeling" rubric was added by Bishop Cosin in 1661; and if it includes the Priest, must be taken as intended to show that the authoritative act is over, and that the Minister of God is now the mouth-piece of the people in offering up a humble thanksgiving. It may be added that this thanksgiving does not, as in the case of the Holy Communion, form an essential part of the rite. In that case the Priest stands as still continuing the act of Sacrifice, but here the sacramental act is completed before the child leaves his arms.

Almighty and everlasting God, who] This prayer is not derived from the old Office of the English Church, but is probably of great antiquity. Luther translated it into German from the ancient Latin in 1523, and it appears again in his revised "Baptismal Book" of 1524. From thence it was transferred to the Nuremberg Office, and appears in the "Consultation" of Archbishop Hermann in 1545. The latter was translated into English in 1547, and the prayer as it stands in the Prayer Book of 1549 is almost identical with this translation, as given above.

didst save Noah . . . by water] The type of the deluge was used in two senses in the original, as will be seen above; first, indicating water as a means of destroying evil; and, secondly, as a means of salvation. The first sense was eliminated from the prayer in 1552, as also was the similar passage which spoke of the destruction of Pharaoh: and in its present form the idea of "saving by water" is more strongly expressed than it was previously by "whom . . . thou didst save in the ark." Yet the original twofold sense is to be found in the Gelasian office for Baptism,—"Who, washing away the sins of the world by water, didst in the very outpourings of the deluge, stamp a figure of regeneration; so that through the mystery of one and the same element, there was both an end put to sins, and a source of excellence." The Baptism of the world by the deluge to the cleansing away of its iniquity, and the regenerating it for a new life, is a favourite idea with the ancient fathers<sup>1</sup>.

didst sanctify Water] Every ancient Baptismal Office contains this reference to the effect of our Lord's Baptism in sanctifying the element of water, and yet it is remarkable that no such doctrine is to be found in Holy Scripture. It is one of those venerable religious impressions which pervade the whole Church of Christ, and which, at the same time, cannot be traced up to their origin<sup>2</sup>. The words were objected to by the Presbyterians at the Savoy Conference, but happily the Bishops retained them, with the explanation that the Baptism of Christ was "dedicatio baptismi." Compare this Prayer with that in the Baptism of Adults.

The signing with the Cross which now follows the act of Baptism, took place here in the Prayer Book of 1549, the words used being "N." (the child having been named by the sponsors), "Receive the sign of the holy cross, both in thy forehead and in thy breast, in token that thou shalt not be ashamed . . ." &c.

<sup>1</sup> Scriptural Views of Baptism, 302, n.

<sup>2</sup> The Benediction of the Waters of the Neva in the Russian Church is connected with this tradition.

Rev. vii. 14, 15.
xxii. 3, 14.

mystical washing away of sin; We beseech thee, for thine infinite mercies, that thou wilt mercifully look upon this Child; wash him and sanctify him with the holy Ghost; that he, being delivered from thy wrath, may be received into the ark of Christ's Church; and being stedfast in faith, joyful through hope, and rooted in charity, may so pass the waves of this troublesome world, that finally he may come to the land of everlasting life, there to reign with thee world without end; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Israel to pass over with dry feet, and wouldst shadow in them holy Baptism the laver of regeneration. Furthermore, which didst consecrate Jordan with the Baptism of thy Son Christ Jesu, and other waters to holy dipping, and washing of sins; we pray thee for thy exceeding mercy look favorably upon this infant, give him true faith and thy holy Spirit, that whatsoever filth he hath taken of Adam, it may be drowned, and be put away by this holy flood, that being separated from the number of the ungodly, he may be kept safe in the holy ark of the church, and may confess and sanctify thy name with a lusty and fervent spirit, and serve thy Kingdom with constant trust, and sure hope, that at length he may attain to the promises of eternal life with all the godly. Amen.

1 Tim. vi. 15, 16.
Isa. xxv. 4.
2 Cor. vi. 2.
John xi. 25, 26.
Matt. xviii. 14.
Acts ii. 38, 39.
Tit. iii. 5.
1 Sam. i. 27, 28.
Matt. vii. 7, 8.
Luke xi. 13.
James v. 16.
1 John v. 6—8.
1 Cor. vi. 11.
Rev. i. 5, 6.

ALmighty and immortal God, the aid of all that need, the helper of all that flee to thee for succour, the life of them that believe, and the resurrection of the dead; We call upon thee for this Infant, that he, coming to thy holy Baptism, may receive remission of his sins by spiritual regeneration. Receive him, O Lord, as thou hast promised by thy well-beloved Son, saying, Ask, and ye shall have; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you: So give now unto us that ask; let us that seek find; open the gate unto us that knock; that this Infant may enjoy the everlasting benediction of thy heavenly washing, and may come to the eternal kingdom which thou hast promised by Christ our Lord. Amen.

DEUS, immortale præsidium omnium postulantium, liberatio supplicum, pax rogantium, vita credentium, resurrectio mortuorum: te invoco super hunc famulum tuum N. qui Baptismi tui donum petens, æternam consequi gratiam spirituali regeneratione desiderat. Accipe eum, Domine: et quia dignatus es dicere, petite ac accipietis, quærite et invenietis, pulsate et aperiatur vobis, petenti præmium porrige et januam pande pulsanti: ut æternam cœlestis lavaeri benedictionem consecutus, promissa tui muneris regna percipiat. Qui vivis et regnas cum Deo Patre in unitate Spiritus Sancti Deus, per omnia sæcula sæculorum. Amen.

Salisbury Use.
Ad faciend.
Catechum.

Almighty and immortal God, the aid] This is from the Salisbury Office, where, and in the Prayer Book of 1549, it was associated with the Exorcism. The latter followed the prayer in the first Prayer Book, in this form:

“¶ Then let the Priest, looking upon the children, say,

“I command thee, unclean spirit, in the name of the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, that thou come out and depart from these infants, whom our Lord Jesus Christ hath vouchsafed to call to His holy Baptism, to be made members of His body, and of His holy congregation. Therefore, thou cursed spirit, remember thy sentence, remember thy judgment, remember the day to be at hand wherein thou shalt burn in fire everlasting, prepared for thee and thy angels. And presume not hereafter to exercise any tyranny towards these infants, whom Christ hath bought with His precious blood, and by this His holy baptism calleth to be of His flock.”

This was founded on the ancient exorcism, but was not quite identical with it in the latter part. Both it, and the Dominus vobiscum which followed it, were left out in the revision of 1552. The exorcism seems to have been expunged in deference to the criticism of Bucer, who thought that it pointed to an actual possession of all unbaptized persons, similar to the cases of possession recorded in the Gospel. It was an usage derived from the Primitive Church, and showed a more sensitive appreciation of the actual power and presence of the Evil One than the half-sceptical Germanism of Bucer could understand; but it can hardly be regretted that it is not in our present office.

¶ Then shall the people stand up, and the Priest shall say,

Hear the words of the Gospel, written by Saint Mark, in the tenth Chapter, at the thirteenth Verse.

His dictis, dicat sacerdos,

Dominus vobiscum. Resp. Et cum spiritu tuo. Sequentia sancti Evangelii secundum Matthæum. Resp. Gloria tibi, Domine.

Salisbury Use.
*Ad faciend.
Catechum.*

|          | Modern English. | Salisbury Use. | Modern Roman. | Eastern.      |
|----------|------------------------|-----------------------|----------------------|----------------------|
| EPISTLE. |                        |                       |                      | Rom. vi. 3—12.       |
| GOSPEL.  | Mark x. 13—16.         | Matt. xix. 13—15.     | Matt. xix. 13—15.    | Matt. xxviii. 16—20. |

¶ After the Gospel is read, the Minister shall make this brief Exhortation upon the words of the Gospel.

BELOVED, ye hear in this Gospel the words of our Saviour Christ, that he commanded the children to be brought unto him; how he blamed those that would have kept them from him; how he exhorteth all men to follow their innocency. Ye perceive how by his outward gesture and deed he declared his good will toward them; for he embraced them in his arms, he laid his hands upon them, and blessed them. Doubt ye not therefore, but earnestly believe, that he will likewise favourably receive this present Infant; that he will embrace him with the arms of his mercy; that he will give unto him the blessing of eternal life, and make him partaker of his everlasting kingdom. Wherefore we being thus persuaded of the good will of our heavenly Father towards this Infant, declared by his Son Jesus Christ; and nothing doubting but that he favourably alloweth this charitable work of Matt. xxi. 21, 22.

Mark ix. 23, 24.
Luke xi. 15, 16.
John x. 27, 28.
Eph. v. 20.

Believe these words and this deed of our Lord Jesus Christ upon them, and doubt not but that he will so receive your children also, and embrace them with the arms of his mercy, and give them the blessing of eternal life, and the everlasting communion of the kingdom of God. The same Lord and our Saviour Jesus Christ confirm and increase this your faith. Amen.

Daye's transl. of Herman's Con-
sult., A.D. 1547

Hear the words of the Gospel] The practice of former days at the reading of the Gospel in the Baptismal Office appears to have been identical with that used at the same rite in the Communion Service, for Bishop Cosin inserted the following in his Prayer Book prepared for the Revision of 1661. Before the Gospel, "Here the people shall stand up and say, Glory be to Thee, O Lord:" and after the Gospel, "So endeth the Holy Gospel. Answer. Thanks be to Thee, O Lord." In the ancient Offices these versicles were sometimes inserted, and in some cases (as in our modern one) left out. Reverence and analogy both suggest their use.

The parallel passage from St. Matthew's Gospel was used in some Baptismal Offices (as in those of Beauvais and Remiremont) [Martene de Antiq. Ecc. i. 43] as long as eight hundred years ago, and is probably of as ancient a date in our own Office, although not traceable in the Sacramentaries of the Primitive Church. It was changed for the present Gospel from St. Mark in 1549, perhaps for the sake of the emphatic words of our Lord with which the passage concludes in that Evangelist, and which were a Divine witness against the Anabaptist heresy that infested the Churches of Europe at the time of the Reformation. It was also appointed in Hermann's "Consultation."

Beloved, ye hear in this Gospel] This address, or short homily, was first inserted in 1549, and was evidently founded on that in the Cologne book. In its original form [1549] it ended "and say the prayer which the Lord himself taught. And in declaration of our faith, let us also recite the articles contained in our Creed." The Lord's Prayer and the Creed were then said (according to the ancient custom) by "the Minister, godfathers, godmothers, and people present," before the prayer which now immediately follows the Exhortation. This recitation of the Lord's Prayer and Creed was made by all, on their own behalf, and was quite independent of the interrogatory Creed which is recited by the Priest, and replied to by the sponsors on behalf of the child to be baptized. It is singular that, although the Lord's Prayer has been removed from this Office, it is retained in the parallel one for publicly receiving a privately baptized child.

alloweth] An old word for "approves and accepts," i. e. "indorses." Cf. Luke xi. 48, where the original word συνευδοκέιτε fixes the sense.

ours in bringing this Infant to his holy Baptism; let us faithfully and devoutly give thanks unto him, and say,

1 Pet. i. 3.
2 Pet. i. 3.
2 Tim. i. 9.
Rom. xvi. 25—27.
1 Cor. i. 7, 8.
Luke xi. 13.
John iii. 3—7. 16.
Heb. v. 9.
Eph. iii. 14—21.

ALMIGHTY and everlasting God, heavenly Father, we give thee humble thanks, for that thou hast vouchsafed to call us to the knowledge of thy grace, and faith in thee: Increase this knowledge, and confirm this faith in us evermore. Give thy holy Spirit to this Infant, that he may be born again, and be made an heir of everlasting salvation; through our Lord Jesus Christ, who liveth and reigneth with thee and the Holy Spirit, now and for ever. Amen.

¶ Then shall the Priest speak unto the God-fathers and Godmothers on this wise.

DEARLY beloved, ye have brought this Child here to be baptized, ye have prayed that our Lord Jesus Christ would vouchsafe to receive him, to release him of his sins, to sanctify him with the holy Ghost, to give him the kingdom of heaven, and everlasting life. Ye have heard also that our Lord Jesus Christ hath promised in his Gospel to grant all these things that ye have prayed for: which promise he, for his part, will most surely Deut. vii. 9.

Eph. i. 3—7.
2 Cor. i. 20.

Daye's transl. of Herman's Con-
sult., A.D. 1547.

ALMIGHTY and everlasting God, heavenly Father, we give thee eternal thanks, that thou hast vouchsafed to call us to this knowledge of thy grace, and faith towards thee. Increase and confirm this faith in us evermore. Give thy holy Spirit to this infant, that he may be born again, and be made heir of everlasting salvation, which of thy grace and mercy thou hast promised to thy holy Church, to old men and to children, through our Lord Jesus Christ, which liveth and reigneth with thee now and for ever. Amen.

Daye's transl. of Herman's Con-
sult., A.D. 1547.

BELOVED in Christ, yesterday by the grace of God we heard how exceeding and unspeakable mercy is exhibited in Baptism. Ye have renounced Satan and the world, ye have confessed the faith of Christ, and ye have promised obedience to Christ, and the congregation, and ye have required of God the Father that for His Son's sake our Lord Jesus Christ, He will deliver these infants from the kingdom of darkness, and settle them in the Almighty and everlasting God] The Collect which follows the Exhortation is not from the ancient Offices of the English Church, but is taken from the Cologne Book of Archbishop Hermann. It may have been taken into that book, like the first prayer in the Office, from ancient German rituals. The first half of it is on behalf of the congregation, and is plainly inserted with reference to the Creed which originally preceded it: the latter is a prayer on behalf of the child to be baptized, in which the Church beseeches God that it may be made partaker by baptismal regeneration of the inheritance of "everlasting salvation." The words of the Latin in Hermann's original are, "Da huic infanti Spiritum Sanctum tuum quo regeneretur, et hæres fiat æternæ salutis." They must not be taken as referring to any expected indwelling of the non-incarnate God, the Holy Ghost, in the individual, but to the operation upon the individual of that Third Person in the Blessed Trinity, Who ever indwells in the Church as a corporate body, according to the promise of our Lord. The prayer has some analogy with the Invocation of the Holy Ghost which is found in ancient Eucharistic Liturgies, the person being, of course, substituted for the elements.

It is a common practice for the congregation to repeat this Collect after the Minister. Perhaps the custom has some connexion with the recitation of the Creed, by which it was (as has been shown) preceded until 1552. But a rubric stood before it in the first book of Edward VI., "The Priest shall add also this prayer," and there is nothing in the present book to indicate that it should be said by any one except the Priest.

Immediately after this Collect, according to the Office of 1549, the priest took the child (or one of the children) to be baptized by the hand, and went from the church door (where all the preceding parts of the Service had been performed), towards the font, saying, "The Lord vouchsafe to receive you into His holy household, and to keep and govern you alway in the same, that you may have everlasting life. Amen." This ancient custom seems originally to have been instituted with reference to adult catechumens, the leading of an infant by the hand which was being carried in its godmother's arms being clearly an adaptation, and not a very significant one, of an usage which was highly significant in the case of a grown-up person. As the service for the admission of the catechumen ceased now to be separate from that for his baptism, and as the baptismal office was now intended primarily for infants, though in primitive times intended primarily for adults who had been Jews or Heathens, the abolition of the practice appears to be not unreasonable: and the less so as it is substantially continued in the Baptism of Adults.

The introductory part of the Office, answering to the primitive and mediæval "Ordo ad faciendum Catechumenum," now ends with this collect.

keep and perform. Wherefore, after this promise made by Christ, this Infant must also faithfully, for his part, promise by you that are his sureties, (until he come of age to take it upon himself;) that he will renounce the devil and all his works, and constantly believe God's holy Word, and obediently keep his commandments.

I demand therefore,

Deut. xxix. 9.
1 John iii. 6-10.
2 Tim. ii. 19.
Col. i. 21-23.

Eph. vi. 10-12.
1 John ii. 15, 16.
Rom. viii. 6, 12-14.
Tit. ii. 11-14.

DOST thou, in the name of this Child, renounce the devil and all his works, the vain pomp and glory of the world, with all covetous desires of the same, and the carnal desires of the flesh, so that thou wilt not follow, nor be led by them?

Answer.

I renounce them all.

Minister.

DOST thou believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth?

Kingdom of His beloved Son. You must remember these things, and doubt nothing but that we shall receive all these things that we require if we believe . . . .

Item Sacerdos dicat.

Salisbury Use.
Ritus Baptizandi.

N. Abrenuncias Sathanæ. Respondeant compatrini et commatrinæ, Abrenuncio. Item Sacerdos. Et omnibus operibus ejus. R. Abrenuncio. Item Sacerdos. Et omnibus pompis ejus. R. Abrenuncio.

Item Sacerdos.

Salisbury Use.
Ritus Baptizandi
Greg. Gelas.

N. Credis in Deum Patrem omnipotentem, Creatorem cœli et terræ? Respondeant: Credo.

THE BAPTISMAL VOWS.

With the Exhortation to the Sponsors the actual "Ritus Baptizandi" begins, as it began in the ancient Offices; but it is now intermingled with the Benediction of the Font; the chrism [anointing] and the chrisom [baptismal robe], with the lighted taper [symbol of the lamps of the ten virgins], are omitted, and a thanksgiving, with the Lord's Prayer, is added.

The earliest Christian writings, and even the Holy Scriptures, show that some form of interrogation always preceded Baptism. When the eunuch desired baptism from Philip the Deacon, the latter said, "If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest. And he answered and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God." [Acts viii. 37.] It has also been commonly believed by sound interpreters that St. Paul's words to Timothy, "Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life, whereunto thou art also called, and hast professed a good profession before many witnesses" [1 Tim. vi. 12], refer to this custom. Tertullian speaks of the renunciation of Satan, and the declaration of belief, as part of the ceremony for making Catechumens. [De Coron. iii.] St. Cyprian says [Ep. lxx. 2], "The very interrogatory which is put in Baptism is a witness of the truth;" and from his time forward some form or other of interrogation and of Baptismal Vow is frequently alluded to by the Fathers. In the earliest extant Baptismal Liturgy, that of Gelasius and Gregory, the interrogatories are identical with those of the Salisbury Manual as printed above; and as those now in use are substantially the same, it may be reasonably considered that the modern form represents that which was in use in the Primitive, and perhaps in the Apostolic Church.

§ The Vow of Renunciation.

The form of renunciation is referred to by Tertullian in these words: "We do in the Church testify, under the hand of a chief minister, that we renounce the devil and his pomp and his angels." St. Basil [de Sp. S. xxvii.] speaks of the same renunciation as one of the unwritten traditions and customs of the Church. St. Cyril of Jerusalem gives the form as, "I renounce thee, Satan, and all thy works, and all thy pomp<sup>1</sup>, and all thy service;" and he says that while the renunciation was being uttered the catechumen stood facing the West, as "the region of sensible darkness," and stretched out the arm as though actually speaking to the Evil One. The ancient Roman form is that of Gelasius and Gregory. The form of the Eastern Church is, "Dost thou renounce Satan, and all his works, and all his angels, and all his service, and all his pomp? Answer. I renounce them:" the renunciation being made three times, which seems to have been the ancient practice. The original English form also contained three renunciations, being as follows:—

"N. Dost thou forsake the devil and all his works?

"Answer. I forsake them all.

"Minister. Dost thou forsake the vain pomp . . . desires of the same?

"Answer. I forsake them all.

"Minister. Dost thou forsake the carnal desires . . . nor be led by them?

"Answer. I forsake them."

These were combined into one question and one answer in the revision of 1552, and continued in that form with the addition, "in the name of this child," and the word "forsake" altered to "renounce" in 1661, the changes being made by Bishop Cosin<sup>2</sup>.

§ The Vow of Belief.

The profession of faith is founded on our Lord's words in Matt. xxviii. 19; and from the case of the eunuch in Acts viii. 37, it appears to have been required from the very first. It seems

<sup>1</sup> "Pomp" comes from πομπή, pompe, and means strictly a religious procession. The ancient form of the renunciation carries us back to the primitive days of Christianity, when all public games and shows among the Greeks and Romans were connected with idolatrous and Satanic ceremonies. In its later form the "pomp" is connected with the world; and Shakespeare seems to have had the Baptismal vow in view when he put into Wolsey's mouth the words, "Vain pomp and glory of this world, I hate ye." (Henry VIII. iii. 2.)

<sup>2</sup> See other forms of the renunciations, and of the Baptismal Office at large, in Asseman., Cod. Liturg. i. 174, ii. 211; and in Neale's Hist. Eastern Church, ii. 945.

And in Jesus Christ his only-begotten Son our Lord? And that he was conceived by the Holy Ghost; born of the Virgin Mary; that he suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead, and buried; that he went down into hell, and also did rise again the third day; that he ascended into heaven, and sitteth at the right hand of God the Father Almighty; and from thence shall come again at the end of the world, to judge the quick and the dead?

And dost thou believe in the Holy Ghost; the holy Catholick Church; the Communion of Saints; the Remission of sins; the Resurrection of the flesh; and everlasting life after death?

Answer.

All this I stedfastly believe.

Minister.

WILT thou be baptized in this faith?

Answer.

That is my desire.

Minister.

WILT thou then obediently keep God's holy will and commandments, and walk in the same all the days of thy life?

Answer.

I will.

Rom. x. 10.
Mark xvi. 16.
2 Chron. xx. 20.
Acts ii. 41.

Ecc. xii. 13.
Deut. v. 27—29.
vi. 25.
Matt. vii. 21—23.
xix. 17.

also to be required by our Lord's words, "He that believeth and is baptized" [Mark xvi. 16]: for as belief must necessarily, in adults, precede Baptism, so some confession of what is believed seems necessary as an outward evidence of belief. The object, however, is not that each person should declare his own private belief, but that he should assent to that of the Church. Tertullian [de Coron. iii.] speaks of such a confession being made in his time, "pledging ourselves to something more than the Lord hath prescribed in the Gospel;" that is, to a fuller Creed than the confession of belief in the Three Persons of the Blessed Trinity. Such a confession is extant in the case of Palmatus, who was baptized about A.D. 220, a few years after Tertullian wrote. It is as follows:—"Credis, ex toto corde, in Deum Patrem Omnipotentem, Factorem omnium visibilium et invisibilium? Respondit Palmatus. Credo. Et in Jesum Christum, Filium ejus? Et ait, Credo. Qui natus est de Spiritu Sancto ex Maria Virgine? Palmatus respondit, Credo. Et in Spiritum Sanctum: Sanctam Ecclesiam Catholicam: Remissionem peccatorum: et carnis resurrectionem? Et exclamavit cum lachrymis Palmatus, dicens, Credo, Domine<sup>1</sup>." St. Cyprian, in his seventieth and seventy-sixth Epistles, gives part of a similar creed, and others are extant which were used at the baptism of various persons in the third and fourth century; this being, in

Item Sacerdos: Credis et in Jesum Christum Filium ejus unicum Dominum nostrum, natum et passum?

Respondeant: Credo.

Item Sacerdos: Credis et in Spiritum Sanctum, sanctam Ecclesiam Catholicam, Sanctorum communionem, remissionem peccatorum, carnis resurrectionem, et vitam æternam post mortem? Respondeant: Credo.

Salisbury Use,
Greg. Gelas.

TUNC interroget Sacerdos nomen infantis dicens: Quid petis? Respondeant: Baptismum. Item Sacerdos: Vis baptizari? Respondeant: Volo.

fact, the earliest use of the Apostles' Creed<sup>2</sup>. St. Cyril [Catech. Lect. xix. 9] states that this profession of faith was made towards the East.

In our first English Office the three divisions of the Creed formed three separate questions, to each of which the answer "I believe" was given. They were put together under one question and answer in 1552, and were retained in that form in 1661, although Bishop Cosin wished to restore the old custom, and noted it accordingly in his revised book. The question, "Wilt thou be baptized in this faith?" represents the two questions, "What dost thou desire?" and, "Wilt thou be baptized?" of the old Office: which were altered to the present form in 1552.

§ The Vow of Obedience.

This is not represented in the primitive Offices of Baptism of the Sacramentaries, nor in that of the English Church before 1661. It first appears in Bishop Cosin's MS. annotations, the question beginning, "Dost thou promise that thou wilt obediently . . . ?" and the answer being, "I do promise." But it appears probable from Justin Martyr [Apol. i. 61] that a declaration of a similar kind was used in very ancient times in the Eastern Church.

<sup>1</sup> Heurtley's Harmonia Symbolica, p. 106.

<sup>2</sup> The Eastern Church uses the Nicene Creed at Baptism.

¶ Then shall the Priest say,

Rom. vi. 3—6.
Eph. iv. 20—24.
John iii. 6.

O MERCIFUL God, grant that the old Adam in this Child may be so buried, that the new man may be raised up in him. Amen.

Rom. viii. 6, 7.
2 Pet. iii. 18.

Grant that all carnal affections may die in him, and that all things belonging to the Spirit may live and grow in him. Amen.

Isa. xl. 29—31.
Rom. xvi. 20.
1 John v. 4.
Jude 23.
1 Cor. xv. 57.

Grant that he may have power and strength to have victory, and to triumph against the devil, the world, and the flesh. Amen.

Gal. iii. 26, 27.
2 Pet. i. 2, 3.
Phil. i. 9—11.
Jude 21.

Grant that whosoever is here dedicated to thee by our office and ministry, may also be endued with heavenly virtues, and everlastingly rewarded, through thy mercy, O blessed Lord God, who dost live and govern all things, world without end. Amen.

Rev. xxii. 12, 20.

Rev. i. 18.

All the interrogatories were formerly addressed to the child without any modifying expression, although they were, of course, intended to be answered by the sponsors, according to the Sarum rubric, "Respondeant compatriini et commatrinx." Among the fine-drawn objections, however, of Bucer in 1549, this was the subject of one; and the Presbyterians of 1661 objected to the answers being made in the name of the child at all. In Bishop Cosin's book there is written, "Dost thou, in the name of this child," and the alteration was adopted: but the Revisers refused to go further. Bishop Cosin also altered the rubric which precedes the interrogatories into this form: "¶ Then shall the Priest demand of the godfathers and godmothers of every several child to be baptized, these questions following." Where many children are to be baptized, it would be almost impossible to repeat the questions in the case of every several child: and it may be considered sufficient, if care is taken, by tone, gesture (and repetition, where necessary), that the sponsors of every child really make the answers which are appointed. An answer for each child is that which is required, and this may be secured even when the interrogatories are put only once to the whole body of sponsors. It must at the same time be remarked, that in making these answers the sponsors are simply the mouth-piece of the child, and do not incur any responsibility on their own account in consequence, either as regards the child or themselves. Yet as each godfather and godmother makes them, they can hardly fail to have a keen consciousness of the fact that these very replies were once made on their own behalf; and the thought may well arise, How have the vows thus made been kept in subsequent years? "Baptism doth re-present unto us our own profession."

THE BENEDICTION OF THE WATER.

Although the element of water was sanctified to a sacramental purpose by our Blessed Lord when He was baptized in it Himself, it has ever been the practice of the Church to use a form of benediction upon that portion of water which was to be set apart for the administration of Baptism. From the words of Tertullian it would even seem that such a form was used over running streams: for after saying that there is no difference whether a man is baptized in the sea, in a pool, in a lake, in a river, or in a fountain, he adds that "all waters, from the ancient privilege of their origin, obtain, after prayer to God, the sacrament of sanctification." [De Baptism. iv.] St. Cyprian writes to Januarius in the

Mozarabic,
Bened. Font.

FIAT locus iste dignus, in quem Spiritus Sanctus influat: Amen. Sepeliatur hic illic Adam vetus, resurgat novus: Amen.

Moriatur hinc omne quod carnis est; resurgat omne quod est spiritus: Amen.

Quicumque hic renunciant diabolo; da eis triumphare de mundo: Amen. Quicumque in hoc loco confessus fuerit, Tu eum recognosceas in regno: Amen.

Ut per ministerium nostrum Tibi consecratus, æternis ad Te virtutibus æternis præmiis consecratur: Amen. Per misericordiam ipsius Dei nostri qui est benedictus: et vivit et omnia regit in sæcula sæculorum. Amen.

year 255, "The water must first be cleansed and sanctified by the priest", that it may be able, by Baptism therein, to wash away the sins of the baptized." [Ep. lxx.] St. Cyril of Jerusalem taught his candidates for Baptism in similar words: "Regard not the sacred laver as simple water, regard rather the spiritual grace given with the water . . . plain water, after the invocation of the Holy Ghost, and of Christ, and of the Father, gains a sanctifying power." [Catech. Lect. iii. 3.] St. Ambrose, in his treatise on the Sacraments, writes, "When the priest first comes to the baptistery, he exorcizes the creature of water, and afterwards makes an invocation and offers a prayer, that the font may be sanctified for the presence of the Eternal Trinity." In the Apostolical Constitutions, and in the Sacramentaries of Gelasius and St. Gregory, the actual form of benediction is given; and the ceremonies by which it was accompanied are indicated in the previous Introduction to this Office. The ancient "Benedictio Fontis" of the Church of England was of a similar character to that of the Gregorian Sacramentary.

In all these cases the Benediction of the water was a ceremony separate from, or at least not necessarily performed at the same time with, the administration of Baptism. The special times of its performance were Easter Eve and Whitsun Eve: and in the early Church the Bishop was the officiating minister. The impurity of water which has been kept for a long time rendered a more frequent benediction necessary when Baptisms came to be administered on any Sunday or Holyday; and as there was no essential necessity for the presence of a bishop, the rite was eventually performed by the priest, from time to time, whenever the water was changed. This custom was continued in the reformed Prayer Book, the Office for the Benediction of the Font—taken from the Mozarabic Office—being placed at the end of the two Offices for Baptism, as follows:—

¶ The water in the font shall be changed every month once at the least, and afore any child be baptized in the water so changed, the Priest shall say at the font these prayers following.

"O Most Merciful God our Saviour Jesu Christ, Who hast ordained the element of water for the regeneration of Thy faithful people, upon Whom, being baptized in the river of Jordan, the Holy Ghost came down in likeness of a dove: send down, we <sup>1</sup> Sacerdos, used in an inclusive sense, as we use "minister;" the Bishop being then the minister of this rite.

Matt. iii. 16, 17.

John xix. 34.

1 John v. 6, 8.

Rev. i. 5, 6.

Matt. xxviii. 18,

19.

1 Kings viii. 30.

Matt. xviii. 19.

2 Kings v. 10—14.

1 Tim. iv. 5.

Acts xxii. 16.

John i. 16.

Tit. iii. 5, 6.

Rom. viii. 15, 16.

Rev. xvii. 14.

ii. 10.

ALMIGHTY, everliving God, whose most dearly beloved Son Jesus Christ, for the forgiveness of our sins, did shed out of his most precious side both water and blood, and gave commandment to his disciples, that they should go teach all nations, and baptize them In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; Regard, we beseech thee, the supplications of thy congregation: sanctify this Water to the mystical washing away of sin: and grant that this Child, now to be baptized therein, may receive the fulness of thy grace, and ever remain in the number of thy faithful and elect children; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

. . . Bene~~dic~~o te per Jesum Christum Filium ejus unicum Dominum nostrum: qui te in Chana Galileæ . . . Qui te una cum sanguine de latere suo produxit: et discipulis jussit ut credentes baptizarentur in te dicens: Ite, docete omnes gentes, baptizantes eos in nomine Pa~~tris~~, et Fi~~lii~~, et Spi~~ritus~~ Sancti . . .

Salisbury Use.

Benedictio Pontis.

Greg. Gelas.

Sancti~~fica~~ fontem hunc Sancti~~ficator~~ generis humani. Amen.

Mozarabic.
Bened. Font.

beseech Thee, the same Thy Holy Spirit to assist us, and to be present at this our invocation of Thy holy Name: sanctify ✠ this fountain of baptism, Thou that art the sanctifier of all things, that by the power of Thy word all those that shall be baptized therein may be spiritually regenerated, and made the children of everlasting adoption. Amen.

“O Merciful God, grant that the old Adam, in them that shall be baptized in this fountain, may be so buried, that the new man may be raised up again. Amen.

“Grant that all carnal affections may die in them; and that all things belonging to the Spirit may live and grow in them. Amen.

“Grant to all them which at this fountain forsake the devil and all his works, that they may have power and strength to have victory and to triumph against him, the world, and the flesh. Amen.

“Whosoever shall confess Thee, O Lord: recognize him also in Thy kingdom. Amen.

“Grant that all sin and vice here may be so extinct: that they never have power to reign in Thy servants. Amen.

“Grant that whosoever here shall begin to be of Thy flock: may evermore continue in the same. Amen.

“Grant that all they which for Thy sake in this life do deny and forsake themselves: may win and purchase Thee, O Lord, which art everlasting treasure. Amen.

“Grant that whosoever is here dedicated to Thee by our office and ministry: may also be endued with heavenly virtues, and everlastingly rewarded through Thy mercy, O blessed Lord God, Who dost live and govern all things world without end. Amen.

“The Lord be with you.

“Answer. And with thy spirit.

“Almighty, Everliving God, Whose most dearly beloved Son Jesus Christ, for the forgiveness of our sins, did shed out of His most precious side both water and blood, and gave commandment to His disciples that they should go teach all nations, and baptize them in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost: Regard, we beseech Thee, the supplications of Thy congregation, and grant that all Thy servants which shall be baptized in this water, prepared for the ministration of Thy holy Sacrament, may receive the fulness of Thy grace, and ever remain in the number of Thy faithful and elect children, through Jesus Christ our Lord.”

In 1552 this separate benediction of the water was abolished, through the interference of Bucer. He objected to any benediction, but a portion of the service was, notwithstanding, incorporated with that for Baptism, to be used whenever the sacrament is administered. The last prayer was retained for the actual benediction instead of the first, the only alteration made being the omission of the words, “prepared for the ministration of Thy holy Sacrament.” It was changed into its present form in 1661; but in Bishop Cosin’s revised book the words are much less pointed than they were ultimately made, being, “. . . this water, which we here bless in Thy Name, and dedicate to this holy action.”

Although this benediction of the water of Baptism is not essential to the regeneration of the baptized person, like the affusion of the water upon him, it is a solemn recognition of the work of God in the Sacrament: a significant symbol of the Creator laying “the beams of His chambers”—the Temple of Christ’s mystical body—“in the waters;” of the Spirit of God moving upon the face of the waters, for the purpose of new creation; of the Victor breaking in pieces the head of the dragon in those waters by means of which the power of the evil one is counteracted and defeated. Being a rite of so solemn a kind, it should be performed with reverence and exactness, and it is well to use the old custom of making the sign of the Cross in the water at the word “sanctify,” though it is not now the practice to print the cross in the Prayer Book, as formerly, in the places where it is proper to use it<sup>1</sup>. Care should also be taken not to repeat the benediction; and to avoid this the water should be let off from the font immediately after the conclusion of the Baptismal Office.

The four petitions with which the benediction of the water begins now, as it began when it was a separate service, are substantially taken from the ancient Ritual of the Gallican Church. They have no place in the Roman ritual, nor were they in the Latin Office of the English Church: but they probably belong to that ancient Ephesine rite of St. John, which formed the original basis of the Salisbury Use. The original form has a great resemblance to the Great Collect or Litany which begins the Eastern Baptismal Office.

During the suppression of the Prayer Book some forms of prayer were printed by Jeremy Taylor, to be used by those who <sup>1</sup> St. Augustine writes, “In fine, what is, as all know, the sign of Christ, save the Cross of Christ? Which sign unless it be applied, whether to the brows of the believing, or to the very water out of which they are regenerated, or to the oil wherewith they are anointed, or to the sacrifice wherewith they are fed, none of these is duly performed.” [Aug. in Joann. cxviii. 5.] And in another place he also says, “For with this sign of the Cross the Body of the Lord is consecrated, and the water of Baptism sanctified.” [Serm. cxviii. de Temp.] The rubric of the Salisbury Office (at least as old as the time of St. Gregory) is, “Hic dividat sacerdos aquam manu sua dextra in modum crucis.”

¶ Then the Priest shall take the Child into his hands, and shall say to the Godfathers and Godmothers,

Luke i. 59—63.
ii. 21.

Name this Child.

¶ And then naming it after them (if they shall certify him that the Child may well endure it) he shall dip it in the water discreetly and warily, saying,

Matt. xxviii. 19.

N I baptize thee In the Name of
• the Father, and of the Son,
and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

¶ But if they certify that the Child is weak, it shall suffice to pour water upon it, saying the foresaid words,

N I baptize thee In the name of
• the Father, and of the Son,
and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

Deinde accipiat Sacerdos infantem per latera Salisbury Use. in manibus suis, et interrogato nomine ejus, Ritu Baptiz. baptizet eum sub trina mersione, tantum Greg Gelas. sanctam Trinitatem invocando, ita dicens:

N. Et ego Baptizo te in Nomine Patris.

Et mergat eum semel versa facie ad aquilonem, et capite versus orientem:

Et Filii:

Et iterum mergat semel versa facie ad meridiem:

Et Spiritus Sancti: Amen.

Et mergat tertio recta facie versus aquam.

loved the ancient customs; and his prayer for the benediction of the font offers a beautiful devotional commentary upon the subject. It is as follows:—

“Our Blessed Lord and Saviour Jesus, Who was baptized of John in Jordan, Who walked upon the waters, Who converted water into wine, Who out of His precious side shed forth blood and water, the two sacraments of life unto His holy Church, and commanded His disciples to teach all nations, baptizing them with water in the Name of the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: He bless and sanctify by His Holy Spirit this water, that it may be instrumental and effective of grace, of pardon, and sanctification. Hear us, O most gracious God, that whosoever shall be baptized in this water may be renewed by Thy grace, justified by Thy mercy, sanctified by Thy Spirit, preserved by Thy Providence, and guided by Thy Word: that in this water, springing from the Paradise of God, the soul [or, souls] presented unto Thee may be cleansed and purified, and that there may be added to Thy Church daily such as shall be saved in the day of Thy glorious appearing, O blessed Lord and Saviour Jesus. Amen.”

It must be remembered that the benediction of the water for Baptism is of a very different nature from the benediction of the elements with our Lord's own words in the Holy Eucharist. In the former case the blessing simply sets it apart for a very holy use, and effects no sacramental change in the element. The rite is not (so far as we know) of our Lord's institution, nor did He ever use such words respecting water as He used respecting the Eucharistic elements.

THE BAPTISM.

The whole of what goes before is a preparation for the few words and the simple action by which the Baptism, and therefore the regeneration, of the child is effected, and all that follows looks back to these either in thanksgiving or in exhortation. Great exactness is, therefore, necessary in the use of this part of the office; (1) first, that the child may not lack any of the benefits of regeneration through any omission in the rite by which it is conveyed; (2) and, secondly, that the priest may not have guilt upon his soul through depriving the child, by any such omission, of the means of salvation.

The essential parts of the rite have been already spoken of in the previous Introduction; but it may here be repeated that without actual contact of the water with the person of the child, while the words are being spoken, there cannot be a Baptism. When and where immersion was the common practice, this contact of the water was inevitable; but now that immersion is not used, some precautions are desirable.

1. The water should be poured upon the child according to the rubric, not sprinkled. This may be done from the hollow of the hand, or from a small shell of silver or other material.

2. The water should be poured freely over the head of the child, so that it may flow back into the font.

3. To effect this properly, and with a reverent regard to the nature of the rite, the cap of the child must be removed from its head.

4. The hand or shell should be deliberately filled with water before the words are spoken.

5. In reverent accordance with ancient and primitive practice, and also for the more certain contact of the water with the child, it should be poured on thrice,—at the naming of each Person of the Blessed Trinity.

It is most necessary that the act of Baptism should habitually be thoroughly performed, primarily (of course) for the sake of the child, whose eternal interests are involved, but also that the essential nature of the external rite may be made quite evident to the Laity, and that full confidence may be established in the ministrations of the Clergy.

There can be no question that affusion, if thoroughly performed, is amply sufficient for the due administration of the sacrament of Baptism. In such a climate as ours, with such habits as those of modern times, and all its consequences considered, the dipping of infants could seldom be seemly, and would often be attended with danger. The “weakness” of the rubric may justly be assumed (without supposing actual sickness) as the normal condition of infants brought up under such conditions. Although not recognized in the rubric until 1549, there can be little doubt that affusion was practised instead of immersion (at the discretion of the priest), in ancient as well as in modern times<sup>1</sup>.

SIGNING WITH THE CROSS.

It has been already mentioned that in the Prayer Book of 1549 the sign of the Cross was made upon the forehead and breast of the child at an earlier part of the service. In the ancient office this signing took place at the very beginning of the service for making a catechumen. The words used in the first Prayer Book were these:—“N. Receive the sign of the holy Cross, both in thy forehead, and in thy breast, in token that thou shalt not be ashamed to confess thy faith in Christ crucified, and manfully to fight under His banner against sin, the world, and the devil, and to continue His faithful soldier and servant

<sup>1</sup> See Lyndewood in Maskell's Mon. Rit. I. ccix., Rituale Rom. De formâ Baptismi, and Catech. Trident. ii. 17. The latter speaks of affusion as the “general practice” at that time, the middle of the sixteenth century.

1 Cor. xii. 13.
John x. 11. 16.
Rev. xxii. 4.
Gal. vi. 14.
Rom. i. 16.

¶ Then the Priest shall say,

WE receive this Child into the congregation of Christ's flock, and do sign him with the sign of the cross, in token that hereafter he shall not be ashamed to confess the faith of Christ crucified, and manfully to fight under his banner, against sin, the world, and the devil; and to continue Christ's faithful soldier and servant unto his life's end. Amen.

+ Here the Priest shall make a cross upon the Child's forehead.

Matt. xvi. 24.
Eph. vi. 10, 11, 13.
1 Tim. vi. 12.
2 Tim. ii. 3, 4.
Rev. ii. 10.

[Oratio.

DEUS Omnipotens, Pater Domini nostri Jesu Christi, qui te regeneravit ex aqua et Spiritu Sancto, quique dedit tibi remissionem omnium peccatorum tuorum: Hic linat infantem de ipso chrismate cum pollice in vertice in modum crucis, dicens, Ipse te linat chrismate salutis in eodem Filio suo Domino nostro Jesu Christo in vitam æternam.]

Salisbury Usa.

Ritus Baptiz.

Greg. Gelas.

[See also Rationale of 1541 in Collier's Ch. Hist. v. 106.]

unto thy life's end. Amen." The first part of these words came from the ancient service, and the general idea of the remaining part is taken from those which accompanied two other consignations, one at the naming, and the other at the exorcism of the child, both also in the office for making a catechumen. The anointing after the Baptism (and after the delivery of the Chrisom) was continued in the first Prayer Book with the words of the ancient office, "Then the Priest shall anoint the Infant upon the head, saying, Almighty God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath regenerate thee by water and the Holy Ghost, and hath given unto thee remission of all thy sins: He vouchsafe to anoint thee with the unction of His Holy Spirit, and bring thee to the inheritance of everlasting life. Amen."

Thus it will be seen that the present action and words represent the ancient usage, but that the use of anointing oil being discontinued and only the signing with the Cross retained, the words formerly used in the earlier part of the service were substituted here for those which referred to the act of unction; and "we receive this child into the congregation of Christ's flock, and do sign him with the sign of the Cross," for the opening words which were previously addressed to the child itself. As the thirtieth Canon distinctly says, the signing with the Cross adds nothing to the virtue and perfection of the Baptism, so also we must remember that neither are the accompanying words, "We receive," &c., any essential part of the Baptism. They have sometimes been spoken of as if by them the child was "received into the Church;" but the act of Baptism is the true reception into the Church, and these words are a ceremonial declaration only of that fact. In this respect they are analogous to the words used by the Priest in the Marriage Service, after the essential part of the office is completed by the solemn adjuration, "Those whom God hath joined together, let no man put asunder." As the Priest then "pronounces" that the married couple are "man and wife together," so here he pronounces that the baptized child has become one of the congregation of Christ's flock. This is made still more evident by the rubric and words of the Office for Private Baptism, ". . . then shall not he christen the child again, but shall receive him as one of the flock of true Christian people, saying thus, I certify you . . . is now by the laver of Regeneration in Baptism received into the number of the children of God, and heirs of everlasting life . . ." Neither the words nor the act have any sacramental efficacy, but it is clear (1) that the latter (as a substitute for unction) is the emphatic part of this most significant, venerable, and even primitive rite; and also that (2) any idea of an additional "reception into the Church" by the use of them tends to obscure the full completeness of that reception which is effected by the act of Baptism itself.

The superstitious antipathy which the Puritans entertained for the material figure and for the sign of the Cross led the reforming Divines to try and conciliate them by not printing it in the places where it was customary to use it in the services of the Church; but no pressure could prevail on them, in any of the revisions, to remove its obligatory use from the Baptismal

Office. It is not worth while to occupy any space with the always weak and often wicked arguments that were alleged against the use of this holy sign; but, as the thirtieth Canon [A.D. 1603] was framed as a general reply to them and is referred to in the rubric at the end of the service, it is inserted below as an illustration of the temperate yet firm line which the Reformers took on this subject<sup>1</sup>.

1 CANON 30.

The Lawful Use of the Cross in Baptism explained.

We are sorry that his Majesty's most princely care and pains taken in the Conference at Hampton Court, amongst many other points, touching this one of the Cross in Baptism, hath taken no better effect with many, but that still the use of it in Baptism is so greatly stuck at and impugned. For the further declaration therefore of the true use of this ceremony, and for the removing all such scruple as might any ways trouble the consciences of them who are indeed rightly religious, following the royal steps of our most worthy King, because he therein followeth the rules of the Scriptures, and the practice of the primitive Church: we do commend to all the true members of the Church of England these our directions and observations ensuing.

First, it is to be observed, that although the Jews and Ethnicks derided both the Apostles and the rest of the Christians, for preaching and believing in Him who was crucified upon the Cross; yet all, both Apostles and Christians, were so far from being discouraged from their profession by the ignominy of the Cross, as they rather rejoiced and triumphed in it. Yea, the Holy Ghost by the mouths of the Apostles did honour the name of the Cross (being hateful among the Jews) so far, that under it He comprehended not only Christ crucified, but the force, effects, and merits of His Death and Passion, with all the comforts, fruits, and promises, which we receive or expect thereby.

Secondly, the honour and dignity of the name of the Cross begat a reverend estimation even in the Apostles' times (for aught that is known to the contrary) of the sign of the Cross which the Christians shortly after used in all their actions: thereby making an outward show and profession, even to the astonishment of the Jews, that they were not ashamed to acknowledge Him for their Lord and Saviour, who died for them upon the Cross. And this sign they did not only use themselves with a kind of glory, when they met with any Jews, but signed therewith their children when they were christened, to dedicate them by that badge to His service, whose benefits bestowed upon them in Baptism the name of the Cross did represent. And this use of the sign of the Cross in Baptism was held in the primitive Church, as well by the Greeks as the Latins, with one consent and great applause. At what time, if any had opposed themselves against it, they would certainly have been censured as enemies of the name of the Cross, and consequently of Christ's merits, the sign whereof they could no better endure. This continual and general use of the sign of the Cross is evident by many testimonies of the ancient Fathers.

Thirdly, it must be confessed, that in process of time the sign of the Cross was greatly abused in the Church of Rome, especially after that corruption of Popery had once possessed it. But the abuse of a thing doth not take away the lawful use of it. Nay, so far was it from the purpose of the Church of England to forsake and reject the Churches of Italy, France, Spain, Germany, or any such like Churches, in all things which they held and practised, that, as the Apology of the Church of England confesseth, it doth with reverence retain those ceremonies, which do neither endanger the Church of God, nor offend the minds of sober men; and only departed from them in those particular points, wherein they were fallen both from themselves in their ancient integrity, and from the Apostolical Churches, which were their first founders. In which respect, amongst some other very ancient ceremonies, the Sign of the Cross in Baptism hath been retained in this Church, both by the judgment and practice of those reverend Fathers and great Divines in the days of King Edward the Sixth, of whom some constantly suffered for the profession of the truth; and others being exiled in the time of Queen Mary, did after their return, in the beginning of the

¶ Then shall the Priest say,

1 Pet. i. 23.
Gal. iii. 27.
John xv. 5.
Rom. xi. 19, 20.
Ps. cvii. 21, 22.
Phil. i. 3. 6. 9—11.
Heb. iii. 14.

SEEING now, dearly beloved brethren, that this child is regenerate, and grafted into the body of Christ's Church, let us give thanks unto Almighty God for these benefits; and with one accord make our prayers unto him, that this child may lead the rest of his life according to this beginning.

¶ Then shall be said, all kneeling,

OUR Father, which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, As it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us from evil. Amen.

¶ Then shall the Priest say,

Ps. cxi. 1.
Col. i. 12.
John iii. 6—8.
Gal. iv. 4, 5.

WE yield thee hearty thanks, most merciful Father, that it hath pleased thee to regenerate this [LAUDES et gratias Domino referamus, fratres dilectissimi, quod augere dignatus est ecclesiæ suæ congregationem per caros nostros, qui modo baptizati sunt. Petamus ergo de Domini misericordia ut baptismum sanctum, quod acceperunt, illibatum, inviolatum, et immaculatum perferant ante tribunal Christi.]

[Miss. Bobiense.
Muratori, ii.
852.]

[DOMINE Deus Omnipotens, famulos Tuos, quos jussisti renasci ex aqua et Spiritu Sancto; con-

[Miss. Bobiense.
Muratori, ii.
852.]

THE THANKSGIVING.

The old office of Baptism, and that of 1549, concluded with the ceremonies which supplemented the baptism itself, and which were discontinued in 1552; except that it was always the practice reign of our late dread Sovereign, continually defend and use the same. This resolution and practice of our Church hath been allowed and approved by the censure upon the Communion Book in King Edward the Sixth his days, and by the harmony of Confessions of later years: because indeed the use of this Sign in Baptism was ever accompanied here with such sufficient cautions and exceptions against all Popish superstition and error, as in the like cases are either fit or convenient.

First, the Church of England, since the abolishing of Popery, hath ever held and taught, and so doth hold and teach still, that the Sign of the Cross used in Baptism is no part of the substance of that Sacrament: for when the minister, dipping the infant in water, or laying water upon the face of it, (as the manner also is,) hath pronounced these words, I baptize thee in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, the infant is fully and perfectly baptized. So as the Sign of the Cross being afterwards used, doth neither add any thing to the virtue and perfection of Baptism, nor being omitted, doth detract any thing from the effect and substance of it.

Secondly, it is apparent in the Communion Book, that the infant baptized is, by virtue of Baptism, before it be signed with the Sign of the Cross, received into the congregation of Christ's flock, as a perfect member thereof, and not by any power ascribed unto the Sign of the Cross. So that for the very remembrance of the Cross, which is very precious to all them that rightly believe in Jesus Christ, and in the other respects mentioned, the Church of England hath retained still the Sign of it in Baptism; following therein the primitive and apostolical Churches, and accounting it a lawful outward ceremony and honourable badge, whereby the infant is dedicated to the Service of Him that died upon the Cross, as by the words used in the Book of Common Prayer it may appear.

Lastly, the use of the Sign of the Cross in Baptism being thus purged from all Popish superstition and error, and reduced in the Church of England to the primary institution of it, upon those true rules of doctrine concerning things indifferent, which are consonant to the Word of God, and the judgment of all the ancient Fathers, we hold it the part of every private man, both minister and other, reverently to retain the true use of it prescribed by public authority: considering that things of themselves indifferent do in some sort alter their natures, when they are either commanded or forbidden by a lawful magistrate; and may not be omitted at every man's pleasure, contrary to the law, when they are commanded, nor used when they are prohibited.

of the Church of England for the Priest to give a charge to the godfathers and godmothers respecting the future life of the child. But from the above address and prayer taken out of an ancient Italian Missal, written before A.D. 1100, it would appear that the revisionists of 1552 had a precedent for their innovation, though not perhaps exactly that here printed. The use of the Lord's Prayer in this place is, at least, analogous with the custom of the Primitive Church, in which the newly baptized were permitted and enjoined to say it for the first time immediately they had become Christians by Baptism<sup>1</sup>.

The address which is placed as a preface to the Lord's Prayer shows that it and the Collect which follows are to be used (1) as an act of thanksgiving for the regeneration of the child by Baptism, and (2) as a prayer for the child's final perseverance in the way of salvation in which it has now been placed; and thus these few words give a key to the doctrine of the Church respecting the condition of the baptized. It is also to be observed, that the use of the Lord's Prayer immediately after Baptism is an act of thanksgiving similar to that comprehended in its use immediately after Communion; and when the Church bids us "with one accord to make our prayers" to God in the very words of our Blessed Lord, it is with the obvious intention of making that prayer the central point of devotional expression and devotional unity; a prayer as capable of expressing with one accord the highest praise and thanksgiving, as it is of expressing the deepest penitence and humiliation<sup>2</sup>.

Of the Collect which follows it need only be remarked that it shows an unhesitating faith in the effects of Holy Baptism; and, also, an unhesitating conviction that without final perseverance on the part of those who have been baptized and have afterwards come to years of discrimination between good and evil, there is no hope of the attainment of that everlasting kingdom of which their regeneration has made them heirs.

At the revision of 1661 the Presbyterians objected to this Act

<sup>1</sup> Apost. Const., vii. 44, 45.

<sup>2</sup> See note on the Lord's Prayer, p. 6.

1 Cor. xii. 12, 13.
Eph. i. 22, 23.
Rom. vi. 11—13.
1 Pet. ii. 24.
Rom. vi. 4—7.
Col. iii. 1—5.
8—15.
Heb. xi. 39, 40.
xii. 22—24.
1 Thess. iv. 14, 19.
Luke xii. 32.
1 Pet. i. 3—5.

infant with thy holy Spirit, to receive him for thine own child by adoption, and to incorporate him into thy holy Church. And humbly we beseech thee to grant, that he, being dead unto sin, and living unto righteousness, and being buried with Christ in his death, may crucify the old man, and utterly abolish the whole body of sin; and that, as he is made partaker of the death of thy Son, he may also be partaker of his resurrection; so that finally, with the residue of thy holy Church, he may be an inheritor of thine everlasting kingdom; through Christ our Lord. Amen.

Then, all standing up, the Priest shall say to the Godfathers and Godmothers this Exhortation following.

Deut. xxix. 12—15. xxxii. 46.
47. xxxi. 12, 13.
Gen. xviii. 19.
Isa. xxxviii. 19.
Eph. vi. 4.
Eccl. v. 4.
Neh. viii. 1—8.
Ps. lxxxviii. 5—7.
Matt. xxviii. 19, 20.
Luke xi. 1—4.
Matt. xix. 16, 17.
1 Cor. xiv. 2, 9, 11.
Prov. xxii. 6.
2 Tim. iii. 14, 15.
2 Pet. i. 13.
Heb. x. 23.
1 Pet. ii. 21.
Rom. vi. 3—6. 11.
Col. iii. 5, 8.
2 Pet. i. 3—7, 8—13.

FORASMUCH as this child hath promised by you his sureties to renounce the devil and all his works, to believe in God, and to serve him; ye must remember, that it is your parts and duties to see that this infant be taught, so soon as he shall be able to learn, what a solemn vow, promise, and profession, he hath here made by you. And that he may know these things the better, ye shall call upon him to hear Sermons, and chiefly ye shall provide, that he may learn the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the ten Commandments, in the vulgar tongue, and all other things which a Christian ought to know and believe to his soul's

serva in eis baptismum sanctum quod acceperunt, et in nominis Tui sanctificationem perficere dignare, ut proficiat in illos gratia tua semper, et quod te ante donante susceperunt, vitæ suæ integritate custodiant.]

I COMAUNDE ow godfadre and godmodre, on holy chirche bihalve, that ye chargen the fadur and the modur of this child, that they kepe this child in to the age of seven yere, that hit beo from fier and water, and from alle other mischeues and periles that myȝten to him byfalle, throuȝ miskepinge, and also that ye or they techen his ryȝte bileue, hure pater noster, and hure Ave Maria, and hure Credo, or do him to beo tauȝte: and also that ye wasthe youre hondes or ye gon out of Chirche: and also that hit beo confermed the next tyme that the byssop cometh to contre: and al this doeth in peyne of corsynge.

Salisbury and York Use.
[Also in form of Latin Rubric.]

of Thanksgiving after Baptism,—“We cannot in faith say that every child that is baptized is ‘regenerated by God’s Holy Spirit;’ at least, it is a disputable point, and therefore we desire it to be otherwise expressed.” To this the Bishops replied as follows,—having previously referred to John iii. and Acts iii. 3, for proof that “Baptism is our spiritual regeneration,” and that by it “is received remission of sins,”—“Seeing that God’s Sacraments have their effects, where the receiver doth not ‘ponere obicem,’ put any bar against them (which children cannot do); we may say in faith of every child that is baptized, that it is regenerated by God’s Holy Spirit; and the denial of it tends to anabaptism, and the contempt of this holy sacrament, as nothing worthy, nor material whether it be administered to children or no<sup>1</sup>.” Although this objection and its answer are contained in few words, they represent the substance of a long controversy, and the decision of the Church of England; a decision deliberately expressed, and in the most solemn way, by words spoken to Almighty God, in this prayer.

Forasmuch as this child hath promised Some form of Exhortation to the Sponsors is directed in all the ancient Baptismal Offices of the Church of England, sometimes in a Latin rubric stating the substance of what the Priest was to say, and at others in the vernacular of the day. The above is found in a York Manual belonging to York Minster Library, and is also in a MS. Manual bought A.D. 1404-14, for the Chapel of South Charford, Breamore, near Salisbury. [Mus. Brit. Bibl. Reg. MS. 2 A. xxi.] The present exhortation restricts the responsibility of Sponsors to the spiritual oversight of their godchildren; but even this responsibility is practically in abeyance while the parents are living, since to them is assigned, in the first place, the duty of bringing up in a Christian manner the children whom God’s Providence has given them.

Bishop Cosin erased from this exhortation the words, “call upon them to hear Sermons, and chiefly ye shall,” and substituted in a later part, “ye shall call upon them at due time hereafter to frequent the Divine Service, and to hear Sermons in the Church, putting them in remembrance that” Baptism doth represent, &c. The charge respecting Confirmation was also formed by him out of the former rubric, by which the same thing was enjoined.

<sup>1</sup> Cardw. Conf., p. 356.

health; and that this child may be virtuously brought up to lead a godly and a Christian life; remembering always, that baptism doth represent unto us our profession, which is, to follow the example of our Saviour Christ, and to be made like unto him; that, as he died, and rose again for us, so should we, who are baptized, die from sin, and rise again unto righteousness; continually mortifying all our evil and corrupt affections, and daily proceeding in all virtue and godliness of living.

¶ Then shall he add and say,

Acts viii. 14—17.
xiv. 21, 22.

YE are to take care that this child be brought to the Bishop to be confirmed by him, so soon as he can say the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the ten Commandments, in the vulgar tongue, and be further instructed in the Church-Catechism set forth for that purpose.

Matt. xviii. 14.
18, 19.
Gal. vi. 14.
Rev. xiv. 1.

It is certain, by God's Word, that Children which are baptized, dying before they commit actual sin, are undoubtedly saved.

To take away all scruple concerning the use of the sign of the Cross in Baptism; the true explication thereof, and the just reasons for the retaining of it, may be seen in the xxxth Canon, first published in the year MDCIV.

[This exhortation varies in its phraseology, but is always the same in substance.]

INFANTS, Innocents, and Children . . . by the sacrament of baptism do also obtain remission of their sins, and be made thereby the very sons and children of God. Inasmuch as infants, dying in their infancy, shall undoubtedly be saved thereby, and else not.

Articles to establish Christian quietness, 1534.
Wilkins' Conc., iii. 818.

It is certain, by God's Word This Rubric is, in part, a reproduction of words which appeared first in "Articles to establish Christian quietness," put forth by the authority of Henry VIII. in 1536; afterwards in the "Institution of a Christian Man," which was printed in the following year; and, thirdly, in the Rubric before the Confirmation Service. When introduced into the latter Rubric, the words "and else not" were dropped, and the object of their introduction there was to show, that Confirmation was not essential to the salvation of baptized Infants.

Neither in this Rubric, nor in any other formulary of the Church of England, is any decision given as to the state of infants dying without Baptism. Bishop Bethell says [Regeneration in Baptism, p. xiv], that the common opinion of the ancient Christians was, that they are not saved: and as our Lord has given us such plain words in John iii. 5, this seems a reasonable opinion. But this opinion does not involve any cruel idea of pain or suffering for little ones so deprived of the Sacrament of new birth by no fault of their own. It rather supposes them to be as if they had never been, when they might, through the care and love of their parents, have been reckoned among the number of those "in whom is no guile," and "who follow the Lamb whithersoever He goeth."

THE MINISTRATION OF PRIVATE BAPTISM OF CHILDREN IN HOUSES.

[Most of the references in this and the following Service are in addition to those on the same subjects in the former Service.]

¶ The Curates of every Parish shall often admonish the people, that they defer not the Baptism of their children longer than the first or second Sunday next after their birth, or other Holy-day falling between, unless upon a great and reasonable cause, to be approved by the Curate.

¶ And also they shall warn them, that without like great cause and necessity they procure not their children to be baptized at home in their houses. But when need shall compel them so to do, then Baptism shall be administered on this fashion.

¶ First, let the Minister of the Parish (or in his absence, any other lawful Minister that can be procured) with them that are present call upon God, and say the Lord's Prayer, and so many of the Collects appointed to be said before in the Form of Publick Baptism, as the time and present exigence will suffer. And then, the Child being named by some one that is present, the Minister shall pour Water upon it, saying these words;

N. I baptize thee In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

[See references in the Service for Public Baptism.]

¶ Non licet laico vel mulieri aliquem baptizare, Salisbury Use. nisi in articulo necessitatis.

¶ Notandum est quod quilibet sacerdos parochialis debet parochianis suis formam baptizandi in aqua pura . . . frequenter in diebus dominicis exponere, ut si necessitas emergat sciant parvulos in forma ecclesie baptizare, proferendo formam verborum baptismi in lingua materna . . . sic dicendo:

I CRISTENE thee N. in the name of the Fadir, and of the Sone, and of the Holy Gost. Amen.

PRIVATE BAPTISM OF INFANTS.

The Baptism of Infants who were in extreme danger was provided for by certain Rubrics at the end of the Office in the ancient Manuals of the Church of England, and these Rubrics made no mention of any prayer being used, or any other words than those essential to Baptism. These Rubrics form the foundation of our present Office for Private Baptism. In the first Prayer Book, that of 1549, the person baptizing was directed to "call upon God for His grace, and say the Lord's Prayer, if the time suffice:" the use of the Lord's Prayer with that special intention being doubtless what was meant, and not any extempore prayer. But in 1661, Bishop Cosin suggested the substitution of the words "call upon God, and say the Lord's Prayer, and so many of the Collects appointed," &c. Probably great latitude had been introduced under a misinterpretation of the former Rubric, and the alteration was intended to suppress the use of extempore prayer in Private Baptisms by giving an authorized form to be used. At the same time the spirit of the old Rubrics was retained in the words, "as the time and present exigence will suffer," showing that the prayers were not to be considered as an essential part of Baptism, and that if the child is supposed to be dying rapidly, it is to be baptized at once. The Collect of Thanksgiving was also introduced from the public Service. Various attempts had been made to alter the rules of the Church, so as entirely to exclude Baptism by lay persons, even in case of extreme emergency, but these attempts were so contrary to the spirit of the ancient Church that they were never allowed to prevail<sup>1</sup>, beyond the extent of so modifying the Rubric as effectually to discourage lay Baptism when there was no necessity for it.

In addition to the Rubrics of this Office, there is also a special law of the Church on the subject of Private Baptism, the definite <sup>1</sup> See Cardw. Synodalia, i. 135, for a proposed Canon on the subject, and the Introduction to the Baptismal Offices.

¶ Then, all kneeling down, the Minister shall give thanks unto God, and say,

WE yield thee hearty thanks, most merciful Father, that it hath pleased thee to regenerate this Infant with thy holy Spirit, to receive him for thine own child by adoption, and to incorporate him into thy holy Church. And we humbly beseech thee to grant, that as he is now made partaker of the death of thy Son, so he may be also of his resurrection; And that finally, with the residue of thy Saints, he may inherit thine everlasting kingdom; through the same thy Son Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

¶ And let them not doubt, but that the child so baptized is lawfully and sufficiently baptized, and ought not to be baptized again. Yet nevertheless, if the child, which is after this sort baptized, do afterward live, it is expedient that it be brought into the Church, to the intent that, if the Minister of the same Parish did himself baptize that child, the Congregation may be certified of the true Form of Baptism, by him privately before used: In which case he shall say thus,

Un'til 1661,
"Priest or Minister."

1 Cor. xiv. 40.

I CERTIFY you, that according to the due and prescribed Order of the Church, at such a time, and at such a place, before divers witnesses I baptized this Child.

¶ Et si puer fuerit baptizatus secundum illam formam, caveat sibi unusquisque ne iterum eundem baptizet: sed si hujusmodi parvuli convalescant, deferantur ad ecclesiam et dicantur super eos exorcismi et catechismi cum unctionibus et omnibus aliis supradictis præter immersionem aquæ et formam baptismi, quæ omnino sunt omittenda, videlicet: Quid petis: et ab hinc usque ad illum locum quo Sacerdos debeat parvulum chrismate linire.

words of which make it a good guide both for Clergy and Laity. It is as follows:—

"Canon 69.

"Ministers not to defer Christening, if the Child be in danger.

"If any Minister, being duly, without any manner of collusion, informed of the weakness and danger of death of any infant unbaptized in his parish, and thereupon desired to go or come to the place where the said infant remaineth, to baptize the same, shall either wilfully refuse so to do, or of purpose, or of gross negligence, shall so defer the time, as, when he might conveniently have resorted to the place, and have baptized the said infant, it dieth, through such his default, unbaptized; the said Minister shall be suspended for three months; and before his restitution shall acknowledge his fault, and promise before his Ordinary, that he will not wittingly incur the like again. Provided, that where there is a Curate, or a Substitute, this Constitution shall not extend to the Parson or Vicar himself, but to the Curate or Substitute present<sup>1</sup>."

It cannot be said that there is never any "collusion" in this matter, and the clergyman is therefore bound to make strict inquiry as to the condition of the child whose baptism in private is required. Objection to the rite being administered during time of Divine Service, the expense of a "christening feast," desire to make sure of "burial money," (which is lost when children die unbaptized,) are all reasons that have come within the writer's experience: and, except in cases where there is manifest danger of death, it is best both for the Clergy and the Laity that a medical certificate should be provided, stating that there is weakness or disease which renders the infant incapable of being brought to Church for public baptism without risk.

The remaining part of what is printed under the heading, "The Ministration of Private Baptism of Children in Houses," is an adaptation to the case of such children of that part of the Office for Baptism which is not used in private.

The object of bringing a convalescent child who has been clinically baptized to Church, is twofold. (1) First, that a solemn public recognition may be made of the child's regenerated condition by the Priest "receiving him as one of the flock of true Christian people" in the face of the Church: and (2), secondly, that the child, by its sureties, may make those solemn engagements of the Baptismal vow which were omitted when it was supposed that the infant would not "come of age" to be capable of fulfilling them.

The form in which the certification is to be given when it is to be made by the clergyman who has himself baptized the child was not defined until the revision of 1661. In Bishop Cosin's Durham Book he has written the following proposed form: "... in which case he shall say thus: I certify you that, according to the due and prescribed Order of the Church, in case of necessity, at such a time, and in such a place, and before divers witnesses, I administered private Baptism to this child, who being born in original

<sup>1</sup> The last words, of course, refer to a non-resident Parson or Vicar, "Curate" being used in the comprehensive sense of the clergyman in actual charge of the parish.

¶ But if the child were baptized by any other lawful Minister, then the Minister of the Parish where the child was born or christened, shall examine and try whether the child be lawfully baptized, or no. In which case, if those that bring any child to the Church do answer, that the same child is already baptized, then shall the Minister examine them further, saying,

BY whom was this child baptized?

Who was present when this child was baptized?

Acts xix. 3—5.

Because some things essential to this Sacrament may happen to be omitted through fear or haste, in such times of extremity; therefore I demand further of you,

With what matter was this child baptized?

With what words was this child baptized?

¶ And if the Minister shall find by the answers of such as bring the child, that all things were done as they ought to be; then shall not he christen the child again, but shall receive him as one of the flock of true Christian people, saying thus,

¶ Et ideo si laicus baptizaverit puerum, ante- quam deferatur ad ecclesiam, interroget Sacerdos diligenter quid dixerit, et quid fecerit:

et si invenerit laicum discrete et debito modo baptizasse, et formam verborum baptismi ut supra in suo idiomate integre protulisse, approbet factum, et non rebaptizet eum . . .

Lph. ii. 3—5.
v. 26.
Tit. iii. 5—7.
Matt. xviii. 1—14.

I CERTIFY you, that in this case all is well done, and according unto due order, concerning the baptizing of this child; who being born in original sin, and in the wrath of God, is now, by the laver of Regeneration in Baptism, received into the number of the children of God, and heirs of everlasting life: for our Lord Jesus Christ doth not deny his grace and mercy unto such Infants, but most lovingly doth call them unto him, as the holy Gospel doth witness to our comfort on this wise.

[Mark x. 13—16.]

¶ After the Gospel is read, the Minister shall make this brief Exhortation upon the words of the Gospel.

Mark ix. 23, 24.
Matt. xxi. 21, 22.
John xvii. 2, 3.
Matt. xviii. 14.
xix. 13—15.
Ps. ciii. 1—4.
Luke xi. 1—4.

BELOVED, ye hear in this Gospel the words of our Saviour Christ, that he commanded the children to be brought unto him; how he blamed those that would have kept them from him; how he exhorted all men to follow their innocency. Ye perceive how by his outward gesture and deed he declared his good will toward them; for he embraced them in his arms, he laid his hands upon them, and blessed them. Doubt ye not therefore, but earnestly believe, that he hath likewise favourably received this present infant; that he hath embraced him with the arms of his mercy; and (as he hath promised in his holy Word) will give unto him the blessing of eternal life, and make him partaker of his everlasting kingdom. Wherefore, we being thus persuaded of the good will of our heavenly Father, declared by his Son Jesus Christ, towards this infant, let us faithfully and devoutly give thanks unto him, and say the prayer which the Lord himself taught us.

sin, &c. ut infra." From this it would appear, that the whole of the following part of the form, as afterwards printed, was intended by him to have been used in every case. The internal evidence of the Office seems to indicate such an intention also, and probably the omission is a clerical error, which has arisen from Cosin not writing the whole at length in his MS. revision.

Cosin also transferred the Lord's Prayer from the place which it here occupies, and which is that of the old Office, to the same place as it occupies in the ordinary service for Public Baptism: but although his alteration is left as he wrote it, while erasures are on either side, it was not printed, and the two forms of the Office do not agree.

OUR Father, which art in heaven,
Hallowed be thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, As it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us
from evil. Amen.

Ps. xli. 13.
1 Pet. ii. 9.
Eph. i. 15—19.
Acts ii. 38, 39.
2 Thess. ii. 13, 14.
Gal. iii. 29.
Col. ii. 6, 7.
2 Pet. iii. 18.

ALmighty and everlasting God, heavenly Father, we give thee humble thanks, that thou hast vouchsafed to call us to the knowledge of thy grace, and faith in thee: Increase this knowledge, and confirm this faith in us evermore. Give thy holy Spirit to this infant, that he, being born again, and being made an heir of everlasting salvation, through our Lord Jesus Christ, may continue thy servant, and attain thy promise; through the same our Lord Jesus Christ thy Son, who liveth and reigneth with thee and the Holy Spirit, now and for ever.
Amen.

¶ Then shall the Priest demand the Name of the child; which being by the Godfathers and Godmothers pronounced, the Minister shall say,

1 John iii. 8, 9.
v. 19.
Gal. v. 16—21.

DOST thou, in the name of this Child, renounce the devil and all his works, the vain pomp and glory of this world, with all covetous desires of the same, and the carnal desires of the flesh, so that thou wilt not follow, nor be led by them?

Answer.

I renounce them all.

Minister.

DOST thou believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth?

And in Jesus Christ his only-begotten Son our Lord? And that he was conceived by the Holy Ghost; born of the Virgin Mary; that he suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead, and buried; that he went down into hell, and also did rise again the third day; that he ascended into heaven, and sitteth at the right hand of God the Father Almighty; and from thence shall come again at the end of the world, to judge the quick and the dead?

And dost thou believe in the Holy Ghost; the holy Catholick Church;
the Communion of Saints; the Remission of sins; the Resurrection of the flesh; and everlasting life after death?

Answer.

All this I stedfastly believe.

Minister.

WILT thou then obediently keep God's holy will and commandments, and walk in the same all the days of thy life?

1 John ii. 3, 4, 6.
Ps. cxix. 4, 5, 33.
104. 115.

Answer.

I will.

¶ Then the Priest shall say,

WE receive this child into the congregation of Christ's flock, and do + sign him with the sign of the Cross, in token that hereafter he shall not be ashamed to confess the faith of Christ crucified, and manfully to fight under his banner, against sin, the world, and the devil; and to continue Christ's faithful soldier and servant unto his life's end. Amen.

Acts ii. 47.
+ Here the Priest shall make a cross upon the Child's forehead.

Mark viii. 38.
1 John vi. 4, 5.
1 Pet. v. 8, 9.
2 Tim. iv. 7, 8.

¶ Then shall the Priest say,

SEEING now, dearly beloved brethren, that this child is by Baptism regenerate, and grafted into the body of Christ's Church, let us give thanks unto Almighty God for these benefits; and with one accord make our prayers unto him, that this child may lead the rest of his life according to this beginning.

2 Cor. v. 17.
1 Cor. xii. 13.
Ps. cxvii. 12.
lxviii. 19.
Acts iv. 24.
Col. ii. 6, 7.

¶ Then shall the Priest say,

WE yield thee hearty thanks, most merciful Father, that it hath pleased thee to regenerate this Infant with thy holy Spirit, to receive

1 Cor. i. 4. xii. 13.
Rom. viii. 16.
Col. i. 13. 18. ii.
12.
Gal. ii. 20.
Eph. iv. 20—24.

At the end of the Exhortation in the Prayer Books, as they stood before 1661, there was a Rubric, "And so forth, as in Public Baptism." This Rubric was erased by Cosin, and he substituted, "Then shall he add and say, Furthermore, I require you to take care ut supra in public Baptism." This Supplementary charge is not printed in the Sealed books, yet it seems clear that its omission was a clerical error, and that it ought to be inserted by the clergyman when he uses the Office.

There is, in fact, a certain want of exact consistency about the use of this Office (and the same is observable in the use of the unreformed Office "ad faciendum Catechumenum") over a baptized child. It is also impossible to follow it exactly if an attempt is

Phil. iii. 10, 11.
Acts xv. 16, 17.
xx. 32.
Heb. iii. 14. xii.
22—24.

him for thine own Child by adoption, and to incorporate him into thy holy Church. And humbly we beseech thee to grant, that he, being dead unto sin and living unto righteousness, and being buried with Christ in his death, may crucify the old man, and utterly abolish the whole body of sin; and that, as he is made partaker of the death of thy Son, he may also be partaker of his resurrection; so that finally, with the residue of thy holy Church, he may be an inheritor of thine everlasting kingdom; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

¶ Then, all standing up, the Priest shall say to the Godfathers and Godmothers this Exhortation following.

Ps. i. 14.
Gal. iv. 1, 2.
Deut. iv. 9, 10.
vi. 7.
Ps. xxxiv. 11.
Rom. x. 17.
Luke ii. 41, 42.
Heb. xi. 6.
Luke xviii. 1.
John xiv. 10, 14.
Isa. lv. 3.

FORASMUCH as this Child hath promised by you his sureties to renounce the devil and all his works, to believe in God, and to serve him; ye must remember, that it is your parts and duties to see that this infant

¶ But if they which bring the Infant to the Church do make such uncertain answers to the Priest's questions, as that it cannot appear that the Child was baptized with Water, In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, (which are essential parts of Baptism,) then let the Priest baptize it in the form before appointed for Publick Baptism of Infants; saving that at the dipping of the Child in the Font, he shall use this form of words.

IF thou art not already baptized, N. I baptize thee In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

be taught, so soon as he shall be able to learn, what a solemn vow, promise, and profession, he hath here made by you. And that he may know these things the better, ye shall call upon him to hear Sermons; and chiefly ye shall provide, that he may learn the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the ten Commandments, in the vulgar tongue, and all other things which a Christian ought to know and believe to his soul's health; and that this child may be virtuously brought up to lead a godly and a Christian life; remembering always, that Baptism doth represent unto us our profession; which is, to follow the example of our Saviour Christ and to be made like unto him that, as he died, and rose again for us, so should we, who are baptized, die from sin and rise again unto righteousness; continually mortifying all our evil and corrupt affections, and daily proceeding in all virtue and godliness of living.

Eph. vi. 4.
2 Tim. ii. 19, 22.
Tit. iii. 4—8.
John xiv. 15—17.
Phil. ii. 5.
1 Cor. xv. 3, 4, 19.
Heb. vi. 1—3.
2 Cor. xiii. 7, 9, 11.
2 Cor. vii. 1.

.... Si vero dubitet rationabiliter Sacerdos utrum infans ad baptizandum sibi oblatus prius in forma debita fuerit baptizatus vel non, debet omnia perficere cum eo sicut cum alio quem constat sibi non baptizatum, præterquam quod verba sacramentalia essentialia proferre debeat sub conditione, hoc modo dicendo:

N. si baptizatus es, ego non rebaptizo te: sed si nondum baptizatus es, ego baptizo te, in nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti. Amen. Sub aspersione vel immersione ut supra.

made to amalgamate it with the Office for Public Baptism. It was probably intended to be used at the font, but no water should be placed in the latter.

CONDITIONAL BAPTISM.

The earliest mention of conditional Baptism is in the statutes of St. Boniface, Archbishop of Mentz about A.D. 745. His words as given by Martene [de Antiq., rit. i., l. xvi. 10] are, "Si de aliquibus dubium sit, utrum sint baptizati, absque ullo scrupulo baptizentur; his tamen verbis præmissis: Non te rebaptizo, sed si nondum es baptizatus, etc." It is not probable that Boniface would originate this form, nor is it likely that the whole Western Church would so exactly have adopted any form originated by him; we may therefore reasonably conclude that his words represent the established usage of the ancient and settled Churches of Europe when he wrote, and that the charity of the Church had always provided such a form.

Conditional Baptism ought not to be administered hastily as a means of escaping from a difficulty. The principle of the Church is clear and unhesitating (as is shown in the rubric above) that if water and the words of Institution have been used they have constituted a true Baptism, the iteration of which would be sinful in the baptizer, and at the same time useless to the baptized. But, after careful inquiry, doubts may often be felt as to the due use of the essentials of Baptism, and in such a case the conditional form should certainly be adopted, for the sake of the child.

THE MINISTRATION OF BAPTISM TO SUCH AS ARE OF RIPER YEARS, AND ABLE TO ANSWER FOR THEMSELVES.

[The References on Infant Baptism are generally applicable here also.]

¶ When any such persons as are of riper years are to be baptized, timely notice shall be given to the Bishop, or whom he shall appoint for that purpose, a week before at the least, by the Parents, or some other discreet persons; that so due care may be taken for their examination, whether they be sufficiently instructed in the principles of the Christian Religion; and that they may be exhorted to prepare themselves with prayers and fasting for the receiving of this holy Sacrament.

¶ And if they shall be found fit, then the God-fathers and Godmothers (the people being assembled upon the Sunday or Holy-day appointed) shall be ready to present them at the Font immediately after the second Lesson, either at Morning or Evening Prayer, as the Curate in his discretion shall think fit.

¶ And standing there, the Priest shall ask whether any of the persons here presented be baptized or no: If they shall answer, No; then shall the Priest say thus,

DEARLY beloved, forasmuch as all men are conceived and born in sin, (and that which is born of the flesh is flesh,) and they that are in the flesh cannot please God, but live in sin, committing many actual transgressions; and that our Saviour Christ saith, None can enter into the kingdom of God, except he be regenerate and born anew of Water and of the holy Ghost; I beseech you to call upon God the Father, through our Lord Jesus Christ, that of his bounteous goodness he will grant to these persons that which by nature they cannot have, that they may be baptized with water and the holy Ghost, and received into Christ's holy Church, and be made lively members of the same.

¶ Then shall the Priest say,

Let us pray.

(¶ And here all the Congregation shall kneel.)

ALMIGHTY and everlasting God, who of thy great mercy didst save Noah and his family in the ark from perishing by water; and also didst safely lead the children of Israel thy people through the Red Sea, figuring thereby thy holy Baptism; and by the Baptism of thy well-beloved Son Jesus Christ, in the river Jordan, didst sanctify the element of water to the mystical washing away of sin; We beseech thee, for thine infinite mercies, that thou wilt mercifully look upon these thy servants; wash them and sanctify them with the holy Ghost, that they being delivered from thy wrath may be received into the ark of Christ's Church; and being stedfast in faith, joyful through hope, and rooted in charity, may so pass the waves of this troublesome world, that finally they may come to the land of everlast-

2 Pet ii 4, 5. 9.
Gen. vi., vii., viii.
Ex. xiv.
Ps. cvi. 9.
Col. ii. 11, 12.
1 John v. 6.
Ps. cxlv. 9.
1 Pet. i. 2.
Rom. i. 18.
Gen. vii. 1.
Heb. iii. 14. 6.
vi. 19.
Eph. iii. 17.
Acts xiv. 21, 22.

John iii. 6.
Rom. viii. 5—8.
ii. 10—19. 25.
Gal. iii. 22.

THE BAPTISM OF ADULTS.

In that Preface to the Prayer Book which was written by Bishop Sanderson in 1661, it is stated that among other alterations and additions it was thought expedient to add "an Office for the Baptism of such as are of riper years; which, although not so necessary when the former Book was compiled, yet by the growth of Anabaptism, through the licentiousness of the late times crept in amongst us, is now become necessary, and may be always useful for the baptizing of Natives in our Plantations, and others converted to the Faith." It is probable that this was suggested by Bishop Cosin, for at the end of the Office for Private ing life, there to reign with thee world without end; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

1 Tim. i. 17.
Ps. cxlvi. 7—9.
cxiv. 8.
John iii. 36.
vi. 39, 40.
James v. 16.
Acts xxii. 16.
Col. ii. 12, 13.
Luke xi. 9—12.
John xiii. 8.
Gal. iii. 27, 28.
1 John i. 7.
1 Pet. v. 10.
Rom. vi. 25.

ALmighty and immortal God, the aid of all that need, the helper of all that flee to thee for succour, the life of them that believe, and the resurrection of the dead; We call upon thee for these persons, that they, coming to thy holy Baptism, may receive remission of their sins by spiritual regeneration. Receive them, O Lord, as thou hast promised by thy well-beloved Son, saying, Ask, and ye shall receive; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you: So give now unto us that ask; let us that seek find; open the gate unto us that knock; that these persons may enjoy the everlasting benediction of thy heavenly washing, and may come to the eternal kingdom which thou hast promised by Christ our Lord. Amen.

¶ Then shall the people stand up, and the Priest shall say,

Hear the words of the Gospel, written by Saint John, in the third Chapter, beginning at the first verse.

THERE was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews. The same came to Jesus by night, and said unto him, Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from God; for no man can do these miracles that thou doest, except God be with him. Jesus answered and said unto him, Verily, verily I say unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God. Nicodemus saith unto him, How can a man be born when he is old? Can he enter the second time into his mother's womb, and be born?

Jesus answered, Verily, verily I say unto thee, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit. Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born again. The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof; but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth: so is every one that is born of the Spirit.

¶ After which he shall say this exhortation following.

BELOVED, ye hear in this Gospel John iii. 3—5. the express words of our Saviour Christ, that except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. Whereby ye may perceive the great necessity of this Sacrament, where it may be had. Likewise, immediately before his ascension into heaven, (as we read in the last Chapter of Saint Mark's Gospel,) Mark xvi. 16. he gave command to his disciples, saying, Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned. Which also sheweth unto us the great benefit we reap thereby. For which cause Saint Peter the Apostle, when upon his first preaching of the Gospel many were pricked at the heart, and said to him and the Acts ii. 38—40. rest of the Apostles, Men and brethren, what shall we do? replied and said unto them, Repent and be baptized every one of you for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. For the promise is to you and your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call. And with Baptism in his Durham Book, he has written, "Print in a new leaf, The Ministration of Publick Baptism to such as are of perfect age, or come to the years of discretion, and are able to render an account of their faith, and undertake for themselves;" all after "discretion" being subsequently erased. The Office was, however, framed under the direction of a Committee of Convocation, consisting of the following Bishops and Clergy:—

Henchman, Bishop of Salisbury.
Laney, " Peterborough.
Griffith, " St. Asaph.

Earl, Dean of Westminster.
Oliver, " Worcester.
Sparrow, Archdeacon of Sudbury.
Creed, " Wilts.
Heywood,

Gunning, afterwards Bishop of Chichester and of Ely.

These met at the Savoy for the purpose on May 20th, 1661, a date which shows that the review of the Prayer Book was begun six months before the final official steps towards revision were undertaken [see p. xl]. Wood, in his Athenæ Oxoniensis, says many other words exhorted he them, saying, Save yourselves from this untoward generation. For (as the same Apostle testifieth in another place) even Baptism doth also now save us, (not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience towards God,) by the resurrection of Jesus Christ. Doubt ye not therefore, but earnestly believe, that he will favourably receive these present persons, truly repenting, and coming unto him by faith; that he will grant them remission of their sins, and bestow upon them the holy Ghost; that he will give them the blessing of eternal life, and make them partakers of his everlasting kingdom.

Wherefore we being thus persuaded of the good will of our heavenly Father towards these persons, declared by his Son Jesus Christ; let us faithfully and devoutly give thanks to him, and say,

ALMIGHTY and everlasting God, heavenly Father, we give thee humble thanks, for that thou hast vouchsafed to call us to the knowledge of thy grace, and faith in thee: Increase this knowledge, and confirm this faith in us evermore. Give thy holy Spirit to these persons, that they may be born again and be made heirs of everlasting salvation, through our Lord Jesus Christ, who liveth and reigneth with thee and the Holy Spirit, now and for ever. Amen.

¶ Then the Priest shall speak to the persons to be baptized on this wise :

WELL-BELOVED, who are come hither desiring to receive holy Baptism, ye have heard how the congregation hath prayed that our Lord Jesus Christ would vouchsafe to receive you and bless you, to release you of your sins, to give you the kingdom of heaven and everlasting life. Ye have heard also that our Lord Jesus Christ hath promised in his holy Word to grant all those things that we have prayed for; which promise he, for his part, will most surely keep and perform.

Wherefore, after this promise made by Christ, ye must also faithfully, for your part, promise in the presence of these your witnesses, and this whole congregation, that ye will renounce the devil and all his works, and constantly believe God's holy Word, and obediently keep his commandments.

¶ Then shall the Priest demand of each of the persons to be baptized, severally, these Questions following :

Question.

DOST thou renounce the devil and all his works, the vain pomp and glory of the world, with all covetous desires of the same, and the carnal desires of the flesh, so that thou wilt not follow, nor be led by them?

Answer.

I renounce them all.

Question.

DOST thou believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth?

And in Jesus Christ his only-begotten Son our Lord? And that he was conceived by the Holy Ghost; born of the Virgin Mary; that he suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead, and buried; that he went down into hell, and also did rise again the third day; that he ascended into heaven, and sitteth at the right hand of God the Father Almighty; and from thence shall come again at the end of the world, to judge the quick and the dead?

1 Pet. iii. 21.

1 Tim. ii. 8.
Acts xx. 21. viii.
36—38. x. 47.
John x. 28.
2 Pet. i. 11.

1 Tim. ii. 3, 4.
John iii. 16, 17.
1 Cor. ix. 15.

Ps. xli. 13.
Eph. i. 3. 15—19.
Col. ii. 3. iii. 10.
1 John iii. 23.
2 Thess. ii. 13, 14.
John i. 13.
Heb. v. 9.
Rev. xxii. 5.

3 John 1.

Heb. vi. 16—20.
John xiv. 13, 14.
2 Cor. i. 20.
Ruth iv. 9.
Matt. xviii. 16.

1 Pet. v. 8, 9.
1 John iii. 8, 9.
v. 19.
Gal. v. 19—21.

that the Bishop of St. Asaph had the chief hand in composing this form. It received the approbation of Convocation on May 31st, 1661.

Two rubrics at the end of this Office furnish a rule as to the age of the persons for whom it is to be used. The first enjoins that every one baptized with it shall be confirmed and be admitted to the Holy Communion as soon as conveniently may be.

From this it is evident that all who would be considered old enough to be confirmed if they had been baptized come within the limits of those "riper years" named in the title. The second rubric lays down the rule that the office is not to be used for those who are not yet come to years of discretion to answer for themselves, but that such shall be baptized with the office for Infant Baptism. Adult idiots ought to be baptized, but not with this Office: and perhaps that for Private Baptism is best suited to their case, if neglect of Baptism in their infancy has been added to

And dost thou believe in the Holy Ghost; the holy Catholick Church, the Communion of Saints; the Remission of sins; the Resurrection of the flesh; and everlasting life after death?

Answer.

All this I stedfastly believe.

Question.

Acts viii. 36—38.

WILT thou be baptized in this faith?

Answer.

That is my desire.

Question.

1 John ii. 3, 4, 6.

WILT thou then obediently keep God's holy will and commandments, and walk in the same all the days of thy life?

Answer.

I will endeavour so to do, God being my helper.

¶ Then shall the Priest say,

1 Cor. xv. 45. 22.
Eph. ii. 4—6.

O MERCIFUL God, grant that the old Adam in these persons may be so buried, that the new man may be raised up in them. Amen.

Rom. vi. 11.
Gal. v. 22, 23.

Grant that all carnal affections may die in them, and that all things belonging to the Spirit may live and grow in them. Amen.

2 Cor. xii. 9.
Eph. iii. 16, vi.
10, 11, 13.

Grant that they may have power and strength to have victory, and to triumph, against the devil, the world, and the flesh. Amen.

2 Cor. ii. 14.
1 Cor. iv. 1.
Col. i. 9, 10, 28.
iii. 24.
1 Tim. vi. 15.

Grant that they, being here dedicated to thee by our office and ministry, may also be endued with heavenly virtues, and everlastingly rewarded through thy mercy, O blessed Lord God, who dost live, and govern all things, world without end. Amen.

Zech. xiii. 1.
Eph. i. 7.
1 John i. 7.
Matt. xxviii. 18, 19.
John xvi. 23, 24.

ALMIGHTY, everliving God, whose most dearly beloved Son Jesus Christ, for the forgiveness of our sins, did shed out of his most precious side both water and blood, and gave commandment to his disciples, that they should go teach all nations, and baptize them In the Name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost; Regard, we beseech thee, the supplications of this congregation; sanctify this water to the mystical washing away of sin; and grant that the persons now to be baptized therein may receive the fulness of thy grace, and ever remain in the number of thy faithful and elect children, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

1 John v. 14.
1 Cor. vi. 11.
Tit. iii. 5, 6.
Acts ii. 41, 42.
1 Pet. i. 2.

¶ Then shall the Priest take each person to be baptized by the right hand, and placing him conveniently by the Font, according to his discretion, shall ask the Godfathers and Godmothers the Name; and then shall dip him in the water, or pour water upon him, saying,

N I baptize thee In the Name of . the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

¶ Then shall the Priest say,

WE receive this person into the congregation of Christ's flock; + and do sign him with the sign of the cross, in token that hereafter he shall not be ashamed to confess the faith of Christ crucified, and manfully to fight under his banner, against sin, the world, and the devil; and to continue Christ's faithful soldier and servant unto his life's end. Amen.

Luke xii. 32.
Rom. iv. 11.
1 Cor. i. 23.
Mark viii. 38.
1 John v. 4, 5.
2 Tim. iv. 7, 8.
Matt. xxiv. 13.

+ Here the Priest shall make a cross upon the person's forehead.

¶ Then shall the Priest say,

SEEING now, dearly beloved brethren, that these persons are regenerate, and grafted into the body of Christ's Church, let us give thanks unto Almighty God for these benefits, and with one accord make our prayers unto him, that they may lead the rest of their life according to this beginning.

2 Cor. v. 17.
1 Cor. xii. 13.
Eph. i. 22, 23.
Ps. lxxviii. 19.
Matt. xviii. 19.
2 Pet. iii. 18.

their natural misfortune. Perhaps it may be laid down as a general rule that while Confirmation is not given to young children, all under the age of twelve should be baptized as Infants, and all persons above that age with the present Office.

As this Office was framed entirely for adult persons, whether born of Christian or of Heathen parents, it necessarily recurs to those principles on which Holy Baptism was administered in the primitive times of Christianity when millions of such persons were so admitted into the Church of Christ. Thus the Candidate for Baptism is a Catechumen in the ancient sense; and as such is admitted to the sacrament of regeneration only by the express permission of a chief minister of the Church, and after proper instruction and examination, with the discipline of prayer and fasting. It may be observed also, that a Bishop or Priest is supposed throughout to be the minister of Adult Baptism in public; though, of course, the ordinary rules as to valid Baptism apply to extreme cases of dying persons, when no priest can be procured.

¶ Then shall be said the Lord's Prayer, all kneeling.

OUR Father, which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, As it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us from evil. Amen.

Col. i. 3. 6.
Phil. i. 4—6.
2 Cor. i. 3.
Acts ii. 38, 39.
xxvii. 18.
Col. ii. 6, 7.
1 Cor. xii. 7.
Acts xx. 32.
Col. i. 12—14.

WE yield thee humble thanks, O heavenly Father, that thou hast vouchsafed to call us to the knowledge of thy grace, and faith in thee: Increase this knowledge, and confirm this faith in us evermore. Give thy holy Spirit to these persons; that being now born again, and made heirs of everlasting salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, they may continue thy servants, and attain thy promises through the same Lord Jesus Christ thy Son, who liveth and reigneth with thee in the unity of the same Holy Spirit, everlastingly. Amen.

¶ Then, all standing up, the Priest shall use this Exhortation following; speaking to the Godfathers and Godmothers first.

1 Tim. vi. 12, 13.
Matt. xviii. 16.
2 Pet. i. 12.
Eccl. v. 4, 5.
2 Cor. xiii. 1.
Acts xvii. 11.
1 Thess. ii. 11—13.
2 Pet. iii. 18.
Tit. ii. 12.

FORASMUCH as these persons have promised in your presence to renounce the devil and all his works, to believe in God, and to serve him; ye must remember, that it is your part and duty to put them in mind, what a solemn vow, promise, and profession they have now made before this congregation, and especially before you their chosen witnesses. And ye are also to call upon them to use all diligence to be rightly instructed in God's holy Word; that so they may grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ, and live godly, righteously, and soberly in this present world.

¶ And then, speaking to the new baptized persons, he shall proceed, and say,

AND as for you, who have now by Baptism put on Christ, it is your part and duty also, being made the children of God and of the light, by faith in Jesus Christ, to walk answerably to your Christian calling, and as becometh the children of light; remembering always that Baptism representeth unto us our profession; which is, to follow the example of our Saviour Christ, and to be made like unto him; that as he died, and rose again for us; so should we who are baptized, die from sin, and rise again unto righteousness, continually mortifying all our evil and corrupt affections, and daily proceeding in all virtue and godliness of living.

Gal. iii. 26, 27.
Eph. iv. 1.
Eph. v. 8.
Rom. vi. 3—6, 11.
1 John ii. 61.
2 Pet. i. 3—7.

¶ It is expedient that every person thus baptized should be confirmed by the Bishop so soon after his Baptism as conveniently may be; that so he may be admitted to the holy Communion.

¶ If any persons not baptized in their infancy shall be brought to be baptized before they come to years of discretion to answer for themselves; it may suffice to use the Office for Publick Baptism of Infants, or (in case of extreme danger) the Office for Private Baptism, only changing the word [Infant] for [Child or Person] as occasion requireth.

The ritual of the Baptism of Adults differs from that of infants only in three particulars:—1. The person to be baptized answers the interrogatories himself. 2. The Priest takes him by the right hand and brings him to the font, "placing him conveniently by the Font." 3. An address to the newly baptized follows the short one which is made to the sponsors. To these it may be added, fourthly, though not directed in the rubric, that it is most reverent and seemly for the person who is being baptized to kneel during the act of Baptism. Women should also be provided with caps similar to those used at Confirmation, to be removed, of course, during the actual Baptism.

Persons who have come to years of discretion are sometimes in doubt respecting their baptism, and are anxious to be baptized with the conditional form. As a rule the Church has always concluded that those who have been born of Christian parents have been baptized, unless the contrary can be proved. Careful inquiry should, therefore, be made whether there is really any good reason for doubt before any such question is entertained. But if, after inquiry, there still remains cause for doubt, there seems to be no reason why the conditional form should not (the Bishop consenting) be used, although no actual provision is made for it in the case of adult persons. Even although a person may have been confirmed and have received the Holy Communion, if it is afterwards discovered that he has not been baptized, the sacrament of Baptism should be administered. In such a case, reverent doubt as to the effect of the latter Sacrament in supplying the omission of the former might well lead to the use of the conditional form.

AIN

INTRODUCTION TO THE CATECHISM.

THE ecclesiastical word Catechismus is derived from the Greek κατήχησις, and means literally an instruction by word of mouth of such a kind as to draw out a reply or echo<sup>1</sup>. In the earliest age of the Church the word was used for that kind of instruction which was given to the catechumens or candidates for Baptism [Luke i. 4]; and from this usage it has come to mean also, in later ages, the instruction which is given to candidates for Confirmation. A similar kind of instruction among the Jews is indicated by the only incident which is recorded of our Lord's childhood, when after three days' disappearance He was found by His Mother and Joseph "sitting in the midst of the doctors, both hearing them, and asking them questions" [Luke ii. 46].

In the Primitive Church catechizing appears to have been carried on by means of what we should now call a lecture, the questions being asked rather by the persons catechized than by the person catechizing. A life-like description of such a method is contained in an epistle of St. Augustine to Deo Gratias, which is, in fact, a treatise on catechizing, and has the title "De catechizandis rudibus." It was written A.D. 400. There is also an invaluable series of Catechetical Lectures by St. Cyril of Jerusalem, delivered in that city about A.D. 347. In the previous century Origen, and before him Clemens Alexandrinus (who left a series of Catechetical Lectures entitled Paedagogus), and Pantænus, his predecessor, had made the catechetical school of Alexandria famous for the instruction there conveyed in the principles of Christianity; but there can be no doubt that this instruction was of a less elementary character than what is usually understood by the word catechizing.

In St. Augustine's treatise he gives a description of the manner in which a catechist is to keep alive the attention and interest of the person who is being catechized: he also sets forth the subjects of instruction, and gives two examples, one long, the other short, of the mode in which those subjects were to be taught in detail. From these it appears to have been the custom first to give a narration of the Bible History, and then to show its connexion with Christianity, afterwards setting forth the doctrines of the Creed, and the principles of Christian duty. St. Cyril's lectures also begin with an exposition of the relation which the Old Testament history bears to Christ and Christianity: they then go on to explain the principles of Baptism and the benefits to be derived from it; afterwards expound the Creed in fifteen lectures; and conclude with five on the Sacraments of Baptism and the Lord's Supper, the latter addressed to the same set of hearers immediately after their baptism had taken place<sup>2</sup>.

It will be observed that this primitive form of instruction was of a different character from that fixed question and answer which we understand in modern times by the word Catechism. This was represented by the Interrogatories which formed part of the Office for Baptism and Confirmation, and which were called by that name both in primitive and in mediæval times. Thus St. Cyril says, "Let thy feet hasten to the Catechizings, receive with earnestness the Exorcisms; for whether thou art breathed upon or exorcised, the Ordinance is to thee salvation" [Introd. Lect. 9, Oxf. transl.]. So among Archbishop Peckham's Constitutions there is one which enjoins "that children baptized by laymen or women in case of urgent necessity are not to be baptized again;" and it is added, "let the exorcisms and catechisms be used over children so baptized, in reverence to the ordinances of the Church" [Johnson's Canons, ii. 277].

When the Offices of the Church of England were translated into English, and an endeavour was being made to develop further than had hitherto been done the intelligent use of them by the laity, and also to promote generally an intellectual religion among them, a Catechism was inserted in the Office for Confirmation. This was, of course, to be learned during the period of preparation for Confirmation; but the Rubric directed that when the rite was to be administered, the Bishop, or some one appointed by him, should "appose" the persons to be confirmed by requiring them to answer such questions of this Catechism as the former should see fit. The object of this was stated to be that those who were about to be confirmed might "then themselves with their own mouth, and with their own consent, openly before the Church, ratify and confess" what their Godfathers and Godmothers had promised for them in their Baptism. This custom was continued until the last revision of the Prayer Book in 1661; but in 1552 the word "confess" in the rubric (used in the sense of confessing or professing our belief) was unfortunately altered to "confirm," and the rubric being then adopted as a preliminary address in the Confirmation Service (while that which had been referred to by the word was removed from it), a confusion of ideas was originated which connected the expression "ratify and confirm" with the ordinance of laying on of hands instead of with the catechizing by which it is preceded [see notes on Confirmation].

The Catechism which thus stood in the Prayer Book from 1549 to 1661 (under both the general title "Confirmation, wherein is contained a Catechism for children," and the particular one by which it is now alone headed), was nearly identical with the present one, but only extended as far as the end of the explanation of the Lord's Prayer<sup>1</sup>. It has often been said to have been made by Alexander Nowell, who was second master of Westminster School at the time when the Prayer Book was in preparation, but Dean of St. Paul's from 1560 to 1602. It has also been attributed to Bishop Poynt, who (at the age of thirty-three) was made Bishop of Rochester in 1550. But it is very unlikely that a young second master of Westminster School would have been entrusted with so grave an undertaking by the Divines who set forth the Prayer Book of 1549: and although Poynt published a Catechism in Latin and English, the licence to print it was only asked from Cecil by the Earl of Northumberland on September 7th, 1552<sup>2</sup>. Poynt had, however, been one of Cranmer's chaplains.

<sup>1</sup> "In κατήχέω is included an iteration, and from ἡκέω we have our word echo. 'Ἠκέω is indeed 'to sound the last syllable,' and such sounders haply there are enough; but κατήχέω is 'to sound in the whole, after one again.' And such is the repetition which is required of the right and true κατηχούμενοι, young catechized Christians, and those places are called κατηχήε that give the whole verse or word again." [Bp. Andrewes' Introduction to Pattern of Catechistical Doctrine.]

<sup>2</sup> St. Cyril's Exposition of the Lord's Prayer may be found at p. 31.

The name of Goodrich, Bishop of Ely, has also been associated with the authorship of a part of the Catechism. The authority for this is a stone tablet on the east side and another on the west of a spacious bow in a gallery which he built on the north side of the palace at Ely. These tablets have engraved upon them "our duty to God," and "our duty to our neighbour," in the words now so familiar to every child. The date upon them is 1552, and they are reasonably supposed to have been put up by Goodrich. As he was one of the Committee of Convocation by whom the Prayer Book was prepared<sup>3</sup>, there is no improbability in the supposition that these portions of the Catechism came from his pen; and if they did so, it may be fairly concluded that the remaining portions of it (as it stood at first) are his also.

The latter part of the Catechism was added by the authority of King James I., after the Hampton Court Conference<sup>4</sup>, the Puritans complaining through Dr. Reynolds that it was too short in its existing form<sup>5</sup>. "The addition," says Cosin, "was <sup>1</sup> There is a Catechism in the Confirmation Office (such as it is) of Hermann's "Consultation" which bears a general resemblance to that in the Prayer Book, and from which hints were probably taken for the composition of the latter. Some of its questions and answers will thus be of interest to the reader. They are given from Bishop Cosin's copy of Daye's transl. of 1537.

Demand. Dost thou profess thyself to be a Christian?

Answer. I profess.

Demand. What is it to be a Christian?

Answer. To be born again in Christ, and to have remission of sins, and participation of everlasting life through Him.

Demand. Whereby trustest thou that these things be given thee?

Answer. Because I am baptized in the Name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost.

Demand. What believest thou of God the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost?

Answer. The same that the Articles of our Creed do comprehend.

Demand. Rehearse them.

Answer. I do believe in God the Father Almighty, &c.

¶ Here let the child in this place recite all the articles of the Creed plainly and distinctly.

[After which follow questions on each article of the Creed, some of the answers being very long. These are followed by a repetition of the vows made at Baptism by the catechumen, and a statement of Christian duty. Some questions upon the Holy Communion are the only others that have any verbal resemblance to the Catechism of the Prayer Book.]

Demand. What doth the Communion of the congregation of Christ require besides?

Answer. It requireth also, that I receive the Supper of the Lord with other Christian men, to whom I come, and with whom I dwell, as one, that is one bread, and one body with them in Christ.

Demand. What is this Sacrament?

Answer. It is the communion of the Body and Blood of Christ, which, in the Lord's Supper, when it is celebrated according to the Institution of the Lord, be truly exhibited with the bread and wine.

* * * * *

Demand. Wilt thou faithfully perform and observe all these things, as thou hast now professed?

Answer. I will, by the help of our Lord Jesus Christ.

There is no rehearsal of the Ten Commandments or of the Lord's Prayer in this Catechism of Hermann; and it bears much more mark of temporary controversies than that in the Prayer Book.

<sup>2</sup> State Papers, Domestic. Edw. VI., xv. 3.

<sup>3</sup> See Hist. Introd. p. xxii.

<sup>4</sup> Hist. Introd. p. xxxvi.

<sup>5</sup> Much information about the long Catechisms of the Protestant Reformers may be found in Walchius, Bibl. Theol. vol. i. Nowell's Catechisms were republished at Oxford in 1835. The voluminous Catechism of the Council of Trent is in many respects a valuable summary of Christian doctrine, but was intended as a book of instructions for the clergy, and not for the use of children.

first penned by Bishop Overall (then Dean of St. Paul's) and allowed by the bishops" [Cosin's Notes, p. 491, Ang. Cath. Lib.]. Many other writers repeat the statement.

As Bishop Cosin wrote this about 1640, twenty years only after Overall's death; and as he had, in his early life, been chaplain to that good and learned Divine, no doubt he had authority for his statement; but it is also pretty well established, from internal evidence, that Overall translated from some Latin formula, probably from an ancient "A. B. C., with the Catechism," of unknown authorship, which was used in St. Paul's School, and of which there is a reprint dated 1687<sup>6</sup>.

As in many other particulars, so in the matter of Catechizing, the Reformation rekindled a principle and a practice which had been gradually becoming extinguished in that decadence of spirituality which had been the bane of the Church of England for a century or more, and from which the Reformation itself was a re-action. Accordingly in a set of Injunctions framed by Cranmer and issued by authority of Henry VIII. in 1536, the fifth was a reiteration of the rule so often to be met with in mediæval times, that the clergy should take care children were taught the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the Ten Commandments in their mother tongue<sup>7</sup>. This rule had been so neglected (it is stated in the Homily against Disobedience and wilful Rebellion) that few even of the most simple people were taught them except in Latin, which they of course could not understand. In the Injunctions of Edward VI. [1547] this duty was again enforced upon the clergy in the following words:—"Item. That every holyday throughout the year, when they have no sermon, they shall immediately after the Gospel, openly and plainly recite to their parishioners, in the pulpit, the Pater-noster, the Credo, and the Ten Commandments in English, to the intent the people may learn the same by heart; exhorting all parents and householders to teach their children and servants the same, as they are bound by the law of God, and in conscience to do . . . . Item. That they shall in confessions every Lent, examine every person that cometh to confession to them, whether they can recite the articles of their faith, the Paternoster, and the Ten Commandments in English, and hear them say the same particularly<sup>8</sup>." The Catechism was a natural development of this ancient and now revived practice. It appeared in the Prayer Book which was completed in the year [1548] following the above Injunctions; and at the end of the Confirmation Service, of which it formed a part, was the following rubric:—"¶ The Curate of every parish, once in six weeks at the least, upon warning by him given, shall, upon some Sunday or Holyday, half an hour before Evensong, openly in the Church instruct and examine so many children of his parish sent unto him, as the time will serve, and as he shall think convenient, in some part of this Catechism. And all fathers, mothers, masters, and dames shall cause their children, servants, and apprentices (which are not yet confirmed) to come to the Church at the day appointed, and obediently hear and be ordered by the Curate, until such time as they have learned all that is here appointed for them to learn. ¶ And whensoever the Bishop shall give knowledge for children to be brought afore him to any convenient place for their confirmation, then shall the Curate of every parish either bring or send in writing the names of all those children of his parish which can say the Articles of their Faith, the Lord's Prayer, and the Ten Commandments; and also how many of them can answer to the other questions contained in this Catechism." In the previous Injunctions it had been ordered that none should be admitted to the Holy Communion until they could say these three primary summaries of Faith, Prayer, and Duty. A rubric following the above now embodied this rule in a different form,—"¶ And there shall none be admitted to the Holy Communion until such time as he be confirmed." In 1549 other Injunctions were issued, and the eighth is, "Item. That the Curates every sixth week at the least, teach and declare diligently the Catechism, according to the book of the same<sup>1</sup>." The forty-fourth of Queen Elizabeth's Injunctions of 1559 reiterates that of Edward VI., altering the time to "every holy-day, and every second Sunday in the year<sup>2</sup>." All these Injunctions were embodied in the fifty-ninth Canon of the Church of England in the year 1603<sup>3</sup>.

<sup>6</sup> As Erasmus and Colet were very intimate, it is not improbable that this Catechism may have originated with the former, who was a great authority at the time of the Reformation.

<sup>7</sup> See Hist. Introd. p. xxiii.

<sup>8</sup> Cardw. Doc. Ann. i. 7. 10.

"Canon 59.

"Ministers to Catechize every Sunday.

"Every Parson, Vicar, or Curate, upon every Sunday and Holy-day, before Evening Prayer, shall, for half an hour or more, examine and instruct the youth and ignorant persons in his parish, in the Ten Commandments, the Articles of the Belief, and in the Lord's Prayer; and shall diligently hear, instruct, and teach them the Catechism set forth in the Book of Common Prayer. And all fathers, mothers, masters, and mistresses, shall cause their children, servants, and apprentices, which have not learned the Catechism, to come to the Church at the time appointed, obediently to hear, and to be ordered by the Minister, until they have learned the same. And if any Minister neglect his duty herein, let him be sharply reprov'd upon the first complaint, and true notice thereof given to the Bishop or Ordinary of the place. If, after submitting himself, he shall willingly offend therein again, let him be suspended; if so the third time, there being little hope that he will be therein reformed, then excommunicated, and so remain until he will be reformed. And likewise if any of the said fathers, mothers, masters, or mistresses, children, servants, or apprentices, shall neglect their duties, as the one sort in not causing them to come, and the other in refusing to learn, as aforesaid; let them be suspended by their Ordinaries (if they be not children), and if they so persist by the space of a month, then let them be excommunicated."

The present Rubric so far supersedes this Canon that it directs the clergyman to catechize after the Second Lesson at Evening Prayer. It is plain, that both Canon and Rubric contemplate catechizing as an open and public Ministration in the Church, and in the face of a congregation: and however diligently school catechizing may be carried on, it cannot be considered as adequately satisfying the law of the Church, or as being equivalent to a solemn ministration conducted in the House of God. The value of such a ministration has been testified by innumerable writers of former centuries and of modern times in the Church of England: and the catechetical works of Bishop Andrewes, Hammond, Bishop Nicholson, Bishop Ken, and (in our own times) Bishop Nixon, show how our best Divines have recognized in the Catechism, and in the practice of public catechizing, a duty and a labour upon which the highest intellectual powers may be profitably exercised for the good of Christ's little ones, and of the Church at large.

It is obvious from the history of the Catechism, that it was formed upon the basis of the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the Ten Commandments. To these and to the catechetical exposition connected with them, was prefixed a fourth division on the Christian nature and covenant; and at the end was afterwards added a fifth division on the Sacraments. It has thus become a comprehensive summary respecting (1) the relation between God and Christians, (2) Faith, (3) Duty, (4) Prayer, (5) Grace. But although thus happily comprehensive, it must be remembered, that it does not profess to be exhaustive: and that when the Puritans at the Savoy Conference wished it to be made longer by adding questions on justification, sanctification, &c., the Bishops replied, "The Catechism is not intended as a whole body of divinity, but as a comprehension of the Articles of Faith, and other doctrines most necessary to salvation."

<sup>1</sup> Cardw. Doc. Ann. i. 64.

<sup>2</sup> Ibid. 195.

<sup>3</sup> In the "Liber quorundam Canonum" of 1571, there is one which enjoins the duty of catechizing very strongly. ". . . Et ut omnes intelligant quid debeant Deo Optimo Maximo, quid Principi, quem colere ac venerari debent ut Vicarium Dei: quid legibus: quid magistratibus, quid fratribus suis: quid populo Dei: omnibus dominicis et festis diebus statim a meridie præsto erunt in templis, ibique minimum ad duas horas legent, et docebunt Catechismum, et in eo instituent omnes suos omnium ætatum, atque ordinum, non tantum puellas aut pueros, set etiam si opus erit grandiores." [Sparrow's Collection.] The "at least two hours" may be profitably annotated by an extract from a letter of Archbishop Parker to Bishop Parkhurst, "For it is not intended by our canons that every thing should be so precisely kept, but for the most part, and as occasion of edification should require." Parker Correspondence, p. 389.

A CATECHISM,

THAT IS TO SAY,

AN INSTRUCTION TO BE LEARNED OF EVERY PERSON, BEFORE HE BE BROUGHT TO BE CONFIRMED BY THE BISHOP.

Luke i. 4.
1 Pet. iii. 21.
2 Tim. i. 13.
Luke i. 59. ii. 21.

Question.
WHAT is your Name?

N. or M.

Answer.

Question.

Who gave you this Name?

Answer.

My Godfathers and Godmothers in my Baptism; wherein I was made a member of Christ, the child of God, and an inheritor of the kingdom of heaven.

1 Cor. xii. 12—14.
27.
Gal. iii. 26, 27.
Rom. viii. 17.

THE CATECHISM.

What is your Name?] The Christian name is used in the Ministrations of the Church, at Baptism, here, and in the Marriage Service. It was formerly used also at Confirmation. In this place it obviously singles out, by a sort of analysis, the individual Christian from the Christian body at large, and thus fixes on the idea of individual privilege, duty, and responsibility, while at the same time not interfering with the prominence of the idea of corporate unity which is contained in that of membership.

N. or M.] The most probable explanation of these letters is, that N was anciently used as the initial of Nomen, and that Nomen vel Nomina was expressed by N vel NN; the double N being afterwards corrupted into M. The M by which 1000 is expressed, was formed in a somewhat similar manner from the ancient notation, CIO, by which that number was expressed in classical Latin, and which became M in the Teutonic character of later inscriptions.

in my Baptism; wherein I was made] This answer is very comprehensive, and offers a concise definition of doctrine respecting the Christian nature. It declares that Christians are made such by God's work co-operating with the work of the person baptizing. The infant was dipped in water, or had water poured upon it, while the person baptizing named it, and said, "I baptize thee in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." This constituted "my Baptism," so far as man's work could effect it. "In" that Baptism, without leaving room for any doubt, without imposing any condition by which the blessing could be nullified, God "made me a member of Christ, the child of God, and an inheritor of the Kingdom of Heaven." The new birth is not conditional on the regenerated person's subsequent fulfilment of the Baptismal vows, but only upon the due administration of the water and words of Baptism.

a member of Christ] This is a Scriptural expression, used by St. Paul, who says, "We are the body of Christ, and members in particular" [1 Cor. xii. 27]: also, that "by one Spirit are we baptized into one body . . . . for the body is not one member, but many" [Ibid. xiii. 14]: also that this Body in its completeness is Christ,— "As the body is one, and hath many members, so also is Christ" [Ibid. 12]: "For we are members of His Body, of His flesh, and of His bones." [Eph. v. 30.] How this membership can be is a mystery, but the results of it are intelligible, and may be understood partly from analogy, partly from the statements of our Lord and His Apostles. By physiological analogy we may draw the inference, that life is maintained in every member by union with the Head, and without that union no member can live. Hence spiritual life is derived from our Lord the Fountain of life, not only as a gift bestowed by one person upon another, but by an actual, though mysterious, and therefore unintelligible union.

It is on such a principle that St. Paul founds his familiar but deeply-important words, "He is the Head over all things to the Church, which is His Body, the fulness of Him Which filleth all in all." [Eph. i. 22, 23.] "And He is the Head of the Body, the Church." [Col. i. 18.] To baptize an infant is, therefore, to give it spiritual life by uniting it to Christ. To leave an infant unbaptized, is to leave it spiritually without life, by leaving it without this union. And the same is true, no wilful bar to the Sacrament intervening, of adults. Our Lord showed this in describing Himself as the true Vine, and the Apostles as branches; and especially in the words, "I am the Vine, ye are the branches: he that abideth in Me, the same bringeth forth much fruit: for without Me [χωρὶς Ἐμοῦ] ye can do nothing." To be made a "member of Christ" is, therefore, to be united in a living spiritual bond with "the Way, the Truth, and the Life," "the Light," "the Resurrection and the Life." Our spiritual existence, our spiritual knowledge, and our future Resurrection to life eternal, are dependent on that union being effected in and by Baptism.

the child of God] This term also is Scriptural. St. Paul uses it thus: "For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus" [Gal. iii. 26]: and St. John, "Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God . . . . Beloved, now are we the sons of God." [1 John iii. 1, 2.] Such a relationship also springs from actual union with God through Christ in regeneration, and not from federal relationship. So St. Paul alleges when he writes, "For both He that sanctifieth, and they that are sanctified, are all of one: for which cause He is not ashamed to call them brethren."

Question.

What did your Godfathers and Godmothers then for you?

Answer.

They did promise and vow three things in my name. First, that I should renounce the devil and all his works, the pomps and vanity of this wicked world, and all the sinful lusts of the flesh. Secondly, that I should believe all the Articles of the Christian Faith. And, thirdly, that I should keep God's holy will and commandments, and walk in the same all the days of my life.

Gal. i. 4. v. 24.
Mark xvi. 16.
Matt. xxviii. 20.
xxii. 37—39.
Luke i. 74, 75.

Isa. xix. 21.
1 John iii. 8.

all his works and pomps, the vanities of, &c., 1549—61.

[Heb. ii. 11.] So also St. John alleges in the words, "Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of [γεννηται] God: and every one that loveth Him that begat [τὸν γεννήσαντα], loveth also him that is begotten of Him" [τὸν γεγεννημένον ἐξ Αὐτοῦ]. To be the child of God is not only therefore to be taken into that relationship by a covenant, but to be made so by a supernatural effect of grace.

an inheritor of the kingdom of heaven] St. Paul writes that sonship brings heritage,—“If children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ.” [Rom. viii. 17.] The inheritance is (1) of the Church Militant, which our Lord speaks of as the Kingdom of Heaven on many occasions [e. g. Matt. iii. 2; xiii. 24]; and (2) of the Church Triumphant, of which He also speaks under the same title. [Matt. xxv. 34.] The heritage of the Church Militant is a title to all Church privileges and teaching, to benediction, absolution, all sacramental rites, the blessed Sacrament, and burial within the fold of the Church, and may be described as a title to the grace of God (through His mercy, and not through our merits), which title can, of course, be forfeited by sin. The heritage of the Church Triumphant is the gift of blessedness which “eye hath not seen nor ear heard.”

St. Augustine writes respecting both: “Wherefore, dearly beloved, Catholic plants, members of Christ, think what a Head ye have! Children of God, think what a Father ye have found! Christians, think what an Inheritance is promised you! Not such as on earth cannot be possessed by children, save when their parents are dead. For no one on earth possesses a father's inheritance save when he is dead. But we, whilst our Father liveth, shall possess what He shall give: for that our Father cannot die. I add more, and say the truth, our Father will Himself be our inheritance.” [Aug., Sermons, cxlvi. 2.] As children could never grow up if they refused the food and shelter of their parents' home, so the children of God can never grow to “the fulness of the stature of Christ” if they refuse the present privileges to which they are entitled in the Church of God. And while “not growing up” in the one case means physical death, so does it mean spiritual death in the other: an excision of the unfruitful branch, the unworthy member of Christ; an expatriation of the prodigal son for ever from his father's house; a forfeiture of the eternal inheritance to which the spiritual birth-right has entitled, but of which the disentanglement has been signed and sealed by the heir of his own free will.

They did promise and vow . . . in my name] Baptism is not administered on the condition of vows being made, nor do the vows exercise any anticipative influence upon it. They are part of the discipline of the Church, and probably established by the Apostles, but do not belong to the essence of the Sacrament, which is entirely perfect as to its outward form and its inward grace, even where they are not used or intended to be used. At the same time, the vows of Baptism express obligations which are inseparable from the relation established with our heavenly Father by it: so that children who have never had God-parents to make them on their behalf are bound, by the nature of their position as Christian children, to the duties stated in these vows, as much as if they had been explicitly made at their Baptism. A child who has not made any verbal promise of obedience to its parents, is as much bound to obey, by the law of God, as one who has done so: and no superadded vow can heighten or intensify the obligations which naturally belong to the relationship of Christians towards God, though it may express and define them.

that I should renounce the devil] Sins, or the works of the devil, are classified under seven kinds, viz., Pride, Avarice, Lust, Envy, Gluttony, Anger, Sloth, which are called the seven deadly sins. The renunciation of the adversary of God and man, which was made by those who were children of wrath before they became children of God, expressed an obligation from which they could never after become free. St. John appears to refer to this renunciation when he says, “I write unto you, young men, because ye have overcome the wicked one” [1 John ii. 13]. In what manner practical effect is to be given, throughout life, to that renunciation, he also shows by referring (1) to the victory gained by Christ our Head; and (2) to the union between Him and His members, through which they may be made partakers of His strength. “For this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that He might overcome the works of the devil.” “Greater is He that is in you, than he that is in the world.” [1 John iii. 8; iv. 4.] Thus the true way to give practical force to the vow of renunciation is to gain the power of Christ, (1) by the wish to do good rather than evil; (2) by dependence, in faith, on our Lord the Victor of the Evil One; (3) by an earnest resistance to Satan; (4) by a continued use of the grace given by God. [Cf. Litany clause, “From all the deceits of the world, the flesh, and the devil;” and Collect for Eighteenth Sunday after Trinity.]

that I should believe . . . the Christian Faith] Such an act of faith presupposes a faculty of faith, just as an act of reason supposes a faculty of reason. The one belongs to our spiritual nature, which we receive at Baptism; the other to the nature which we receive by our natural birth. Faith is the power of believing all that God reveals to us without the necessity of any corroboratory evidence from our senses. Such corroboratory evidence sometimes accompanies the revelation of God; but in respect to the most important objects of faith it does not: and our Lord commends that faith most highly which is exercised without it: “Thomas, because thou hast seen Me, thou hast believed: blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed” [John xx. 29]. The “Articles of the Christian Faith” are so much concerned with objects of faith respecting which we can have little or no evidence beyond God's word for their existence and truth, that a thorough belief in them can only be entertained by the exercise of the faith which is the gift of God, and which enables us to know, by a participation in God's knowledge, what is altogether beyond the reach of unassisted intellectual apprehension. Hence, as belief in all the Articles of the Christian Faith is a duty imposed upon Christians with their birth-right, so it is the exercise of a gift or faculty which belongs to the Christian nature. A partial faith, an assent and submission of the intellect is, of course, possible to all who possess reason, and is a necessary qualification for Baptism in adult persons. It may be added, that the difference between faith and superstition is that the first is belief on good evidence (of which the best and highest kind is God's word about the object upon which faith is to be exercised); while superstition is belief on insufficient evidence, of which kind is, sometimes, the evidence of the senses.

On the necessity of a right faith to salvation, see notes on the Athanasian Creed, pp. 42—45. Compare also Jude 3. Eph. iv. 5. 1 John v. 4. 1 Pet. v. 9. Rev. ii. 13; xiv. 12,—the clause “From all false doctrine,” &c., in the Litany; and the Collect for St. Thomas's Day.

that I should keep God's holy will] God's will is the supreme

Question.

Deut. xxvi. 17—
19.
James ii. 17.

Dost thou not think that thou art bound to believe, and to do, as they have promised for thee?

Answer.

Ps. cxlvi. 5.
Eph. v. 20.
2 Tim. i. 9.
Tit. ii. 11.
Phil. iv. 6. 1. 6.
ii. 13.

Yes verily; and by God's help so I will. And I heartily thank our heavenly Father, that he hath called me to this state of salvation, through Jesus Christ our Saviour. And I pray unto God to give me his grace, that I may continue in the same unto my life's end.

2 Tim. iii. 14.

Catechist.

Rehearse the Articles of thy Belief.

Answer.

I BELIEVE in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth:

And in Jesus Christ his only Son our Lord, Who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, Born of the Virgin Mary, Suffered under Pontius Pilate, Was crucified, dead, and buried, He descended into hell; The third day he rose again from the dead; He ascended into heaven, And sitteth at the right hand of God the Father Almighty; From thence he shall come to judge the quick and the dead.

I believe in the Holy Ghost; The holy Catholick Church; The Communion of Saints; The Forgiveness of sins; The Resurrection of the body; And the Life everlasting. Amen.

Question.

What dost thou chiefly learn in these Articles of thy Belief?

Answer.

First, I learn to believe in God the Father, who hath made me, and all the world.

Heb. xi. 6.
1 Cor. viii. 6.
John xiv. 1.
1 John iv. 14.

Secondly, in God the Son, who hath redeemed me, and all mankind.

Acts v. 3, 4.
1 Pet. i. 1, 2.

Thirdly, in God the Holy Ghost, who sanctifieth me, and all the elect people of God.

Question.

You said, that your Godfathers and Godmothers did promise for you, that you should keep God's Commandments. Tell me how many there be?

Exod. xix. 5, 7.
8.
Ps. lxxvi. 11.

Answer.

Ten.

Exod. xxxiv. 28.

law over all; and His commandments are the expression of that will. This expression is by no means to be limited in our minds by the Ten Commandments, though these contain a summary of all moral duty; for the will of God is expressed in many other ways. Of such modes by which that Will is expressed, there are five principal ones. (1) By the natural relationships of life. Thus St. Paul shows that the duties of children towards their parents, of wives towards their husbands, and vice versa, are duties laid upon them by God. [Col. iii. 18, &c.] Duties so plainly imposed by our heavenly Father are a plain revelation of His Will; and the non-fulfilment of such duties is disobedience to it. (2) By the light of the Christianized conscience, which is "the candle of the Lord within" [Prov. xx. 27], "the light that is in thee," of which our Saviour spoke when He said, "If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness!" [Matt. vi. 23.] But all apparent dictates of the Christian conscience are not hastily to be taken as such revelations of God's will and commandment, as natural inclination may be mistaken for the voice of conscience. (3) By the voice of the Church, represented in its Catholic teaching, and in the admonitions and advice of those individual ministers whom God has appointed as spiritual guides to the flocks in the midst of which He has placed them. (4) By the written word of God's revelation, contained in the Holy Bible. (5) By the written and unwritten law of the land in which His Providence has placed us, respecting which St. Paul says, "Let every soul be subject to the higher powers. For there is no power but of God: the powers that be are ordained of God. Whosoever therefore resisteth the power resisteth the ordinance of God, and they that resist shall receive to themselves damnation." [Rom. xii. 12.] Obedience to the will and commandment, however it may be revealed, draws our relationship to Him still closer; Christian nature and Christian obedience thus reacting upon each other, and fulfilling the words of Christ,—“Whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is My brother, and My sister, and mother.” [Mark iii. 35.]

by God's help so I will] This answer takes the form of an oath, the ordinary adjuration of which in this country is, "So help me God." Every time it is repeated, the child or person repeating it "renews the solemn promise and vow that was made in their name at their Baptism; ratifying and confirming the same in their own persons, and acknowledging themselves bound to believe and do all those things which their Godfathers and Godmothers then undertook for them." [See Confirmation Office.] This is done for the last time immediately before Confirmation by the reply, "I do," to the bishop's question. It must be remembered that the promise and vow made on behalf of a child by its God-parents do not originate the obligation of that child "to do all these things," but only express an obligation that would be binding whether it was expressed or not.

this state of salvation] That is, into a Christian condition in which it is quite certain (whatever may be the possibility in a non-Christian condition) that salvation is within reach. The Christian child has already been saved from the guilt of original sin, and from much of its power over the soul. Final salvation depends on final perseverance, that is, on a continuance in the state of salvation, by God's grace, to our lives' end, so that we may not die in mortal sin.

First, I learn to believe] For an expository paraphrase on the Apostles' Creed, see the notes on Morning Prayer, page 20. Illustrative texts of Scripture will be found in the marginal references to the Creed there and elsewhere throughout the book.

Ten] In the Catechism as it stood in 1549, the first five of the Ten Commandments were given in a much shorter form, as follows<sup>1</sup> :—

<sup>1</sup> That a compendium of the Ten Commandments is perfectly justifiable

Question.

Matt. xxii. 37—40.

Which be they?

Answer.

Exod. xx. 2—17.
Deut. v. 6—21.
Matt. xix. 18, 19.
Mark xii. 30—33.
Luke x. 27.
Rom. xiii. 9.

THE same which God spake in the twentieth Chapter of Exodus, saying, I am the Lord thy God, who brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage.

I. Thou shalt have none other gods but me.

II. Thou shalt not make to thyself any graven image, nor the likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or in the earth beneath, or in the water under the earth. Thou shalt not bow down to them, nor worship them: for I the Lord thy God am a jealous God, and visit the sins of the fathers upon the children, unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me, and shew mercy unto thousands in them that love me, and keep my commandments.

III. Thou shalt not take the Name of the Lord thy God in vain: for the Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh his Name in vain.

IV. Remember that thou keep holy the Sabbath-day. Six days shalt thou labour, and do all that thou hast to do; but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God. In it thou shalt do no manner of work, thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, thy man-servant, and thy maid-servant, thy cattle, and the stranger that is within thy gates. For in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day; wherefore the Lord blessed the seventh day, and hallowed it.

V. Honour thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee.

VI. Thou shalt do no murder.

VII. Thou shalt not commit adultery.

VIII. Thou shalt not steal.

IX. Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbour.

X. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's wife, nor his servant, nor his maid, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor any thing that is his.

Question.

What dost thou chiefly learn by these Commandments? Matt. xxiii. 37—40.

Answer.

I learn two things: my duty towards

"I. Thou shalt have none other gods but me.

"II. Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain.

"III. Thou shalt not . . . . nor worship them.

"IV. Remember that thou keep holy the Sabbath-day.

"V. Honour thy father and thy mother."

In the tenth commandment the words, "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's house," were altogether omitted, evidently by a singular accident. The Primer of 1545 contains "The Ten Commandments compendiously extracted," &c., which is exactly similar to the arrangement of 1549, except that the commandment there put as the second is omitted [it is printed in the exposition immediately preceding], and the tenth is divided into two. The writer of the Catechism must have copied out the compendium from the Primer, inserting so much as he did insert of the second commandment, and then forgetting altogether what there stood as the ninth!

The translation of the Commandments here, and in the Communion Office, is that of the "Great Bible" of 1540, that from which the Psalter is printed. The Puritans of 1661 wished to have that of 1611 substituted, but the bishops considered that there was no necessity for this change.

The same which God spake] Although the Ten Commandments were given especially to the Jews, they represent the whole substance of a moral law which is equally binding upon Christians. Thus our Lord recognized the summary of them which was given to Him by the lawyer, in Luke x. 27, and thus He summed them up Himself, in Matt. xix. 18, and xxii. 37—40, as a rule of obedience by which a man might "enter into life," and on which "hang all the law and the prophets." As, moreover, a greater measure of grace is bestowed upon Christians than was given to the Jews, so is the moral law interpreted to them by a more strict rule. Christ came, "not to destroy the law, but to fulfil it," and "the law was our schoolmaster, to bring us unto Christ;" so that we "serve in newness of spirit, and not in the oldness of the letter," as children yielding a willing, not as servants yielding a forced, obedience.

I learn two things] The division of the Ten Commandments into the four which enjoin duties towards God, and the six which summarize duties towards man, was sanctioned and adopted by our Blessed Lord, and was probably derived from the manner in which they were written on the "two tables" brought down by Moses from Sinai, and preserved in the ark under the mercy-seat within the Holy of Holies.

my duty towards God] This summary exposition of the first four commandments sets forth first the mental qualities which are comprehended in a Christian disposition towards God, which are Faith, Fear, and Love; and, secondly, the acts by which the exercise of those qualities is manifested, which are principally Worship, Prayer, and faithful Service. Acts of worship are such offerings of praise as are made to God without any consideration of recompense, and the highest of such acts is the "sacrifice of may be concluded from its adoption by our Lord in Matt. xix. 18, and by St. Paul in Rom. xiii. 9.

God, and my duty towards my Neighbour.

Question.

What is thy duty towards God?

Answer.

2 Chron. xx. 20.
Luke xii. 5. x.
27.
John iv. 23.
1 Thess. v. 18.
1 Tim. iv. 10.
Phil. iv. 6.
Ps. cxxxviii. 2.
1 Chron. xxviii. 9.

My duty towards God, is to believe in him, to fear him, and to love him with all my heart, with all my mind, with all my soul, and with all my strength; to worship him, to give him thanks, to put my whole trust in him, to call upon him, to honour his holy Name and his Word, and to serve him truly all the days of my life.

Question.

What is thy duty towards thy Neighbour?

Answer.

Rom. xiii. 8—10.
Matt. vii. 12. xv.
4—6.
Eph. vi. 2, 3.
1 Pet. ii. 13, 14.
17.
Tit. iii. 1.
Heb. xiii. 7. 17.
Tit. ii. 9, 10.
1 Pet. v. 5.
Lev. xix. 32.
Rom. xii. 17—21.
Phil. iv. 8.
James iii. 14. 16.
Eph. iv. 28. 25.
31.
James i. 26.
Luke xxi. 34.
1 Cor. vi. 13.
2 Cor. vii. 1.
Heb. xiii. 5.
1 Thess. iv. 11, 12.
2 Cor. vii. 20—22.
Eccles. xii. 13.

My duty towards my Neighbour, is to love him as myself, and to do to all men, as I would they should do unto me: To love, honour, and succour my father and mother: To honour and obey the Queen, and all that are put in authority under her: To submit myself to all my governours, teachers, spiritual pastors and masters: To order myself lowly and reverently to all my betters: To hurt no body by word nor deed: To be true and just in all my dealing: To bear no malice nor hatred in my heart: To keep my hands from picking and stealing, and my tongue from evil-speaking, lying, and slandering: To keep my body in temperance, soberness, and chastity: Not to covet nor desire other men's goods; but to learn and labour truly to get mine own living, and to do my duty in that state of life, unto which it shall please God to call me.

Catechist.

My good child, know this, that thou art not able to do these things of thyself, nor to walk in the Commandments of God, and to serve him, without his special grace; which thou must learn at all times to call for by diligent prayer. Let me hear therefore, if thou canst say the Lord's Prayer.

Answer.

OUR Father, which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, As it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us from evil. Amen.

Question.

What desirest thou of God in this Prayer? Matt. vi. 7—13.

Answer.

I desire my Lord God our heavenly Father, who is the giver of all goodness, to send his grace unto me, and to all people; that we may worship

James i. 17.
Matt. vii. 7—11.
Ps. xxix. 2. 9.
lxxxix. 7.
Exod. xix. 5.
Matt. vi. 25—33.
12—15. xxvi.
41.

praise and thanksgiving" comprised in the celebration of the Holy Eucharist, as distinct from the consumption of it, which afterwards constitutes the act of Communion. Upon such acts, Faith, holy Fear, and Love are all exercised in their highest degree. Acts of Prayer are such offerings of worship as are mingled with supplications for some spiritual or temporal benefit; and upon these, too, all three qualities are exercised. Acts of faithful Service are other practical evidences and exertions of those qualities in the work of life; and by them the labour appointed to us in the world is transfigured into Christian work, done also in the Kingdom of God. The intensification of the law under the Christian dispensation is here shown by the declaration that such faithful service is due to God, not only on the Sabbath, which was a temporary institution, but on "all the days of my life," since all a Christian's days are to be consecrated in some way to God. A practical Trust in the Providence of God is necessarily involved in such faithful service; and reverence for His holy Name and Word is inseparable from a faithful, humble, and loving habit of worship.

My duty towards my Neighbour] The details of this answer are in themselves a sufficient comment upon, and illustration of, the six commandments to which they refer. They are also an exposition of the practical duties arising from our Lord's commandment as given in the Sermon on the Mount: "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets" [Matt. vii. 12]. Some portions of this answer seem to be taken from St. Augustine, who thus speaks of the obligations of Sponsors:—"Admoneant, ut castitatem custodiant, virginitatem usque ad nuptias servant, a maledicto vel perjurio linguam refrenent, cantica turpia vel luxuriosa ex ore non proferant, non superbiant, iracundiam vel odium in corde non teneant . . . . sacerdotibus et parentibus honorem amore veræ caritatis impendant." [Serm. de Temp. clxiii.]

What desirest thou of God in this Prayer?] In the Notes to Evening Prayer, p. 31, will be found an Exposition of the Lord's Prayer taken from St. Cyril's Catechetical Lectures; at page 6, one by Bishop Andrewes; and at page 32, one by the author of the "Christian Year." The general objects of the seven petitions which compose it may be thus summed up<sup>1</sup>:—

[I.] Our Father, which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy Name. In the first petition we pray that all things done on earth, all our actions as well as those of our brethren, may minister to the glory of God, that by our lives and in our hearts His Name may be hallowed.

[II.] Thy kingdom come. This is a prayer that all things

<sup>1</sup> See Denton on the Lord's Prayer, p. 153.

1 Cor. x. 13.
Ps. xix. 12, 13.
1 John v. 18.
2 Tim. iv. 18.
1 Pet. i. 5.
2 Cor. i. 20.

him, serve him, and obey him, as we ought to do. And I pray unto God, that he will send us all things that be needful both for our souls and bodies; and that he will be merciful unto us, and forgive us our sins; and that it will please him to save and defend us in all dangers ghostly and bodily; and that he will keep us from all sin and wickedness, and from our ghostly enemy, and from everlasting death. And this I trust he will do of his mercy and goodness, through our Lord Jesus Christ. And therefore I say, Amen, So be it.

Question.

HOW many Sacraments hath Christ ordained in his Church?

Answer.

Matt. xxviii. 18—20.
Luke xxii. 19, 20. Two only, as generally necessary to salvation, that is to say, Baptism, and the Supper of the Lord.

Question.

What meanest thou by this word Sacrament?

Answer.

I mean an outward and visible sign of an inward and spiritual grace given unto us, ordained by Christ himself, as a means whereby we receive the same, and a pledge to assure us thereof.

John iii. 3, 5.
Tit. iii. 5.
John vi. 53, 54.

Question.

How many parts are there in a Sacrament?

Answer.

Two; the outward visible sign, and the inward spiritual grace.

Question.

What is the outward visible sign or form in Baptism?

Answer.

Water; wherein the person is bap-

Matt. xxviii. 9.
Acts x. 47.

here may tend to the propagation of the Gospel, the establishment of God's kingdom in all the world, and to the subjection of ourselves to the rule of our heavenly Father.

[III.] Thy will be done in earth, As it is in heaven. In the third petition we pray that we and all men may keep the commandments and do the whole will of God.

[IV.] Give us this day our daily bread. In the fourth petition we beseech God to give us day by day the bread we need, the food necessary for the strengthening and nourishing our body and soul; so that, sustained by His hand, we may be enabled to live to His glory.

[V.] And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us. In the next petition we ask God to forgive us those trespasses which have separated us from Him, and to restore us to that peace which by our actions we have disturbed, even as we forgive our brethren, and renew that concord which has been broken by our quarrels.

[VI.] And lead us not into temptation. In the sixth petition we pray for the protection and support of God against the assaults of the Evil one, the flesh, and the world, for deliverance from all temptations.

[VII.] But deliver us from evil. By the seventh petition we seek deliverance from all evil temporal and spiritual, and for the consummation of the work of God in our hearts and lives.

Two only, as generally necessary to salvation] The use of the word "generally" in the sense of "universally," may be illustrated by the two places in which it is to be found in the Holy Bible. The first is in 2 Sam. xvii. 11, "Therefore I counsel that all Israel be generally gathered unto thee, from Dan even to Beersheba:" the expression in the Vulgate being "universus Israel," and the LXX πᾶς Ἰσραὴλ. The second is Jer. xlviii. 38, "There shall be lamentation generally upon all the house-tops of Moab;" where the Vulgate reads "super omnia tecta Moab," and the LXX ἐπὶ πάντων τῶν δαπτῶν Μωάβ. So also Bishop Hooper says, "Notwithstanding that God's promises be general, unto all people of the world, yet many shall be damned" [Declaration of the Ten Commandments]. Bishop Latimer, again, says, "The promises of Christ are general; they pertain to all mankind" [Sermon on Parable of King's Son]. And, lastly, in the Prayer for the Parliament is the expression "this kingdom in general," which clearly means the whole of this kingdom, all persons therein. There are probably no instances to be found of any writer in the sixteenth or seventeenth centuries who used the word "generally" otherwise than with the meaning "universally;" and such is its meaning in this place. The Sacraments of Baptism and the Lord's Supper are therefore declared to be the only Sacraments which are necessary to the salvation of all persons; and, by implication, "those five commonly called Sacraments, that is to say, Confirmation, Penance, Orders, Matrimony, and extreme Unction" [Article 25], are necessary only for particular classes of persons. Among the Fathers the word Sacrament was used almost in the same sense that we now use the word mystery, and was not restricted to any particular number. "As for the number of them," says the Homily of Common Prayer and Sacraments, "if they should be considered according to the exact signification of a sacrament, namely, for visible signs expressly commanded in the New Testament, whereunto is annexed the promise of free forgiveness, and of our holiness and joining in Christ, there be but two, namely, Baptism and the Supper of the Lord. . . . But in a general acceptation the name of a Sacrament may be attributed to any thing whereby an holy thing is signified. In which understanding of the word, the ancient writers have given this name, not only to the other five commonly of late years taken and used for supplying the number of the Sacraments, but also to divers and sundry other ceremonies, as to oil, washing of feet, and such like; not meaning thereby to repute them as Sacraments in the same signification that the two forenamed Sacraments are. . . . And although there are retained by the order of the Church of England, besides these two, certain other rites and ceremonies about the institution of ministers in the Church, Matrimony, Confirmation of children . . . and likewise for the Visitation of the Sick; yet no man ought to take these for Sacraments, in such signification and meaning as the Sacraments of Baptism and the Lord's Supper are: but either for godly states of life, necessary in Christ's Church, and therefore worthy to be set forth by public action and solemnity by the ministry of the Church; or else judged to be such ordinances as may make for the instruction, comfort, and edification [i.e. οικοδόμησις] of Christ's Church."

I mean an outward and visible sign] This definition is attributed to Peter Lombard, called the Master of the Sentences, tized In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost.

Question.

What is the inward and spiritual grace?

Answer.

A death unto sin, and a new birth unto righteousness: for being by nature born in sin, and the children of wrath, we are hereby made the children of grace.

Question.

What is required of persons to be baptized?

Answer.

Repentance, whereby they forsake sin; and Faith, whereby they stedfastly believe the promises of God made to them in that Sacrament.

Question.

Why then are Infants baptized, when by reason of their tender age they cannot perform them?

Answer.

Because they promise them both by their Sureties; which promise, when they come to age, themselves are bound to perform.

Question.

Why was the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper ordained?

Answer.

For the continual remembrance of the sacrifice of the death of Christ, and of the benefits which we receive thereby.

Question.

What is the outward part or sign of the Lord's Supper?

Answer.

Bread and Wine, which the Lord hath commanded to be received.

Question.

What is the inward part, or thing signified?

Answer.

The Body and Blood of Christ, which are verily and indeed taken and received by the faithful in the Lord's Supper.

Question.

What are the benefits whereof we are partakers thereby?

Answer.

The strengthening and refreshing of our souls by the Body and Blood of Christ, as our bodies are by the Bread and Wine.

Question.

What is required of them who come to the Lord's Supper?

Answer.

To examine themselves, whether they repent them truly of their former sins, stedfastly purposing to lead a new life; have a lively faith in God's mercy through Christ, with a thankful remembrance of his death; and be in charity with all men.

John ii. 12, 13.
Rom. vi. 3, 4, 7.
11. ix. 8.
Acts ii. 39.

Acts ii. 38.
*iii. 36, 37.
Heb. x. 22, 23.

Matt. xix. 14.
Gen. xvii. 7, 12,
13.

Col. ii. 11, 12.
Deut. xxix. 10—
15, 24, 25.

Luke xxii. 19.
Heb. ix. 26.

1 Cor. x. 16.
John vi. 53, 47.

Ps. civ. 15.
John vi. 35, 51.
55, 56.

1 Cor. xi. 28.
2 Cor. vii. 11.
Tit. ii. 11, 12.
Heb. x. 21, 22.
Col. i. 12—14.
Matt. v. 23, 24.
1 Cor. v. 7, 8.
xiii. 3—8, 13.

¶ The Curate of every Parish shall diligently upon Sundays and Holy-days, after the second Lesson at Evening Prayer, openly in the Church instruct and examine so many Children of his Parish sent unto him, as he shall think convenient, in some part of this Catechism.

¶ And all Fathers, Mothers, Masters, and Dames, shall cause their Children, Servants, and Apprentices, (which have not learned their Catechism,) to come to the Church at the time appointed, and obediently to hear, and be ordered by the Curate, until such time as they have learned all that is here appointed for them to learn.

¶ So soon as Children are come to a competent age, and can say, in their Mother Tongue, the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the Ten Commandments; and also can answer to the other Questions of this short Catechism; they shall be brought to the Bishop. And every one shall have a Godfather, or a Godmother, as a Witness of their Confirmation.

¶ And whensoever the Bishop shall give knowledge for Children to be brought unto him for their Confirmation, the Curate of every Parish shall either bring, or send in writing, with his hand subscribed thereunto, the names of all such persons within his Parish, as he shall think fit to be presented to the Bishop to be confirmed. And, if the Bishop approve of them, he shall confirm them in manner following.

in the twelfth century. The Homily just quoted (written about 1562) says, "the common description of a Sacrament, which is, that it is a visible sign of an invisible grace." The somewhat involved form of this answer may be made clearer by a paraphrase, as follows:—"I mean an outward and visible sign (ordained by Christ Himself) of an inward and spiritual grace given unto us. This outward sign was ordained by Christ, first, as a means whereby we are to receive the inward grace, and, secondly, as a pledge to assure us of that inward grace;" for the grace cannot ordinarily be separated from the sign which Christ has ordained. For expositions of the doctrine of the Sacraments, see the Introductions to, and Notes on, the Offices for Holy Baptism and the Holy Communion.

INTRODUCTION TO THE CONFIRMATION OFFICE.

From the earliest ages of the Christian Church, and in every part of it all over the whole world, until modern times, the rite of Confirmation has been considered essential to the full perfection of Christian life in those who have attained to years when they can discern fully between right and wrong. Nor have any Christians been ordinarily permitted by the Church to partake of the Holy Communion until after they had been confirmed.

The rite appears to have been administered at first by an Apostle or Bishop laying his hands on the head of the baptized person, but at a very early period the rite of unction was added. The Apostles St. Peter and St. John went down to Samaria to lay their hands on those who had been baptized by the Deacon Philip [Acts viii. 14—17]; “and they received the Holy Ghost,” some new and special Gift being bestowed upon them by the Holy Ghost through that outward sign. In the same manner St. Paul laid his hands on the Ephesian disciples of St. John the Baptist as soon as they had been “baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus” [Acts xix. 6]. In the latter case, and probably also in the former, the Gift bestowed was accompanied by other gifts of miraculous powers; but these were clearly a special addition to the ordinary gift, and thus it was for the confirmation of previous Baptism that the Apostles administered the rite by the imposition of their hands. The anxious care of St. Paul for the administration of it to the Ephesians, appears also to have a parallel in that which he expressed to the Roman Christians, when he wrote to them, “I long to see you, that I may impart unto you some spiritual gift, to the end ye may be established” [Rom. i. 11].

The rite so administered has several names given to it in the New Testament. The most obvious is that derived from the particular ceremony which was used in administering it, as when in the Epistle to the Hebrews “the doctrine of Baptisms and of laying on of hands” [Heb. vi. 2] is spoken of. Another title given to it is that of the Seal or the Sealing, as when St. Paul writes to the Ephesians, “After that ye believed in Christ, ye were sealed with that Holy Spirit of promise, which is the earnest of our inheritance” [Eph. i. 13, 14]: or, “Grieve not the Holy Spirit, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption” [Eph. iv. 30]: or, again, “He which stablisheth us with you in Christ, and hath anointed us, is God; Who hath also sealed us, and given the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts” [2 Cor. i. 21]. There seems also to be a reference to the same ordinance in the words, “The foundation of God standeth sure, having this seal, The Lord knoweth them that are His: and, Let every one that nameth the name of Christ, depart from iniquity” [2 Tim. ii. 19]. By all which passages, where the idea of sealing is connected with the gift of the Holy Ghost, we are carried back to the same idea in respect to our Blessed Lord, of Whom it is said, “For Him hath God the Father sealed” [John vi. 27]. As all grace flows down from the Father to the members of Christ through Christ their Head, so from Him to Whom the Father “gave not the Spirit by measure,” flows down, even to the “skirts of His” mystical “clothing,” that anointing Spirit of promise, whereby Christians are “sealed unto the day of redemption.” The Oriental Church, which is so conservative of Scriptural terms and language, still retains the name of the Seal of the Gift of the Holy Ghost, as that of the ordinance which the Western Church calls Confirmation.

The rite is also called “the Unction” or “Anointing,” in the New Testament, and in this case also the name is clearly connected with our Lord, the Christ or Anointed One: the “holy Child Jesus, Whom Thou hast anointed” of Acts iv. 27, and of Whom St. Peter said, “how God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost, and with power” [Acts x. 38]. In a passage already quoted, St. Paul speaks of God having “anointed us” [2 Cor. i. 21]. St. John refers to it as a special means of illumination and union with Christ: “But the anointing which ye have received of Him abideth in you: and ye need not that any man should teach you: but as the same anointing teacheth you of all things, and is truth, and is no lie, and even as it hath taught you, ye shall abide in Him” [1 John ii. 27]. He also says of it, “Ye have an unction from the Holy One, and ye know all things” [1 John ii. 20]: and these words respecting illumination at once connect themselves with those of our Lord respecting the Holy Ghost the Comforter, “He shall teach you all things” [John xiv. 26].

The familiar name by which this rite is known in the Western Church appears first in the writings of St. Ambrose,—“Ye have received the spiritual seal. . . . God the Father hath signed you, Christ our Lord hath confirmed you, and, as ye are taught by the apostolic lection, hath given you the pledge of the Spirit in your hearts” [Ambros. de Myst. vii. 42]. By the time of St. Gregory, the name seems to have been commonly established, although it still continued to be called “signaculum” and “chrisma.”

In the early Church, when Baptism was publicly administered at special seasons, and in the presence of the Bishop, the baptized were confirmed immediately on leaving the font. In his Treatise concerning Baptism, Tertullian says: “After this, having come out from the bath, we are anointed thoroughly with a blessed unction. . . . Next to this, the hand is laid upon us, calling upon, and inviting the Holy Spirit, through the blessing” [Tert. de Bapt. vii. viii.]. St. Cyprian writes, in his famous seventieth Epistle, “Anointed also must be of necessity he who is baptized, that having received the chrism, that is, unction, he may be the anointed of God, and have within him the grace of Christ” [Ep. lxx. 3]. Again, expounding the passage in the Acts respecting the Confirmation of the Samaritans by St. Peter and St. John, he says, “Which now also is done among us, those baptized in the Church being brought to the Bishops of the Church, and by our prayer, and laying on of hands, they receive the Holy Ghost, and are perfected with the seal of the Lord” [Ep. lxxiii. 8]. Some passages in which St. Cyril speaks of the use of the chrism after Baptism, will be found in the Introduction to the Baptismal Offices: he also says to those about to be baptized, “In the days of Moses, the Spirit was given by the laying on of hands, and Peter also gives the Spirit by the laying on of hands. And on thee also, who art about to be baptized, shall His grace come” [Catech. Lect. xvi. 26].

This administration of Confirmation at the time of Baptism is provided for in the Sacramentaries of Gelasius and St. Gregory. The following is the form which has been handed down from that distant time, beginning with the Rubric which follows the Baptism:—

“Pontifex vero redit in sacrarium expectans, ut cum vestiti fuerunt infantes, confirmet eos. Qui etiam non prohibentur

lactari ante sacram Communionem, si necesse fuerit. Induti vero, ordinantur per ordinem sicut scripti sunt. Et infantes quidem in brachiis dextris tenentur: majores vero pedem ponunt super pedem patrini sui. Deinde Schola jussa facit Letaniam quinquam ad fontes, Pontifex vero veniens ad infantes, tenente Archidiacono chrism, involutis scapulis et brachiis ex panno lineo, et levata manu sua super capita omnium dicit. Omnipotens sempiternus Deus, qui regenerare dignatus es . . . [As in the right-hand column in the Office beyond.]

"Et interrogantibus Diaconibus nomina singulorum, Pontifex tincto pollice in chrismate, facit crucem in fronte unius, similiter per omnes singillatim." [Menard's Sac. Greg. 73.]

In later days, Baptism and Confirmation were separated, the latter being administered, as now, by the Bishop, in periodical visits to the greater churches: but the form of the rite has varied very little since the days of St. Gregory. Bede narrates of St. Cuthbert [A.D. 686], that he used to go round his diocese bountifully distributing counsels of salvation, "as well as laying his hands on the lately baptized, that they might receive the grace of the Holy Ghost" [Life of St. Cuthbert, xxix.]: and from a period very little later, a Pontifical has come down to us which belonged to Egbert, Archbishop of York, and which contains the form of Confirmation, as it was then used; probably the same that was used by St. Cuthbert. A translation of it is here given, as it forms a link between the primitive office of St. Gregory, and that of the Mediæval Church, from which our own is directly derived.

§ The Use of York. Circ. A.D. 700.

"The Confirmation of men, to be spoken by a Bishop.

"How he ought to Confirm.

"Almighty, everlasting God, who hast vouchsafed to regenerate this Thy servant with water and the Holy Ghost, and Who hast given unto him remission of all his sins, pour into him, O Lord, the sevenfold Spirit, Thine holy Comforter, from heaven. Amen. Give him the Spirit of wisdom and understanding. Amen. The Spirit of counsel and strength. Amen. The Spirit of knowledge and piety. Amen. Fill him with the Spirit of the fear of God, and of our Lord Jesus Christ, and of Thy favour: sign him with the sign of Thy holy cross unto eternal life.

"Here he ought to put the chrism on the forehead of the man, and say—

"Receive the sign of the holy cross, by the chrism of salvation, in Jesus Christ unto eternal life. Amen.

"The Lord be with you.

"And with thy Spirit.

"The peace and blessing of the Lord be ever with thee. And with thy Spirit.

"Afterwards, he ought to read this prayer—

"God the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Ghost, confirm thee, that thou mayest have eternal life; and thou shalt live for ever. So thus let every man be blessed that feareth the Lord. The Lord from out of Zion bless thee, and mayest thou see the things which are good in Jerusalem all the days of thy life. Peace be with thee unto eternal life. Amen.

"Then they are to be bound [with a band of linen round the forehead].

"O God, who gavest the Holy Ghost to Thy Apostles, and willest Him to be given to the rest of the faithful by them and their successors, look favourably upon our humble service, and grant unto all them whose forehead we have this day anointed and confirmed with the sign of the cross, that the Holy Ghost coming upon their hearts may perfect them for a temple of His glory, by worthily inhabiting them. Through.

"Then they are to be communicated of the sacrifice.

"The episcopal benediction follows.

"God Almighty, who created all things out of nothing, bless you, and grant you in baptism and in confirmation remission of all sins. Amen.

"And may He who gave the Holy Ghost in fiery tongues to His disciples, enlighten your hearts by His own enlightening, and duly kindle them to the love of Himself. Amen.

"So that, being cleansed from all vices, defended by His own assistance from all adversities, we may be worthy to be made His temple. Amen.

"May He who created you guard you from all imminent evils, and defend you from all wickedness. Amen.

"Which He Himself. Amen. The blessing. Amen.

"Another blessing, at mass, after confirmation—

"Pour forth, O Lord, we pray Thee, Thy heavenly blessing upon these Thy servants, and Thine handmaids, to whom Thou hast been pleased by us to deliver Thine excellent sevenfold Holy Ghost, and to give them the grace and gifts of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

"That whosoever are born again of water and the Holy Ghost may be ever defended by Thy protection. Amen.

"May charity, diffused by the Holy Ghost, abound in them, which covers and overcomes every multitude of sins. Amen.

"Protect them with divine protection, that all sins may flee from them; and may they always study to fulfil Thy commandments. Amen.

"Rest favourably in them, Who formerly rested glorious in the Apostles.

"Which He Himself. Amen. The blessing. Amen."

These specimens of Confirmation Offices of the Western Church, will show how little substantial variation there has been in them from the days of Primitive Christianity down to our own time. In the Eastern Church the rite is not restricted to the Bishop, but is administered by the priest (as his deputy, and with Chrism blessed by him) immediately after Baptism, with the sign of the cross in chrism on various parts of the body, and the words, "The Seal of the gift of the Holy Ghost. Amen." The modern Roman is almost identical with the ancient use of Salisbury.

The imposition of hands was undoubtedly the principal ceremony of Confirmation in Apostolic times, and cannot be regarded otherwise than as the essential part of the rite. Nor can it be doubted, that it consisted of an actual placing of one or both of the Bishop's hands on the head of the person to be confirmed. Yet, in mediæval times (as in the modern Latin Church), consignation with chrism, and the blow on the cheek, were the only ways in which the Bishop's hand came into actual contact with the head of the candidate; and what was called imposition of hands, was an elevation of his hands in an attitude of benediction, spreading them abroad towards the persons kneeling before him. A somewhat similar custom has been adopted by modern English bishops, who lay their hands on each child successively, and then say the words, "Defend, O Lord," &c., over the whole collectively with hands outstretched. Yet the actual laying on of hands is perfectly effected in the latter case, and it is certain that the words are not an essential part of the rite<sup>1</sup>. The words of the English Rubric, however, plainly direct that the words shall be uttered over each child while the hands of the Bishop rest upon him; and as the words are a precatory benediction, it does appear, that the other custom may, in some degree, deprive the person who ought to be individually blessed by the Bishop, of the full benefit which the blessing is intended to convey.

Confirmation is not, according to the strictest form of definition, a Sacrament. Our Lord did indeed ordain "the outward and visible sign" of benediction, by laying His hands on the little children who were brought to Him, and on His Apostles. But there is no distinct evidence that this laying on of hands was for the purpose of Confirmation; and as Baptism, in its fullest Christian phase, was not administered before the Day of Pentecost, it can scarcely be supposed that such was the case. Although, however, not a Sacrament in the strictest sense, Confirmation undoubtedly conveys grace, and the grace is conveyed by the outward sign. Accordingly Bishop Cosin writes, "The nature of this holy Sacrament (for so we need not fear to call it in a right sense) will be more easily understood . . ." [Works, v. 142], giving it the sacred title in a subordinate sense, as an outward and visible sign of an inward and spiritual grace indeed, but not known to be certainly of Christ's Institution, nor "generally necessary for salvation."

<sup>1</sup> One of the oldest Bishops in the Church of England confirmed 12,564 persons during the summer of 1865. To say the words over each severally in such a multitude seems almost impossible.

§ The Effect of Confirmation.

The outward sign of Confirmation is the same as that of Ordination, the laying on of hands by a Bishop; and this fact suggests that there is some analogy between the two rites. Confirmation is, indeed, a kind of lesser Ordination, by which the baptized person receives the gift of the Holy Ghost for the work of adult Christian life: and hence it is the means of grace by which that "priesthood of the laity" is conferred, to which St. Peter refers when he writes, "Ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people" [1 Pet. ii. 9]. It is also the means of grace by which the Christian, whose sins were all forgiven in Baptism, receives a further measure of strength, enabling him to stand against the temptations which assail maturer life. Thus, although Baptism is a perfect Sacrament, conveying forgiveness of sin, and giving a new nature through the union which it effects between the baptized and Christ, yet Confirmation is the complement of Baptism, in that it (1) renews and strengthens the Christian life then given, and (2) carries the baptized person on to "perfection," so that he becomes competent to take part in the highest of Christian ordinances. And thus, as grace for the work of the ministry is given by the laying on of hands in Ordination,—the ordained person being placed in a different relation towards God from that which he before occupied—so by the laying on of hands in Confirmation the relation of the confirmed person towards God is also changed, and he becomes competent to undertake spiritual work, both as to duties and privileges, for which he was not previously qualified.

The value of this holy ordinance as a means of grace, and its relation to Baptism, are plainly and beautifully set forth in these words, taken from a book of Homilies written before the Reformation, and here transcribed from Fothergill's MS. Annotations on the Prayer Book, preserved in York Minster Library:—"In Baptism he was born again spiritually to live, in Confirmation he is made bold to fight. There he received remission of sin, here he receiveth increase of grace. There the Spirit of God did make him a new man, here the same Spirit doth defend him in his dangerous conflict. There he was washed and made clean, here he is nourished and made strong. In Baptism he was chosen to be God's son, and an inheritor of His heavenly kingdom: in Confirmation God shall give him His Holy Spirit to be his Mentor, to instruct him and perfect him, that he lose not by his folly that inheritance which he is called unto. In Baptism he was called and chosen to be one of God's soldiers, and had his white coat of innocency delivered unto him, and also his badge, which was the red cross, the instrument of His passion, set upon his forehead and other parts of his body: in Confirmation he is encouraged to fight, and take the armour of God put upon him, which be able to bear off the fiery darts of the devil, and to defend him from all harm, if he will use them in his battle, and not put himself in danger of his enemies by entering the field without them<sup>1</sup>."

Such being the benefits to be derived from Confirmation, the Church has provided that it shall be administered so frequently that it may be within the reach of every one. The Sixtieth Canon enjoins that it shall be performed every third year, as follows:—

CANON 60.

"Confirmation to be performed once in three Years.

"Forasmuch as it hath been a solemn, ancient, and laudable custom in the Church of God, continued from the Apostles' times, that all Bishops should lay their hands upon children baptized, and instructed in the Catechism of Christian Religion, praying over them, and blessing them, which we commonly call Confirmation, and that this holy action hath been accustomed in the Church in former ages to be performed in the Bishop's visitation every third year; we will and appoint, That every Bishop or his Suffragan, in his accustomed visitation, do in his own person carefully observe the said custom. And if in that year, by reason of some infirmity, he be not able personally to visit, then he shall not omit the execution of that duty of Confirmation the next year after, as he may conveniently."

<sup>1</sup> Fothergill's MSS., xi. F. 9, p. 19. The first part of this quotation seems to be from Melchisedes, Epist. ad Hisp. in med., but Fothergill appears to have taken it from a book of English Homilies similar to the Liber Festivalis.

But there are few dioceses in England in which the Bishop does not now find it necessary to hold Confirmations more frequently<sup>2</sup>.

The age at which children are to be presented to the Bishop is not explicitly ordered by the Church of England; but the Sixty-first Canon makes it necessary for the child to have arrived at an age when he can have some intelligent acquaintance with the principles of faith and duty<sup>3</sup>.

CANON 61.

"Ministers to prepare Children for Confirmation.

"Every Minister, that hath cure and charge of souls, for the better accomplishing of the orders prescribed in the Book of Common Prayer concerning Confirmation, shall take especial care that none shall be presented to the Bishop for him to lay his hands upon, but such as can render an account of their faith, according to the Catechism in the said Book contained. And when the Bishop shall assign any time for the performance of that part of his duty, every such Minister shall use his best endeavour to prepare and make able, and likewise to procure as many as he can to be then brought, and by the Bishop to be confirmed."

The rubrics at the end of the Catechism further direct that as soon as this age of intelligence has been attained, children shall be brought to the Bishop to be confirmed. A further light is thrown upon the subject by the old rubric, out of which the present Preface to the Confirmation Office was formed. It may also be added that the 112th Canon requires all persons to become communicants before the age of sixteen years: and that with triennial confirmations this supposed many to become so at twelve or thirteen years of age. Before that age they were forbidden to communicate by one of Queen Elizabeth's Injunctions: the time for Confirmation, as intended by those who framed our present Office, appears therefore to have been from twelve to sixteen years of age, according to the development of intelligence on the one hand, and the opportunities offered, on the other, for coming to the ordinance. Yet the principle of the ordinance seems to suggest, that an earlier age even than twelve might often be adopted with great spiritual advantage to those who thus receive the grace of God to protect them against temptation.

<sup>2</sup> It is to be feared that Confirmations were very much neglected by the Bishops from the Reformation until modern times. Bishop Cosin has a note which shows that a loose practice of mediæval times prevailed even in the seventeenth century: "The place whereunto the children shall be brought for their confirmation is left to the appointment of the Bishop. If the place were ordered here to be none but the church, and there the office to be done with the Morning or Evening Prayer annexed, it would avoid the offensive liberty that herein hath been commonly taken, to confirm children in the streets, in the highways, and in the common fields, without any sacred solemnity." [Works, v. 522.] This seems to show that the canonical periods of Confirmation were not observed, but any chance occasion taken advantage of by the people.

<sup>3</sup> A similar rule was enjoined by the Council of Trent. See Catechism of Council of Trent, chap. iii., quest. 7. The time there marked out for Confirmation is between seven and twelve years of age.

Heb. vi. 2.

THE ## ORDER OF CONFIRMATION, OR LAYING ON OF HANDS UPON THOSE THAT ARE BAPTIZED AND COME TO YEARS OF DISCRETION.

¶ Upon the day appointed, all that are to be then confirmed, being placed, and standing in order, before the Bishop; he (or some other Minister appointed by him) shall read this Preface following.

Acts viii. 14. 17.
xix. 6.

TO the end that Confirmation may be ministered to the more edifying of such as shall receive it, the Church hath thought good to order, That none hereafter shall be Confirmed,

THE ORDER OF CONFIRMATION.

Previously to the last revision of the Prayer Book, in 1661, Confirmation was preceded by such questions from the Catechism as the Bishop saw fit to ask, or to cause to be asked. The Versicles and Collect followed, without any address or other questions intervening, and then the act of confirmation. As soon as the act of Confirmation had taken place, the Collect which now comes after the Lord's Prayer followed immediately, and the service concluded with the Blessing. In what respect this form of the Office differed from that of 1549 is shown further on.

The present form is due to Bishop Cosin, but he proposed even greater alterations, as will be seen in the following Office, copied from the margin of the Prayer Book which he prepared for the Revision Committee of 1661. He altered the title to its present form from the sub-heading, "Confirmation, or laying on of hands," and erased altogether the principal title which preceded the above rubric and included the Catechism. Under the new title he then inserted the following rubric and office:—

§ Order of Confirmation proposed by Bishop Cosin.

¶ Upon the day appointed, after Morning or Evening Prayer is ended, the Bishop shall go to the Lord's Table, and all that are to be then confirmed being placed, and standing in order before him near unto the same, he, or his chaplain, or some other Minister appointed by him, shall read this preface following.

"To the end that Confirmation, &c. [as before the Catechism usque ad] to the will of God.

"Answer me therefore, Do ye here in the presence of God, and of His holy Church, renew the solemn promise and vow that was made in your name at your Baptism, ratifying and confirming the same in your own persons, and acknowledging yourselves

CONFIRMATIO

Salisbury Use.

PUERORUM ET ALIORUM BAPTIZATORUM.

¶ To the end that confirmation may be ministered to the more edifying of such as shall receive it, (according to St. Paul's doctrine, who teacheth that all things should be done in the church to the edification of the same,) it is thought good that none hereafter shall

Rubric in Common Prayer Book of 1549.

bound to do all these things which your Godfathers and Godmothers then undertook for you?

"And every one shall audibly answer,

"I do.

"Minister.

"Dost thou renounce the devil and all his works, the vain pomp and glory of the world, with all the covetous desires of the same, and the wicked desires of the flesh, so that thou wilt not follow nor be led by them?"

"Answer.

"I renounce them all.

"Minister.

*"Do you believe in God the Father Almighty, &c. [as in Public Baptism usque ad] grace so to do?"*

"Minister, or the Bishop.

"Almighty God, Who hath given you the will to promise and undertake all these things, grant you also power and strength to perform the same, that He may accomplish the good work which He hath begun in you, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

¶ Then shall they all kneel, and the Bishop standing at the Lord's Table shall proceed, and say,"—

[Then follow the Versicles and the Collect.]

¶ Then shall the Chaplain or Curate of the place read the Epistle—

"Acts viii. v. 12 to the 18 v.

<sup>1</sup> There appears to have been some confusion in Cosin's mind, when he wrote this, between the Office for Public Baptism and the Catechism, in which are the words, "I pray unto God to give me His grace, that I may continue in the same unto my life's end."

but such as can say the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the Ten Commandments; and can also answer to such other Questions, as in the short Catechism are contained: which order is very convenient to be observed; to the end that children, being now come to the years of discretion, and having learned what their Godfathers and Godmothers promised for them in Baptism, they may themselves, with their own mouth and consent, openly before the Church, ratify and confirm the same; and also promise, that by the grace of God they will evermore endeavour themselves faithfully to observe such things, as they, by their own confession, have assented unto.

Deut. vi. 7.
Ps. lxxviii. 1—7.

be confirmed but such as can say, in their mother tongue, the articles of the faith, the Lord's Prayer, and the Ten Commandments, and can also answer to such questions of this short catechism as the bishop (or such as he shall appoint) shall, by his discretion, appose them in. And this order is most convenient to be observed for divers considerations.

¶ First, because that when children come to the years of discretion, and have learned what their godfathers and godmothers promised for them in baptism, they may then themselves, with their own mouth, and with their own consent, openly before the church, ratify and confess the same; and also promise that, by the grace of God, they will evermore endeavour themselves faithfully to observe and keep such things as they, by their own mouth and confession, have assented unto.

[ratify and confirm, 1552.]

¶ Secondly, forasmuch as confirmation is ministered to them that be baptized, that, by imposition of hands and prayer, they may receive strength and defence against all temptations to sin, and the assaults of the world and the devil, it is most meet to be ministered when children come to that age, that partly by the frailty of their own flesh, partly by the assaults of the world and the devil, they begin to be in danger to fall into sin.

[into sundry kinds of sin, 1552.]

¶ Thirdly, for that it is agreeable with the usage of the church in times past, whereby it was ordained that confirmation should be ministered to them that were of perfect age, that they, being instructed in Christ's religion, should openly profess their own faith, and promise to be obedient unto the will of God.

¶ And that no man shall think that any detriment shall come to children, by deferring of their confirmation, he shall know for truth that it is certain, by God's word, that children being baptized (if they depart out of this life in their infancy) are undoubtedly saved.

[have all things necessary for their salvation, and be, 1552.]

"And the Gospel—

"St. Luke ii. v. 40 to the end of the chapter."

[The remainder of the Office is the altered form which is now in use.]

From this Office, the basis of that now in the Prayer Book, it will be seen that the present question asked by the Bishop, "Do ye here," &c., is the last relic of the public catechizing which was introduced into the Confirmation Service at the Reformation<sup>1</sup>. This is made still more clear by a previous alteration which Cosin had made (and afterwards erased) in the rubric, which he turned into the present preface: after the words, "None shall hereafter be confirmed, but such as," in the first paragraph, he had written, "the ministers of the several parishes having first instructed and examined them in the Catechism following, and shall certify and undertake for them, that they can say in their mother tongue," &c. Cosin, therefore, shortened the Service by substituting an actual verbal renewal of the baptismal vows for the repetition of the Catechism; and it was afterwards still further shortened by retaining only the first of the questions which he proposed: in answering which the Candidates do still implicitly renew their baptismal vows.

The Latin in the right-hand page beyond represents the Confirmation Office as it stood in the old Manuals and Pontificals of the Church of England before the Reformation: the portion now discontinued being enclosed within brackets.

ratify and confirm] It will be observed that this originally stood "ratify and confess," the word "confess" being used in the sense now more commonly expressed by the cognate word "profess." The alteration was made in 1552, and seems to have been introduced out of pure love for a synonym. The phrase was adopted by Cosin in the subsequent question asked by the <sup>1</sup> The idea of introducing a Catechism into the Confirmation Service appears to have been taken from Archbishop Hermann's "Consultation." For some notice of that provided by him for the purpose, see the Introduction to the Catechism.

Deut. xxix. 9—
13.
2 Chron. xxxiv.
30—32.

¶ Then shall the Bishop say,

DO ye here, in the presence of God, and of this congregation, renew the solemn promise and vow that was made in your name at your Baptism; ratifying and confirming the same in your own persons, and acknowledging yourselves bound to believe, and to do, all those things, which your Godfathers and Godmothers then undertook for you?

¶ And every one shall audibly answer,

I do.

The Bishop.

Ps. cxxiv. 8.

OUR help is in the Name of the Lord;

Answer.

Ps. cxxi. 1, 2.

Who hath made heaven and earth.

DOETH that please the, then, and doest thou allowe it, and wilt thou continue in the same, that thy godfathers promised and professed in thy name at holy baptisme, when in thy steede thei renounced Satan, and the world, and bound the to Christe and to His congregation, that thou shouldest be thorowlie obedient to the Gospel?
Answer. I allowe these things, and by the healpe of our Lorde Jesus Christ I wyl continue in the same unto thende.

[Daye's transl.
of Heiman's Consultation,
A.D. 1547.]

In primis dicat Episcopus.

Salisbury Use.

ADJUTORIUM nostrum in nomine Domini.

Qui fecit cœlum et terram.

Bishop, and its exact force may be determined by a parallel passage in the Declaration prefixed to the XXXIX Articles, in which the King is made to say, "... the Articles ... which we do therefore ratify and confirm ...". This declaration was first issued by Charles I. some time between June 26th and January 20th, 1627-8. It was just at this time that Cosin was so much in the King's confidence as to be commissioned to draw up the "Private Devotions" for his Majesty's use; and it is not improbable that the Declaration itself was also drawn up by Cosin.

The use of the expression "ratify and confirm" being thus illustrated, it may be added that the ratification and confirmation spoken of is that of the Baptismal vows. The confirmation of the Baptism itself, and therefore of the baptized person, is a wholly distinct thing, performed by the Bishop, and having no essential connexion whatever with the previous ratification of the Baptismal vow by the person confirmed. The confusion of terms is unfortunate, as many have been misled by it into a total misapprehension of the nature of Confirmation. A person is spiritually competent to receive Confirmation who has been baptized in private, or even by a layman: and for whom no Baptismal vows have ever been made.

[endeavour themselves] This reflective form of the verb "endeavour" has passed out of ordinary use. It occurs, however, five times in the Prayer Book, and also in the fourth clause of the Elizabethan Act of Uniformity. The other places where it is used in the Prayer Book are the Collect for the second Sunday after Easter, in two Answers made by Deacons and Priests respectively at their Ordination, and in the last clause but one of the Exhortation to those about to be ordained priests. Other illustrations of its use abound in the writings of the period, as when in the first part of the Homily against Contention [A.D. 1547] it is said, "Let us endeavour ourselves to fulfil St. Paul's joy;" and in Udall's translation of the paraphrase of Erasmus [A.D. 1548], "Those servants . . . do still endeavour themselves to do their office" [Mark, fol. 87]; and again, "Endeavour yourselves earnestly to be such as ye would be taken for" [Luke, fol. 112].

The MS. of a Confirmation address in Bishop Cosin's own handwriting is inserted between the leaves of the Office in his Durham Prayer Book. He appears to have used it before the Preface, "To the end therefore, &c.," being written at the close as its continuation. This address will be found printed at p. 526 of the fifth volume of his works, and also in Nicholls' additional notes; but in neither of them have the Editors taken any notice of the indication afforded by the MS. respecting the manner in which the Bishop's address and the "preface" were intended by Cosin to be connected together. In adopting this Prefatory address, Cosin may have had in view the rubric of the Lyons Pontifical, in which the Bishop is directed to "first give an admonition to the people" respecting confirmation in its relation to themselves and those about to receive it. An "admonition" is also directed in a pontifical of the Church of Catalonia [see Martene I. i. 18, for both], and it is probable that it formed part of the ancient Gallican rite.

[I do] This short answer, taken in connexion with the question to which it is a reply, contains, as has been already shown, an implicit renewal of the Baptismal vows; and is a repetition, under more solemn circumstances, and to God's chief minister, of the answer in the Catechism, "Yes, verily; and by God's help so I will," to the question, "Dost thou not think that thou art bound to believe, and to do, as they have promised for thee?" The connexion of this latter solemn adjuration with the "I do" of the Confirmation Service is accidentally indicated by the first versicle, "Our help is in the Name of the Lord." Every time the answer in the Catechism has been repeated by the children catechized, they have ratified and confirmed in their own persons, and acknowledged themselves bound to believe and to do, all those things which their Godfathers and Godmothers undertook for them, i.e. promised on their behalf, at their Baptism. They now ratify and confirm those Baptismal vows in as solemn a manner as possible, not before their parish priest only, but before the Bishop, who is the highest spiritual officer of Christ on earth, and His chief ministerial representative. This preliminary catechizing is therefore a formality of a very significant character, and, although no essential part of the rite of Confirmation, is a preparation for it which ought not to be passed over lightly. It marks the last step in the pathway of Christian childhood; and, on the verge of Christian maturity, sounds the trumpet-call of Christian duty to those who have promised manfully to fight under Christ's banner against sin, the world, and the devil, and to continue His faithful soldiers and servants unto their lives' end. The last stone in the foundation of the Christian life is about to be laid, and sealed with God's signet in confirmation of His promises. It is a time to remember that although "the foundation of God standeth sure, having this seal, The Lord knoweth them that are His," there is a "reverse" as well as an

Bishop.

Ps. cxlii. 2. Blessed be the Name of the Lord;

Answer.

Ps. cvi. 48. Henceforth world without end.

Bishop.

Ps. cii. 1. Lord, hear our prayers.

*Answer.*Ps. cxxx. 1, 2. And let our cry come unto thee.
Phil. iv. 6.The Bishop.

Let us pray.

1 Cor. vi. 11.
Tit. iii. 5.
1 John ii. 12.
Eph. iii. 14—16.
John xiv. 16, 17.
26.
1 Cor. xii. 4, 31.
Isa. xlv. 24.
xi. 2, 3.
2 Pet. i. 5—7.
Heb. xii. 28.

ALMIGHTY and everliving God, who hast vouchsafed to regenerate these thy servants by Water and the Holy Ghost, and hast given unto them forgiveness of all their sins; Strengthen them, we beseech thee, O Lord, with the Holy Ghost the Comforter, and daily increase in them thy manifold gifts of grace; the spirit of wisdom and understanding; the spirit of counsel and ghostly strength; the spirit of knowledge and true godliness;

Sit nomen Domini benedictum.

Ex hoc nunc et usque in sæculum.

[Domine, exaudi orationem meam.

Et clamor meus ad te veniat.]

Dominus vobiscum.

Et cum spiritu tuo.

Oremus.

OMNIPOTENS sempiternæ Deus, Salisbury Use.
Greg. Gelas.
Qui regenerare dignatus es hos famulos Tuos vel has famulas Tuas ex aqua et Spiritu Sancto, Quique dedisti eis remissionem omnium peccatorum:
immitte in eos septiformem spiritum,
Sanctum Paraclitum de cœlis. Amen.
Spiritus sapientiæ et intellectus.
Amen.
Spiritus scientiæ et pietatis. Amen.
Spiritus consilii et fortitudinis.
✠Amen.

“obverse” to the seal of Confirmation, and that it has another inscription, “Let every one that nameth the Name of Christ depart from iniquity” [2 Tim. ii. 19]. The new blessing confirms the promise of God made in Baptism: it also enforces again that obligation of faithful service from which the Christian can never become free.

Our help is in the Name] With the first four of these Versicles the Office of Confirmation anciently began. The latter two appear to have been added for the first time in 1552, when the Dominus vobiscum was placed after the act of Confirmation instead of before the Collect which preceded it. They are, however, found in very general use in ancient Offices, as they are in our own, and it is not improbable that some of our ancient Pontificals had them in this place. They are in the Offices for Holy Matrimony, the Churching of Women, and the Visitation of the Sick; and in 1661 they were placed after the Veni Creator in the Consecration of Bishops.

§ The Prayer of Invocation.

The Collect which follows the versicles is of primitive antiquity, being in the Sacramentaries of St. Gregory and Gelasius, and also in St. Ambrose's Treatise on the Sacraments [ii. 3; iii. 7]; while its position and use indicate a still higher antiquity<sup>1</sup>. It is extant in a pontifical of Egbert, Archbishop of York, dating from about A.D. 700, so that we know it has been used in the Church of England for at least 1150 years. Some similar Invocation of the Holy Spirit is found in all Confirmation Offices.

The first words of this solemn invocation offer a distinct recognition of the truth that there is “One Baptism for the remission of sins;” and although Confirmation has been separated from Baptism for ages, yet the Church has never wavered in the continued use of these words, being assured that God's promises are always fulfilled; and that if His pardon ceases to be effected, it is not through any deficiency in His Gift of regeneration, but from the obstacles placed by man in the way of its operation. The latter part of the Collect is based on a faithful appreciation of our Lord's words, “I am the Vine, ye are the branches.” They who abide in the olive partake of the fatness of the olive. The anointing of the Head flows down upon the members, “even to the skirts of His clothing.” As the sevenfold Spirit rested upon our Lord and Saviour (according to the prophecy of Isaiah), after His Baptism in Jordan, so may those who have been united to Him by Baptism, hope for a participation in the gifts of the same Spirit through that rite by which their Baptism is confirmed, and their Christian nature matured.

The Puritans objected to this prayer, in 1661, in the following words: “This supposeth that all the children who are brought to be confirmed have the Spirit of Christ, and the forgiveness of all their sins; whereas a great number of children at that age, having committed many sins since their baptism, do show no evidence of serious repentance, or of any special saving grace; and therefore this confirmation (if administered to such) would be a perilous and gross abuse<sup>2</sup>.” This was a reverent objection, but showed considerable ignorance of the theological principles on which the Offices of the Church are framed, as well as of the manner in which they are intended to be administered. The reply of the Bishops was short, but pointed and consistent with the principles of the Prayer Book: “It supposeth, and that truly, that all children were at their baptism regenerate by water and the Holy Ghost, and had given unto them the forgiveness of all their sins; and it is charitably presumed that notwithstanding the frailties and slips of their childhood, they have not totally lost what was in baptism conferred upon them; and therefore adds, ‘Strengthen them, we beseech Thee, O Lord, with the Holy Ghost the Comforter, and daily increase in them Thy manifold gifts of grace,’ &c. None that lives in open sin ought to be confirmed<sup>3</sup>.” A faithful certainty respecting God's justice, mercy, and grace, mingled with a loving habit of and fill them, O Lord, with the spirit of thy holy fear, now and for ever. Amen.

<sup>1</sup> It is also to be found, in more Oriental language, in the Confirmation Office of the Eastern Church. See Littledale's Offices of the Eastern Church, pp. 26, 145.

<sup>2</sup> Cardw. Conf., p. 329.

<sup>3</sup> Ibid., p. 358.

Acts viii. 17.

¶ Then all of them in order kneeling before the Bishop, he shall lay his hand upon the head of every one severally, saying,

Ps. xx. 1, 2.
Lxxxiv. 11.
Lxxlii. 23, 21.
Acts xi. 1. 52.
Jude 24, 25.

DEFEND, O Lord, this thy child [or, this thy servant] with thy heavenly grace, that he may continue thine for ever: and daily increase in thy holy Spirit more and more, until he come unto thy everlasting kingdom. Amen.

¶ Then shall the Bishop say,

2 Thess. iii. 16.

The Lord be with you.

Et imple eos vel eas spiritu timoris Domini. ✠ Amen.

[Et consigna eos vel eas signo sanctæ crucis ✠ confirma eos vel eas chrismate salutis in vitam propitiatus æternam. Amen.

¶ Et tunc episcopus petat nomen, et ungat pollicem chrismate: et faciat in fronte pueri crucem, dicens,

CONSIGNO te N. signo crucis ✠ et confirmo te chrismate salutis. In nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti. Amen.

Pax tibi.]

charitable doubt respecting the sins of individual Christians, pervades the whole of the Prayer Book.

§ The Act of Confirmation.

The original form of this, in the Prayer Book of 1549, was as follows:—

“Minister<sup>1</sup>. Sign them, O Lord, and mark them to be Thine for ever by the virtue of Thy holy cross and passion. Confirm and strengthen them with the inward unction of Thy Holy Ghost mercifully unto everlasting life. Amen.

“Then the Bishop shall cross them in the forehead, and lay his hand upon their head, saying, “N. I sign thee with the sign of the cross, and lay my hand upon thee, in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

“And thus shall he do to every child, one after another. And when he hath laid his hand upon every child, then shall he say,

“The peace of the Lord abide with you.

“Answer. And with thy spirit.”

If the use of Unction was dropped in 1549, the consignation with the cross was thus retained. In 1552 the rubric and words with which the latter was given were omitted, and a precatory benediction founded on the preceding Collect was adopted as an accompaniment to the laying on of the Bishop's hands. But it is probable that the sign of the Cross was still used by our Bishops, for its use is defended as if it were a well-known custom in a sermon by Edward Boughen, chaplain to Howson, Bishop of Oxford. This sermon was preached at the Bishop's first visitation, on September 27th, 1619, Confirmations at that time being part of the Episcopal Visitation. Boughen's words are as follows: “The cross, therefore, upon this or the like consideration, is enjoined to be used in Confirmation in the Book of Common Prayer set forth and allowed in Edward VI.'s reign. And I find it not at any time revoked: but it is left, as it seems, to the bishop's discretion to use or not to use the cross in confirmation.” No doubt this represents the feeling of many who were occupied at various times with the revision of the Prayer Book. It might be desirable to omit the mention of many things for the sake of relieving the consciences of persons to whom they were a burden; but such omission was not necessarily to bind those in whose eyes the things omitted were precious to a total disuse of primitive and holy ceremonies. Charity towards those who disliked ceremonies was not intended to exclude charity towards those who loved them; and the Prayer Book thus represented in many places the minimum of ceremonial usage customary in the Church of England, but left the maximum to be sought from tradition. As for the sign of the cross itself, the time seems to have passed away when any justification of its use in Divine Service needs to be given to educated and religious persons. It may, however, be added, that neither the use of that ceremony, nor of the words, whether in the old or the present Prayer Book, is any essential part of the acts of Confirmation. Whatever of a sacramental nature is contained in the rite is contained in the Divinely instituted ceremony of the laying on of hands; the contact of which with the head of the person to be confirmed has been always esteemed (even in the form of consignation) absolutely necessary to a true Confirmation. It was the desire to restore this ceremony to its full importance, and to enforce the proper use of it, which really led to the changes made in the Office in 1552<sup>2</sup>.

<sup>2</sup> It will be observed that it was the custom (according to ancient practice) for the Bishop to confirm the children by name, until 1552. This custom gave rise to a power on the part of the Bishop to change the baptismal name for another if he saw fit. “Let priests take care that names which carry a lascivious sex be not given to children at their baptism, especially to those of the female sex: if they be altered, let them be by the bishops at confirmation.” [Johnson's Canons, ii. 277.] On this subject Lord Coke says, “If a man be baptized by the name of Thomas, and after, at his confirmation by the bishop, he is named John, his name of confirmation shall stand good. And this was the case of Sir Francis Gawdie, chief justice of the Court of Common Pleas, whose name by baptism was Thomas, and his name of confirmation Francis: and that name of Francis, by the advice of all the judges, he did bear, and afterwards used in all his purchases and grants.” [Coke's Institutes, I. iii.] Lord Coke must have been well acquainted with the practice of the bishops in confirming, and his words indicate either that (1) the rite of consignation was still retained by traditional usage, or that (2) Bishops named the persons confirmed by saying, “This thy child N.,” or “thy servant N.” Johnson, in speaking of the practice (in a note to the above Canon), expressly says that the practice of confirming by name was altered “upon the review of the Liturgy at King Charles' restoration,” but no Prayer Books are known which provide for this except that of 1549.

Bishop Kennett has left on record in some MS. notes to the Prayer Book, which are now in the British Museum, an account of a case in which a Bishop changed the name of a child so lately as 1707. He states the fact as follows:—“On Sunday, Dec. 21, 1707, the Lord Bishop of Lincoln confirmed a young lad in Henry VII.'s Chapel: who upon that ceremony was to change his Christian name: and, accordingly, the sponsor who presented him delivered to the Bishop a certificate, which his lordship signed, to notify that he had confirmed such a person by such a name, and did order the parish minister then present to register the person in the parish book under that name. This was done by the opinion under hand of Sir Edward Northey, and the like opinion of Lord Chief Justice Holt, founded on the authority of Sir Edward Coke, who says it was the common law of England.” The ancient canon law certainly only referred to such a change when the baptismal name was one of an improper kind, yet this may only represent a portion of the common law of the Church on the subject.

<sup>1</sup> See p. 1, margin.

Answer.

2 Tim. iv. 22.

And with thy spirit.

¶ And (all kneeling down) the Bishop shall add,

Let us pray.

Oremus.

OUR Father, which art in heaven,
Hallowed be thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, As it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them
that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us
from evil. Amen.

¶ And this Collect.

Jer. x. 23.
1 Tim. v. 4.
Phil. ii. 13.
James iv. 6. v. 16.
Eph. iii. 5.
Acts viii. 14—17.
Ps. ciii. 13.
Ezra viii. 22.
2 Cor. vi. 17, 18.
John xiv. 16, 17.
2 Tim. iii. 15.
iv. 7, 8.
Jude 24, 25.

ALMIGHTY and everliving God, who makest us both to will and to do those things that be good and acceptable unto thy divine Majesty;
We make our humble supplications unto thee for these thy servants, upon whom (after the example of thy holy Apostles) we have now laid our hands, to certify them (by this sign) of thy favour and gracious goodness towards them. Let thy fatherly hand, we beseech thee, ever be over them; let thy Holy Spirit ever be with them; and so lead them in the knowledge and obedience of thy Word, that in the end they may obtain everlasting life, through our Lord Jesus Christ, who with thee and the Holy Ghost liveth and reigneth, ever one God, world without end. Amen.

2 Cor. vi. 18.
Prov. iii. 6.
Heb. x. 16.
Ps. cxix. 32, 73.
Ps. xvi. 1. xxvii.
5. cxxi. 1—8.
2 Tim. iv. 18.

O ALMIGHTY Lord, and everlasting God, vouchsafe, we beseech thee, to direct, sanctify, and govern both our hearts and bodies, in the ways of thy laws, and in the works of thy commandments; that, through thy most mighty protection both here and ever, we may be preserved in body and soul, through our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

The Collect.

ALMIGHTY and merciful God, heavenly Father, which onely workest in us to wil and to performe the thynges that please The, and be good in dede, we besech The for these children, whom Thou hast gyven to Thy church . . . that when we shall now lay our handes upon them in Thy name, and shall certifie them by thys signe, that Thy Fatherly hande shall ever be stretched forth upon them, and that they shall never wante Thy holy Spirite to keepe, leade, and governe them in the way of healthe and in a very christian life . . . .

Daye's transl.
of Herman's Consultation,
A. D. 1547.

Oratio.

[D]EUS, Qui apostolis tuis Sanctum dedisti Spiritum, Quique per eos eorum successoribus cæterisque fidelibus tradendum esse voluisti: respice propitius ad nostræ humanitatis famulatum: et præsta, ut horum corda quorum frontes sacrosancto chrismate delinivimus, et signo sanctæ crucis consignavimus, idem Spiritus Sanctus adveniens, templum gloriæ suæ dig-

Salisbury Use.

§ The Collect and Benediction.

The Lord's Prayer was first inserted in the Confirmation Service in 1661, when the Dominus vobiscum, which had been removed from the Service altogether in 1552, was replaced in its present position, instead of with the other versicles. The Pax tibi was also removed in 1552, but was not restored. This "Peace be with you" was (as in the modern Latin Church) accompanied by a slight blow on the cheek, intended to signify that the person confirmed was to be a faithful soldier of Christ, and ready to suffer affronts for His sake.

The Collect which follows the Lord's Prayer has some likeness to that which occupied the same place in the ancient office, but its words are taken in part from a long Collect which preceded the Act of Confirmation in Archbishop Hermann's Cologne Book. The second Collect was inserted in 1661, probably with the intention of placing at the end of the Service a prayer for the general congregation, the preceding one being for the newly con-

Numb. vi. 22-27. ¶ Then the Bishop shall bless them, saying thus,
2 Cor. xiii. 14.

THE Blessing of God Almighty, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, be upon you, and remain with you for ever. Amen.

¶ And there shall none be admitted to the holy Communion, until such time as he be confirmed, or be ready and desirous to be confirmed.

nanter inhabitando perficiat. Per Dominum. In unitate ejusdem.

ECCE sic benedicetur omnis homo, Salisbury Use.
qui timet Dominum. Benedicat vos Dominus ex Sion : ut videatis bona Hierusalem omnibus diebus vestris.

Benedicat vos Omnipotens Deus :
Pa✠ter, et Fi✠lius, et Spiritus✠ Sanctus. Amen.

... Statuimus quod nullus ad sacramentum Constit iv., Abp.
corporis et sanguinis Domini admittatur Peckham, A.D.
extra articulum mortis, nisi fuerit confirmatus, vel nisi a receptione confirmationis rationabiliter fuerit impeditus. 1281.

firmed. The latter part of the ancient Benediction has been retained in the English Office, but the fifth and sixth verses of the 128th Psalm which preceded it were not continued in use.

The ancient benedictions in this place were sometimes very long : and were, in reality, a Psalm pronounced in a benedictory form.

THE FORM OF SOLEMNIZATION OF MATRIMONY.

¶ First the Banns of all that are to be married together must be published in the Church three several Sundays, or Holydays, in the time of Divine Service, immediately before the sentences for the Offertory, the Curate saying after the accustomed manner,

I PUBLISH the Banns of Marriage between M. of — and N. of —. If any of you know cause, or just impediment, why these two persons should not be joined together in holy matrimony, ye are to declare it. This is the first [second, or third] time of asking.

THE FORM OF SOLEMNIZATION OF MATRIMONY.

THE words of our Blessed Lord and of His Apostles respecting Marriage, gave it at once the stamp of a religious institution having the character of a mystery,—that is, in the wide sense of the word, a Sacrament: and, accordingly, the Church has always enjoined its celebration with ecclesiastical ceremonies and by ecclesiastical persons. Among the earliest of all Christian writings after the New Testament are the Epistles of St. Ignatius; and in one of these, which he wrote to St. Polycarp and the Church of Smyrna, as he was journeying onward to his martyrdom, he writes: “It is fitting for those who purpose matrimony to accomplish their union with the sanction of the Bishop; that their marriage may be in the Lord, and not merely in the flesh. Let all things be done to the honour of God.” [Ignat. ad Polycarp. v.] Tertullian speaks of marriages being “ratified before God,” and says afterwards, “How can we find words to describe the happiness of that marriage in which the Church joins together, which the Oblation confirms, the benediction seals, the angels proclaim when sealed, and the Father ratifies!” [Tertull. ad Ux. ii. 7, 8.] In the thirteenth canon of the fourth council of Carthage [A.D. 398] it is enjoined that the bride and bridegroom shall be presented by their parents and friends to a priest for benediction. St. Basil calls marriage a yoke which διὰ τῆς εὐλογίας, by means of the benediction, unites in one those who were two. [Basil, Hexaem. vii.] St. Ambrose calls marriage a sacrament, as does also St. Augustine in many places of his treatise “on the Good of Marriage:” and the former, again, says, “As marriage must be sanctified by the priest’s sanction and blessing, how can that be called a marriage where there is no agreement of faith?” [Ambros., Ep. xix.] Lastly, to pass from the Fathers of the fourth century to our own land and to the tenth, there is among the laws of King Edmund [A.D. 946], respecting espousals, one which provides that “the priest shall be at the marriage, and shall celebrate the union according to custom with God’s blessing, and with all solemnity.” Our English Office, which is substantially

ORDO

Salisbury Use.

AD FACIENDUM SPON-SALIA.

... Debet enim sacerdos banna in facie ecclesiæ infra missarum solemnia cum major populi adfuerit multitudo, per tres dies solemnnes et disjunctas, interrogare: ita ut inter unumquemque diem solemnem cadat ad minus una dies ferialis . . . . et si contrahentes diversarum sint parochiarum, tunc in utraque ecclesiæ parochiarum illarum sunt banna interroganda . . . .

the same as the old Latin one, is probably a fair representative of the one which was in use in that distant age.

§ The Publication of Banns.

It is reasonably supposed, from the manner in which Marriage is referred to by the primitive fathers, that some public notice was given to the Bishop, or to the assembled Church, equivalent to that now in use: and traces of such a practice have been observed in the French Church of the ninth century. The earliest extant canon of the Church of England on the subject is the eleventh of the Synod of Westminster, A.D. 1200, which enacts that “no marriage shall be contracted without banns thrice published in church” [Johnson’s Canons, ii. 91]: but this seems only like a canonical enactment of some previously well-known custom. The existing law of the Church of England is very strict on the subject, as may be seen from the first part of the sixty-second Canon.

“CANON 62.

“Ministers not to marry any Persons without Banns or Licence.

“No Minister, upon pain of suspension per triennium ipso facto, shall celebrate Matrimony between any persons, without a faculty or licence granted by some of the persons in these our Constitutions expressed, except the Banns of Matrimony have been first published three several Sundays, or Holydays, in the time of Divine Service, in the Parish Churches and Chapels where the said parties dwell, according to the Book of Common Prayer. . . .”

The Licence is an Episcopal dispensation, permitting the marriage to take place without any previous publication of banns. Such licences have been granted by English bishops at least since the fourteenth century, and the power of granting them was confirmed by 25 Hen. VIII. c. 21. Marriages to be performed under an ordinary Licence are subject to the same restrictions in respect to time and place as those by Banns; but special Licences can be

¶ And if the persons that are to be married dwell in divers Parishes, the Banns must be asked in both Parishes; and the Curate of the one Parish shall not solemnize Matrimony betwixt them, without a Certificate of the Banns being thrice asked, from the Curate of the other Parish.

See the Sarum Form in Massell's Mon. Rit. iii. 376.

¶ At the day and time appointed for solemnization of Matrimony, the persons to be married

¶ In primis statuuntur vir et mulier ante ostium ecclesiæ coram Deo, sacerdote, et populo, vir

granted by the Archbishop of Canterbury, which are not subject to these restrictions<sup>1</sup>. Banns hold good for three months, and no longer, from the date of the last publication; and licences for the same time from the day on which they were granted.

The law respecting clandestine marriages is so very strict, and the consequences to any clergyman who performs the ceremony are so serious, that it may be well to state shortly what means are provided for guarding against them. [1] By Stat. 4 Geo. IV. c. 76, § 7, "no minister shall be obliged to publish banns, unless the persons shall seven days at least before the time required for the first publication deliver or cause to be delivered to him a notice in writing of their names, of their house or houses of abode, and of the time during which they have dwelt, inhabited, or lodged in such house or houses." The clergyman is not bound to demand this notice, but the power of doing so is given, that he may have opportunity of inquiring into the truth of the statements made respecting the alleged residence of the persons in his parish: and if after the marriage it is discovered that the persons were not so residing, and that the clergyman marrying them made no inquiry, he is liable to the full penalty of three years' suspension imposed by the Canon. [2] The rubric enjoins that where the persons whose banns are to be published reside in different parishes, they shall be married in one of them, and a certificate of the due publication of banns in the other shall be given to the clergyman required to marry them before he be allowed to perform the ceremony. [3] The sixty-second Canon forbids a clergyman (under penalty of three years' suspension) to marry any persons by banns or licence except between the hours of eight and twelve in the morning, and in the Church.

"CANON 62.

"... Neither shall any Minister, upon the like pain, under any pretence whatsoever, join any persons so licensed in marriage at any unseasonable times, but only between the hours of eight and twelve in the forenoon, nor in any private place, but either in the said Churches or Chapels where one of them dwelleth, and likewise in time of Divine Service. ...."

[4] The marriage of minors by banns is forbidden (under the same Canon and Statute of Geo. IV.) unless with the consent of parents or guardians.

"CANON 62.

"... Nor when banns are thrice asked, and no licence in that respect necessary, before the parents or governors of the parties to be married, being under the age of twenty and one years, shall either personally, or by sufficient testimony, signify to him their consents given to the said Marriage."

The eighth section of the Act, however, enacts that no clergyman shall be punishable for celebrating the marriage of minors without the consent of parents or guardians, unless he has had notice of their dissent. If such dissent is openly declared or caused to be declared, at the time of the publication of the banns, such publication becomes "absolutely void." Where a Licence is brought to the clergyman (however wrongly obtained) he is not legally responsible.

In modern Prayer Books the rubric respecting the publication of Banns is seldom printed correctly. About the year 1805 the Delegates of the press at Oxford [see Bishop of Exeter's Speech in Hansard, III. v. 78, p. 21] caused it to be altered in all the Oxford Prayer Books, so as to make it direct that the Banns shall be published after the Second Lesson at Morning or the Second Lesson at Evening Prayer, their object being to bring the rubric into agreement with 26 Geo. II. c. 33, s. 1. But that statute only provided for the publication to take place after the Second Lesson at Evening Prayer, in the absence of a Morning Service; and, according to the decision of Lord Mansfield and Baron Alderson, left the rubric untouched. In Reg. v. Benson, 1856, Sir Edward Alderson expressed a doubt whether the publication of Banns is valid under the Act of Parliament in question, when it has taken place after the second lesson instead of after the Nicene Creed. The law, said the judge, had not altered the injunction of the rubric. As, through the neglect of Bishops and Clergy in past times, Morning Service was not always celebrated, "the statute enacted that in such cases the publication should be made in the Evening Service after the Second Lesson." The Marriage Act of 1836 expressly confirms "all the rules prescribed by the rubric" in its first clause<sup>2</sup>.

The limitation of the hours during which the celebration of Marriages may take place is partly to ensure publicity<sup>3</sup>. So in 1502 a priest was presented to the Archdeacon for marrying a man and woman "in hora secunda post mediam noctem, januis clausis;" and in 1578 another was presented for marrying in the afternoon. [Hale's Precedents, 247. 507.] But it is conjectured with some reason, that the practice of morning marriages necessarily arose from the Office being followed by the Holy Communion. It is some confirmation of this, that the wedding breakfast is always eaten after the marriage, as if in obedience to the rule of not breaking the night's fast before Communion.

After the form of the Banns (which was inserted by him) Bishop Cosin proposed to print the following rubrics, which are written in the margin of his Durham Prayer Book:—

¶ The impediments of Marriage are Pre-contract, or a suit depending thereupon, Consanguinity, or Affinity within the degrees prohibited by the laws of God and this realm, Sentence of divorce from a party yet living, Want of competent years, Consent of parents in minors, and of Confirmation and such like.

¶ And none shall be married till their Banns be thrice thus published, unless a lawful dispensation to the contrary be procured: neither shall any persons under the age of twenty-one years complete be married without the express consent of their parents or guardians.

¶ No Minister shall celebrate any Marriage but publicly in the Parish Church or Chapel where one of the parties dwelleth; nor at other times than between the hours of eight and twelve in the forenoon.

¶ And here is to be noted that by the Ecclesiastical Laws of this Realm, there be some times in the year when Marriage is not ordinarily solemnized<sup>4</sup>.

At the day and time appointed for the solemnization of <sup>2</sup> It has been doubted whether Banns published upon Holydays which are not Sundays would be considered legal, as Holydays are not mentioned, while Sundays are, in the Marriage Act, 4 Geo. IV. 76; but the later Act seems to resolve the doubt, and the Latin rubric shows the rationale.

<sup>3</sup> The provisions to secure publicity were very stringent in the mediæval Church of England. See Johnson's Canons, ii. 64. 91.

<sup>4</sup> See note to Table of Vigils and Fasts, &c., for Cosin's list of these times.

<sup>1</sup> These Special Licences were originally a privilege of the Archbishop of Canterbury as "Legatus natus" of the Pope. The right to grant them is confirmed by the Marriage Act of 1836.

shall come into the body of the Church with their friends and neighbours: and there standing together, the man on the right hand, and the woman on the left, the Priest shall say, a dextris mulieris, et mulier a sinistris viri.

* * * * *

¶ Tunc interroget sacerdos banna dicens in lingua materna sub hac forma,

[Matrimony] These words do not refer to the day and time fixed for the particular marriage which is about to take place, but to the canonical periods of the year, and the canonical hours of the day during which Matrimony may be solemnized. Enough has been said respecting the hours of the day, but a few remarks may be added respecting the Canonical limitations as to the Ecclesiastical seasons for Marriage.

As early as the fourth century the Council of Laodicea [c. 365] forbade, by its fifty-second canon, the celebration of Marriages during Lent. Durandus states the times as from Advent Sunday to the Epiphany, from Septuagesima to the Octave of Easter, the three weeks before the feast of St. John, and from the first day of the Rogations to the Octave of Pentecost inclusive. [Durand. I. ix. 7.] The Manual of Salisbury has a rubric on the subject as follows:—"¶ Et sciendum est quod licet omni tempore possint contrahi sponsalia, et etiam matrimonium quod fit privatim solo consensu: tamen traditio uxorum, et nuptiarum solemnitas certis temporibus fieri prohibentur: videlicet ab adventu Domini usque ad octavam Epiphaniæ: et a Septuagesima usque ad octavam Paschæ: et a Dominica ante Ascensionem Domini usque ad octavam Pentecostes. In octava die tamen Epiphaniæ licite possunt nuptiæ celebrari: quia non invenitur prohibitum, quamvis in octavis Paschæ hoc facere non liceat. Similiter in Dominica proxima post festum Pentecostes licite celebrantur nuptiæ: quia dies Pentecostes octavam diem non habet<sup>1</sup>." After the Reformation an entry of the prohibited times was often made in the Parish Register; and inquiries on the subject are found in some Episcopal Visitation Articles. A Latin notice of this kind appears in the register-book of Dymchurch, in Kent, dated 1630; a rhyming English one, of the same tenour, in that of St. Mary, Beverley, dated Nov. 25, 1641. In that of Wimbish, in Essex, there is one dated 1666, of which the following is a copy:—

"The Times when Marriages are not usually solemnized.

|                      |                                  |                        |
|----------------------|----------------------------------|------------------------|
| From { Advent Sunday | } until { 8 days after Epiphany. |                        |
| { Septuagesima       |                                  |                        |
| { Rogation Sunday    |                                  | { 8 days after Easter. |
|                      |                                  | { Trinity Sunday."     |

A similar entry appears in the register-book of Hornby, in Yorkshire; and Sharpe, Archbishop of York, in a charge of 1750 names the prohibited times as then observed. They will sometimes also be found mentioned in old Almanacks, as if the practice still continued during the last century. Although there is no modern canon of the Church of England respecting these prohibited times, the consentient testimony of these various centuries will have great weight with those who would supply, by a voluntary obedience, the absence of a compulsory law, when the mind of the Church appears to be plain and clear.

[into the body of the Church . . . and there standing] The ancient rubric, as will be seen above, required this part of the Office to be said ante ostium ecclesiæ. This seems to mean the same as the ad valvas ecclesiæ of the first rubric in the Office for making a Catechumen [see Holy Baptism]. The porch was probably intended in both cases, not the exterior of the Church. It is clearly from the ancient rubric that the English one is derived; and it is also equally clear that "the body of the Church" means some portion of the Nave. Of this practice it is difficult to find any explanation, unless it be that the betrothal anciently took place some time previously to the marriage, and that the latter only was associated with the Holy Communion. This was the opinion of the Bishops at the Savoy Conference; for when the Puritans objected to the "change of place and posture mentioned in these two rubrics," the Bishops replied, "They go to the Lord's Table because the Communion is to follow" [Cardw. Conf. 360]. Whatever may have been the origin of the custom, it is undoubtedly enjoined by the present rubric, and the rubric has been so carried out in many churches down to our own time. In Bishop Wren's "orders and directions for the diocese of Norwich," the ninth Injunction directs that immediately after the "close of the first service," the "marriage (if there be any) be begun in the body of the Church and finished at the table;" and the eleventh orders, "that they go up to the holy table at marriages at such time thereof as the rubric so directeth<sup>2</sup>." At Broadwater, in Sussex, the custom was found existing in 1800 by a new Rector, who continued it for the fifty years of his ministry there. It has also continued to the present day in some Yorkshire, Lincolnshire, and Somersetshire churches, and doubtless in many others elsewhere. In our modern churches the open space in front of the choir screen seems to be the most proper place for the first part of the service; although, of course, any other and more convenient part of the nave would equally suit the words of the rubric.

[with their friends and neighbours] Marriages are always supposed to be celebrated in the face of the Church, and both the civil and the ecclesiastical laws have always been severe in reprobating any thing like secrecy in the performance of the rite. The sixty-second Canon even directs that the marriage shall take place in time of Divine Service, and an extract given above from Bishop Wren's Injunctions shows that such was the practice in his time. The words "in the face of this congregation" seem to signify the intention of the Prayer Book in 1661 to be the same as that of the Canon in 1603. By the Marriage Act witnesses are required to be present, and to sign the register; and although it is not expressly ordered that these shall be friends of the bridegroom or bride, it is certainly more conformable to the spirit of the enactment as well as to that of the Church that they should be so rather than strangers, or than the parish clerk and sexton impressed sicco pede for the purpose.

[the man on the right hand] The custom is to read this portion of the rubric (which was added by Bishop Cosin) in the sense of the ancient one placed by its side. Yet it would be more in conformity with ritual habit to suppose that "on the right hand" means on the right hand of the priest, as he faces the man and woman, his right hand then answering to the "dexter side" (as heralds would say) of the Altar. This was the Jewish custom, which may reasonably be supposed to have been followed by the early Christians; and it may also be remarked that the north side of the Church is that which is appropriated to the men when the sexes are divided. Such a position would receive a significant meaning from the beautiful Marriage Psalm of Solomon, "Upon thy right hand did stand the Queen in a vesture of gold" [Ps. xlv. 10]: for, as the selection of this psalm for Christmas Day shows, these words are written prophetically of "the mystical union betwixt Christ and His Church," which is "signified" by holy matrimony.

It is worthy of notice that in the later part of the ancient Sarum Service there is a rubric directing that "when the prayers are ended and all have gone into the presbytery, that is, to the south side of the Church between the Choir and the Altar, the woman being placed on the right hand of the man, that is, between him and the Altar," the Service for the Holy Communion shall commence. After which the bride and bridegroom are to kneel in front of the altar in the same order while the pall is held over them, and also during their communion.

[the Priest shall say] The ancient rule of the Church was

<sup>1</sup> There is a much longer rubric to the same effect in the Ordo Sponsalium of the Salisbury Missal.

<sup>2</sup> Cardw. Doc. Ann. ii. 203, 204.

Acts x. 23.
Ps. lxxxix. 5, 7.
Ruth iv. 9, 10.
Heb. xiii. 4.
Gen. ii. 18, 21—24.
Eph. v. 22—33.
Matt. xix. 4, 5.
John ii. 1—3.
7—11.
Gen. vi. 1—5.
1 Cor. vii. 2.
1 Kings xi. 1—4.
Prov. xix. 4.

DEARLY beloved, we are gathered together here in the sight of God, and in the face of this congregation, to join together this man and this woman in holy Matrimony; which is an honourable estate, instituted of God in the time of man's innocency, signifying unto us the mystical union that is betwixt Christ and his Church; which holy estate Christ adorned and beautified with his presence, and first miracle that he wrought, in Cana of Galilee; and is commended of Saint Paul to be honourable among all men: and therefore is not by any to be enterprised, nor taken in hand, unadvisedly, lightly, or wantonly, to satisfy men's carnal lusts and appetites, like brute beasts that have no understanding; but reverently, discretely, advisedly, soberly, and in the fear of God; duly considering the causes for which matrimony was ordained.

2 Cor. vi. 14, 15.
Gen. i. 27, 28.
Eph. vi. 4.

First, It was ordained for the procreation of children, to be brought up in the fear and nurture of the Lord, and to the praise of His holy Name.

1 Cor. vii. 2—5.
vi. 15.
1 John iii. 2, 3.

Secondly, It was ordained for a remedy against sin, and to avoid fornication; that such persons as have not the gift of continency might marry, and keep themselves undefiled members of Christ's body.

Gen. ii. 18.
Eccl. iv. 9, 10.
Eph. v. 33.
1 Cor. vii. 14.
Matt. xix. 3—6. 9.

Thirdly, It was ordained for the mutual society, help, and comfort, that the one ought to have of the other, both in prosperity and adversity. Into which holy state these two persons present come now to be joined. Therefore if any man can shew any just

ECCE convenimus huc fratres coram Deo, et Angelis, et omnibus Sanctis ejus, in facie Ecclesiæ, ad jungendum duo corpora, scilicet hujus viri et hujus mulieris, Hic respiciat sacerdos personas suas, ut amodo sint una caro et duæ animæ in fide et in lege Dei, ad promerendam simul vitam æternam quidquid ante hoc fecerint. Admoneo igitur vos omnes, ut si quis ex vobis qui aliquid dicere sciat quare isti adolescentes legitime contrahere non possint, modo confiteatur.

[LO bretheren we are comen here before God and his angels, and all his halowes, In the face and presence of our moder holy Chyrche, for to couple and to knyght these two bodyes togyder: that is to saye, of this man and of this woman. That they be from this tyme forthe, but one body and two soules in the fayth and lawe of God and holy Chyrche: For to deserue euerlastyng Lyfe, what someuer that they haue done here before . . . I charge you on Goddes behalfe and holy Chirche, that if there be any of you that can say any thyng why these two may not be lawfully wedded togyder at this tyme, say it now, outhir pryuely or appertly, in helpynge of your soules and theirs bothe.]

[York Use.]
[MS. Bibl. Reg.
2. a. xxi., A. b 1408.]

[I warne you alle that yf there bee any of you whych wost owht by thys man and thys woman where fore they won nat lawfully kome to gedyr, knowleche ye hyt here now or never.]

Salisbury Use.
[Harl. MS., 873]

that marriages should be celebrated "per presbyterum sanctis ordinibus constitutum;" no change was made in this rule at the Reformation or subsequently, and there is not a shadow of authority for the celebration of the rite of marriage by Deacons. Chief Justice Tindal gave his opinion, and that of his brother judges, before the House of Lords on July 7, 1843, that it was the rule of the Church of England to require the ceremony to be performed by a priest; and it may fairly be doubted whether a marriage could be legally maintained which had only been performed by a deacon. From an ecclesiastical point of view it must be remembered that (1) The Marriage Office is especially one of Benediction; that (2) Benedictions are beyond the power of a deacon; that (3) The rubrics throughout contemplate the Minister of the Office as a Priest; and that (4) No authority to celebrate marriages is given, either in words or by implication, to the Deacon at his ordination or at any other time. The duty of celebrating marriages ought not to be imposed upon Curates in their diaconate by their Rectors; and the laity should insist strongly upon being married by Priests, remembering that otherwise their marriages are probably illegal, while they certainly cannot receive the fulness of Benediction which the Church has provided for them in the Office except from a Priest or a Bishop.

like brute beasts that have no understanding] These unnecessarily coarse words were erased by Cosin in his revised Prayer Book. He also re-inserted from the book of 1549 the words "that such as be married may live chastely in matrimony" before "keep themselves," &c., at the end of the third paragraph.

Therefore if any man can shew any just cause] These ancient words are equivalent (as the next rubric but one shows) to a fourth publication of Banns. They are exactly analogous to the admonition of the Bishop to the people at the Ordination of Deacons and Priests, and to a similar one used at the Confirmation of Bishops. As will be seen above, the Address is sub-cause, why they may not lawfully be joined together, let him now speak, or else hereafter for ever hold his peace.

¶ And also, speaking unto the persons that shall be married, he shall say,

Matt. xxvi. 63.
xii. 36.
2 Tim. iv. 1.
Eccl. xii. 14.
Luke xii. 2.
Mark vi. 17, 18.
Ezra ix. 14, x.
2—5, 10—12.

I REQUIRE and charge you both, (as ye will answer at the dreadful day of judgement when the secrets of all hearts shall be disclosed,) that if either of you know any impediment, why ye may not be lawfully joined together in matrimony, ye do now confess it. For be ye well assured, that so many as are coupled together otherwise than God's Word doth allow are not joined together by God; neither is their matrimony lawful.

¶ At which day of Marriage, if any man do allege and declare any impediment, why they may not be coupled together in matrimony, by God's Law, or the Laws of this Realm; and will be bound, and sufficient sureties with him, to the parties; or else put in a Caution (to the full value of such charges as the persons to be married do thereby sustain) to prove his allegation: then the solemnization must be deferred, until such time as the truth be tried.

¶ If no impediment be alleged, then shall the Curate say unto the man,

Matt. xix. 4—6.
Eph. v. 28, 29.
1 Pet. iii. 7.
Eccl. ix. 9.
Mal. ii. 15, 16.
1 Cor. vii. 3—5, 10.

N. WILT thou have this woman to thy wedded wife, to live together after God's ordinance in the holy estate of matrimony? Wilt thou love her, comfort her, honour, and keep her in sickness and in health; and, forsaking all other, keep thee only unto her, so long as ye both shall live?

¶ Eodem admonitio fiat ad virum et ad mulierem, ut si quid ab illis occulte actum fuerit, vel si quid devoverint, vel alio modo de se noverrint quare legitime contrahere non possint: tunc confiteantur.

[A]LSO I charge you both, and [York Use.] eyther be your selfe, as ye wyll answer before God at the day of dome, that yf there be any thyng done pryuely or openly, betwene your selfe: or that ye knowe any lawfull lettyng why that ye may not be wedded togyther at thys time: Say it nowe, or we do any more to this mater.]

¶ Si vero aliquis impedimentum aliquod proponere voluerit: et ad hoc probandum cautionem prastiterit: differantur sponsalia quousque rei veritas cognoscatur. Si vero nullus impedimentum proponere voluerit: interroget sacerdos dotem mulieris....

¶ Postea dicat sacerdos ad virum cunctis audientibus in lingua materna sic.

N. VIS habere hanc mulierem in sponsam, et eam diligere: honorare: tenere: et custodire sanam et infirmam, sicut sponsus debet sponsam: et omnes alias propter eam dimittere, et illi soli adherere quamdiu vita utriusque vestrum duraverit?

[N. WILT thou have thys woman to thy weddyd wyf stantially that which was used in the Pre-Reformation Church; but the more homiletic form of it appears to have been imitated from Archbishop Hermann's book.

I require and charge you both] This last and solemn appeal to the consciences of the persons to be married shows how great care has always been taken by the Church to prevent improper marriages. What are impediments to marriage is shown in the proposed rubrics of Bishop Cosin on a preceding page.

if any man do allege and declare any impediment] This is a very difficult rubric, and does not seem ever to have received a judicial interpretation. On the one hand, it appears to stop the marriage only in case the objector submits to "be bound, and sufficient sureties with him, to the parties; or else to put in a caution," &c. On the other, the mere fact of a real impediment alleged by any apparently trustworthy person seems to put it out of the power of the Clergyman to proceed with the marriage (whether the objector offers security or not) until a legal investigation has taken place. Impediments have been alleged at this part of the service, and the marriage has been stopped in consequence without any other formality; but such a proceeding does not seem to meet the requirement of the rubric, nor to be just to the persons desiring to be married.

§ The Mutual Consent.

Although this ceremony may appear to be a mere formality, since it is very improbable that persons will appear before the Clergyman for the purpose of being married unless they have previously come to a decision and agreement on the subject, yet it is a formality respecting which the Church has always been strict; and in the civil contracts which have been adopted under

Deut. xxix. 9.
Numb. xxx. 2.

¶ The man shall answer,

I will.

Gen. xxiv. 58.
ii. 18.
Prov. xxxi. 11, 12.
Eph. v. 22, 24, 33.
Tit. ii. 4, 5.
1 Cor. vii. 39.

¶ Then shall the Priest say unto the woman,

N. WILT thou have this man to thy wedded husband, to live together after God's ordinance in the holy estate of matrimony? Wilt thou obey him, and serve him, love, honour, and keep him in sickness and in health; and, forsaking all other, keep thee only unto him, so long as ye both shall live?

¶ The woman shall answer,

I will.

Numb. xxx. 3, 4.

¶ Then shall the Minister say,

1 Cor. vii. 38.
Gen. ii. 22.

Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?

¶ Then shall they give their troth to each other in this manner.

¶ The Minister, receiving the woman at her father's or friend's hands, shall cause the man with his right hand to take the woman by her right hand, and to say after him as followeth,

Matt. xix. 8.
Mark x. 2, 5—8.
ii. 12.

I N. take thee N. to my wedded wife, to have and to hold from this day forward, for better for worse, and her loue honour holde and kepe heyl and syke as a housbonde owyth to kepe hys wyf and all other for her to lete and holde the only to her as long as your eyther lyf lastyth?]

¶ Respondeat vir.

Volo.

¶ Item dicat sacerdos ad mulierem hoc modo.

N. VIS habere hunc virum in sponsum et ei obedire et servire: et eum diligere, honorare, accustodire sanum et infirmum sicut sponsa debet sponsum: et omnes alios propter eum dimittere, et illi soli adhærere quamdiu vita utriusque vestrum duraverit?

[N. WYLT thou have thys man unto thy housbonde and obeye to hym and serve and hym to love and honour and kepe heil and syke as a wyf owyth to do the housbonde and to lete alle other men for hym and holde the only to hym whylys your eyther lyf lasteth?]

¶ Respondeat mulier.

Volo.

[Deinde Sacerdos.

Who schal zeve yis woman?]

[MS. Bibl. Reg.
2. a. xxi., A.D.
1408.]

¶ Deinde detur femina a patre suo, vel ab amicis ejus: quod si puella sit discoopertam habeat manum: si vidua tectam: quam vir recipiat in Dei fide et sua servandam, sicut vocit coram sacerdote, et teneat eam per manum dextram in manu sua dextra, et sic det fidem mulieri per verba de præsenti, ita dicens docente sacerdote.

I N. take the N. to my wedded wyf to haue and to holde fro this day forwarde for better: for wors: for modern legislation equal strictness has been observed. In point of fact, forced marriages have not unfrequently taken place, and they are as alien to the spirit in which Holy Matrimony is regarded by the Church as the worst clandestine marriages are. At the last moment, therefore, before the irrevocable step is taken, and the indissoluble bond tied, each of the two persons to be married is required to declare before God and the Church that the marriage takes place with their own free will and consent. This declaration is also worded in such a manner as to constitute a promise in respect to the duties of the married state; and although no solemn adjuration is annexed to this promise, as in the Invocation of the Blessed Trinity afterwards, yet the simple "I will," given under such circumstances, must be taken to have the force of a vow as well as that of an assent and consent to the terms of the marriage covenant as set forth by the Church.

The above English forms of the consent are given from a

Salisbury Ordinale in the British Museum [Harl. MS. 873]. The following are from the York Manual:—

N. Wilt thou haue this woman to thy wyfe: and loue her and kepe her in syknes and in helthe, and in all other degrese be to her as a husbände sholde be to his wyfe, and all other forsake for her: and holde thee only to her, to thy lyues ende? Respondeat vir hoc modo: I wyll.

N. Wylt thou have this man to thy husbände, and to be buxum to him, serue him and kepe him in sykenes and in helthe: And in all other degrese be vnto hym as a wyfe should be to hir husbände, and all other to forsake for hym: and holde thee only to hym to thy lyues ende? Respondeat mulier hoc modo: I wyll.

§ The Betrothal.

That espousal which used, in very ancient times, to take place some weeks or months before the marriage, and which constituted for richer for poorer, in sickness and in health, to love and to cherish, till death us do part, according to God's holy ordinance; and thereto I plight thee my troth.

¶ Then shall they loose their hands; and the woman, with her right hand taking the man by his right hand, shall likewise say after the Minister,

Rom. vii. 2, 3.

I N. take thee N. to my wedded husband, to have and to hold from this day forward, for better for worse, for richer for poorer, in sickness and in health, to love, cherish, and to obey, till death us do part, according to God's holy ordinance; and thereto I give thee my troth.

richere: for poorer [for fairer for fowler. Harl. MS.]: in sykenesse and in hele: tyl dethe vs departe if holy chyrche it woll ordeyne, and therto I plight the my trouthe.

Manum retrahendo.

Deinde dicat mulier docente sacerdote.

I N. take the N. to my wedded husband to haue and to holde fro this day forward for better: for wors: for richer: for poorer: in sykenesse and in hele: to be bonere and buxum in bedde and at the borde tyll dethe vs departe if holy chyrche it wol ordeyne and therto I plight the my trouthe.

a formal religious recognition of what is now called an "engagement," is represented in our present Office by the previous words of consent, which were called a contract "de futuro." Even when they were thus used, a contract "per verba de presenti" was also made; but the two contracts have long been habitually placed together by the Church as is now the case<sup>1</sup>; and the Betrothal more properly consists of this part of the ceremony in which the hands are joined, and each gives their troth or promise of fidelity (which is the marriage vow) to the other.

The present words of betrothal are substantially identical with those which have been used in England from ancient times. Three variations are here printed; which, with that given above, will fully illustrate the language in which they were spoken from about the thirteenth to the sixteenth century.

Salisbury Use.

York Use.

Hereford Use.

I N. take the N. to my weddyd wyf to haue and to holde fro this day wafor betere, for worse, for rycher, for porer: in sykenesse and in helthe, tyl deth us departe<sup>2</sup> yf holy chyrch wol it ordeyne and ther to I plycht the my trouthe<sup>3</sup>.

Here I tak the N. to my wedded wyff to holde and to haue att bed and att borde for fairer for laither<sup>4</sup>, for better for wars, in sikness and in heile till dethe us depart and thereto plyght I the my trouthe.

I N., underfyng the, N., for my wedded wyf, for betere for worse, for richer for porer, yn sekeneſs and in helthe tyl deth us departe, as holy church hath ordeyned, and therto y plijth the my trowthe.

I N. take the N. to my weddyd husbande to haue and to holde fro<sup>5</sup> thys day for bether, for wurs, for richer, for porer, in sykenesse and hin elthe to be bonour and buxum<sup>6</sup> in bed and at bort: tyl deth us departe yf holy chyrche wol it ordeyne: and ther to I plyche te my throuthe.

Here I tak the N. to my wedded husband to hold and to haue att bed and att borde for fairer for laither, for better for wars, in sikeness and in heile till dethe us depart and thereto I plyght the my trouthe.

I N., underfyng the N., for my wedded housband, for better, for worse, for richer, for porer, yn sekeneſs and in helthe, to be buxom to the tyl deth us departe, as holy church hath ordeyned, and tharto y plijth the my trowthe.

The words, and the accompanying ceremony, which are thus handed down to us from the ancient Church of England, have a very striking Christian significance. In the ceremony of betrothal it will be observed that woman is recognized throughout as still subject to the law of dependence under which she was originally placed by the Creator. As soon as the mutual consent of both the man and the woman has been solemnly given in the face of God and the Church, the minister of the Office is directed to ask, "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?" Then she is given up from one state of dependence to another, through the intermediate agency of the Church; "the minister receiving the woman at her father's or friend's hands" (to signify that her father's authority over her is returned into the hands of God, Who gave it), and delivering her into the hands of the man in token that he receives her from God, Who alone can give a husband authority over his wife. The quaint but venerable and touching words with which the two "give their troth to each other" express again and in a still more comprehensive form the obligations of the married state which were previously declared in the words of mutual consent. Each promises an undivided allegiance to the other, until the death of one or the other shall part them asunder; God joining them together, and His Providential dispensation alone having power to separate am him the lathere" [Lazamon's Brut, i. 37.] The word "fouler" is used in some Salisbury Manuals: and each, of course, expresses the idea of "less fair," or "less pleasing."

<sup>5</sup> This is a conjectural emendation. The word is "for" in two copies.

<sup>6</sup> "Bonour and buxum" are the representatives of "Bonnaire," gentle (as in débonair), and "Boughsome," obedient. Some Manuals added "in all lawful places." In the Golden Litany printed by Maskell [Mon. Rit. ii. 245] one of the petitions is, "By Thy infinite buxomnes: have mercy on us." In the Promptorium Parvulorum the two equivalents Humilitas and Obedientia are given under the word Buxumnesse.

<sup>1</sup> Yet there is evidence of separate espousals having been made as late as the time of Charles I. For in the Parish Register of Boughton Monchelsea, in Kent, is the following entry:—"Michaelis. 1630. Sponsalia inter Gulielm. Maddox et Elizabeth Grimestone in debit' juris formā transacta, 10 die Januarii." Two years and three-quarters afterwards comes the entry of the marriage:—"Michaelis. 1633. Nuptiæ inter Gulielmū Maddox et Elizabethā Grimestone, ultimo Octobris." [Burns' Hist. of Fleet Marriages, p. 2.] The ancient oath of espousals was administered in this form: "You swear by God and His holy saints herein, and by all the saints in Paradise, that you will take this woman, whose name is N., to wife, within forty days, if Holy Church will permit." The hands of the man and woman being then joined together by the priest, he also said, "And thus ye affiancé yourselves," to which they made an affirmative reply, an exhortation concluding the ceremony.

<sup>2</sup> "Depart" is now English for "part asunder," which was altered to "do part" in 1661, at the pressing request of the Puritans, who knew as little of the history of their national language as they did of that of their national Church.

<sup>3</sup> "Troth," or "Trowth," is commonly identified with "truth;" but this is an error, the meaning of the word being "fidelity," or "allegiance." To "give troth" is equivalent to "fidem dare."

<sup>4</sup> "Laither;" this is the old comparative degree of "loath," as in "The ¶ Then shall they again loose their hands, and the man shall give unto the woman a ring, laying the same upon the book, with the accustomed duty to the Priest and Clerk. And the Priest taking the ring, shall deliver it unto the man, to put it upon the fourth finger of the woman's left hand. And the man holding the ring there, and taught by the Priest, shall say, Ruth iv. 7-9.

11-13.
Gen. xxiv. 50, 51.
53. 67. xxxi. 50.
Col. iii. 17.

WITH this ring I thee wed, with my body I thee worship, and with all my worldly goods I thee endow: In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

Manum retrahendo.

Deinde ponat vir aurum: argentum: et anulum super scutum vel librum: . . . tunc . . . accipiens sacerdos anulum tradat ipsum viro: quem vir accipiat manu sua dextera cum tribus principalioribus digitis, et manu sua sinistra tenens dexteram sponsæ docente sacerdote dicat,

WITH this rynge I the wed, and this gold and siluer I the geue, and with my body I the worshipec, and with all my worldely cathel I the en-<sup>al. "honour."</sup>dowe. Et tunc inserat sponsus anulum pollicis sponsæ dicens. In nomine Patris: deinde secundo digito dicens. et Filii: deinde tertio digito dicens: et Spiritus Sancti. deinde quarto digito dicens. Amen. ibique dimittat anulum . . . Deinde inclinatis eorum capitibus dicat sacerdos benedictionem super eos. . . .

them. On both sides a promise is given of love and support under all the circumstances of life, prosperous or adverse. The duties of support, shelter, and comfort, which ordinarily devolve upon the husband chiefly may, under some circumstances (though they rarely arise), fall chiefly upon the wife; and if by sickness and infirmity he is unable to fulfil them towards her, he has a claim upon her, by these words, that she shall perform them towards him. Under any circumstances each promises to be a stay to the other, according to their respective positions and capacities, on their way through life. In the marriage vow of the woman the modern phrase "to obey" is substituted for the obsolete one "to be buxom," which had the same meaning. It implies that although the woman's dependence on and obedience to her father has been given up by him into God's hands, it is only that it may be given over to her husband. Since it pleased our Blessed Lord to make woman the instrument of His Incarnation, her condition has been far more honourable than it was before; but part of that honour is that "the husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the Head of the Church." Natural instinct, good sense, mutual love, and, above all, religious feeling, will always enable the wife to discern how far she is bound to obey, and the husband how far it is his duty to rule; and regulated by these the yoke of obedience will never be one which the woman need regret to wear or wish to cast aside. Jeremy Taylor has well pointed out that nothing is said in the husband's part of the marriage vow about "rule," for this is included in the word "love." "The dominion of a man over his wife is no other than as the soul rules the body; for which it takes a mighty care, and uses it with a delicate tenderness, and cares for it in all contingencies, and watches to keep it from all evils, and studies to make for it fair provisions, and very often is led by its inclinations and desires, and does never contradict its appetites but when they are evil, and then also not without some trouble and sorrow; and its government comes only to this—it furnishes the body with light and understanding, and the body furnishes the soul with hands and feet; the soul governs because the body cannot else be happy." So also he writes in respect to the obedience of the wife: "When God commands us to love Him, He means we should obey Him: 'this is love, that ye keep My commandments;' and 'if ye love Me, keep My commandments.' Now, as Christ is to the Church, so is the man to the wife, and therefore obedience is the best instance of her love, for it proclaims her submission, her humility, her opinion of his wisdom, his pre-eminence in the family, the right of his privilege, and the injunction imposed by God upon her sex, that although 'in sorrow she bring forth children,' yet with 'love and choice she should obey.' The man's authority is love, and the woman's love is obedience<sup>1</sup>."

§ The Marriage.

With this ring I thee wed] The use of the wedding ring was probably adopted by the early Church from the marriage customs which were familiar to Christians in their previous life as Jews and Heathens<sup>2</sup>: for the ring, or something equivalent to it, appears to have been given by the man to the woman at the marriage or at espousals, even from those distant patriarchal days when Abraham's steward betrothed Rebekah on behalf of Isaac, by putting "the earrings upon her face and the bracelets upon her hands." Much pleasing symbolism has been connected with the wedding ring, especially that its form having neither beginning nor end, it is an emblem of eternity, constancy, and integrity. This meaning is brought out in the ancient form of consecrating a Bishop, when the ring was delivered to him with the words, "Receive the ring, the seal of faith, to the end that being adorned with inviolable constancy, thou mayest keep undefiled the spouse of God, which is His holy Church." The same form of blessing the ring was used in this case, as was used in the Marriage Service, and which is printed above. Probably it has always been taken as a symbol of mutual truth and intimate union, linking together the married couple, in the words of the ancient exhortation, "That they be from this tyme forthe, but one body and two souls in the fayth and lawe of God and holy Chyrche." It is the only relic of the ancient tokens of spousage,—gold, silver, and a ring being formerly given at this part of the service: and as the gold and silver were given as symbols of dowry, so probably one idea, at least, connected with the ring, was that of the relation of dependence which the woman was henceforth to be in towards her husband. In the Prayer Book of 1549 the gold or silver were still directed to be given, (and in Bishop Cosin's revised Prayer Book, he proposed a restoration of the custom, inserting, "and other tokens of spousage as gold, silver, or bracelets," after the word 'ring,') but in 1552 "the accustomed duty to the Priest and Clerk" was substituted, and ultimately retained in the revision of 1661. It is possible

<sup>1</sup> Bishop Taylor's Sermon on the Marriage Ring.

<sup>2</sup> Tertullian speaks of the Roman matron's "one finger, on which her husband had placed the pledge of the nuptial ring." Tertull. Apol. vi., De Idol. xvi.

¶ Then the man leaving the ring upon the fourth finger of the woman's left hand, they shall both kneel down and the Minister shall say,

Let us pray.

Phil. iv. 6.
1 ev. iv. 11.
Job vii. 20.
1 Pet. v. 10.
Gen. i. 28.
2 Sam. vii. 29.
Gen. xxiv. 67.
Eccl. v. 4.
Deut. xxiii. 21, 23.
Col. iii. 18, 19.
Luke i. 5, 6.
Ps. cxix. 165.

O ETERNAL God, Creator and Preserver of all mankind, Giver of all spiritual grace, the Author of everlasting life; Send thy blessing upon these thy servants, this man and this woman, whom we bless in thy Name; that, as Isaac and Rebecca lived faithfully together, so these persons may surely perform and keep the vow and covenant betwixt them made, (whereof this ring given and received is a token and pledge,) and may ever remain in perfect love and peace together, and live according to thy laws; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

[C]REATOR et conservator humani generis: dator gratiæ spiritalis: largitor æternæ salutis: tu, Domine, mitte benedictionem tuam super hunc annulum, respice, ut quæ illum gestaverit sit armata virtute cœlestis defensionis, et proficiat illi ad æternam salutem. Per Christum.

[Ad benedictionem annuli.]

Benedic, Domine, hunc annulum, respice, quem nos in tuo sancto nomine benedicimus: ut quæcumque eum portaverit in tua pace consistat: et in tua voluntate permaneat: et in tuo amore vivat et crescat et senescat: et multiplicetur in longitudinem dierum. Per Dominum.]

that the "gold or silver" had customarily been appropriated as the marriage fee: but Hooker says that the use of them had "in a manner already worn out" even so early as the time of Queen Elizabeth. The following forms of the words with which the ring was given, and Cosin's proposed form, will further illustrate the subject:—

York Use.

With this ryng I wedde the, and with this gold and silver I honoure the, and with this gyft I honoure the. In nomine Patris: et Filii: et Spiritus Sancti. Amen.

Hereford Use.

Wyth this ryng y the wedde, and thys gold and seluer ych the zeue, and wyth myne body ych the honoure. In nomine Patris: et Filii: et Spiritus Sancti. Amen.

Prayer Book of 1549.

With this ring I thee wed, this gold and silver I thee give, with my body I thee worship, and with all my worldly goods I thee endow: in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

Form proposed by Bishop Cosin, 1661.

With this ring I thee wed, and receive thee into the holy and honourable estate of matrimony: In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

An old manual in the British Museum [Bibl. Reg. 2. A. xxi.] has also the following words in addition, explaining the object of the gold and silver:—

"Loo this gold and this siluer is leyd down in signifyng that the woman schal haue hure dower of thi goodes, þif heo abide aftur thy discas."

The ring was anciently placed first on the thumb at the invocation of the First Person of the Trinity, on the next finger at the Name of the Second, on the third at the Name of the Third, and on the fourth at the word Amen. The expression of the second rubric, "leaving the ring upon the fourth finger," seems to point to this custom as still observed, and still intended. The ancient rubric also gave as a reason for its remaining on the fourth finger, "quia in medico est quedam vena procedens usque ad cor;" and this reason has become deeply rooted in the popular mind. The same rubric also adds "et in sonoritate argenti designatur interna dilectio, quæ semper inter eos debet esse recens."

with my body I thee worship] The meaning of the word "worship" in this place is defined by the word used in its place in some of the ancient Manuals, which (as may be seen above) was "honour." The Puritans always objected to the word; and in 1661 it was agreed that "honour" should be substituted, the alteration being made by Sancroft in Bishop Cosin's revised Prayer Book instead of the change suggested by Cosin himself. But either by accident, or through a change of mind on the part of the Revision Committee, the old word was allowed to remain. The more exclusive use of this word in connexion with Divine Service is of comparatively modern date. In the Liber Festivalis, printed by Caxton in 1483, an Easter homily calls every gentleman's house a "place of worship," and in the same century a prayer begins "God that commandest to worship fadir and modir." This secular use of it is still continued in the title "your worship," by which magistrates are addressed, and in the appellation "worshipful companies." The expression "with my body I thee worship" or "honour" is equivalent to a bestowal of the man's own self upon the woman, in the same manner in which she is delivered to him by the Church from the hands of her father. Thus he gives first the usufruct of his person in these words, and in those which follow, the usufruct of his possessions or worldly goods.

As far as the ceremony of marriage is a contract between the man and the woman, it is completed by the giving of the ring with this solemn invocation of the Blessed Trinity. In all that follows they are receiving the Benediction of the Church, and its ratification of their contract.

they shall both kneel down] All present should also kneel at this prayer, except the Priest. It is the only part of the Service, in the body of the Church, at which the bystanders are required to kneel; but the married couple ought to continue kneeling until the commencement of the Psalm or Introit. The prayer which follows is founded upon the ancient benediction of the ring. It takes the place of a long form of blessing which followed the subarrhation in the ancient Office. In 1549 the parenthesis "(after bracelets and jewels of gold given of the one to the other for tokens of their matrimony)" followed the names of Isaac and Rebecca; which indicates the origin of Cosin's proposed dowry of bracelets.

¶ Then shall the Priest join their right hands together, and say,

Matt. xix. 5, 6.

Those whom God hath joined together, let no man put asunder.

¶ Then shall the Minister speak unto the people.

Mal. ii. 14—16.

FORASMUCH as N. and N. have consented together in holy wedlock, and have witnessed the same before God and this company, and thereto have given and pledged their troth either to other, and have declared the same by giving and receiving of a ring, and by joining of hands; I pronounce that they be man and wife together, In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

*Gen. xxiv. 58, 67.
Ruth iv. 9, 10.*

*Matt. xviii. 18.
Col. iii. 17.*

¶ And the Minister shall add this Blessing,

*2 Cor. xiii. 14.
Numb. vi. 24—26.
Ps. cxxxiv. 3.
cxix. 58, 132.
Eph. i. 3, iii. 14.
16—19.
1 Pet. iii. 7.
Rom. vi. 22.*

GOD the Father, God the Son, God the Holy Ghost, bless, preserve, and keep you; the Lord mercifully with his favour look upon you; and so fill you with all spiritual benediction and grace, that ye may so live together in this life, that in the world to come ye may have life everlasting. Amen.

¶ Then the Minister or Clerks, going to the Lord's table, shall say or sing this Psalm following.

Beati omnes. Psalm cxxviii.

¶ Or this Psalm.

Deus misereatur. Psalm lxvii.

[Printed at length
in the Sealed
Books.]

¶ And so lette the minister ioine their right handes together, and saye,

Daye's transl. of Herman's Consult., A.D. 1517.

That, that God hath ioyned, lette no man dissever.

¶ And lette the pastour say more over, with a lowde voice, that maye be hearde of all men,

FORASMUCHE as than thys Johan N. desireth thys Anne to be hys wife in the Lorde, and this Anne desireth thys Johan to be hir husbunde in the Lorde, and one hath made the other a promisse of holie and Christian matrimonie, and haue now both professed the same openly, and haue confirmed it with giuinge of ringes ech to other, and ioininge of handes: I the minister of Christ and the congregation pronounce that they be ioyned together with lawfull and Christian matrimony, and I confirme this their mariage in the Name of the Father, the Sonne, and the Holie Gost. Amen.

BENE~~D~~ICAT vos Deus Pater, Salisbury Use.
custodiat vos Jesus Christus, illuminet vos Spiritus Sanctus. Ostendat Dominus faciem suam in vobis et misereatur vestri. Convertat Dominus vultum suum ad vos: et det vobis pacem: impleatque vos omni benedictione spirituali, in remissionem omnium peccatorum vestrorum ut habeatis vitam æternam, et vivatis in sæcula sæculorum. Amen.

¶ Hic intrent ecclesiam usque ad gradum altaris: et sacerdos in eundo cum suis ministris dicat hunc psalmum sequentem.

Beati omnes.

Those whom God hath joined together] This sentence of marriage with its accompanying gesture of joining the bride and bridegroom's hands is a noble peculiarity of the English rite, though probably derived originally from Archbishop Hermann's Consultation. It completes the Marriage rite so far as to make it spiritually indissoluble, and may be considered as possessing a sacramental character in that lower sense in which those rites have it, the outward signs of which were not ordained by Christ Himself. There are hardly any words in the Prayer Book which more solemnly declare the faithful conviction of the Church that God ratifies the work of His Priests. In this case and in the Ordination Service the very words of our Lord Himself are adopted as the substantial and effective part of the rite: and each case is an assertion of the very highest spiritual claims that can be made on behalf of an earthly ministry. As there the Bishop says unconditionally, "Receive the Holy Ghost;" so here the Priest says unconditionally, that "God hath joined together" these two persons by his ministry. The words were part of the ancient Gospel at the Missa sponsalium.

Forasmuch as N. and N. have consented] This declaration of the completed union is also taken from Archbishop Hermann's Cologne book. It bears an analogy to the words used at the consignation of the child after Baptism; and, as in that case, it is a proclamation to the Church of what has already been effected by previous parts of the rite.

And the Minister shall add this Blessing] In the Prayer Book of 1549 this blessing stood as follows:—"God the Father bless you + God the Son keep you: God the Holy Ghost lighten your understanding: the Lord mercifully with His favour look upon you, and so fill you with all benediction and grace, that you may have remission of your sins in this life, and in the world to come, life everlasting." It was changed to the present form in 1552.

Then the Minister or Clerks, going to the Lord's table] This

¶ The Psalm ended, and the man and the woman kneeling before the Lord's table, the Priest standing at the table, and turning his face towards them, shall say,

Lord, have mercy upon us.

Answer.

Christ, have mercy upon us.

Minister.

Lord, have mercy upon us.

OUR Father, which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, As it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us from evil. Amen.

Minister.

Ps. lxxxvi. 2. O Lord, save thy servant, and thy handmaid;

Answer.

Who put their trust in thee.

Minister.

Ps. xx. 1, 2. O Lord, send them help from thy holy place;

Answer.

And evermore defend them.

Minister.

Ps. lxi. 3. Be unto them a tower of strength,

Answer.

From the face of their enemy.

Minister.

Ps. cii. 1. O Lord, hear our prayer.

Answer.

And let our cry come unto thee.

¶ Tunc prostratis sponso et sponsa ante gradum altaris, roget sacerdos circumstantes orare pro eis, dicendo,

Kyrie Eleison.

Christe Eleison.

Kyrie Eleison.

PATER noster, qui es in cœlis; sanctificetur nomen tuum: adveniat regnum tuum: fiat voluntas tua, sicut in cœlo, et in terra. Panem nostrum quotidianum da nobis hodie: et dimitte nobis debita nostra, sicut et nos dimittimus debitoribus nostris: et ne nos inducas in tentationem: sed libera nos a malo. Amen.

Salvum fac servum tuum et ancillam tuam.

Deus meus, sperantes in te.

Mitte eis, Domine, auxilium de sancto.

Et de Syon tuere eos.

Esto eis, Domine, turris fortitudinis.

A facie inimici.

Domine, exaudi orationem meam.

Et clamor meus ad te veniat.

Dominus vobiscum.

Et cum spiritu tuo.

originally stood "Then shall they go into the quire," and Cosin wished so to restore it, with the alteration "they all." The proper interpretation of the rubric doubtless is that the Clergy, the Choir, the bride and bridegroom, and the bridal party are to go from the body of the church in procession to the chancel, singing the processional psalm Beati omnes: that the Clergy proceed to the Altar as at ordinary celebrations of the Holy Communion, the bride and bridegroom kneeling in front of the Altar, with the bridal party behind them, while the choir go to their usual places. To effect this without confusion, the choir should move first in their proper order, the clergy next, after them the bride and bridegroom, and then the remainder of the bridal party. Thus the singers can at once file off to their places in the choir, while the clergy pass on to the sacarium, and the bridal party to the presbytery or space between the altar steps and choir stalls. Such arrangements can only be carried out well in large churches, but they give the key to the manner in which the spirit of the rubric may be acted upon, as far as circumstances will allow, elsewhere: and as a procession is an invariable part of every wedding, where there is a bridal party of friends, it is very desirable that it should be properly worked into the system of the Church, instead of being left to the chance of the moment, and the confused attempts of nervous people.

The portion of the service which follows the psalm, onward to the end of the benediction, is to be regarded as preparatory to the Holy Communion. In the old offices it was followed by the Sunday Missa Votiva, that of the Blessed Trinity, the Epistle being however 1 Cor. vi. 15—20, and the Gospel, Matt. xix. 3—6.

the Priest standing at the table] There is no pretence whatever for the priest to place himself awkwardly in the angle formed by the north end of the Lord's table and the east wall. He is clearly to stand in front of the table. The office having the nature of a benediction is therefore said towards the persons blessed. There was, indeed, in the ancient Office, and in that of 1549, a "Let us pray" after the versicles, from which it might be reasonably concluded that the Priest was then to turn towards

Minister.

Matt. xxii. 31, 32.
Gen. xxviii. 3, 4.
Luke viii. 11. 15.
2 Tim. iii. 16, 17.
James i. 22. ii. 8.
Deut. xxvi. 15.
Gen. xvii. 16.
xxviii. 3, 4.
Ps. cxii. 1—3.
xxiv. 3—5.
John xv. 4.
1 John ii. 17.

O GOD of Abraham, God of Isaac, God of Jacob, bless these thy servants, and sow the seed of eternal life in their hearts; that whatsoever in thy holy Word they shall profitably learn, they may in deed fulfil the same. Look, O Lord, mercifully upon them from heaven, and bless them. And as thou didst send thy blessing upon Abraham and Sarah, to their great comfort, so vouchsafe to send thy blessing upon these thy servants; that they obeying thy will, and alway being in safety under thy protection, may abide in thy love unto their lives' end; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

¶ This Prayer next following shall be omitted, where the woman is past childbearing.

Gen. i. 28.
xxxiii. 5.
Ps. cxxxviii. 3.
cxliv. 12. 15.
Prov. xxxi. 10, 11.
38.
Eph. vi. 4.
Gen. xviii. 19.

O MERCIFUL Lord, and heavenly Father, by whose gracious gift mankind is increased; We beseech thee, assist with thy blessing these two persons, that they may both be fruitful in procreation of children, and also live together so long in godly love and honesty, that they may see their children christianly and virtuously brought up, to thy praise and honour; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Heb. xi. 3.
Gen. ii. 4. i. 27.
ii. 21—24.
Matt. xix. 4—6.
1 Cor. vii. 10.
Isa. lxiii. 5.
Rev. xxi. 2. xix.
7, 8.
Eph. v. 23—32.
1 Pet. iii. 7.
2 Cor. xiii. 11.
Tit. ii. 4, 5.
Ps. cxxxiii. 1, 2.

O GOD, who by thy mighty power hast made all things of nothing; who also (after other things set in order) didst appoint that out of man (created after thine own image and similitude) woman should take her beginning; and knitting them together, didst teach that it should never be lawful to put asunder those whom thou by matrimony hadst made one: O God, who hast consecrated the state of matrimony to such an excellent mys-

Oremus.

DEUS Abraham, Deus Isaac, Deus Jacob, benedice adolescentes istos: et semina semen vitæ æternæ in mentibus eorum: ut quicquid pro utilitate sua didicerint, hoc facere cupiant. Per.

Oremus.

Respice, Domine, de cœlis, et benedice conventionem istam. Et sicut misisti sanctum angelum tuum Raphaellem ad Tobiam et Saram filiam Raguelis: ita digneris, Domine, mittere benedictionem tuam super istos adolescentes: ut in tua voluntate permaneant: et in tua securitate persistent: et in amore tuo vivant et senescant: ut digni atque pacifici fiant et multiplicentur in longitudinem dierum. Per Christum Dominum nostrum.

Oremus.

RESPICE, Domine, propitius super hunc famulum tuum, respice. et super hanc famulam tuam: respice. ut in nomine tuo benedictionem cœlestem accipiant: et filios filiorum tuorum et filiarum suarum usque in tertiam et quartam progeniem incolumes videant, et in tua voluntate perseverent, et in futuro ad cœlestia regna perveniant. Per Christum.

Oremus.

DEUS, qui potestate virtutis tuæ, Ad Missam. de nihilo cuncta fecisti: qui dispositis universitatis exordiis, homini ad imaginem Dei facto ideo inseparabile mulieris adiutorium condidisti, ut fœmineo corpori de virili dares carne principium, docens quod ex uno placuisset institui, nunquam liceret disjungi. Hic incipit benedictio sacramentalis: Deus, qui tam excellenti mysterio conjugalem copulam consecrasti, ut Christi et ecclesiæ sacramen-the Altar, in the direction in which all prayers were intended to be said: but the nature of the rite is essentially benedictory; and as even the final blessing is preceded by "Oremus" in the Latin form, the former conclusion seems to be the correct one.

The concluding prayers have undergone little change in the course of translation from the ancient Latin Office; and only a portion of the last of all can be traced back to the ancient Sacramentaries.

christianly and virtuously brought up] This expression was substituted for "see their children's children unto the third and fourth generation," at the last revision in 1661.

who hast consecrated the state of matrimony] Among the exceptions offered against the Prayer Book by Baxter and his friends in 1661 was the following: "Seeing the institution of Marriage was before the Fall, and so before the promise of Christ, as also for that the said passage in this collect seems to countenance the opinion of making matrimony a sacrament, we desire that clause may be altered or omitted." To this the Committee of tery, that in it is signified and represented the spiritual marriage and unity betwixt Christ and his Church; Look mercifully upon these thy servants, that both this man may love his wife, according to thy Word, (as Christ did love his spouse the Church, who gave himself for it, loving and cherishing it even as his own flesh,) and also that this woman may be loving and amiable, faithful and obedient to her husband; and in all quietness, sobriety, and peace, be a follower of holy and godly matrons. O Lord, bless them both, and grant them to inherit thy everlasting kingdom; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

¶ Then shall the Priest say,

Gen. ii. 7. 18. 21—
23 iii. 20.

ALmighty God, who at the beginning did create our first parents, Adam and Eve, and did sanctify and join them together in marriage; Pour upon you the riches of his grace, sanctify and bless you, that ye may please him both in body and soul, and live together in holy love unto your lives' end. Amen.

Eph. ii. 7.
John xv. 9, 10, 12.
1 Thess. v. 23, 24.
Ps. cxv. 13, 14.

¶ After which, if there be no Sermon declaring the duties of man and wife, the Minister shall read as followeth,

ALL ye that are married, or that intend to take the holy estate of matrimony upon you, hear what the holy Scripture doth say as touching the duty of husbands towards their wives, and wives towards their husbands.

Eph. v. 25—33.

Saint Paul, in his Epistle to the Ephesians, the fifth Chapter, doth give this commandment to all married men;

tum præsignares in fœdere nuptiarum. Hic finitur benedictio sacramentalis.

. . . . respice, propitius super hanc famulam tuam quæ maritali jungenda est consortio, quæ se tua expetit protectione muniri. Sit in ea jugum dilectionis et pacis: fidelis et casta nubat in Christo: imitatrixque sanctarum permaneat feminarum. Sit amabilis ut Rachel viro: sapiens ut Rebecca: longæva et fidelis ut Sara . . . . et ad beatorum requiem atque ad cœlestia regna perveniat. Per Dominum . . . . Per omnia sæcula sæculorum. Amen.

Deinde benedicat eos dicens. Oremus. Oratio.

OMNIPOTENS misericors Deus, qui primos parentes nostros Adam et Evam sua virtute creavit, et sua sanctificatione copulavit: . . . superabundet in vobis divitias gratiæ suæ, et erudiat vos in verbo veritatis, ut ei corpore pariter et mente complacere valeatis . . . atque in societate et amore veræ dilectionis jungat. Per Christum, Dominum nostrum. Amen.

Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the Church, and gave himself for it, that he might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water, by the Word; that he might present it to himself a glorious Church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy, and without blemish. So ought men to love their wives as their own bodies. He that loveth his wife loveth himself: for no man ever yet hated his own flesh, but nourisheth and cherisheth it,

Convocation replied: "Though the institution of marriage was before the Fall, yet it may be now, and is, consecrated by God to such an excellent mystery as the representation of the spiritual marriage between Christ and His Church [Eph. v. 23]. We are sorry that the words of Scripture will not please. The Church, in the twenty-fifth article, hath taken away the fear of making it a sacrament" [Cardw. Conf. 330. 360.] The singular answer of the Puritan opponents of the Prayer Book to this was, "When was Marriage thus consecrated? If all things, used to set forth Christ's offices, or benefits, by way of similitude, be consecrated, then a Judge, a Father, a Friend, a Vine, a Door, a Way, &c., are all consecrated things. Scripture phrase pleaseth us in Scripture sense." [Grand Debate, p. 140.]

loving and amiable] After these words there followed, until 1661, "to her husband, as Rachael, wise as Rebecca, faithful and obedient as Sara," as in the ancient form.

Pour upon you the riches] In this benediction the sign of the Cross was printed in the Prayer Book of 1549, thus: "sanctify and + bless you." It was omitted in 1552, being no doubt left out to conciliate the Puritan superstition on the subject, and intended, as in other places, to be part of a rubrical tradition which those would use who respected and loved that holy sign. The benediction is made up from two consecutive Sarum forms.

After which, if there be no Sermon] Until 1661 this rubric stood in this form—"¶ Then shall begin the Communion, and after the Gospel shall be said a Sermon, wherein ordinarily (so oft as there is any marriage) the office of a man and wife shall be declared, according to Holy Scripture. Or if there be no even as the Lord the Church: for we are members of his body, of his flesh, and of his bones. For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and shall be joined unto his wife; and they two shall be one flesh. This is a great mystery; but I speak concerning Christ and the Church. Nevertheless, let every one of you in particular so love his wife, even as himself.

Col. iii. 19.

Likewise the same Saint Paul, writing to the Colossians, speaketh thus to all men that are married; Husbands, love your wives, and be not bitter against them.

1 Pet. iii. 7.

Hear also what Saint Peter, the Apostle of Christ, who was himself a married man, saith unto them that are married; Ye husbands, dwell with your wives according to knowledge; giving honour unto the wife, as unto the weaker vessel, and as being heirs together of the grace of life, that your prayers be not hindered.

Hitherto ye have heard the duty of the husband toward the wife. Now likewise, ye wives, hear and learn your duties toward your husbands, even as it is plainly set forth in holy Scripture.

Eph. v. 22—24.

Saint Paul, in the aforementioned Epistle to the Ephesians, teacheth you thus; Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord. For the husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the Church: and he is the Saviour of the body. Therefore as the Church is subject unto Christ, so let the wives be to their own husbands in every thing. And again he saith, Let the wife see that she reverence her husband.

And in his Epistle to the Colossians, Col. iii. 18. Saint Paul giveth you this short lesson; Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as it is fit in the Lord.

Saint Peter also doth instruct you 1 Pet. iii. 1. 3—6. very well, thus saying; Ye wives, be in subjection to your own husbands; that, if any obey not the word, they also may without the word be won by the conversation of the wives; while they behold your chaste conversation coupled with fear. Whose adorning, let it not be that outward adorning of plaiting the hair, and of wearing of gold, or of putting on of apparel; but let it be the hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible; even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price. For after this manner in the old time the holy women also, who trusted in God, adorned themselves, being in subjection unto their own husbands; even as Sarah obeyed Abraham, calling him lord; whose daughters ye are as long as ye do well, and are not afraid with any amazement.

¶ It is convenient that the new married persons should receive the holy Communion at the time of their Marriage, or at the first opportunity after their Marriage.

Sermon, the Minister shall read this that followeth." Bishop Cosin altered this to, "Then shall begin the Communion if any be that day appointed. And after the Gospel and Creed shall be said a Sermon wherein it is expedient that the office of man and wife be declared according to Holy Scripture. Or if there be no Sermon, the Minister shall read this that followeth." Bishop Jeremy Taylor and Dr. Donne have left some beautiful sermons preached on occasion of marriages: and the custom seems to have been not uncommon.

It is convenient . . . the holy Communion] The practice of connecting the Marriage Office with the Holy Communion fell into strange disuse during the last and present centuries. In the old manuals the mass of the Holy Trinity concluded the Office, and there is no reason to suppose that it was ever omitted. Until 1661 the rubric stood—"¶ The new married persons (the same day of their marriage) must receive the holy Communion." This is altered in Bishop Cosin's revised Prayer Book to "The new married persons, the same day of their marriage, must receive the Holy Communion; unto which the minister is now to proceed, reading the Offertory &c. according to the form prescribed." The present form of the rubric was adopted in deference to the objection of the Puritans, who wished to dissociate the Office from the Holy Communion, from the morbid fear which they had of attaching too much importance to the religious rite with which Marriage is celebrated by the Church. But "convenient" is used in its strict and primary sense of "fit" or "proper," the secondary sense being a more modern one. From Bishop Cosin's proposed rubric it would appear as if the Holy Communion was used on such occasions without the introductory lection of the ten commandments. "To end the public solemnity of marriage," says Hooker, "with receiving the blessed Sacrament, is a custom so religious and so holy, that if the Church of England be blameable in this respect, it is not for suffering it to be so much, but rather for not providing that it may be more put in use." [Ecc. Polit. V. lxxiii. 8.]

A custom which retains its hold in some churches, that of kissing the bride, is derived from the Salisbury rubric concerning the Pax in the Missa Sponsalium, which is:—"Tunc amoto pallio, surgant ambo sponsus et sponsa: et accipiat sponsus pacem a sacerdote, et ferat sponsæ osculans eam et neminem alium, nec ipse nec ipsa: sed statim diaconus vel clericus a presbytero pacem accipiens, ferat aliis sicut solitum est." This took place immediately before the Communion of the newly-married couple.

AN INTRODUCTION

TO THE # OFFICE FOR THE VISITATION OF THE SICK.

---

THE duty of visiting the sick is specially enjoined on the Curates of souls in the New Testament: "Is any sick among you? let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord; and the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him" [James v. 14, 15]. The Visitation of the Sick is not therefore in the minister of Christ a mere piece of civility or neighbourly kindness, but an act of religion. He comes in the name of Christ to pray with and for the sick man; if necessary, to reconcile him to the Church by the blessing of absolution, and to communicate to him the Sacrament of our Lord's body and blood. That the primitive clergy of the Church made this visitation in time of sickness their special duty, is proved to us by many passages in early writers. Polycarp, the disciple of St. John, in his Epistle to the Philippians, gives it as advice to presbyters, ἐπισκέπτεσθαι τοὺς ἀσθενεῖς. Posidonius, in his Life of St. Augustine [cap. 27], relates that the Saint, as soon as he knew any man was sick, went unto him immediately. The decrees of various early Councils enjoined this duty on the Clergy whenever they were called for; and the Council of Milan goes even further than this, and orders, "Etiam si non vocati inuisant." Our own Provincial Constitutions require all Rectors and Vicars of Parishes to be diligent in their visitations to those who are sick, and warn them, "Ut quoties fuerint accersiti, celeriter accedant et hilariter ad ægrotos." [Lyndwood, Prov. Const. i. 2.] In our Post-Reformation system we find also that ample provision is made for the continuance of this ancient and laudable custom. Canon 67, "Ministers to visit the Sick," directs, "When any person is dangerously sick in any Parish, the Minister or Curate (having knowledge thereof) shall resort unto him or her (if the disease be not known or probably suspected to be infectious) to instruct and comfort them in their distress, according to the order of the Communion Book, if he be no Preacher, or if he be a Preacher, then as he shall think most needful and convenient." In the Ordination of Deacons it is also stated to be part of their duty to search out the sick and poor in the parish in which they are appointed to minister, and to give notice of such cases to the Incumbent: "And furthermore it is his office, where provision is so made, to search for the sick, poor and impotent people of the Parish, to intimate their estates, names and places where they dwell unto the Curate, that by his Exhortation they may be relieved with the alms of the Parishioners and others. Will you do this gladly and willingly?" This question, and the first parenthesis in the Canon (which speaks in general terms of the knowledge by the Minister of a case of sickness), imply that the Incumbent is expected to do something more than merely visit sick people who send for him. Whether he become acquainted with the case directly or indirectly, he is bound to visit, and even, if circumstances permit, he is to search for, or, at any rate, cause to be sought for, the sick and impotent, and to act up to the maxim quoted above, "Etiam si non vocatus." For giving full force to this Visitation of the Sick, the English Ritual contains a formulary which has been used with slight alteration in our churches from the earliest times. Nearly all the rubrics and prayers are to be found in the ancient Manuals of the Church of England, and some of the prayers can be traced to almost primitive times. Where some variation has been made from these originals (as, for example, in the Exhortation, and in the substitution of a rubric directing the Minister to examine whether the Sick Man repent him truly of his sins, &c., for a somewhat lengthy form), the spirit of the original is still adhered to. The only portions which have been altogether omitted in our Prayer Book are the procession of the Priest and his Clerks to the house saying the seven penitential Psalms, and the Service of Extreme Unction. The original object of anointing with oil, as we see from the passage in St. James cited above, was to "save," or procure a miraculous recovery of the infirm, by remission of the temporal punishment which they had merited for their sins. Though it should also be added that Extreme Unction was used in very early times without any expectation of cure, in extremis: and it seems probable that there was a primitive ordinance of this kind which was used for the dying, as well as that which was used with a view to recovery. The Reformers retained the practice in the first Prayer Book, but it was dropped out of the second in 1552. The Office then in use is given in a note at the end of this Service.

An Appendix of four Prayers was added to the Visitation Office in 1661, to meet particular cases; the first for a sick child, the second for a sick person when there appears little hope of recovery, the third a Commendatio Animæ for a dying person, and the fourth a Prayer for one troubled in mind or conscience. These have not as yet been traced to any ancient source.

§ The Use of the Office.

The structure of the Office for the Visitation of the Sick shows that it is intended as a formal rite, to be once used over the Sick Person, and not to be used as the customary prayers of the Clergyman in his ordinary and frequent visits to the sick rooms of his parishioners. It is a solemn recognition of the person over whom it is used as one who is in the fellowship of the Church, and for whom the Church, by its authorized Minister, offers prayer to God; and it is also a solemn recognition of the fact that the sicknesses and infirmities incident to human nature are a consequence of sin, a part of that heritage of death which came upon us through the Fall.

The promiscuous use of the Office would evidently be a departure from the intention with which it is put into the hands of her priests by the Church of England. Their duties towards the sick divide themselves, indeed, into two distinct general branches, the one consisting of ordinary pastoral instruction, consolation, and prayer; and the other of the use of the two services for Visitation and Communion: and every clergyman must find himself obliged to exercise his discretion as to those cases in which he can adopt the more solemn course which the Church has appointed for him and his parishioners in the latter branch of his duties.

Those who really have any religious convictions, and who have made religious principles the rule of their life, will either be consistent Church people or religious Dissenters. The former are well accustomed to the system and services of the Church, and have been trained, consciously or unconsciously, by means of it: the latter are in more or less ignorance about the principles of the Church, and have not ordinarily been under its training influence. In the case of the one the Visitation Service would be appropriate even if used on a sudden, supposing the case to be one of imminent danger; and no prayers could be used with so great advantage. To the other it would be like a strange language, if used without much preparation and instruction: and would not be applicable at all, except it were accompanied by an understanding that its use presupposed reconciliation to the Church.

In the case of other classes of persons, who have led irreligious and wicked lives, and who are ill instructed in the way of salvation, the Visitation Service can only be properly applicable after much instruction has been given, and much progress made towards penitence. An abrupt use of it might tend to bring into their view the comforts of the Office more prominently than would be advisable for those who do not fully appreciate the necessity of repentance towards the attainment of pardon and true peace.

It may be added, in conclusion, that the Visitation Office should be used with all the proper solemnity belonging to a formal rite of the Church. The first Rubric of the ancient Service was, "In primis induat se sacerdos superpellicio cum stola . . .," and the same rule should still be observed. Care should also be taken that there is some one present to say the responses. In his revised book, Bishop Cosin provided for this by so far reviving the ancient practice as to direct the attendance of one lay Clerk with the Priest. But some members of the sick person's family, or a parish visitor, or other friend, can always be found ready to take this charitable duty on themselves.

THE

ORDER FOR THE VISITA-TION OF THE SICK.

"And the Priest with his Clerk, entering into,"
Cosin's Durham Book.

James v. 14. 16.
Luke x. 5.

¶ When any person is sick, notice shall be given thereof to the Minister of the Parish; who, coming into the sick person's house, shall say,

PEACE be to this house, and to all that dwell in it.

¶ When he cometh into the sick man's presence he shall say, kneeling down,

REMEMBER not, Lord, our iniquities, nor the iniquities of our forefathers. Spare us, good Lord, spare thy people whom thou hast redeemed with thy most precious blood, and be not angry with us for ever.

Answer.

Spare us, good Lord.

¶ Then the Minister shall say,

Let us pray.

Lord, have mercy upon us.

Christ, have mercy upon us.

Lord, have mercy upon us.

Exod. xx. 5.
Ps. lxxix. 8.
Neh. xiii. 22.
1 Pet. i. 18, 19.
Ps. xxxix. 13.

Matt. xx. 30.

ORDO AD VISITANDUM INFIRMUM.

¶ Et cum intraverit domum dicat,

Salisbury Use.

PAX huic domui et omnibus habitantibus in ea: pax ingredientibus et egredientibus.

NE reminiscaris, Domine, delicta nostra, vel parentum nostrorum: neque vindictam sumas de peccatis nostris: parce, Domine, parce famulo tuo: quem redemisti precioso sanguine tuo ne in æternum irascaris ei.

Et statim sequatur.

Kyrie eleison.

Christe eleison.

Kyrie eleison.

THE SALUTATION.

The Priest, on entering the house, is ordered to use the salutation enjoined by our Lord upon His Apostles: "And into whatsoever house ye enter, first say, Peace be to this house" [Luke x. 5]. It is specially appropriate when thus pronounced by the Minister of God on entering a house of sickness. In a household so circumstanced there is often much of disquietude and anxiety. The relations are perplexed and agitated, inclined to forget, perhaps, that this sickness is of the Lord. The words of the Priest remind them of that peace which is to be found in resting in the Lord, and casting their cares on Him. But the Salutation has a special reference to the sick man, to whom the Priest comes as the Messenger of Peace. He is very probably under deep conviction of sin, longing for pardon and reconciliation; and the object of this visitation is to strengthen his faith, awaken his charity, move him to sincere confession and repentance, and on his sincere repentance and confession to give him the free and full forgiveness vouchsafed by the Saviour to all who truly turn to Him, and so to make the sinner at peace with God.

These words, too, used at the very entrance of the Priest into the house, help to remind those who hear them that he comes on no ordinary errand of condolence, but specially in his character as a representative of Him Who said to His ministers, "My peace I leave with you." They thus serve to bring about a tone of mind in unison with the service that is to follow.

THE ANTHEM.

In the older Service Books the Priest and his Clerks were directed, on their way to the house of the sick man, to say the seven Penitential Psalms, with the Gloria Patri after each, and to conclude with the Antiphon, "Ne reminiscaris."

In the Prayer Book of 1549 one of the penitential Psalms, the 143rd, was said by the Priest on entering the sick man's presence, followed by the Gloria Patri and this anthem, "Remember not," &c. Subsequently the Psalm was omitted, and the anthem, "Remember not," alone retained. The Respond, "Spare us, good Lord," was added at the last revision in 1661.

This Antiphon memorializes God of the redemption of His people by the most precious blood of Christ. To those present in the sick room, as well as to the sick person himself, it also gives the key-note of the Service at its very beginning: pointing out that sickness is a chastisement permitted by God; that sin has brought it into the world; and that our prayers for benefits to the body ought to be founded on the confession of God's undeserved mercy in Christ. The words are, of course, spoken to God, and are a kind of Litanic hymn; but they cannot fail to have a subjective side also in warning the sick of their true relation to His mercy, and of the worthlessness as well as impiety of self-reliance. They remind him that God's mercy must be sought; that His anger against sin is often shown by bodily chastisement; and that temporal judgments are frequently sent by Him in

OUR Father, which art in heaven,
Hallowed be thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, As it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them
that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us
from evil. Amen.

Minister.

Ps. lxxxvi. 2. O Lord, save thy servant;

Answer.

Which putteth his trust in thee.

Minister.

Ps. xx. 1, 2. Send him help from thy holy place,
lxxix. 9.

Answer.

And evermore mightily defend him.

Minister.

Ps. lxxxix. 22, 23. Let the enemy have no advantage of him;

Answer.

Nor the wicked approach to hurt
him.

Minister.

Ps. lxi. 3. Be unto him, O Lord, a strong tower,

Answer.

Prov. xviii. 10. From the face of his enemy.

Minister.

Ps. lxi. 1. O Lord, hear our prayers.

Answer.

Ps. cii. 1. And let our cry come unto thee.

Minister.

Ps. lxxx. 14. O LORD, look down from heaven,
cvi. 4.
1 Pet. iii. 12. behold, visit and relieve this thy Isa. lxiv. 1. servant. Look upon him with the
Matt. v. 4.

PATER noster, qui es in cœlis;
sanctificetur nomen tuum: ad-veniat regnum tuum: fiat voluntas
tua, sicut in cœlo, et in terra. Panem nostrum quotidianum da nobis hodie:
et dimitte nobis debita nostra, sicut et nos dimittimus debitoribus nostris: et ne nos inducas in tentationem: sed
libera nos a malo. Amen.

V. Salvum fac servum tuum vel
ancillam tuam.

R. Deus meus sperantem in te.

V. Mitte ei, Domine, auxilium de sancto.

R. Et de Syon tuere eum.

V. Nihil proficiat inimicus in eo.

R. Et filius iniquitatis non apponat nocere ei.

V. Esto ei, Domine, turris fortitudinis.

R. A facie inimici.

V. Domine, exaudi orationem meam.

R. Et clamor meus ad te veniat.

Oremus.

RESPICE, Domine, de cœlo, et vide et visita hunc famulum tuum N. et benedic eum sicut benedimercy, that He may not be compelled to be "angry with us for ever."

THE LORD'S PRAYER.

The prayer of our Blessed Lord is used here, as elsewhere, at the beginning of the Service in token of its prevailing power with God, and as the gate by which all other prayer is to enter into Heaven, and be heard by Him. The structure of the Service suggests that it should be said by all present as well as by the Priest, and "with" him, as in the end of the Litany. It should also be said with a special intention directed towards the subsequent portion of the Service, remembering that God is Our Father to chastise and Our Father to heal, that "He woundeth, and His hands make whole:" and that the first prayer of the sick and of those who love them should be in the tone of His Whose holy example teaches us to say "Thy will be done."

The lesser Litany precedes the Lord's Prayer in this place with a special emphasis, for it is the very language of those who came to Jesus to be healed of their infirmities in the days of His earthly life. Thus the two blind men mentioned in St. Matthew ix. came to Christ, "crying and saying, 'Thou Son of David, have mercy upon us;'" and in like manner the two mentioned in St.

Matthew xx., "cried out, saying, Have mercy on us, O Lord, Thou Son of David." In almost the same terms the father prayed for his lunatic son, "saying, Lord, have mercy on my son" [Matt. xvii. 15]; and the woman of Syro-Phœnicia, who came to Jesus on behalf of her sick daughter, "cried unto Him, saying, Have mercy on me, O Lord."

THE VERSICLES.

These suffrages are the same which are used throughout the Occasional Offices, slight variations being made in them according to the nature of the service in which they are introduced. They are taken from the 20th, the 61st, the 86th, and the 89th Psalms; and represent a strain of responsive supplication which has been ascending to the Throne of God for the sick, during as many ages as the service itself can be traced back.

THE PRAYERS.

In the Sarum Manual, immediately after the responses follow nine collects, two of which only have been translated, and retained in our present service. The collect now standing first was the eyes of thy mercy, give him comfort and sure confidence in thee, defend him from the danger of the enemy, and keep him in perpetual peace and safety, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Isa. xxvi. 3.

Joh viii. 5, 6.
Ps. cxvi. 3, 4.
Heb. xii. 6-11.
Job vii. 20. xlii.
5, 6.
Ps. xl. 16. xxxix.
13. cxvi. 9. 12,
13.
Job xix. 25. 27.
1 Thess. iv. 14. 17.

HEAR us, Almighty and most merciful God and Saviour; extend thy accustomed goodness to this thy servant who is grieved with sickness. Sanctify, we beseech thee, this thy fatherly correction to him; that the sense of his weakness may add strength to his faith, and seriousness to his repentance. That, if it shall be thy good pleasure to restore him to his former health, he may lead the residue of his life in thy fear, and to thy glory: or else give him grace so to take thy visitation, that after this painful life ended he may dwell with thee in life everlasting, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

cere dignatus es Abraham, Isaac, et Jacob. Respice super eum, Domine, oculis misericordiæ tuæ: et reple eum omni gaudio et lætitiâ et timore tuo. Expelle ab eo omnes inimici insidias: et mitte Angelum pacis qui eum custodiat, et domum istam in pace perpetua. Per Dominum nostrum.

Oremus.

EXAUDI nos, omnipotens et misericors Deus, et visitationem tuam conferre digneris super hunc famulum tuum N. quem diversa vexat infirmitas. Visita eum, Domine, sicut visitare dignatus es socrum Petri, puerumque centurionis, et Tobiam, et Saram, per sanctum angelum tuum, Raphaellem. Restitue in eo, Domine, pristinam sanitatem: ut mereatur in atrio domus tuæ dicere, castigans castigavit me Dominus, et morti non tradidit me: Salvator mundi. Qui cum Deo Patre, et Spiritu Sancto vivis et regnas Deus: per omnia sæcula sæculorum. Amen.

last of this series. In the original, mention is made of God's blessing on Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and it is prayed that God in like manner will visit and bless His servant. This clause has been omitted in translation. The sentence which opens the collect is doubtless originally derived from Deut. xxvi. 15, "Look down from Thy holy habitation, from heaven, and bless Thy people Israel;" a form which, if we may judge from Isaiah lxiii. 15, was long in use in the Jewish Church,—“Look down from heaven, and behold from the habitation of Thy holiness and of Thy glory.” Solomon in like manner prayed at the Dedication of the Temple,—“Whatsoever sickness there be . . . then hear Thou in heaven Thy dwelling-place, and forgive. . . .”

The object of the Prayer is to beg God's help on behalf of the sick man. It asks that the Lord would look on him in mercy, not remembering his sins, but considering his weakness; that He would be pleased to comfort him under his trial, and enable him to have firm faith in God. Not only does it ask that the Almighty will remember him for good, but that He will defend him from the evil, specially that He will guard him against the assaults of the Devil, that He will grant him perpetual peace, and ever keep him in safety.

If we compare this prayer and the preceding versicles, we shall see how naturally the collect re-echoes what has been already prayed for. It gathers up into a connected whole all the previous petitions, and again lays them before God. This is no idle repetition: the blessings sought are of so great value, and so deeply needed, that the Church purposely enables us here to set them once and again before God, according to the example of our Blessed Lord, Who in the hour of His distress prayed three times, using the same words: “If it be possible, let this cup pass from Me; yet not My will, but Thine.”

The next prayer is the third of the group of collects in the Sarum Manual. In the original prayer, mention is made of the miraculous cure of Peter's wife's mother and of the centurion's servant, of Tobias and of Sara, which allusions were all omitted at the last revision in 1661. The former prayer is directed to seeking comfort and help for the sick man from God in the time of his affliction; this second collect sets forth sickness as an instrument in the hand of the Almighty for good, and prays that the present trial may be sanctified to the sufferer. The “accustomed goodness” of God is here invoked, not for the recovery of the patient, or even for support under trial, but that the fatherly correction may work the end God has intended in sending it. If sickness is to answer any good end, it must be viewed as Fatherly correction; and, if it comes from our Father, to Him we may go for help and comfort under it, and we may be persuaded that it comes for some good purpose. Looking to God as Father, our own weakness will lead us more to Him, will make us feel our dependence on Him more; in short, will strengthen our faith. The sense of weakness will force on us the uncertainty of life, will make us remember how short our time is, and bring us to more earnest repentance for all we have done amiss, as remembering the account we may so soon have to give before our God. The prayer, too, reminds those who hear it, that the repentance and sorrow are not to be limited simply to a sick bed, but that in case of recovery the good work begun in time of affliction must be carried out. How necessary to pray, “If it shall be Thy good pleasure to restore him to his former health, he may lead the residue of his life in Thy fear!” How many are there who promise well when God's hand is upon them, who seem full of godly sorrow for sin, and Christian hatred of it, who yet on recovery forget all, and fall back into old sins, and form new evil habits!

And since the issues of life and death are with the Lord, and we know not what the event may be, recovery or death, the Collect prays, not only that in case of restoration the sick man may be enabled to live to God, but that in case his illness prove fatal, he may, through the grave and gate of death, pass to a joyful resurrection, and, this life ended, dwell for ever with God in life everlasting.

¶ Then shall the Minister exhort the sick person after this form, or other like.

Deut. iv. 39.
xxxii. 39, 40.
Job xii. 9, 10.
v. 6.
Ps. xlii. 11. cii. 23.
James i. 2—4.
2 Cor. iv. 17, 18.
1 Pet. i. 6, 7, 9.
Ps. xxxix. 11.
lxxxix. 30, 32, 53.
Rev. iii. 19.
Job xxxiv. 31, 32.
Micah vii. 9.
1 John ii. 1, 2.
Ps. xvi. 8.
Heb. xii. 10, 11.
James i. 12.

DEARLY beloved, know this, that Almighty God is the Lord of life and death, and of all things to them pertaining, as youth, strength, health, age, weakness, and sickness. Wherefore, whatsoever your sickness is, know you certainly that it is God's visitation. And for what cause soever this sickness is sent unto you, whether it be to try your patience for the example of others, and that your faith may be found in the day of the Lord laudable, glorious, and honourable, to the increase of glory and endless felicity; or else it be sent unto you to correct and amend in you whatsoever doth offend the eyes of your heavenly Father; know you certainly that if you truly repent you of your sins, and bear your sickness patiently, trusting in God's mercy, for his dear Son Jesus Christ's sake, and render unto him humble thanks for his Fatherly visitation, submitting yourself wholly unto his will, it shall turn to your profit, and help you forward in the right way that leadeth unto everlasting life.

¶ If the person visited be very sick, then the Curate may end his exhortation in this place, or else proceed.

TAKE therefore in good part the chastisement of the Lord: For (as Saint Paul saith in the twelfth Chapter to the Hebrews) whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth. If ye endure chastening, God dealeth with you as with sons; for what son is he whom the father chasteneth not? But if ye be without chastisement, whereof all are partakers, then are ye bastards, and not sons. Furthermore, we have had fathers of our flesh, which corrected us, and we gave them reverence: shall we not much rather be in subjection unto the Father of spirits, and live? For they verily for a few days chastened us after their own pleasure; but he for our profit, that we might be partakers of his holiness. These words, good brother, are written in holy Scripture for our comfort and in-

Prov. iii. 11.
Heb. xii. 6—10.

Rom. xv. 4.
2 Tim. iii. 16.
Ps. cxix. 49, 50.
111.
1 Sam. iii. 18.

THE EXHORTATIONS.

The use of Exhortation after Prayer has long formed part of the Service in the Western Church. The principal heads of the Exhortation as given in our Prayer Book are prescribed by an ancient Canon, in which the Priest is ordered, after he hath prayed for the sick, "to speak comfortably and mildly to him, exhorting him to place all his hope in God, and to bear his scourging patiently; to believe it is designed for his purifying and amendment, and also to confess his sins, and promise reformation if God grant him life, and that he engage to do acts of Penance for his faults; also that he dispose of his estate while his reason and senses remain entire; that he break off his iniquities by Almsdeeds; that he forgive all that have offended him; that he hold a right Faith and Belief, and never despair of God's mercy." [Concil. Nannetens. cap. 4, ap. Binium, Tom. 3, p. 2, pag. 131.] In the Sarum Manual the first form of Exhortation, which probably in some measure suggested the two exhortations here set forth, is but short:—"Frater charissime, gratias age omnipotenti Deo pro universis beneficiis suis: patienter et benigne suscipiens infirmitatem corporis quam tibi Deus immisit: nam si ipsam humiliter sine murmure toleraveris, infert animæ tuæ maximum præmium et salutem. Et frater charissime quia viam universæ carnis ingressurus es; esto firmus in fide. Qui enim non est firmus in fide infidelis est: et sine fide impossibile est placere Deo. Et ideo si salvus esse voleris: ante omnia opus est ut teneas catholicam fidem: quam nisi integram inviolatamque servaveris: absque dubio in æternum peribis."

Some traces of similarity with our own form may also be found in a mediæval exhortation of early date, given by Maskell. It is taken from an ancient MS., De Visitatione Infirmorum, in the Library of St. John's College, Oxford:—

"How thou shalt comfort a man that he grucche nouȝt when he is seke.

"Some leaueste thou thi Lord God? he will sai, ȝe. Than thus, ȝf thou loue God, thou louest that He doith, and He skorgeth the, and therfor thou shalt gladli suffre it. Here of spekit Salamon, and seith, Sone speke nouȝt aȝen the chastising of thi fader, for it is no sone whom the fadir chastisith nouȝt, and it accordith with commine maner of speche. For if a man see anotheris child do schreudeli in his fader presence, and the fader chastised him nouȝt, than wold that othir man sei, it is nouȝt his sone, or ellis he loueth him nouȝt, for if he were his child or ellis loued him, he wold chastise him: and therfor be nouȝt evil afraide of thi Fadris chastising of heuene; for he seieth himself; whom I loue, him I chastise. Also sekenes of bodi makith soule hele, and soule hele is nouȝt but of God; therfor despice nouȝt Godis scorge, but when God ponissche the, thanke him and loue him, that he emendith the, and undernemith the, and blameth the, and ponissche the nouȝt in his wrath ne in his wodnes, but in his grete mercy. . . ." [Mon. Rit. iii. 354.]

The Exhortation, as set forth in our service, is divided into two portions, whereof the second part may be omitted, if the person visited be very sick. The first part is devoted to Instruction regarding the cause of sickness, and the purpose of it as concerns the sufferer. The second portion is purely hortatory, exhorting to patience, self-examination, and faith. In the earlier portion the sick man is reminded that all things are of God, as life, death, health, and sickness. Whatever his trial may be, it is God's visitation. If from the Lord, it comes with some definite end and purpose, for the Almighty does not work at random. The object may be the trial of his patience for the example of others, that they may see in the sick man visible proof of God's sustaining grace, and be brought to seek it for themselves; or that his faith may be tried, to see of what sort it is, whether it will endure in the furnace of affliction; or that he may be moved to see his sins, and the need of repentance and amendment of life. One or other of these, or a combination of all, may be the end purposed by God; but although we may not be able to see clearly the cause for which the sickness is sent, one thing is certain,

Phil i. 24.
 2 Cor. xii. 9, 10.
 1 Pet. iv. 19.
 2 Thess. ii. 16.
 Heb. v. 8, 9.
 xii. 2.
 2 Cor. xiii. 4.
 John xiv. 6.
 2 Tim. ii. 11, 12.
 Rom. viii. 11, 13.
 Col. iii. 3, 4.
 Rev. vii. 14, 15.
 Ps. xl. 1.
 Lam. iii. 25, 26.
 1 Tim. vi. 12.
 Heb. iii. 14.
 Acts xvii. 21.
 x. 34.
 Hagg. i. 5.
 Lam. iii. 40.
 Ps. xxxii. 3, 5.
 1 John i. 9.
 1 Cor. xi. 32.
 Heb. x. 27.
 Rev. vi. 15, 16.
 2 Cor. xiii. 3.
 Ps. cxxxix. 23,
 24.

struction, that we should patiently, and with thanksgiving bear our heavenly Father's correction, whensoever by any manner of adversity it shall please his gracious goodness to visit us. And there should be no greater comfort to Christian persons, than to be made like unto Christ, by suffering patiently adversities, troubles, and sicknesses. For he himself went not up to joy, but first he suffered pain; he entered not into his glory before he was crucified. So, truly, our way to eternal joy is to suffer here with Christ; and our door to enter into eternal life is gladly to die with Christ; that we may rise again from death, and dwell with him in everlasting life. Now therefore taking your sickness, which is thus profitable for you, patiently, I exhort you in the Name of God, to remember the profession which you made unto God in your baptism. And for as much as after this life there is an account to be given unto the righteous Judge, by whom all must be judged without respect of persons; I require you to examine your self and your estate, both toward God and man; so that accusing and condemning your self for your own faults, you may find mercy at our heavenly Father's hand for Christ's sake, and not be accused and condemned in that fearful judgement. Therefore I shall rehearse to you the Articles of our Faith, that you may know whether you do believe as a Christian man should, or no.

¶ Here the Minister shall rehearse the Articles of the Faith, saying thus,

DOST thou believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth?

And in Jesus Christ his only begotten Son our Lord? and that he was conceived by the holy Ghost, born of the Virgin Mary; that he suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead, and buried; that he went down ¶ Et si infirmus laicus vel simpliciter literatus fuerit: tunc potest sacerdos articulos fidei in generali ab eo inquirere, sub hac forma.

CARISSIME frater: credis Patrem et Filium et Spiritum Sanctum, esse Tres Personas et Unum Deum, et ipsam benedictam atque indivisibilem Trinitatem creasse omnia creata visibilia et invisibilia. Et solum Filium, de Spiritu Sancto conceptum, incarnatum fuisse ex Maria Virgine: passum et mortuum pro nobis in cruce sub that if it be accepted in a right spirit, it will turn to the good of the sufferer. If he truly repent him of his sins, if he bear his sickness patiently, trusting in God's mercy through Christ,—nay more, if, strong in faith, he is able to see goodness in this fatherly visitation, and to thank God for it; then, whether he recover or whether he die, the sickness shall turn to his profit. If he recover, health will find him strengthened, established in the faith, earnest to run his Christian race, to press forward toward the mark of the prize of his high calling in Christ Jesus, with deeper love to his Lord and firmer faith. If he die, there will be ministered unto him, through the grace of God, an entrance into life eternal.

The second part is founded, as far as the earlier portion of it is concerned, on Hebrews xii. 6—10. These words are set before the sick man as an argument for patience under the chastening hand of God. He is reminded, too, of the example of Christ. The Christian before all things should long to be as his Master, Who going through sorrow and pain on earth, entered not into His glory until after His agonizing death on the cross. They who would share the blessedness of Christ must be willing to take up the cross when it is set before them, and follow Him in the path of suffering.

It is also observable that the continued obligation of the vows made in Baptism is set before the sick person; and that these vows are spoken of as the substantial matter on which that Judgment will be founded which mortal sickness so vividly brings into view. Thus the Christian system is shown to us, consistent with itself in all its parts, as is the Christian revelation: and when a person is lying on a sick bed in expectation of death, he is forcibly reminded by the ministrations of the Church to him that the life of this world is, in its spiritual reality, a preparation for a life to come with which it is intimately associated.

THE PROFESSION OF FAITH.

In the ancient English Office the Priest is directed to recite to the sick man the fourteen articles of the faith, of which the seven first relate to the mystery of the Trinity, and the seven others to the humanity of Christ. After these articles it is, however, added, "And if the sick man be a laic or simply a literate, then the priest may question him generally on the articles of the faith under this form." The form prescribed in this case is simply the Creed slightly paraphrased.

Maskell cites a form of examination from the MS. De Visitatione Infirmorum, already quoted. Part of it is: "Whan thou hast told him alle this, or ellis if thou haue no time to sai alle for hast of deth, begin here, and speke to him on this maner, whan thou seest that he neieth the deth. Brother, art thou glad that thou shalt die in Christin feith? Resp. ye. Knowleche that thou hast nougt wel liued as thou shuldest? Resp. ye. Art thou sori therfor? Resp. ye. Hast thou wil to amende the, if thou haddist space of lif? Resp. ye. Leuist thou in God, Fader Almighty, Maker of heuene and erthe? Resp. ye. Leuist thou in the Fader and the Sone and the Holi Gost thre persons and on into hell, and also did rise again the third day; that he ascended into heaven, and sitteth at the right hand of God the Father Almighty, and from thence shall come again at the end of the world, to judge the quick and the dead?

And dost thou believe in the holy Ghost, the holy Catholick Church, the Communion of Saints, the Remission of sins, the Resurrection of the flesh, and everlasting life after death?

¶ The sick person shall answer,

Mark ix. 24.

All this I stedfastly believe.

2 Cor. xiii. 5.
Matt. vi. 14, 15.
Numb. v. 6—10.

¶ Then shall the Minister examine whether he repent him truly of his sins, and be in charity with all the world; exhorting him to forgive from the bottom of his heart all persons that have offended him, and if he hath offended any other, to ask them forgiveness; and where he hath done injury or wrong to any man, that he make amends to the uttermost of his power. And if he hath not before disposed of his goods, let him then be admonished to make his will, and to declare his debts, what he oweth, and what is owing unto him, for the better discharging of his conscience, and the quietness of his executors. But men should often be put in remembrance to take order for the settling of their temporal estates, whilst they are in health.

Eccles. vii. 14.
Isa. xxxviii. 1.

¶ These words before rehearsed may be said before the Minister begin his prayer, as he shall see cause.

Matt. xxv. 31—
46.
Luke xvi. 9—12.
Lev. v. 5.
Josh. vii. 19.

¶ The Minister should not omit earnestly to move such sick persons as are of ability, to be liberal to the poor.

Pontio Pilato: sepultum descendisse ad inferna: die tertia resurrexisse a mortuis: ad cœlos ascendisse: iterumque venturum ad judicandum vivos et mortuos, omnesque homines tunc in corpore et anima resurrecturos, bona et mala secundum merita sua recepturos. Et remissionem peccatorum per sacramentorum ecclesiæ perceptionem. Et sanctorum communionem: id est, omnes homines in caritate existentes, esse participes omnium bonorum gratiæ quæ fiunt in ecclesia: et omnes qui communicant cum justis hic in gratia, communicare cum eis in gloria?

¶ Deinde respondeat infirmus,

Credo firmiter in omnibus . . . .

¶ Deinde dicat sacerdos.

CARISSIME frater: quia sine ca- Salisbury Use.
ritate nihil proderit tibi fides, testante Apostolo qui dicit: Si habuero omnem fidem ita ut montes transferam, caritatem autem non habuero, nihil sum: Ideo oportet te diligere Dominum Deum tuum super omnia ex toto corde tuo, et ex tota anima tua: et proximum tuum propter Deum sicut te ipsum: nam sine hujusmodi caritate nulla fides valet. Exerce ergo caritatis opera dum vales: et si multum tibi affuerit, abundanter tribue: si autem exiguum, illud impartiri stude. Et ante omnia si quem injuste læseris, satisfacias si vales: sin autem, expedit ut ab eo veniam humiliter postules. Dimitte debitoribus tuis et aliis qui in te peccaverunt, ut Deus tibi dimittat.

God? Resp. ƿe. Leuist thou that oure Lord Jesus Crist Godis Sone of heuene was conceiuid of the Holi Gost, and toke flesche and blode of oure ladi seint Marie, and was borne of hir, she being moder and mayde? Resp. ƿe. Leuist thou that he suffrid pine and deth, for oure trespas, and nouȝt for his gilt under Pounce Pilate, and that he was don on the cros, and died for the on god Fridai, and was buried? Resp. ƿe. Thankest thou him therfor? Resp. ƿe. Leuist thou that thou may nouȝt be sauid but throw his deth? Resp. ƿe." [Mon. Rit. iii. 357, q. v.]

In our Prayer Book the Creed simply has been retained as containing all things necessary to be believed by a Christian man, and on account of its great conciseness, an important point to be considered in selecting or composing a form for use in time of sickness and consequent weakness. In the case of ignorant persons there should be some previous instruction in the doctrines of the Creed before the Visitation Office is used, and this profession of faith thus solemnly made. A concise exposition of it will be found in the Notes to Morning Prayer, p. 20.

[Then shall the Minister examine] In the Sarum Manual, after the patient's confession of faith, there follows a long exhortation to charity (grounded on 1 Cor. xiii.), to make amends for injuries done, to forgive injuries received, to love of enemies, to firm hope and faith in God, to confession of sin; and after the special confession the priest is directed to use an exhortation to almsgiving and good deeds and to works of penance in case of recovery. The Exhortation directed by the various rubrics that follow the confession of faith in our service is to be similar in its general character. In addition, however, to moving the sick man to repent him truly of his sins, to be in love and charity with all men, and to make amends to the uttermost of his power if he have wronged any, the priest is directed to admonish him, if he hath not before disposed of his property, to make his will. This may seem at first sight to be too purely a secular matter to find place in a death-bed exhortation. Yet when we reflect what heart-burning and jealousy is often caused by the fact of no disposition of property having been made, and when we remember that from this very cause families are often broken up and relations estranged, we can see at once that it is a part of the duty of the minister of Christ to do his utmost to prevent such a state of things. After having counselled the sick man to make a just ¶ *Deinde stabilito sic infirmo in fide, caritate, Salisbury Use.

et spe dicat ei sacerdos,*

CARISSIME frater: si velis ad visionem Dei pervenire, oportet omnino quod sis mundus in mente et purus in conscientia: ait enim Christus in evangelio: Beati mundo corde, quoniam ipsi Deum videbunt. Si ergo vis mundum cor et conscientiam sanam habere, peccata tua universa confitere. . . .

¶ Here shall the sick person be moved to make a special confession of his sins, if he feel his conscience troubled with any weighty and equitable provision for his family or relations, the priest is directed earnestly to move him to be liberal to the poor. First, he is exhorted to consider how his affairs stand, then to be charitable, that in his giving there may be no injustice to those who have prior claims upon him either by debt or relationship. It has always been the custom of the Church to stir up men to liberality in time of sickness: it is supposed that the heart at such a season will be most readily touched with sympathy for the sorrows of others, therefore specially at such times are men exhorted by the Church, "To do good and to communicate forget not, for with such sacrifices God is well pleased <sup>1</sup>."

THE CONFESSION OF SINS.

Here shall the sick person] This rubric is, as will be seen, an abbreviated form of the ancient Latin rubric and exhortation. Its transition from the ancient to the modern form may be further illustrated by the following comparison:—

| 1549.                                                                                                                                      | 1552.                                                                                                                                      | 1661.                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Here shall the sick person                                                                                                                 | Here shall the sick person                                                                                                                 | Here shall the sick person                                                                                                                                                                               |
| make a special confession, if he feel his conscience troubled with any weighty matter. After which confession the Priest shall absolve him | make a special confession, if he feel his conscience troubled with any weighty matter. After which confession the Priest shall absolve him | be moved to make a special confession of his sins, if he feel his conscience troubled with any weighty matter. After which confession the Priest shall absolve him (if he humbly and heartily desire it) |
| after this form: and the same form of absolution shall be used in all private confessions.                                                 | after this sort.                                                                                                                           | after this sort.                                                                                                                                                                                         |

The parenthesis in the last form of this rubric was introduced by Bishop Cosin, who has written it in the margin of the Durham book.

It is plain that the kind of Confession named in this Rubric is that which is popularly known as "Auricular" Confession; for although privacy is not enjoined, it is quite certain that it would be sought both by Priest and penitent, and that without it the <sup>1</sup> Great caution should, however, be used in carrying out these duties. Dying persons are not only susceptible in respect to true Christian charity and justice; but they are also open to impressions from fear, sentiment, and other influences incidental to their state of prostration. In acting upon this rubric, therefore, the Clergyman should rather use exhortations of a general character, stating principles, than any which descend into detail. It may also be remarked that he should assist in making a will only in cases where a more proper person cannot be found in time.

Confession would most likely be of a very general, instead of a "special" character. That it is also intended to be private or "auricular,"—spoken to the ear of the Priest alone,—is shown by the original form of the Rubric in 1549, which speaks of "all private confessions" with an evidently inclusive sense,—this here enjoined being one of the kind included.

Before proceeding further, it may be well to inquire, what references to private confession are to be found in the official documents of the Church of England, in addition to the one now before us. The most familiar is that at the close of the exhortation directed to be used by the Minister when giving warning of the celebration of the Holy Communion: "And because it is requisite, That no man should come to the Holy Communion, but with a full trust in God's mercy, and with a quiet conscience; therefore if there be any of you, who by this means cannot quiet his own conscience herein, but requireth further comfort and counsel, let him come to me, or to some other discreet and learned Minister of God's Word, and open his grief; that by the ministry of God's Holy Word he may receive the benefit of absolution, together with ghostly counsel and advice, to the quieting of his conscience, and avoiding of all scruple and doubtfulness." The 113th Canon also refers to the subject; enjoining secrecy on the Minister in respect to all confessions confided to him:

"Provided always, That if any man confess his secret and hidden sins to the Minister, for the unburdening of his conscience, and to receive spiritual consolation and ease of mind from him, we do not any way bind the said Minister by this our Constitution, but do straitly charge and admonish him, that he do not at any time reveal or make known to any person whatsoever, any crime or offence so committed to his trust and secrecy (except they be such crimes as by the Laws of this Realm his own life may be called in question for concealing the same) under pain of irregularity <sup>2</sup>."

And, lastly, in the second part of the Homily of Repentance it is said, "If any do find themselves troubled in conscience, they may repair to their learned curate or pastor, or to some other godly learned man, and show the trouble and doubt of their conscience to them, that they may receive at their hand the comfortable salve of God's Word."

These quotations might be illustrated by many cases recorded in the lives of good Churchmen and Churchwomen of the last and previous centuries, in which private Confession was used both in health and sickness; and numberless practical writers speak of it as a recognized habit in the Church of England since the Reformation as well as before <sup>3</sup>. Nearly all such writers, however,

<sup>2</sup> The force of this Canon is apparently weakened by the indefinite character of the last word in the quotation, as used in modern times. In ecclesiastical law "irregularity" means deprivation, accompanied by a perpetual incapacity for taking any benefice whatever. It is the severest punishment which can be inflicted on a Clergyman under the Canon law, short of degradation from his Orders.

<sup>3</sup> An interesting document has lately come to light among the papers of matter. After which confession, the Priest shall absolve him (if he humbly and heartily desire it) after this sort.

2 Cor. v. 18. 20.
John xx. 23.
Matt. xxviii. 18.
20.
Acts xx. 21.
2 Cor. ii. 10.
Acts x. 43.
Numb. vi. 27.

OUR Lord Jesus Christ, who hath left power to his Church to absolve all sinners who truly repent and believe in him, of his great mercy forgive thee thine offences: And by his authority committed to me, I absolve

¶ Deinde absolvat sacerdos infirmum, ab omnibus peccatis suis, hoc modo dicens,

DOMINUS noster Jesus Christus pro sua magna pietate te absolvat: et ego auctoritate ejusdem Dei et Domini nostri Jesu Christi, et beatorum Apostolorum Petri et Pauli, et auctoritate mihi tradita, absolve te ab omniprotest against its compulsory injunction; and it does not seem to be proved that frequent and habitual Confession has ever been very common in the Church of England since the Reformation.

Having to deal here only with cases of sickness, the question comes before us, What is a clergyman's duty under the circumstances indicated by the Visitation Office?

It is plain that we cannot say, he must press no one, but must simply be willing, if confession is volunteered, to hear it; for the rubric expressly says, "Then shall the sick person be moved," and the addition was made in 1661. Still the Church interposes a condition, "if he feel his conscience troubled with any weighty matter," which implies that only in special cases, even in time of sickness, is confession to be urged as absolutely essential to the health of the soul.

A clergyman often meets with such special cases; where it is plain (for example) that the time is short, the sick man suffering from some severe accident probably soon to end in death, or lying under mortal sickness. He possibly knows little of the dying person's previous life, and even if he does know something of his outward conduct, he can hardly be acquainted with his secret sins. In such a case he could not take a more direct course towards promoting the dying man's peace with God, than by moving him to make a special confession of his sins, if his conscience be troubled with any weighty matter. Such a confession is almost the best proof we can have of a dying man's sorrow for sin, of his penitent mind, and of his desire for pardon. It is easy for him to say that he is "comfortable in his mind," or that "he is happy;" but such words are too often used by those who ought neither to be comfortable nor happy when the judgment is immediately before them. On the other hand, if a dying person opens out his sinful life to the sorrowing gaze of Christ's minister, he does that which is extremely distasteful, and perhaps very painful, to himself; and does it with no other object than that by his humble confession he may gain the benefit of Christ's cleansing blood through the word of absolution pronounced by the Priest in his Master's Name.

It is most evident that where a person is thus desirous of unburdening his mind, (1) the Priest has no right to refuse to hear and receive such confession; and also that (2) the Priest is even bound to suggest and advise it as the remedy provided by the Church to those who are thus burdened.

The form in which Special Confessions are to be made is not laid down in the Prayer Book. The following is a common one:—"In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen. I confess to God the Father Almighty, to His only-begotten Son Jesus Christ our Lord, to God the Holy Ghost, and to you, father, that I have sinned exceedingly in thought, word, and deed, through my fault, through my most grievous fault. [Here comes in a statement of the sins troubling the person's conscience.] For these and all my other sins which I cannot now remember I humbly beg pardon of Almighty God, and grace to amend; and of you, my father, I ask [penance,] counsel, and absolution. And therefore I beseech God the Father Almighty, His only-begotten Son Jesus Christ, and God the Holy Ghost, to have mercy upon me, and you, father, to pray for me."

THE ABSOLUTION.

The substantial part of this Absolution is ancient, as will be seen by comparing it with the Latin original. A prefatory addition was made to it at the time of its translation in 1549; and this was taken from the Absolution in the "Order of Communion" of 1548, which, again, was derived from Archbishop Hermann's Consultation.

Daye's Transl. of Hermann's Consultation, 1547.

The Order of Communion, 1548.

Because our blessed Lord hath left this power to His congregation, that it may absolve them

Our blessed Lord, who hath left power to His Church to absolve penitent sinners from

Grenville, Dean of Durham, and son-in-law to Bishop Cosin. The papers referred to are in the Bodleian Library: Rawlinson MS. Miscell. 1109. They are also published by the Surtees' Society. The Dean writes as follows:

"We having no directions given by the Church for private Confession and Absolution, but what is in the Office for the Sick, as to the manner of performance, we ought to proceed in that method, for the matter of examination, as far as time, and place, and person will permit.

The form of Absolution is there set down, and therefore ought to be retained, but as for the form of prayers before or after, it is left to the discretion of the Minister. And accordingly several Ministers have several ways and methods of performance of it; more or less to edification.

The rule of the Apostle,—let all things be done to edification, ought to guide priests in this, and all other performances.

Being moved thereto by these considerations and the practice of the most godly and eminent Divines under whom I have had my edification, I do make use of the form following:

BEGIN first with the LORD's Prayer, saying together: OUR FATHER which art, &c.

Vers. O LORD, open Thou our lips.

Ans. And our mouth shall show forth Thy praise.

Vers. O GOD, make speed to save us.

Ans. O LORD, make haste to help us.

Glory be to the FATHER, &c.

As it was in the beginning, &c.

Then recite together Psalm 139, Domine probasti,—O LORD, Thou hast searched me out and known me, &c.

After this is said the Priest takes his place in his chair, and requires the penitent to kneel down before him, and to answer sincerely in the Name and fear of God to such questions as he shall by Christ's authority demand of him.

It is expedient and thought good for the ease and encouragement of the penitent to have some form of examination and answers given to him some convenient time before to consider of for the greater profit of his soul, and better preparation for so solemn a duty.

Then let the penitent repeat one of the forms of Confession after the Priest, with due deliberation and intention. After which the Priest rising up shall add, O LORD, I beseech Thee, &c., and then solemnly pronounce that excellent form of Absolution, OUR LORD JESUS CHRIST, &c.

Then let the Priest pronounce such sentences of Scripture as he conceives most to edification. Reciting afterwards on their knees together Psalm 32, Blessed, &c., concluding with these following prayers:

Let us pray.

1. O most merciful God, who according to the multitude of Thy mercies, &c., with some few alterations.

Or,

O most mighty God and merciful Father, &c.

2. LORD, we beseech Thee give us grace to withstand, &c.

3. O LORD, who knowest that all our doings are nothing worth, &c.

4. LORD, we pray Thee that Thy grace, &c.

ALMIGHTY God, the fountain of all wisdom, &c.

Benediction."

A long paper of questions is appended which appears to have been used by Grenville for some person who came to him habitually for Confession.

thee from all thy sins, In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

¶ And then the Priest shall say the Collect following.

Let us pray.

Lam. iii. 41.
James iv. 8.
Ps. li. 1.
2 Sam. xii. 13.
Heb. viii. 12. x.
17.
1 Kings viii. 52.
Numb. xiv. 19.
Eph. iv. 22, 23.
Luke xxii. 31.
John xvii. 11, 20, 21.
1 Pet. i. 5, 6.
Ps. li. 17.
Isa. xxxviii. 2-5.
Ps. lxxi. 1, 2. xli. 3.
Eph. iii. 16.
Ps. xxxi. 5.
Rev. xiv. 13.
John xiv. 2, 3.

O MOST merciful God, who, according to the multitude of thy mercies, dost so put away the sins of those who truly repent, that thou rememberest them no more; Open thine eye of mercy upon this thy servant, who most earnestly desireth pardon and forgiveness. Renew in him (most loving Father) whatsoever hath been decayed by the fraud and malice of the devil, or by his own carnal will and frailness; preserve and continue this sick member in the unity of the Church; consider his contrition, accept his tears, assuage his pain, as bus peccatis his de quibus corde contritus et ore mihi confessus es: et ab omnibus aliis peccatis tuis de quibus si tuæ occurrerent memoriae libenter confiteri velles: et sacramentis ecclesiae te restituo. In nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti. Amen.

Oremus.

DEUS misericors, Deus clemens, qui secundum multitudinem miserationum tuarum peccata poenitentium deles, et præteritorum criminum culpas venia remissionis evacuas: respice super hunc famulum tuum N., sibi remissionem omnium peccatorum suorum tota cordis contritione poscentem. Renova in eo, piissime Pater, quicquid diabolica fraude violatum est: et unitati corporis ecclesiae tuæ membrum infirmum, peccatorum percepta remissione, restitue. Miserere, Domine, gemituum ejus: miserere lachrymarum: miserere tribulationum atque

Salisbury Use.
Gelas. Reconciliationis ad mortem; in Martene de Antiq. Ecc. Rit. iii. 15.
Menard's Notes to Greg. Sacr. p. 353.
Muratori, i. 504.

from sins, and restore them into the favour of the heavenly Father, which being repentant for their sins, do truly believe in Christ the Lord, I the minister of Christ . . .

their sins, and to restore to the grace of the heavenly Father such as truly believe in Christ; Have mercy upon you . . .

Like the two other Absolutions contained in the Prayer Book, this is intended to convey what it professes to convey, pardon of sin. That pardon cannot, however, be conveyed without the co-operation of the person to whom it is spoken. It is nullified by a false confession (even although the deception is not detected by the Priest), and by any act of sin which places a bar between the sinner and God's pardon. The Priest has acted, of course, to the best of his judgment in regard to the true penitence of the person over whom he pronounces the Absolution, but his judgment is human, and the eye of God alone can detect the full truth.

It was probably with the object of making clear in the form of words itself, what relation the Priest stands in towards the penitent and towards the One Forgiver of sins, that the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ was placed in the very forefront of the Absolution. He, by His death, purchased remission of sin for all men; therefore He alone is the Judge of all, having the supreme power in Himself originally to save or to condemn. The right foundation being thus laid, the power delegated by Christ to His ministers is introduced. It is their part, first, to bring sinners to submit to Jesus; and, secondly, as His Ambassadors to reconcile them. But this reconciliation is only on certain fixed conditions, repentance and faith. Without these there can be no forgiveness; without evident tokens of these the Priest has no right or power to pronounce the Absolution; without these, even if the Absolution be pronounced by the Priest, there is no pardon. The Lord Jesus being set forth as the Author of all pardon, the authority of His ministers as derived from Him laid down, the conditions of forgiveness stated, the Petition follows that He will confirm in heaven what is done on earth, that He who is the Priest's Lord will forgive by His servant's ministry. Then follows the indicative part of the Absolution:—"And by His authority committed to me, I absolve thee," &c. Reverting again to the opening clause, we thus see that Christ has power on earth to forgive sins, which power He has deputed to His ministers; and since He has promised that He will forgive under certain conditions, it is subject to those conditions that His deputies dispense His pardon.

Thus, in this very solemn form of Absolution, the Priest acts ministerially throughout; that is, he acts as the instrumental agent for the declaration by an audible word, of that pardon which God will give by an inaudible sentence to the person who bows down to receive it with a faithful and penitent heart. To such it will be a true comfort; a word of pardon and a word of peace<sup>1</sup>.

THE COLLECT.

This ancient "reconciliation of a penitent near death" is not only found in the old formularies of the English Church, where it was used long before the preceding indicative form of Absolution was introduced, but in the Sacramentary of Gelasius, A.D. 494; and for many centuries it was commonly used in the churches of the West, as the marginal references show.

The Prayer opens with an appeal to the unfailing mercy of God in putting away the sins of those who truly repent, and remembering them no more: it then beseeches the pity of the Almighty on behalf of the sick man. From this the prayer rises to a petition for internal sanctification, praying that as by the frequent commission of sin, the desires have been biassed towards evil, the faith weakened, the heart hardened, the devotion

<sup>1</sup> There is a practical note, about the manner of giving Absolution, in the Salisbury Manual, which may be usefully annexed:

"Et post absolutionem convenienter apponitur. 'In Nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti. Amen.' Ad signandum, quod sacerdos non propria auctoritate absolvit: sed quasi minister: tamen hoc relinquitur sacerdotis arbitrio. Nec requiritur in absolutione manus impositio, quia hoc sacramentum non ordinatur ad exequendam aliquam excellentiam gratiæ, sed remissionem culpæ, et ideo magis competit crucis signatio, quia fuit instrumentum nostræ redemptionis." Manual. Sarisb. 1530. Mask. ii. 302.

shall seem to thee most expedient for him. And forasmuch as he putteth his full trust only in thy mercy, impute not unto him his former sins; but strengthen him with thy blessed Spirit, and when thou art pleased to take him hence, take him unto thy favour, through the merits of thy most dearly beloved Son Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

In Te, Domine, speravi.
Ps. lxxi. [vv. 1—17.]

[Printed at length in the Sealed Books.]

¶ Then shall the Minister say this Psalm,
IN thee, O Lord, have I put my trust . . . . .

Thy righteousness, O God, is very high, and great things are they that thou hast done : O God, who is like unto thee ?

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son : and to the Holy Ghost ;

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be : world without end. Amen.

1 John iv. 14. il.
1, 2.
Col. i. 20.
1 Pet. i. 18, 19.
Ps. cxvi. 3, 4.

¶ Adding this,
O SAVIOUR of the world, who by thy cross and precious blood hast redeemed us, save us, and help us, we humbly beseech thee, O Lord.

[A.D. 1549.]
Rev. iv. 8.
Prov. xviii. 10.
Isa. xxvii. 4.
Matt. xxviii. 18.

¶ Then shall the Minister say,
THE Almighty Lord, who is a most strong tower to all them that put their trust in him, to whom all things in heaven, in earth, and under the earth, do bow and obey, be dolorum : et non habentem fiduciam nisi in tua misericordia, ad sacramentum reconciliationis admitte. Per Christum Dominum nostrum.

¶ Deinde dicatur Psalmus.

IN te, Domine, speravi . . . non confundar in æternum.

Salisbury Use.
De extrema Unctione.

¶ Finito psalmo cum.

Gloria Patri, et Filio : et Spiritui Sancto.

Sicut erat in principio, et nunc, et semper : et in sæcula sæculorum. Amen.

Tota dicatur Antiph.

SALVATOR mundi, salva nos, qui per crucem et sanguinem redemisti nos : auxiliare nobis te deprecamur, Deus noster.

VIRTUTUM coelestium Deus, qui ab humanis corporibus omnem languorem et omnem infirmitatem præcepti tui potestate depellis, adesto propitius huic famulo tuo III.

[Greg. Ad Visitationem Infirmum.]

quenched, the love to God cooled; God would be pleased to renew these, to strengthen faith, to soften the heart, to give life to devotion, warmth to love. Then follows a petition for external continuance in the Communion of the Saints, that though from circumstances the sick man is unable publicly to associate with God's people in the outward ordinances of religion, he may still be united in heart to Christ's mystical Body.

The prayer then asks that God will accept his contrition, will mitigate his pain, will grant him remission of all his sins, and finally will give him eternal salvation; and all for the merits of Jesus Christ his Lord.

THE PSALM.

This Psalm holds a place in the services for the Visitation of the Sick in both the Western and Eastern Churches. In the Sarum Manual it is given at full length: in our Prayer Book the last five verses have been omitted, since they speak of the sick man as already delivered and restored to health, and are therefore not so suitable to the case of one still in affliction.

The Psalm is most appropriate for the position it holds; throughout it runs a mingled strain of fervent petition and earnest profession of firm faith in the promises and love of God. It opens with prayer for deliverance, protection, and help; and grounds these petitions on the Psalmist's constant resort to God in time of trouble as his castle and house of defence. Then follows a memorial of God's past dealings, how even from the hour of birth upward He has been the stay and strength of His servant; then, again, fresh prayer that God, Who has so long shown His goodness, will not now desert and leave His follower, when His help is specially needed and doubly required.

Above all, the Psalm points to the great Example offered to His suffering servants by the greatest of all sufferers; for it is of Him chiefly that it speaks; and in His "patient abiding always" may the servant see the meekness and submission of his Master as a pattern which he himself is humbly to copy in the time of affliction. This application of the Psalm is indicated by the Antiphon which follows the Doxology.

THE ANTIPHON.

This Antiphon is extremely interesting as being the only one retained in the Book of Common Prayer; and as still showing the manner in which Antiphons were formerly appended to Psalms for the purpose of drawing out their spiritual meaning or giving them the turn required for the special occasion on which they were used. In this case it clearly points to the preceding Psalm as spoken in the Person of Christ, our suffering Saviour; and pleads the sufferings there expressed as the cause of that human sympathy which is still and ever felt for His members by the Divine Redeemer. [See also p. 59, note.]

THE BENEDICTIONS.

The first of these benedictory forms was inserted as the conclusion of the Visitation Office in 1549, and bears some resemblance to a Collect in the Sacramentary of St. Gregory, which

Phil. ii. 9, 10.
Ps. xx. 1, 2.
Acts iv. 10, 12.
xiii. 28.
Isa. xlv. 21
22, 17.
1 Cor. iii. 11.

now and evermore thy defence, and make thee know and feel, that there is none other name under heaven given to man, in whom, and through whom, thou mayest receive health and salvation, but only the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

¶ And after that shall say,

Ps. lxxvi. 15.
Acts xx. 32.
1 Pet. iv. 19.
Ps. iv. 6.
Isa. xlv. 3.
Numb. vi. 24—26.

UNTO God's gracious mercy and protection we commit thee. The Lord bless thee and keep thee. The Lord make his face to shine upon thee, and be gracious unto thee. The Lord lift up his countenance upon thee, and give thee peace, both now and evermore. Amen<sup>1</sup>.

A Prayer for a sick child.

2 Sam. xii. 16, 22.
Ps. lxxviii. 20.
Mark v. 22—24.
35—42.
Ps. cvi. 4.
Job vii. 1.
Ps. vi. 2, 4.
Phil. ii. 27.
2 Cor. v. 15.
Ps. lxxi. 18.
John xiv. 2, 3.
Luke xvi. 9.
Ps. xvi. 11.
Ps. xliv. 26.
Rev. xiv. 13.
xix. 6.

OMALMIGHTY God and merciful Father, to whom alone belong the issues of life and death; Look down from heaven, we humbly beseech thee, with the eyes of mercy upon this child now lying upon the bed of sickness: Visit him, O Lord, with thy salvation; deliver him in thy good appointed time from his bodily pain, and save his soul for thy mercies' sake. That if it shall be thy pleasure to prolong his days here on earth, he may live to thee, and be an instrument of thy glory, by serving thee faithfully, and doing good in his generation; or else receive him into those heavenly habitations, where the souls of them that sleep in the Lord Jesus enjoy per-ut, fugatis infirmitatibus et viribus receptis, nomen sanctum tuum instaurata protinus sanitate benedicat. Per Dominum.]

BENEDICAT vos Dominus et custodiat semper. Ostendat Dominus faciem suam super vos et misereatur vestri. Convertat Dominus vultum suum ad vos, et det vobis pacem. Per Dominum.

Miss. Gallic. Grimold. Sacram. Benedict. quotidian. diebus dicend.

petual rest and felicity. Grant this, O Lord, for thy mercies' sake, in the same thy Son our Lord Jesus Christ, who liveth and reigneth with thee and the Holy Ghost, ever one God, world without end. Amen.

A Prayer for a sick person, when there appeareth small hope of recovery.

FATHER of mercies, and God of all comfort, our only help in time of need; We fly unto thee for succour in behalf of this thy servant, here lying under thy hand in great weakness of body. Look graciously upon him, O Lord; and the more the outward man decayeth, strengthen him, we beseech thee, so much the more continually with thy grace and holy Spirit in the inner man. Give him

2 Cor. i. 3, 4.
Ps. xlv. 1.
Heb. iv. 16.
Matt. xi. 28.
James v. 13—16.
Ps. cxix. 132.
xli. 3.
2 Cor. iv. 16.
Eph. iii. 14, 16.
Acts v. 31.
2 Cor. vii. 10, 11.
Ps. li. 1.
Eph. i. 13, 14.
Ps. xxxix. 15.
Luke i. 37.
2 Kings xx. 56.
2 Tim. iv. 6—8.
Isa. xxxviii. 1.
Luke xii. 35—37.
40.
Isa. lvii. 2.

was used for the Visitation of the Sick. The other, the ancient Jewish Benediction, first appears in Bishop Cosin's handwriting, at the end of the Office in his Durham book. Mr. Palmer

<sup>1</sup> The following is the Office for anointing which was inserted here in 1549, but omitted in 1552:—

¶ If the sick person desire to be anointed, then shall the Priest anoint him upon the forehead or breast only, making the sign of the cross, saying thus,

AS with this visible oil thy body outwardly is anointed: so our heavenly Father, Almighty God, grant of His infinite goodness, that thy soul inwardly may be anointed with the Holy Ghost, who is the Spirit of all strength, comfort, relief, and gladness: and vouchsafe for His great mercy (if it be His blessed will) to restore unto thee thy bodily health, and strength, to serve Him; and send thee release of all thy pains, troubles, and diseases, both in body and mind. And howsoever His goodness (by His divine and unsearchable providence) shall dispose of thee: we, His unworthy ministers and servants, humbly beseech the Eternal Majesty to do with thee according to the multitude of His innumerable mercies, and to pardon thee all thy sins and offences, committed by all thy bodily senses, passions, and carnal affections: who also vouchsafe mercifully to grant unto thee ghostly strength, by His Holy Spirit, to withstand and overcome all temptations and assaults of thine adversary, that in no wise he prevail against thee, but that thou mayest have perfect victory and triumph against the devil, sin, and death, through Christ our Lord: Who by His death hath overcome the prince of death, and with the Father and the Holy Ghost evermore liveth and reigneth God, world without end. Amen.

Usque quo, Domine? Psalm xlii.

found it used as a Benediction in an ancient Irish Manual or Rituale, published by Sir William Betham, in the first number of his Antiquarian Researches, from a MS. which he refers to the seventh century. It is also extant in ancient Gallican and Anglo-Saxon Missals, as in that of Grimoldus printed by Pamelius. [Liturgicon ii. 509.]

THE SPECIAL PRAYERS.

The four prayers appended to the Visitation Office were added in 1661. The first of them, for a sick child, seems intended as a provision for those whom extreme youth or infancy would incapacitate from taking part in the actual Visitation Office; and to whom also the greater part of it would be inapplicable. The second Prayer is for a sick man when there appears small hope of recovery. Its chief intent is to pray God to vouchsafe spiritual consolations in Christ Jesus, to give the man unfeigned repentance for the errors of his life past; if it seems fit in His eyes, to raise him up again; if not, to receive his soul into the everlasting kingdom of Heaven. The third is a commendatory prayer. In the Sarum Manual there is given a Service, "Commendatio Animarum," but it contains no prayer from which this could have been derived. A hint seems to have been taken for a portion of it from the Litany in the service of Extreme Unction: "Ut quic-

Matt. xxv. 34.
2 Pet. i. 10, 11.

unfeigned repentance for all the errors of his life past, and stedfast faith in thy Son Jesus, that his sins may be done away by thy mercy, and his pardon sealed in heaven, before he go hence, and be no more seen. We know, O Lord, that there is no word impossible with thee; and that, if thou wilt, thou canst even yet raise him up, and grant him a longer continuance amongst us. Yet, forasmuch as in all appearance the time of his dissolution draweth near, so fit and prepare him we beseech thee, against the hour of death, that after his departure hence in peace, and in thy favour, his soul may be received into thine everlasting kingdom, through the merits and mediation of Jesus Christ, thine only Son, our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

A commendatory Prayer for a sick person at the point of departure.

O ALMIGHTY God, with whom do live the spirits of just men made perfect, after they are delivered from their earthly prisons; We humbly commend the soul of this thy servant, our dear brother, into thy hands, as into the hands of a faithful Creator, and most merciful Saviour; most humbly beseeching thee, that it may be precious in thy sight. Wash it, we pray thee, in the blood of that immaculate Lamb that was slain to take away the sins of the world; that whatsoever defilements it may have contracted in the midst of this miserable and naughty world, through the lusts of the flesh, or the wiles of Satan, being purged and done away, it may be presented pure and without spot before thee. And teach us who survive, in this and other like daily spectacles of mortality, to see how frail and uncertain our own condition is, and so to number our days, that we may seriously apply our hearts to that holy and heavenly wisdom, whilst we live here, which may in the end bring us to life everlasting, through the merits of Jesus Christ thine only Son our Lord. Amen.

A Prayer for persons troubled in mind or in conscience.

O BLESSED Lord, the Father of mercies, and the God of all comforts, We beseech thee, look down in pity and compassion upon this thy afflicted servant. Thou writest bitter things against him, and makest him to possess his former iniquities; thy wrath lieth hard upon him, and his soul is full of trouble: But, O merciful God, who hast written thy holy word for our learning, that we, through patience and comfort of thy holy Scriptures, might have hope; give him a right understanding of himself, and of thy threats and promises, that he may neither cast away his confidence in thee, nor place it any where but in thee. Give him strength against all his temptations, and heal all his distempers. Break not the bruised reed, nor quench the smoking flax. Shut not up thy tender mercies in displeasure; but make him to hear of joy and gladness, that the bones which thou hast broken may rejoice. Deliver him from fear of the enemy, and lift up the light of thy countenance upon him, and give him peace, through the merits and mediation of Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

2 Cor. i. 3.
Ps. ciii. 13.
Isa. lxiii. 15, 16.
Job xiii. 26.
1 Kings xvii. 18.
Ps. lxxxviii. 3-7.
James v. 11.
Rom. xv. 4.
Eph. i. 15.
1 John iii. 20, 21.
1 Cor. xi. 31.
Heb. x. 35, 36.
Jer. xvii. 7, 4.
2 Cor. xii. 9.
Matt. xii. 20.
Ps. lxxvii. 9. li. 3.
Ps. lxiv. 1.
Ps. xcl. i. iv. 6.
Num. vi. 26.
Phil. iv. 7.

Mark xii. 26, 27.
Heb. xii. 22, 23.
2 Cor. v. 4, 6, 8.
Acts vii. 59.
1 Pet. iv. 19.
1 John iv. 14.
Ps. xxvi. 9, 11.
cxvi. 15.
Rev. i. 5, 6.
vii. 14.
Eccl. vii. 20.
1 John v. 19.
Eph. vi. 11.
Gal. v. 17.
Eph. v. 25, 27.
Eccl. vii. 2.
Job xiv. 10, 11.
Ps. xxxix. 4, 5.
xc. 12.
Deut. xxxii. 46,
47.
Rom. v. 21. vi. 23.

quid vitiorum fallente diabolo et propria iniquitate atque fragilitate contraxit clementer indulgere digneris. Te rogamus, audire nos." The application to the survivors seems to be quite peculiar to our Prayer Book.

The fourth is a prayer for those troubled in conscience. Its chief aim is to pray to God to enable the man rightly to know and judge himself, that he may not on the one hand be unduly cast down, or on the other too self-confident; that he may fully understand the threatenings and promises in God's word, that so he may not be driven into despair, or tempted to presume falsely on the mercy of the Almighty. Finally, that God would deliver him and give him peace through the merits and mediation of Christ.

In Bishop Cosin's Durham Prayer Book the following Rubric was inserted by him at the end of the Visitation Office.

"If any sick persons desire the prayers of the Church in publick, they are to send their names in writing to the Curate, who immediately after the final Collect of Morning or Evening Prayer shall declare the same, and use the form above prescribed, beginning at the words, O Lord, save Thy servant, &c., unto the Exhortation, and ending with these two last prayers, The Almighty Lord, &c. Unto God's gracious protection, &c."

This rubric was erased by the Committee of Revision, probably on account of that which was connected with the Prayer for all conditions of men. But that the custom had been adopted is evident from the ninth of Bishop Wren's Injunctions, which orders that "when any need is, the sick by name be prayed for in the reading-desk, and nowhere else, at the close of the first service; except it be in the afternoon, and then to be done immediately after the Creed, using only there two Collects, which be set down in the Service Book for the Visitation of the Sick." [Cardw. Docum. Ann. ii. 203.] See also Granville's Remains, ii. 42, 103.

THE COMMUNION OF THE SICK.

¶ Forasmuch as all mortal men be subject to many sudden perils, diseases, and sicknesses, and ever uncertain what time they shall depart out of this life; therefore, to the intent they may be always in a readiness to die, whensoever it shall please Almighty God to call them, the Curates shall diligently from time to time (but especially in the time of pestilence, or other infectious sickness) exhort their Parishioners to the often receiving of the holy Communion of the body and blood of our Saviour Christ, when it shall be publicly administered in the Church; that so doing, they may, in case of sudden visitation, have the less cause to be disquieted for lack of the same. But if the sick person be not able to come to the Church, and yet is desirous to receive the Communion in his house; then he must give timely notice to the Curate, signifying also how many there are to communicate with him (which shall be three, or two at the least), and having a convenient place in the sick man's house, with all things necessary so prepared, that the Curate may reverently minister, he shall there celebrate the holy Communion, beginning with the Collect, Epistle, and Gospel, here following.

The Collect.

ALMIGHTY, everliving God, maker of mankind, who dost correct those whom thou dost love, and chastise every one whom thou dost receive; We beseech thee to have mercy upon this thy servant visited with thine hand, and to grant that he may take his sickness patiently, and recover his bodily health, (if it be thy Deut. xxxii. 39, 40.

Isa. lxiv. 8, 9.
Job v. 17, 18.
Heb. xii. 5, 6.
Ps. lxxxvi. 15, 16.
xxxix. 10, 11, 13.
Isa. xxxviii. 2—5.
James i. 2—4.
Luke xxii. 42.
xxiii. 46.
Eph. v. 25—27.
Jude 24, 25.

It has been a universal practice in the Catholic Church to administer the Holy Communion to the sick, and especially to the dying. We have evidence of this in the writings of the Fathers, in Canons, and other ancient documents. In the Eastern Church it was called ἐφῶδιον, in the Western viaticum, both words meaning provision, as it were, laid up to sustain the recipients in their journey to the other world. In the earlier documents of the English Church we find great stress laid upon the reception of the Eucharist by the Sick: as the following examples show. Archbishop Theodore (Penitential, cap. 41), after speaking of the penance imposed before reconciliation of penitents adds,—“Si vero periculum mortis, propter aliquam infirmitatem, incurrerint, ante constitutum tempus reconciliari eos oportet, ne forte, quod ab-it, sine communione ab hoc sæculo discedant.” And again, in the 4th sect. of the same chapter, the like indulgence is to be granted even to those who had not previously begun a course of repentance. “Si quis non pœnitet, et forsitan ceciderit in ægritudine, et quæsierit communicare, non prohibetur, sed date ei sanctam communionem, ita tamen ut omnia sit ante confessus: et mandate illi ut si placuerit Dei misericordiæ ut evaserit de ipsa ægritudine, mores suos et actus in quibus antea deliquit, omnino corrigere debeat, cum pœnitentia.”

The Excerpts of Archbishop Egbert exhibit a similar case, —they direct “Ut cuncti sacerdotes . . . omnibus infirmis ante exitum vitæ viaticum et communionem corporis Christi misericorditer tribuant,” while in the 22nd of the said excerpts it is further ordered, “Ut presbyter eucharistiam habeat semper paratam ad infirmos, ne sine communione moriantur.”

So far was this feeling carried, that it was even directed that Priests should carry about with them the consecrated Eucharist, to administer it upon sudden occasions. This custom, however, seems never to have prevailed to any extent in the English Church. King Edgar's 65th Canon [A.D. 960] orders every priest “to give housel to the sick, when they need it;” and the Canons of Ælfric direct “the priest shall housel the sick and infirm, while the sick can swallow the housel; and he shall not administer it, if he be half living, because Christ commanded that the housel should be eaten.”

A Canon of the Synod of Westminster (A.D. 1138) goes also indirectly to prove the constant care which was taken in the early English Church that all sick persons might receive the Holy Communion. “2. Sancimus etiam, ut ultra octo dies corpus Christi non reservetur; neque ad infirmos, nisi per sacerdotum, aut per diaconum, aut necessitate instante, per quemlibet cum summa reverentia deferatur.” [Mask. Mon. Rit. I. ccxliii.]

The reservation of the Holy Sacrament for the purpose of administration to the sick was probably a primitive practice; for it is named at a very early period. Justin Martyr, in his Apology, tells us that those who were absent from the public celebration had the elements brought to them at their own houses, and this seems to have been part of the duty of the deacons or that day—καλούμενοι παρ' ἡμῶν Διάκονοι δεῖδασιν ἐκάστῃ τῶν παρόντων, μεταβαλεῖν ἀπὸ τοῦ εὐχαρισθέντος, ἄρτου καὶ οἴνου καὶ ὕδατος, καὶ τοῖς οὐ παροῦσι ἀποφέρουσι.

There is ample evidence in the History of the Church to show that this was the common mode of proceeding; and the practice of reservation was provided for in the first Rubric of the Office for the Communion of the Sick in the Prayer Book of 1549,—“If the same day there be a celebration of the Holy Communion in the church, then shall the Priest reserve (at the open Communion) so much of the Sacrament of the Body and Blood as shall serve the sick person, and so many as shall communicate with him (if there be any), and so soon as he conveniently may, after the open Communion ended in the church, shall go and minister the same, first to those that are appointed to communicate with the sick (if there be any) and last of all to the sick person himself. But before the Curate distribute the Holy gracious will,) and whensoever his soul shall depart from the body, it may be without spot presented unto thee, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

The Epistle.

Heb. xii. 5.

MY son, despise not thou the chastening of the Lord, nor faint when thou art rebuked of him. For whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth;

¶ After which, the Priest shall proceed according to the form before prescribed for the holy Communion, beginning at these words [Ye that do truly, &c.]

¶ At the time of the distribution of the holy Sacrament, the Priest shall first receive the Communion himself, and after minister unto and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth.

The Gospel.

VERILY, verily, I say unto you, John v. 24. He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life.

Communion, the appointed general confession must be made in the name of the communicants, the Curate adding the Absolution with the comfortable words of Scripture following in the open Communion; and after the Communion ended, the Collect, Almighty and everliving God, we most heartily thank thee, &c. But if the day be not appointed for the open Communion in the church, then (upon convenient warning given) the Curate shall come and visit the sick person afore noon. And having a convenient place," &c.

The same practice was also provided for in another way by the second Rubric at the end of the same Office,—“And if there be more sick persons to be visited the same day that the Curate doth celebrate in any sick man's house; then shall the Curate (there) reserve so much of the Sacrament of the Body and Blood as shall serve the other sick persons, and such as be appointed to communicate with them (if there be any), and shall immediately carry it and minister it unto them.”

It will thus be seen that the original form of our Office provided for reservation in ordinary cases, and for private celebration in exceptional ones. In 1552 both the above Rubrics were dropped, and private celebration alone provided for, the present Collect, Epistle, and Gospel being then appointed. The Rubric respecting reservation reappears, however, eight years later, in the Latin Prayer Book of Queen Elizabeth's Reign; from which fact it may be reasonably concluded that the practice did not cease when the rubric dropped out of the English Book in 1552. The same conclusion may be drawn from the continuance of the practice in the Scottish Church, and by the Nonjurors. In a work on “the Declaration on Kneeling,” by the Rev. T. W. Perry, the author states that he knew [A.D. 1863] “that a member of the present English Episcopate (and one who would certainly not be said to hold very high views on the Eucharist) not unfrequently, in his ministrations as a parochial Incumbent, reserved the Sacrament, at the public celebration, for the use of the sick.” The same writer also says that the present Archbishop of Canterbury, when Bishop of Ripon, was appealed to on the subject of reservation during the cholera in Leeds, and that “while saying that he could not authorize reservation, he did not feel himself justified in forbidding it in that emergency.” The fact is, that in this, as in many other particulars, the temporary dangers and errors which led the Reformers to discourage ancient usages have long passed away; and practical men feel that a return to them is often expedient, both for the promotion of God's glory, and for the good of souls.

The modern practice is, however, justified on ancient authority by Mr. Palmer in his Origines Liturgicæ, where he adduces the following instances of ancient private celebration (Orig. Liturg. ii. 232),— “Paulinus, Bishop of Nola, caused the Eucharist to be celebrated in his own chamber not many hours before his death. ‘Cum ante triduum, quam de hoc mundo ad cœleste habitaculum vocaretur, cum jam de salute ejus omnes desperassent, et duo ad eum episcopi visitandi studio convenissent, id est, S. Symmachus et Benedictus Hyacinthinus . . . quasi profecturus ad Dominum, jubet sibi ante lectulum suum sacra mysteria exhiberi, scilicet ut una cum sanctis episcopis oblato sacrificio animam suam Domino commendaret. Vita Paulini Nolani auctore Uranio Presb. apud Surium Junii 22. p. 733.’ Gregory Nazianzen informs us, that his father communicated in his own chamber, and that his sister had an altar at home [Gregor. Nazien. Orat. 19, de Laude Patris; Orat. 11, de Gorgonia]. St. Ambrose is also said to have administered the Sacrament in a private house in Rome. Per idem tempus cum trans Tiberim apud quendam clarissimum invitatus, sacrificium in domo offerret, &c. [Vita Ambrosii a Paulino, p. iii. Append. tom. ii. Oper. Ambros. edit. Benedict.]”

At the same time that the private celebration has been adopted more freely than in ancient times, restriction has been laid upon a too free use of it by Canon 71, which enjoins that “No minister shall preach or administer the Holy Communion, in any private house, except it be in times of necessity, when any being either so impotent as he cannot go to the church, or very dangerously sick, are desirous to be partakers of the holy Sacrament, upon pain of suspension for the first offence, and excommunication for the second,” while the rubric directs, “if the sick person be not able to come to the church, and yet is desirous to receive the Communion in his house; then he must give timely notice, &c.” Thus considerable limitation is indicated with respect to private celebrations of the Holy Communion; and it is very desirable that this limitation should be practically acted upon in the spirit of the Canon, as the celebration of the Holy Communion in a room used for ordinary living, and on a table used for meals or other domestic purposes is a practice which it is difficult to guard from irreverence and from dishonour towards so holy a Sacrament.

To guard against it as much as possible, care should be used to carry out the spirit of the Rubric, by having “a convenient place” and “all things necessary” for ministering the Communion. The proper vestments should be worn by the Priest: proper vessels should be provided for the celebration; and fine linen cloths should also be taken by him to be used as at the altar in the church.

¶ At the time of the distribution, &c. The object of this

<sup>1</sup> Historical Considerations relating to the Declaration on Kneeling, &c., by the Rev. T. W. Perry, 1863, p. 139.

them that are appointed to communicate with the sick, and last of all to the sick person.

¶ But if a man, either by reason of extremity of sickness, or for want of warning in due time to the Curate, or for lack of company to receive with him, or by any other just impediment, do not receive the Sacrament of Christ's body and blood, the Curate shall instruct him, that if he do truly repent him of his sins, and stedfastly believe that Jesus Christ hath suffered death upon the cross for him, and shed his blood for his redemption, earnestly remembering the benefits he hath thereby, and giving him hearty thanks therefore, he doth eat and drink the body and blood of our Saviour Christ profitably to his soul's health, although he do not receive the Sacrament with his mouth.

¶ When the sick person is visited, and receiveth the holy Communion all at one time, then the Priest, for more expedition, shall cut off the form of the Visitation at the Psalm [In thee, O Lord, have I put my trust] and go straight to the Communion.

¶ Deinde communicetur infirmus nisi prius communicatus fuerit: et nisi de vomitu vel alia irreverentia probabiliter timeatur: in quo casu dicat sacerdos infirmo. Salisbury Use.
[Man. de Extrem.
Unct.]

Frater, in hoc casu sufficit tibi vera fides, et bona voluntas: tantum crede, et manducasti.

Rubric was probably to avoid any danger from contagion to those who partook with the sick man; in addition to this there are many cases where it would be felt there were reasons which made it undesirable for the fellow-communicants to receive after the sick person. Care should be taken not to consecrate more of the elements than is absolutely necessary, so that none may remain over after the sick man has communicated. If any remain, and circumstances prevent its being partaken of by the sick man or the Priest, it may be consumed in the fire. "Sed hoc quod reliquum est de carnibus et panibus in igne incendi præcepit. Quod nunc vidimus etiam sensibilibus in ecclesia fieri, ignique tradi quæcumque remanere contigerit inconsumpta." [Hesych. in Leo. lib. ii.]

¶ But if a man, either by reason, &c. This Rubric sets forth certain cases in which, though a man may be prevented from actually receiving the Sacrament of Christ's Body and Blood, he may yet spiritually be a partaker. Extremity of sickness, want of warning to the Curate, lack of company, or any other just impediment are all alleged as reasons which may make actual Communion impossible. Ignorance, want of due understanding of the Sacrament, carelessness about receiving it, cannot be just impediments; the man must be fitted and willing to receive the Holy Sacrament, if he is to be able spiritually to partake.

In the York Manual a direction is given as to those who are not to receive the Holy Communion,—

"Dum vomet infirmus, non debet sumere corpus, Christi nisi credit; credendo fideliter egit;
Ebrius, insanus, erroneus, et male credens,
Et pueri, corpus Christi non suscipiant hi;
Non nisi mense semel, aliquis communicet æger."

In the Sarum Manual provision is made for Spiritual Communion in cases where actual reception of the elements is impossible. The subject is touched on in a very reverential spirit in the Penitential of Egbert, Archbishop of York, a work dating from the eighth century,—"Si homini alicui eucharistia denegata sit, et ipse interea moriatur, de his rebus nihil aliud conicere possumus, nisi quod ad iudicium Dei pertineat, quoniam in Dei potestate erat, quod absque eucharistia obierit."

The Curate, in a case where the sick man is prevented from communicating, is to instruct him that "if he truly repent him of his sins, and stedfastly believe that Jesus Christ hath suffered death upon the cross for him, and shed His blood for his redemption, earnestly remembering the benefits he hath thereby, and giving Him hearty thanks therefore, he doth eat and drink the body and blood of our Saviour Christ profitably to his soul's health, although he do not receive the Sacrament with his mouth."

The Priest should instruct the sick man to call to mind all that Christ did and suffered for his sake; how He left the glory that He had from all eternity with the Father, to take upon Him the form of a servant; how He humbled Himself and became of no reputation for our sakes; how He endured the contradiction of sinners; how He had not a place where to lay His head; how for us He died and for us rose again and ascended into heaven, where He ever liveth to make intercession for His people. He should bid the sufferer meditate on the infinite love of the Redeemer, as set forth in a life during which He went about doing good, as exemplified in a death of suffering most intense, of humiliation most abject. He should bid him see in Jesus, the Way, the Truth, and the Life, should urge him to look to that Saviour, not simply as his Teacher, but as the source of his spiritual life. Specially should the Priest direct the sick man's thoughts to the full, perfect, and sufficient sacrifice, oblation, and satisfaction for the sins of the whole world once offered by Christ on the cross for our redemption. He should lead him to plead that all-sufficient sacrifice with God the Father, to trust to it for the forgiveness of all his sins, to believe that through it he may receive strength to stand against the wiles and snares of the devil; that through it he may receive the grace, the blessing, he needs. He should lead him to see in this sacrifice his hope for a peaceful death, his expectation of a glorious resurrection. The sick man should be taught to present himself, his soul and body, to be a reasonable, holy, and lively sacrifice unto God, beseeching the Lord that neither in will nor deed he may ever again depart from His ways. He should be reminded that he has to do with One who sees the sincere desire of his heart, and who accepts the earnest wish and longing where the power actually to Communicate is wanting. Thus instructed, the sick man may receive in his soul the comforts and strength to be derived from the blessed Communion of his Saviour's body and blood, though from some just impediment he is prevented from actually eating that Bread and drinking that Cup. And, if possible, his intentions should be directed towards the Holy Sacrament at the very time of its celebration in church.

¶ In the time of the plague, sweat, or such other like contagious times of sickness or diseases, when none of the Parish or neighbours can be gotten to communicate with the sick in their houses, for fear of the infection, upon special request of the diseased, the Minister may only communicate with him.

In the time of the plague] This rubric shows that in certain cases it is plainly the duty of a Parish Priest to visit persons suffering from infectious diseases. It is evident from the parenthesis in the 67th Canon, which directs the minister to resort to the sick person "(if the disease be not known, or probably suspected to be infectious)," that some discretion is allowed in visiting such cases.

There are circumstances in which nothing should prevent a parish priest visiting even where the risk of infection is strongest. If he be called upon to baptize a dying child, or be sent for by a sick person, or by some friend who has a right to speak on his behalf, no clergyman should for a moment think of refusing to incur any danger; especially if the infected person express a hearty desire for the Holy Communion, the Minister must go without any hesitation or attempt to excuse himself. He is going about his Master's business, and should go in humble trust that that Master will be with him and protect him in his work. Where it may be perfectly allowable for others to shrink and hold back, as in the case of the diseases mentioned in the rubric, and in sicknesses of similar malignity, a clergyman has no right to hesitate. His duty is clear, to be ready to comfort and help those who need his spiritual advice and counsel. Still, while a clergyman goes to such cases trusting to the watchful care of his Master, he should not omit any proper precautions that he can take, for his own sake, for that of his family, and for that of other sick persons he may have to visit.

The following rules for avoiding infection are taken from the "Directorium Pastorale," second edition, p. 221.

Some Rules for avoiding Infection.

1. Avoid visiting dangerous cases of illness with the stomach in a very empty condition, or with the lungs exhausted by running or quick ascent of stairs. Calmness is a great safeguard. It is better to take a biscuit and glass of wine before starting to visit very extreme cases of infectious disease.
2. Do not place yourself between the patient and the fire, where the air is drawn from the former to the latter over your person.
3. Do not inhale the breath of the patient.
4. Do not keep your hand in contact with the hand of the sufferer.
5. Avoid entering your own or any other house until you have ventilated your clothes and person by a short walk in the open air. You are morally bound to take this precaution in respect to other sick persons whom you have to visit; and, in the case of your own family, although they must abide by the risks which belong to your calling, they have a claim upon you for the use of all lawful precautions in making that risk as small as possible.

6. In times when you are much among infectious cases, use extra care to keep the perspiratory ducts of the skin clear of obstruction, that the excretive force of the perspiration may have fair play in throwing off infectious matters floating in the air.

By taking such precautions as these, clergymen may visit infectious cases with at least as much security as medical men.

[The ancient English form of exhortation given in the note on the "Profession of Faith," a few pages back, appears to belong to a type commonly used in the Middle Ages. Mr. Maskell's form is taken from a MS. in St. John's College Library, Oxford; the following is from a MS. in the Bodleian [Rawlinson, c. 587, ff. 53, 54.] In the same collection [Rawlinson, c. 108. 90] there is a Latin form apparently drawn up for the use of priests in the diocese of Laudun, in the fifteenth century, which begins in a similar manner.

"Antequam communicetur infirmus et ante unccionem:—

"Brother, be ye gladdē y<sup>t</sup> ye shall dye in Chrysten beleve?
Re. Ye, syr.

"Knowe ye well y<sup>t</sup> ye have not so well lyved as ye shulde?
Ye, syr.

"Haue ye wille to amende yow if ye had space to lyve? Ye, syr.

"Beleve ye that o<sup>r</sup> Lorde Christ Jhu goddys soon of heaven was born of the blessyd vyrgyne ou<sup>r</sup> ladie saynt Mary? Ye, syr.

"Beleve ye that our Lorde Christ Jhu dyed vpon the crosse to bye mans sowle upō the good ffrydaie? Ye, syr.

"Thancke ye him entierly therof? Ye, syr.

"Beleve ye y<sup>t</sup> ye may not be saved but by his precious death?
Ye, syr.

"Tunc dicat sacerdos.

"Therfor, Brother, while yo<sup>r</sup> sowle is in yo<sup>r</sup> bodye, thancke ye god of his death, and haue ye hole truste, to be saved, through his precyouse death, and thyncke ye on non other worldely goode, but onely in Christe Jhus deathe, and on his pytefull passyon, and saye after me, My swete Lorde Christ Jhu, I put thy precyous passion betwene the and my evill werke and betwene me and thy wrathe.

"Et dicat infirmus ter.

"In manus tuas Domine, etc. Vel sic:—

"Lorde Christ Jhu, in to thy handes I betake my sowle and as thou boughtest me, bodye and soule I betake to the."

The beautiful words, "I put Thy precious passion," &c., are taken from St. Anselm; unless indeed the reverse be the case, and St. Anselm quoted them from a form familiar in his time.]

THE ORDER FOR ## THE BURIAL OF THE DEAD.

¶ Here is to be noted, that the Office ensuing is not to be used for any that die unbaptized, or excommunicate, or have laid violent hands upon themselves.

Salisbury Use.

INHUMATIO DEFUNCTI.

THE BURIAL OFFICE.

A question not unfrequently arises, whether this Office must necessarily be used over all persons buried in consecrated ground, provided they do not belong to one of the three classes mentioned in the first rubric. There are (1) cases in which clergymen would rather avoid saying the Service over ill living and ill dying parishioners, and also (2) in which the survivors, being Dissenters, would prefer the omission of the Service, such omission being also in known agreement with the principles and wishes of the deceased. The only law of the Church on the subject, besides the rubric, is the following:—

"CANON 68.

"Ministers not to refuse to Christen or Bury.

"No Minister shall refuse or delay to christen any child according to the form of the Book of Common Prayer, that is brought to the Church to him upon Sundays or Holy Days to be christened, or to bury any corpse that is brought to the Church or Church-yard, convenient warning being given him thereof before, in such manner and form as is prescribed in the said Book of Common Prayer. And if he shall refuse to christen the one, or bury the other, (except the party deceased were denounced excommunicated majori excommunicatione, for some grievous and notorious crime, and no man able to testify of his repentance,) he shall be suspended by the Bishop of the diocese from his ministry by the space of three months."

This Canon of 1603 thus imposes a penalty on the Clergyman for refusing to bury any person not excommunicated; does not impose it for delay unaccompanied by refusal; and says nothing about omission by mutual consent of the clergyman and the friends of the deceased. The rubric was added (at the suggestion of Bishop Cosin) in 1661. Bishop Gibson, in his Codex, evidently takes for granted that the service is to be said over all except those mentioned in the rubric, and his opinion is reproduced by Burn and later writers. But, until recent times, many persons were buried in private grounds, such as gardens, orchards, and fields; and probably a case had never arisen in which the omission of the Service was desired when the body of the deceased was brought to consecrated ground. Sir John Nicoll says [Kempe v. Wickes], "Our Church knows no such indecency as putting the body into the consecrated ground without the service being at the same time performed:" but this dictum must have been uttered in forgetfulness of the law of 1821, which directs that suicides (felo de se) shall be buried there without service, and which seems to be in accordance with the practice indicated by the first rubric, in which there is no prohibition of burial in consecrated ground.

An Act of Parliament [5 Geo. IV. c. 25] empowers the Irish clergy to omit the Service in certain cases other than those defined by the rubric, and the preamble assumes that the clergy are bound to use it in every case which is not excepted by the statute or the rubric. The question seems never to have been fairly raised, and no judicial decision has defined the exact duty of a clergyman in respect to it. The nearest approach to such a definition is contained in an opinion given by Dr. Lushington on Sept. 7th, 1835, in which he says, "I think when the friends of the deceased apply to the clergyman to abstain from performing the funeral Service, on the ground that the deceased when alive was a dissenter, the clergyman may comply with such request<sup>1</sup>." In Lancashire, Roman Catholics have constantly been buried without any service in the Church or Churchyard; while, on the other hand, at the burial of Robert Owen the socialist, and of the infidel Carlyle, the clergymen thought it their duty to say the Service, in the face of a strong protest against its use on the part of the relatives.

There are cases of notorious wickedness or infidelity, in which it might be the painful duty of the clergyman to refuse, on that account, to use the Office. In such cases it would not probably be difficult to obtain the assent of the survivors to such a course, if the reasons for taking it were solemnly told to them beforehand. Should it be impossible to obtain such an assent, there are few clergymen who would not be prepared to abide the consequences. But in the majority of cases, even where the life has been notoriously evil, there is still room for the charitable hope that the sinner has not been utterly forsaken by God's mercy in his death.

not to be used for any that die unbaptized] Many infants and even adult persons die, of whom it is quite certain that they have not been baptized; and in such cases the law is clear. But it is an ancient rule of the Church that while conditional baptism should be administered to a living person, of whom it is uncertain whether or not he has been baptized previously, in the case of deceased persons, in a Christian country, their baptism is to be taken for granted unless there is proof to the contrary. The Archbishop of Canterbury has lately written, "that the Service of the Church of England for the burial of the dead is intended for those who have been made members of the Church of Christ by Baptism, and that to use that Service over the unbaptized would be an anomalous and irregular proceeding on the part of a minister of the Church of England<sup>2</sup>." A strict observance of the rubric tends very much to impress upon parents the necessity of Holy Baptism for their children.

or excommunicate] The rubric of 1661 is to be interpreted in accordance with the Canon of 1603: and hence a person "excommunicate" must mean one "denounced, excommunicated majori excommunicatione, for some grievous and notorious crime, and no man able to testify of his repentance." A formal absolution before death by the authority which has passed the sentence of excommunication is not, therefore, of absolute necessity to admit the use of the Office; an opening being left for the exercise of the charity of the Church towards even one excommunicated from its fold, if his repentance before death can be credibly shown to have taken place. While discipline is so little exercised as at present, there is seldom any occasion for taking this part of the rubric into consideration; but it is possible that a revival of discipline may take place, to the extent, at least, of excommunicating open and notorious evil livers, when it might sometimes become necessary to decide whether this charity of the Church could be exercised or not.

<sup>1</sup> British Magazine, viii. 569.

<sup>2</sup> Letter to a Unitarian preacher at Tenterden. May 20, 1865.

¶ The Priest and Clerks meeting the Corpse at the entrance of the Church-yard, and going before it, either into the Church, or towards the Grave, shall say, or sing,

It is clear that sentence of excommunication is contemplated by the rubric, and that it does not include those who have deserved it, but upon whom it has not been actually pronounced<sup>1</sup>.

or have laid violent hands upon themselves] Suicides are divided by the common law of the land into two classes, those who have committed felony by a wilful murder of themselves, and those who have killed themselves while in a state of insanity. The first are held fully responsible for the consequences of their act; their property being forfeited to the Crown, and their bodies ordered to be buried in a churchyard or cemetery without any religious rite, and between the hours of nine and twelve at night. The second are considered to be in no degree responsible for their act, and the law does not impose any penal consequences upon it.

Such a distinction does not seem to be contemplated by the rubric, which speaks inclusively of all "who have laid violent hands upon themselves." Yet Christian charity requires that some distinction should be made, and such a distinction was implied, at least, by the ancient canons on the subject. Thus the council of Bracara, or Braga in Spain [A.D. 563], enjoins, "Concerning those who by any fault inflict death on themselves, let there be no commemoration of them in the Oblation . . . Let it be enjoined that those who kill themselves by sword, poison, precipice, or halter, or by any other means bring violent death upon themselves, shall not have a memorial made of them in the Oblation, nor shall their bodies be carried with Psalms to burial." This canon was adopted among the excerpts of Egbert, in A.D. 740, and is substantially repeated among some Penitential Canons of the Church of England in A.D. 963, and indicates the general principle of the canon law on the subject. This principle certainly indicates, that a distinction should be made between those who "by any fault" cause their own deaths, and those who do so when they are so far deprived of reason as not to be responsible in the sense of doing it by "any fault," wilfully and consciously. And the rubric being thus to be interpreted by a law of charity, the responsibility of deciding in what cases exceptions shall be made to its injunction is, by the nature of the case, thrown upon the clergyman who has cure of souls in the parish where the suicide is to be buried.

Numerous writers have laid it down that the verdict of the Coroner's jury relieves the clergyman from this responsibility, and that if that verdict is "Temporary Insanity" he is bound to disregard the fact that the deceased person has laid violent hands upon himself<sup>2</sup>. But to adopt such a rule is to throw up the discipline of the Church and to place it in the hands of a secular tribunal; one, moreover, which is apt to be influenced by secondary motives and feelings in this particular matter which are quite irrespective of the religious question. If the same jury were to be asked, quite independently of the question of forfeiture, whether the suicide was a person over whom they themselves could pronounce the words of the Burial Service, the reply would often be in the negative, and that the verdict of Temporary Insanity was one of charity towards the living rather than of justice towards the dead. There cannot be a doubt that many men would return such a verdict under the feeling that the self-murder was a great crime indeed, one for which the suicide deserved punishment if it had been possible to punish him, and one from which others ought to be deferred; but that not being able to punish him for his crime, they would not punish his family by adding to their sufferings. The question of the verdict is, therefore, legally and morally distinct from that of the rubric; and though the two are analogous, yet they must be judged by separate persons and by separate standards. The jury are the deputies of the State to decide whether or not the suicide was a felon by the laws of the State. The priest is the deputy of the Church, to decide whether the blessings of the Church can rightly be dispensed in the case of one who has taken away life contrary to the law of God.

In coming to this decision the verdict of the jury should have respectful attention, though it is not to be considered as an invariable law for the clergyman. It is not often, perhaps, that any circumstances within his own knowledge will compel him to act in a way that seems to be discordant with it; nor need he seek out information to disturb his mind on the subject. But if circumstances have come to his knowledge, which make it plain that there was no such insanity as to deprive the suicide of ordinary moral responsibility, then he is to remember (1) that he is a "steward of the mysteries of God," who has no right to misapply the blessings given him to dispense; and (2) that the scandal, and encouragement to suicide, which result from a too easy compliance, are in themselves great evils which it is his duty, as it is within his power, to prevent. In this case, as in the previous one of excommunication, a solemn explanation of the painful necessity might often win the sorrowful acquiescence of conscientious survivors.

either into the Church, or towards the Grave] This clearly authorizes the Priest to read the whole service at the Grave if, in his discretion, he should think it advisable to do so. In bad cases of infectious disease, it would be more proper that the body should not be taken into the Church; and there are many cases (with modern habits of delaying funerals for a week) in which it is not right to take it there when the Church is, or is about soon to be, occupied by a congregation.

shall say, or sing] The first of these beautiful processional Anthems is traceable to the ancient Inhumatio Defuncti, and was also a Compline Antiphon "in agenda Mortuorum" in the Antiphonarius of St. Gregory. The second was used in the Vigilia Mortuorum or Dirge of the Sarum rite. In Marbecke's Common Prayer Noted, they are arranged as Responses and Versicles, the divisions being made where the musical points stand, in the text above. The Response is also commenced again, with an "&c.," after the Versicle, from which it would appear that it should be repeated by the Choir. The second was thus arranged in the Primer of the fourteenth century.

Ry. I bileue that myn ænbiere lyueth and I am to rise of the erthe in the last day, and in my fleish I shal se God my Sauyour.

Y. Whom I my self shal se and noon other: and myn yfēn ben to se.

Ry. And in my fleishe I shal se god my Sauyour.

<sup>1</sup> Sentence of excommunication was very frequently pronounced in the 16th and 17th centuries; and there are entries in Parish Registers of those who have died and been buried as excommunicates. Lord George Gordon was excommunicated towards the end of the last century.

<sup>2</sup> It may be as well to state, that the "Coroner's Warrant" for the burial of a body over which an inquest has been called, is simply a discharge of the body from the custody of the Crown. In ordinary cases it is unconditional, and imposes no obligation of any kind as to interment. In a case of felu de se it orders burial in the manner stated above.

John xi. 25, 26.

I AM the resurrection and the life, saith the Lord : he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live : And whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die.

Job xix. 25—27.

Cf. Chrys in 1 Thess. iv. 13.

I KNOW that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth. And though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God : whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another.

1 Tim. vi. 7.
Job i. 21.

WE brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out : The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away ; blessed be the Name of the Lord.

¶ After they are come into the Church, shall be read one or both of these Psalms following.

[Diri custodiam. Psalm xxxix.
Domine, refugium. Psalm xc.]

¶ Then shall follow the Lesson taken out of the fifteenth Chapter of the former Epistle of Saint Paul to the Corinthians.

Printed at length
in the Sealed Books.

[these Psalms following] In the ancient Burial Office of the Church of England a number of psalms, 114. 25. 118. 42. 132. 139. 148. 149. 150, together with the seven penitential Psalms, or, instead of them [“vel saltem Psalmum”], the De Profundis, Psalm 130. It may be doubted whether all these psalms were

! at every burial. In the Prayer Book of 1549, after the two prayers which followed the placing of the corpse in the grave, came this rubric, “¶ These Psalms, with other suffrages following, are to be said in the Church, either before or after the burial of the corpse :” the Psalms being 116. 139. 146. At the Holy Communion, Psalm 42, “Like as the hart desireth the water brooks,” was used as the Introit. Singular to say, no Psalms were printed in the Burial Service from 1552 to 1661, nor did the Introit appear in the Latin Office for the celebration of the Holy Communion at funerals. They appear to have been omitted in deference to the scruples of Bucer, who objected to prayers for the dead [Cosin v. 498]. At the last revision, in 1661, the Psalms 32 and 90 were inserted, and thus the Office regained its ancient and primitive character.

[Then shall follow the Lesson] This and other portions of the New Testament which are used in the Burial Service have been in use from the primitive ages of Christianity. In the Lectionary of St. Jerome<sup>1</sup> there are nine lections, “In Agenda Mortuorum,” and four of these are represented in the English Prayer Book, if we include the Epistle and Gospel which are directed by the Book of 1549 and the Latin Office of 1560. The following columns show how these portions of Scripture have been handed down to our Burial Office from the primitive Church :—

| St. Jerome's Lectionary. | Salisbury Use.            | Book of Common Prayer. |
|---------------------------------|----------------------------------|-------------------------------|
| 2 Macc. xii. 43.                | Anniversary and Trental Epistle. |                               |
| 1 Thess. iv. 13.                | Funeral Epistle.                 | Funeral Epistle.              |

<sup>1</sup> For an account of the Comes Hieronymi, see page 70.

A. EGO sum resurrectio et vita : qui credit in me, etiamsi mortuus fuerit, vivet : et omnis qui vivit et credit in me, non morietur in æternum.

Salisbury Use.
Ant. to Benedictus, at the burial.

R. CREDO quod Redemptor meus vivit : et in novissimo die de terra surrecturus sum : Et in carne mea videbo Deum Salvatorem meum.

Salisbury Use.
Vigils of the Dead.

V. Quem visurus sum ego ipse et non alius : et oculi mei conspecturi sunt. Et in carne mea videbo Deum Salvatorem meum.

|                  | Alternate Epistle.                 | Daily | Funeral Lesson.        |
|------------------|------------------------------------|-------|------------------------|
| 1 Cor. xv. 49.   |                                    |       |                        |
| Ezek. xxxvii. 1. |                                    |       |                        |
| Rev. xiv. 13.    | Alternate Epistle.                 | Daily | Funeral Anthem.        |
| John v. 21       | Thursday, Funeral Gospel.          |       | Funeral Gospel [1560]. |
| „ vi. 37.        | Tuesday, Funeral Gospel.           |       | Funeral Gospel.        |
| „ vi. 51.        | Friday, Funeral Gospel.            |       |                        |
| „ xi. 24.        | Sunday and Monday, Funeral Gospel. |       |                        |

There is no part of the New Testament which so comprehensively sets forth the doctrine that our Lord's Incarnation is the source of all spiritual life, and therefore the source of eternal life, as the chapter now read for the Lesson.

§ The Holy Communion.

If the Holy Communion is celebrated at a Funeral, the proper place for it is immediately after the Lesson, while the body of the deceased is yet in the Church.

In primitive times the departure of the soul and the burial of the body were ever associated with the Holy Eucharist : and the celebration of it at the burial of martyrs, and at their tombs on the anniversary day of their death, appears to have been the origin of saints' days<sup>2</sup>. When Monica, the mother of St. Augustine, saw that her death was at hand in a strange country, Navigius, her other son, expressed a wish that she might die in her own land ; but her one care was that she might remain, body as well as soul, in the Communion of Saints. “Lay this body anywhere,” said she ; “let not the care for that any way disquiet

<sup>2</sup> Tertull. de Coron. iii. Ibid. de Monogam. x. Cypr. Ep. xxxiv. xxxvii. lvii. lxvi. Aug., Enchirid. cx. Posidonius, Vita S. Aug. xiii. Ambrose, de Obitu Valentini.

¶ When they come to the Grave, while the Corpse is made ready to be laid into the earth, the Priest shall say, or the Priest and Clerks shall sing:

you; this only I request, that you would remember me at the altar of the Lord, wherever you be." Afterwards St. Augustine writes, "And, behold, the corpse was carried to the burial: we went and returned without tears. For not even did I weep in those prayers which we poured forth unto Thee, when the Sacrifice of our Ransom was offered for her, as the manner is, while the corpse was by the side of the grave, previous to being laid therein<sup>1</sup>."

That such was the custom of the Church may also be seen by the ancient Sacramentaries of the Primitive Church, in which there are Collects and Prefaces for the celebration of the Holy Communion, "In die depositionis defuncti" [Menard's Sacr. Greg. 231], and from the Lectionary of St. Jerome, in which are Gospels and Epistles for the same occasion. In the Mediæval Church of England the same custom was observed, the burial of the dead being always either associated with the Holy Communion at the time or within a few days.

The Prayer Book of 1549 provided for a continuance of this primitive custom by placing at the end of the Burial Service an Introit, Collect, Epistle, and Gospel, arranged in the same order as those for Sundays and other Holy-Days, and headed "The Celebration of the Holy Communion when there is a Burial of the Dead." The Introit was that which was previously in use, the 42nd Psalm, "Like as the hart desireth the water brooks:" the Collect, that which is printed in the right-hand column beyond; and the Epistle and Gospel, those which have been noticed in the preceding note as coming down from the time of St. Jerome. When the Introits were removed from the Prayer Book, this one was removed among them, and the Gospel and Epistle ceased to be indicated in the English Prayer Book. Thus the Collect alone remained, which was printed (as it had been previously) at the end of the Burial Office. In 1661 the Apostolic Benediction was added, and thus the Collect has come to appear as if it was part of that Office on all occasions, instead of being intended only for those on which there is a celebration. In the Latin Prayer Book of 1560, the old title was translated with an addition:—"Celebratio cænæ Domini, in funebribus, si amici et vicini defuncti communicare velint," and so were the Epistle and two Gospels, the alternative one being John xxv. 24—29. The Puritans were extremely averse to any service at the burial of the dead<sup>2</sup>, and wished to restrict the ceremonies to exhortation and preaching only. They objected to the Psalms, and these were given up till 1661; but as they had a peculiar aversion to the celebration of the Lord's Supper on any but very rare occasions, so its celebration at funerals was very distasteful to them, and was ignorantly associated by them with the Roman doctrine of purgatory. Thus the practice was much discouraged. When the Psalms were again printed in the Office, after a hundred years' suppression, the Gospel and Epistle were not; and the funeral Communion had almost passed out of memory in the first half of this century, the only relic of it being the funeral offertory, which still retained its hold upon the Church in Wales. But even this was deprived of its primitive character by being appropriated for fees by the clergyman, clerk, and sexton.

There are, however, sound reasons why the pious, ancient, and primitive custom should be observed.

(1) The Holy Eucharist is essentially a sacrificial act offered up for the departed as well as for the living. The petition in the Prayer of Oblation, "humbly beseeching Thee to grant that by the merits and death of Thy Son Jesus Christ and through faith in His blood, we and all Thy whole Church may obtain remission of our sins and all other benefits of His passion," is one which includes the departed members of Christ's whole Church, or it would be only a petition for a portion of the Church; and "all other benefits of His passion" seems especially to apply to the departed, as "remission of our sins" applies to the living. "So that the virtue of this Sacrifice (which is here in this prayer of oblation commemorated and represented) doth not only extend itself to the living and those that are present, but likewise to them that are absent, and them that be already departed, or shall in time to come live and die in the faith of Christ<sup>3</sup>." At no time could this benefit be so appropriately sought, as when for the last occasion the body of the deceased Christian lies in front of the altar.

(2) A funeral Eucharist is also an act of communion with the departed, by which we make an open recognition of our belief that he still continues to be one of God's dear children; that the soul in Paradise and the body in the grave are still the soul and body of one who is still a member of Christ, still a branch (as much as those who remain alive) of the true Vine.

(3) The Holy Communion being the special means by which the members of Christ are brought near to their Divine Head, it is to it that the surviving friends of the deceased may look for their chief comfort in bereavement. By it they may look to have their faith strengthened in Him who has proclaimed Himself to be "The Resurrection and the Life:" and by the strengthening of their faith they may hope to see, even in the burial of their loved ones, the promise of a better resurrection when that which has borne the image of the earthly shall also bear the image of the Heavenly, when death shall be swallowed up in victory, and when God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes in the joy of a re-union before His Presence.

In the absence of any rubrical direction respecting the celebration of the Holy Communion at funerals, it seems desirable to follow the course pointed out by the Office for the Communion of the Sick, beginning the service with the Collect, and substituting that proper to the Office for that of the day. If an Introit is used, none can be more appropriate than the 42nd Psalm, which has been used at funerals for ages. The proper Epistle and Gospel are 1 Thess. iv. 13—18, and John vi. 37—40.

When they come to the Grave] Bishop Cosin altered this rubric as follows:—"¶ If there be any Divine Service to be read, or Sermon to be made at this time, the Corpse shall be decently placed in the midst of the Church till they be ended. Then all going in decent manner to the grave, while the Corpse is made ready," &c. By "Divine Service" Cosin doubtless meant the Holy Communion, as no other service was ever mixed up in this manner with the Burial Office<sup>4</sup>. Provision had been made for this in Edward VI.'s reign and in that of Queen Elizabeth. Sermons at funerals were also common in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries; and a very excellent "Sermon at burieniges" is provided at the end of Taverner's Postils, printed A.D. 1540.

Clerks shall sing] This expression here and in the preceding rubric recognizes the presence of a choir as a matter of course; but their absence is provided for by the alternative direction for the Priest to say the Anthem alone.

<sup>1</sup> Aug. Conf. ix. 11, 12.

<sup>2</sup> "They would have no minister to bury their dead, but the corpse to be brought to the grave and there put in by the clerk, or some other honest neighbour, and so back again without any more ado."—Cosin, Works, v. 168. See also Hooker, Eccl. Polit., V. lxxv. 1, 4.

<sup>3</sup> Cosin's Notes, Works, v. 352.

<sup>4</sup> It is right to add, however, that at St. Paul's Cathedral the Burial Office has been sometimes amalgamated with Evensong, the proper Psalms and Lesson being substituted for those of the day.

Job xiv. 1, 2.
Ps. ciii 15, 16.
1 Chron. xxix. 15.

MAN that is born of a woman hath but a short time to live, and is full of misery. He cometh up, and is cut down, like a flower; he fleeth as it were a shadow, and never continueth in one stay.

Prov. xxvii. 1.
James iv. 14.
2 Kings xx. 1—3.

In the midst of life we are in death : of whom may we seek for succour, but of thee, O Lord, who for our sins art justly displeased ?

Exod. xv. 11.
Ps. lxxxix. 6—8.
Isa. xxxiii. 14.

Yet, O Lord God most holy, O Lord most mighty, O holy and most merciful Saviour, deliver us not into the bitter pains of eternal death.

Ps. xxxviii. 9.
1 Pet. iii. 12.
Joel ii. 17.
Ps. cxvi. 3, 4.
xxiii 4.
Acts vii. 59, 60.

Thou knowest, Lord, the secrets of our hearts; shut not thy merciful ears to our prayer; but spare us, Lord most holy, O God most mighty, O holy and merciful Saviour, thou most worthy Judge eternal, suffer us not, at our last hour, for any pains of death, to fall from thee.

HOMO natus de muliere brevi vivens tempore repletur multis miseriis. Qui quasi flos egreditur et conteritur : et fugit velut umbra, et nunquam in eodem statu permanet.

Salisbury Use.
In the Dirge.

A. Media vita in morte sumus :

Lenten Ant. to Nunc Dimittis.

Quem quærimus adiutorem nisi Te, Domine ?

Qui pro peccatis nostris juste irasceris.

Sancte Deus, Sancte Fortis, Sancte et misericors Salvator :

Amaræ morti ne tradas nos.

℣. Ne projicias nos in tempore se-nectutis :

Cum defecerit virtus nostra, ne derelinquas nos, Domine.

Sancte Deus, Sancte Fortis, Sancte et misericors Salvator :

Amaræ morti ne tradas nos.

℣. Noli claudere aures tuas ad preces nostras.

Sancte Fortis, Sancte et misericors Salvator :

Amaræ morti ne tradas nos.

℣. Qui cognoscis occulta cordis, parce peccatis nostris.

Sancte et misericors Salvator :

Amaræ morti ne tradas nos.

THE ANTHEM.

This was printed continuously until the last revision, when it was separated into paragraphs at the suggestion of Bishop Cosin. It was printed by the Reformers of 1549 in two portions, first, the two verses from Job; and, secondly, "In the midst of life," &c., the latter being translated (with some slight changes in the last paragraph) from an Anthem used at Compline on the third Sunday in Lent<sup>1</sup>.

The use of this noble Anthem, Sequence, or Prose, at Burials is peculiar to the English Communion; and it never had a place in any part of the Roman Breviary. In some old German Breviaries it was appointed for a Compline Anthem on Saturdays, the usage being probably copied from that of Salisbury.

The original composition of the Media vita is traced back to Notker, to whom that of the Dies Iræ can be traced, and who was a monk of St. Gall, in Switzerland, at the close of the ninth century. It is said to have been suggested to him by a circumstance similar to that which gave birth to a noble passage in Shakspeare<sup>2</sup>. As our English poet watched the samphire gatherers on the cliffs at Dover, so did Notker observe similar occupations elsewhere. And as he watched men at some "dangerous trade," he sang, "In the midst of life we are in death," moulding his awful hymn to that familiar form of the Trisagion, "Holy God, Holy and Mighty, Holy and Immortal, have mercy upon us," which is found in the primitive Liturgies. In the Middle Ages it was adopted as a Dirge on all melancholy occasions in Germany: armies used it as a battle song; and superstitious ideas of its miraculous power rose to such a height, that in the year 1316 the Synod of Cologne forbade the people to sing it at all except on such occasions as were allowed by their Bishop. A version of it by Luther, "Mitten wir im Leben sind," is still very popular in Germany, as a hymn.

When sung to such strains as befit its beautiful words, this Anthem has a solemn magnificence, and at the same time a wailing prayerfulness, which makes it unsurpassable by any analogous portion of any ritual whatever. It is the prayer of the living for themselves and for the departed, when both are in the Presence of God for the special object of a final separation (so far as this world and visible things are concerned), until the great Day. At such a season we do not argue about Prayers for the departed, but we pray them. For them and for ourselves we plead the mercies of the Saviour before the eternal Judge. Not as selfish men, to whom the brink of the grave brings thoughts of our own mortality, do we tremblingly cry out for fear; but as standing up before our dead who still live, as in anticipation of the Day when we shall again stand together, dying no more, before the Throne of the Judge, we acknowledge that Death is a mark of God's displeasure; that it is a result of sin, and that it ends in the bitter pains of an eternal death, unless the holy, mighty, and merciful Saviour deliver us. Such deep words of penitent humiliation on our own behalf, and on that of the person whose body is now to be removed from our sight, are a fitting termination to the last hour which is spent in the actual presence of those with whom we have, perhaps, spent many hours which need the mercy of God.

In the ancient Latin rite of the Church of England, the 114th Psalm, "When Israel came out of Egypt," was sung during the procession to the grave; and if the procession was long in going, the 25th Psalm also, "Unto Thee, O God, will I lift up my soul." The Antiphon to the Psalm was, "May the angels carry thee to Paradise: may the martyrs receive thee into their

<sup>1</sup> At Peterborough, part of the Sentences of the Burial Service were sung as the anthem during service on the Eve of the Annunciation [1642. Gunton, p. 99.]

<sup>2</sup> King Lear, iv. 6.

¶ Then, while the earth shall be cast upon the body by some standing by, the Priest shall say,

Finitis orationibus executor officii terram super corpus ad modum crucis ponat . . . At the burial.

1 Sam. ii. 6.
Eccl. viii. 12.
xii. 7.
Gen. iii. 19.
xviii. 27.
Acts xxiv. 15.
John xi. 25.
Phil. iii. 20, 21.
John vi. 29, 40.
1 John iii. 2.

FORASMUCH as it hath pleased Almighty God of his great mercy to take unto himself the soul of our dear brother here departed, we therefore commit his body to the ground; earth, to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust; in sure and certain hope of the Resurrection to eternal life, through our Lord Jesus Christ; who shall change our vile body, that it may be like unto his glorious body, according to the mighty working, whereby he is able to subdue all things to himself.

¶ Then shall be said or sung,

Rev. xiv. 13.

I HEARD a voice from heaven, saying unto me, Write, From henceforth blessed are the dead which die in the Lord: even so saith the Spirit; for they rest from their labours.

COMMENDO animam tuam Deo Patri omnipotenti, terram terræ, cinerem cineri, pulverem pulveri, in nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti.

* ? Taken from y<sup>e</sup> Common Office: "Cinerem cineri, pulverem pulveri."

AUDIVI vocem de cœlo dicentem: Beati mortui qui in Domino moriuntur.

Vigils of the dead. Ant. to Magnificat.

assembly, and bring thee unto the City of the heavenly Jerusalem."

Then, while the earth shall be cast This striking ceremony was anciently performed by the Priest himself, and so the rubric directed in 1549; but was ordered to be performed by "some standing by" in 1552. The practice of casting it thrice appears to be one not peculiar to Christians, since it is referred to by Horace [Carm. I. xxviii. 35].

" ———— licebit Injecto ter pulvere curras."

Bishop Cosin says, that it was the custom in most places for this to be done by the Priest in his day. In some parts of England four or five of the mourners usually assist the sexton in filling up the grave. Both customs arise out of that instinct of human nature that the Burial of the Dead is one of the works of mercy.

The original intention of the Office appears to have been, that the Priest should cast in the three symbolical handfuls of earth, saying the words of commendation, and that then the Anthem should be sung while the grave was being filled up by "some standing by." This reconciles the rubric, the custom above referred to, and Cosin's words, "still the priest uses to cast the earth upon the corpse, before the clerk or sexton meddles with it" [Works, v. 168]. In the Greek Church the Priest casts earth on the body, saying, "The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof, the compass of the round world, and they that dwell therein." A touching memorial that the earth is sown with the bodies of the saints as Paradise is filled with their souls.

Forasmuch as it hath pleased These words are founded on several texts of Scripture. "Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was; and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it" [Eccles. xii. 7]. "Behold now, I have taken upon me to speak unto the Lord, which am but dust and ashes" [Gen. xviii. 27]. "Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return" [Gen. iii. 19]. "For our conversation is in heaven; from whence also we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ; Who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto His glorious body, according to the working whereby He is able to subdue all things unto Himself" [Phil. iii. 21].

The various forms in which these commendatory words have been cast may be seen at a glance by the following parallel arrangement:—

| 1549.                                                                                                                    | 1552.                                                                                        | Proposed by Cosin.                                                                               | 1661.                                                                                           | Burial at Sea.                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| I commend thy soul to God the Father Almighty, and thy body to the ground; earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust; | Forasmuch as it hath pleased Almighty God ..                                                 | Forasmuch as it hath pleased Almighty God ..                                                     | Forasmuch as it hath pleased Almighty God ..                                                    | Forasmuch as it hath pleased Almighty God ..                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| in sure and certain hope of resurrection to eternal life, through our Lord Jesus Christ ....                             | in sure and certain hope of resurrection to eternal life, through our Lord Jesus Christ .... | in hope of a general and joyful resurrection to eternal life, through our Lord Jesus Christ .... | in sure and certain hope of the resurrection to eternal life through our Lord Jesus Christ .... | We therefore commit his body to the Deep, to be turned into corruption, looking for the resurrection of the body, (when the sea shall give up her dead), and the life of the world to come, through our Lord Jesus Christ .. |

<sup>1</sup> "This is left arbitrary for any bystander to perform, by which it is implied that it shall be the state and condition of every one, one day. He that casts earth upon the dead body to-day may have earth cast upon his to-morrow, 'Hodie mihi, cras tibi.'" Elborow on Occasional Offices, p. 115.

¶ Then the Priest shall say,

Lord, have mercy upon us.

Christ, have mercy upon us.

Lord, have mercy upon us.

OUR Father, which art in heaven,
Hallowed be thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, As it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them
that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us
from evil. Amen.

Priest.

ALMIGHTY God, with whom do live the spirits of them that depart hence in the Lord, and with whom the souls of the faithful, after they are delivered from the burden of the flesh, are in joy and felicity; We give thee heartly thanks, for that it hath pleased thee to deliver this our brother out of the miseries of this sinful world; besecching thee, that it may please thee, of thy gracious goodness, shortly to accomplish the number of thine elect, and to hasten thy kingdom; that we,
with all those that are departed in the true faith of thy holy Name, may have our perfect consummation and bliss, both in body and soul, in thy eternal and everlasting glory; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

... deinde sequatur.

At the burial.

Kyrie eleison.

Christe eleison.

Kyrie eleison.

PATER noster, qui es in cœlis;
sanctificetur nomen tuum: ad-
veniat regnum tuum: fiat voluntas
tua, sicut in cœlo, et in terra. Panem
nostrum quotidianum da nobis hodie:
et dimitte nobis debita nostra, sicut et nos dimittimus debitoribus nostris: et ne nos inducas in tentationem: sed
libera nos a malo. Amen.

DEUS, apud quem spiritus mortuorum vivunt, et in quo electorum animæ, deposito carnis onere, plena felicitate lætantur, præsta supplicantibus nobis, ut anima famuli tui . . .

ALMIGHTY God, we give thee heartly thanks for this thy servant, whom thou hast delivered from the miseries of this wretched world . . .
Grant, we beseech thee, that at the day of judgment his soul, and all the souls of thy elect, departed out of this life, may with us, and we with them, fully receive thy promises, and be made perfect altogether; through the glorious resurrection of thy Son Jesus Christ our Lord.

Prayer Book of 1549.

Exod. iii. 6.
Luke xx. 38.
xxiii. 43.
xvi. 22.
2 Cor. v. 4.
Ps. xvi. 15.
xvi. 11.
Job i. 21.
Isa. lvii. 1, 2.
Rev. vi. 9—11.
Matt. xxiv. 31.
vi. 10.
Rom. ix. 28.
Rev. xxii. 20.
Heb. xi. 13, 39,
40.
2 Tim. iv. 8.
Rev. vii. 14 17.
xi. 15.

The latter form has been substantially adopted by the American Church.

These words sometimes appear out of place when used over persons who have lived evil lives, and have not given evidence of dying penitent deaths. But it must be remembered that the Burial Office is framed on the supposition that it should be used only over those who are Christians; those, that is, who have been made members of Christ, children of God, and inheritors of the Kingdom of Heaven. If they have ceased to be Christians, they have no right to the use of the Office. But who have ceased to be Christians? And who would dare, of their own unauthorized judgment, to go against the spirit of the injunction laid on us by the Apostle, "Judge nothing before the time?" It may be regretted that the original form of 1549 was ever altered; but it is instructive to learn that the form adopted to please the Puritans of 1552 was thoroughly distasteful to the Puritans of 1661.

What the words do, in fact, express, is this:—That (1) The body of a Christian, our "dear brother" in Christ (even if an erring brother) is being committed to the ground. That (2) God has taken him to Himself in the sense that his spirit has "returned to God who gave it." That (3) while we thus commit the body of one to the ground, who (whatever he was, was yet a sinner) we do it with faith in a future Resurrection of all. That (4) without any expression of judgment as to our departed brother, we will yet call that hope a "sure and certain hope," since it is founded on the Word of God.

There may be cases in which persons have died in the actual committal of some grievous sin, and in which these words might be manifestly unsuitable; but in such cases the whole Office is out of place, and the clergyman should decline to use it. And in almost all others, if not in all, there is room for an expression of hope, in the spirit of charity in which the Church appoints the words to be used; and as the Bishops replied to the Puritans in 1661, "It is better to be charitable and hope the best, than rashly to condemn."

Then the Priest shall say] In the Book of 1549 the Psalms and Lesson were directed to be said in the Church either before or after the burial of the corpse, "with other suffrages following." Those suffrages consisted of the lesser Litany and the Lord's Prayer, with these from the ancient Office.

Priest. Enter not (O Lord) into judgment with thy servant.

Answer. For in thy sight no living creature shall be justified.

Priest. From the gates of hell,

Answer. Deliver their souls, O Lord.

Priest. I believe to see the goodness of the Lord,

Answer. In the land of the living.

Priest. O Lord, graciously hear my prayer.

Answer. And let my cry come unto thee.

After which followed this prayer, of which that now in use is a

The Collect.

1 Pet. i. 3, 4.
 John xi. 23, 26.
 John v. 21, 24, 26.
 viii. 51.
 1 Thess. iv. 13, 14.
 Job xix. 25—27.
 Eph. ii. 1—5.
 1 Pet. ii. 24.
 Phil. iii. 8—11.
 Isa. lvii. 1, 2.
 John xi. 24.
 2 Tim. i. 18.
 2 Cor. v. 9.
 Rev. xiv. 13.
 John xiv. 2, 3.
 Matt. xxv. 24.
 1 Pet. i. 3—5.
 Rom. v. 21.

O MOST merciful God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who is the resurrection and the life; in whom whosoever believeth shall live, though he die; and whosoever liveth, and believeth in him, shall not die eternally; who also hath taught us, by his holy Apostle Saint Paul, not to be sorry, as men without hope, for them that sleep in him; We meekly beseech thee, O Father, to raise us from the death of sin unto the life of righteousness; that, when we shall depart this life, we may rest in him, as our hope is this our brother doth; and that, at the general Resurrection in the last day, we may be found acceptable in thy sight; and receive that blessing, which thy well-beloved Son shall then pronounce to all that love and fear thee, saying, Come, ye blessed children of my Father, receive the kingdom prepared for you from the beginning of the world: Grant this, we beseech thee, O merciful Father, through Jesus Christ our Mediator and Redeemer.
Amen.

Collect.

O MERCIFUL God, the Father of our Lord Jesu Christ, who is the resurrection and the life; in whom whosoever believeth shall live, though he die; and whosoever liveth, and believeth in him, shall not die eternally; who also hath taught us, (by his holy Apostle Paul,) not to be sorry, as men without hope, for them that sleep in him; We meekly beseech thee, (O Father,) to raise us from the death of sin unto the life of righteousness; that, when we shall depart this life, we may sleep in him, as our hope is this our brother doth; and at the general Resurrection in the last day, both we, and this our brother departed, receiving again our bodies, and rising again in thy most gracious favour, may, with all thine elect saints, obtain eternal joy. Grant this, O Lord God, by the means of our Advocate Jesus Christ; which, with thee and the Holy Ghost, liveth and reigneth one God for ever.

Amen.

. . . . Set him on the right hand of thy Son Jesus Christ, among thy holy and elect, that then he may hear with them these most sweet and comfortable words, Come to me, ye blessed of my Father, possess the kingdom which hath been prepared for you from the

Prayer Book of 1549.
 Celebration of Holy Communion at Burials.

Prayer Book of 1549.
 Burial of the Dead.

modified form, "O Lord, with whom do live the spirits of them that be dead, and in whom the souls of them that be elected, after they be delivered from the burden of the flesh be in joy and felicity; Grant unto this Thy servant that the sins which he committed in this world be not imputed unto him; but that he escaping the gates of hell, and pains of eternal darkness, may ever dwell in the region of light, with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, in the place where is no weeping, sorrow, nor heaviness; and when that dreadful day of the general resurrection shall come, make him to rise also with the just and righteous, and receive this body again to glory, then made pure and incorruptible. Set him on the right hand of Thy Son Jesus Christ, among the holy and elect, that then he may hear with them these most sweet and comfortable words . . . ."

With this prayer the Office (excepting the celebration) ended from 1549 until the last revision in 1661, when the benediction was added.

[The Collect] This most beautiful Collect properly belongs (as was previously shown) to the Office for the celebration of the Holy Communion at funerals, and hence its title. The first part of it is founded on the Gospel used at funerals when they took place on Sunday, and on the Epistle, which was used without variation, following in this many of the Collects for Sundays and other Holydays.

When the revision of 1552 took place, the Introits were uniformly removed from the Prayer Book, including that used in the Burial Office. The special Epistle and Gospel were also removed from the English Book, although retained in the Latin one. Hence the Collect only was left, and this was (according to the usual manner in which the Missal was printed) placed with the other parts of the Service for use when required. In 1661 the Apostolic Benediction was placed after it; and thus led to its being regarded as part of the ordinary Burial Service, even when there is no celebration of the Holy Eucharist. The Communion Collect being used at Morning and Evening Prayer, analogy permits the use of the Funeral Communion Collect in the Funeral Service without Communion; but probably its omission in such cases is strictly the proper rule.

When there is a Celebration, this Collect takes the place of the Collect for the day, and should not be repeated at the grave after having been said at the Altar.

The latter part of the prayers is translated from that belonging to the "Missa de quinque vulneribus," in the Sarum Missal: "Domine Jesu Christe, Fili Dei vivi: qui de cœlo ad terram de sinu Patris descendisti; et in ligno crucis quinque plagas sustinuisti: et sanguinem tuum preciosum in remissionem peccatorum nostrorum effudisti; Te humiliter deprecamur ut in die judicii ad dexteram Tuam statuti a Te audire mereamur illam vocem dulcissimam, Venite, benedicti, in regnum Patris mei. Qui cum eodem Patre in unitate. Per."

[A.D. 1661.]

2 Cor. xiii. 14.

THE grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Ghost, be with us all evermore. Amen.

beginning of the world. Grant this, we beseech thee, O merciful Father, through Jesus Christ, our Mediator and Redeemer. Amen.

The grace of our Lord] This was inserted here by Bishop Cosin, who at first wrote out for insertion, "The blessing of God Almighty the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, be amongst you, and remain with you always;" thus illustrating the form in which that Benediction should be used when not given at the Holy Communion. Used in the Burial Service this Apostolic form of blessing has a particular meaning, for it especially includes the deceased person.

§ APPENDIX TO THE BURIAL OFFICE.

[I.]

There are few persons who have not felt the want of prayers which they could use with definite reference to a departed relative or friend while the body of the deceased was yet waiting to be carried to the grave. To ignore the departed at such a season, when we are praying to our heavenly Father in the Communion of Saints, is repugnant to Christian feeling; nor can those who have a vivid sense of the intermediate state feel any hesitation in praying for a continuance of His mercy to the soul which has just entered upon it.

Although there is no direct command in Holy Scripture respecting Prayers for the departed, there are several indirect pieces of evidence that the use of them was habitual to Christians of the Apostolic age, as it had been to the Jews, and as it was to the Christians of the Primitive Church after the Apostles. St. Paul offers a prayer for Onesiphorus in the words, "The Lord grant unto him that he may find mercy of the Lord in that day." [2 Tim. i. 18.] That Onesiphorus was not then living seems to be proved, (1) by the omission of his name from the salutation, which shows that he was neither at Rome nor at Ephesus: (2) by the manner in which St. Paul speaks of his association with him as belonging to that which was long past and gone by: (3) by the salutation sent to the household of Onesiphorus, as if he were not now one of that household: (4) by the direction of the prayer towards the day of judgment, and not to the time of grace and probation. In another Epistle St. Paul enjoins on the Ephesians that they should offer intercessory prayer as well as prayer for themselves; "praying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all saints." [Eph. vi. 18.] This inclusive phrase is one which brings to mind the sense in which it is used on "All Saints' Day, of the departed in Christ, and also the passage of Scripture respecting our Lord's Resurrection, in which it is said also that "many bodies of the saints which slept arose." [Matt. xxvii. 52.]

Every primitive Liturgy that exists contains prayers for the departed, and the works of early Christian writers make innumerable references to the habit as one which was evidently as familiar to them as that of praying for the living. Some specimens of such primitive intercessions will be found in an earlier part of this volume, in the notes to the Liturgy. In short, it may be said that no one ever thought of not praying for the departed until in comparatively recent times; and when the question whether such prayers were lawful or not in the Church of England was brought before a court of ecclesiastical law, Sir Herbert Jenner, the judge, proved, and decided, that they were constantly recognized by our holiest Divines since the Reformation.

But few have written more wisely and feelingly on this subject than the holy Bishop Heber:

"Having been led attentively to consider the question, my own opinion is on the whole favourable to the practice, which indeed is so natural and so comfortable, that this alone is a presumption that it is neither displeasing to the Almighty nor unavailing with Him.

"The Jews so far back as their opinions and practices can be traced since the time of our Saviour, have uniformly recommended their deceased friends to mercy; and from a passage in the second Book of Maccabees, it appears that (from whatever source they derived it) they had the custom before His time. But if this were the case the practice can hardly be unlawful, or either Christ or His Apostles would, one should think, have in some of their writings or discourses condemned it. On the same side it may be observed, that the Greek Church and all the Eastern Churches, though they do not believe in purgatory, pray for the dead; and that we know the practice to have been universal, or nearly so, among the Christians little more than 150 years after our Saviour. It is spoken of as the usual custom by Tertullian and Epiphanius. Augustine, in his Confessions, has given a beautiful prayer, which he himself used for his deceased mother, Monica; and among Protestants, Luther and Dr. Johnson are eminent instances of the same conduct. I have accordingly been myself in the habit for some years of recommending on some occasions, as after receiving the Sacrament, &c., &c., my lost friends by name to God's goodness and compassion through His Son, as what can do them no harm, and may, and I hope will, be of service to them. Only this caution I always endeavour to observe—that I beg His forgiveness at the same time for myself if unknowingly I am too presumptuous, and His grace lest I, who am thus solicitous for others, should neglect the appointed means of my own salvation."

It has been thought therefore that the following Collect from the ancient Vesper Office for the Departed will be acceptable to many, as one that may be incorporated with their private or their household prayers, together with such Psalms as the 42nd, 121st, and 130th:—

O GOD, whose nature and property is ever to have mercy Deus, cui proprium est miseri reri semper et parcere; te sup-plices deprecamur pro anima ple petitions for the soul of Thy famuli tui (vel famulæ tuæ),

<sup>1</sup> The books of Maccabees were probably written in the century before our Lord, and the habit of the Jews is shown by what is recorded of Judas Maccabæus: "When he had made a gathering throughout the company to the sum of two thousand drachms of silver, he sent it to Jerusalem to offer a sin offering, doing therein very well and honestly, in that he was mindful of the resurrection. For if he had not hoped that they which were slain should have risen again, it had been superfluous and vain to pray for the dead. And also in that he perceived that there was great favour laid up for those that died godly, it was a holy and good thought. Whereupon he made a reconciliation for the dead that they might be delivered from sin" [2 Mac. xii. 43].

servant whom Thou hast [this day] called to depart out of this world: and because Thy servant hoped and believed in Thee, we beseech Thee that Thou wilt neither suffer him to fall into the hand of the enemy, nor forget him for ever; but wilt give Thine holy angels charge to receive his soul, and to transport it into the land of the living, there to be found worthy to rejoice in the fellowship of Thy saints; through Jesus Christ our Lord, who ever liveth and reigneth with Thee in the Unity of the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

[II.]

In the Primitive Church, and in the Church of England before the Reformation, it was the custom to celebrate a Service of Commemoration on the Anniversaries of the death of a friend, relative, or benefactor. These services were, of course, only continued for a time, according to the provision made by survivors or by the will of the deceased persons. And, as is well known, they too often degenerated into superstition, in connexion with the erroneous dogma put forth by the Roman Church respecting the Intermediate State of departed souls.

The principle of such services has, however, been retained in the Church of England to the present day; and the following two Offices offer an illustration of the manner in which that principle is carried out in the language of modern devotion. The first is used in the Chapel Royal, Windsor, once in every quarter. The second (which varies in some respects) is used in the Colleges of Oxford and Cambridge (though neglected in some) once during every term; and is substantially the same as that which was authorized in the Latin Prayer Book of 1560. The particular form printed here is that used at Trinity College, Cambridge. That of Queen Elizabeth is also given.

(A)

“THE SERVICE APPOINTED FOR OBIT SUNDAY.

Proper Psalms { XXI.
CXLVI.
CXLVII.

The First Lesson. Ecclesiasticus xlv.

The Second Lesson. Hebrews xi.

These two Collects following are read daily at Morning and Evening Prayer, immediately before the Prayer of St. Chrysostom.

ALMIGHTY God, we beseech Thee to keep Thy servant VICTORIA, our most gracious Queen and Governor, and so rule her heart in Thy Faith, Fear, and Love, that evermore she may have Affiance and Trust in Thee, and ever seek Thy Honour and Glory, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

GOD save our gracious Sovereign, and all the Companions of the most Honourable and Noble Order of the Garter. Amen.

In the Communion Service, the portion of Scripture for the Epistle is Deuteronomy xxxiii.

The Gospel is St. John v. verse 24 to 30.

The following PRAYERS are used immediately after the Gloria in Excelsis Deo.

Priest.

O Lord, save our Queen.

Choir.

And mercifully hear us when we call upon Thee.

quam hodie de hoc sæculo migrare jussisti; ut non tradas eam in manus inimici, nec obliviscaris in finem; sed jubeas illam ab angelis sanctis suscipi, atque ad regionem vivorum perducī; et quia in te speravit et credidit, sanctorum tuorum mereatur societate lætari. Per Dominum nostrum Jesum Christum Filium tuum, qui tecum vivit et regnat in unitate Spiritus Sancti Deus, Per omnia sæcula sæculorum.

O LORD our heavenly Father and merciful Saviour Jesus Christ, assist our most worthy Queen continually with Thy Holy Spirit, that as she is anciently and truly descended from the noble Princes of this Realm, and the bountiful Patrons and Founders of this noble Order and Church, so she may proceed in all good works; namely, for sustentation of Learning, and help of Poverty; and that all Noblemen of this Realm (especially such as be Companions of this most honourable Order of the Garter) may likewise dispose themselves in Honour and Virtue at all times, that God thereby may be the better honoured, the Commonwealth served, and their Fame remain to their Posterity; and that we all may continue in the true Faith, and walk in good Works, that God hath appointed us, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

WE praise and thank Thee, O Lord, in all the noble Kings, Patrons, and Founders of this Order, and our Benefactors Thy Servants, humbly beseeching Thy Majesty, that as they for their time honourably and charitably did bestow their gifts to our relief, so we may faithfully use them, to the end that thereby others may be moved by such examples, to provide for good and learned Ministers to teach Thy Word, and to be merciful in relieving the Poor, through Jesus Christ our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

GOD save our gracious Sovereign, and all the Companions of the most Honourable and Noble Order of the Garter. Amen.

(B)

“Forma Commendationis Fundatoris, et aliorum Benefactorum.

Primo recitetur, Pater noster, &c.

Deinde decantentur hi tres Psalmi;

Exaltabo Te, Deus. Psal. 145.

Lauda, anima mea, Dominum. Psal. 146.

Laudate Dominum. Psal. 147.

Post hæc legatur caput 44 Ecclesiastici

Tum unus e Concionatoribus concionem habeat.

Finita concione, decantetur Hymnus sequens.

Verse and Chorus.

Oh, give thanks unto the Lord.

SOLO Contra-Tenor.

The righteous shall be had in everlasting remembrance, and the just as the brightness of the firmament.

Verse and Chorus.

Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for everlasting, and let all the people say, Amen.

Ad extremum hæc oratio adhibeatur;

Minister.

The memory of the righteous shall remain for evermore;

Chorus.

And shall not be afraid of any evil report.

Minister.

The souls of the righteous are in the hand of God;

Chorus.

Neither shall any grief hurt them.

Minister.

The Lord be with you;

Chorus.

And with thy Spirit.

Let us give thanks.

O LORD, who art the resurrection and the life of them that believe, who always art to be praised, as well in those that live as in those that are departed; we give Thee thanks for King HENRY the Eighth our Founder, Queen MARY, EDWARD the Third, HENRY of STANTON, and others our Benefactors, by whose Beneficence we are here maintained for the farther attaining of godliness and learning; beseeching Thee to grant, that we, well using to Thy glory these Thy gifts, may rise again to eternal life, with those that are departed in the faith of Christ, through Christ our Lord. Amen.

THE grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Ghost, be with us all evermore. Amen."

The following is the Elizabethan form of this Office:—

IN COMMENDATIONIBUS BENEFACTORUM.

Ad cujusque termini finem, commendatio fiat fundatoris, aliorumque clarorum virorum, quorum beneficentia Collegium locupletatur. Ejus hæc sit forma.

Primum recitetur clara voce Oratio dominica.

Pater noster qui es in celis. &c.

|                                   |   |                                                  |
|-----------------------------------|---|--------------------------------------------------|
| Deinde recitentur tresPsalmi. | { | Exaltabo te Deus meus rex.Psalms. 144.       |
|                                   |   | Lauda anima mea Do. 145.                         |
|                                   |   | Laudate Dominum, quoniambonus. Psalmus. 146. |

Posthæc legatur caput 44. Ecclesiastici.

His finitis, sequatur concio, in qua concionator Fundatoris amplissimam munificentiam prædicet: quantus sit literarum usus ostendat: quantis laudibus afficiendi sunt, qui literarum studia beneficentia sua excitent: quantum sit ornamentum Regno doctos viros habere, qui de rebus controversis vere judicare possunt: quanta sit scripturarum laus, & quantum illæ omni humanæ auctoritati antecedant, quanta sit ejus doctrinæ in vulgus utilitas, & quam late pateat: quam egregium & regium sit (cui Deus universæ plebis suæ curam commisit) de multitudine ministrorum verbi laborare, atque hi ut honesti atque eruditi sint, curare: atque alia ejus generis, quæ pii & docti viri cum laude illustrare possint.

Hæc Concione perorata decantetur.

Benedictus Dominus Deus Israel.

Ad extremum hæc adhibeantur.

Minister. In memoria æterna erit justus.

Responsio. Ab auditu malo non timebit.

Minister. Justorum animæ in manu Dei sunt.

Responsio. Nec attinget illos cruciatus.

Oremus.

Domine Deus, resurrectio & vita credentium, qui semper es laudandus, tam in viventibus, quam in defunctis, agimus tibi gratias pro fundatore nostro N. ceterisque benefactoribus nostris, quorum beneficiis hic ad pietatem & studia literarum alimur: rogantes, ut nos his donis ad tuam gloriam recte utentes, una cum illis ad resurrectionis gloriam immortalem perducamur. Per Christum Dominum nostrum. Amen.

[III.]

The following is the actual form authorized in 1560 for the celebration of the Holy Communion at Funerals:—

CELEBRATIO CENÆ DOMINI, IN FUNEBRIBUS, SI AMICI & VICINI DEFUNCTI COMMUNICARE VELINT.

Collecta.

Misericors Deus, Pater Domini nostri Jesu Christi, qui es resurrectio & vita, in quo qui credidit, etiamsi mortuus fuerit, vivet; & in quo qui crediderit & vivit, non morietur in æternum: quique nos docuisti per sanctum Apostolum tuum Paulum, non debere morere pro dormientibus in Christo, sicut ii qui spem non habent resurrectionis: humiliter petimus, ut nos a morte peccati resuscites ad vitam justitiæ, ut cum ex hac vita emigramus, dormiamus cum Christo, quemadmodum speramus hunc fratrem nostrum, & in generali resurrectione, extremo die, nos una cum hoc fratre nostro resuscitati, & receptis corporibus, regnemus una tecum in vita æterna. Per Dominum nostrum Jesum Christum.

Epistola. 1 Thess. iiii.

Nolo vos ignorare, fratres, de his qui obdormierunt, . . . . . Proinde consolemini vos mutuo sermonibus his.

Evangelium. Joan. vi.

Dixit Jesus discipulis suis, & turbis Judæorum: Omne quod dat mihi Pater . . . . habeat vitam æternam, & ego suscitabo eum in novissimo die.

Vel hoc Evangelium. Joan. v.

Dixit Jesus discipulis suis, & turbis Judæorum: Amen, Amen, dico vobis, qui sermonem meum audit . . . . qui vero mala egerunt, in resurrectionem condemnationis.

THE THANKSGIVING OF WOMEN AFTER CHILD-BIRTH,

COMMONLY CALLED,

THE CHURCHING OF WOMEN.

¶ The woman, at the usual time after her delivery, shall come into the church decently apparelled, and there shall kneel down in

THE CHURCHING OF WOMEN.

This Service underwent scarcely any change in the transition of our Offices from the old English system to the new. In 1549 the ancient title was retained, the "quire door" was substituted for the door of the Church, and the address at the commencement of the Service was substituted for that at the end of the old one. In 1552 the present Title was adopted, and "the place where the table standeth" put instead of "the quire door." In 1661 the two Psalms now in use were substituted for the 121st: the second of them being added to the 121st by Bishop Cosin, but the 116th afterwards inserted instead of it.

Although the Churching Service does not appear in the ancient Sacramentaries, very ancient Offices for the purpose are to be found in the rituals of the Western and Eastern Churches, which are given in the pages of Martene and Goar. The practice itself is referred to in St. Gregory's answer to the questions of St. Augustine [A.D. 601]. The latter had asked, "How long must it be before a woman comes to Church after childbirth?" and St. Gregory's reply contains the exact expression now adopted as the title of the Service<sup>1</sup>: "In how many days after her delivery a woman may enter into the church you have learned from the Old Testament . . . Yet if she enter into the church to make her thanksgiving [actura gratias] the very hour in which she gives birth, she is not to be considered as doing that which is sinful." There is a still more ancient reference to the practice in the seventeenth constitution of the Emperor Leo, published about A.D. 460. In both cases the custom is mentioned in such a way as to give the impression that it was a familiar and established one; but there appears to have been a frequent difficulty as to the interval which should be allowed after childbirth before the thanksgiving was made. It is not unreasonable, therefore, to conclude that the Churching of Women is a primitive practice derived from the Jews; and that its adoption by the Christian Church was accompanied by some doubts as to the extent to which the law of God respecting it, as given to the Jews, was to be literally obeyed.

This Christian custom is not founded, however, on the Jewish law alone, but on those first principles of religion to which human nature was subjected from the time of the Fall. The word of God to Eve was, "In sorrow thou shalt bring forth children;" and the first words of Eve afterwards are on the birth of Cain; when, as the psalm says, "Lo, children and the fruit of the womb are an heritage and gift that cometh of the Lord," so the mother of all living said, "I have gotten a

Salisbury Use.

ORDO AD PURIFICANDAM

MULIEREM POST PARTUM,

ANTE OSTIUM ECCLESIAE.

man from the Lord." This sense of the Providence of God in the matter of child-bearing, and also of the sorrow and pain which He has connected with it on account of Eve's transgression, must ever lead instinctively to thanksgiving, and to a religious recognition of His goodness in giving safe deliverance. The same principles extend themselves also further than this; and, acknowledging that original sin is inherited by children from their parents, enjoin upon the mother the duty of recognizing this also by a ceremonial return to the Church with humble prayers.

This service was not formerly used for unmarried women until they had done penance. So Archbishop Grindal<sup>2</sup> enjoined in 1571. So also the Bishops replied to those who excepted against this service for the mothers of bastard children in 1661: "If the woman be such as is here mentioned, she is to do her penance before she is churchied."

at the usual time] The first Rubric as altered by Bishop Cosin in the Durham book stands thus,—"The woman, a month after delivery, being recovered, shall, upon some Sunday or other Holyday, come decently vayed into the Parish Church, and at the beginning of the Communion Service shall kneel down in some convenient place appointed unto her by the Minister before the Holy Table; at which he standing shall thus direct his speech to her."

decently apparelled] In Archdeacon Hale's Precedents there are several presentations of clergymen for refusing to church women who did not wear veils or kerchiefs when they came to their thanksgivings, and of women for coming without them: "The said Tabitha did not come to be churchied in a vaille" [p. 259]. "Presentatur, for that she being admonished that when she came to church to give God thanks for her safe deliverance in childbirth, that she should come with such ornaments as other honest women usually have done, she did not, but coming in her hat and a quarter about her neck, sat down in her seat where she could not be descried, nor seen unto what the thanksgiving was read" [p. 237]. It is evident from such records as these that some distinctive dress was considered desirable in former times; and that a veil was thought to be a token of modesty better befitting such an occasion than a mere ordinary head-dress. In an inventory of Church goods belonging to St. Benet's Gracechurch in 1560, there is "a churching-cloth fringed, white damask;" from which it would seem that the veil was in some cases provided by the Church. Elborow speaks

<sup>1</sup> In the rubric at the beginning of this Office, in the Greek ritual, the phrase ἐπὶ τῷ ἐκκλησιασθῆναι is used. Goar, p. 267.

<sup>2</sup> "That they should not church any unmarried woman, which had been gotten with child out of lawful matrimony; except it were upon some Sunday or holyday; and except either she, before childbed, had done penance, or at her churching did acknowledge her fault before the congregation." Cardw. Doc. Ann., i, 335

some convenient place, as hath been accustomed, or as the Ordinary shall direct: And then the Priest shall say unto her,

Gen. iii. 16 with
1 Tim. ii. 14, 15.
Lev. xii. 6, 7 with
Luke ii. 21—24.

FORASMUCH as it hath pleased Almighty God of his goodness to give you safe deliverance, and hath preserved you in the great danger of child-birth; you shall therefore give hearty thanks unto God, and say,

[¶ Then shall the Priest say the cxvith Psalm.]

Dilexi quoniam.

¶ Or, Psalm cxxvii. Nisi Dominus.

¶ Then the Priest shall say,

Let us pray.

Lord, have mercy upon us.

Christ, have mercy upon us.

Lord, have mercy upon us.

OUR Father, which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, As it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us from evil: For thine is the kingdom, The power, and the glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

Minister.

Ps. lxxxvi. 2. O Lord, save this woman thy servant;

Answer.

Who putteth her trust in thee.

Minister.

Ps. lxi. 3. Be thou to her a strong tower;

¶ Primo sacerdos et ministri ejus dicant psalmos Ps. cxxi. and sequentes. Ps. Levavi oculos meos. Ps. cxxviii Beati omnes. Gloria Patri. Sicut erat.

Sequatur.

Kyrie eleison.

Christe eleison.

Kyrie eleison.

PATER noster, qui es in cœlis; sanctificetur nomen tuum: adveniat regnum tuum: fiat voluntas tua, sicut in cœlo, et in terra. Panem nostrum quotidianum da nobis hodie: et dimitte nobis debita nostra, sicut et nos dimittimus debitoribus nostris: et ne nos inducas in tentationem: sed libera nos a malo. Amen.

Domine, salvam fac ancillam tuam.

Deus meus sperantem in te.

Esto ei, Domine, turris fortitudinis.

of the veil being commonly used in the latter half of the 17th century, but adds that it was "scrupled" against by some as if the wearing it were a gross sin.

convenient place] The place assigned by the Rubric before the Reformation was the Church door. In 1549 this was altered to the Quire door; and "nigh unto the table" in 1552. Now that the place is left to the clergyman's appointment, he will have to consider that the spirit of the Rubric has always been to symbolize by the woman's position during her Churching that she is being re-admitted to Church privileges and Divine worship. The Church door is not suited to modern climates and constitutions, but the Choir door seems a very fitting place, and was used by Bishop Andrewes. In the book referred to in the last note, a Churching "stool" or form is referred to, which probably indicates a seat near to the Church door. The tenth of Bishop Wren's orders and injunctions for the diocese of Norwich, in 1636, enjoins, "That women to be churched come and kneel at a side near the communion table without the rail, being veiled according to the custom, and not covered with a hat; or otherwise not to be churched, but presented at the next generals by the minister, or churchwardens or any of them." In Bishop Brian Duppa's Articles of Visitation of 1638, there is a similar one:—"Doth he go into the Chancel, the woman also repairing thither, kneeling as near the Communion Table as may be; and if there be a Communion, doth she communicate in acknowledgment of the great blessing received by her safe delivery? Doth the woman who is to be Churched use the accustomed habit in such cases with a white veil or kerchief upon her head?"

Then shall the Priest say] It may be doubted whether it was ever intended that the priest should say this alone. As the old Rubric directed the choral use of the Psalm, and as that in the Marriage Service is to be used in the same way (the very Psalm that formerly stood here), so no doubt it was meant that this should be used as other Psalms are. It has sometimes been used processionally in the same manner as an Introit, to which it bears a close analogy. The Priest should stand during the whole of the Service.

The 116th Psalm is most appropriate where the woman is going to communicate after her Churching; or where her sorrows have been added to by the death of her infant, in which latter case the 127th Psalm is very inopportune.

Answer.

From the face of her enemy.

Minister.Ps. lxi. 1.

Lord, hear our prayer.

Answer.

And let our cry come unto thee.

Minister.

Let us pray.

Ps. cxvi. 8, 10.
12, 17—19.
John xvi. 21.
Ps. cxxiv. 8.
Heb. iv. 16.
Deut. xxiii. 23.
Gal. ii. 20.
Col. ii. 6, 7.
2 Pet. i. 10, 11.

O ALMIGHTY God, we give thee humble thanks for that thou hast vouchsafed to deliver this woman thy servant from the great pain and peril of child-birth; Grant, we beseech thee, most merciful Father, that she, through thy help, may both faithfully live, and walk according to thy will in this life present; and also may be partaker of everlasting glory in the life to come; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

2 Sam. xxiv. 24.
Ps. cxvi. 10—14.

¶ The woman, that cometh to give her thanks, must offer accustomed offerings; and, if there be a Communion, it is convenient that she receive the holy Communion.

A facie inimici.

Domine, exaudi orationem meam.

Et clamor meus ad te veniat.

Dominus vobiscum.

Et cum spiritu tuo.

Oremus.

DEUS qui hanc famulam tuam de pariendi periculo liberasti, et eam in servitio tuo devotam esse fecisti, concede ut temporali cursu fideliter peracto, sub alis misericordiæ tuæ vitam perpetuam et quietam consequatur. Per Christum Dominum.

[Tunc aspergatur mulier aqua benedicta: deinde inducat eam sacerdos per manum dextram in ecclesiam, dicens: Ingredere in templum Dei ut habeas vitam æternam et vivas in sæcula sæculorum. Amen.]

offerings] A due to the Priest offered on the Altar. Compare the words "Easter Offering" and "Easter Dues." So Bishop Andrewes interprets it, and so Hooker, V. lxxiv. 4. The Chrisom was formerly included.

it is convenient that she receive] As the Churching Service is a restoration of the woman to the privileges of the Lord's house, it is clear that it should be said at the beginning of, that is, before, any service at which she is to be present for the first time after her recovery. If she is to communicate, a convenient time would be immediately before the Lord's Prayer and Collect for purity, supposing she has not been present at Litany and Mattins; and such a use of this service would doubtless be nearest to the intention of the Church in every way. Bishop Sparrow says that this time was mentioned in Visitation Articles, and Bishop Wren's directions expressly enjoin it; adding that if there is a marriage, the Churching is to come immediately next to the Communion Service after the conclusion of that for the Marriage. In Bishop Cosin's revised Book he began this rubric, "the Priest here goeth to the Communion Service." This rule about Holy Communion clearly excludes impenitent unmarried women from "Churching." Convenient is a word that meant "fitting" more distinctly in former days than now.

A COMMINATION,

OR,

Denouncing of God's anger and judgments against sinners, with certain prayers, to be used on the first day of Lent, and at other times, as the Ordinary shall appoint.

¶ After Morning Prayer, the Litany ended according to the accustomed manner, the Priest shall, in the Reading-Pew or Pulpit, say, ¶ Feria iiii. in capite Jejunii: post sextam in primas fiat sermo ad populum si placuerit. . . . Salisbury Use

1 Cor. v. 4—7. 11.
13.
1 Tim. v. 20.
Deut. xvii. 12, 13.
Matt. xviii. 15—
18.

BRETHREN, in the Primitive Church there was a godly discipline, that, at the beginning of Lent, such persons as stood convicted of notorious sin were put to open penance, and punished in this world, that their souls might be saved in the day of the Lord; and that others, admonished by their example, might be the more afraid to offend.

Instead whereof, (until the said discipline may be restored again, which is much to be wished,) it is thought good, that at this time (in the presence of you all) should be read the general sentences of God's cursing against impenitent sinners, gathered out of the seven and twentieth Chapter of Deuteronomy, and other places of Scripture; and that ye should answer to every Sentence, Amen: To the intent that, being admonished of the great indignation of God against sinners, ye may the rather be moved to earnest and true repentance; and may walk more warily in these dangerous days; fleeing from such vices, for which ye affirm with your own mouths the curse of God to be due.

Deut. xxvii. 11—
15.

Neh. viii. 1—3.
ix. 1—3.
Ps. vii. 11, 12.
Rom. ii. 8, 9.
Joel ii. 16, 17.
Eph. v. 15.
2 Tim. ii. 19.

CURSED is the man that maketh any carved or molten image, to worship it. Deut. xxvii. 15.

¶ And the people shall answer and say, Amen.

Minister.

Cursed is he that curseth his father or mother. Deut. xxvii. 16.

Answer.

Amen.

THE COMMINATION.

This is an adaptation of an ancient service which was said between Prime and Mass on Ash-Wednesday. The first part of this service may be understood from the portion incorporated into our own as shown by the Latin; six other collects and an absolution, which followed the collect Exaudi, quæsumus, not being included. After the absolution began the service for the Benediction of the Ashes, consisting of a Collect (which forms the substance of the one beginning, "O most mighty God"), the Benediction and Distribution of the ashes, and an anthem sung while the latter was going on. The Anthem and the Epistle of the succeeding Mass are the foundation of the solemn confession with which the Commination originally ended. "Through the merits," &c., "The Lord bless us and keep us," were added by Bishop Cosin at the Revision of 1661. He also proposed to alter "punished" in the opening homily to "did humbly submit themselves to undergo punishment," and succeeded in substituting "stood convicted of notorious sin" for the original words "were notorious sinners."

Reading-Pew or Pulpit] The reading-pew does not mean a reading-desk, but the chancel, pew, or stalls occupied by the Clergy and singers. The "pulpit" is probably the "Jube," a lectern on the top of the chancel-screen<sup>1</sup>, from which the Epistle and Gospel were read in ancient days, and from which they were ordered to be read by Bishop Grindal and others in their diocesan injunctions. Pulpits as now understood were extremely rare in Parish Churches for a long time after the Reformation, and "reading-desks" are of comparatively modern introduction. The modern preaching-pulpit is certainly not the place for the Priest when taking his part in a responsive service; and now that the ancient Jube is disused for the Epistle and Gospel, it is most proper to follow the analogy of usage in respect to them, and read the Commination Service from the front of the Altar. The analogy between the maledictions and the Decalogue leads to the same conclusion. As the services out of which this was formed immediately preceded the Mass of the day, so no doubt it was intended that the Commination should precede, with some slight interval, the Ash-Wednesday celebration of the Holy Communion.

at other times] The Commination Service has not been used <sup>1</sup> See Davies's Rites of Durham; and also Cosin's Works, v. 383.

Minister.

Deut. xxvii. 17. Cursed is he that removeth his neighbour's land-mark.

Answer.

Amen.

Minister.

Deut. xxvii. 18. Cursed is he that maketh the blind to go out of his way.

Answer.

Amen.

Minister.

Deut. xxvii. 19. Cursed is he that perverteth the judgement of the stranger, the fatherless, and widow.

Answer.

Amen.

Minister.

Deut. xxvii. 24. Cursed is he that smiteth his neighbour secretly.

Answer.

Amen.

Minister.

Lev. xx. 10. Cursed is he that lieth with his neighbour's wife.

Answer.

Amen.

Minister.

Deut. xxvii. 25. Cursed is he that taketh reward to slay the innocent.

Answer.

Amen.

Minister.

Jer. xvii. 5. Cursed is he that putteth his trust in man, and taketh man for his defence, and in his heart goeth from the Lord.

Answer.

Amen.

Minister.

Matt. xxv. 41.
1 Cor. vi. 9, 10. Cursed are the unmerciful, fornicators, and adulterers, covetous persons, idolators, slanderers, drunkards, and extortioners.

Answer.

Amen.

Minister.

NOW seeing that all they are accursed (as the prophet David beareth witness) who do err and go astray from the commandments of God; let us (remembering the dreadful judgement hanging over our heads, and always ready to fall upon us) return unto our Lord God, with all contrition and meekness of heart; bewailing and lamenting our sinful life, acknowledging and confessing our offences, and seeking to bring forth worthy fruits of penance. For now is the axe put unto the root of the trees, so that every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire. It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God: he shall pour down rain upon the sinners, snares, fire and brimstone, storm and tempest; this shall be their portion to drink. For lo, the Lord is come out of his place to visit the wickedness of such as dwell upon the earth. But who may abide the day of his coming? Who shall be able to endure when he appeareth? His fan is in his hand, and he will purge his floor, and gather his wheat into the barn; but he will burn the chaff with unquenchable fire. The day of the Lord cometh as a thief in the night: and when men shall say, Peace, and all things are safe, then shall sudden destruction come upon them, as sorrow cometh upon a woman travailing with child, and they shall not escape. Then shall appear the wrath of God in the day of vengeance, which obstinate sinners, through the stubbornness of their heart, have heaped unto themselves; which despised the goodness,

* Ps. cxix. 21.
120.
Ps. vii. 11—13.
Ezek. xviii. 30.
Ps. li. 17.
Dan. ix. 4—6.

Matt. iii. 8, 10.
Marg.
Mal. iv. 1.

Heb. x. 28. 31.
xii. 29.
* Ps. xi. 7.

Isa. xxvi. 21.

Mal. iii. 2, 3.
Matt. iii. 12. xliii.
30.

Ps. i. 4—6.
Isa. lxvi. 24.

1 Thess. v. 2, 3.
Matt. xxiv. 37—
39.
Luke xvii. 28—
30.

Rom. ii. 4, 5.
Matt. xxiv. 30.
Rev. vi. 16.
2 Pet. iii. 15. 9.

in recent times on any other day than Ash-Wednesday. The title has undergone three changes as follows:—

| 1549.                                                 | 1552.                                                                                     | 1661.                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|-------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| The First Day of Lent, commonly called Ash-Wednesday. | A Commination against sinners, with certain Prayers, to be used divers times in the year. | A Commination, or denouncing of God's anger and judgements against sinners, with certain prayers, to be used on the first day of Lent, and at other times, as the ordinary shall appoint. |

The original title, it will be observed, agrees with the ancient one; and the alteration was made at the suggestion of Martin Bucer, whose Judaizing tendencies led him to wish for a more frequent use of the Commination, and a general revival of open penance, the infliction of which seems to have possessed great charms for Puritan minds. From some Visitation Articles of Bishop Grindal's [Cardwell's Docum. Annals, i. 398] it seems probable that it was used in some places "on one of the three Sundays next before Easter, one of the two Sundays next before the Feast of Pentecost, and one of the two Sundays next before the feast of the birth of our Lord." But such a signal perversion of the Sunday festival was not likely ever to have become general.

The introduction of the awful Judaic maledictions into the patience, and long-sufferance of God, when he calleth them continually to repentance. Then shall they call upon me, (saith the Lord,) but I will not hear; they shall seek me early, but they shall not find me; and that, because they hated knowledge, and received not the fear of the Lord, but abhorred my counsel, and despised my correction. Then shall it be too late to knock when the door shall be shut; and too late to cry for mercy when it is the time of justice. O terrible voice of most just judgement, which shall be pronounced upon them, when it shall be said unto them, Go, ye cursed, into the fire everlasting, which is prepared for the devil and his angels. Therefore, brethren, take we heed betime, while the day of salvation lasteth; for the night cometh, when none can work. But let us, while we have the light, believe in the light, and walk as children of the light; that we be not cast into utter darkness, where is weeping and gnashing of teeth. Let us not abuse the goodness of God, who calleth us mercifully to amendment, and of his endless pity promiseth us forgiveness of that which is past, if with a perfect and true heart we return unto him. For though our sins be as red as scarlet, they shall be made white as snow; and though they be like purple, yet they shall be made white as wool. Turn ye (saith the Lord) from all your wickedness, and your sin shall not be your destruction:

Prov. i. 23—30.
Matt. xxv. 10, 11.
2 Cor. vi. 2.
Deut. vii. 21.
Matt. xxv. 41.
Heb. ii. 1—3. iii. 12.
2 Cor. vi. 2.
Heb. xii. 25.
John ix. 4, 5.
Matt. xxv. 30.
Rom. ii. 4.
Isa. lxiii. 9.
xliv. 22. lv. 7.
Isa. i. 18.
Ezek. xviii. 30—32

Cast away from you all your ungodliness that ye have done: Make you new hearts, and a new spirit: Wherefore will ye die, O ye house of Israel, seeing that I have no pleasure in the death of him that dieth, saith the Lord God? Turn ye then, and ye shall live. Although we have sinned, yet have we an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous; and he is the propitiation for our sins. For he was wounded for our offences, and smitten for our wickedness. Let us therefore return unto him, who is the merciful receiver of all true penitent sinners; assuring ourselves that he is ready to receive us, and most willing to pardon us, if we come unto him with faithful repentance; if we submit ourselves unto him, and from henceforth walk in his ways; if we will take his easy yoke, and light burden upon us, to follow him in lowliness, patience, and charity, and be ordered by the governance of his Holy Spirit; seeking always his glory, and serving him duly in our vocation with thanksgiving: This if we do, Christ will deliver us from the curse of the law, and from the extreme malediction which shall light upon them that shall be set on the left hand; and he will set us on his right hand, and give us the gracious benediction of his Father, commanding us to take possession of his glorious kingdom: Unto which he vouchsafe to bring us all, for his infinite mercy. Amen.

Ps. xl. 7, 10.

1 John ii. 1, 2.
iii. 5, iv. 10.

Isa. liii. 5, 6.
Hosae vi. 1. xiv. 1, 2.
Jer. iii. 12, 13.
Mal. iii. 7.
Luke xv. 18 - 20.
John vi. 37.
Isa. lv. 7.
Ezek. xviii. 21, 22.

Matt. xi. 29, 30.
Eph. iv. 2.
Heb. xii. 1.
Col. iii. 14.
1 Cor. vi. 20.
x. 31.
Gal. iii. 10.
2 Thess. i. 7—9.

Matt. xxv. 33, 34.
xiii. 43.
2 Pet. i. 8, 10, 11.
\ Ps. xliii. 3.*

ancient service, and the archaic character of the homily, will probably always restrict its use to the first day of Lent. The form in which these are used is singularly out of character with the general tone of the Prayer Book; denunciation of sin ordinarily taking the form of a Litany, not of an exhortation, under the Christian dispensation. "These dangerous days" and other expressions also give the exhortations a tone which belongs to the past rather than the present.

It should be remembered, that the restoration of discipline which is spoken of in the second paragraph of the opening exhortation, does not refer to the ordinary discipline of the Church, but to the "godly discipline" of the "Primitive Church." Archdeacon Hale, in his volume of Precedents [page v of the Introductory Essay], illustrates this by a Canon enacted under King Edgar: "Hæ consuetudines trans mare observantur; id est, quod quilibet episcopus sit in sede episcopali sua die Mercurii, quem caput jejunii vocamus; tunc unusquisque eorum hominum qui capitalibus criminibus polluti sunt, in provincia ista, eo die ad illum accedere debet, et peccata sua illi profiteri, et ille tum præscribit eis penitentiam, cuique pro ratione delicti sui; eos qui eo digni sunt, ab Ecclesiastica communitate segregat, et tamen ad propriam eorum necessitatem animat et hortatur; et ita postea, cum illius venia, domum redeunt." [Ancient Laws and Institutes of England, vol. ii., p. 267.] In the times to which this Canon belongs, the Episcopal exercise of this discipline resulted from the intimate admixture of the Ecclesiastical and Secular laws. In the Primitive Church a severity of discipline was gradually established (long after the Apostolic age), which was probably adopted with reference to a state of society in which self-control was rare, and gross vice unrebuked except by the Clergy. Persons "convicted of notorious sin" are now otherwise punished; and an aspiration after the revival of an "open penance" which is utterly impossible, is apt to lead the thoughts away from the restoration of a discipline and penance which is both possible and desirable.

¶ Then shall they all kneel upon their knees, and the Priest and Clerks kneeling (in the place where they are accustomed to say the Litany) shall say this Psalm.

Miserere mei, Deus. Psalm li.

Lord, have mercy upon us.

Christ, have mercy upon us.

Lord, have mercy upon us.

OUR Father, which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, As it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us from evil. Amen.

Minister.

Ps. lxxxvi. 2. O Lord, save thy servants;

Answer.

That put their trust in thee.

Minister.

Ps. xx. 1, 2. Send unto them help from above.

Answer.

And evermore mightily defend them.

Minister.

Help us, O God our Saviour.

Answer.

Ps. lxxxix. 9. And for the glory of thy Name deliver us; be merciful to us sinners, for thy Name's sake.

Minister.

Ps. cii. 1. O Lord, hear our prayer.

Answer.

And let our cry come unto thee.

Minister.

Let us pray.

Ps. iv. 1.
Joel ii. 17.
Acts ii. 37.
Ps. xxxiv. 18.
Micah vii. 18.

OUR LORD, we beseech thee, mercifully hear our prayers, and spare all those who confess their sins unto thee; that they, whose consciences by sin are accused, by thy merciful pardon may be absolved; through Christ our Lord. Amen.

Ps. cxlv. 8, 9.
Matt. v. 45.
1 Tim. ii. 3, 4.
Ezek. xxxiii. 11.
1 Pt. iii. 9.
Heb. viii. 12.
Prov. xviii. 14.
Matt. xi. 28.
2 Thess. ii. 16, 17.
Exod. xxxiv. 6, 7.

Mark ii. 7.
Joel ii. 17.
Ps. cxliii. 2.

MOST mighty God, and merciful Father, who hast compassion upon all men, and hatest nothing that thou hast made; who wouldest not the death of a sinner, but that he should rather turn from his sin, and be saved; Mercifully forgive us our trespasses;

... Deinde prosternant se clerici in choro, et Salisbury Usa. dicant septem Psalmos pœnitentiales cum Gloria Patri et sicut erat et Antiphona ne reminiscaris.

* * * * *

Kyrie eleison.

Christe eleison.

Kyrie eleison.

PATER noster, qui es in cœlis; sanctificetur nomen tuum: adveniat regnum tuum: fiat voluntas tua, sicut in cœlo, et in terra. Panem nostrum quotidianum da nobis hodie: et dimitte nobis debita nostra, sicut et nos dimittimus debitoribus nostris: et ne nos inducas in tentationem: sed libera nos a malo. Amen.

Salvos fac servos tuos et ancillas tuas.

Deus meus sperantes in te.

Mitte eis, Domine, auxilium desancto.

Et de Syon tuere eos.

Convertere, Domine, usquequo.

Et deprecabilis esto super servos tuos.

Adjuva nos, Deus, salutaris noster.

Et propter gloriam nominis tui, Domine, libera nos et propitius esto peccatis nostris propter nomen tuum.

Domine, exaudi orationem meam.

Et clamor meus ad te veniat.

Dominus vobiscum.

Oremus.

EXAUDI, quæsumus, Domine, preces nostras, et confitentium tibi parce peccatis: ut quos conscientiae reatus accusat indulgentia tuæ miserationis absolvat. Per Christum.

OMNIPOTENS, sempiternus Deus: Benedictio cinerum. Greg. Gelas. qui miseris omnium, et nihil odisti eorum quæ fecisti. ....

Oratio.

DOMINE Deus noster, qui offensione nostra non vinceris, sed satisfactione placaris: respice, quæsu-

Jer. xlv. 20.
Job xl 4. xlii. 5, 6.
Ps. xxii. 19.
Rev. iii. 12.

receive and comfort us, who are grieved and wearied with the burden of our sins. Thy property is always to have mercy; to thee only it appertaineth to forgive sins. Spare us therefore, good Lord, spare thy people, whom thou hast redeemed; enter not into judgment with thy servants, who are vile earth, and miserable sinners; but so turn thine anger from us, who meekly acknowledge our vileness, and truly repent us of our faults, and so make haste to help us in this world, that we may ever live with thee in the world to come; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

¶ Then shall the people say this that followeth, after the Minister,

Lam. v. 21.
Jord ii. 12, 13.
Jer. i. 4.
Zech. xii. 10.
Ps. lxxi. 15.
Ezra ix. 13.
Hab iii. 22.
Joel ii. 17.
Jer. xxix. 11.
Ps. cxix. 156.
li. 1.
John xiv. 6.
Gal. i. 3, 4.

TURN thou us, O good Lord, and so shall we be turned. Be favourable, O Lord, Be favourable to thy people, Who turn to thee in weeping, fasting, and praying. For thou art a merciful God, Full of compassion, Long-suffering, and of great pity. Thou sparest when we deserve punishment, And in thy wrath thinkest upon mercy. Spare thy people, good Lord, spare them, And let not thine heritage be brought to confusion. Hear us, O Lord, for thy mercy is great, And after the multitude of thy mercies look upon us; Through the merits and mediation of thy blessed Son, Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

¶ Then the Minister alone shall say,

Numb. vi. 24—
26.

THE Lord bless us, and keep us; the Lord lift up the light of his countenance upon us, and give us peace, now and for evermore. Amen.

mus, super famulos tuos qui se tibi graviter peccasse confitentur: tuum est enim absolutionem criminum dare, et veniam præstare peccantibus; qui dixisti pœnitentiam te malle peccatorum, quam mortem: concede, ergo, Domine, his famulis tuis, ut tibi pœnitentiæ excubias celebrent, et correctis actibus suis conferri sibi a te sempiterna gaudia gratulentur. Per Christum.

CONVERTIMINI ad me in toto corde vestro: in jejuniis et fletu et planctu: . . . . Inter vestibulum et altare plorabunt sacerdotes ministri Domini, et dicent Parce, Domine, parce populo tuo: et ne des hæreditatem tuam in opprobrium.

Lectio Johelis
proph. ii. in Missa.

EXAUDI nos, Domine, quoniam magna est misericordia tua: secundum multitudinem miserationum tuarum respice nos, Domine.

Antiph. in Bened. ciner.
Antiph. Greg ibid.

“Thou that makest the outgoings of the morning and evening to praise Thee.” PSALM lxxv. 8.

“That all things must be fulfilled which were written in . . . . the Psalms, concerning Me.”
LUKE xxiv. 44.

“These things saith He . . . . that hath the Key of David.” REV. iii. 7.

“My soul shall be satisfied, even as it were with marrow and fatness : when my mouth praiseth Thee with joyful lips.” PSALM lxxiii. 6.

AN

INTRODUCTION TO THE PSALTER.

§ 1. The Manner of using the Psalms in Divine Service.

WHETHER or not the Psalms were all primarily composed for use in Divine Service, it is certain that many of them were so; that all were collected together for that purpose by those who had charge of the services offered up to God in the Temple; and that they were taken into public devotional use by the early Christian Church after the example of the Jewish.

Psalms were composed and sung by Moses, Miriam, Deborah, and Hannah; but it may be reasonably supposed that the constant use of them in Divine Service originated with David, the "sweet singer of Israel," whose pre-eminence as an inspired Psalmist has caused the whole collection to be called after his name, "the Psalms of David." To him was assigned the work and honour of preparing the materials out of which the Temple was to be built; and to him also the honour of preparing the materials of that Divine Psalmody which was henceforth ever to mingle with the worship of Sacrifice, and form the substance of the praises offered to God throughout the world. It seems even as if the very earliest Liturgical use of Psalms was recorded in the statement, "Then on that day David delivered first this psalm to thank the Lord into the hand of Asaph and his brethren," on occasion of the ark of God being brought to its home of ages on Mount Zion [1 Chron. xvi. 7]. It is true that the words "this psalm" are not in the original, and that the psalm afterwards given is a cento of the 105th, the 96th, and other Psalms which are considered by modern critics to belong to a much later date than that indicated; but there can be no doubt that David had been inspired to compose some of his psalms long before, and that when "he appointed certain of the Levites to . . . thank and praise the Lord God of Israel . . . to give thanks to the Lord, because His mercy endureth for ever" [vv. 4. 41], he was initiating on Mount Zion that system of liturgical psalmody, which (even if it had existed in any form previously) was now to continue there until it was taken up by the Christian Church. The establishment of this system in the Temple is recorded with similar exactness in 2 Chron. vii. 6, "And the priests waited on their office: the Levites also with instruments of musick of the Lord, which David the king had made to praise the Lord, because His mercy endureth for ever, when David praised by their ministry." And in a previous chapter the advent of the Divine Presence is connected in a remarkable manner with the first offering of such praises in the Temple: "It came even to pass, as the trumpeters and singers were as one, to make one sound to be heard in praising and thanking the Lord; and when they lifted up their voice with the trumpets and cymbals and instruments of musick, and praised the Lord, saying, For He is good: for His mercy endureth for ever: that then the house was filled with a cloud, even the house of the Lord. So that the priests could not stand to minister by reason of the cloud; for the glory of the Lord had filled the house of God" [2 Chron. v. 13, 14]. Thus in the dedication of the Temple, we see the final settlement of the system of praise originated (as it seems) by David at the triumphal entry of the ark of God to Mount Zion; and in "the Levites which were the singers, all of them of Asaph, of Heman, of Jeduthun, with their sons and their brethren, arrayed in white linen," we see the Jewish original of those surpliced choirs by which the same Psalms of David have been sung in every age of the Christian Church.

The hundred and fifty Psalms of the Christian Psalter were, however, the growth of perhaps six centuries, extending from David to Ezra and Nehemiah; and hence only a portion of those we now sing were used in the Temple of Solomon, although all were so used in the four centuries which preceded the Advent of our Lord, and the supersession of the Jewish by the Christian Church. This gradual growth of the Psalter led to that division into five parts which is so evident in its structure, and which is also noticed by some of the Fathers who lived near to the time of its use in the Temple. Doxologies are found at the end of the 41st, 72nd, 89th, and 106th Psalms, and these are considered to point out the division of the Psalter into five books, partly according to the date of their composition, and partly with reference to some system of Liturgical use. But notwithstanding these divisions, there is an equally evident union of all the books into one by means of the first Psalm, which forms a general introduction or Antiphon, and the last which forms a general Doxology, to the whole number<sup>1</sup>.

The mode in which the Psalter was used in the Services of the

<sup>1</sup> Modern critics have analyzed the Book of Psalms with great minuteness. The general result of the conclusions arrived at by Hengstenberg, Mr. Thrupp, and others, may be shortly stated thus:

§ Table of the Authorship and Compilation of the Psalter, according to modern critics.

| Books. | Psalms. | Authorship.                                               | When, or by whom collected for use in the Temple. |
|--------|---------|-----------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------|
| I.     | 1—41    | David.                                                    | David.                                            |
| II.    | 42—49   | The Levites.                                              | In the time of Hezekiah.                          |
|        | 50      | Azariah.                                                  |                                                   |
| III.   | 51—71   | David.                                                    | In the time of Josiah.                            |
|        | 72      | David or Solomon.                                         |                                                   |
|        | 73—85   | The Levites.                                              |                                                   |
|        | 86      | Hezekiah.                                                 |                                                   |
| IV.    | 87—89   | The Levites.                                              | Ezra or Nehemiah.                                 |
|        | 90—106  | Various writers, including Moses, the prophets, and Ezra. |                                                   |
| V.     | 107—150 |                                                           |                                                   |

But the prophetic aspect of David's office as the chief of Psalmists seems to be too little regarded in the latter part of this classification; and probably many psalms were written by him—such as the "Songs of Degrees"—which are here assigned to later authors.

Primitive Church is not known, but it seems clear that the division into books was disregarded, and the whole Psalter treated as a collection of one hundred and fifty separate Psalms distinguished by titles and numbers; and it is hardly probable that any definite separation of these into diurnal or weekly portions was adopted in the earliest age of the Church. There has, in fact, always been a great variety in the mode of appropriating the Psalms to hours and days in all those times of which any such method is recorded, and this would not have been the case if any definite system had been originated in early times. We must, therefore, suppose that the Church was left quite at liberty in this respect, and that each Diocese or Province adopted or originated such a division of the Psalter for use in Divine Offices as was considered most expedient for the time in which it was to be used, and for the persons who, were to use it.

The most ancient systems of the Psalter known to us are the Oriental, the Ambrosian, and the Mozarabic; all three of which are of so extremely complicated a character that it is hardly possible to give any clear notion of them without occupying many pages. Some account of them will be found in Neale's

Introduction to the History of the Holy Eastern Church, and in his Commentary on the Psalms; and Archdeacon Freeman has traced out some analogies between the Eastern and Western systems in his Principles of Divine Service; to which works the reader is referred for further information. In the Latin Church generally the Psalter was used according to the plan laid down by St. Gregory in the sixth century, and this was almost identical with the ordinary use of the English Church up to the time of the Reformation. The characteristics of this system will be seen in the annexed Table, which shows the manner in which the whole of the hundred and fifty Psalms were appointed to be sung in the course of every seven days. A general principle underlies the whole arrangement, viz., that of appropriating the first half of the Psalms to the earlier, and the second half to the later part of the day; but this general principle (for which there is no ground in the character of the Psalms themselves) is associated with a principle of selection, by which certain Psalms are set aside for particular hours, as the 51st for Ferial Lauds, the Compline Psalms, and the three last, which were appointed for constant use at Lauds, whether Ferial or Festival.

§ Table of the Ordinary Course in which the Psalms were appointed to be sung in the ancient Church of England.

| Hours.                                              | The Lord's Day.                                                  | Monday.                                       | Tuesday.                                            | Wednesday.                                     | Thursday.                                    | Friday.                                            | The Sabbath.                                    |
|-----------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------|
| Mattins { 1st Nocturn2nd Nocturn3rd Nocturn | 1—3, 6—15,16—18,19—21.                                   | 27—38.                                        | 39—42, 44—50,52.                                | 53, 55—62,64—66.                           | 69—80.                                       | 81—89, 94, 96, 97.                                 | 98—109.                                         |
| Lauds                                               | 93, 100 <sup>1</sup> , 63, 67.Song of the ThreeChildren. | 51, 5, 63.Song of Isaiah(Isa. xii.).  | 51, 43, 63.Song of Hezekiah(Isa. xxxviii.). | 51, 65, 63.Song of Hannah(1 Sam. ii.). | 51, 90, 63.Song of Moses(Exod. xv.). | 51, 143, 63.Song of Habak-kuk (Hab. iii.). | 51, 92, 63.Song of Moses(Deut. xxxii.). |
| Prime                                               | 148, 149, 150 <sup>2</sup> ,22—26, 54, 118,119, v. 1—32. | 148, 149, 150.22—26, 51,119, v. 1—32. | 148, 149, 150.                                      | 148, 149, 150.                                 | 148, 149, 150.                               | 148, 149, 150.                                     | 148, 149, 150.                                  |
| TierceSextsNones                            | 119 { v. 33—80,v. 81—128,v. 129—176.                     | As on Sunday.                                 | As on Monday.                                       | As on Monday.                                  | As on Monday.                                | As on Monday.                                      | As on Monday.                                   |
| Vespers                                             | 110—115.                                                         | 116, 117, 120,121.                        | 122—126.                                            | 127—131.                                       | 132, 133, 135—137.                       | 138—142.                                           | 144—147.                                        |
| Compline                                            | 4, 31, v. 1—7,91, 134.                                       | As on Sunday.                                 | As on Sunday.                                       | As on Sunday.                                  | As on Sunday.                                | As on Sunday.                                      | As on Sunday.                                   |

This system was little more, however, than a paper system, as it was broken in upon by the frequent occurrence of Festivals; when the ordinary or Ferial Psalms were set aside: and Festivals were so numerous that, in practice, less than one-half of the Psalms, instead of the whole number, were sung through weekly; as is the case in the Latin Church at the present day<sup>3</sup>. This deviation from the appointed order is referred to in the Preface to the Prayer Book of 1549: “. . . notwithstanding that the ancient Fathers have divided the Psalms into seven portions, whereof every one was called a Nocturn: now of late time, a few of them have been daily said, and the rest utterly omitted.” The weekly recitation of the Psalter, however beautiful in theory, was not, therefore, the real practice of the Church; although it was doubtless adopted by many devout persons in their private devotions.

There is reason to think that the ancient system was being set aside also in another way, before any attempt had been made to construct an English Prayer Book out of the ancient Offices. Psalters exist which bear on their title-page “ad usum insignis ecclesiæ Sarum et Eboracensis,” in which a much more simple arrangement is adopted, and one out of which our modern use evidently took its rise. Fifteen such Psalters have been examined by the writer in the Bodleian Library, and in the British Museum, in all of which the Psalms are arranged in a numerical order, according to the following plan, instead of on the elaborate system shown in the preceding Table.

§ Table of the Ordinary Course appointed for the Psalms in Psalters of 1480—1516.

|             | Mattins. | Prime.                   | Tierce <sup>4</sup> . | Sexts. | Nones. | Vespers. |
|-------------|----------|--------------------------|-----------------------|--------|--------|----------|
| Sunday ...  | 1—26     |                          |                       |        |        | 110—115  |
| Monday ..   | 27—38    | On Ferial days the 119th |                       |        |        | 116—118  |
| Tuesday ..  | 39—52    | Psalm is divided among   |                       |        |        | 122—126  |
| Wednesday   | 53—68    | these four hours, and at |                       |        |        | 127—131  |
| Thursday .. | 69—80    | Nones, 120th and 121st   |                       |        |        | 132—137  |
| Friday....  | 81—97    | are added to the portion |                       |        |        | 138—143  |
| Saturday..  | 98—109   | appointed for that hour. |                       |        |        | 144—150  |

In this plan all the Psalms except the 119th and the two short ones following it are divided between Mattins and Vespers, and no notice is taken of Compline; the proportion assigned to Mattins being more than four times that assigned to Vespers, and more than ten times that given to the four intermediate hours<sup>5</sup>.

<sup>4</sup> In King Edward VI.'s Injunctions of 1547 there is one to this effect: “Item, when any Sermon or Homily shall be had, the Prime and hours shall be omitted.” This omission seems to have represented a much earlier practice, as there are no Psalms provided for the little hours of Sunday in the above arrangement of the Psalter. See also the 4th of the Injunctions at page xxv.

<sup>5</sup> The Psalters examined are as follows: Bodleian Library, Douce, 9 (1480), 70 (1504); A. 2, 18. Linc. (1506), Douce, 26, 141; C. 4, 10. Linc. (all 1516); Douce 8 (1530); Rawl. 990 (n. d.); C. 42. Linc. (1555). British Museum Library, Harl. MSS., 2856, 2888, C. 35, g. (1516); C. 35, b. (1524); C. 35, a. (1529). I is quite evident that some of these Psalters were intended for use in the choir; and this is expressly stated in the title of the sixth (Douce, 8), dated 1530, which is as follows: “Psalterium ad decantanda in choro officia ecclesiastica accommodatissimum cum sexpertita litania, hymnis quoque, ac vigiliis defunctorum, una cum calendario et tabulis ex diversis

<sup>1</sup> In Lent Psalms 51 and 118 were used instead of 93 and 100.
<sup>2</sup> These eight Psalms were also those of Lauds on all Feasts of Saints.
<sup>3</sup> The abuse has even increased in modern times, and Mr. Neale says that “according to the practice of the modern Roman Church, a Priest is in the habit of reciting about fifty Psalms, and no more; these fifty being, on the whole, the shortest of the Psalter.” Comm. on Psalms, p. 20.

How far this new plan of reciting the Psalter was introduced into the Church of England it is impossible to say; but it is plainly a link of transition between the ancient system, adapted for the Clergy and religious bodies, and the modern one, adapted for parochial use. It is far from improbable that it was introduced with a view to parochial use; and that for the private recitation of the Clergy and the use of monastic bodies the old system was still retained. The arrangement of the Psalter made by Cardinal Quignonez in his Reformed Breviary had no influence whatever on that adopted in the Prayer Book. The latter was settled in 1549, and has never since been altered. If we could read the experience of previous ages, as well as we can those of the times that have elapsed since this monthly system of recitation was introduced, we should probably come to the conclusion that it is the best one that could be adopted for general use, according to the ordinary measure of devotional attention of which ordinary persons are capable.

Three principal ways of singing or saying the Psalms have been generally recognized in the Christian Church. (1) The Cantus Directus, in which the whole Psalm is sung straight through by the whole choir. (2) The Cantus Antiphonalis, in which the Choir is divided into two sides, the Cantoris and Decani, each singing alternate verses. (3) The Cantus Responsarius, in which the Precentor sings the verses with uneven numbers, and the Choir or Congregation those with even numbers. All three methods have always been in use in the Church of England, but the second and third most commonly so; and all three have the sanction of ancient custom. The second is the method which the Christian Church inherited directly from the Jewish, the one which is most in accordance with the heavenly pattern of praise revealed to us through Isaiah and St. John; and the third may be looked upon rather as a modification of it than as a separate system.

§ 2. Versions of the Psalter used in Divine Service.

It is not probable that the Psalms were ever sung in Hebrew in the Christian Church, although they were doubtless so used in the Temple to the last. Our Lord and His Apostles sanctioned their use in the Vernacular by frequently quoting them from the Septuagint Version; and it is from that Version they are principally quoted even in the Epistle to the Hebrews<sup>1</sup>. The instinct of the Church which has always made it cling to the Septuagint Psalms for use in Divine Service may, therefore, be regarded as growing out of its most primitive usages; and, in some degree, out of our Blessed Lord's own example.

But although a Greek Psalter was thus ready to hand for the Church to use in its services at their first institution, a Latin version was almost equally necessary for that large portion of the western world, in which the Septuagint Psalms would have been almost as unintelligible as the Hebrew. How soon, or by whom, this Latin translation of the Psalter was made, is not on record. Probably it was made at the same time that other portions of Holy Scripture were translated; although it seems almost impossible but that it should have preceded the writing down of the Gospels in Greek, since otherwise the Psalmody of Divine Worship would have been unintelligible to large numbers of Latin Christians.

Portions of such a primitive Latin version of the Holy Scriptures, and more especially the Psalms, are still extant in the works of the Latin fathers who preceded St. Jerome, and in ancient Psalters. The Psalms were so generally used in private as well as for Divine Worship, that St. Augustine says every one who knew a little of Greek as well as Latin was accustomed to dabble in the work of translation. But there appears to have been one principal and recognized Latin Version of the whole Bible, of very early date, which was called the Italic version by St. Augustine [De Doct. Christ. ii. 15]; and to which St. Jerome gave the name of the Vulgate, a name afterwards applied to his own translation. Of this ancient Vulgate, or "old Italic," the Psalter is still extant (although, perhaps, with some corrections of a later date), and it was used in Divine Service long after the rest of the translation had been superseded by the labours of St. Jerome. This version is substantially indicated by the marginal variations which are printed on the right hand in the following pages.

St. Jerome left three versions of the Psalter, which have acquired the names of the Roman, the Gallican, and the Hebrew. The latter was so called, because it was translated directly from the original; but it has never been used in Divine Service, and has rarely appeared in volumes of the Holy Scriptures, and need not, therefore, be further mentioned here. The Roman Psalter of St. Jerome is simply the old Italic sparingly corrected by him, at the request of St. Damasus, during his residence at Rome about A.D. 383. This version was used in the churches of the city of Rome down to the sixteenth century, and is even still used in the church of the Vatican and in St. Mark's at Venice; but it was never extensively used in Divine Service; and where it is found in Psalters meant for use in Divine Service, the older version is mostly written in a parallel column or interlineated, showing the hold which it retained upon the affections of the Church<sup>2</sup>. The Gallican version of St. Jerome has, on the other hand, been the Psalter of the whole Western Church for many centuries, although it was a long time before it entirely superseded the ancient Italic, or Vetus Vulgata. It was translated from Origen's edition of the Septuagint by St. Jerome while he was living at Bethlehem, A.D. 389, and was introduced into Germany and Gaul either by St. Gregory of Tours in the end of the sixth century, or by the English Apostle of Germany, St. Boniface, in the early part of the eighth century. From France it was brought over to England, and eventually superseded the older Italic version in Divine Service throughout the Church of England on the revision of its offices by St. Osmund in the twelfth century. The same version (slightly altered at the last revision of the Vulgate) is in use throughout the Latin Church, both in Divine Service and in complete volumes of the Holy Bible.

Our English Psalter grew out of this long used "Psalterium Davidicum ad usum Ecclesie Sarisburiensis," that is, out of the Gallican version of St. Jerome. It was frequently translated into Anglo-Saxon and mediæval English; and the fifty-two Psalms of the Prymer were of course so translated and revised at the various periods at which the Prymer was re-edited. The translations made from the Vulgate by William de Schorham and Richard Rolle, the hermit of Hampole, early in the fourteenth century, as also that of the Wickliffe Bible of A.D. 1388 are well known: and these versions (in common with other books of Scripture) formed the basis of subsequent translations. Thus, when it was found necessary to restrain the growth of private English versions of the Bible, and to issue one standard and authorized edition, which was in 1540, the edition so issued was a gradual growth, springing originally from the Latin Vulgate of St. Jerome, and corrected (after his example) by comparison with the Septuagint Version and the Hebrew original.

From this first authorized edition of the English Bible our Prayer Book Psalms are taken, as is stated in a note which follows the Preface to the Prayer Book, respecting the Order in which the Psalter is appointed to be read<sup>3</sup>. The paragraph orthodoxorum practis patrum collectis: ad simplicium sacerdotum clericorumque instructionem nunc quidem impressum: et a quodam erudito castigatum et auctum. 1530. Venundantur Londonii in cimiterio divi Pauli apud Johannem renis sub intersignio Sancti Georgii."

The same arrangement of the Psalter is also found in an Augsburg Psalter in the Bodleian [Douce, 268], and in a Psalter in the British Museum, which is marked "in usum ecclie Augusten" in the Catalogue. The Bodleian copy begins, "In nomine Dni nostri Jhesu xri amen. Incipit psalterium cum suis pñentibus quemadmodum ecclesie Augusten ordinatum Dominicis diebus. Invitatorium. Adoremus dominum qui fecit nos."

<sup>1</sup> Tertullian, in his Apology (c. xviii.), seems to say that the Jews of Egypt used the LXX in their Synagogues.

<sup>2</sup> The same thing is found in some Bibles of Queen Elizabeth's reign, in which the old version is placed side by side with that of 1568. In some, the old version supersedes the authorized one altogether.

<sup>3</sup> The "Bible version" of the Psalms has gone through two subsequent revisions, the first that of Archbishop Parker in 1568, and the last that of referred to is as follows:—"Note, That the Psalter followeth the Division of the Hebrews, and the Translation of the Great English Bible, set forth and used in the time of King Henry the Eighth and Edward the Sixth." The only change made since 1540 has been the numbering of the verses, which was first done in the Latin Prayer Book of 1572, and then in the English of 1620.

Thus the English Psalter, which we now use in Divine Service, may be said to speak the continuous and enduring language of the Church, after the example of our Lord and His Apostles when they spoke truths out of Holy Scripture not in the original Hebrew language, but in the venerable Greek version of the Septuagint. And the peculiar manner in which the English Psalter has grown out of the Psalters of ancient days, may entitle us to say, without extravagance or irreverence, that it represents, by a sort of Catholic condensation into one modern tongue, the three ecclesiastical languages in which the Psalter has chiefly been used, the "Hebrew, Greek, and Latin" of the Cross; and that it thus represents also the original and the continuous Inspiration by which God the Holy Spirit guides the Church into all truth.

§ 3. The Meaning of the Psalms as used in Divine Service.

No part of Holy Scripture possesses greater capacity than the Psalter for that many-sided application which is a chief characteristic of inspired writings. We may regard it as a book of history, for it contains a large store of materials for filling up the details of the personal life of David and of the national life of Israel. It is a book of spiritual experiences; for in it the man after God's own heart, and other godly souls, have recorded the love, the joy, the penitence, the sorrow with which they opened out their innermost selves to their God. If we look for moral teaching there, we may hear God Himself speaking to us precepts of Divine wisdom through His servants, showing what are His ways towards men, and what the relation in which they stand to Him. If we ask for words of prayer, in the Psalter we find the very Prayer Book which was used by Christ and His saints; and may use the privilege of sending up to the Throne of Grace the very aspirations that have been consecrated a second time by passing thither from the lips of the Son of Man. From one end to the other it is full of the praises of the Lord, such as the soul need never tire of uttering, and the Lord will never tire of receiving. It is a book of prophecy, speaking of things that were to be in distant ages with words that show how deeply they were inspired by Him to Whom all things are a continual present. And it is, above all, a book in which Christ and His Church are prefigured, so that David speaks in the Person of his Lord, and Israel personifies that new Jerusalem which is the Mother of us all.

Of these manifold tones in which the Psalter speaks, some are adapted for the pulpit, some for private meditation, some for the confession of the penitent when he is upon his knees in self-abasement. But when it is used in Divine Service there is one tone with which the Psalter ever rings; and that is the one which speaks to the praise and glory of God concerning the relations which exist between the Divine Nature, the Son of Man, and the Mystical Body of Christ. All other aspects in which the Psalter can be viewed ought to come within the range of Christian study and practice; and we cannot afford to undervalue any one of them. But as a Psalter for use in Divine Service all other views and meanings ought to be subordinated to this, which sees chiefly God, and Christ, and the Church in the Psalms. Thus the Christian finds the Psalter a living word for every generation; and if he sings concerning the City of God, the voice of his understanding and love dwells little on the historical Jerusalem of the past, but soars upward either to the allegory under which lies hidden the Church Militant of the present, to the figurative representation of the soul in which Christ dwells, or to the exalted Image which reveals to his faith that Celestial City, wherein will be the eternal home of the saints<sup>1</sup>.

This spiritual mode of viewing the Psalms was the principal if not the only one adopted by the early Church. "All the Psalms," says St. Jerome, "appertain to the Person of Christ." "David more than all the rest of the prophets," says St. Ambrose, "spake of the marriage between the Divine and Human nature." Tertullian had declared that nearly all the Psalms represent the Son speaking to the Father; and St. Hilary leaves his opinion on record, that all which is in the Psalms refers to the knowledge of the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, His Incarnation, Passion, and Resurrection, and to the glory also and power of our own life in Him. Such habits of thought were partly inherited from the Jews, who could see the Messiah in their ancient prophecies, though the generation in which He came failed to recognize His actual Person. But without going back to the Jews, we may trace this clear vision of Christ in the Psalms to the Apostles themselves, and from them to the teaching of His own lips and example. In the earliest dawn of the Church after the Ascension, the Apostles began to find in the Psalms an explanation of the events which were occurring around them. They recognized in the fall of an Apostle a fulfilment of that "which the Holy Ghost by the mouth of David spake before concerning Judas which was guide to them that took Jesus . . . . For it is written in the book of Psalms, Let his habitation be desolate, and let no man dwell therein; and his bishoprick let another take" [Acts ii. 16. 20]. And in the Resurrection of their Lord they found the one full interpretation of what the "patriarch David . . . . being a prophet" . . . . and "seeing before" of that which was to be, "spake of the Resurrection of Christ, that His soul was not left in hell, neither His flesh did see corruption" [Acts ii. 31]. Such a use of the Psalms was not by way of adaptation or mere illustration, but as clear, unimpeachable evidence; infallible truth, coming from the Fountain of Truth.

Nor is it to be wondered at that the Apostles should thus immediately, and as a matter of course, go to the Psalms for light about Christ and the Church; for their Divine Master had often shown them the way during the time of His ministrations among them; while the last hours which He and they had spent together seem to have been wonderfully connected by Him with "the things that were spoken in the Psalms concerning Him." It seems, indeed, as if our Blessed Lord took every opportunity at that time of showing how the meaning of the Psalter was to be seen clearly only when viewed in the light of the Gospel. When the Pharisees remonstrated with Him for permitting the children to sing Hosanna to Him as the Son of David coming in the Name of the Lord, it is out of David that He answers them, reminding them of the eighth Psalm, and saying, "Yea, have ye never read, Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings, Thou hast perfected praise?" [Matt. xxi. 16.] In the same manner, shortly after, He foretold them of His own glory (notwithstanding their rejection of Him) by quoting words that seemed from a human point of view to have had no such application, "The stone which the builders rejected is become the head of the corner" [Matt. xxi. 42]. And from their own confession that Christ was the Son of David spoken of in the Psalms, He convicted them of folly in not acknowledging Him, the Son of David, for their Lord [Matt. xxii. 45].

After these final hours of Christ's public ministrations came those which ended the time of His humiliation. When, during that sad and solemn period, He would reveal to the Apostles that the traitor was to come from among themselves, He shows them how this had been already predicted in the Psalms, and that what is to happen will be in fulfilment of the Scripture, "He that eateth bread with Me hath lifted up his heel against Me" the translators (principally the Cambridge Committee) of 1611. But the Commissioners of 1611 were specially enjoined to deviate from Archbishop Parker's version of 1568 only when the sense of the original positively required them to do so, and "revision" would more truly describe their work than "translation."

<sup>1</sup> These four meanings of Holy Scripture are thus expressed in an ancient couplet:

"Littera scripta docet: quod credas Allegoria: Quid speres, Anagoge: quid agas, Tropologia"

[John xiii. 18]. When He speaks of the feelings which the Jews entertained towards Him, again He goes to the Psalms, "But this cometh to pass that the word might be fulfilled that is written in their law, They hated Me without a cause" [John xv. 25]. His last act of common worship with them was when He and they sung the latter half of the great Hallelujah hymn of the Passover [Psalms 116—118] as they went forth to Gethsemane. And when He was on the Cross the words of the Psalmist form such an atmosphere of fulfilled prophecy around the Throne of His suffering, as to make a thoughtful Christian receive with respect the old tradition, that He recited the twenty-second and following Psalms as far as the sixth verse of the thirty-first, before commending His soul into the hands of His Father, not in new words, but in those with which His Spirit had inspired David many ages before. [Luke xxiii. 46.]

When the Apostles, then, began immediately to look for the Gospel in the Psalter, they followed with loving faith in the path which their Master had opened out to them by His words and example. And that this pathway was not opened out for a temporary object, only as one by which the Jews might be led through their own Scriptures to conviction, may be seen by the frequency with which St. Paul (who received his Gospel by direct revelation from his ascended Lord, and chiefly for ministrations among those who were not Jews) deals with the Psalms in the same manner. He writes to the Romans concerning the privileges which Christ brought home to Gentiles as well as Jews, and finds God's olden declaration of this truth in the words of the 18th Psalm, "For this cause I will confess to Thee among the Gentiles, and sing unto Thy Name;" and again in the 117th Psalm, "Praise the Lord, all ye Gentiles; and laud Him, all ye people" [Rom. xv. 9. 11]. Where we should otherwise least expect it he finds an allegorical allusion to the first spread of the Gospel; and fixes the nineteenth as one of our Easter Psalms by showing that "their sound went into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world," refers to the Apostles of the Sun of righteousness, Who Himself, and Himself in them, was running His course to extend the Light of salvation through all nations. How remarkably the Apostle draws out the depth of meaning contained in the Psalms to throw light on the argument of his Epistle to the Hebrews, is familiar to every thoughtful reader of the New Testament; and some notes will be found under several Psalms in the following pages, connected with the meaning which he has given to them in that Epistle.

This principle of interpretation has been adopted by the Church in the selection of Proper Psalms for days which commemorate special epochs of our Lord's life and work; and a careful consideration of these Proper Psalms will show that the principle is recognized as one whose application is by no means intended to be limited to the most self-evident allegories and spiritual interpretations. In the choice of such Psalms as the 19th, 89th, and 132nd for Christmas Day, of the 40th and 88th for Good Friday, of those appointed for Ascension Day, and of the 68th, 104th, and 145th for Whitsunday, we see the Church penetrating far below the surface into the mystical depths of the Psalter; and finding there reasons why these rather than other Psalms should be taken on the lips of Christians to celebrate the Incarnation, Death, and Ascension of our Lord, and the marvellous operations of the Holy Spirit in carrying on the work of God's glory in man's redemption.

There can be no doubt, therefore, that in thus using the Psalter as a treasury of truths respecting Christ and His Church, which God the Holy Ghost Himself has filled from the treasury of Divine wisdom, we are strictly following the course which our Lord and His Apostles first pointed out. And when, offering up to God of that which He has given us, we take these truths out of this treasury, and cause them to ascend to the Throne of His grace as the chief meaning of our words of praise, we make such a use of them as is most accordant with the habits of the saints, and with the teaching of our infallible Guide. Thus we praise Christ as God whose Throne is from everlasting; Christ who comes in the Incarnation, saying, "A Body hast Thou prepared Me;" Christ, the Stone set at nought by the builders, but becoming the Head of the corner; Christ bearing the sins of the world, and saying, as the Representative of sinners, "Lord, rebuke Me not in Thine indignation;" Christ, under the eclipse of sin borne for others, crying, "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" Christ, reigning from His Cross, lifted up that He may draw all men unto Him; Christ, awaking right early on the morning of the Resurrection; Christ, the King of Glory, carrying our nature within the everlasting gates; Christ, sitting on the right hand of God until all His enemies be made His footstool; Christ, the true Vine of Unity and Sacramental life, brought out of Egypt that it might take root, and fill the land with a people wondrously made one with Christ Himself.

Nor need we fear, even beyond those many applications of the Psalms in this manner which are given us in the New Testament, to seek for others also in uninspired wisdom and Christian common sense: especially if we take for our guides the many holy and learned writers who have striven humbly, reverently, and with deep faith to follow the line so clearly marked out for them, and to search the Psalms for Him that hath the Key of David that they might make an acceptable offering of praise in their worship before the Ark. Such a use of the Psalter will give to those who sing it day by day, some experience of the devout and happy feelings which David himself had, when he sang, "My soul shall be satisfied, even as it were with marrow and fatness: when my mouth praiseth Thee with joyful lips."

THE PSALMS OF DAVID.

THE I. PSALM.

Beatus vir, qui non abiit.

The I. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

BLESSED is the man that hath not walked in the counsel of the ungodly, nor stood in the way of sinners : and hath not sat in the seat of the scornful.

2 But his delight is in the law of the Lord : and in his law will he exercise himself day and night.

3 And he shall be like a tree planted by the water-side : that will bring forth his fruit in due season.

4 His leaf also shall not wither : and look, whatsoever he doeth, it shall prosper.

5 As for the ungodly, it is not so with them : but they are like the chaff, which the wind scattereth away from the face of the earth.

6 Therefore the ungodly shall not be able to stand in the judgement : neither the sinners in the congregation of the righteous.

7 But the Lord knoweth the way of the righteous : and the way of the ungodly shall perish.

Jer. xvii. 8.
Rev. xxii. 2.

PSALM I.

Beyond the obvious moral meaning of this Psalm, it contains a prophetic laudation of the holiness of Christ. He is "the Man" to Whom we sing, "Blessing, and glory, and wisdom, and thanksgiving, and honour, and power, and might," as the Lamb of God, Who is God, throughout the Psalms. In this particular Psalm He is praised as the one only wearer of our nature in Whom pure and perfect holiness has been found during the time of earthly sojourn and probation. In His temptation, He walked not in the counsel of the Wicked One, stood not in the way of sinners by yielding thereto, and refused the temporal cathedra which was offered Him (though it seemed to bring Him in a moment that sovereignty which could otherwise only be won through suffering), because it was the throne of the Evil One, the Prince of this world, and not the throne of the Cross. His delight was to do the will of Him that sent Him, in the day while there was glad sunshine and time to work, and in the night too, when all was eclipse, and darkness, and sorrow. Being

PSALTERIUM DAVIDICUM

AD USUM

ECCLESIAE SARISBURIENSIS<sup>1</sup>.

PSALMUS I.

BEATUS vir qui non abiit in consilio impiorum, et in via peccatorum non stetit : et in cathedra penitentiae non sedit :

Sunday Mattins.
1st Noct.
Easter Day and Eve, Mattins.
Corp. Christ,
1st Noct.

Sed in lege Domini voluntas ejus : et in lege ejus meditabitur die ac nocte.

Et erit tanquam lignum, quod plantatum est secus decursus aquarum : quod fructum suum dabit in tempore suo :

Et folium ejus non defluet : et omnia quaecunque faciet prosperabuntur.

Non sic impii, non sic : sed tanquam pulvis quem projicit ventus a facie terræ.

Ideo non resurgent impii in judicio : neque peccatores in concilio justorum.

Quoniam novit Dominus viam justorum : et iter impiorum peribit.

made perfect through suffering, He became the origin of perfection in others ; the Corn of Wheat cast into the ground to die and to spring up again with a power of life-giving in its own resurrection ; the Corn and Wine of the Tree of Life, planted by that River the streams whereof make glad the City of God ; a fruit of sacramental life, for the regeneration, edification, and resurrection of souls. Nor can any of His work fail through any deficiency of its own ; for whatsoever He doeth, whether of grace towards men, or of Intercession towards God, it shall prosper, because it is His.

As for the ungodly who sets up his kingdom against that of Christ, opposing Him first by the Jews, then by the Heathen, and at all times by sin, the end will prove how great the contrast ! The Wind of Pentecost will at last scatter altogether all the opponents of the Kingdom of God, as it has been doing in <sup>1</sup> N.B.—Only the text of the Psalms themselves is here printed, notwithstanding the above title : and they are placed in the order of the modern, not of the ancient Psalter.

THE II PSALM.

Quare fremuerunt gentes ?

The I. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Easter Day Mat-
tins.
A Passion Psalm.
Acts iv. 25.

WHY do the heathen so furiously rage together : and why do the people imagine a vain thing ?

2 The kings of the earth stand up, and the rulers take counsel together :
against the Lord, and against his Anointed.

Luke xix. 14.

3 Let us break their bonds asunder :
and cast away their cords from us.

4 He that dwelleth in heaven, shall laugh them to scorn : the Lord shall have them in derision.

5 Then shall he speak unto them in his wrath : and vex them in his sore displeasure.

6 Yet have I set my King : upon my holy hill of Sion.

Acts xiii. 33.
Cf. Matt. xxvi.
63.
Heb. i. 5. v. 5.

7 I will preach the law, whereof the Lord hath said unto me : Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee.

8 Desire of me, and I shall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance :
and the utmost parts of the earth for thy possession.

Rev. ii. 27. xix.
15.

9 Thou shalt bruise them with a rod of iron : and break them in pieces like a potter's vessel.

10 Be wise now therefore, O ye kings : be learned, ye that are judges of the earth.

11 Serve the Lord in fear : and rejoice unto him with reverence.

John v. 23.

12 Kiss the Son, lest he be angry, and so ye perish from the right way :
if his wrath be kindled (yea, but a little) blessed are all they that put their trust in him.

part ever since its first sound was heard. For them there will be no defence in the dreadful Day of Judgment, nor any place in the Communion of glorified saints. Only the path which He has marked out, Who said, "I am the way," can lead to the Presence of God; and they who go in the path of the Adversary must take their lot with him.

Blessed is the follower of the Man Christ Jesus, who walks in His way, and endureth temptation with steadfastness; for after his trial and victory he also shall receive a crown of life, which the Lord Jesus, the righteous Judge, hath prepared for them that love Him, that they may reign with Him in His glory.

PSALM II.

This is a Hymn, at once, of our Lord's suffering and of His victory, and therefore a Psalm for Easter Day. Its true meaning is shown by the quotations from it in Acts iv. 25, 26, by SS. Peter and John, and by those in Acts xiii. 33, Heb. i. 5, and v.

PSALMUS II.

QUARE fremuerunt gentes : et populi meditati sunt inania ?

Sunday Mattins.
1st Noct.
Christm. Matt.,
1st Noct.
Good Friday,
1st Noct.

Astiterunt reges terræ, et principes convenerunt in unum : adversus Dominum, et adversus Christum ejus.

Dirumpamus vincula eorum : et projiciamus a nobis jugum ipsorum.

Qui habitat in cœlis irridebit eos :
et Dominus subsannabit eos.

Tunc loquetur ad eos in ira sua : et in furore suo conturbabit eos.

Ego autem constitutus sum Rex ab eo super Sion montem sanctum ejus :
prædicans præceptum ejus.

Dominus dixit ad me, Filius meus es tu : ego hodie genui te.

Postula a me, et dabo tibi gentes hæreditatem tuam : et possessionem tuam terminos terræ.

Reges eos in virga ferrea : et tan- Ποιμανεὶς αὐτοὺς quam vas figuli confringes eos. LXX.

Et nunc reges intelligite : erudi- erud. omnes qui mini qui judicatis terram.

Servite Domino in timore : et exultate ei cum tremore.

Apprehendite disciplinam, nequando irascatur Dominus : et pereatis de via justa.

Cum exarserit in brevi ira ejus :
beati omnes qui confidunt in eo.

5, by St. Paul. The manner in which it is quoted by the former may lead to the conclusion, however, that the Psalm is spoken of the mystical body of Christ, as well as of the Messiah Himself; and of the Church also it may, indeed, be sung that she gained her victory over the world by suffering.

To this day the question may be asked, Why did the "heathen," and "the people" of the Jews, persecute Christ and His Church as they did? "We will not have this Man to reign over us," was their cry for ages, as it is of the Jews still; and yet God's irresistible law had gone forth that His eternally begotten Son should establish a supreme spiritual Empire upon earth, which should gather within its embrace all nations, to make them "the Kingdoms of the Lord and of His Christ." And now the Good Shepherd has broken asunder all other universal empire, that He might guide and gather men with His staff into the unity of His fold. While the world cries to break away the bands and to cast away the yokes, He is ever crying, "Take

THE III PSALM.

Domine, quid multiplicati?

The I. Day.

Morning

Prayer.

[A daily Morning

Psalm of the Eastern

Church.]

Matt. xxvii. 43.

Isa. liii. 4.

LORD, how are they increased that trouble me : many are they that rise against me.

2 Many one there be that say of my soul : There is no help for him in his God.

3 But thou, O Lord, art my defender : thou art my worship, and the lifter up of my head.

4 I did call upon the Lord with my voice : and he heard me out of his holy hill.

5 I laid me down and slept, and rose up again : for the Lord sustained me.

6 I will not be afraid for ten thousands of the people : that have set themselves against me round about.

7 Up Lord, and help me, O my God : for thou smitest all mine enemies upon the cheek-bone ; thou hast broken the teeth of the ungodly.

8 Salvation belongeth unto the Lord : and thy blessing is upon thy people.

John xi. 11.

1 Thess. iv. 14.

Matt. xxvi. 53.

Acts iv. 12.

Jonah ii. 9.

THE IV PSALM.

Cum invocarem.

John xii. 27, 28.

HEAR me when I call, O God of my righteousness : thou hast set me at liberty when I was in trouble ; have mercy upon me, and hearken unto my prayer.

My yoke upon you . . . for My yoke is easy and My burden is light :” and the vengeance of the Lord has been displayed in that loving compulsion by which He has led His enemies to true wisdom and learning, by leading them to do reverent service and homage to the Son of Man.

Thus the Cross of the Passion has become the triumphant Banner of the Resurrection ; and the sign of the Son of Man, which was once the badge of shame, surmounts the proudest tokens of earthly glory, to signify that He against whom the world exalted itself in vain, has become “King of kings and Lord of lords.”

PSALM III.

In David, persecuted by his son Absalom, the light of Gospel analogy shows us a type of Christ coming to His own and His own receiving Him not. On Palm Sunday the multitude led Him in triumph to Jerusalem, but on Good Friday they led Him before Herod and Pilate ; so that they were “increased” that troubled Him by rejecting Him, and become “many” that rose against Him, “saying, Crucify Him, Crucify Him.” Literally, the mockers said, “He trusted in God ; let Him deliver Him now, if He will have Him :” figuratively, the whole world looked on His Passion and said, “We did esteem Him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted.”

PSALMUS III.

DOMINE, quid multiplicati sunt qui tribulant me ? multi insurgunt adversum me.

Sunday Mattins.
1st Noct.

Multi dicunt animæ meæ : Non est salus ipsi in Deo ejus.

Tu autem, Domine, susceptor meus es : gloria mea, et exaltans caput meum.

Voce mea ad Dominum clamavi : et exaudivit me de monte sancto suo.

Ego dormivi, et soporatus sum : et exsurrexi, quia Dominus suscepit me.

et somnum capi et resurrexi quoniam . . .

Non timebo millia populi circumdantis me : exsurge, Domine, salvum me fac, Deus meus.

Quoniam tu percussisti omnes adversantes mihi sine causa : dentes peccatorum contrivisti.

conteruisti

Domini est salus : et super populum tuum benedictio tua.

PSALMUS IV.

CUM invocarem exaudivit me Deus justitiæ meæ : in tribulatione dilatasti mihi.

Easter Eve,
Corp. Chr.,
1st Noct.
Maundy Th.,
Prime,
Martyrs,
Confessors,
2nd Noct.
Compline.
Miser. mihi, Domine, et

Miserere mei : et exaudi orationem meam.

But, as in the preceding Psalm, the voice of sorrow is turned into a song of joy ; and in the depths of His Passion, the suffering Man of Sorrows could say, “Father, into Thy hands I commend My spirit,” knowing that He would be the Lifter up of His head in the Resurrection and in the coming Kingdom.

So may the Church take up the words of Christ, and set aside all fear when the world opposes the work of God, knowing that One has said, “The gates of hell shall not prevail against it.”

So may each member of Christ lay them down to rest night by night, knowing that there is One who will “lighten our darkness ;” and at the last lay them down to the sleep of the grave, saying, “I know that My Redeemer liveth,”—“If we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also that sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him.”

PSALM IV.

It is the last verse, probably, of this Psalm which has marked it out as the first of the Compline or late Evensong Psalms throughout the Eastern and the Western Church ; but a general tone of thankfulness for rest after trouble, toil, and sorrow, pervades the whole Psalm, and fits it for the place which it has so universally occupied in the devotions of the Church.

Uttered in the person of Christ, it is an expansion of His com-

The I. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
John viii. 49.

2 O ye sons of men, how long will ye blaspheme mine honour : and have such pleasure in vanity, and seek after leasing ?

Matt. iii. 17. xvii. 5.

3 Know this also, that the Lord hath chosen to himself the man that is godly : when I call upon the Lord, he will hear me.

Eph. iv. 26.

4 Stand in awe, and sin not : commune with your own heart, and in your chamber, and be still.

5 Offer the sacrifice of righteousness : and put your trust in the Lord.

6 There be many that say : Who will shew us any good ?

7 Lord, lift thou up : the light of thy countenance upon us.

8 Thou hast put gladness in my heart : since the time that their corn and wine and oil increased.

9 I will lay me down in peace, and take my rest : for it is thou, Lord, only that makest me dwell in safety.

THE V PSALM.

Verba mea auribus.

PONDER my words, O Lord : consider my meditation.

John xx. 28.

2 O hearken thou unto the voice of my calling, my King, and my God : for unto thee will I make my prayer.

3 My voice shalt thou hear betimes, O Lord : early in the morning will I direct my prayer unto thee, and will look up.

4 For thou art the God that hast no pleasure in wickedness : neither shall any evil dwell with thee.

5 Such as be foolish shall not stand in thy sight : for thou hatest all them that work vanity.

Filii hominum, usquequo gravi corde? gravis corde ut quid diligitis vanitatem, et quæritis mendacium ?

Et scitote quoniam mirificavit Dominus sanctum suum : Dominus exaudivit me cum clamavero ad eum. magnificavit

Irascimini, et nolite peccare : quæ qui dicitis dicitis in cordibus vestris, et in cubilibus vestris compungimini.

Sacrificate sacrificium justitiæ, et sperate in Domino : multi dicunt, Quis ostendit nobis bona ?

Signatum est super nos lumen vultus tui, Domine : dedisti lætitiā in corde meo.

A fructu frumenti, vini, et olei sui : A tempore frum multiplicati sunt.

In pace in idipsum : dormiam et obdormiam requiescam.

Quoniam tu, Domine, singulariter in spe : constituisti me.

PSALMUS V.

VERBA mea auribus percipe, Domine : intellige clamorem meum.

Intende voci orationis meæ : Rex meus et Deus meus.

Quoniam ad te orabo, Domine : mane exaudies vocem meam.

Mane astabo tibi et videbo : quoniam non Deus volens iniquitatem tu es.

Neque habitabit juxta te malignus : neque permanebunt injusti ante oculos tuos.

Monday Lauds.
Mattins of the departed.
Martyrs,
Confessors,
2nd Noct.
St. Michael,
1st Noct.

mendation prayer, and applies to that moment when, while the world was still standing in awe at the supernatural darkness, He cried of "the Sacrifice of Righteousness," "It is finished." Doubtless a ray of Divine light comforted the broken heart of the dying Jesus as He commended His soul to His Father. He knew that the Lord had heard Him, and would glorify again the Name which He had already glorified. And so while the people said, "He saved others, Himself He cannot save," Jesus looked forth on the travail of His soul, and was satisfied. The Life-giving Corn and Wine had been perfected, the Uction from the Holy One had been bought by the atoning blood, and now for ever was the Sufferer set at liberty, in peace to take His rest.

Even thus is the true peace and rest of the Church to be found in the Sacramental Life by which it is made the mystical Body of Christ ; and whether in life or in death the members of that Body may dwell safely and in hope, through Him who is the Corn, the Wine, and the Oil of their souls.

It has been said of these four Psalms which open the Psalter that they contain an epitome of the Gospel. In the first we have the Life of Christ, in the second His Passion, in the fourth His Death and Burial, in the third His Resurrection.

PSALM V.

The third verse of this Psalm appears to indicate that it was composed for morning use ; and both in the Eastern and the Western systems it is thus appropriated to the second Morning Service, or Lauds, on Monday.

It is, throughout, the voice of the Church speaking to Christ. As in the dawn of its existence the Church prayed that the Lord would grant unto His servants that with all boldness they might speak His word, and that He would stretch forth His hand to

The I. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

6 Thou shalt destroy them that speak leasing : the Lord will abhor both the bloodthirsty and deceitful man.

7 But as for me, I will come into thine house, even upon the multitude of thy mercy : and in thy fear will I worship toward thy holy temple.

Acts iv. 29, 30.

8 Lead me, O Lord, in thy righteousness, because of mine enemies : make thy way plain before my face.

9 For there is no faithfulness in his mouth : their inward parts are very wickedness.

Rom. iii. 18.

10 Their throat is an open sepulchre : they flatter with their tongue.

11 Destroy thou them, O God, let them perish through their own imaginations : cast them out in the multitude of their ungodliness; for they have rebelled against thee.

12 And let all them that put their trust in thee rejoice : they shall ever be giving of thanks, because thou defendest them; they that love thy Name, shall be joyful in thee;

Gen. xv. 1.

13 For thou, Lord, wilt give thy blessing unto the righteous : and with thy favourable kindness wilt thou defend him as with a shield.

THE VI PSALM.

Domine, ne in furore.

Evening
Prayer.
Ash Wed. Mat-
tins.
A penitential Ps.
Rev. iii. 19.

O LORD, rebuke me not in thine indignation : neither chasten me in thy displeasure.

2 Have mercy upon me, O Lord, for I am weak : O Lord, heal me, for my bones are vexed.

John xii. 27.
Lament. i. 12.

3 My soul also is sore troubled : but, Lord, how long wilt thou punish me ?

4 Turn thee, O Lord, and deliver my soul : O save me for thy mercy's sake.

Odisti omnes qui operantur iniquitatem : perdes omnes qui loquuntur mendacium. Od. Domine, omnes perdes eos qui Virum sanguinum et dolosum abominabitur Dominus : ego autem in multitudine misericordiæ tuæ.

Introibo in domum tuam : adorabo ad templum sanctum tuum in timore tuo. Int. Domine, in Domine, deduc me in justitia tua propter inimicos meos : dirige in conspectu tuo viam meam.

Quoniam non est in ore eorum veritas : cor eorum vanum est.

Sepulchrum patens est guttur eorum ; linguis suis dolose agebant : judica illos Deus.

Decidant a cogitationibus suis ; secundum multitudinem impietatum eorum expelle eos : quoniam irritaverunt te, Domine. quoniam exacervaverunt te

Et lætentur omnes qui sperant in te : in æternum exultabunt, et habitabis in eis.

Et gloriabuntur in te omnes qui diligunt nomen tuum : quoniam tu benedices justo. Domine, benedices justum

Domine, ut scuto bonæ voluntatis tuæ : coronasti nos.

PSALMUS VI.

DOMINE, ne in furore tuo arguas me : neque in ira tua corripias me. *Sunday Mattins.
1st Noct.
Matt. of the de-
parted.
ne in ira . . neque
in furore*

Miserere mei, Domine, quoniam infirmus sum : sana me Domine, quoniam conturbata sunt ossa mea. omnia ossa

Et anima mea turbata est valde : sed tu, Domine, usquequo ?

Convertere, Domine, et eripe animam meam : salvum me fac propter misericordiam tuam.

PSALM VI.

In this first of the seven penitential Psalms we begin to hear the voice of our Redeemer speaking as One upon whom the Lord hath laid the iniquity of us all, and whose visage was marred more than any man's in the awful hours of darkness which He suffered upon the cross. No one was ever so humbled by sin as the Son of God, who condescended to a shameful death for sinners : no one ever so felt the wrath of God poured out upon Him as He whose loving heart was broken by the rebuke of the Lord, so that He cried, "My God, My God, why hast Thou forwork signs and wonders ; so now does she direct her constant prayer that His Presence may bless the opening day, and that He will direct her way.

It is well, in using this and other Psalms in which the destruction of enemies is spoken of, to remember that they are God's enemies, and the enemies of His Church and law, against whom the words are uttered ; and that the destruction of evil for the salvation of the repentant evil-doer is the highest exercise of Divine mercy. Nor must it be forgotten that as wickedness is essentially hateful to the All-Good, so there is a "wrath" even "of the Lamb" whose meekness and love are infinite.

The I. Day.
Evening
Prayer.

5 For in death no man remembereth thee : and who will give thee thanks in the pit ?

Jer. ix. 1.
Lament. i. 16. iii.
48, 49.

6 I am weary of my groaning, every night wash I my bed : and water my couch with my tears.

Isa. liii. 2.

7 My beauty is gone for very trouble : and worn away because of all mine enemies.

Matt. vii. 23.
Cf. LXX.

8 Away from me, all ye that work vanity : for the Lord hath heard the voice of my weeping.

9 The Lord hath heard my petition : the Lord will receive my prayer.

Luke x. 18.

10 All mine enemies shall be confounded, and sore vexed : they shall be turned back, and put to shame suddenly.

THE VII PSALM.

Domine, Deus meus.

Heb. ii. 18.

O LORD my God, in thee have I put my trust : save me from all them that persecute me, and deliver me ;

1 Pet. v. 8.

2 Lest he devour my soul like a lion, and tear it in pieces : while there is none to help.

1 Pet. ii. 22.

3 O Lord my God, if I have done any such thing : or if there be any wickedness in my hands ;

4 If I have rewarded evil unto him that dealt friendly with me : yea, I have delivered him that without any cause is mine enemy ;

Cf. Job xxxi.
pa-sim.

5 Then let mine enemy persecute my soul, and take me : yea, let him tread my life down upon the earth, and lay mine honour in the dust.

6 Stand up, O Lord, in thy wrath, and lift up thyself, because of the indignation of mine enemies : arise up for me in the judgement that thou hast commanded.

Quoniam non est in morte qui memor sit tui : in inferno autem quis confitebitur tibi ?

Laboravi in gemitu meo, lavabo per singulas noctes lectum meum : lacrymis meis stratum meum rigabo.

Turbatus est a furore oculus meus : est præ ira oculus inveteravi inter omnes inimicos meos.

Discedite a me omnes qui operamini iniquitatem : quoniam exaudivit Dominus vocem fletus mei.

Exaudivit Dominus deprecationem meam : Dominus orationem meam suscepit. meam adsumpsit

Erubescant et conturbentur vehementer omnes inimici mei : convertantur et erubescant valde velociter. conturbentur omnes averlantur retrorsum

PSALMUS VII.

DOMINE, Deus meus, in te speravi : Sunday Mattins. 1st Noct. Matt. of the departed. libera me ab omnibus . . . et eripe me salvum me fac ex omnibus persequentibus me, et libera me.

Nequando rapiat ut leo animam meam : dum non est qui redimat, neque qui salvum faciat.

Domine, Deus meus, si feci istud : si est iniquitas in manibus meis.

Si reddidi retribuentibus mihi mala : decidam merito ab inimicis meis inanis.

Persequatur inimicus animam meam et comprehendat, et conculcet in terram vitam meam : et gloriam meam in pulverem deducat.

Exsurge, Domine, in ira tua : et exaltare in finibus inimicorum meorum.

saken Me ?" Yet, as God has said, "As many as I love I rebuke and chasten," so His love for sinners was shown in the chastisement which was laid upon the Redeemer of sinners, and in the rebuke which shed forth that Redeemer's Blood for their salvation.

Since our Lord and Saviour thus condescended to be so entirely one of ourselves that He was "made sin for us," and could utter the words of one bowed down by the burden, so has He thus set us an example of words wherein each sinner may turn to God with words of penitence in deprecation of His indignation and displeasure. And as the darkness passed away with the returning Light of the Father's Presence, so can all sinners hope that a penitential confession of sin will end in words of joy through the application of the healing absolution, "Thy sins are forgiven thee."

PSALM VII.

The second verse of this Psalm points out the adversary spoken of as that one of whom St. Peter speaks as a roaring lion walking about seeking whom he may devour ; and of whom David had already found an evil type when he was guarding the flock entrusted to him by his father. [1 Sam. xvii. 34.] And since the adversary is Satan, so the Person speaking must be Christ, the seed of the woman persecuted by the Evil One, the seed of the

The I. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
John xii. 32.

7 And so shall the congregation of the people come about thee : for their sakes therefore lift up thyself again.

8 The Lord shall judge the people ; give sentence with me, O Lord : according to my righteousness, and according to the innocency that is in me.

John xii. 31.
Rev. xx. 10.

9 O let the wickedness of the ungodly come to an end : but guide thou the just.

Rev. ii. 23.

10 For the righteous God : trieth the very hearts and reins.

11 My help cometh of God : who preserveth them that are true of heart.

12 God is a righteous judge, strong, and patient : and God is provoked every day.

13 If a man will not turn, he will whet his sword : he hath bent his bow, and made it ready.

14 He hath prepared for him the instruments of death : he ordaineth his arrows against the persecutors.

15 Behold, he travaileth with mischief : he hath conceived sorrow, and brought forth ungodliness.

Rev. ix. 11.
xx. 3. 14.

16 He hath graven and digged up a pit : and is fallen himself into the destruction that he made for other.

Matt. xxvii. 5.

17 For his travail shall come upon his own head : and his wickedness shall fall on his own pate.

John xi. 41.
Rev. xi. 17, 18.

18 I will give thanks unto the Lord, according to his righteousness : and I will praise the Name of the Lord most High.

Et exsurge, Domine, Deus meus, in præcepto quod mandasti : et synagoga populorum circundabit te.

Et propter hanc in altum regredere : Dominus judicat populos.

Domine, judica

Judica me, Domine, secundum justitiam meam : et secundum innocentiam meam super me.

innoc. manuum meorum

Consumetur nequitia peccatorum, et diriges justum : scrutans corda et renes Deus.

dirige

Justum adjutorium meum a Domino : qui salvos facit rectos corde.

Deus iudex justus, fortis, et patiens : numquid irascitur per singulos dies ?

fortis et longan-imis

Nisi conversi fueritis, gladium suum vibravit : arcum suum tetendit, et paravit illum.

convertamini

Et in eo paravit vasa mortis : sagittas suas ardentibus effecit.

in ipso

Ecce parturit injustitiam ; concepit dolorem : et peperit iniquitatem.

Lacum aperuit, et effodit eum : et incidit in foveam quam fecit.

Convertetur dolor ejus in caput ejus : et in verticem ipsius iniquitas ejus descendet.

in capite

in vertice ejus

Confitebor Domino secundum justitiam ejus : et psallam Nomini Domini Altissimi.

serpent whose head He was to bruise. Many a lamb had the lion seized out of the flock, and at last he strove to tear in pieces the Lamb of God Himself. All through the Psalm it is this personal Adversary who is spoken of ; and even when the enemies of Christ are represented as many, the one power and influence by which they are moved is recalled to our minds by the interchange of the plural and the singular number.

The plea of innocence which is made in the third, fourth, and fifth verses, is mingled with a prophetic foreshadowing of that which is now history, that "He who did no sin, neither was guile found in His mouth," was yet "made sin" for us, had His holy body torn in pieces, His soul persecuted, His life trodden down upon the earth, and His honour laid in the dust. Thus David in his affliction prophetically personified Him whose bitter Passion wrought out the Atonement, and who, "while we were enemies, yet died for us."

Then, as in previous Psalms, a sudden transition takes place from the "dust" of death to the "lifting up" of the Resurrection. In one sense it is the voice of Christ calling upon His Father to glorify His Name now that the purpose of His humiliation and suffering is accomplished : in another it is the voice of the Church calling upon Christ to lift up Himself again in the Resurrection for the sake of those whom He has redeemed. that they who are partakers of His death may also be partakers of His Life and His Glory. Then, although all forsook Him and fled, and none were left around Him but a congregation of wicked doers and cruel men, when He had ascended up on high, to take up His Divine Glory again, He should gather about Him in the Kingdom of the Resurrection a congregation of the people, whose multitude no man can number, out of all nations, and peoples, and tongues. "I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto Me."

In the latter verses, the final subjugation of the Evil One is predicted, the second death of the lake of fire, and the bottomless pit into which the great enemy himself shall be cast. [Rev. xx. 10. 14.] Thus also the ninth verse is another form of the prayer, "Thy kingdom come . . . deliver us from evil : " a prayer that God may be all and in all.

THE VIII PSALM.

Domine, Dominus noster.

O LORD our Governour, how excellent is thy Name in all the world : thou that hast set thy glory above the heavens.

2 Out of the mouth of very babes and sucklings hast thou ordained strength, because of thine enemies : that thou mightest still the enemy and the avenger.

3 For I will consider thy heavens, even the works of thy fingers : the moon and the stars which thou hast ordained.

4 What is man, that thou art mindful of him : and the son of man, that thou visitest him ?

5 Thou madest him lower than the angels : to crown him with glory and worship.

6 Thou makest him to have dominion of the works of thy hands : and thou hast put all things in subjection under his feet ;

7 All sheep and oxen : yea, and the beasts of the field ;

8 The fowls of the air, and the fishes of the sea : and whatsoever walketh through the paths of the seas.

9 O Lord our Governour : how excellent is thy Name in all the world.

THE IX PSALM.

Confitebor tibi.

I WILL give thanks unto thee, O Lord, with my whole heart : I will speak of all thy marvellous works.

PSALMUS VIII.

DOMINE Dominus noster : quam admirabile est Nomen tuum in universa terra.

Quoniam elevata est magnificentia tua : super cœlos.

Ex ore infantium et lactentium perfecisti laudem propter inimicos tuos : ut destruas inimicum et ultorem.

Quoniam videbo cœlos tuos, opera digitorum tuorum : lunam et stellas quæ tu fundasti.

Quid est homo, quod memor es ejus ? aut filius hominis quoniam visitas eum ?

Minuisti eum paulominus ab angelis, gloria et honore coronasti eum : et constituisti eum super opera manuum tuarum.

Omnia subjecisti sub pedibus ejus ; oves et boves universas : insuper et pecora campi.

Volucres cœli, et pisces maris : qui perambulant semitas maris.

Domine Dominus noster : quam admirabile est Nomen tuum in universa terra.

Sunday Mattins.
Ascens. Day,
St. Michael,
All Saints,
B. V. M.,
Virg. & Matr.,
1st Noct.
Inv. & Ex. Cross,
Mattins.
Martyrs,
2nd Noct.

et defensorem

PSALMUS IX.

CONFITEBOR tibi, Domine, in toto corde meo : narrabo omnia mirabilia tua.

Sunday Mattins.
1st Noct.

PSALM VIII.

The Church sings this Psalm to the glory of the Son of Man, our Lord as Creator, and our Lord as Redeemer, who has been crowned with the glory of an everlasting kingdom, and a never-ending Divine Worship in heaven and earth.

The prophecy of the second verse is declared by Christ Himself to have been fulfilled by the children crying "Hosanna to the Son of David" as He rode into Jerusalem on Palm Sunday. We need not, however, suppose this to be its only fulfilment, for the Holy Innocents glorified the Holy Babe by their deaths, and an army of Holy Innocents "follow the Lamb whithersoever He goeth" in His glorified Kingdom. Above all other babes out of whose mouth strength has been ordained is He of Whom it is written, "Unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given, and His Name shall be called Wonderful, the Mighty God."

Hence St. Paul guides us to that use of this Psalm which is specially marked out by its selection for Ascension Day: and

"we see Jesus" in Him "Who was made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour." But when we thus sing the glory of Him Who is the Alpha and Omega,—the Lord our Lord in the beginning, and the Lord our Lord in the end,—we may also remember that "both He that sanctifieth and they who are sanctified are all of one," and that we sing also of the exaltation of human nature by its union with Him through His Incarnation and Ascension.

PSALM IX.

A song of Christ and of His Church, setting forth the triumph of His Person and His work, and giving thanks because He Who became poor for our sakes hath made many rich to the glory of God.

The marvellous works of God in the miracles of grace are even more worthy to be sung than those which surround us in the miracles of Creation and Providence. Especially in that miracle of grace from which all others spring, that of our Lord's Incarna-

The II. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

John xviii. 6.
Matt. xxviii. 4.

2 I will be glad and rejoice in thee :
yea, my songs will I make of thy Name, O thou most Highest.

3 While mine enemies are driven back : they shall fall and perish at thy presence.

4 For thou hast maintained my right and my cause : thou art set in the throne that judgest right.

5 Thou hast rebuked the heathen, and destroyed the ungodly : thou hast put out their name for ever and ever.

6 O thou enemy, destructions are come to a perpetual end : even as the cities which thou hast destroyed ; their memorial is perished with them.

Rev. xx. 11.

7 But the Lord shall endure for ever : he hath also prepared his seat for judgement.

Rev. xx. 12.

8 For he shall judge the world in righteousness : and minister true judgement unto the people.

9 The Lord also will be a defence for the oppressed : even a refuge in due time of trouble.

Phil. ii. 9.

10 And they that know thy Name, will put their trust in thee : for thou,
Lord, hast never failed them that seek thee.

Bel and Dragon,
38.

11 O praise the Lord which dwelleth in Sion : shew the people of his doings.

Gen. iv. 9.
Heb. xii. 24.
Matt. xxvii. 25.
Luke xxiii. 34

12 For, when he maketh iniqui-tation for blood, he remembereth them : and forgetteth not the complaint of the poor.

13 Have mercy upon me, O Lord, consider the trouble which I suffer of them that hate me : thou that liftest me up from the gates of death.

14 That I may shew all thy praises within the ports of the daughter of Sion : I will rejoice in thy salvation.

Lætabor et exultabo in te : psallam Nomini tuo, Altissime.

In convertendo inimicum meum retrorsum : infirmabuntur, et peribunt a facie tua.

Quoniam fecisti judicium meum et causam meam : sedes super thronum qui judicas justitiam.

Increpâsti gentes, et periit impius :
nomen eorum delêsti in æternum et in sæculum sæculi.

Inimici defecerunt frameæ in finem :
et civitates eorum destruxisti.

Periit memoria eorum cum sonitu :
et Dominus in æternum permanet.

Paravit in judicio thronum suum : sedem suam et ipse judicabit orbem terræ in æqui-tate ; judicabit populos in justitia.

Et factus est Dominus refugium pauperi : adjutor in opportunitatibus, in tribulatione.

Et sperent in te qui noverunt Nomen in te omnes qui tuum : quoniam non dereliquisti quæ-rentes te, Domine.

Psallite Domino, qui habitat in Sion : annuntiate inter gentes studia mirabilia ejus
ejus.

Quoniam requirens sanguinem, eorum recordatus est : non est oblitus clamo- memoratus est rem pauperum. orationem paup.

Miserere mei, Domine : vide humilitatem meam de inimicis meis.

Qui exaltas me de portis mortis : ut annuntiem omnes laudationes tuas in omnes laudes portis filiæ Sion.

tion : "Great is the mystery of godliness ; God was manifest in the flesh," the angels and those who recognized their Saviour rejoiced, while the enemy was confounded and death vanished in presence of Him Who is the Life. As the multitude with swords and staves who came to take Jesus went backward and fell to the ground at the proclamation of the Incommunicable Name, and as the keepers became as dead men in sight of the Resurrection glory, so the darkness of heathenism fled before the Light of the world, the universally destructive empire of the Enemy of God and man was broken up, and the Throne of the Cross was established for ever.

The "inquisition for blood" speaks of that blood of which the Jews said, "Let it be on us and on our children," and which speaketh better things than that of Abel ; the complaint of the Poor, crying up to God, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." It speaks also of the blood of the martyrs, Stephen praying, "Lord, lay not this sin to their charge," and the souls under the altar crying, "Lord, how long, O Lord, holy and true, dost Thou not judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth ?"

In the continued prayer for mercy and deliverance, an illustration is given of the oneness which Christ establishes between Himself and the Church. When Saul hunted down the members of Christ to slaughter, the Lord met him and said, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou ME ?" In the same manner the Voice of the Head is heard speaking of the "trouble" which He suffers

The II. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

Prov. xxvi. 27.

15 The heathen are sunk down in the pit that they made : in the same net which they hid privily, is their foot taken.

16 The Lord is known to execute judgement : the ungodly is trapped in the work of his own hands.

17 The wicked shall be turned into hell : and all the people that forget God.

18 For the poor shall not alway be forgotten : the patient abiding of the meek shall not perish for ever.

19 Up Lord, and let not man have the upper hand : let the heathen be judged in thy sight.

20 Put them in fear, O Lord : that the heathen may know themselves to be but men.

THE X PSALM.

Ut quid, Domine?

Matt. xxvii. 46.

WHY standest thou so far off, O Lord : and hidest thy face in the needful time of trouble?

2 The ungodly for his own lust doth persecute the poor : let them be taken in the crafty wiliness that they have imagined.

3 For the ungodly hath made boast of his own heart's desire : and speaketh good of the covetous whom God abhorreth.

4 The ungodly is so proud, that he careth not for God : neither is God in all his thoughts.

5 His ways are alway grievous : thy judgements are far above out of his sight, and therefore defieth he all his enemies.

2 Thess. ii. 4.
Dan. xi. 37.

6 For he hath said in his heart, Tush, I shall never be cast down : there shall no harm happen unto me.

Exultabo in salutari tuo: infixæ sunt gentes in interitu quem fecerunt.

In laqueo isto quem absconderunt: occullaverunt comprehensus est pes eorum.

Cognoscetur Dominus judicia fa- Cognoscitur ciens: in operibus manuum suarum comprehensus est peccator.

Convertantur peccatores in infernum: omnes gentes quæ obliviscuntur Deum.

Quoniam non in finem oblivio erit pauperis: patientia pauperum non peribit in finem.

Exurge, Domine; non confortetur non pravealeat homo: judicentur gentes in conspectu tuo.

Constitue, Domine, legislatorem super eos: ut sciant gentes quoniam homines sunt.

[PSALMUS IX., v. 22.]

UT quid, Domine, recessisti longe: despicias in opportunitatibus, in tribulatione?

Dum superbit impius, incenditur pauper: comprehenduntur in consiliis in cogitationibus suis quas quibus cogitant.

Quoniam laudatur peccator in desideriiis animæ suæ: et iniquus benedicitur. qui iniqua gerit

Exacerbavit Dominum peccator: Irritavit secundum multitudinem iræ suæ non quæret.

Non est Deus in conspectu ejus: inquinatæ sunt viæ illius in omni polluantur viæ ejus tempore.

Auferuntur judicia tua a facie ejus: omnium inimicorum suorum dominabitur.

in His members from them that hate Him; and with His mystical body He prays to the Divine Nature. Arise, O Lord, in the power of the Resurrection, and establish THE POOR in His kingdom as a Lawgiver and a Saviour.

PSALM X.

"Man's necessity is God's opportunity," yet the cry with which this Psalm opens expresses literally the utter forsakenness of Christ even "in opportunitatibus, in tribulatione," when the Lord is to all others a defence and a refuge: to such an utter depth of persecution and suffering did "the Poor" descend for the sake of those He came to save.

This Psalm is in reality a continuation of the ninth, as it is written in the LXX and the Vulgate, and as is shown by the initial letters of the verses, which in the Hebrew form the Alphabet, beginning with the first verses of the ninth and ending with the last verses of the tenth.

But as the enemies of the Poor in the former Psalm are the heathen, persecuting Christ and His Church from without, so in this they are from within, those of His own household. Consequently this latter Psalm has ever been interpreted of the troubles which the Church will have to undergo in the days of Antichrist, when the greatest enemy that has ever persecuted the mystical Body of Christ, will arise from among its members.

Antichristian pride is here predicted as if it would be a revivification in practical life of the first temptation that men "should

The II. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Rom. iii. 14.

7 His mouth is full of cursing, deceit, and fraud : under his tongue is ungodliness and vanity.

8 He sitteth lurking in the thievish corners of the streets : and privily in his lurking dens doth he murder the innocent ; his eyes are set against the poor.

9 For he lieth waiting secretly, even as a lion lurketh he in his den : that he may ravish the poor.

10 He doth ravish the poor : when he getteth him into his net.

11 He falleth down, and humbleth himself : that the congregation of the poor may fall into the hands of his captains.

12 He hath said in his heart, Tush, God hath forgotten : he hideth away his face, and he will never see it.

13 Arise, O Lord God, and lift up thine hand : forget not the poor.

14 Wherefore should the wicked blaspheme God : while he doth say in his heart, Tush, thou God carest not for it.

15 Surely thou hast seen it : for thou beholdest ungodliness and wrong.

16 That thou mayest take the matter into thine hand : the poor committeth himself unto thee ; for thou art the helper of the friendless.

17 Break thou the power of the ungodly and malicious : take away his ungodliness, and thou shalt find none.

Rev. xi. 15.

18 The Lord is King for ever and ever : and the heathen are perished out of the land.

19 Lord, thou hast heard the desire of the poor : thou preparest their heart, and thine ear hearkeneth thereto ;

20 To help the fatherless and poor unto their right : that the man of the earth be no more exalted against them.

Dixit enim in corde suo : Non movebor a generatione in generationem sine malo.

Cujus maledictione os plenum est, et amaritudine, et dolo : sub lingua ejus labor et dolor.

Sedet in insidiis cum divitibus in occultis : ut interficiat innocentem.

Oculi ejus in pauperem respiciunt : insidiatur in abscondito, quasi leo in spelunca sua. oculto sicut leo in cubili suo

Insidiatur ut rapiat pauperem : rapere pauperem dum attrahit eum. abstrahet

In laqueo suo humiliabit eum : inclinet se, et cadet cum dominatus fuerit pauperum. dominabitur pauperi

Dixit enim in corde suo ; Oblitus est Deus : avertit faciem suam ne videat in finem. usque in fin.

Exurge, Domine Deus, et exaltetur manus tua : ne obliviscaris pauperum. paup. in finem

Propter quid irritavit impius Deum ? dixit enim in corde suo, non requiret. req. Deus Vides ; quoniam tu laborem et dolorem consideras : ut tradas eos in manus tuas.

Tibi derelictus est pauper : orphano tu eris adjutor. pupillo

Contere brachium peccatoris et maligni : quæretur peccatum illius, et non invenietur. requiretur delictum ejus nec

Dominus regnabit in æternum et in sæculum sæculi : peribitis gentes de terra illius.

Desiderium pauperum exaudivit Dominus : præparationem cordis eorum audivit auris tua. desiderium . . exaudivit

Judicare pupillo et humili : ut non apponat ultra magnificare se homo super terram.

be as Gods." And, as the enemies of Christ allied themselves with the covetous traitor, so it is a characteristic of the spirit of Antichrist that covetousness, which God declares to be the root of all evil, is by him spoken good of, and reckoned as a virtue. The unjust steward is commended, in such a spirit, because he was wise in his generation, that generation being narrowed within the bounds of this present life.

It is, perhaps, more of this future conflict between the kingdom of the Poor and the kingdom of Antichrist, than of the personal sufferings of Christ in His Passion that this Psalm speaks. And the conclusion is a prophecy that although the eyes of those who follow the enemy of Christ may be so wilfully blinded that they can see no God, no Christ, no world to come, yet God will hear the prayer of His Church, "Thy kingdom come," "the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of His Christ, and He shall reign for ever and ever." As Christ said, "I will not leave you orphans," so His promise will be fulfilled : the Poor shall enter on His reign of glory, the fatherless shall sit down with Him in the kingdom of His Father and theirs, and the power of Antichrist will be cast down, broken, and destroyed.

THE XI PSALM.

*In Domino confido.*The II. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

IN the Lord put I my trust : how I say ye then to my soul, that she should flee as a bird unto the hill ?

2 For lo, the ungodly bend their bow, and make ready their arrows within the quiver : that they may privily shoot at them which are true of heart.

Acts iii. 14.
vii. 52.
Luke xxiii. 41.

3 For the foundations will be cast down : and what hath the righteous done ?

4 The Lord is in his holy temple :
the Lord's seat is in heaven.

5 His eyes consider the poor : and his eye-lids try the children of men.

" trieth." B. V.

6 The Lord alloweth the righteous :
but the ungodly, and him that delighteth in wickedness doth his soul abhor.

7 Upon the ungodly he shall rain snares, fire and brimstone, storm, and tempest : this shall be their portion to drink.

1 John ii. 29.
iii. 7.

8 For the righteous Lord loveth righteousness : his countenance will behold the thing that is just.

THE XII PSALM.

*Salvum me fac.*Evening
Prayer.

HELP me, Lord, for there is not one godly man left : for the faithful are minished from among the children of men.

Luke xx. 19—26.

2 They talk of vanity every one with his neighbour : they do but flatter with their lips, and dissemble in their double heart.

Matt. xv. 13.

3 The Lord shall root out all deceitful lips : and the tongue that speaketh proud things.

PSALMUS X.

IN Domino confido : quomodo dicitis animæ meæ, Transmigra in montem sicut passer ?

Sunday Mattins.
1st Noct.
Ascens. Day,
St. Michael,
1st Noct.
Martyrs,
3rd Noct.

Quoniam ecce peccatores intenderunt arcum ; paraverunt sagittas suas in pharetra : ut sagittent in obscuro rectos corde.

Quoniam quæ perfecisti destruxerunt : justus autem quid fecit ?

Dominus in templo sancto suo : Dominus in cœlo sedes ejus.

Oculi ejus in pauperem respiciunt :
palpebræ ejus interrogant filios homi-
num.

Dominus interrogat justum et im-pium : qui autem diligit iniquitatem, odit animam suam.

Pluet super peccatores laqueos :
ignis, et sulphur, et spiritus procellarum, pars calicis eorum.

Quoniam justus Dominus, et jus-titias dilexit : æquitatem vidit vultus
ejus.

PSALMUS XI.

SALVUM me fac, Domine, quoniam defecit sanctus : quoniam diminutæ sunt veritates a filiis hominum.

Sunday Mattins.
1st Noct.

Vana locuti sunt unusquisque ad proximum suum : labia dolosa, in corde et corde locuti sunt.

locutus est unusq. loc. sunt mala

Disperdat Dominus universa labia dolosa : et linguam magniloquam.

magniloquam

PSALM XI.

This is, doubtless, spoken primarily of "Jesus Christ the Righteous," "the Holy One and the Just," "that Just One," against Whom the ungodly Jews bent their bows of hatred, and made ready their arrows of slander and false witness. For a short time He went away from them "unto a country near to the wilderness into a city called Ephraim," probably between Jerusalem and Jericho, but when His time was approaching, six days before the Passover, He returned to Jerusalem, going willingly to His sufferings. It may be that there was some advice given to Him identical with that implied in the opening verse of this Psalm, such as the words of St. Peter, "That be far from Thee, Lord ;" or of the other disciples, "The Jews of late sought to stone Thee, and goest Thou thither again ?" In the same manner the Church has at times retired from the fierceness of persecution into the deserts of Egypt and Palestine, or the Catacombs of Rome ; but, with her Head, ever looking upward faithfully and beholding the Throne of the righteous Judge in Heaven. For a time He tries the Church as He tried the Righteous and the Poor Himself, but chastening as a Father : and the light of His countenance shining above all trial gives sure confidence that the just cause, the cause which is His own, will in the end most surely prevail.

PSALM XII.

This Psalm represents the mournful spirit in which Christ looked upon the unbelieving heart of the generation that beheld

The II. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Matt. xvi. 1.
xxvii. 63.
John xix. 21.

Lament. i. 21, 22.
Mark vii. 34.
viii. 12.

Isa. liii. 9. 12.

1 Pet. v. 8.

Rev. vi. 10.

Isa. lx. 1.
Luke ii. 32.

John xvi. 2.

4 Which have said, With our tongue will we prevail : we are they that ought to speak, who is Lord over us ?

5 Now for the comfortless troubles' sake of the needy : and because of the deep sighing of the poor ;

6 I will up, saith the Lord : and will help every one from him that swelleth against him, and will set him at rest.

7 The words of the Lord are pure words : even as the silver, which from the earth is tried, and purified seven times in the fire.

8 Thou shalt keep them, O Lord : thou shalt preserve him from this generation for ever.

9 The ungodly walk on every side : when they are exalted, the children of men are put to rebuke.

THE XIII PSALM.

Usque quo, Domine ?

HOW long wilt thou forget me, O Lord, for ever : how long wilt thou hide thy face from me ?

2 How long shall I seek counsel in my soul, and be so vexed in my heart : how long shall mine enemies triumph over me ?

3 Consider and hear me, O Lord my God : lighten mine eyes, that I sleep not in death.

4 Lest mine enemy say, I have prevailed against him : for if I be cast down, they that trouble me will rejoice at it.

Qui dixerunt, Linguam nostram magnificabimus : labia nostra a nobis sunt ; quis noster Dominus est ?

Propter miseriam inopum, et gemitum pauperum : nunc exurgam, dicit Dominus.

Ponam in salutari : fiducialiter agam in eo. Ponam super altare meum

Eloquia Domini, eloquia casta ; argutum igne examinatum : probatum terræ, purgatum septuplum.

Tu, Domine, servabis nos, et custodies nos : a generatione hac in æternum.

In circuitu impii ambulant : secundum altitudinem tuam multiplicasti filios hominum.

PSALMUS XII.

USQUEQUO, Domine, obliviscêris me in finem ? usquequo avertis faciem tuam a me ? Sunday Mattins, 1st Noct.

Quamdiu ponam consilia in anima mea ? dolorem in corde meo per diem ? consilium in animam meam

Usquequo exaltabitur inimicus meus super me ? respice, et exaudi me, Domine Deus meus.

Illumina oculos meos ne unquam obdormiam in morte : nequando dicat inimicus meus, Prævalui adversus eum.

PSALM XIII.

The voice of the mystical Body of Christ is here heard, with greater distinctness than in the preceding Psalm, expressing the longing of the Bride for the return of the Bridegroom. "The Spirit and the Bride say, Come." In the first two verses the cry of "the souls under the altar" is four times repeated ; but in such a manner as to remind the individual Christian that it is sin which causes the hiding of God's face from His children ; and

Him, and at the contradiction of sinners against Himself. It is also the voice of His mystical Body, crying, "Lord, how long," and praying for the Second Advent and perfect Dominion of the Son of Man.

There were times in the life of our Lord when not even "His brethren" believed in Him, and when all forsook Him and fled. With rare exceptions those who accepted Him and His mission were but a "little flock," and while the whole nation of the Jews desired a temporal Sovereign who should re-establish their national independence, there were but few who faithfully "waited for the Redemption of Israel" by a spiritual Saviour.

The details of the Psalm have a special application to the life of the Son of David. The three principal sects of the Jews, the Pharisees, Sadducees, and Herodians, tempted Him with flattering words, and endeavoured by dissembling to entice Him into some declaration which they could use against Him in their courts of law. But the words of the Lord were ever pure words ; the very officer sent to take Him said, "Never man spake like this man ;" and so completely did He convict the tempters out of their own mouth, that at last "no man durst ask Him any more questions." They endeavoured to prevail with their tongue, but the Lord rooted out all deceitful lips by the Omniscient searching of that Word which is as a two-edged sword.

It may be observed that the "deep sighing of the Poor" is here brought into close association with the evil use of the tongue ; while in the Gospel it is recorded of our Lord that He looked up to heaven, and sighed when He was about to give the faculty of speech to one who had been always deaf and dumb. Doubtless He sighed, knowing that He gave that faculty subject to the man's free will, and therefore subject to its use for evil as well as good.

The II. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Isa. xxv. 9.

5 But my trust is in thy mercy :
and my heart is joyful in thy salvation.

6 I will sing of the Lord, because he hath dealt so lovingly with me :
yea, I will praise the Name of the Lord most Highest.

THE XIV PSALM.

Dixit insipiens.

THE fool hath said in his heart :
There is no God.

Rom. iii. 10.

2 They are corrupt, and become abominable in their doing : there is none that doeth good, no, not one.

Rom. iii. 11.

3 The Lord looked down from heaven upon the children of men : to see if there were any that would understand, and seek after God.

Rom. iii. 12.

4 But they are all gone out of the way, they are altogether become abominable : there is none that doeth good, no, not one.

Rom. iii. 13.

5 Their throat is an open sepulchre, with their tongues have they deceived :
the poison of asps is under their lips.

Rom. iii. 14, 15.

6 Their mouth is full of cursing, and bitterness : their feet are swift to shed blood.

Rom. iii. 16, 17,
18.

7 Destruction and unhappiness is in their ways, and the way of peace have they not known : there is no fear of God before their eyes.

Isa. v. 13.

8 Have they no knowledge, that they are all such workers of mischief :
eating up my people as it were bread, and call not upon the Lord ?

Gal. v. 15.

Qui tribulant me exsultabunt si motus fuero : ego autem in misericordia tua speravi.

sperabo

Exsultabit cor meum in salutari tuo ; cantabo Domino qui bona tribuit mihi : et psallam Nomini Domini Altissimi.

tuo Alt.

PSALMUS XIII.

DIXIT insipiens in corde suo : Non est Deus.

Sunday Mattins.
1st Noct.
B. V. M.
Compline.

Corrupti sunt, et abominabiles facti sunt in studiis suis : non est qui faciat bonum, non est usque ad unum.

in voluntatibus suis

Dominus de cœlo prospexit super filios hominum : ut videat si est intelli-gens, aut requirens Deum.

Omnes declinaverunt ; simul inutiles facti sunt : non est qui faciat bonum, non est usque ad unum.

Sepulchrum patens est guttur eorum ;
linguis suis dolose agebant : venenum
aspidium sub labiis eorum.

Quorum os maledictione et amaritudine plenum est : veloces pedes eorum ad effundendum sanguinem.

Contritio et infelicitas in viis eorum, et viam pacis non cognoverunt : non est timor Dei ante oculos eorum.

Nonne cognoscent omnes qui operantur iniquitatem : qui devorant plebem meam sicut escam panis ?

that even when the Holy One Himself took such words as these upon His lips, it was because He was made sin for us, and in His own smitten and afflicted person represented a whole world of sinners.

Like most Psalms of this mournful character, the thirteenth divides into three portions which illustrate the transition of our Lord from a state of suffering and persecution, through the humiliation of death, to the triumph of resurrection. The experience of the Lord in the flesh was the experience of His mystical Body, and is also the experience of each of His members : the Lord and His Church in their contest with the world, the particular Christian in his conflict with sin. It seems frequently as if the enemy were about to be able to say, "I have prevailed ;" as if He that should have redeemed Israel had proved unable to do so, as if the Church could never overcome and counteract the work of Satan, as if the Christian soul was ever being cast down by the force of temptation. But as the darkness passed away from the Cross at the ninth hour, and the Father's countenance was again unveiled to the eyes of the Crucified, as the age of persecution and depression passed away from the Church, so Christ turns and looks upon the sinner whose trust is in His mercy, and the daily prayer, "Lighten our darkness," is a continual memorial before God of the need, and before man of the power, of the Divine Presence.

PSALM XIV.

There is little absolute Atheism in the world, God having so fully revealed Himself that the inner light of conscience and the outer light of nature's evidences bear universal and overpowering testimony to His existence [Rom. i. 20]. But there is much of the more subtle Atheism of which the Jews were guilty, that denial of the Godhead of our Lord Jesus which underlies every system of religion that diverges from that of the Catholic Church.

This Psalm is a prophecy of that awful time when this denial of Christ will have become all but universal, through the acceptance by the world of the kingdom of Antichrist. Such denial may not be entirely open and avowed, for the Psalm says the fool hath "said in his heart," not with his lips, there is no God. As the system of Mahomet gives a subordinate position of honour to Christ, not denying Him altogether, so that of the final Anti-christ will probably profess some specious respect for Him, ac-

The II. Day.
Evening
Prayer.

9 There were they brought in great fear, even where no fear was : for God is in the generation of the righteous.

Mark xv. 32.

10 As for you, ye have made a mock at the counsel of the poor : because he putteth his trust in the Lord.

11 Who shall give salvation unto Israel out of Sion ? When the Lord turneth the captivity of his people : then shall Jacob rejoice, and Israel shall be glad.

THE XV PSALM.

Domine, quis habitabit ?

The III. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

Ascension-day
Matthew.
Heb. ix. 11.
Luke ix. 33.
1 Pet. ii. 5.
Rev. xxi. 3.

LORD, who shall dwell in thy tabernacle : or who shall rest upon thy holy hill ?

2 Even he, that leadeth an uncorrupt life : and doeth the thing which is right, and speaketh the truth from his heart.

1 Pet. ii. 22.
Isa. liii. 9.
Cf. Rev. xii. 10.

3 He that hath used no deceit in his tongue, nor done evil to his neighbour : and hath not slandered his neighbour.

Phil. ii. 7.

4 He that setteth not by himself, but is lowly in his own eyes : and maketh much of them that fear the Lord.

5 He that sweareth unto his neighbour, and disappointeth him not : though it were to his own hindrance.

Rev. xxi. 6.
xxii. 17.
Matt. x. 8.
Cf. Matt. xxvii. 4

6 He that hath not given his money upon usury : nor taken reward against the innocent.

7 Whoso doeth these things : shall never fall.

Deum non invocaverunt : illic trepidaverunt timore, ubi non erat timor.

Quoniam Dominus in generatione justa est : consilium inopis confudistis, quoniam Dominus spes ejus est.

Quis dabit ex Sion salutare Israël ? cum averterit Dominus captivitatem plebis suæ, exultabit Jacob, et lætabitur Israël.

PSALMUS XIV.

DOMINE, quis habitabit in tabernaculo tuo ? aut quis requiescet in monte sancto tuo ?

Sunday, Easter Eve.

1st Noct.
St. Michael,
Many Martyrs,
2nd Noct.

Qui ingreditur sine macula : et operatur justitiam.

Martyrs,
Confessors,
3rd Noct.

Qui loquitur veritatem in corde suo : qui non egit dolum in lingua sua.

Nec fecit proximo suo malum : et opprobrium non accepit adversus proximos suos.

Ad nihilum deductus est in conspectu ejus malignus : timentes autem Dominum glorificat :

magnificat

Qui jurat proximo suo, et non decipit : qui pecuniam suam non dedit ad usuram, et munera super innocentem non accepit.

Qui facit hæc : non movebitur in æternum.

commovebitur

knowledging Him as worthy of great reverence while utterly refusing to acknowledge Him as worthy of the worship due to the Supreme ; saying with Pilate, Ecce Homo, but not with the prophet, Behold your God.

The terrible words of this Psalm open out to us God's view of such Antichristianism, "The Lord looked down from Heaven." They show us that no compromise of moral goodness and unbelief is known to Him, but that he who says in his heart there is no God,—none in Heaven, none in Christ,—is to the eye of the All-Righteous and Omniscient "corrupt and abominable." All gradations of Atheism are thus associated with more or less of immorality.

PSALM XV.

In this, as in the first, Psalm there is an obvious application to Christ as the perfect ideal of the human nature personified : and this application is certified to us by the Church in the selection of it for an Ascension-day Psalm. The sense of it is fixed by the third verse, which is all but verbally identical with the two passages marked against it in the margin, the one a directly prophetic, the other a directly historical, reference to the Messiah. Of Him alone, dwelling among men for a generation in the tabernacle of the flesh [ἐσκήνωσεν ἐν ἡμῖν, John i. 14], can it be said without any reservation that This was one who led an uncorrupt life ; of Him alone that no "guile was found in His mouth ;" of Him alone that He was wholly "meek and lowly of heart." In the fifth verse there is also a prophecy of the fulfilment by the Son of God of His purpose and promise to redeem mankind, even though that fulfilment entailed the taking upon Him the form of a servant, and suffering death upon the cross. He was the good Samaritan taking care of His neighbour, and bestowing on him the sacraments of life, to be bought without money and without price.

But the "tabernacle" of Christ's human Body calls also to mind the temple of His mystical Body, and hence the plain moral application of the Psalm becomes intensified into a rule of life for Christians as members of Him "Who did no sin." [Cf. Ascension-day Collect.]

THE XVI PSALM.

*Conserua me, Domine.*The III. Day.
Morning
Prayer.PRESERVE me, O God : for in thee have I put my trust.

2 O my soul, thou hast said unto the Lord : Thou art my God, my goods are nothing unto thee.

3 All my delight is upon the saints that are in the earth : and upon such as excel in virtue.

4 But they that run after another god : shall have great trouble.

John xvii. 9.

5 Their drink-offerings of blood will I not offer : neither make mention of their names within my lips.

John xviii. 11.
Luke xxii. 20.

6 The Lord himself is the portion of mine inheritance, and of my cup : thou shalt maintain my lot.

7 The lot is fallen unto me in a fair ground : yea, I have a goodly heritage.

Isa. liiii. 11.

8 I will thank the Lord for giving me warning : my reins also chasten me in the night-season.

Acts ii. 25.

9 I have set God always before me : for he is on my right hand, therefore I shall not fall.

Acts ii. 26.
Isa. xxvi. 16.

10 Wherefore my heart was glad, and my glory rejoiced : my flesh also shall rest in hope.

Acts ii. 27.
xiii. 35.

11 For why? thou shalt not leave my soul in hell : neither shalt thou suffer thy Holy One to see corruption.

Acts ii. 28.

12 Thou shalt shew me the path of life ; in thy presence is the fulness of joy : and at thy right hand there is pleasure for evermore.

THE XVII PSALM.

*Exaudi, Domine.HEAR the right, O Lord, consider my complaint : and hear-

PSALMUS XV.

CONSERUA me Domine, quoniam speravi in te : dixi Domino, Deus meus es tu, quoniam bonorum meorum non eges.Sunday, Martyrs, Mattins,
2nd Noct.
Easter Eve,
Corp. Chr
1st Noct.
*indiges*Sanctis qui sunt in terra ejus : mirificavit omnes voluntates meas in eis. inter illos

Multiplicatæ sunt infirmitates eorum : postea acceleraverunt.

Non congregabo conventicula eorum de sanguinibus : nec memor ero nominum eorum per labia mea.

Dominus pars hæreditatis meæ, et calicis mei : tu es qui restituēs hæreditatem meam mihi. restituisti mihi

Funes ceciderunt mihi in præclaris : etenim hæreditas mea præclara est mihi.

Benedicam Dominum, qui tribuit mihi intellectum : insuper et usque ad noctem increpauerunt me renes mei. increpaverunt

Providebam Dominum in conspectu meo semper : quoniam a dextris est mihi ne commovear.

Propter hoc lætatum est cor meum, et exsultavit lingua mea : insuper et caro mea requiescet in spe. delectatum

Quoniam non derelinques animam meam in inferno : nec dabis sanctum tuum videre corruptionem.

Notas mihi fecisti vias vitæ : adimplebis me lætitia cum vultu tuo ; delectationes in dextera tua usque in finem.

PSALMUS XVI.

EXAUDI Domine justitiam meam : intende deprecationem meam. *Sunday Mattins.
2nd Noct.*

PSALM XVI.

The first words spoken by St. Peter after Christ had given him to understand what was written in the Psalms concerning Him, and when inspired by the Holy Ghost at Pentecost, gave the proper interpretation of this Psalm, showing that it was spoken, prophetically, in the person of Christ, and not of David, to whom the latter portion could have no real application. The same interpretation of the Psalm was also given by St. Paul in his first public ministration after the Holy Ghost had said, "Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them." Although, therefore, the former half of the Psalm may be accommodated to the Church and to individual members of it, the primary interpretation of the whole must be understood to be of Christ Himself. Its use on Easter Eve by the ancient Church of England shows also that this interpretation was adopted by it in the commemoration of our Lord's Rest and Resurrection.

The first part of the Psalm appears to refer to the offering which Christ made for an atonement between God and man. God needed not even the "goods" of this sacrifice, for He is perfect in Himself even without the salvation of mankind. But Christ's delight was in those whom He was saving by His sacrifice ; and as He had come to do His Father's will, so would He magnify His will in them, that God's will might be done on earth as it is in Heaven. For them Christ will be a continual Intercessor, but the offerings of those who run after another

The III. Day. ken unto my prayer, that goeth not Morning out of feigned lips.

Prayer.
John xix. 11.

2 Let my sentence come forth from thy presence : and let thine eyes look upon the thing that is equal.

Luke xxii. 4
xxiii. 14, 15.
41. 47.
1 Pet. ii. 22.

3 Thou hast proved and visited mine heart in the night-season ; thou hast tried me, and shalt find no wickedness in me : for I am utterly purposed, that my mouth shall not offend.

4 Because of men's works, that are done against the words of thy lips : I have kept me from the ways of the destroyer.

5 O hold thou up my goings in thy paths : that my footsteps slip not.

6 I have called upon thee, O God, for thou shalt hear me : incline thine ear to me, and hearken unto my words.

7 Shew thy marvellous loving-kindness, thou that art the Saviour of them which put their trust in thee : from such as resist thy right hand.

8 Keep me as the apple of an eye : hide me under the shadow of thy wings.

John x. 24.
Luke xxiii. 1.

9 From the ungodly, that trouble me : mine enemies compass me round about to take away my soul.

1 Sam. ii. 15.

10 They are inclosed in their own fat : and their mouth speaketh proud things.

11 They lie waiting in our way on every side : turning their eyes down to the ground.

12 Like as a lion that is greedy of his prey : and as it were a lion's whelp, lurking in secret places.

13 Up, Lord, disappoint him, and cast him down : deliver my soul from the ungodly, which is a sword of thine.

Auribus percipe orationem meam : non in labiis dolosis.

De vultu tuo iudicium meum prodeat : oculi tui videant æquitates.

æquitatem

Probasti cor meum, et visitasti nocte : igne me examinasti, et non est inventa in me iniquitas.

Ut non loquatur os meum opera hominum : propter verba labiorum tuorum ego custodivi vias duras.

Perfice gressus meos in semitis tuis : ut non moveantur vestigia mea.

Ego clamavi, quoniam exaudisti me Deus : inclina aurem tuam mihi, et exaudi verba mea.

Mirifica misericordias tuas : qui salvos facis sperantes in te.

A resistentibus dexteræ tuæ custodi me : ut pupillam oculi.

Domine ut pupillum

Sub umbra alarum tuarum protege me : a facie impiorum qui me afflixerunt.

Inimici mei animam meam circumdederunt, adipem suum concluserunt : os eorum locutum est superbiam.

in superbia

Projicientes me nunc circumdederunt me : oculos suos statuerunt declinare in terram.

Susceperunt me sicut leo paratus ad prædam : et sicut catulus leonis habitans in abditis.

Exsurge Domine, præveni eum, et supplantata eum : eripe animam meam ab impio, frameam tuam ab inimicis manus tuæ.

eos . . . eos

inimicorum de manu tua

god will not be united to His perpetual Intercession, will be no re-presentation of His Sacrifice.

In association with the sixth verse we cannot fail to remember, first, the Cup of our Lord's sufferings ; and, secondly, the Cup of the New Testament in His Blood.

PSALM XVII.

There are words in this Psalm which can only be used in their complete sense of the Son of Man. Of Him Pilate said, "I have found no fault in Him ;" his wife, "This just Person ;" the thief on the cross, "This man hath done nothing amiss ;" the centurion, "Certainly this was a righteous man ;" and His disciple and companion, St. Peter, that He "did no sin, neither was guile found in His mouth." Of no other man, however holy, could it be truly said, "Thou shalt find no wickedness in me ;" and as the whole Psalm is compactly connected together, we must conclude that it is all written of Him respecting Whom alone these words can be written.

The frequent references to our Lord's Passion which occur in the Psalms are in exact keeping with His conversation while on earth, and with the character of that perpetual Memorial of His Death which He instituted as the Key-stone of the New Temple, and the guide to the Church's religious habits. With His disciples He continually discoursed about His coming Passion ; to

The III. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

14 From the men of thy hand, O Lord, from the men, I say, and from the evil world : which have their portion in this life, whose bellies thou fillest with thy hid treasure.

15 They have children at their desire : and leave the rest of their substance for their babes.

16 But as for me, I will behold thy presence in righteousness : and when I awake up after thy likeness, I shall be satisfied with it.

Rev. xxii. 4.
Heb. i. 3.
1 Cor. xv. 49.
Rom. vi. 5.

THE XVIII PSALM.

Diligam te, Domine.

Evening
Prayer.
Matt. xvi. 18.
1 Cor. x. 4.
Heb. ii. 13.
Luke i. 69.

I WILL love thee, O Lord, my strength; the Lord is my stony rock, and my defence : my Saviour, my God, and my might, in whom I will trust, my buckler, the horn also of my salvation, and my refuge.

2 I will call upon the Lord, which is worthy to be praised : so shall I be safe from mine enemies.

Matt. xxvi. 33.
xxvii. 46.

3 The sorrows of death compassed me : and the overflowings of ungodliness made me afraid.

4 The pains of hell came about me : the snares of death overtook me.

5 In my trouble I will call upon the Lord : and complain unto my God.

Domine a paucis de terra divide eos in vita eorum : de absconditis tuis adimpletus est venter eorum.

*dispartire eos et supplanta eos
in vita ipsorum*

Saturati sunt filii : et dimiserunt reliquias suas parvulis suis.

*Sat. sunt porcine et reliquerunt quæ superfluerunt
parv. suis<sup>1</sup>*

Ego autem in justitia apparebo in conspectui tuo : satiabor cum apparuerit gloria tua.

dum manifestabitur

PSALMUS XVII.

DILIGAM te Domine fortitudo mea : Dominus firmamentum meum, et refugium meum, et liberator meus.

*Sunday Mattins.
2nd Noct.*

Deus meus adjutor meus : et sperabo in eum.

Protector meus, et cornu salutis meæ : et susceptor meus.

virtus mea

adjutor meus

Laudans invocabo Dominum : et ab inimicis meis salvus ero.

Circumdederunt me dolores mortis : et torrentes iniquitatis conturbaverunt me.

me gemitus mortis

Dolores inferni circumdederunt me : præoccupaverunt me laquei mortis.

prævenierunt me

the multitude He also spoke of His "lifting up;" and when Moses and Elias came to Him from the unseen world, they talked with Him concerning His decease that He should accomplish at Jerusalem. Nor is this to be wondered at, when it is considered that the Death of Christ was the central point of all the world's spiritual history, that to which the ages preceding looked forward, that to which all following ages look back.

Of the Lord's atoning work, therefore, the Church is inspired to sing more than of any other theme, and Psalm after Psalm is occupied with references to it; references once prophetic, now historical, but one continuous present to the Holy Ghost Who inspired them.

The Psalm may be taken in detail as a prayer of the holy Jesus when He was going from Gethsemane to the High Priest's house, to the hall of Pilate, and to Calvary. The Righteous One condemned by unjust human judges appeals to the Divine and unerring Judge for declaration of His innocence; and it may be that the words of Pilate and others were an answer to this prayer. The world says, "Let Him be crucified," but God has already said, "This is My Beloved Son in Whom I am well pleased," and even unrighteous judges cannot gainsay the Divine sentence. Even the accusation, "This is the King of the Jews," was turned into truth against the will of Pilate and the chief priests, so that the former was obliged to say, "What I have written, I have written."

In the concluding verses there is a contrast between the inheritance of this world, and that of Christ's spiritual Kingdom. The natural cry was, "Who shall declare His generation, for He is cut off from the land of the living?" for He seemed to die and to leave neither children nor substance. But "He beheld of the travail of His soul and was satisfied," for He beheld to utmost ages the reign of His glorious Kingdom, and that of Himself the whole family in Heaven and in earth should be named.

PSALM XVIII.

This triumphal hymn is found also in the twenty-second chapter of the Second Book of Samuel, where it is described as the song which David spake "in the day when the Lord delivered him out of the hand of all his enemies, and out of the hand of Saul." But, as in all the songs of "the man who was raised up on high, the anointed of the God of Jacob, and the sweet Psalmist of Israel, the Spirit of the Lord spake by him, and His word was in his tongue," and a far higher and deeper meaning is evident than can belong to David himself, or to any circumstances of sorrow or victory in which he was ever placed. The sorrows are too deep for any but the Man of Sorrows, the triumph too exultant for any but "the Root of Jesse, and He that shall rise to reign over the Gentiles." [Rom. xv. 12.]

<sup>1</sup> This remarkable reading arises, seemingly, from a confusion between the words εἶναι and βίβω, in the LXX. It received a ready acquiescence probably from the fact that swine's flesh was an unlawful food to the Jews, and partaking of it would be an illustration of their wilful disobedience and wickedness. The tenth and fourteenth verses also seem to give some countenance to it, referring apparently to the fat of the sacrifices which could not lawfully be eaten, and to the sensual, selfish lives of the Jews.

The III. Day.
Evening
Prayer.

Heb. v. 7.
Mark xv. 38.
al. "enter even into."

Matt. xxvii. 51.
Heb. xii. 27.

Acts ii. 19.
Rev. xix. 12.

1 Kings viii. 12.
Matt. xxvii. 45.

Exod. ix. 23.

Gen. vii. 11.
Zech. xiii. 1.

Rev. xx. 13.

6 So shall he hear my voice out of his holy temple : and my complaint shall come before him, it shall enter into his ears.

7 The earth trembled and quaked : the very foundations also of the hills shook, and were removed, because he was wroth.

8 There went a smoke out in his presence : and a consuming fire out of his mouth, so that coals were kindled at it.

9 He bowed the heavens also, and came down : and it was dark under his feet.

10 He rode upon the cherubims, and did fly : he came flying upon the wings of the wind.

11 He made darkness his secret place : his pavilion round about him with dark water, and thick clouds to cover him.

12 At the brightness of his presence his clouds removed : hail-stones, and coals of fire.

13 The Lord also thundered out of heaven, and the Highest gave his thunder : hail-stones, and coals of fire.

14 He sent out his arrows, and scattered them : he cast forth lightnings, and destroyed them.

15 The springs of waters were seen, and the foundations of the round world were discovered at thy chiding, O Lord : at the blasting of the breath of thy displeasure.

16 He shall send down from on high to fetch me : and shall take me out of many waters.

17 He shall deliver me from my strongest enemy, and from them which hate me : for they are too mighty for me.

18 They prevented me in the day of my trouble : but the Lord was my upholder.

In tribulatione mea invocavi Dominum : et ad Deum meum clamavi :

Et exaudivit de templo sancto suo vocem meam : et clamor meus in conspectu ejus introivit in aures ejus.

Commota est et contremuit terra : fundamenta montium conturbata sunt, et commota sunt, quoniam iratus est eis.

eis Deus

Ascendit fumus in ira ejus, et ignis a facie ejus exarsit : carbones succensi sunt ab eo.

Inclinavit coelos, et descendit : et caligo sub pedibus ejus.

Et ascendit super Cherubin, et volavit : volavit super pennas ventorum.

Et posuit tenebras latibulum suum, in circuitu ejus : tabernaculum ejus, tenebrosa aqua in nubibus aëris.

Præ fulgore in conspectu ejus nubes transierunt : grando et carbones ignis.

Et intonuit de cælo Dominus, et Altissimus dedit vocem suam : grando et carbones ignis.

vocem suam : misit sagittas

Et misit sagittas suas, et dissipavit eos : fulgura multiplicavit, et conturbavit eos.

Et apparuerunt fontes aquarum : et revelata sunt fundamenta orbis terrarum.

Ab increpatione tua, Domine : ab inspiratione spiritus iræ tuæ.

ab increpatione spiritus

Misit de summo, et accepit me : et assumpsit me de aquis multis.

de multitudine aquarum

Eripuit me de inimicis meis fortissimis, et ab his qui oderunt me : quoniam confortati sunt super me.

Prævenerunt me in die afflictionis meæ : et factus est Dominus protector meus.

Passing by, then, the historical application of this Psalm of victory to the person of David, we may trace out its prophetic and mystical application to the Person of Christ. The opening words of it are an indication that the Son of man is speaking in His human nature, and speaking of the Divine Nature Which is its Strength, its Rock of ages, its Defence, its Saviour, its God, its Buckler, the Horn also of its Salvation, and its Refuge. And as Christ thus looks upward from the depths of His humiliation to His Divine Nature in its glory, so the Church may look to Christ and say all these words of Him, the Rock upon which she is so founded, that the gates of Hell cannot prevail against her.

After this opening ascription of praise the Psalm descends into the deeps of the Passion ; in which the sorrows of death encompassed the body of the Crucified, and the overflowings of that

The III. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Rev. xxi. 4.

19 He brought me forth also into a place of liberty : he brought me forth, even because he had a favour unto me.

Rev. v. 9. ii. 26.

20 The Lord shall reward me after my righteous dealing : according to the cleanness of my hands shall he recompense me.

21 Because I have kept the ways of the Lord : and have not forsaken my God, as the wicked doth.

22 For I have an eye unto all his laws : and will not cast out his commandments from me.

23 I was also uncorrupt before him : and eschewed mine own wickedness.

24 Therefore shall the Lord reward me after my righteous dealing : and according unto the cleanness of my hands in his eye-sight.

John xv. 4.

25 With the holy thou shalt be holy : and with a perfect man thou shalt be perfect.

Rev. xxii. 11.

26 With the clean thou shalt be clean : and with the froward thou shalt learn frowardness.

27 For thou shalt save the people that are in adversity : and shalt bring down the high looks of the proud.

Rev. xxi. 23.

28 Thou also shalt light my candle : the Lord my God shall make my darkness to be light.

Isa. lx. 19, 20.

29 For in thee I shall discomfit an host of men : and with the help of my God I shall leap over the wall.

Rev. xv. 3.
John xiv. 6.
Dan. iii. 25.
Song of 3 Child.
26.

30 The way of God is an undefiled way : the word of the Lord also is tried in the fire ; he is the defender of all them that put their trust in him.

31 For who is God, but the Lord : or who hath any strength, except our God ?

32 It is God, that girdeth me with strength of war : and maketh my way perfect.

Et eduxit me in latitudinem : sal-vum me fecit, quoniam voluit me.

Et retribuet mihi Dominus secundum justitiam meam : et secundum puritatem manuum mearum retribuet mihi.

Quia custodivi vias Domini : nec impie gessi a Deo meo.

Quoniam omnia judicia ejus in conspectu meo : et justitias ejus non re-puli a me.

Et ero immaculatus cum eo : et observabo me ab iniquitate mea. conspectu meo sunt semper

Et retribuet mihi Dominus secundum justitiam meam : et secundum coram eo puritatem manuum mearum in conspectu oculorum ejus.

Cum sancto sanctus eris : et cum viro innocente innocens eris :

Et cum electo electus eris : et cum perverso perverteris.

Quoniam tu populum humilem sal-vum facies : et oculos superborum humiliabis. subvertente

Quoniam tu illuminas lucernam meam, Domine : Deus meus, illumina tenebras meas.

Quoniam in te eripiar a tentatione :
et in Deo meo transgrediar murum.

Deus meus impolluta via ejus : eloquia Domini igne examinata ; pro- a te tector est omnium sperantium in se.

Quoniam quis Deus præter Dominum : aut quis Deus præter Deum nostrum ?

Deus qui præcinxit me virtute : et posuit immaculatam viam meam.

ungodliness which He bore in His soul when He was made sin for us, caused Him to cry out in His trouble as if in fear, "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" In what manner the bitter pain of this trouble was assuaged we know not, but that some immediate evidence was given of His voice having reached from the cross to God's holy temple is shown by the peaceful contrast of the words in which Christ commended His soul to His Father. Nor may it be forgotten that the prevailing power of the great Sacrifice was heard for all mankind when the answer of God went forth from the Holy of Holies by the miraculous rending of the veil from the top to the bottom.

From the seventh verse forward there is a reference to the foundation of the old dispensation on Sinai as a type of that breaking up of all old foundations which ensued when all things

The III. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Habak. iii. 19.

33 He maketh my feet like harts' feet : and setteth me up on high.

34 He teacheth mine hands to fight : and mine arms shall break even a bow of steel.

Heb. v. 8.
Phil. ii. 8, 9.

35 Thou hast given me the defence of thy salvation : thy right hand also shall hold me up, and thy loving correction shall make me great.

36 Thou shalt make room enough under me for to go : that my footsteps shall not slide.

Rev. xix. 11.

37 I will follow upon mine enemies, and overtake them : neither will I turn again till I have destroyed them.

38 I will smite them, that they shall not be able to stand : but fall under my feet.

Rev. xix. 13.
Eph. vi. 10.

39 Thou hast girded me with strength unto the battle : thou shalt throw down mine enemies under me.

40 Thou hast made mine enemies also to turn their backs upon me : and I shall destroy them that hate me.

Rev. xix. 21.

41 They shall cry, but there shall be none to help them : yea, even unto the Lord shall they cry, but he shall not hear them.

42 I will beat them as small as the dust before the wind : I will cast them out as the clay in the streets.

43 Thou shalt deliver me from the strivings of the people : and thou shalt make me the head of the heathen.

Luke ii. 32.

44 A people whom I have not known : shall serve me.

Acts xxviii. 28.

45 As soon as they hear of me they shall obey me : but the strange children shall dissemble with me.

Qui perfecit pedes meos tanquam cervorum : et super excelsa statuens statuit me me.

Qui docet manus meas ad prælium : et posuisti ut arcum æreum brachia posuit mea.

Et dedisti mihi protectionem salutis tuæ : et dextera tua suscepit me : suscipit me : et disciplina tua ipsa me docebit.

Et disciplina tua correxit me in finem : et disciplina tua, ipsa me docebit.

Dilatasti gressus meos subtus me : et non sunt infirmata vestigia mea.

Persequar inimicos meos, et comprehendam illos : et non convertar donec deficiant.

Confringam illos, nec poterunt Adfigam stare : cadent subtus pedes meos.

Et præcinxisti me virtute ad bellum : et supplantasti insurgentes in me subtus me.

Et inimicos meos dedisti mihi dorsum : et odientes me disperdidisti. inimicorum meorum

Clamaverunt, nec erat qui salvos faceret : ad Dominum, nec exaudivit eos.

Et comminuam eos ut pulverem ante faciem venti : ut lutum platearum delebo eos.

Eripies me de contradictionibus populi : constitues me in caput gentium.

Populus quem non cognovi servivit mihi : in auditu auris obedivit mihi. obaudivit were made new in the Church of Christ. For the literal earthquake at the crucifixion was the precursor of that "Yet once more I shake not the earth only, but also heaven" [Heb. xii. 26], by which the "kingdom that cannot be moved" was to be established : even as the latter is a precursor of that second Advent in which all things will be dissolved to the end that they may be remoulded into a new Heaven and a new Earth. In this imagery all the means by which God has brought salvation and peace out of turmoil and destruction are referred to ; and hence the foundations of the world being discovered through the springs of waters prefigure the regeneration of the world by water as the former verses had spoken of its regeneration by fire ; both typical of the great work of its new birth by the miracle of the Incarnation. Thus the Psalm throughout may be interpreted of Christ.

And thus we are also guided to the sense in which this Psalm is the voice of the Church, because it is the voice of her Head. St. Paul speaks often of the fellowship which the members of Christ have in His sufferings ; and even of filling "up that which is behind of the afflictions of Christ" in his own flesh [Col. i. 24]. So there is scarcely any verse of this Psalm which may not be sung as the words of the mystical body of our Lord, whether they are words of sorrow or of victory. The key to such an use of it is to be found in the words of the prophet, "O thou afflicted, tossed with tempest, and not comforted, behold, I will lay thy stones with fair colours, and lay thy foundations with sapphires. And I will make thy windows of agates, and thy gates of carbuncles, and all thy borders of pleasant stones. And all thy children shall be taught of the Lord : and great shall be the peace of thy children. In righteousness shalt thou be estab-

The III. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Exod. iii. 14.
John vi. 57, 58.
v. 26. xiv. 19.

46 The strange children shall fail :
and be afraid out of their prisons.

47 The Lord liveth, and blessed be my strong helper : and praised be the God of my salvation.

48 Even the God, that seeth that I be avenged : and subdueth the people unto me.

49 It is he, that delivereth me from my cruel enemies, and setteth me up above mine adversaries : thou shalt rid me from the wicked man.

50 For this cause will I give thanks unto thee, O Lord, among the Gentiles : and sing praises unto thy Name.

51 Great prosperity giveth he unto his King : and sheweth loving-kindness unto David his Anointed, and unto his seed for evermore.

THE XIX PSALM.

Cæli enarrant.

THE heavens declare the glory of God : and the firmament sheweth his handy-work.

2 One day telleth another : and one night certieth another.

3 There is neither speech, nor language : but their voices are heard among them.

4 Their sound is gone out into all lands : and their words into the ends of the world.

5 In them hath he set a tabernacle for the sun : which cometh forth as a bridegroom out of his chamber, and rejoiceth as a giant to run his course.

Filii alieni mentiti sunt mihi : filii alieni inveterati sunt, et claudicave-runt a semitis suis.

Vivit Dominus, et benedictus Deus meus : et exaltetur Deus salutis meæ.

Deus qui das vindictas mihi, et subdis populos sub me : liberator meus de inimicis meis iracundis.

Et ab insurgentibus in me exaltabis me : a viro iniquo eripies me.

Propterea confitebor tibi in nationibus, Domine : et nomini tuo psalmum dicam.

Magnificans salutes Regis ejus, et faciens misericordiam Christo suo David : et semini ejus usque in sæculum.

*subdidisti
lib. meus Dominus
de gentibus iracundis*

salutare regis ipsius

PSALMUS XVIII.

CÆLI enarrant gloriam Dei : et opera manuum ejus annuntiat
firmamentum.

Dies diei eructat verbum : et nox nocti indicat scientiam.

Non sunt loquelæ, neque sermones :
quorum non audiantur voces eorum.

In omnem terram exivit sonus eorum : et in fines orbis terræ verba eorum.

In sole posuit tabernaculum suum :
et ipse tanquam sponsus procedens de thalamo suo.

*Sunday Mattins.
3rd Noct.
Christmas, Cir-
cume., Ascensiontide, Trinity Sund., App.
Evv., All SS.,
B. V. M.,
Virg. & Matr.
1st N. et.
St. Michael.
2nd Noct.*

The IV. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Christmas Mat-
tins.

Rom. x. 18.

Mal. iv. 2.
John viii. 12.
Rev. iv. 3.
xxi. 23.

lished" [Isa. liv. 11—14]. For the prosperity which God giveth unto the King Whom He hath set in His holy hill of Zion He extends also to "His seed for evermore," even to that Church of the redeemed of whom the Redeemer says continually, "Behold I and the children whom Thou hast given Me."

PSALM XIX.

The ancient Church of England appears to have regarded this Psalm as one which especially set forth the glory of Christ in the Communion of Saints : and by its appropriation to Festivals of the Incarnation, of the Apostles, the holy Angels, and All Saints, to have illustrated the words of St. Paul : "Ye are come unto Mount Zion, and unto the City of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable company of angels, to the general assembly and church of the First-born which are written in heaven, and to God the Judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect, and to Jesus the Mediator of the New Covenant." [Heb. xii. 22—24.]

The key to this application of the Psalm is given by St. Paul in Rom. x. 18, where he takes the fourth verse as a prophecy of the foundation of the Church by the Apostles and Evangelists.
But it may also be drawn from a comparison of the Psalm with other words of the Holy Ghost and of Christ Himself.

The central idea of the Psalm is contained in the fifth and sixth verses, the previous portion leading up to these, and that which follows taking its cue from them. In these two verses the mind of the Church has always observed a prophecy of "the Sun of righteousness" which it was declared should "arise with healing in His beams" [Mal. iv. 2] : a prophecy, that is, of Him Who said, "I am the Light of the world" [John viii. 12] ; of Whom St. John wrote that He was the true Light coming into the world to illuminate all men [Ibid. i. 9] ; and Who in after years said also of Himself, "I am the root and the offspring of David, and the bright and morning Star." [Rev. xxii. 16.]

The heavens therefore declare the glory of God as a mystical parable of the spiritual world. Christ is the central luminary

The IV. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

6 It goeth forth from the uttermost part of the heaven, and runneth about unto the end of it again : and there is nothing hid from the heat thereof.

Matt. xi. 25.

7 The law of the Lord is an undefiled law, converting the soul : the testimony of the Lord is sure, and giveth wisdom unto the simple.

8 The statutes of the Lord are right, and rejoice the heart : the commandment of the Lord is pure, and giveth light unto the eyes.

Matt. v. 8.

John viii. 16.
Rev. xvi. 5, 7.

9 The fear of the Lord is clean, and endureth for ever : the judgements of the Lord are true, and righteous altogether.

Job xxviii. 16.
Prov. iii. 14. viii.
19. xvi. 16.
Ezek. iii. 3.
Rev. x. 9.

10 More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold : sweeter also than honey, and the honeycomb.

Matt. v. 12.
Rev. xi. 18.

11 Moreover, by them is thy servant taught : and in keeping of them there is great reward.

12 Who can tell how oft he offendeth : O cleanse thou me from my secret faults.

13 Keep thy servant also from sumptuous sins, lest they get the dominion over me : so shall I be undefiled, and innocent from the great offence.

14 Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart : be always acceptable in thy sight, 15 O Lord : my strength, and my redeemer.

THE XX PSALM.

Exaudiat te Dominus.

Royal Accession.

John xii. 27.

THE Lord hear thee in the day of trouble : the Name of the God of Jacob defend thee ;

Exsultavit ut gigas ad currendam viam : a summo cœlo egressio ejus :

Et occursus ejus usque ad summum ejus : nec est qui se abscondat a calore ejus.

Lex Domini immaculata, convertens inreprehensibilis animas : testimonium Domini fidele, sapientiam præstans parvulis.

Justitiæ Domini rectæ, lætificantes corda : præceptum Domini lucidum, illuminans oculos.

Timor Domini sanctus ; permanet in sæculum sæculi : judicia Domini vera, justificata in semetipsa.

Desiderabilia super aurum et lapidem pretiosum multum : et dulciora super mel et favum.

Etenim servus tuus custodit ea : in nam et . . . in custodiendo ita custodiendis illis retributio multa.

Delicta quis intelligit ? ab occultis meis munda me : et ab alienis parce munda me Domine servo tuo.

Si mei non fuerint dominati, tunc immaculatus ero : et emundabor a delicto maximo.

Et erunt ut complaceant eloquia oris mei : et meditatio cordis mei in conspectu tuo semper.

Domine, adjutor meus : et redemptor meus.

PSALMUS XIX.

EXAUDIAT te Dominus in die tribulationis : protegat te Nomen Dei Jacob. Sunday Mattins. 3rd Noct Name of Jesus, 1st Noct.

from Whom flows all the Light, heat, and Life by which souls live and the glory of God is promoted. As in the glorified City of God, so in the Church Militant, "the Lamb is the Light thereof," and she beholds His glory, the glory of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth, a glory transfiguring the flesh in which He dwelt [ἐσκήνωσε = tabernacled, John i. 14] among His people. From Him flowed the light of grace and truth to the Apostles. As He had said of Himself, so He said of them, "Ye are the light of the world : " and, "As the Father hath sent Me, so send I you." And thus "one day telleth another," and the sound of the glorious message of the Incarnation has gone out into all lands through the ministration of the Church, so that nothing is hid from the heat of the vivifying Sun of Righteousness. Thus also Christ is in His Church, vivifying all its work and its members,—“in them hath He set a tabernacle for the Sun : ” and again the heavens declare the glory of God when they enable the seer to say, “I heard a great voice from heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and He will dwell with them, and they shall be His people, and God Himself shall be with them and be their God.” [Rev. xxi. 3.]

The latter verses are to be taken as an expansion of the concluding words of the sixth, “there is nothing hid from the heat thereof.” For this all-embracing Light is law, testimony, statute, commandment, fear, and judgment ; converting, giving wisdom, joy, purity, everlasting life, and perfect righteousness : a savour of life unto life, or a savour of death unto death.

The IV. Day.
Morning
Prayer

2 Send thee help from the sanctuary : and strengthen thee out of Sion ;

3 Remember all thy offerings : and accept thy burnt-sacrifice ;

4 Grant thee thy heart's desire : and fulfil all thy mind.

5 We will rejoice in thy salvation, and triumph in the Name of the Lord our God : the Lord perform all thy petitions.

6 Now know I, that the Lord helpeth his Anointed, and will hear him from his holy heaven : even with the wholesome strength of his right hand.

7 Some put their trust in chariots, and some in horses : but we will remember the Name of the Lord our God.

8 They are brought down, and fallen : but we are risen, and stand upright.

9 Save, Lord, and hear us, O King of heaven : when we call upon thee.

THE XXI PSALM.

Domine, in virtute tua.

THE King shall rejoice in thy strength, O Lord : exceeding glad shall he be of thy salvation.

2 Thou hast given him his heart's desire : and hast not denied him the request of his lips.

Mittat tibi auxilium de sancto : et de Sion tueatur te.

Memor sit omnis sacrificii tui : et sit Domine holocaustum tuum pingue fiat.

Tribuat tibi secundum cor tuum : tibi Domine et omne consilium tuum confirmet.

Lætabimur in salutari tuo : et in nomine Dei nostri magnificabimur. Domini Dei Impleat Dominus omnes petitiones tuas : nunc cognovi quoniam saluum fecit Dominus Christum suum.

Exaudiet illum de cœlo sancto suo : in potentatibus salus dexteræ ejus.

Hi in curribus, et hi in equis : nos autem in nomine Domini Dei nostri invocabimus. magnificabimur

Ipsi obligati sunt, et ceciderunt, nos autem surreximus et erecti sumus. nos vero rexitur- reximus et

Domine saluum fac regem : et exaudi nos in die qua invocaverimus te.

PSALMUS XX.

DOMINE in virtute tua lætabitur rex : et super salutare tuum exsultabit vehementer. Sunday, Martyrs, Confes-sors, Inv. & Ex. Cr., Mattins, 3rd Noct.

Desiderium cordis ejus tribuisti ei : et voluntate labiorum ejus non fraudasti eum. Desiderium anima

Ascension Day
Matt., Royal Accession.
Windsor Obitt
Sunday.
Isa. xxxii. 1.
Rev. iv. 2. 11.
John xvii. 24.

"The nations of them which are saved shall walk in the light of it." [Rev. xxi. 24.] And to them it shall be a cleansing, purifying Light. Others there will be to whom it will be a Light of true and righteous judgment, "scorching them with great heat" [Rev. xvi. 9], and bringing to light all their hidden works of darkness.

With this Psalm therefore should ever go up a prayer that the work of Christ's Incarnation may go forward more and more in the world at large and in every heart, so that He may be the everlasting Light of us and of all whom He has redeemed.

PSALM XX.

The original purpose of this Psalm was doubtless of a similar kind to that for which it has been chosen in modern times as a proper Psalm for the day of the Sovereign's accession to the throne. But in its full meaning it looks beyond all earthly sovereigns to Him Who is in the most true and complete sense the Anointed of the Lord.

And it is to be remarked that the words throughout are an illustration of the manner in which Christ is pleased to identify Himself with His mystical Body ; so that the Church joins herself with Him in His very intercession for her members. Christ says, "Do this in remembrance of Me," and while the Church obeys His command and offers a constant Memorial before God of the Sacrifice of Christ, she yet places that Memorial in His hands, saying, May God remember all Thy offerings ; grant Thee Thy heart's desire, which is that all may have the benefit of Thine offering and rejoice in Thy salvation. There was a type of this in Christ's words to His Three Apostles, "What, could ye not watch with Me one hour ?" and there is a parable of it in the Revelation, where "the Lamb as it had been slain" stands in continual intercession before the Throne, yet in the midst of the four and twenty elders.

The last verse is constantly used in the suffrages of Morning and Evening Prayer according to the form in which it appears in the LXX and the Vulgate. The two readings show the lower and the higher application of the Psalm, the English being equivalent to the "Hosanna to the Son of David" with which Christ was led in triumph to Jerusalem.

PSALM XXI.

Whatever was the original purpose of this song of triumph, the coming of Christ to His Kingdom has given it a meaning before which all lower ones must fade into distance. Its position as a proper Psalm for Ascension Day points out therefore the proper interpretation to be given to it at all times, as a Psalm which magnifies the Son of Man seated on the Throne of His Divine glory.

In such words the Church on earth echoes the strains of those who "cast their crowns before the Throne, saying, Thou art

The IV. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Heb. ii. 9.
Rev. xix. 12.

3 For thou shalt prevent him with the blessings of goodness : and shalt set a crown of pure gold upon his head.

Rev. iv. 9.
xi. 15.

4 He asked life of thee, and thou gavest him a long life : even for ever and ever.

Isa. xl. 5.
Phil. ii. 9, 10.

5 His honour is great in thy salvation : glory, and great worship shalt thou lay upon him.

6 For thou shalt give him everlasting felicity : and make him glad with the joy of thy countenance.

Heb. xli. 2.

7 And why? because the King putteth his trust in the Lord : and in the mercy of the most Highest he shall not miscarry.

8 All thine enemies shall feel thy hand : thy right hand shall find out them that hate thee.

Rev. xi. 18.

9 Thou shalt make them like a fiery oven in time of thy wrath : the Lord shall destroy them in his displeasure, and the fire shall consume them.

Matt. xxv. 41.

Matt. xxvii. 25.

10 Their fruit shalt thou root out of the earth : and their seed from among the children of men.

11 For they intended mischief against thee : and imagined such a device as they are not able to perform.

12 Therefore shalt thou put them to flight : and the strings of thy bow shalt thou make ready against the face of them.

John xvii. 5.
Rev. xi. 17.

13 Be thou exalted, Lord, in thine own strength : so will we sing, and praise thy power.

THE XXII PSALM.

Deus, Deus meus.

Evening
Prayer.
Good Friday,
Mattins.
A Passion
Psalm.

Matt. xxvii. 46.
Isa. lii. 7.

MY God, my God, look upon me; why hast thou forsaken me : and art so far from my health, and from the words of my complaint?

Quoniam prævenisti eum in benedictionibus dulcedinis : posuisti in capite ejus coronam de lapide pretioso.

Vitam petiit a te, et tribuisti ei : longitudinem dierum in sæculum, et in sæculum sæculi.

Magna est gloria ejus in salutari tuo : gloriam et magnum decorem impones super eum.

Quoniam dabis eum in benedictionem in sæculum sæculi : lætificabis eum in gaudio cum vultu tuo.

Quoniam rex sperat in Domino : et in misericordia Altissimi non commovebitur.

Inveniatur manus tua omnibus inimicis tuis : dextera tua inveniatur omnes qui te oderunt.

Pones eos ut clibanum ignis in tempore vultus tui : Dominus in ira sua conturbabit eos, et devorabit eos ignis.

Fructum eorum de terra perdes : et semen eorum a filiis hominum.

Quoniam declinaverunt in te mala : cogitaverunt consilia, quæ non poterunt stabilire.

Quoniam pones eos dorsum : in reliquiis tuis præparabis vultum eorum.

Exaltare Domine in virtute tua : cantabimus et psallemus virtutes tuas.

PSALMUS XXI.

DEUS Deus meus, respice in me, quare me dereliquisti? longe a salute mea verba delictorum meorum.

Prime. Good
Friday Mattins.
1st Noct.

worthy, O Lord, to receive glory, and honour, and power;" remembering the "Author and Finisher of our faith, Who for the joy that was set before Him endured the Cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the Throne of God."

The heart's desire of Christ was, that all might be one in Him as He was One with the Father: that all might be redeemed and reign with Him as kings and priests in His glorified kingdom. And when He prayed unto Him that was able to save Him from death, that if it were possible the cup might pass from Him, He was heard in that He feared, and offered the perfect obedience of "not My will but Thine." And so, although the King was to wear a crown of thorns, and to give up His life instead of keeping it, yet was He by those very means to attain His prayer, so that He might reign for ever and ever, and be able to say, "I am He that liveth, and was dead, and behold I am alive for evermore."

PSALM XXII.

The special consecration of this Psalm by our Lord's use of its opening words in the most awful moment of His Passion, has invested it for ever with a royal grandeur of Divine sorrow<sup>1</sup>.

The opening words recall to mind the force which was after-<sup>1</sup> St. Augustine speaks of this Psalm as being used on the day of our Lord's Passion.

The IV. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Luke v. 16.
vi. 12.
John xiii. 30
Job ii. 10.

2 O my God, I cry in the day-time, but thou hearest not : and in the night-season also I take no rest.

3 And thou continuest holy : O thou worship of Israel.

4 Our fathers hoped in thee : they trusted in thee, and thou didst deliver them.

5 They called upon thee, and were holpen : they put their trust in thee, and were not confounded.

Isa. liii. 2, 3.
Job xxv. 6.

6 But as for me, I am a worm, and no man : a very scorn of men, and the outcast of the people.

Matt. xxvii. 39.

7 All they that see me, laugh me to scorn : they shoot out their lips, and shake their heads, saying,

Matt. xxvii. 43.

8 He trusted in God, that he would deliver him : let him deliver him, if he will have him.

9 But thou art he that took me out of my mother's womb : thou wast my hope when I hanged yet upon my mother's breasts.

10 I have been left unto thee ever since I was born : thou art my God even from my mother's womb.

Isa. lxiii. 3. 5.

11 O go not from me, for trouble is hard at hand : and there is none to help me.

Isa. xxxiv. 7.

12 Many oxen are come about me : fat bulls of Basan close me in on every side.

Luke xxiii. 35.

13 They gape upon me with their mouths : as it were a ramping and a roaring lion.

Isa. liii. 4.

14 I am poured out like water, and all my bones are out of joint : my heart also in the midst of my body is even like melting wax.

John xix. 28.
Luke xxiii. 36.

15 My strength is dried up like a potsherd, and my tongue cleaveth to my gums : and thou shalt bring me into the dust of death.

Matt. vii. 6.

16 For many dogs are come about me : and the council of the wicked layeth siege against me.

Deus meus, clamabo per diem, et non exaudies : et nocte, et non ad insipientiam mihi.

Tu autem in sancto habitas : Laus Israël.

In te speraverunt patres nostri : speraverunt, et liberasti eos.

Ad te clamaverunt, et salvi facti sunt : in te speraverunt, et non sunt confusi.

Ego autem sum vermis, et non homo : opprobrium hominum, et abjectio plebis.

Omnes videntes me deriserunt me : qui ridebant me aspernabantur me locuti sunt labiis, et moverunt caput.

Speravit in Domino : eripiat eum : salvum faciat eum, quoniam vult eum.

Quoniam tu es qui extraxisti me de ventre : spes mea ab uberibus matris meæ : in te projectus sum ex utero. jaculatus sum

De ventre matris meæ Deus meus es tu : ne discesseris a me.

Quoniam tribulatio proxima est : quoniam non est qui adjuvet.

Circundederunt me vituli multi : tauri pingues obsederunt me.

Aperuerunt super me os suum : sicut leo rapiens et rugiens.

Sicut aqua effusus sum : et dispersa effusa sunt et sunt omnia ossa mea.

Factum est cor meum tanquam cera liquescens : in medio ventris mei. liquefens

Aruit tanquam testa virtus mea, et Exaruit velut testa lingua mea adhæsit faucibus meis : et in pulverem mortis deduxisti me. deduxerunt

Quoniam circundederunt me canes multi : concilium malignantium ob-sedit me.

wards given to them by our Lord, when, even after His Resurrection, He declared His perfect Humanity and His capacity for perfect Union with Human Nature by saying, "I ascend unto My Father and your Father, and to My God and your God." [John xx. 17.] They reveal at once the One Man of Sorrows making Himself one with those whom He had come to redeem.

But the words that follow, and which give the key-note to the whole awful strain of sorrow, indicate the mystery of that darkness which was to fall upon the soul of Him Whose Body was already suffering the fulness of pain upon the Cross. In that hour, it may be from noon till three o'clock, the vast burden of all sin was concentrated upon the Redeemer's Soul; and with it the still more unbearable burden of that Divine displeasure which sin calls down from the All-Righteous God. In what way the Divine Presence was hid from the sight of Him whose Human Nature was inseparably joined to His Godhead, can be

The IV. Day.

Evening

Prayer.

John xx. 25, 27.

Matt. xxvii. 36.

Luke xxlii. 34.

John xix. 23, 24.

17 They pierced my hands and my feet, I may tell all my bones : they stand staring and looking upon me.

18 They part my garments among them : and cast lots upon my vesture.

19 But be not thou far from me, O Lord : thou art my succour, haste thee to help me.

20 Deliver my soul from the sword : my darling from the power of the dog.

2 Tim. iv. 17.
Isa. xxxiv. 7.

21 Save me from the lion's mouth : thou hast heard me also from among the horns of the unicorns.

Luke xxlii. 34, 46.
John xx. 17, 21.
Heb. ii. 12.

22 I will declare thy Name unto my brethren : in the midst of the congregation will I praise thee.

23 O praise the Lord, ye that fear him : magnify him, all ye of the seed of Jacob, and fear him, all ye seed of Israel.

Luke xxlii. 46.
James ii. 5.
Isa. lx. 1.
Isa. lxii. 12.

24 For he hath not despised, nor abhorred, the low estate of the poor : he hath not hid his face from him, but when he called unto him he heard him.

Isa. lx. 3, 20.

25 My praise is of thee in the great congregation : my vows will I perform in the sight of them that fear him.

John vi. 51, 54.
James ii. 5.

26 The poor shall eat, and be satisfied : they that seek after the Lord shall praise him ; your heart shall live for ever.

Isa. liii. 11.

27 All the ends of the world shall remember themselves, and be turned unto the Lord : and all the kindreds of the nations shall worship before him.

Rev. vii. 9, xi. 15.

28 For the kingdom is the Lord's : and he is the Governor among the people.

Isa. lv. 2.
John vi. 55.

29 All such as be fat upon earth : have eaten, and worshipped.

Foderunt manus meas et pedes meos : dinumeraverunt omnia ossa mea.

Ipsi vero consideraverunt et inspexerunt me : diviserunt sibi vestimenta mea, et super vestem meam miserunt sortem.

Tu autem Domine ne elongaveris auxilium tuum a me : ad defensionem meam conspice.

Erue a framea Deus animam meam : et de manu canis unicum meum.

Salva me ex ore leonis : et a cornibus unicornium humilitatem meam.

Narrabo Nomen tuum fratribus meis : in medio Ecclesiæ laudabo te.

Qui timetis Dominum, laudate eum : universum semen Jacob glorificate eum.

Timeat eum omne semen Israël : quoniam non sprevit neque despexit deprecationem pauperis.

Nec avertit faciem suam a me : et cum clamarem ad eum exaudivit me.

Apud te laus mea in Ecclesia magna : vota mea reddam in conspectu timentium eum.

Edent pauperes et saturabuntur, et laudabunt Dominum qui requirunt eum : vivent corda eorum in sæculum sæculi.

Remiscentur et convertentur ad Dominum : universi fines terræ.

Et adorabunt in conspectu ejus : universæ familiæ Gentium.

Quoniam Domini est regnum : et ipse dominabitur Gentium.

explained by no uninspired pen, and has not been revealed by the Holy Ghost. The words themselves reveal the fact, and all that can be said beyond is, that they form a comprehensive commentary on the words of the prophet, "Surely He hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows" [Isa. liii. 4], and on those of the Apostle, "For He hath made Him to be sin for us Who knew no sin." [2 Cor. v. 21. Gal. iii. 13.]

The body of the Psalm has so exact a correspondence with the narrative of the Crucifixion as to furnish an irrefutable illustration of the truth, that "all Scripture is given by inspiration of God" [2 Tim. iii. 16]: for only the Omniscience of Him to Whom all time is one continual present could have foreseen the circumstances so exactly named. It should therefore be taken, in the same manner as the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah, as a Divine exposition and commemoration of the Passion. Viewed in this light, it shows how utter was the depth of humiliation to which Christ descended that He might reach to the lowest of sinners. The patriarchs and many holy men had called on God, and He had delivered them. Abraham at the sacrifice of Isaac, Joseph in the pit, Job when stricken to the ground with misery, Daniel in the lion's den, the three holy Children in the Babylonian furnace—these had been heard from Heaven ; but Christ was to go through with His sacrifice, was to descend into the lowest pit, a place of darkness, and into the deep ; was to have His visage more marred than Job or any sons of men ; was to have His soul more among lions than was Daniel's body, and to go

The IV. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
John vi. 57.

1 Pet. i. 23. ii. 9.
Rev. vii. 4. 9.

Isa. lxiii. 7, 8.
Luke xxiv. 47.

30 All they that go down into the dust, shall kneel before him : and no man hath quickened his own soul.

31 My seed shall serve him : they shall be counted unto the Lord for a generation.

32 They shall come, and the heavens shall declare his righteousness : unto a people that shall be born whom the Lord hath made.

THE XXIII PSALM.

Dominus regit me.

Ezek. xxxiv. 31.
John x. 11—15.

THE Lord is my shepherd : therefore can I lack nothing.

Rev. vii. 16, 17.

2 He shall feed me in a green pasture : and lead me forth beside the waters of comfort.

3 He shall convert my soul : and bring me forth in the paths of righteousness for his Name's sake.

Isa. xi. 1.
Zech. xi. 7, 10.

4 Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil : for thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff comfort me.

Matt. iv. 11.
Mark i. 13.
Luke xxii. 30.
Rev. iii. 20. xix. 9.

5 Thou shalt prepare a table before me against them that trouble me : thou hast anointed my head with oil, and my cup shall be full.

John viii. 35.
xiv. 2.
Rev. xxi. 2.

6 But thy lovingkindness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life : and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

Manducaverunt et adoraverunt omnes pingues terræ : in conspectu ejus divites cadent omnes qui descendunt in terram. procedunt universi

Et anima mea illi vivet : et semen meum serviet ipsi.

Annuntiabitur Domino generatio ventura : et annuntiabunt cœli justitiam ejus populo qui nascetur, quem fecit Dominus.

PSALMUS XXII.

DOMINUS regit me, et nihil mihi deerit : in loco pascuæ ibi me collocavit. Prime. Mattins of the departed.

Super aquam refectionis educavit me : animam meam convertit.

Deduxit me super semitas justitiæ : propter Nomen suum.

Nam et si ambulavero in medio ambulem umbræ mortis : non timebo mala, quoniam tu mecum es.

Virga tua et baculus tuus : ipsa me consolata sunt.

Parasti in conspectu meo mensam : adversus eos qui tribulant me.

Impinguasti in oleo caput meum : et calix meus inebrians quam præclarus poculum tuum est.

Et misericordia tua subsequetur me : omnibus diebus vitæ meæ.

Et ut inhabitem in domo Domini : in longitudinem dierum.

through a furnace of affliction far fiercer than that of Babylon. And instead of being able to say in the midst of all, "Our God Whom we serve is able to deliver us," He was to suffer a darkness more terrible than death, so that He could say, "I am a worm, and no man" . . . "why hast Thou forsaken Me?" . . . "I cry, but Thou hearest not."

Even this awful prophecy and exposition of the Passion, however, passes on to a declaration of the joy and victory which were to spring out of it : and the latter half of the Psalm foreshadows the resignation with which Christ was able to commend His spirit to the Father, the joy with which He could look forth on the travail of His soul and be satisfied : God heard the Poor when He called unto Him, and did not continue to hide His face from Him.

The 25th and 26th verses are a prophecy of the Holy Eucharist. Christ had said, "The bread which I will give is My Flesh, which I will give for the life of the world," and "He that eateth Me, even he shall live by Me;" and by His Death on the Cross He performed the vow which He had thus made, so that the members of His mystical Body might eat of the Life-giving Food, and be satisfied with that Flesh which is meat indeed.

PSALM XXIII.

This sweet Hymn is the voice of Christ speaking in His members according to that mystical relation shadowed forth by

His being both the Lamb and the Shepherd, and according to His words, "Without Me ye can do nothing." As the Lamb of God He Himself walked through the valley of the shadow of death; as the Good Shepherd He supports those who go thither by the sceptre of His Incarnation, and by the staff of His Cross, the staff of Beauty and the staff of Bands<sup>1</sup>. [Zech. xi. 7—12.]

This Psalm seems to follow the 22nd in natural order, that being the agonized prayer of the Cross, this the peaceful praise of Paradise. And as there was a rest for the Shepherd, so is there a rest prepared for the sheep : when "they shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more ; neither shall the sun light on them, nor any heat. For the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and shall lead them unto living fountains of waters ; and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes." All which, both in the Psalm and in the Revelation, seems to point to a sacramental Life in Christ both here and hereafter ; here in the Holy Eucharist, hereafter in the restored Tree of Life whose leaves are for the healing of the nations, and whereof the redeemed may "eat and live for ever" in a re-opened Paradise.

The fifth verse of this Psalm may be a constant reminder to us that the Blessed Sacrament is the true remedy of the Christian against the Evil One and his temptations. Angels came to pre-<sup>1</sup> This was a Burial Psalm in the time of St. Chrysostom.

THE XXIV PSALM.

Domini est terra.

The V. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

Ascension Day,
Evensong,
1 Cor. x. 26. 28.
Gen. i. 2. 9.

John iii. 13.

Heb. vii. 26.

Eph. i. 3.

Rev. xxii. 4.
Isa. lx. 1.

Acts i. 9.
vii. 56.
Rev. xi. 17.

Isa. lxiii. 1.

1 Pet. iii. 22.
Isa. lx. 11.

Rev. xix. 16.

THE earth is the Lord's, and all that therein is : the compass of the world, and they that dwell therein.

2 For he hath founded it upon the seas : and prepared it upon the floods.

3 Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord : or who shall rise up in his holy place ?

4 Even he, that hath clean hands, and a pure heart : and that hath not lift up his mind unto vanity, nor sworn to deceive his neighbour.

5 He shall receive the blessing from the Lord : and righteousness from the God of his salvation.

6 This is the generation of them that seek him : even of them that seek thy face, O Jacob.

7 Lift up your heads, O ye gates, and be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors : and the King of glory shall come in.

8 Who is the King of glory : it is the Lord strong and mighty, even the Lord mighty in battle.

9 Lift up your heads, O ye gates, and be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors : and the King of glory shall come in.

10 Who is the King of glory : even the Lord of hosts, he is the King of glory.

THE XXV PSALM.

Ad te, Domine, levavi.

Isa. i. 7.

UNTO thee, O Lord, will I lift up my soul, my God, I have put my trust in thee : O let me not be confounded, neither let mine enemies triumph over me.

PSALMUS XXIII.

DOMINI est terra, et plenitudo ejus : orbis terrarum, et universi qui habitant in eo.

Quia ipse super maria fundavit eum : et super flumina præparavit eum.

Quis ascendet in montem Domini ? aut quis stabit in loco sancto ejus ?

Innocens manibus et mundo corde ; qui non accepit in vano animam suam : nec juravit in dolo proximo suo.

Hic accipiet benedictionem a Domino : et misericordiam a Deo salutari suo.

Hæc est generatio quærentium eum : quærentium faciem Dei Jacob.

Attollite portas, principes, vestras, et elevamini portæ æternales : et introibit rex gloriæ.

Quis est iste rex gloriæ ? Dominus fortis et potens, Dominus potens in prælio.

Attollite portas, principes, vestras, et elevamini portæ æternales : et introibit rex gloriæ.

Quis est iste rex gloriæ ? Dominus virtutum, ipse est rex gloriæ.

Prime.
Circumc., Trinity
Sund., Martyrs,
Transfiguration,
B. V. M.,
Dedic. of Ch.,
Inv. & Ex. Cr.,
Virg. & Matr.,
Mattins.
1st Noct.
Easter Eve,
St. Michael,
2nd Noct.
Confessors,
3rd Noct.

Tollite

Tollite

PSALMUS XXIV.

AD te Domine levavi animam meam, Deus meus in te confido : non erubescam.

Neque irrideant me inimici mei :

Prime.
B. V. M., Mattins,
1st Noct.
Matt. of the de-
parted.
2nd Noct.

pare a table for Christ in the wilderness of temptation ; but He Himself prepares one for His people in the Church.

PSALM XXIV.<sup>1</sup>

As the last Psalm sang of the transition of Christ from the death of the Cross to the rest of Paradise, so does this of His Ascension into Heaven.

By His Death the Lord has gained all those kingdoms of the earth, and the glory of them, which were offered to Him at the Temptation. As the Spirit of God brooded over the waters of chaos, and there sprung therefrom the solid earth of the natural creation, so has the Kingdom of Christ been founded upon the water-floods which overwhelmed the Saviour in His sufferings, and the sacramental stream which flowed from His side. So also is the Church supported safely on the waves of this troublesome world, as the Ark in the deluge, or the Apostles' boat in the storm, because of His Presence Who has prepared it upon the floods.

The middle verses may be compared with the 15th Psalm, and are a prelude to the four triumphant verses which form the main idea of this Hymn of victory. The King of Glory first entered on His Triumph when He smote those gates of brass and brake those bars of iron asunder, which He had declared should not prevail against His Church, and therefore could not against Him. A second time the cry went forth, Who is the King of Glory ? when He who had come with dyed garments from Bozrah, ascended up to Heaven to make a continual offering of His Body before the Throne. A third time He will ride forth at the head <sup>1</sup> The first verse of this Psalm has received a new historical interest from the striking application given to it by its conspicuous position on the front of the Royal Exchange, at the centre of the world's commerce.

The V. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

2 For all they that hope in thee shall not be ashamed : but such as transgress without a cause shall be put to confusion.

John xiv. 6.

3 Shew me thy ways, O Lord : and teach me thy paths.

Joel ii. 13.

4 Lead me forth in thy truth, and learn me : for thou art the God of my salvation ; in thee hath been my hope all the day long.

Ileb. ii. 17.
Luke xxiii. 42.

5 Call to remembrance, O Lord, thy tender mercies : and thy lovingkindnesses, which have been ever of old.

6 O remember not the sins and offences of my youth : but according to thy mercy think thou upon me, O Lord, for thy goodness.

John vi. 44, 45.

7 Gracious, and righteous is the Lord : therefore will he teach sinners in the way.

Matt. xi. 25. 29.
James i. 21.

8 Them that are meek shall he guide in judgement : and such as are gentle, them shall he learn his way.

9 All the paths of the Lord are mercy, and truth : unto such as keep his covenant, and his testimonies.

John xvii. 11.

10 For thy Name's sake, O Lord : be merciful unto my sin, for it is great.

11 What man is he, that feareth the Lord : him shall he teach in the way that he shall choose.

Isa. liii. 10.

12 His soul shall dwell at ease : and his seed shall inherit the land.

John vii. 17.
xiv. 21.

13 The secret of the Lord is among them that fear him : and he will shew them his covenant.

14 Mine eyes are ever looking unto the Lord : for he shall pluck my feet out of the net.

Matt xxvi. 38

15 Turn thee unto me, and have mercy upon me : for I am desolate, and in misery.

etenim universi qui sustinent te non confundentur. universi qui expectant Domine non conf.

Confundantur omnes iniqua agentes : supervacue. conf. iniqui facientes vana

Vias tuas Domine demonstra mihi : et semitas tuas edoce me. vias tuas Domine notat fac mihi

Dirige me in veritate tua, et doce me : quia tu es Deus salvator meus, et te sustinui tota die.

Reminiscere miserationum tuarum Domine : et misericordiarum tuarum, quæ a sæculo sunt.

Delicta juventutis meæ : et ignorantias meas ne memineris.

Secundum misericordiam tuam mento mei tu : propter bonitatem tuam, Domine. magnam misericordiam tuam memor esto mei Deus

Dulcis et rectus Dominus : propter hoc legem dabit delinquentibus in via. statuit

Diriget mansuetos in iudicio : docebit mites vias suas. Dirigit mites . . . docebit mansuetos Universæ viæ Domini misericordia et veritas : requirentibus testamentum ejus et testimonia ejus.

Propter nomen tuum Domine propitiaberis peccato meo : multum est enim. copiosum

Quis est homo qui timet Dominum ? legem statuit ei in via quam elegit.

Anima ejus in bonis demorabitur : et semen ejus hæreditabit terram. hæreditate possidebit

Firmamentum est Dominus timentibus eum : et testamentum ipsius ut manifestetur illis.

Oculi mei semper ad Dominum : quoniam ipse evellet de laqueo pedes meos.

Respice in me, et miserere mei : quia unicus et pauper sum ego.

of the armies of Heaven, clothed with a vesture dipped in blood, to tread "the winepress of the fierceness and wrath of Almighty God;" and once more will the cry go up, "Lift up your heads, O ye gates, and be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors;" "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain," "The marriage of the Lamb is come."

PSALM XXV.

In the penitential tone of this Psalm we hear again the voice of Christ speaking for His mystical Body, uniting Himself with all its members, so that He becomes the representative Israel pleading with God for pardon in their name. He is our merciful High Priest, bearing "the names of the children of Israel in the breastplate of judgment upon His heart, when He goeth in unto the holy place" [Exod. xxviii. 9] "to appear in the presence of God for us." Accordingly we find, as in some other Psalms, several changes in the pronouns, sometimes a singular one being used, and at others a plural: "I have put my trust in Thee," "All they that hope in Thee." As "in all our afflictions He was afflicted" while on earth, so even now His perpetual Intercession embraces within its compass that experience of the burden of all sin which was acquired when He bore ours upon the Cross.

In the words of this Psalm, therefore, Christ is teaching us how to approach the Throne of mercy: "Take with you words, and turn to the Lord: say unto Him, Take away all iniquity, and

The V. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

16 The sorrows of my heart are enlarged : O bring thou me out of my troubles.

17 Look upon my adversity, and misery : and forgive me all my sin.

18 Consider mine enemies, how many they are : and they bear a tyrannous hate against me.

1 Pet. iv. 19.

19 O keep my soul, and deliver me : let me not be confounded, for I have put my trust in thee.

20 Let perfectness, and righteous dealing wait upon me : for my hope hath been in thee.

John xvii. 9.
Rev. xxi. 4.

21 Deliver Israel, O God : out of all his troubles.

THE XXVI PSALM.

Judica me, Domine.

John xii. 28.
xiv. 30.

BE thou my Judge, O Lord, for I have walked innocently : my trust hath been also in the Lord, therefore shall I not fall.

Mal. iii. 3.

2 Examine me, O Lord, and prove me : try out my reins, and my heart.

3 For thy lovingkindness is ever before mine eyes : and I will walk in thy truth.

Heb. vii. 26.

4 I have not dwelt with vain persons : neither will I have fellowship with the deceitful.

Rev. ii. 2. 9.

5 I have hated the congregation of the wicked : and will not sit among the ungodly.

Exod. xxx. 18.

6 I will wash my hands in innocency, O Lord : and so will I go to thine altar ;

1 Cor. xi. 26.

7 That I may shew the voice of thanksgiving : and tell of all thy wondrous works.

Luke ii. 49.
Acts ii. 46.

8 Lord, I have loved the habitation of thy house : and the place where thine honour dwelleth.

Tribulationes cordis mei multipli- dilatatae sunt catae sunt : de necessitatibus meis erue eripe me
me.

Vide humilitatem meam, et laborem meum : et dimitte universa delicta omnia peccata mea.

Respice inimicos meos, quoniam multiplicati sunt : et odio iniquo ode-runt me.

Custodi animam meam, et erue me : eripe non erubescam, quoniam speravi in te. non confundar Innocentes et recti adhæserunt mihi : quoniam invo- cavi te

quia sustinui te. quoniam . . . te Domine

Libera, Deus, Israël : ex omnibus Redime me . . .
tribulationibus suis. angustiis meis

PSALMUS XXV.

JUDICA me, Domine, quoniam ego Prime.
in innocentia mea ingressus Præparat. Missæ.
sum : et in Domino sperans non in-firmabor.

Proba me, Domine, et tenta me :
ure renes meos et cor meum.

Quoniam misericordia tua ante ocu-los meos est : et complacui in veritate tua.

Non sedi cum concilio vanitatis :
et cum iniqua gerentibus non introibo.

Odivi ecclesiam malignantium : et congregationem cum impiis non sedebo. malignorum

Lavabo inter innocentes manus meas : et circumdabo altare tuum Do- circuibo mine.

Ut audiam vocem laudis tuæ : et enarrem universa mirabilia tua.

Domine, dilexi decorem domus tuæ :
et locum habitationis gloriæ tuæ. locum tabernacu- lis (sic)

receive us graciously : so will we render the calves of our lips." [Hosea xiv. 2.] And hence it has been called a pattern of all prayer. Offered up by the Church of God, it is a continual acknowledgment of the sins of which human nature has ever been guilty before Him, from the time of its youth in our first parents to that of its old age in these latter days. Offered up by each Christian soul, it is a lowly confession before the righteous Judge of our general unworthiness and our particular sin ; of our sorrow for sin, and our desire to be strengthened against evil and the Evil One. It pleads the loving-kindness of God as evidenced in the days of old, and asks for a repetition of mercies from the inexhaustible fountain of His love : and, self-abased by remembrance of former falls, it beseeches Him to consider how great is the power arrayed against us, and how utterly unable the sinner is to walk upright in the way of righteousness without His gracious leading, and support, and protection.

Thus, when we know not what to pray for as we ought, God Himself teaches us, and "the Spirit itself maketh intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered." [Rom. viii. 26.]

PSALM XXVI.

Sinners must appeal to the mercy of their Judge ; but He in Whom was no guile could appeal to His strict justice. Only of Christ therefore can this Psalm be spoken in its literal meaning ; while others who say, "Be Thou my Judge, O Lord," must add, "If Thou, Lord, shouldst be extreme to mark what is done

The V. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

9 O shut not up my soul with the sinners : nor my life with the blood-thirsty ;

10 In whose hands is wickedness : and their right hand is full of gifts.

11 But as for me, I will walk innocently : O deliver me, and be merciful unto me.

Heb. ii. 12.

12 My foot standeth right : I will praise the Lord in the congregations.

THE XXVII PSALM.

Dominus illuminatio.

Evening
Prayer.
1 John i. 5.
Isa. lx. 1. 20.
Rev. xxi. 23.

THE Lord is my light, and my salvation ; whom then shall I fear : the Lord is the strength of my life ; of whom then shall I be afraid ?

John xviii. 6.

2 When the wicked, even mine enemies, and my foes came upon me to eat up my flesh : they stumbled and fell.

Matt. xxvi. 53.
Rom. viii. 38.

3 Though an host of men were laid against me, yet shall not my heart be afraid : and though there rose up war against me, yet will I put my trust in him.

Luke ii. 49.
Isa. vi. 1.
xxxiii. 17.
Rev. iv. 3.
xxi. 22.

4 One thing have I desired of the Lord, which I will require : even that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life, to behold the fair beauty of the Lord, and to visit his temple.

Exod. xxxiii. 21.
1 Cor. x. 4.
Matt. xvi. 18.
xxi. 44.

5 For in the time of trouble he shall hide me in his tabernacle : yea, in the secret place of his dwelling shall he hide me, and set me up upon a rock of stone.

Ne perdas cum impiis Deus animam impiis animam meam : et cum viris sanguinum vitam meam.

In quorum manibus iniquitates sunt : dextera eorum repleta est muneribus.

Ego autem in innocentia mea ingressus sum : redime me, et miserere mei.

Pes meus stetit in directo : in ec- Pes enim ... in clesiis benedicam te, Domine. via recta ...
Dominum

PSALMUS XXVI.

DOMINUS illuminatio mea : et salus mea ; quem timebo ?
Dominus protector vitæ meæ : a quo trepidabo ?
Mond. Mattins.
Good Friday.
1st Noct.
Easter Eve.
2nd Noct.
Matt. of the de- parted. 2nd N.
Dominus defensor
vitæ

Dum appropiant super me nocentes : ut edant carnes meas ;

Qui tribulant me inimici mei : ipsi infirmati sunt et ceciderunt.

Si consistant adversum me castra : non timebit cor meum.

Si exsurgat adversum me prælium : Si insurgat in me in hoc ego sperabo.

Unam petii a Domino, hanc requiram : ut inhabitem in domo Domini omnibus diebus vitæ meæ.

Ut videam voluntatem Domini : et prolegat a templo visitem templum ejus. sancto eius

Quoniam abscondit me in tabernaculo suo in die malorum : protexit me in abscondito tabernaculi sui.

amiss, O Lord, who shall stand ?" But although we can only imperfectly copy the Pattern of perfect righteousness, and walk with faltering steps in the pathway which He has trodden, yet Christ has left us an example in the words of this Psalm of the manner in which alone an acceptable approach can be made to the Altar of God. He entered into Heaven in the strength of His innocence, we must come before God's Altar in the strength of our penitence.

This Psalm has accordingly been used from time immemorial as part of the private prayers of the Celebrant when he is about to offer up the Eucharistic Sacrifice to God. In the same spirit and with the same intention it may be used by all Christians, since all have their part in the offering made by their ministerial leader. And at whatever time the Psalm is sung, it must remind all who use it, clergy or laity, of that High Priest who was "holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners," as an Example to all who engage in the service of God.

PSALM XXVII.

Christ spake words in this Psalm for Himself, His Church, and for each Christian soul ; expressing that faith in the Presence of God which He had in its perfection, and which is given to His servants to possess according to the measure of the gift of Him.

Most of the Psalm applies literally to Christ in the time of His Passion, the "false witnesses" of the fourteenth verse being an evident prophecy of those who came and perverted our Lord's words respecting the resurrection of the temple of His body. In the very first words there appears an implied reference to the physical and spiritual darkness by which He was surrounded when on the cross ; the stumbling and falling of those who had come against Him in the Garden of the Agony is in the same way referred to in the second verse ; the lifting up of His head in the sixth verse carries the thoughts to His lifting up on the Cross by which He gained the throne of an everlasting kingdom ; and the

The V. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
John iii. 14.
xii. 32.
1 Cor xi. 26.

6 And now shall he lift up mine head : above mine enemies round about me.

7 Therefore will I offer in his dwelling an oblation with great gladness : I will sing, and speak praises unto the Lord.

8 Hearken unto my voice, O Lord, when I cry unto thee : have mercy upon me, and hear me.

Exod. xxxiii. 19, 20.
Rev. xxii. 4.

9 My heart hath talked of thee, Seek ye my face : Thy face, Lord, will I seek.

10 O hide not thou thy face from me : nor cast thy servant away in displeasure.

John xii. 28.

11 Thou hast been my succour : leave me not, neither forsake me, O God of my salvation.

12 When my father and my mother forsake me : the Lord taketh me up.

John xiv. 16.

13 Teach me thy way, O Lord : and lead me in the right way, because of mine enemies.

Mark xiv. 57.
Ps. xxxv. 11.

14 Deliver me not over into the will of mine adversaries : for there are false witnesses risen up against me, and such as speak wrong.

15 I should utterly have fainted : but that I believe verily to see the goodness of the Lord in the land of the living.

1sa. xl. 31.
Acts i. 4.

16 O tarry thou the Lord's leisure : be strong, and he shall comfort thine heart, and put thou thy trust in the Lord.

THE XXVIII PSALM.

Ad te, Domine.

UNTO thee will I cry, O Lord my strength : think no scorn of me, lest, if thou make as though thou hearest not, I become like them that go down into the pit.

In petra exaltavit me : et nunc exaltavit caput meum super inimicos meos.

Circuivi, et immolavi in tabernaculo ejus hostiam vociferationis : cantabo et psalmum dicam Domino. Circuibo et immolabo hostiam jubilationis

Exaudi, Domine, vocem meam qua clamavi ad te : miserere mei, et exaudi me.

Tibi dixit cor meum, exquisivit te facies mea : faciem tuam, Domine, requiram. exquisivi vultum tuum : vultum tuum Domine

Ne avertas faciem tuam a me : ne declines in ira a servo tuo.

Adjutor meus esto ; ne derelinquas me : neque despicias me, Deus salutaris meus.

Quoniam pater meus et mater mea dereliquerunt me : Dominus autem assumpsit me.

Legem pone mihi, Domine, in via tua : et dirige me in semita recta propter inimicos meos. mihi constitue

Ne tradideris me in animas tribulantium me, quoniam insurrexerunt in me testes iniqui : et mentita est iniquitas sibi. persequentium

Credo videre bona Domini : in terra viventium.

Exspecta Dominum, viriliter age, et confortetur cor tuum : et sustine Dominum.

PSALMUS XXVII.

AD te, Domine, clamabo ; Deus meus, ne sileas a me : nequando taceas a me et assimilabor descendentibus in lacum. Mond. Mattins. ne sileas a me et ero similis oblation of the seventh to that sacrifice of praise and thanksgiving whose efficacy is derived from the "full, perfect, and sufficient sacrifice, oblation, and satisfaction for the sins of the whole world" there made by Him. We may also observe that "My voice" in the eighth verse follows immediately after the prophecy of the Sacrifice offered on the Cross and re-presented in the Eucharist, and that it can scarcely be otherwise interpreted than of Christ's perpetual Intercession, and of the "blood that speaketh better things than that of Abel." And in the sixteenth verse we are reminded of His saying, "Mine hour is not yet come."

Not less may the Psalm be taken as an aspiration of Christ speaking in His members. In the hour of trial faith looks upward, remembering that "God is light." Even when the Virgin, the daughter of Sion, is sitting in the dust, she hears the voice from on high, "Arise, shine, for thy Light is come," or "The Lord shall be unto thee an everlasting Light, and thy God thy glory:" and though troubles may be on every side, yet is there the glory of the regenerated City of God in the future, when it shall have no need to be illuminated by any but spiritual joy, for "the Lamb is the Light of it."

For such a joy the individual Christian also may hope, desiring that he may dwell for ever in this house of the Lord, and behold

The V. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Luke xxiii. 33.

2 Hear the voice of my humble petitions, when I cry unto thee : when I hold up my hands towards the mercy-seat of thy holy temple.

3 O pluck me not away, neither destroy me with the ungodly, and wicked doers : which speak friendly to their neighbours, but imagine mischief in their hearts.

4 Reward them according to their deeds : and according to the wickedness of their own inventions.

5 Recompense them after the work of their hands : pay them that they have deserved.

6 For they regard not in their mind the works of the Lord, nor the operation of his hands : therefore shall he break them down, and not build them up.

7 Praised be the Lord : for he hath heard the voice of my humble petitions.

8 The Lord is my strength, and my shield, my heart hath trusted in him, and I am helped : therefore my heart danceth for joy, and in my song will I praise him.

9 The Lord is my strength : and he is the wholesome defence of his Anointed.

10 O save thy people, and give thy blessing unto thine inheritance : feed them, and set them up for ever.

THE XXIX PSALM.

Afferte Domino.

John x. 35.

BRING unto the Lord, O ye mighty, bring young rams unto the Lord : ascribe unto the Lord worship and strength.

the fairness of the "King in His beauty." Moses "talked of God, Seek ye My face," but God told him that he could not see His face and live, and he beheld only part of the Divine glory while "standing upon the rock," and hid in the "cleft of the rock." The Rock of Ages has been cleft that the children of God may find a safe hiding-place for ever, and the Divine glory is now revealed in the Incarnate Person of the Lord Jesus. So the time will come when a yet higher vision of it will be vouchsafed, when there shall be no more fainting, and when they who wait upon the Lord shall go from strength to strength till His words are fulfilled, "They shall see His face ; and His Name shall be in their foreheads. And there shall be no night there : and they need no candle, neither light of the sun ; for the Lord God giveth them light : and they shall reign for ever and ever."

PSALM XXVIII.

Christ's Human Nature here cries to the Divine Nature : His Exaudi, Domine, vocem deprecationis Exaudi vocem meæ dum oro ad te : dum extollo manus meas ad templum sanctum

tuum.

Ne simul tradas me cum peccatoribus : et cum operantibus iniquitatem ne perdas me.

Qui loquuntur pacem cum proximo Cum his qui loq.
suo : mala autem in cordibus eorum.

Da illis secundum opera eorum : et secundum nequitiam adinventionum *nequitias studio-rum ipsorum retribue illis.
Redde retr. &c.*
ipsorum.

Secundum opera manuum eorum tribue illis : redde retributionem eorum ipsis.

Quoniam non intellexerunt opera Domini : et in opera manuum ejus destrues illos, et non ædificabis eos. ejus non considrant des.

Benedictus Dominus : quoniam exaudivit vocem deprecationis meæ.

Dominus adjutor meus, et protector meus : et in ipso speravit cor meum, et adjutus sum.

Et refluuit caro mea : et ex voluntate mea confitebor ei.

Dominus fortitudo plebis suæ : et protector salvationum Christi sui est. salutarium

Salvum fac populum tuum Domine, et benedic hæreditati tuæ : et rege eos, et extolle illos usque in æternum. in sæculum

PSALMUS XXVIII.

AFFERTE Domino, filii Dei : af- *Mond. Mattins.
Epiphany,
Transfig.,
1st Noct.*
ferte Domino filios arietum.

Mystical Body prays to Him and in Him as He stands by the throne of the Father. The following paraphrase from Gerholdus strikes the key-note of the Psalm with a clear tone, and shows the manner in which saintly writers have heard the voice of Christ speaking by the mouth of David :—

"I, the assumed Human Nature, will cry unto Thee, O Lord : Thou art My Deity, in which I, the Son of David, am the Son of God, equally as the Father and the Holy Ghost are God : Thou art My Deity, and since Thou art the Word of the Father, keep not silence from Me, from Me, the Human Nature which Thou, O Word, didst personally unite to Thyself. By the voice of Thy blood, crying from the ground, do Thou, O Word, so speak as to be heard, even in Hell, when my soul shall descend thither : make manifest that I am not like them that go down into the pit, from the weight of original, or the guilt of actual, sin. For I, untainted by any sin, shall so be 'free among the dead,' that I also shall be able to deliver others thence, and to say even to

The V. Day.
*Evening
Prayer.*
Rev. iv. 11.
xix. 5, 6.
Matt. viii. 26.
John xxi. 6.
Rev. x. 3.

2 Give the Lord the honour due unto his Name : worship the Lord with holy worship.

3 It is the Lord that commandeth the waters : it is the glorious God that maketh the thunder.

Rev. xx. 13.

4 It is the Lord that ruleth the sea ; the voice of the Lord is mighty in operation : the voice of the Lord is a glorious voice.

Isa. xl. 3.

5 The voice of the Lord breaketh the cedar-trees : yea, the Lord breaketh the cedars of Libanus.

6 He maketh them also to skip like a calf : Libanus also, and Sirion like a young unicorn.

Acts ii. 3.
Matt. iii. 3.
Isa. xxxv. 1.

7 The voice of the Lord divideth the flames of fire, the voice of the Lord shaketh the wilderness : yea, the Lord shaketh the wilderness of Cades.

John xvi. 14.

8 The voice of the Lord maketh the hinds to bring forth young, and discovereth the thick bushes : in his temple doth every man speak of his honour.

Gen. i. 2.
John iii. 5.
Acts ii. 47.

9 The Lord sitteth above the water-flood : and the Lord remaineth a King for ever.

1 John ii. 14.
John xiv. 27.
Gal. v. 22.

10 The Lord shall give strength unto his people : the Lord shall give his people the blessing of peace.

Afferte Domino gloriam et honorem, afferte Domino gloriam Nomini ejus : adorete Dominum in atrio sancto ejus. aula sancta

Vox Domini super aquas, Deus majesticatis intonuit : Dominus super aquas multas.

Vox Domini in virtute : vox Domini in magnificentia.

Vox Domini confringentis cedros : et confringet Dominus cedros Libani :

Et comminuet eas tanquam vitulum Libani : et dilectus quemadmodum filius sicut unicornium.

Vox Domini intercidentis flammam ignis ; vox Domini concutientis desertum : et commovebit Dominus desertum Cades. scititudinem

Vox Domini præparentis cervos, et revelabit condensa : et in templo ejus omnes dicent gloriam.

Dominus diluvium inhabitare facit : inhabitat et sedebit Dominus Rex in æternum.

Dominus virtutem populo suo dabit : Dominus benedicet populo suo in pace. et benedicet death itself, 'O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?'"

The last four verses of the Psalm exhibit again the transition from humiliation and death to triumph and life, in the person of God's Anointed ; and the union of Christ with His people in the closing words of faithful and joyful prayer. The last of all is used daily by the Church in the suffrages of Mattins and Evensong,—"Ÿ. O Lord, save Thy people. R. And bless Thine inheritance;" and also in the Te Deum, "Govern them, and lift them up for ever."

PSALM XXIX.

This is a song of praise and thanksgiving to God for the work wrought by the Holy Ghost in the kingdom of the New Creation. The perpetual presence of the Lord in His Church is signified by the mention of His Voice, of which it is said in the prophecy of the New Testament that "out of the throne proceeded lightnings and thunderings and voices." The same prophecy also speaks of "seven lamps of fire burning before the throne, which are the Seven Spirits of God" [Rev. iv. 5], and hence we may understand that the sevenfold operations of the Holy Ghost are mystically set forth by the seven times repeated "voice of the Lord."

As the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters of Creation, giving life to an inanimate world, so does He command the waters and rule the sea in the Sacrament of Baptism, the Laver or "Sea of glass" [Rev. iv. 6] "mingled with fire" [ibid. xv. 2], in which our fallen nature is regenerated to a life capable of righteousness and a title to the inheritance of the saints in light. When God the Father glorified the Son of Man, some said that "it thundered," and only ears opened by faith heard the Voice of God as it declared, "I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again." [John xii. 28.] Only the faithful, again, knew the significance of that mysterious sign which appeared when the house was shaken where the Apostles were assembled on the morn of Pentecost, and the Holy Ghost divided the flaming tongues of fire upon the heads of those present. But, whether or not by visible and audible signs, the operation of the Holy Ghost is ever being carried on in the Church of God, by an endowment to it of power from on high ; power given in Baptism, in Confirmation, in the Holy Eucharist ; power to break up the strongest obstacles that oppose themselves ; power to elevate the Church and the soul to the highest spiritual exaltation and "joy in the Holy Ghost ;" power to shatter the oaks of the forest [verse 8], putting down the proud in the imagination of their hearts, and raising up a Saviour to reveal the mysteries hid in the "thick bushes" of prophecy.

In the Temple of the Holy Ghost, therefore,—in the mystical Body of Christ,—all things proclaim His glory Who still moveth upon the face of the waters to vivify, strengthen, and give final peace to His people. "The temple of God was opened in Heaven, and there was seen in His temple the ark of His Testament : and there were lightnings, and voices, and thunderings, and an earthquake, and great hail." "And the temple was filled with smoke from the glory of God, and from His power." [Rev. xi. 19 ; xv. 8.]

THE XXX PSALM.

Exaltabo te, Domine.

The VI. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

I WILL magnify thee, O Lord, for thou hast set me up : and not made my foes to triumph over me.

2 O Lord my God, I cried unto thee : and thou hast healed me.

3 Thou, Lord, hast brought my soul out of hell : thou hast kept my life from them that go down to the pit.

4 Sing praises unto the Lord, O ye saints of his : and give thanks unto him for a remembrance of his holiness.

5 For his wrath endureth but the twinkling of an eye, and in his pleasure is life : heaviness may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning.

6 And in my prosperity I said, I shall never be removed : thou, Lord, of thy goodness hast made my hill so strong.

7 Thou didst turn thy face from me : and I was troubled.

8 Then cried I unto thee, O Lord : and gat me to my Lord right humbly.

9 What profit is there in my blood : when I go down to the pit ?

10 Shall the dust give thanks unto thee : or shall it declare thy truth ?

11 Hear, O Lord, and have mercy upon me : Lord, be thou my helper.

12 Thou hast turned my heaviness into joy : thou hast put off my sackcloth, and girded me with gladness.

13 Therefore shall every good man sing of thy praise without ceasing : O my God, I will give thanks unto thee for ever.

PSALM XXX.

This Psalm is entitled "for the opening of the house of David," meaning probably for the dedication of the temple built by his son Solomon<sup>1</sup>. Our Lord associated the Temple with a typical signification when He said of His own Body, "Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up." [John ii. 19.] Not without reason, therefore, have wise interpreters associated this dedication Psalm with the dedication of Christ's Body in its Resurrection and Ascension, whereby was founded that mystical Body <sup>1</sup> When the first-fruits were brought to be offered, those who brought them were accustomed to sing Psalm cxxii. as they came on their way to the temple, and Psalm cl. on their closer approach to it. When they arrived within the court of the temple, the Levites sang Psalm xxx., perhaps from some association of ideas between the dedication of the temple and of the first-fruits.

PSALMUS XXIX.

EXALTABO te, Domine, quoniam suscepisti me : nec delectasti inimicos meos super me.

Mond. Mattins.
Easter Eve,
St. Michael,
Exalt. Cross,
2nd Noct.

Domine Deus meus, clamavi ad te : et sanasti me.

Domine eduxisti ab inferno animam meam : salvasti me a descendentibus in lacum.

abstractisti ab inferis

Psallite Domino omnes sancti ejus : et confitemini memoriæ sanctitatis ejus.

Quoniam ira in indignatione ejus : et vita in voluntate ejus.

Ad vesperum demorabitur fletus : et ad matutinum lætitia.

Ego autem dixi in abundantia mea : Non movebor in æternum.

Domine, in voluntate tua : præstisti decori meo virtutem.

bona vol.

Avertisti faciem tuam a me : et factus sum conturbatus.

Ad te, Domine, clamabo : et ad Deum meum deprecabor.

Quæ utilitas in sanguine meo : dum descendo in corruptionem ?

Nunquid confitebitur tibi pulvis : aut annuntiabit veritatem tuam ?

Audivit Dominus et misertus est mei : Dominus factus est adjutor meus.

Convertisti planetum meum in gaudium mihi : concidisti saccum meum, et circumdedisti me lætitia.

præcinctisti

Ut cantet tibi gloria mea, et non compungar : Domine Deus meus, in æternum confitebor tibi.

which will also in His time be raised from its militant and suffering condition to be dedicated as the holy city and the new Jerusalem, "prepared as a bride adorned for her husband." [Rev. xxi. 2.]

The voice of Christ is heard, therefore, in this Psalm, rejoicing in His deliverance from death, the grave, and hell. The wrath of God came upon Him as the representative of all sinners, and for a time the Father turned His face even from His beloved Son, so that the soul of the holy and innocent One was troubled. Giving up His life, that holy One suffered His body to be carried to the grave, while His soul descended into hell. But the dust of death could not magnify the glory of God, nor offer an Eucharistic sacrifice, nor give profit from the blood of the Atonement, nor proclaim Divine Truth. Therefore the Lord in His good purposes, for His own glory, and for man's salvation, brought the soul of Christ out of hell, kept His body from the usual lot of

THE XXXI PSALM.

In te, Domine, speravi.

The VI. Day
Morning
Prayer.
Te Deum.

IN thee, O Lord, have I put my trust : let me never be put to confusion, deliver me in thy righteousness.

2 Bow down thine ear to me : make haste to deliver me.

3 And be thou my strong rock, and house of defence : that thou mayest save me.

4 For thou art my strong rock, and my castle : be thou also my guide, and lead me for thy Name's sake.

5 Draw me out of the net that they have laid privily for me : for thou art my strength.

Luke xxiii. 46.

6 Into thy hands I commend my spirit : for thou hast redeemed me, O Lord, thou God of truth.

Matt. xxiii. 1-33.

7 I have hated them that hold of superstitious vanities : and my trust hath been in the Lord.

8 I will be glad, and rejoice in thy mercy : for thou hast considered my trouble, and hast known my soul in adversities.

9 Thou hast not shut me up into the hand of the enemy : but hast set my feet in a large room.

Matt. xxvi. 38.

10 Have mercy upon me, O Lord, for I am in trouble : and mine eye is consumed for very heaviness ; yea, my soul and my body.

11 For my life is waxen old with heaviness : and my years with mourning.

Luke xxii. 44.

12 My strength faileth me, because of mine iniquity : and my bones are consumed.

PSALMUS XXX.

IN te, Domine, speravi ; non confundar in æternum : in justitia tua Mond. Matins.

Compline, v. 1-6 libera me.

libera me et eripsa
me

Inclina ad me aurem tuam : accelera ut eruas me.

ut eripias me

Esto mihi in Deum protectorem et in domum refugii : ut salvum me facias.

locum ref.

Quoniam fortitudo mea et refugium meum es tu : et propter nomen tuum deduces me, et enutries me.

firmamentum
meum et ref.

dux mihi eris

Educes me de laqueo quem absconderunt mihi : quoniam tu es protector meus.

occulta erunt

In manus tuas commendo spiritum meum : redemisti me, Domine Deus veritatis.

Odisti observantes vanitates : super-vacue.

Ego autem in Domino speravi : exultabo et lætabor in misericordia tua.

sperabo

Quoniam respexisti humilitatem meam : salvasti de necessitatibus animam meam.

meam salvam fecisti

Nec conclusisti me in manibus inimici : statuisti in loco spatioso pedes meos.

Miserere mei, Domine, quoniam tribulor : conturbatus est in ira oculus meus, anima mea et venter meus.

Quoniam defecit in dolore vita mea : et anni mei in gemitibus.

Infirmata est in paupertate virtus mea : et ossa mea conturbata sunt.

those who descend into the grave, put off from Him the sackcloth of suffering humanity and a natural body, and girded Him with the joy of a humanity that is glorified and a body that has become spiritual. Because of this mercy of God towards man for the sake of his Redeemer, the Church, which is Christ's glory,—even the children which God has given to Him,—will praise Him continually, offering up to Him for ever the acceptable memorial of His love, according to His commandment, "This do, for a remembrance of Me."

The application of this Psalm to Christ the Head shows clearly without further illustration how it may be applied to His members, collectively and individually. When the time of her tribulation is past, the Church can follow the words of her Lord, and as He could say, "Thou hast set Me up" as the High Priest interceding, the King of kings ruling, and the Lamb of God receiving Divine worship, so may His Church praise God for revealing His glory by and in her, lifting her up from the dust and sackcloth of suffering, and girding her with the joy of an universal triumph. And there are times when the Christian soul may take such words for its own also, and thank God with a better informed faith than Hezekiah did, when even he said, "The living, the living, he shall praise Thee, as I do this day."

PSALM XXXI.

This is another of the Psalms which our Lord has marked with the sign of the Cross, His last words at Calvary being taken from the sixth verse, "Father, into Thy hands I commend My spirit." It is an old tradition that He repeated all the Psalms from the twenty-second as far as this verse of the thirty-first, during the three hours of His extreme sufferings ; thus making these words the Compline hymn of His earthly life.

The Psalm is especially one of those in which Christ speaks as personating His people, or rather as concentrating within Himself all their experiences. Having taken our nature He speaks in our words, that we may the better learn to speak with His. Accordingly we hear Him speaking of God's mercy towards Him, although that mercy was needless for One whose immaculate nature could face the unmitigated justice of the All-Righteous ; and of His strength failing because of His iniquity, though all the sin which He bore was that of others. So He

The VI. Day.
Morning

Prayer.
Gal. v. 11.
1 Cor. i. 23.
Mark xiv. 50.
Isa. liii. 3.

13 I became a reproof among all mine enemies, but especially among my neighbours : and they of mine acquaintance were afraid of me, and they that did see me without conveyed themselves from me.

14 I am clean forgotten, as a dead man out of mind : I am become like a broken vessel.

15 For I have heard the blasphemy of the multitude : and fear is on every side, while they conspire together against me, and take their counsel to take away my life.

16 But my hope hath been in thee, O Lord : I have said, Thou art my God.

17 My time is in thy hand, deliver me from the hand of mine enemies : and from them that persecute me.

18 Shew thy servant the light of thy countenance : and save me for thy mercy sake.

19 Let me not be confounded, O Lord, for I have called upon thee : let the ungodly be put to confusion, and be put to silence in the grave.

20 Let the lying lips be put to silence : which cruelly, disdainfully, and despitefully speak against the righteous.

21 O how plentiful is thy goodness which thou hast laid up for them that fear thee : and that thou hast prepared for them that put their trust in thee, even before the sons of men.

22 Thou shalt hide them privily by thine own presence from the provoking of all men : thou shalt keep them secretly in thy tabernacle from the strife of tongues.

Super omnes inimicos meos factus sum opprobrium vicinis meis valde : vic. meis nimum et timor notis meis.

Qui videbant me foras fugerunt a me : oblivioni datus sum, tanquam mortuus a corde. fugiebant a me, excidi tanquam mortuus

Factus sum tanquam vas perditum : quoniam audiui vituperationem multorum commorantium in circuitu.

In eo dum convenirent simul adversum me : accipere animam meam consiliati sunt. circum habitantium congregarentur omnes ut acciperent

Ego autem in te speravi, Domine ; dixi, Deus meus es tu : in manibus tuis sortes meæ.

Eripe me de manu inimicorum meorum : et a persequentibus me. tempora mea

Illustra faciem tuam super servum tuum, salvum me fac in misericordia tua, Domine : non confundar, quoniam invocavi te. intumina

Erubescant impii, et deducantur in infernum : muta fiant labia dolosa. efficiantur

Quæ loquuntur adversus justum iniquitatem : in superbia, et in abusione. et contemptu

Quam magna multitudo dulcedinis tuæ Domine : quam abscondisti timentibus te ?

Perfecisti eis qui sperant in te : in conspectu filiorum hominum. et perfecisti eam sperantibus

Abscondes eos in abscondito faciei tuæ : a conturbatione hominum. in absditu vultus tui

Proteges eos in tabernaculo tuo : a contradictione linguarum.

Matt. xxvi. 66.
xxvii. 22. 25.
40.

John xvii. 25.

Luke xxii. 42.

Te Deum.

Matt. xxvi. 60.
68.

Isa. xxxii. 2.
iv. 6.

said to the persecutor of His Church, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou Me?" and so He will say at the last day, "Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye did it unto Me."

In psalms and prophecies we may find the Scriptural complement of the Gospels, revealed by Him who could foresee history. So in the eleventh verse of this Psalm we have a most affecting truth concerning the influence of Christ's sorrows on His human nature. His earthly life extended only to thirty-three years, yet He seemed so much older that the Jews said to Him, "Thou art not yet fifty years old." The truth is here told us, that His "life was wazen old through heaviness, and his years with mourning;" youth and joy having no place in the ministerial life of Him who saw and felt the whole accumulated burden of all sin.

The direct application of this Psalm to our Lord is thus as clearly shown as in any of those which are more especially named as Psalms of the Passion; nor can a complete application be made to any other person, or to Him in any other manner than as representing those for whom His work of atonement was wrought. The whole Psalm is an amplification of our Lord's prayer, "Not My will, but Thine;" and sets before us very strongly the necessity and the advantage of prayer. For if He uttered such words of prayer for deliverance Who knew the whole course of events that was to follow, how much more are they bound to supplicate their God to whom the future is a sealed book. And if the Lord heard the voice of the Saviour's prayer [verse 25], and sent an angel to strengthen Him though the cup of the Passion was not removed, much more may they look to be made strong, and to have their hearts established, who are in so much greater need of the Divine aid.

Few Psalms contain more verses which can be taken into use

The VI. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Isa. xxvi. 1.

Cf. Isa. xxxviii.
10, 11.
Mark xv. 34.

23 Thanks be to the Lord : for he hath shewed me marvellous great kindness in a strong city.

24 And when I made haste, I said : I am cast out of the sight of thine eyes.

25 Nevertheless thou heardest the voice of my prayer : when I cried unto thee.

26 O love the Lord, all ye his saints : for the Lord preserveth them that are faithful, and plenteously rewardeth the proud doer.

Luke xxii. 43.
Isa. xl. 31.
Jer. xvii. 7.

27 Be strong, and he shall establish your heart : all ye that put your trust in the Lord.

THE XXXII PSALM.

Beati, quorum.

Evening
Prayer.
Ash-Wednesday
Mattins.
Penitential
Psalm.
Rom. iv. 8.
James v. 20.
1 Pet. ii. 22.

BLESSED is he whose unrighteousness is forgiven : and whose sin is covered.

2 Blessed is the man unto whom the Lord imputeth no sin : and in whose spirit there is no guile.

Isa. xxxviii. 13.

3 For while I held my tongue : my bones consumed away through my daily complaining.

4 For thy hand is heavy upon me day and night : and my moisture is like the drougt in summer.

5 I will acknowledge my sin unto thee : and mine unrighteousness have I not hid.

2 Sam. xii. 13.
Luke v. 20-24.

6 I said, I will confess my sins unto the Lord : and so thou forgavest the wickedness of my sin.

7 For this shall every one that is godly make his prayer unto thee, in a time when thou mayest be found : but in the great water-floods they shall not come nigh him.

Benedictus Dominus : quoniam misericordiam suam mihi ; in suam in civ. circumstantiæ civitate munita.

Ego autem dixi in excessu mentis in pavore meo . . . a vultu meæ : Projectus sum a facie oculorum tuorum.

Ideo exaudisti vocem orationis meæ : deprecationis dum clamarem ad te.

Diligite Dominum omnes sancti ejus, quoniam veritatem requirit Dominus : et retribuet abundanter facientibus ret. his qui abundanter faciunt sup. superbiam.

Viriliter agite, et confortetur cor vestrum : omnes qui speratis in Domino.

PSALMUS XXXI.

BEATI quorum remissæ sunt iniquitates : et quorum tecta sunt peccata. Mond. Mattins.

Beatus vir cui non imputavit Dominus peccatum : nec est in spiritu ejus dolus. imputabit in ore

Quoniam tacui, inveteraverunt ossa mea : dum clamarem tota die. omnia ossa

Quoniam die ac nocte gravata est super me manus tua : conversus sum in ærumna mea, dum configitur spina. confringitur

Delictum meum cognitum tibi feci : et iniquitiam meam non abscondi. injustitias meas non operui

Dixi, Confitebor adversum me iniquitiam meam Domino : et tu remisisti impietatem peccati mei. Pronuntiabo . . . injustitias meas

Pro hac orabit ad te omnis sanctus : in tempore opportuno. impietatem cordis mei

Veruntamen in diluvio aquarum multarum : ad eum non approximabunt.

by the Christian as expressive of his own experience and aspirations. As our Lord left to His people the germ of all prayer, so He has consecrated the words of David by His own adoption of them, and that in such a manner that we may use them as part of His own prevailing intercession.

PSALM XXXII.

Christ, as the representative of the whole human race, offers up in this Psalm the sacrifice of penitence, and rejoices in the blessedness of Absolution. So "blessed" indeed was He by the purity of His nature that no sin was imputed to Him as His own, nor was any guile found in His spirit. Yet so great is the mercy of God that the blessedness of the forgiven soul is made next, and even like to, that of the innocent soul. When His pardoning word has exercised its power, and "unrighteousness is forgiven," the spirit is freed, and pure of guile and sin ; so that they who are thus reunited to the spotless Lamb of God become partakers of His holiness.

Thus, although there is no peace to the sinner while he holds his tongue, and refuses to confess his sin, he who puts his trust in the Lord's mercy and humbly acknowledges his transgressions will find that mercy embracing him on every side. Especially he will find out that the Son of Man hath power on earth to forgive sins, and that this power He has given to His Church [John xx. 23] ; that when "truth of heart," a sincere penitence, has removed every bar from the way of God's word of absolution, it will go forth with power to convey actual pardon, and, with pardon, comfort.

The VI. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Isa. xxxii. 2.

8 Thou art a place to hide me in, thou shalt preserve me from trouble :
thou shalt compass me about with songs of deliverance.

9 I will inform thee, and teach thee in the way wherein thou shalt go : and I will guide thee with mine eye.

10 Be ye not like to horse and mule, which have no understanding :
whose mouths must be held with bit and bridle, lest they fall upon thee.

11 Great plagues remain for the ungodly : but whoso putteth his trust in the Lord, mercy embraceth him on every side.

12 Be glad, O ye righteous, and rejoice in the Lord : and be joyful, all ye that are true of heart.

THE XXXIII PSALM.

Exultate, justi.

REJOICE in the Lord, O ye righteous : for it becometh well the just to be thankful.

2 Praise the Lord with harp : sing praises unto him with the lute, and instrument of ten strings.

3 Sing unto the Lord a new song :
sing praises lustily unto him with a good courage.

4 For the word of the Lord is true :
and all his works are faithful.

5 He loveth righteousness and judgement : the earth is full of the goodness of the Lord.

6 By the word of the Lord were the heavens made : and all the hosts of them by the breath of his mouth.

7 He gathereth the waters of the sea together, as it were upon an heap :
and layeth up the deep, as in a treasure-house.

8 Let all the earth fear the Lord :
stand in awe of him, all ye that dwell in the world.

Tu es refugium meum a tribulatione a pressura quæ circumdedit me : exultatio mea, erue me a circumdantibus me. redime

Intellectum tibi dabo, et instruam te in via hac qua gradieris : firmabo ingredieris super te oculos meos.

Nolite fieri sicut equus et mulus :
quibus non est intellectus.

In chamo et fræno maxillas eorum constringe : qui non approximant ad te.

Multa flagella peccatoris : speran- peccatorum : spo- tem autem in Domino misericordia ranties circundabit.

Lætamini in Domino et exultate justi : et gloriamini omnes recti corde.

PSALMUS XXXII.

EXULTATE justi in Domino : rectos decet collaudatio.

Confitemini Domino in cithara : in psalterio decem chordarum psallite illi.

Cantate ei canticum novum : bene psallite ei in vociferatione. in jubilatione

Quia rectum est verbum Domini : Quoniam rectus et omnia opera ejus in fide. est sermo

Diligit misericordiam et judicium :
misericordia Domini plena est terra.

Verbo Domini cœli firmati sunt : et spiritu oris ejus omnis virtus eorum.

Congregans sicut in utre aquas in utrem maris : ponens in thesauris abyssos.

Timeat Dominum omnis terra : ab eo autem commoveantur omnes inha- universi et omnes bitantes orbem. qui inhabitant

John xvi. 22.
Rev. vii. 14.

Rev. xix. 7.
James v. 13.

Rev. v. 9.

Rev. iv. 11.
John i. 3.
Gen. i. 2.

Gen. i. 9.
Rev. xxi. 1.

Ezek. xxxviii. 20.

This penitential Psalm is, therefore, a word of Christ showing us the pattern of repentance to be followed by His members, and proclaiming the blessedness of their state whose repentance has been of that sincere character that God is able to bless to the penitent the words of absolution, and thus to make them effective to his pardon and justification.

PSALM XXXIII.<sup>1</sup>

This Psalm has been used time immemorial on festivals of

<sup>1</sup> The structure of this Psalm is observable, consisting as it does of an introductory and concluding verse, and of nine intermediate stanzas or martyrs. It was, doubtless, adopted for that purpose from its manifest position as a sequel to the foregoing Psalm of penitence; which makes it represent the "New Song" of the saints who have entered into perfect peace through the final pardon of their God: "And they sung a new song, saying, Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof: for Thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by Thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation; and hast made us subjects. It can scarcely be doubted that this structure was recognized in the music to which the Psalm was originally sung. It is also probable that there is a reference to it in the end of the second verse.

The VI. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Gen. i. 3.
Job v. 12.

9 For he spake, and it was done :
he commanded, and it stood fast.

10 The Lord bringeth the counsel of the heathen to nought : and maketh the devices of the people to be of none effect, and casteth out the counsels of princes.

Isa. xl. 8.
xli. 10.

11 The counsel of the Lord shall endure for ever : and the thoughts of his heart from generation to generation.

John xv. 16.

12 Blessed are the people whose God is the Lord Jehovah : and blessed are the folk that he hath chosen to him, to be his inheritance.

13 The Lord looked down from heaven, and beheld all the children of men : from the habitation of his dwelling he considereth all them that dwell on the earth.

14 He fashioneth all the hearts of them : and understandeth all their works.

Numb xiv. 44.
Judges vii. 4.
2 Sam. xxiv. 1.

15 There is no king that can be saved by the multitude of an host :
neither is any mighty man delivered by much strength.

Deut. xvii. 16.
Isa. xxx. 16.

16 A horse is counted but a vain thing to save a man : neither shall he deliver any man by his great strength.

Luke xxii. 61.

17 Behold, the eye of the Lord is upon them that fear him : and upon them that put their trust in his mercy ;

18 To deliver their soul from death : and to feed them in the time of dearth.

Luke viii. 15.
xxi. 19.
Rev. xiii. 10.

19 Our soul hath patiently tarried for the Lord : for he is our help, and our shield.

20 For our heart shall rejoice in him : because we have hoped in his holy Name.

Dan. iii. 18.

21 Let thy merciful kindness, O Lord, be upon us : like as we do put our trust in thee.

Quoniam ipse dixit, et facta sunt :
ipse mandavit, et creata sunt.

Dominus dissipat consilia gentium ;
reprobat autem cogitationes populorum : et reprobat consilia principum.

Consilium autem Domini in æter-num manet : cogitationes cordis ejus in generatione et generationem.

in sæculum sæculi

Beata gens cujus est Dominus Deus ejus : populus quem elegit in hæredi-tatem sibi.

De cælo respexit Dominus : vidit prospexit
omnes filios hominum.

De præparato habitaculo suo : re-spexit super omnes qui habitant ter- orbem ram.

Qui finxit singillatim corda eorum :
qui intelligit omnia opera eorum.

Non salvatur rex per multam virtutem : et gigas non salvabitur in salvus erit in mul- multitudine virtutis suæ. titudine fortitudinis suæ

Fallax equus ad salutem : in abun- Falsus . . . non dantia autem virtutis suæ non salva- erit salvus bitur.

Ecce oculi Domini super metuentes timentes eum spe- eum : et in eis qui sperant super mise- ranies autem in ricordia ejus. miseriordia ejus

Ut eruat a morte animas eorum : et eripiat alat eos in fame.

Anima nostra sustinet Dominum : autem nostra quoniam adjutor et protector noster est.

Quia in eo lætabitur cor nostrum :
et in nomine sancto ejus speravimus. speravimus

Fiat misericordia tua, Domine, super nos : quemadmodum speravimus in te. sicut unto our God, kings and priests : and we shall reign on the earth." [Rev. v. 9, 10.] This association of ideas is further exhibited by the general subject of the Psalm, which is a hymn of praise to God for the wonders of Creation, it being one of the strains of heavenly lauds that "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory, and honour, and power : for Thou hast created all things, and for Thy pleasure they are and were created." [Rev. iv. 11.]

But all such hymns of praise for God's good work in the natural creation carry a further meaning which looks to the new and spiritual Creation whereby all things are made new in Christ Jesus. By the word of the Lord were the heavens made : and the same word will be the Creator of the new heaven and the new earth, when the first heaven and the first earth shall have passed away and there shall be no more sea. The Church enlightened by the words of Christ and the Holy Ghost sings

THE XXXIV PSALM.

*Benedicam Domino.*The VI. Day.
Evening
Prayer.

I WILL alway give thanks unto the Lord : his praise shall ever be in my mouth.

2 My soul shall make her boast in the Lord : the humble shall hear thereof, and be glad.

3 O praise the Lord with me : and let us magnify his Name together.

4 I sought the Lord, and he heard me : yea, he delivered me out of all my fear.

5 They had an eye unto him, and were lightened : and their faces were not ashamed.

Luke xxii. 43.

6 Lo, the poor crieth, and the Lord heareth him : yea, and saveth him out of all his troubles.

7 The angel of the Lord tarrieth round about them that fear him : and delivereth them.

John vi. 55.
2 Cor. v. 17.

8 O taste, and see how gracious the Lord is : blessed is the man that trusteth in him.

9 O fear the Lord, ye that are his saints : for they that fear him lack nothing.

10 The lions do lack, and suffer hunger : but they who seek the Lord shall want no manner of thing that is good.

11 Come, ye children, and hearken unto me : I will teach you the fear of the Lord.

1 Pet. iii. 10.

12 What man is he that lusteth to live : and would fain see good days ?

13 Keep thy tongue from evil : and thy lips, that they speak no guile.

1 Pet. iii. 11.

14 Eschew evil, and do good : seek peace, and ensue it.

PSALMUS XXXIII.

BENEDICAM Dominum in omni tempore : semper laus ejus in ore meo.

Mond. Mattins.
Many Martyrs,
3rd Noct.
St. Michael and
All Saints,
2nd Noct.
App. and Evv.,
1st Noct.

In Domino laudabitur anima mea : audiant mansueti, et lætentur.

Magnificate Dominum mecum : et exaltemus nomen ejus in idipsum. in invicem

Exquisivi Dominum, et exaudivit me : et ex omnibus tribulationibus meis eripuit me.

Accedite ad eum, et illuminamini : et facies vestræ non confundentur. vultus vestri non erubescunt

Iste pauper clamavit, et Dominus exaudivit eum : et ex omnibus tribulationibus ejus salvavit eum. liberavit

Immittet angelus Domini in circuitu timentium eum : et eripiet eos. Immittit angelum Dominus

Gustate, et videte quoniam suavis est Dominus : beatus vir qui sperat in eo.

Timete Dominum omnes sancti ejus : quoniam non est inopia timentibus eum. nihil desit

Divites eguerunt et esurierunt : inquirentes autem Dominum non minuentur omni bono. deficient

Venite, filii, audite me : timorem Domini docebo vos.

Quis est homo qui vult vitam : diligit dies videre bonos ? et cupit

Prohibe linguam tuam a malo : et labia tua ne loquantur dolum. Cohibe

Diverte a malo et fac bonum : inquire pacem, et persequere eam.

this hymn to God with a far deeper meaning than attached to it when sung by the Jewish Church : beholding with open face the glory of the Lord Jesus revealed in it ; and adoring Him in its measured strains as that eternal WORD, Who became man for us men and for our salvation, and Whose perpetual miracle of new creation is the subject of her continual thanksgiving.

PSALM XXXIV.<sup>1</sup>

This Psalm contains a Divine prophecy of the Agony, Suffering, <sup>1</sup> This Psalm is directed to be used at the time of Communion in the Liturgy of St. James, and in the Apostolical Constitutions. The association of it with the Eucharist plainly arises from the words of the eighth verse. In the Hebrew it is an alphabet Psalm.

and Deliverance of the holy Jesus ; and also of the fate of Judas the betrayer : " Great are the troubles of the righteous. . . . But they that hate the righteous shall be desolate." In the third verse there is a direct recognition of the principle that Christ's words in the Psalms are also often given to be the words of His members ; and in the sixth and seventh verses this principle is illustrated by the change of the pronoun from singular to plural. The " poor in spirit " are one with Him who became " THE POOR " that He might make many rich. He cried to His Father when His soul was exceeding sorrowful, even unto death, and the angel of the Lord appeared from Heaven, strengthening Him. Our Lord is also called " THE RIGHTEOUS " (the term being used interchangeably in the same manner) in the fifteenth, seventeenth, and nineteenth verses. This term is found in Acts iii. 14,

The VI. Day
Evening
Prayer.
1 Pet. iii. 12.

15 The eyes of the Lord are over the righteous : and his ears are open unto their prayers.

16 The countenance of the Lord is against them that do evil : to root out the remembrance of them from the earth.

Luke xxiii. 34. 46.

17 The righteous cry, and the Lord heareth them : and delivereth them out of all their troubles.

18 The Lord is nigh unto them that are of a contrite heart : and will save such as be of an humble spirit.

Acts iii. 14.
vii. 52.

19 Great are the troubles of the righteous : but the Lord delivereth him out of all.

Exod xii. 46.
John xix. 36.
Isa. liii. 7.

20 He keepeth all his bones : so that not one of them is broken.

Matt. xxvii. 5.
Ps. lxxix. 25.
Acts i. 20.

21 But misfortune shall slay the ungodly : and they that hate the righteous shall be desolate.

22 The Lord delivereth the souls of his servants : and all they that put their trust in him shall not be destitute.

THE XXXV PSALM.

Judica, Domine.

The VII. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

PLEAD thou my cause, O Lord, with them that strive with me : and fight thou against them that fight against me.

2 Lay hand upon the shield and buckler : and stand up to help me.

3 Bring forth the spear, and stop the way against them that persecute me : say unto my soul, I am thy salvation.

Oculi Domini super justos : et aures ejus ad preces eorum.

Vultus autem Domini super facientes mala : ut perdat de terra memoriam eorum.

Clamaverunt justī, et Dominus exaudivit eos : et ex omnibus tribulationibus eorum liberavit eos.

Juxta est Dominus his, qui tribulatio tribulatio sunt corde : et humiles spiritu salvabit.

Multæ tribulationes justorum : et de omnibus his liberavit eos Dominus. liberabis

Custodit Dominus omnia ossa eorum : unum ex his non conteretur.

Mors peccatorum pessima : et qui oderunt justum delinquent.

Redimet Dominus animas servorum suorum : et non delinquent omnes qui sperant in eo.

PSALMUS XXXIV.

JUDICA, Domine, nocentes me : Mond. Mattins. expugna impugnantes me.

Apprehende arma et scutum : et exsurge in adjutorium mihi.

Effunde frameam, et conclude adversus eos qui persequuntur me : dic animæ meæ, Salus tua ego sum.

and vii. 52, and the twentieth verse being expressly applied to our Lord by St. John, shows clearly of whom the Psalm speaks. In contrast to this designation of the holy Jesus, "the Ungodly" must clearly be taken to mean the betrayer, whom "misfortune slew" when "he hanged himself and falling headlong he burst asunder in the midst and his bowels gushed out," and of whom the Apostle said, "Let his habitation be desolate." Hence we may see that the "evil" of the traitor's "tongue," and the "guile" of his "Hail, Master," are signified in the thirteenth and fourteenth verses, setting him forth as a terrible example, and warning us that it is possible even now to crucify the Son of God afresh.

In the eleventh verse we seem to hear the parting words of the great Teacher to His little flock, "I will not leave you orphans:" the echo of which loving words sounded in the oft-repeated salutation of His beloved Apostle, "My little children." Of that little flock, the children of the Lord, the words of the Psalm are also spoken; of the Bride which is "bone of His bone, and flesh of His flesh," and which He will preserve through all the troubles of this world, that though her blood be even shed like water in the streets of Jerusalem, the strength of her internal frame shall survive to be restored to life in the glory of the Resurrection kingdom.

PSALM XXXV.

A Scriptural key to the Evangelical interpretation of this Psalm is given by our Lord Himself in one of His final discourses: "But this is come to pass that the word might be fulfilled that is written in their law, They hated Me without a cause." [John xv. 25.] The eleventh verse also received a literal fulfilment in the false witness borne against our Lord when He was accused before the High Priest. And, like the preceding Psalm, it contains, in addition to these direct references to the sufferings of our Lord, a prophetic intimation of the fate which should befall the traitor Judas.

Although bearing much resemblance to the twenty-second Psalm in its general character, this differs from that in dwelling less upon the sorrows of the suffering Jesus as they affected His body and soul than on the aspect which those sorrows wear as being brought about by the acts of those whom He came to love and save. In the one Psalm the Man of sorrows is heard crying

The VII. Day.

*MorningPrayer.*See Ps. lxi. notes.

4 Let them be confounded, and put to shame, that seek after my soul : let them be turned back, and brought to confusion, that imagine mischief for me.

Matt. xxi. 43.

5 Let them be as the dust before the wind : and the angel of the Lord scattering them.

Matt. xxiii. 35—38.

6 Let their way be dark and slippery : and let the angel of the Lord persecute them.

John xv. 25.

7 For they have privily laid their net to destroy me without a cause : yea, even without a cause have they made a pit for my soul.

Acts i. 18.

8 Let a sudden destruction come upon him unawares, and his net, that he hath laid privily, catch himself : that he may fall into his own mischief.

9 And, my soul, be joyful in the Lord : it shall rejoice in his salvation.

10 All my bones shall say, Lord, who is like unto thee, who deliverest the poor from him that is too strong for him : yea, the poor, and him that is in misery, from him that spoileth him.

Matt. xxvi. 60.

11 False witnesses did rise up : they laid to my charge things that I knew not.

12 They rewarded me evil for good : to the great discomfort of my soul.

John i. 14.
Luke iv. 2.
Heb. ii. 17, 18.
Job xvi. 15.

13 Nevertheless, when they were sick I put on sackcloth, and humbled my soul with fasting : and my prayer shall turn into mine own bosom.

Mark iii. 35.
Matt. xxvii. 50.
Jer. iii. 1.

14 I behaved myself as though it had been my friend, or my brother : I went heavily as one that mourneth for his mother.

Isa. i. 6.
Luke xxiii. 39.
Matt. xxvii. 39.

15 But in mine adversity they rejoiced, and gathered themselves together : yea, the very abjects came together against me unawares, making mouths at me, and ceased not.

Confundantur et revereantur : quæ inimici mei qui rentes animam meam. querunt

Avertantur retrorsum et confundantur : cogitantes mihi mala. erubescant qui cogitant

Fiant tanquam pulvis ante faciem venti : et angelus Domini coartans adfignans eos eos.

Fiat via illorum tenebræ et lubricum : et angelus Domini persequens eos.

Quoniam gratis absconderunt mihi interitum laquei sui : supervacue ex-vane probraverunt animam meam.

Veniat illi laqueus quem ignorat : ignorant . . . oc-et captio quam abscondit apprehendat eum, et in laqueum cadat in ipsum. cultiverunt . . .
in ipso ens . . . incidant

Anima autem mea exultabit in Domino : et delectabitur super salutari suo.

Omnia ossa mea dicent : Domine, quis similis tibi ?

Eripiens inopem de manu fortiorum ejus : egenum et pauperem a diripientibus eum. rapientibus

Surgentes testes iniqui : quæ ignorabam interrogabant me.

Retribuebant mihi mala pro bonis : sterilitatem animæ meæ.

Ego autem cum mihi molesti essent : induebar cilicio. induebar me

Humiliabam in jejunio animam meam : et oratio mea in sinu meo convertetur.

Quasi proximum, et quasi fratrem nostrum, sic complacebam : quasi lugegens et contristatus, sic humiliabar. Sicut proximum sicut . . . ita . . .
tanquam . . . ita

Et adversum me lætati sunt, et convenerunt : congregata sunt super me flagella, et ignoravi. congregaverunt in me flagella et ignoraverunt

out in the depth of the woe brought upon Him by His vicarious atonement : in the other, the guileless Just One appeals to the All-righteous Judge against the unrighteous judgment of men. "Judge Me, O Lord, according to Thy righteousness." In this aspect the thirty-fifth Psalm furnishes us with a fearful comment upon the injustice of the Jews in persecuting Christ. And since, when He cries "Plead Thou My cause," He asks the righteous Judge to plead that of His mystical Body also, the Psalm expresses not less the injustice of those who at any time persecute the Church. In the one case we see the manner in which the world treated the Good Samaritan who put on the sackcloth of our nature that He might lift up that nature, sick and wounded by the Fall : in the other the Antichrists of every age rising up in false witness, and spreading nets against His Church, the one mission of which is to gather souls to God. In both the appeal lies from the injustice of earth to the righteousness of

The VII. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

Job xvi. 10.
Matt. xxvii. 40.
Isa. xxxvii. 23.
Rev. vi. 10.

16 With the flatterers were busy mockers : who gnashed upon me with their teeth.

17 Lord, how long wilt thou look upon this : O deliver my soul from the calamities which they bring on me, and my darling from the lions.

18 So will I give thee thanks in the great congregation : I will praise thee among much people.

19 O let not them that are mine enemies triumph over me ungodly : neither let them wink with their eyes that hate me without a cause.

20 And why ? their communing is not for peace : but they imagine deceitful words against them that are quiet in the land.

Matt. xxvii. 39.

21 They gaped upon me with their mouth, and said : Fie on thee, fie on thee, we saw it with our eyes.

22 This thou hast seen, O Lord : hold not thy tongue then, go not far from me, O Lord.

Rev. vi. 10.

23 Awake and stand up to judge my quarrel : avenge thou my cause, my God and my Lord.

24 Judge me, O Lord my God, according to thy righteousness : and let them not triumph over me.

25 Let them not say in their hearts, There, there, so would we have it : neither let them say, We have devoured him.

al. devoured.

Rev. xi. 10.

26 Let them be put to confusion and shame together that rejoice at my trouble : let them be clothed with rebuke and dishonour that boast themselves against me.

27 Let them be glad and rejoice that favour my righteous dealing : yea, let them say alway, Blessed be the Lord, who hath pleasure in the prosperity of his servant.

28 And as for my tongue, it shall be talking of thy righteousness : and of thy praise all the day long.

Dissipati sunt, nec compuncti ; tenv- Dissoluti . . . ten- taverunt me ; subsannaverunt me sub- taverunt me sannatione : frenduerunt super me den- et diviserunt tibus suis. derisu stride- runt in me
dent, suis

Domine, quando respicies ? restitue animam meam a malignitate eorum : malefactis a leonibus unicam meam.

Confitebor tibi in ecclesia magna : tibi Domine in populo gravi laudabo te.

Non supergaudeant mihi qui adver- ut non insultent santur mihi inique : qui oderunt me in me gratis, et annuunt oculis. annuebant

Quoniam mihi quidem pacifice lo- super iram dolose quebantur : et in iracundia terræ lo- cog.
quentes dolos cogitabant.

Et dilataverunt super me os suum : dixerunt, Euge, euge, viderunt oculi nostri.

Vidisti, Domine, ne sileas : Domine, ne discedas a me.

Exsurge et intende iudicio meo Deus Ex. Domine meus : et Dominus meus in causam meam.

Judica me secundum justitiam me Domine . . .
tuam, Domine Deus meus : et non su- miser cordium pergaudeant mihi. . . . et non in- sultent in me
inimici mei

Non dicant in cordibus suis, Euge, euge, animæ nostræ : nec dicant, Devo- Absorbimus rabimus eum.

Erubescant et revereantur simul : qui gratulantur malis meis.

Induantur confusione et reverentia : pudore et qui maligna loquuntur super me. magna loq. . . adversum me

Exultent et latentur qui volunt justitiam meam : et dicant semper, Magnificetur Dominus, qui voluit pacem servi ejus.

Et lingua mea meditabitur justi- Sed et tiam tuam : tota die laudem tuam.

Heaven : "How long, O Lord, holy and true, dost Thou not judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth ?" And the Church of the Redeemer can look forward as her Lord did, with faith in the righteous verdict of her God and in His avenging hand : looking, for the destruction not of foes, but of the enmity and sin of foes : looking for them to be so conquered and brought to shame that they may be clothed with the rebuke and dishonour of true penitence, and afterwards be among the number of those that sing, "Blessed be the Lord, Who hath pleasure in the prosperity of His servant."

Some remarks applying to the imprecatory tone of the first eight verses will be found in the notes to the sixty-ninth Psalm.

THE XXXVI PSALM.

Dixit injustus.

The VII. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Rom. iii. 23.
2 Thess. ii. 8.
Gen. iii. 6.

MY heart sheweth me the wickedness of the ungodly : that there is no fear of God before his eyes.

2 For he flattereth himself in his own sight : until his abominable sin be found out.

3 The words of his mouth are unrighteous, and full of deceit : he hath left off to behave himself wisely, and to do good.

Cf. Ps. i. 2.
lxiii. 7.

4 He imagineth mischief upon his bed, and hath set himself in no good way : neither doth he abhor any thing that is evil.

Rom. vii. 24.
xi. 33.
Isa. i. 18.

5 Thy mercy, O Lord, reacheth unto the heavens : and thy faithfulness unto the clouds.

Eccles. xxiv. 29.

6 Thy righteousness standeth like the strong mountains : thy judgements are like the great deep.

Jonah iv. 11.
Zech. ii. 4.
Deut. xxxii. 11,
12.
Matt. xxiii. 37.

7 Thou, Lord, shalt save both man and beast ; How excellent is thy mercy, O God : and the children of men shall put their trust under the shadow of thy wings.

Rev. xxii. 1.

8 They shall be satisfied with the plenteousness of thy house : and thou shalt give them drink of thy pleasures as out of the river.

John iv. 14.
John i. 4. 9. viii.
12. xii. 36.
Rev. xxi. 11. 23.

9 For with thee is the well of life : and in thy light shall we see light.

10 O continue forth thy loving-kindness unto them that know thee : and thy righteousness unto them that are true of heart.

2 Thess. ii. 3.

11 O let not the foot of pride come against me : and let not the hand of the ungodly cast me down.

2 Thess. i. 7—10.
Rev. xix. 11.
xx. 15. xxi. 27.

12 There are they fallen, all that work wickedness : they are cast down, and shall not be able to stand.

PSALMUS XXXV.

DIXIT injustus ut delinquat in semetipso : non est timor Dei ante oculos ejus.

Monē. Mattins.
Many Martyrs,
3rd Noct.

Quoniam dolose egit in conspectu ejus : ut inveniatur iniquitas ejus ad odium.

inveniret iniquitatem suam et odium

Verba oris ejus iniquitas et dolus : noluit intelligere ut bene ageret.

Iniquitatem meditatus est in cubili suo : astitit omni viæ non bonæ ; malitiam autem non odivit.

Domine, in cælo misericordia tua : et veritas tua usque ad nubes.

Justitia tua sicut montes Dei : judicia tua abyssus multa.

Homines et jumenta salvabis, Domine : quemadmodum multiplicasti misericordiam tuam, Deus.

salvos facies

Filii autem hominum : in tegmine alarum tuarum sperabunt.

protectione

Inebriabuntur ab ubertate domus tuæ : et torrente voluptatis tuæ potabis eos.

voluntatis

Quoniam apud te fons vitæ : et in lumine tuo videbimus lumen.

Prætede misericordiam tuam scientibus te : et justitiam tuam his qui recto sunt corde.

Non veniat mihi pes superbiæ : et manus peccatoris non moveat me.

Ibi ceciderunt qui operantur iniquitatem : expulsi sunt, nec potuerunt stare.

omnes qui

PSALM XXXVI.<sup>1</sup>

The first four verses of this Psalm set forth the condition of fallen man ; the latter verses proclaim the mercy of God in the dispensation of grace from the "Fountain" of our Lord's immaculate human nature which was "opened for all uncleanness."

"The fear of God," that fear which proceeds from love and not from terror, was lost by the Fall ; the "flattery" of himself by the sinner was shown by the attempt to veil the shame which came with the knowledge of evil : the excuses which the sinners made to God were unrighteous and full of deceit ; they had left off to behave themselves wisely, and tried to hide themselves from their all-seeing Creator : good became alien to them instead of being natural ; and they had lost the hatred of disobedience and sin with which they had originally been endowed. All this was typical of sin and sinners at all times ; and at all times God's mercy to the sinner is immeasurable, immovable, and inexhaustible. Such is the signification underlying the first half of the Psalm. Then we praise God that "when there was none to help, His arm brought salvation" [Isa. lxiii. 5], and that His love gathered sinners to Himself "like as a hen gathereth her

<sup>1</sup> In the indictment of criminals, a form of words is used which is taken from the first verse of this Psalm, viz. "not having the fear of God before his eyes."

THE XXXVII PSALM.

*Noli æmulari.*The VII. Day.
*Evening
Prayer.FRET not thyself because of the ungodly : neither be thou envious against the evildoers.Rev. xiv. 19.
Matt. xiii. 30. 40.2 For they shall soon be cut down like the grass : and be withered even as the green herb.Matt. v. 3. 6.
vi. 33.3 Put thou thy trust in the Lord, and be doing good : dwell in the land, and verily thou shalt be fed.

Luke vii. 47.

4 Delight thou in the Lord : and he shall give thee thy heart's desire.1 Pet. v. 7.
1 John iii. 22.5 Commit thy way unto the Lord, and put thy trust in him : and he shall bring it to pass.

Matt. xiii. 43.

6 He shall make thy righteousness as clear as the light : and thy just dealing as the noon-day.Luke xxi. 19.
Rev. xiii. 10.
xiv. 12.7 Hold thee still in the Lord, and abide patiently upon him : but grieve not thyself at him whose way doth prosper, against the man that doeth after evil counsels.

Eph. iv. 31.

8 Leave off from wrath, and let go displeasure : fret not thyself, else shalt thou be moved to do evil.

James v. 7.

9 Wicked doers shall be rooted out :
and they that patiently abide the Lord, those shall inherit the land.

Rev. xxi. 27.

10 Yet a little while, and the un-godly shall be clean gone : thou shalt look after his place, and he shall be away.

Matt. v. 5.

11 But the meek-spirited shall possess the earth : and shall be refreshed in the multitude of peace.Matt. xxvii. 1.
Acts iii. 14.
iv. 27.12 The ungodly seeketh counsel against the just : and gnasheth upon him with his teeth.

Heb. x. 37.

13 The Lord shall laugh him to scorn : for he hath seen that his day is coming.

PSALMUS XXXVI.

NOLI æmulari in malignantibus : neque zelaveris facientes iniquitatem. Mond. Mattins.
inter malignantes
neque æmulatus
fuerisQuoniam tanquam fœnum velociter arescent : et quemadmodum olera her- sicut . . . cadent barum cito decident.Spera in Domino, et fac bonitatem :
et inhabita terram, et pascaris in divitiis ejus.Delectare in Domino : et dabit tibi petitiones cordis tui.Revela Domino viam tuam : et spera in eo, et ipse faciet. in eumEt educet quasi lumen justitiam tanquam . . . sicut tuam, et judicium tuum tanquam me-ridiem : subditus esto Domino, et ora et observa eum ne æmulatus fueris eum quiNoli æmulari in eo qui prosperatur in via sua : in homine faciente in- iniquitatem justitias.Desine ab ira, et derelinque furorem : noli æmulari ut maligneris. ne æmuleris ut nequiter faciasQuoniam qui malignantur, exter- nequiter agunt . .
qui vero expro-bant Dominum ipsi hæreditatis
possidebunt minabuntur : sustinentes autem Dominum, ipsi hæreditabunt terram.Et adhuc pusillum, et non erit pec-cator : et quæres locum ejus, et non invenies.Mansueti autem hæreditabunt ter- possidebunt ram : et delectabuntur in multitudine pacis.Observabit peccator justum : et stri- fremebit debit super eum dentibus suis.Dominus autem irridebit eum : quoniam prospicit quod veniet dies ejus.

chickens under her wings," by sending His Son into the world to save them. To that Son the ninth and tenth verses turn, anticipating His own proclamation of Himself as the Fountain of living water, the Living Bread of Which men may eat and be satisfied, the Light of the world Which enlightens all men with its beams.

A comparison of the first and last two verses with the texts referred to in the margin, will show that this Psalm also proclaims the wickedness of Antichrist and the Lord's final victory over him.

PSALM XXXVII.

Christ speaks in and to the Church, exhorting it not to be overborne by persecution or any other trouble, but to look to the end. Evil may prevail for a time, but at last the tares will be cut down for destruction, and the wheat gathered into the garner of God. The prevailing theme of the Psalm is that of patience, and rest in the Lord. "In your patience possess ye your souls" was the Lord's own teaching to His Church respecting the troublous times that would come upon it : and twice in the book of the Revelation it is repeated, "Here is the patience and faith of the saints." In like manner the Apostles had often written to the early Church in the same strain, as if much faith was requisite to enable it to believe that in quietness and in confidence was their strength :—"Cast not away, therefore, your confidence, which hath great recompense of reward. For ye have need of patience, that after ye have done the will of God, ye might receive the promise. For yet a little while, and He that shall

The VII. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Rev. xii. 12.

14 The ungodly have drawn out the sword, and have bent their bow : to cast down the poor and needy, and to slay such as are of a right conversation.

15 Their sword shall go through their own heart : and their bow shall be broken.

Mark x. 24.

16 A small thing that the righteous hath : is better than great riches of the ungodly.

17 For the arms of the ungodly shall be broken : and the Lord upholdeth the righteous.

al. "ways."
Rev. xxi. 7.

18 The Lord knoweth the days of the godly : and their inheritance shall endure for ever.

19 They shall not be confounded in the perilous time : and in the days of dearth they shall have enough.

Rev. xxi. 8.

20 As for the ungodly, they shall perish, and the enemies of the Lord shall consume as the fat of lambs : yea, even as the smoke shall they consume away.

Prov. xi. 25.

21 The ungodly borroweth, and payeth not again : but the righteous is merciful and liberal.

22 Such as are blessed of God shall possess the land : and they that are cursed of him shall be rooted out.

Isa. xl. 29—31.

23 The Lord ordereth a good man's going : and maketh his way acceptable to himself.

24 Though he fall, he shall not be cast away : for the Lord upholdeth him with his hand.

Matt. vi. 25—34.

25 I have been young, and now am old : and yet saw I never the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging their bread.

Eccles. xi. 1.

26 The righteous is ever merciful, and lendeth : and his seed is blessed.

James iv. 7, 8.

27 Flee from evil, and do the thing that is good : and dwell for evermore.

Gladium evaginaverunt peccatores :
intenderunt arcum suum, tenderunt
Ut dejiciant pauperem et inopem :
ut trucident rectos corde.

Gladius eorum intret in corda ipsorum : et arcus eorum confringatur. conteratur

Melius est modicum justo : super divitias peccatorum multas.

Quoniam brachia peccatorum conterentur : confirmat autem justos Dominus.

Novit Dominus dies immaculatorum : et hæreditas eorum in æternum erit.

Non confundentur in tempore malo :
et in diebus famis saturabuntur, quia quoniam
peccatores peribunt.

Inimici vero Domini mox ut honorificati fuerint et exaltati : deficientes, quemadmodum fumus deficient. *mox honorati et exaltati fuerint
def. ut*

Mutuabitur peccator, et non solvet :
justus autem miseretur et tribuet. Mutuatur . . . et commodat

Quia benedicentes ei hæreditabunt terram : maledicentes autem ei disperibunt. *Quoniam . . . eum possidebunt . . .
illum disperient*

Apud Dominum gressus hominis dirigentur : et viam ejus volet. *A Domino . . .
cupiet nimio*

Cum ceciderit, non collidetur : quia Dominus supponit manum suam. ceciderit justus non conturbabitur . . . firmas manum ejus

Junior fui, etenim senui : et non vidi justum derelictum, nec semen ejus quærens panem. egens panem

Tota die miseretur et commodat :
et semen illius in benedictione erit.

Declina a malo, et fac bonum : et inhabita in sæculum sæculi.

come will come, and will not tarry." [Heb. x. 35—37.] The trials of the early Church were so stupendous that it did indeed require a strong faith to believe that the Lord was upholding it with His hand, and that the powers of sin would not prevail. They saw the ungodly in great power, and the followers of the Righteous One every where cast down by the most bitter persecution. But they were bidden not to fret themselves because of the power of Antichrist, for that he would soon be cut down as the grass by the sickle of God's Angel : "The devil is come down unto you, having great wrath, because he knoweth that he hath but a short time. And when the dragon saw that he was cast into the earth, he persecuted the woman which brought forth the Man." [Rev. xii. 12, 13.] They were bidden thus to be ever taking the strain of this Psalm (which was doubtless often sung by them in Divine Service) as the guiding principle of their Christian life. Let not the seeming prosperity of God's enemies make you contrast your own condition with theirs : rest in the Lord ; watch what the end will be ; assure yourselves in your faith, and believe

The VII. Day.
Evening
Prayer.

28 For the Lord loveth the thing that is right : he forsaketh not his that be godly, but they are preserved for ever.

Isa. xxvi. 20, 21.

29 The unrighteous shall be punished : as for the seed of the ungodly, it shall be rooted out.

Rev. v. 10.

30 The righteous shall inherit the land : and dwell therein for ever.

31 The mouth of the righteous is exercised in wisdom : and his tongue will be talking of judgement.

32 The law of his God is in his heart : and his goings shall not slide.

Acts iii. 14.
vii. 52.

33 The ungodly seeth the righteous : and seeketh occasion to slay him.

34 The Lord will not leave him in his hand : nor condemn him when he is judged.

Rev. v. 10.

35 Hope thou in the Lord, and keep his way, and he shall promote thee that thou shalt possess the land : when the ungodly shall perish, thou shalt see it.

Dan. iv. 10—14.

36 I myself have seen the ungodly in great power : and flourishing like a green bay-tree.

Isa. xvii. 13, 14.

37 I went by, and lo, he was gone : I sought him, but his place could no where be found.

Ecclus. vii. 36.

38 Keep innocency, and take heed unto the thing that is right : for that shall bring a man peace at the last.

39 As for the transgressors, they shall perish together : and the end of the ungodly is, they shall be rooted out at the last.

Rev. xxi. 4.

40 But the salvation of the righteous cometh of the Lord : who is also their strength in the time of trouble.

Quia Dominus amat judicium et non Quoniam derelinquet sanctos suos : in æternum conservabuntur.

Injusti punientur : et semen im- Injusti autem
piorum peribit.

Justi autem hæreditabunt terram : vero hereditate et inhabitabunt in sæculum sæculi possidebunt super eam.

Os justi meditabitur sapientiam :
et lingua ejus loquetur judicium.

Lex Dei ejus in corde ipsius : et non supplantabuntur gressus ejus.

Considerat peccator justum : et quærit mortificare eum. perdere eum

Dominus autem non derelinquet eum in manibus ejus : nec damnabit eum cum judicabitur illi.

Expecta Dominum, et custodi viam ejus ; et exaltabit te, ut hæreditate capias terram : cum perierint pecca- inhabiles tores, videbis. cum pereunt

Vidi impium superexaltatum : et elevatum sicut cedros Libani.

Et transivi, et ecce non erat : quæsivi eum, et non est inventus locus
ejus.

Custodi innocentiam, et vide æqui- veritatem et tatem : quoniam sunt reliquæ homini pacifico.

Injusti autem disperibunt simul :
reliquæ impiorum interibunt. peribunt

Salus autem justorum a Domino : et protector eorum est in tempore tri-bulationis.

that Christ and the right must prevail, and that evil shall be cast down. Abide patiently in the Lord, and He shall bring it to pass.

And, as the Apostolic teaching of the suffering Church often reminded them that here they had no continuing city, but that they sought one to come, so in this Psalm there are repeated references to "the land" and "the inheritance" which is prepared for those who "tarry the Lord's leisure," and look for "a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens," though this earthly tabernacle of the Lord should be utterly dissolved. It may be that both here and in our Lord's own words, "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth," there is a prophecy of a world purified from sin and regenerated by fire for the future habitation of the redeemed, as it was once regenerated by water.

Although the stores of precious comfort which this Psalm contains may thus be most strongly illustrated by reference to the trials of the Church in those days when the sufferings of Christ's natural body were continued in His body mystical, yet it is not for one age alone that its words are spoken. It is still true that we "must through much tribulation enter into" our rest ; and there is still need for the faith of Christians to be stirred up, that they may look to the end both as regards the Church and their own particular lot. For how often still does it seem that the ungodly are in great prosperity ; that truth, peace, and love have to take the lower place in the world, while heresy, war, and hatred have the upper hand : that the good are cast down, and the wicked built up. Then is the time to sing this Psalm with a new fervour, remembering that the Son of Man once had not where to lay His head, but now reigns King of kings and Lord of lords ; that His little flock was once persecuted on all

The VII. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Heb. v. 7. 9.

41 And the Lord shall stand by them, and save them : he shall deliver them from the ungodly, and shall save them, because they put their trust in him.

THE XXXVIII PSALM.

Domine, ne in furore.

The VIII. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Ash-Wed. Mat-
tins.
A Penitential
Psalm.
Gen. xlix. 23.
Job vi. 4.
xvi. 13.

PUT me not to rebuke, O Lord, in thine anger : neither chasten me in thy heavy displeasure.

2 For thine arrows stick fast in me : and thy hand presseth me sore.

3 There is no health in my flesh, because of thy displeasure : neither is there any rest in my bones, by reason of my sin.

Isa. liii. 6.

4 For my wickednesses are gone over my head : and are like a sore burden, too heavy for me to bear.

Isa. i. 5, 6.
Job vii. 4—6.

5 My wounds stink, and are corrupt : through my foolishness.

6 I am brought into so great trouble and misery : that I go mourning all the day long.

7 For my loins are filled with a sore disease : and there is no whole part in my body.

Job x. 1, 2.

8 I am feeble, and sore smitten : I have roared for the very disquietness of my heart.

Heb. v. 7.

9 Lord, thou knowest all my desire : and my groaning is not hid from thee.

10 My heart panteth, my strength hath failed me : and the sight of mine eyes is gone from me.

Luke xxiii. 49.
Job xvi. 20.
Heb. ii. 16.

11 My lovers and my neighbours did stand looking upon my trouble : and my kinsmen stood afar off.

Et adjuvabit eos Dominus, et liberabit eos : et eruet eos a peccatoribus, et salvabit eos, quia speraverunt in eo.

eripiet . . et salvos faciet . . quoniam . . in eum

PSALMUS XXXVII.

DOMINE, ne in furore tuo arguas me : neque in ira tua corripas me.

Mond. Mattins.
Good Friday,
2nd Noct.
in ira . . . neque
in furore

Quoniam sagittæ tuæ infixæ sunt mihi : et confirmasti super me manum tuam.

Non est sanitas in carne mea a facie iræ tuæ : non est pax ossibus meis a facie peccatorum meorum.

Quoniam iniquitates meæ supergressæ sunt caput meum : et sicut onus grave gravatæ sunt super me.

superposuerunt caput

Putruerunt et corruptæ sunt cicatrices meæ : a facie insipientiæ meæ.

Conpu(r)uerunt et de(er)ioraverunt cicatrices

Miser factus sum, et curvatus sum usque in finem : tota die contristatus ingrediebar.

Miseriis afflictus sum et turbatus sum usque in

Quoniam lumbi mei impleti sunt illusionibus : et non est sanitas in carne mea.

anima mea con-pleta est

Afflictus sum et humiliatus sum nimis : rugiebam a gemitu cordis mei.

Incurbatus sum et . . . usque quaque rugie-bam

Domine, ante te omne desiderium meum : et gemitus meus a te non est absconditus.

Et ante

Cor meum conturbatum est, dereliquit me virtus mea : et lumen oculorum meorum et ipsum non est mecum.

cont. est in me et dereluit me fortitudo mea

Amici mei et proximi mei : adversum me appropinquaverunt, et steterunt.

adpropiaverunt sides, yet now extends through all kingdoms of the world. "They that patiently abide the Lord, those shall inherit the land."

PSALM XXXVIII.

Lest we should fear to consider these words of deep penitence as those of our Lord, the eleventh, thirteenth, and fourteenth verses are specially pointed towards the circumstances which attended His last hours; when "all the disciples forsook Him and fled," and when the words of the prophecy were literally fulfilled concerning the "Lamb of God," "He was oppressed, and He was afflicted; yet He opened not His mouth. He is brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so He openeth not His mouth." "Then Herod questioned with Him in many words, but He answered nothing." "And when He was accused of the chief priests and elders, He answered nothing." The Psalm throughout may be profitably compared with Isaiah liii. and Job xvi. and xvii.; where in one case we see the most distinct prophecy of our Lord's vicarial work of penitential suffering, and in the other a personal type of Him in His affliction. "Ye have heard of the patience of Job, and have seen the end of the Lord." [James v. 11.]

It is not unlikely that when David wrote this Psalm he was suffering some bodily affliction such as Job had suffered, and that all from the third to the seventh verse had a literal meaning when uttered by him. When these verses are taken of our Lord, they must be taken of the torture which His holy Body underwent from the agony of the wounds caused by the nails in His hands and feet, and the spear thrust into His side, and the racking pain of hanging from the Cross. Our Lord speaks them also, mystically, of His mystical Body, of which He was bearing the sins; sins, the effects of which upon human nature are described in the words of the prophet, "The whole head is sick, and the whole heart faint. From the sole of the foot even unto the head there is no soundness in it, but wounds, and bruises, and putrifying sores;

The VIII. Day.

*Morning
Prayer.*

12 They also that sought after my life laid snares for me : and they that went about to do me evil, talked of wickedness, and imagined deceit all the day long.

Isa. liii. 7.
Luke xxiii. 9.

13 As for me, I was like a deaf man, and heard not : and as one that is dumb, who doth not open his mouth.

Matt. xxvi. 63.
xxvii. 12.
1 Pet. ii. 22.

14 I became even as a man that heareth not : and in whose mouth are no reproofs.

Job xiii. 15.

15 For in thee, O Lord, have I put my trust : thou shalt answer for me, O Lord my God.

16 I have required that they, even mine enemies, should not triumph over me : for when my foot slipped, they rejoiced greatly against me.

17 And I, truly, am set in the plague : and my heaviness is ever in my sight.

18 For I will confess my wickedness : and be sorry for my sin.

19 But mine enemies live, and are mighty : and they that hate me wrongfully are many in number.

Dan. vi. 5.

20 They also that reward evil for good are against me : because I follow the thing that good is.

21 Forsake me not, O Lord my God : be not thou far from me.

22 Haste thee to help me : O Lord God of my salvation.

THE XXXIX PSALM.

*Dixi, custodiam.*Burial of the dead.

I SAID, I will take heed to my ways : that I offend not in my tongue.

Et qui juxta me erant de longe steterunt : et vim faciebant qui quærebant animam meam.

Et qui inquirebant mala mihi locuti sunt vanitates : et dolos tota die meditabantur.

Ego autem tanquam surdus non reli- audiebam : et sicut mutus non aperi- aperiens os suum.

Et factus sum sicut homo non audiens : et non habens in ore suo redargutiones.

Quoniam in te, Domine, speravi : tu exaudies me, Domine Deus meus.

Quia dixi, Nequando supergaudeant mihi inimici mei : et dum commovetur pedes mei, super me magna locuti sunt.

Quoniam ego in flagella paratus sum : et dolor meus in conspectu meo semper.

Quoniam iniquitatem meam annuntiabo : et cogitabo pro peccato meo.

Inimici autem mei vivunt et confirmati sunt super me : et multiplicati sunt qui oderunt me inique.

Qui retribuunt mala pro bonis detrahebant mihi : quoniam sequebar bonitatem.

Ne derelinquas me Domine Deus meus : ne discesseris a me.

Intende in adjutorium meum : Domine Deus salutis meæ.

PSALMUS XXXVIII.

DIXI, Custodiam vias meas : ut non delinquam in lingua mea. Tuesd. Mattine.

they have not been closed, neither bound up, neither mollified with ointment." [Isa. i. 5, 6.] The words of the fifth verse in the Vulgate seem especially to connect the latter words of the prophet with the Psalm, for they seem to speak of wounds partly healed, but again reopened, such wounds as the moral cicatrices of human nature had been subjected to from the time of its first deadly wound in the Fall.

In such a spiritual sense, also, is this penitential Psalm to be used by individual Christians. Remembering how hateful all sin is in the sight of God, how it has marred the beauty of His handiwork, and how totally incurable are the wounds it causes except by the remedy of Christ's Incarnation and sufferings, none need consider the expressions which are used too strong for ordinary penitents. She who so clearly saw her sin ever before her in the days of our Lord's earthly life, and who laid it all upon Him as she bathed His feet with her tears, was honoured by our Lord's words, "She loved much." So the greater the love of God, the greater will be the hatred of sin, the more clear will be the view of its sinfulness, the more freely will the lips confess it, and the more deeply the heart be sorry for it. While, therefore, this Psalm reveals to us some of the feelings by which our Redeemer was moved when He bore our sins in His own Body on the tree, it furnishes also a Divine strain of penitence which His members may take on their lips from age to age as following His example.

PSALM XXXIX.

When our Redeemer said, "If it be possible, let this cup pass from Me," He was praying in the spirit and almost in the words of David, "Take Thy plague away from me;" and when David sang, "When Thou with rebukes dost chasten man for sin, Thou makest his beauty to consume away," he was prophesying of Him "Whose visage was marred more than any man," and Who when we should see Him should "have no beauty in Him that

The VIII. Day.

Morning
Prayer.

James iii. 3—10.

2 I will keep my mouth as it were with a bridle : while the ungodly is in my sight.

3 I held my tongue, and spake nothing : I kept silence, yea, even from good words ; but it was pain and grief to me.

Jer. xx. 9.

4 My heart was hot within me, and while I was thus musing the fire kindled : and at the last I spake with my tongue.

Job vi. 11.

5 Lord, let me know mine end, and the number of my days : that I may be certified how long I have to live.

Job xiv. 1.

xvi. 22.

Eccl. i. 2.

6 Behold, thou hast made my days as it were a span long : and mine age is even as nothing in respect of thee, and verily every man living is altogether vanity.

Mark x. 23.

7 For man walketh in a vain shadow, and disquieteth himself in vain : he heapeth up riches, and cannot tell who shall gather them.

8 And now, Lord, what is my hope : truly my hope is even in thee.

9 Deliver me from all mine offences : and make me not a rebuke unto the foolish.

Isa. liii. 7.

John xix. 10, 11.

10 I became dumb, and opened not my mouth : for it was thy doing.

Luke xxii. 42.

11 Take thy plague away from me : I am even consumed by the means of thy heavy hand.

Isa. lii. 14.

liii. 1.

Job xiii. 28.

12 When thou with rebukes dost chasten man for sin, thou makest his beauty to consume away, like as it were a moth fretting a garment : every man therefore is but vanity.

13 Hear my prayer, O Lord, and with thine ears consider my calling : hold not thy peace at my tears.

Posui ori meo custodiam : cum consisteret peccator adversum me.

Obmutui, et humiliatus sum, et silui a bonis : et dolor meus renovatus est.

Concaluit cor meum intra me : et in meditatione mea exardescet ignis.

Locutus sum in lingua mea : Notum fac mihi, Domine, finem meum ;

Et numerum dierum meorum, quis est : ut sciam quid desit mihi.

Ecce mensurabiles posuisti dies meos : et substantia mea tanquam nihilum ante te.

Veruntamen universa vanitas : omnis homo vivens.

Veruntamen in imagine pertransit homo : sed et frustra conturbatur.

Quoniam in imagine Dei ambulet homo tamen rane conturbabitur

Thesaurizat : et ignorat cui congregabit ea.

Et nunc quæ est expectatio mea ? nonne Dominus ? et substantia mea apud te est.

Ab omnibus iniquitatibus meis erue me : opprobrium insipienti dedisti me.

Obmutui, et non aperui os meum, quoniam tu fecisti : amove a me plagas tuas.

A fortitudine manus tuæ ego defeci : in increpationibus, propter iniquitatem, corripuisti hominem.

Et tabescere fecisti sicut araneam animam ejus : veruntamen vane conturbatur omnis homo.

universa vanitas omnis homo vivens

Exaudi orationem meam, Domine, et deprecationem meam : auribus percipe lachrymas meas.

we should desire Him." This Psalm may, therefore, be reverently considered as the words of Christ speaking for His members, and declaring in His own person the sorrows which death had wrought and would continue to work in the world. "We see Jesus, Who was made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour : that He by the grace of God should taste death for every man." [Heb. ii. 9.] That He might become in all things like unto His brethren, He also became a stranger and a sojourner, and ended His pilgrimage by tasting death, that death might be vanquished.

In this Psalm, especially when used in the Burial Office, we may hear Christ saying to all those who desire a place in His kingdom, "Can ye drink of the cup that I drink of, and be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with ?" Through death He triumphed over death and entered into His glory, being made perfect through suffering : and by the grave and gate of death His people must pass that they may attain a joyful resurrection. Resignation, prayer, trust, and hope are, therefore, the four notes of the chord which sounds throughout this mournful hymn. "What is your life ? It is even a vapour, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away." [James iv. 14.] Yet, "I know that my Redeemer liveth, Who is the Resurrection and the Life, and though He slay me, yet will I trust in Him. We know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens : " and we may therefore say, "O death, where is thy sting ? O grave, where is thy victory ? " for "if we believe that Jesus died, and rose again, even so them also that sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him." Thus the light of the glorious Gospel has transfigured the mournful words of the Old Testa-

The VIII. Day.

Morning

Prayer.

Lev. xxv. 23.

Heb. xi. 13.

Job x. 20, 21.

Luke xxii. 43.

Matt. xxvi. 46.

14 For I am a stranger with thee, and a sojourner : as all my fathers were.

15 O spare me a little, that I may recover my strength : before I go hence, and be no more seen.

THE XL PSALM.

*Expectans expectavi.*Good Friday
Mattins.

I WAITED patiently for the Lord : and he inclined unto me, and heard my calling.

John xix. 30.
Luke xiii. 33.

2 He brought me also out of the horrible pit, out of the mire and clay :
and set my feet upon the rock, and ordered my goings.

Luke xxiii. 46.

3 And he hath put a new song in my mouth : even a thanksgiving unto our God.

Luke xxiii. 47.

4 Many shall see it and fear : and shall put their trust in the Lord.

Rev. xxii. 14.

5 Blessed is the man that hath set his hope in the Lord : and turned not unto the proud, and to such as go about with lies.

Rev. xv. 3.
Rom. xi. 33.

6 O Lord my God, great are the wondrous works which thou hast done, like as be also thy thoughts which are to us-ward : and yet there is no man that ordereth them unto thee.

7 If I should declare them and speak of them : they should be more than I am able to express.

Heb. x. 5-7.
John i. 14.
Exod. xxi. 6.
Rom. xii. 1.
Isa. l. 5.

8 Sacrifice and meat-offering thou wouldest not : but mine ears hast thou opened.

Heb. x. 19, 20.
xii. 24.

9 Burnt-offerings and sacrifice for sin hast thou not required : then said
I, Lo, I come,

John iv. 34.
v. 30.
Luke xxii. 42.

10 In the volume of the book it is written of me, that I should fulfil thy will, O my God : I am content to do it ; yea, thy law is within my heart.

Ne sileas, quoniam advena ego sum <sup>a me quoniam</sup> apud te : et peregrinus, sicut omnes <sup>inc. in te ra</sup> patres mei. <sup>et pereg.</sup>

Remitte mihi, ut refrigerer priusquam abeam : et amplius non ero.

PSALMUS XXXIX.

EXSPECTANS expectavi Dominum : et intendit mihi.

Tuesd. Mattins.
Good Friday,
2nd Noct.
Mattins of the departed,
3rd Noct.
<sup>et respexit me</sup> <sup>deprecationem</sup> <sup>meum.</sup>

Et exaudivit preces meas : et eduxit me de lacu miseriæ, et de luto fæcis.

Et statuit super petram pedes meos :
et direxit gressus meos.

Et immisit in os meum canticum novum : carmen Deo nostro.

hymnum Deo

Videbunt multi et timebunt : et sperabunt in Domino.

Beatus vir cujus est nomen Domini spes ejus : et non respexit in vanitates et insanias falsas.

Multa fecisti tu, Domine Deus meus, mirabilia tua : et cogitationibus tuis non est qui similis sit tibi.

Annuntiavi et locutus sum : multiplicati sunt super numerum.

Sacrificium et oblationem noluisti :
aures autem perfecisti mihi.

corpus autem

Holocaustum et pro peccato non postulasti : tunc dixi ; Ecce venio.

Holocausta etiam
pro delicto

In capite libri scriptum est de me, ut facerem voluntatem tuam ; Deus meus, volui : et legem tuam in medio cordis mei.

ment saint, and developed out of them a new meaning to those who sorrow not as men without hope.

PSALM XL.

The words of St. Paul in the Epistle to the Hebrews, and the custom of the Church in adopting this Psalm for Good Friday, identify it as a hymn of Christ : and with this key to the meaning of it there is no difficulty in tracing out that He speaks, first, as One offering up Himself as a personal Sacrifice of atonement for sin ; and, secondly, as the Head of the Mystical Body which He is pleased to associate in intimate oneness with Himself. A Body hast Thou prepared Me that I may offer it as the One acceptable Sacrifice : a Body hast Thou prepared Me that the mystery of my Incarnation may be continued in the mystery of My Church<sup>1</sup>.

As a Psalm applicable to the day of Christ's Passion, it must be considered in the light of a solemn, and even awful, thanksgiving for His death as the source of the world's new life. The <sup>1</sup> "A body hast Thou prepared me," is quoted by St. Paul from the Septuagint, not from the Hebrew. It will be observed above that the ancient Vulgate, the "Vetus Italia," quoted in the margin, has the same reading ; while the more modern Vulgate of St. Jerome's later revision has a reading very similar to that of the English. The piercing of the ears was a sign of servitude. See Exod. xxi. 6.

The VIII. Day.

Morning

Prayer.

John xviii. 20.

Acts ii. 5.

Luke ii. 32.

John xvii. 12. 14.

Eph. ii. 11—18.

Ps. lxx. 1.

Ps. lxx. 2.

Ps. lxx. 3.

Ps. lxx. 4.

Ps. lxx. 5.

Ps. lxx. 6.
Rev. xxiii. 20.

11 I have declared thy righteousness in the great congregation : lo, I will not refrain my lips, O Lord, and that thou knowest.

12 I have not hid thy righteousness within my heart : my talk hath been of thy truth, and of thy salvation.

13 I have not kept back thy loving mercy and truth : from the great congregation.

14 Withdraw not thou thy mercy from me, O Lord : let thy loving-kindness and thy truth always preserve me.

15 For innumerable troubles are come about me, my sins have taken such hold upon me that I am not able to look up : yea, they are more in number than the hairs of my head, and my heart hath failed me.

16 O Lord, let it be thy pleasure to deliver me : make haste, O Lord, to help me.

17 Let them be ashamed, and confounded together, that seek after my soul to destroy it : let them be driven backward, and put to rebuke, that wish me evil.

18 Let them be desolate, and rewarded with shame : that say unto me, Fie upon thee, fie upon thee.

19 Let all those that seek thee be joyful and glad in thee : and let such as love thy salvation say always, The Lord be praised.

20 As for me, I am poor and needy : but the Lord careth for me.

21 Thou art my helper and redeemer : make no long tarrying, O my God.

Annuntiavi justitiam tuam in ecclesia magna : ecce labia mea non prohibebo ; Domine, tu scisti.

Bene nuntiavi cognovisti

Justitiam tuam non abscondi in corde meo : veritatem tuam et salutare tuum dixi.

Non abscondi misericordiam tuam et veritatem tuam : a concilio multo.

celavia synagoga nulla

Tu autem, Domine, ne longe facias miserationes tuas a me : misericordia tua et veritas tua semper susceperunt me.

miseri cordias tuas

Quoniam circumdederunt me mala quorum non est numerus : comprehenderunt me iniquitates meæ, et non potui ut viderem.

Multiplicatæ sunt super capillos capitis mei : et cor meum dereliquit me.

Complaceat tibi, Domine, ut eruas me : Domine, ad adjuvandum me respice.

eripiasin auxilium meum

Confundantur et reveantur simul qui quærun animam meam : ut auferant eam.

Convertantur retrorsum et reveantur : qui volunt mihi mala.

Avertantur . . et erubescant qui cogitant

Ferant confestim confusionem suam : qui dicunt mihi, Euge, euge.

Exultent et lætentur super te omnes quærentes te : et dicant semper, Magnificetur Dominus, qui diligunt salutare tuum.

lætentur qui quærun te Domine

Ego autem mendicus sum et pauper : Dominus sollicitus est mei.

egenus etcuras habet mei

Adjutor meus, et protector meus tu es : Deus meus, ne tardaveris.

et liberator agony and the darkness are past : and, even from the Cross, He Who took upon Him the form of a Servant and wore the badge of the bondage of sin, can behold His triumph in all future ages. "He shall see of the travail of His soul, and shall be satisfied. By His knowledge shall My Righteous Servant justify many : for He shall bear their iniquities." [Isa. liii. 11.] Thus it is a song of Good Friday sorrows sung in the knowledge that Easter is to follow : and the tone of it is like those pictures of the Crucifixion in which our Lord's incarnate Body is suspended free upon the Cross, surrounded by the glorious rays of that Divine Nature which made it impossible for His soul to be left in hell, or for His flesh to see corruption. [Acts ii. 31.]

The words "I waited patiently," are suggestive of several interpretations. (1) Of our Lord's waiting, until the fulness of the time should come when that blessed work of Redemption should be wrought which He had purposed from the time of the Fall itself. (2) Of that patient waiting for the time of the appointed Sacrifice which is indicated by the declaration on several occasions that His hour was not yet come. (3) Of that patience which the prophet foresaw when he declared that as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so He openeth not His mouth, and that He gave His back to the smiters, and His cheeks to them that plucked off the hair. (4) Of Christ speaking in the name of His people who are waiting the Lord's good time in the Church on earth and in the Church of Paradise ; some in afflictions,—like their Master and Head,—many full of ardent longing to be with Him, all in the hope of that blessedness which He holds forth in the Church Triumphant. "I waited patiently for the Lord. . . . Make no long tarrying, O my God." With a versicle and response breathing the same tone the Holy Bible ends :

Y. Surely I come quickly : Amen.

R. Even so, come, Lord Jesus.

In such a tone the suffering Saviour commended His soul on the first Good Friday, saying, "Father, into Thy hands I commend

THE XLI PSALM.

Beatus qui intelligit.

The VIII. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
1 Cor. xi. 29.

Luke xxiii. 25.

BLESSED is he that considereth the poor and needy : the Lord shall deliver him in the time of trouble.

2 The Lord preserve him, and keep him alive, that he may be blessed upon earth : and deliver not thou him into the will of his enemies.

3 The Lord comfort him when he lieth sick upon his bed : make thou all his bed in his sickness.

Hos. xiv. 4.

4 I said, Lord, be merciful unto me : heal my soul, for I have sinned against thee.

5 Mine enemies speak evil of me : When shall he die, and his name perish ?

Matt. xxvi. 48,
49.

6 And if he come to see me, he speaketh vanity : and his heart conceiveth falsehood within himself, and when he cometh forth he telleth it.

7 All mine enemies whisper together against me : even against me do they imagine this evil.

Acts i. 25.

8 Let the sentence of guiltiness proceed against him : and now that he dieth, let him rise up no more.

ai. "lieth."

John xiii. 18.

9 Yea, even mine own familiar friend, whom I trusted : who did also eat of my bread, hath laid great wait for me.

10 But be thou merciful unto me, O Lord : raise thou me up again, and I shall reward them.

11 By this I know thou favourest me : that mine enemy doth not triumph against me.

12 And when I am in my health, thou upholdest me : and shalt set me before thy face for ever.

13 Blessed be the Lord God of Israel : world without end. Amen.

PSALMUS XL.

Tuesd. Mattins.
Mattins of the departed,
3rd Noct.

BEATUS qui intelligit super egenum et pauperem : in die mala liberabit eum Dominus.

Dominus conservet eum, et vivificet eum, et beatum faciat eum in terra : et non tradat eum in animam inimicorum ejus.

et mundet in terra animam ejus et non tradat eum
in manus inimici ejus

Dominus opem ferat illi super lectum doloris ejus : universum stratum ejus versasti in infirmitate ejus.

Ego dixi, Domine, miserere mei : sana animam meam, quia peccavi tibi.

Inimici mei dixerunt mala mihi : Quando morietur et peribit nomen ejus ?

Et si ingrediebatur ut videret, vana loquebatur : cor ejus congregavit iniquitatem sibi.

cor eorum congregaverunt

Egrediebatur foras : et loquebatur in idipsum.

loquebatur simul in unum susurrabant

Adversum me susurrabant omnes inimici mei : adversum me cogitabant mala mihi.

Verbum iniquum constituerunt adversum me : nunquid qui dormit, non adjiciet ut resurgat ?

mandaverunt

Etenim homo pacis meæ, in quo speravi, qui edebat panes meos : magnificavit super me supplantationem.

amplificavit

Tu autem, Domine, miserere mei, et resuscita me : et retribuam eis.

In hoc cognovi quoniam voluisti me : quoniam non gaudebit inimicus meus super me.

Me autem propter innocentiam suscepisti : et confirmasti me in conspectu tuo in æternum.

Benedictus Dominus Deus Israël : a sæculo, et in sæculum ; Fiat, fiat.

et usque in

My spirit :” and in such a tone also may His mystical Body, corporate and in its several members, be ever patiently waiting for the Lord, and working in humble obedience during the time of waiting.

PSALM XLI.

There is enough analogy between this and the first Psalm to lead to the conclusion that it was intended for the position it now occupies as the last Psalm of the first book ; the end of which book is marked by the Doxology. As the first is a meditative hymn on the blessedness of the guileless Man, so this is one upon the mystery of His poverty Who became poor that He might make many rich. Our Lord quoted it as applying to Himself in John xiii. 18, declaring that the ninth verse of the Psalm was fulfilled by His Betrayal. The fifth and four following verses relate therefore to the betrayer, his sentence and his punishment, and “now that he dieth,” [or “lieth,”] “let him rise up no more,” may be compared with the mysterious words of St. Peter, that Judas had gone “to his own place.”

This Psalm is to be viewed in two aspects. (1) It sets forth the blessedness of “considering,”—or meditating upon with understanding,—the Person of the Redeemer ; an aspect which may remind us of St. Paul’s expression as to “discerning” or “considering” the Lord’s Body in the Holy Eucharist. [1 Cor.

THE XLII PSALM.

Quemadmodum.

The VIII. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Joel i. 20.

LIKE as the hart desireth the water-brooks : so longeth my soul after thee, O God.

John xix. 28.
iv. 14. vii. 37.
Rev. xxii. 4. 17.
20. vii. 17.
xxi. 4.

2 My soul is athirst for God, yea, even for the living God : when shall I come to appear before the presence of God?

Lament. i. 16. 2.

3 My tears have been my meat day and night : while they daily say unto me, Where is now thy God?

Job xxx. 16.
John xii. 27. 12.

4 Now when I think thereupon, I pour out my heart by my self : for I went with the multitude, and brought them forth into the house of God ;

Luke xix. 38. 47.

5 In the voice of praise and thanksgiving : among such as keep holy-
day.

al. "so disquieted."
John xii. 28.
2 Cor. iv. 8.

6 Why art thou so full of heaviness,
O my soul : and why art thou disquieted within me?

7 Put thy trust in God : for I will yet give him thanks for the help of his countenance.

8 My God, my soul is vexed within me : therefore will I remember thee concerning the land of Jordan, and the little hill of Hermon.

Mark xv. 34.

9 One deep calleth another, because of the noise of the water-pipes : all thy waves and storms are gone over me.

Job xxxv. 10.

10 The Lord hath granted his lovingkindness in the day-time : and in the night-season did I sing of him, and made my prayer unto the God of my life.

PSALMUS XLI.

QUEMADMODUM desiderat cervus ad fontes aquarum : ita desiderat anima mea ad te Deus.

Tuesd. Mattins.
Matt. of the de
parted,
3rd Noct.

Sitivit anima mea ad Deum fontem ad Deum vivum vivum : quando veniam, et apparebo ante faciem Dei?

Fuerunt mihi lachrymæ meæ panes die ac nocte : dum dicitur mihi quotidie, Ubi est Deus tuus?

Hæc recordatus sum, et effudi in me animam meam : quoniam transibo ingrediar in locum tabernaculi admirabilis, usque ad domum Dei.

In voce exultationis et confessionis :
sonus epulantis.

Quare tristis es anima mea? et
quare conturbas me?

Spera in Deo, quoniam adhuc con- quoniam confite- fitebor illi : salutare vultus mei et Deus meus.

Ad meipsum anima mea contur- A meipso . . . tur- bata est : propterea memor ero tui bata de terra Jordanis, et Hermonii a monte modico. tui Domine

Abyssus abyssum invocat : in voce cataractarum tuarum.

Omnia excelsa tua et fluctus tui :
super me transierunt.

In die mandavit Dominus misericordiam suam : et nocte canticum nocte declaravit
ejus.

Apud me oratio Deo vitæ meæ :
dicam Deo, Susceptor meus es :

xi. 29.] As "many are weak and sickly, and many sleep" [Ibid.] through not considering the Poor and Needy, so will the Lord deliver from trouble, preserve alive, strengthen and comfort those who there do discern Him. (2) The second aspect under which the Psalm is to be viewed shows the Son of God Himself considering poor and needy human nature, and coming down from Heaven to become as one of us. In His time of trouble the Lord delivered Him, and was merciful to Him when He became as the One Sinner in the place of all sinners.

It will have been observed that all the forty-one Psalms which compose the first book point unswervingly to our Blessed Lord.
They were a gift to the Church of Israel, that its faith might look forward in hope : they are a gift to the Christian Church, that her faith may be intelligently fixed upon her Redeemer, and behold throughout the written word—"in the volume of the book"—the story of the personal WORD'S Incarnation and redeeming work.

THE SECOND BOOK.

PSALM XLII.

The Second Book of the Psalms opens with one in which Christ is again heard speaking. He speaks in His own Person as longing for the time of ascending to His Father, in the person of His mystical Body as longing for the time when her earthly pilgrimage will be ended, and her militant humiliation transfigured into triumphant glory. It was formerly used in the Burial Office of the Church of England [see p. 295] : and has a place in the Primitive Liturgy of St. Mark, both applications of it expressing the earnest longing of the Church and the devout soul for the Divine Presence : "My soul is athirst for God in His Eucharistic Mystery : My soul is athirst for Him in the rest of Paradise."

In their fulness the aspirations of this Psalm can only be assigned to Christ Himself. Job typically anticipated the suf-

The VIII. Day. 11 I will say unto the God of my Evening strength, Why hast thou forgotten Prayer. me : why go I thus heavily, while the Job x. 1, 2. enemy oppresseth me ?

Job xxx. 17. 12 My bones are smitten asunder as with a sword : while mine enemies that trouble me cast me in the teeth ;

Job ii. 9. xix. 3. 13 Namely, while they say daily
Luke xxiii. 35. unto me : Where is now thy God ?
Matt. xxvii. 48.

14 Why art thou so vexed, O my soul : and why art thou so disquieted within me ?

Job xxxi. 3-6. 15 O put thy trust in God : for I will yet thank him, which is the help of my countenance, and my God.

THE XLIII PSALM.

Judica me, Deus.

GIVE sentence with me, O God, and defend my cause against the ungodly people : O deliver me from the deceitful and wicked man.

2 For thou art the God of my strength, why hast thou put me from thee : and why go I so heavily, while the enemy oppresseth me ?

Isa. lx. 1. 3 O send out thy light and thy John i. 4. truth, that they may lead me : and
xiv. 6. bring me unto thy holy hill, and to
Rev. xxi. 23. thy dwelling.

Rev. v. 6. 4 And that I may go unto the altar
vii. 15-17. of God, even unto the God of my joy and gladness : and upon the harp will I give thanks unto thee, O God, my God.

Quare oblitus es mei? quare con- et quare me oppu- tristatus incedo, dum affligit me ini- listi et quare micus? tristis incedo dum aff.

Dum confringuntur ossa mea, ex- omnia ossa probraverunt mihi: qui tribulant me qui tribulant me inimici mei. dum dicitur
mihi

Dum dicunt mihi per singulos dies:
Ubi est Deus tuus?

Quare tristis es anima mea? et
quare conturbas me?

Spera in Deo, quoniam adhuc con- quoniam confite- fitebor illi: salutare vultus mei, et bor
Deus meus.

PSALMUS XLII.

JUDICA me, Deus, et discerne cau- Tuesday Lauds. sam meam de gente non sancta: Corp. Chr.
ab homine iniquo et doloso erue me. 3rd Noct. eripe

Quia tu es Deus fortitudo mea: Deus meus et quare me repulisti, et quare tristis fortitudo incedo, dum affligit me inimicus?

Emitte lucem tuam et veritatem tuam: ipsa me deduxerunt et adduxerunt in montem sanctum tuum, et in tabernacula tua.

Et introibo ad altare Dei: ad Deum qui lætificat juventutem meam.

ferings of the holy One to a certain extent, so that he could say, "And now my soul is poured out upon me, the days of affliction have taken hold upon me," but it was to the soul of the "Man of sorrows" alone that the whole force of such words as those of this Psalm could belong: of Him only that it could be said one abyss proclaimed to another that all the waves and storms of Divine anger with sin had overwhelmed Him. We may, therefore, see in the touching expressions of this beautiful hymn the highest and most perfect form of resignation to the will of God under the most extreme depression of sorrow and suffering: words which open out to us the mind of Christ, showing how the truly faithful soul will trust in God as a loving Father, and long for His presence, even when bowing down under the weight of trial: "longing to be with Christ, which is far better," yet desiring, above all, to fulfil His will. It is a Psalm which must have had especial force in the Divine Service of the early Church, when persecutions surrounded it on every side, and the echoes from one overwhelming cataract of heathen fury overtook the rush of another. Such intense longings for a better life and the peace of Paradise belong to such times rather than to those of untroubled ages: and when the Antichristian persecutions of the latter days have come upon the Church, the meaning of this hymn will again be felt in its fulness as it may have been felt by those who had to endure the Antichrists of the first age. Yet the spirit of the Psalm enters into all longings for the Presence of Christ: and those who fully realize the work of sin will be able to enter into it to a great extent in connexion with the blessedness of that Presence in the Eucharistic Mystery.

PSALM XLIII.

This is plainly a continuation of the preceding Psalm, (though not a portion of it,) the ideas of it being exactly analogous, and the burden, from which the whole derives so mournful and passion-like a character, repeated; yet a distinctive character is also given to this concluding portion of the threefold hymn, which makes it a song anticipative of Resurrection joy. As the words of Christ are, "Thou wilt not leave My soul in hell . . . Thou wilt show Me the path of life;" so they are, "Send out Thy light . . . bring Me unto Thy holy hill." And while we hear Christ longing for the light of the Resurrection, and the Altar where the Lamb, as it had been slain, was to take His kingdom to Himself, so we also hear the voice of His Church asking God to send forth to her the Light of the world, in the Person of Christ, to lead her through this life to glory everlasting, and by the earthly to the heavenly Altar. The third verse looks plainly to Him Who is the Way, the Truth, the Life, and the Light of the City of God; and

The VIII. Day.
*Evening
Prayer.*

5 Why art thou so heavy, O my soul : and why art thou so disquieted within me ?

6 O put thy trust in God : for I will yet give him thanks, which is the help of my countenance, and my God.

THE XLIV PSALM.

Deus, auribus.

The IX. Day.
*Morning
Prayer.
Litaney.*

WE have heard with our ears, O God, our fathers have told us : what thou hast done in their time of old ;

Deut. vii. 1.

2 How thou hast driven out the heathen with thy hand, and planted them in : how thou hast destroyed the nations, and cast them out.

Deut. viii. 17, 18.

3 For they gat not the land in possession through their own sword : neither was it their own arm that helped them ;

Exod. xxxiii. 14.
Isa. lxiii. 9.
Deut. iv. 37.

4 But thy right hand, and thine arm, and the light of thy countenance : because thou hadst a favour unto them.

5 Thou art my King, O God : send help unto Jacob.

Deut. xxxiii. 17.
Isa. lxiii. 3.
Rev. xix. 15.

6 Through thee will we overthrow our enemies : and in thy Name will we tread them under that rise up against us.

7 For I will not trust in my bow : it is not my sword that shall help me ;

8 But it is thou that savest us from our enemies : and puttest them to confusion that hate us.

9 We make our boast of God all day long : and will praise thy Name for ever.

10 But now thou art far off, and puttest us to confusion : and goest not forth with our armies.

2 Cor. iv. 7—11.

11 Thou makest us to turn our backs upon our enemies : so that they which hate us spoil our goods.

Confitebor tibi in cithara, Deus, Deus meus : quare tristis es anima mea, et quare conturbas me ?

Spera in Deo, quoniam adhuc con-<sup>quoniam confitebor</sup> fitebor illi : salutare vultus mei et Deus meus.

PSALMUS XLIII.

DEUS, auribus nostris audivimus : <sup>Tuesd. Mattins.</sup> patres nostri annuntiaverunt nobis, Opus quod operatus es in diebus eorum : et in diebus antiquis.

Manus tua gentes disperdidit et plantasti eos : afflixisti populos et expulisti eos.

Nec enim in gladio suo possederunt <sup>possidebunt</sup> terram : et brachium eorum non sal-<sup>salvabit</sup> vavit eos :

Sed dextera tua, et brachium tuum, et illuminatio vultus tui : quoniam complacuisti in eis.

Tu es ipse Rex meus et Deus meus : qui mandas salutes Jacob.

In te inimicos nostros ventilabimus <sup>ventilavimus et in nom.</sup> cornu : et in nomine tuo spernemus insurgentes in nobis.

Non enim in arcu meo sperabo : et gladius meus non salvabit me.

Salvastis enim nos de affligentibus nos : et odientes nos confudisti.

In Deo laudabimur tota die : et in nomine tuo confitebimur in sæculum.

Nunc autem repulisti et confudisti nos : et non egredieris, Deus, in virtutibus nostris.

Avertisti nos retrorsum post ini-<sup>præ inimicis</sup> micos nostros : et qui oderunt nos diripiebant sibi.

the fourth verse as plainly to the Eucharistic thanksgiving of the Christian dispensation.

PSALM XLIV.

For periods of great trouble, such as the time when the Philistines came up with their champion against the army of Saul, or when Sennacherib against Hezekiah, or when the nation was broken to pieces by the tyranny of Antiochus Epiphanes, this Psalm was penned as a national pleading with God for His own people in their affliction ; and, so prophesying, the writer unconsciously gave words to the future Church, which might in all ages be lifted up to God as a prayer for deliverance.

It must be understood that the tone of this Psalm is by no means one of expostulation with God, as if it were to be said to Him, Why hast Thou done this ? It is, on the contrary, a declaration of perfect trust in Him, like that uttered by Job when he

The IX. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Matt. xxiv. 9.

Isa. lii. 3.

12 Thou lettest us be eaten up like sheep : and hast scattered us among the heathen.

13 Thou sellest thy people for nought : and takest no money for them.

14 Thou makest us to be rebuked of our neighbours : to be laughed to scorn, and had in derision of them that are round about us.

Job xvii. 6.

15 Thou makest us to be a by-word among the heathen : and that the people shake their heads at us.

16 My confusion is daily before me : and the shame of my face hath covered me ;

Isa. xxxvi. 15. 20.

17 For the voice of the slanderer and blasphemer : for the enemy and avenger.

2 Cor. iv. 16.

18 And though all this be come upon us, yet do we not forget thee : nor behave ourselves frowardly in thy covenant.

19 Our heart is not turned back : neither our steps gone out of thy way ;

20 No, not when thou hast smitten us into the place of dragons : and covered us with the shadow of death.

21 If we have forgotten the Name of our God, and holden up our hands to any strange god : shall not God search it out ? for he knoweth the very secrets of the heart.

Rom. viii. 36.
Rev. xii. 11.

22 For thy sake also are we killed all the day long : and are counted as sheep appointed to be slain.

Isa. xxxviii. 17—20.

23 Up, Lord, why sleepest thou : awake, and be not absent from us for ever.

24 Wherefore hidest thou thy face : and forgettest our misery and trouble ?

Rev. vi. 9.

25 For our soul is brought low, even unto the dust : our belly cleaveth unto the ground.

Rev. vi. 10.
Litany.

26 Arise, and help us : and deliver us for thy mercy's sake.

<sup>1</sup> Dedisti nos tanquam oves escarum : et in gentibus dispersisti nos.

Vendidisti populum tuum sine pretio : et non fuit multitudo in commutationibus eorum.

Posuisti nos opprobrium vicinis nostris : subsannationem et derisum his qui in circuitu nostro sunt. derisus et contemptu

Posuisti nos in similitudinem Gentibus : commotionem capitis in populis. in plebibus

Tota die verecundia mea contra me est : et confusio faciei meæ cooperuit me. vultus mei operuit

A voce exprobantis et obloquentis : a facie inimici et persequentis.

Hæc omnia venerunt super nos, nec obliti sumus te : et inique non egimus in testamento tuo.

Et non recessit retro cor nostrum : et declinasti semitas nostras a via tua.

Quoniam humiliasti nos in loco afflictionis : et cooperuit nos umbra mortis. operuit

Si obliti sumus nomen Dei nostri : et si expandimus manus nostras ad deum alienum.

Nonne Deus requirit ista ? ipse enim novit abscondita cordis. occulta

Quoniam propter te mortificamur tota die : æstimati sumus sicut oves occisionis. morle afficimur

Exsurge, quare obdormis Domine ? exsurge, et ne repellas in finem. usque in fin.

Quare faciem tuam avertis : oblivisceris inopiæ nostræ et tribulationis nostræ ?

Quoniam humiliata est in pulvere anima nostra : conglutinator est in terra venter noster. adhesit in

Exsurge Domine, adjuva nos : et redime nos propter nomen tuum. et libera said, "Though He slay me, yet will I trust in Him." Thus, taken in its true sense, it may recall to mind our Lord's words respecting the time when the last troubles would come upon Jerusalem ; and those still greater troubles, of which these were a type, upon the City of God in the end of the world : "In your patience possess ye your souls."

Thus the tone of the Psalm is, "The Lord has brought all this woe upon us ; yet though He suffer much more than this to come upon us, our steps shall not go out of His way : we will trust still in His mercy, and call on Him to show it in His good time." And the actual experience of such persecution in the early Church, drew out from St. Paul an application of this tone when he wrote, "Who shall separate us from the love of Christ ? shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword ? As it is written, For Thy sake we are killed all the day long ; we are accounted as sheep for the

THE XLV PSALM.

Eructavit cor meum.

The IX. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

Christmas Mat-
tins.
Heb. i. 8, 9.
Rev. xix. 11—16.

MY heart is inditing of a good matter : I speak of the things which I have made unto the King.

2 My tongue is the pen : of a ready writer.

3 Thou art fairer than the children of men : full of grace are thy lips, because God hath blessed thee for ever.

Cf. Luke i. 28, in the Greek.

Rev. xix. 11—16.
Isa. ix. 6.

4 Gird thee with thy sword upon thy thigh, O thou most Mighty : according to thy worship and renown.

Heb. iv. 12.
Rev. i. 16, ii. 12.

5 Good luck have thou with thine honour : ride on, because of the word of truth, of meekness, and righteousness; and thy right hand shall teach thee terrible things.

6 Thy arrows are very sharp, and the people shall be subdued unto thee : even in the midst among the King's enemies.

Heb. i. 8.

7 Thy seat, O God, endureth for ever : the sceptre of thy kingdom is a right sceptre.

Heb. i. 9.
John iii. 34.
Luke iv. 16, 19.
Isa. lxi. 1, 2.

8 Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated iniquity : wherefore God, even thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows.

John xix. 39.
Luke xxiii. 56.
xxiv. 1.
Isa. lxiii. 1, 2.

9 All thy garments smell of myrrh, aloes, and cassia : out of the ivory palaces, whereby they have made thee glad.

PSALMUS XLIV.

ERUCAVIT cor meum verbum bonum : dico ego opera mea Regi.

Tuesd. Matt'ns.
Christmas,
App. and Ev'g.,
Name of Jesus,
1st Noct.
Circumc. and
B. V. M.,
Virg. & Ma'r.
2nd Noct.
All Saints,
3rd Noct.

Lingua mea calamus scribæ : velociter scribentis.

Speciosus forma præ filiis hominum ; diffusa est gratia in labiis tuis : propterea benedixit te Deus in æternum.

Accingere gladio tuo super femur tuum : potentissime,

Specie tua et pulchritudine tua : Spect'm tuam et pulchritudinem tuam

Propter veritatem, et mansuetudinem, et justitiam : et deducet te mirabiliter dextera tua.

Sagittæ tuæ acutæ ; populi sub te cadent : in corda inimicorum regis. potentissimæ populi in corda

Sedes tua, Deus, in sæculum sæculi : 'O Æonice arov [I XX]. v. recta est virga regis.

Dilexisti justitiam et odisti iniquitatem : propterea unxit te Deus, Deus tuus, oleo lætitiæ præ consortibus tuis.

Myrrha, et gutta, et cassia a vestimentis tuis, a domibus eburneis : a gradibus eb. ex quibus delectaverunt te filiæ regum in honore tuo.

slaughter. Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors, through Him that loved us. For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." [Rom. viii. 35—39.]

PSALM XLV.

For whatever occasion this grand triumphal hymn was composed, the typical application of it is cast into the shade by its fulfilment in Christ : concerning whom, the good WORD of God, it is wholly indited ; and to the glory of whose Person and work the praise of the faithful heart flows freely, as from the pen of a scribe swiftly writing.

The use of the Psalm on Christmas Day gives the key to its interpretation as a song of joy and praise respecting the Incarnation : and teaches us to draw out that interpretation even in detail. Thus we sing to Him, "Thou art fairer than the children of men" in respect of the Beauty of the King in His human nature, which was certainly the perfection of moral purity, and probably of external grace<sup>1</sup>. For although He was "made sin for us," yet He "knew no sin," but was spotless altogether in nature, will, and deed ; and although His visage was marred more than any man's, by the persecution and suffering He underwent, yet it could not but be that it was fairer than any other countenance in its original and unmarred state. Thus, too, we sing to Him, "Full of grace are Thy lips," remembering how it was said of Him, "Never man spake like this Man" [John vii. 46], and how "all bare Him witness, and wondered at the gracious words which proceeded out of His mouth." [Luke iv. 22.]

The fourth verse refers to the ceremony by which coronation was completed, the girding on of the sword. So when the fullness of the time was come, the WORD of God rides forth conquering and to conquer, girding on His Human Nature,—His Vesture dipped in blood,—on which, and on His thigh, is written <sup>1</sup> No one can fail to observe the exceptional character of the traditional portrait of Christ with which religious art is pervaded. This is found as the Good Shepherd in the Catacombs, and in many other very ancient forms : and there is probably truth in the representations that there were several contemporary portraits of our Lord taken, with and without miraculous agency, during His earthly life. This traditional countenance of Christ is not Jewish, but a Catholic eclecticism of human beauty.

The IX. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

10 Kings' daughters were among thy honourable women : upon thy right hand did stand the queen in a vesture of gold, wrought about with divers colours.

Isa. lx. 1.

11 Hearken, O daughter, and consider, incline thine ear : forget also thine own people, and thy father's house.

John iii. 29.

12 So shall the King have pleasure in thy beauty : for he is thy Lord God, and worship thou him.

13 And the daughter of Tyre shall be there with a gift : like as the rich also among the people shall make their supplication before thee.

Ezek. xvi. 8—14.
Rev. xii. 1.

14 The King's daughter is all glorious within : her clothing is of wrought gold.

Rev. xxi. 2.
Isa. lx. 13.
Rev. xiv. 1—4.

15 She shall be brought unto the King in raiment of needlework : the virgins that be her fellows shall bear her company, and shall be brought unto thee.

Rev. xix. 7.

16 With joy and gladness shall they be brought : and shall enter into the King's palace.

17 Instead of thy fathers thou shalt have children : whom thou mayest make princes in all lands.

Isa. lx. 20.

18 I will remember thy Name from one generation to another : therefore shall the people give thanks unto thee, world without end.

Astitit Regina a dextris tuis in vestitu deaurato : circumdata varietate. circumamicta

Audi, filia, et vide, et inclina aurem tuam : et obliviscere populum tuum, et domum patris tui.

Et concupiscet Rex decorem tuum : Quoniam concupit Rex speciem tuam quia quoniam ipse est Dominus Deus tuus, et adorabunt eum.

Et filiæ Tyri in muneribus : vultum tuum deprecabuntur omnes divites plebis.

Omnis gloria ejus filiæ Regis ab filiæ regum intus, in fimbriis aureis : circumamicta varietatibus.

Adducentur Regi virgines post eam : proximæ ejus afferentur tibi.

Afferentur in lætitia et exultatione : (Afferentur) in læt. adducentur in templum Regis.

Pro patribus tuis nati sunt tibi filii : constitues eos principes super omnem terram.

Memores erunt nominis tui Domine : in omni generatione et generationem. et progenie

Propterea populi confitebuntur tibi in æternum : et in sæculum sæculi.

the glorious Name which is the Christian fulness of the prophetic "Most Mighty,"—"King of kings and Lord of lords." [Rev. xix. 16.] The effects of the Incarnation are signified by the "terrible" or "wonderful" things achieved by the right hand of the Incarnate Word. Such marvellous works have already been effected as the overthrow of Paganism, the establishment of a sound morality, the first spread and the enduring perpetuity of the Christian Church: such terrible things are yet in store as the second Advent of the Word, the overthrow of Antichrist, the general Resurrection, the last Judgment, and the subjugation of all things to the universal Sovereignty of Christ.

This universal dominion of Christ is further referred to in the seventh verse, which is used in Heb. i. 8, 9, as evidence of the Divine Nature of our Lord: the use of the word "throne" instead of "seat" making the meaning more plain there than in the English version of the Psalm. Such a dominion is prepared for Christ in this dispensation, in the Day of Judgment, and in the perfected Church in glory; a dominion of a right, erect, straight, or righteous sceptre, ever guiding to the justice and truth of God, and ever opposed to the lawless iniquity of the Evil One.

In the eighth verse the reward of Christ's love in becoming Man is proclaimed, the anointing of His Human Nature with the Holy Ghost given to Him without measure that He might have unlimited power to work out the work of salvation. This mention of the Anointing of Christ is especially connected with His Human Nature by the mention of "myrrh, aloes, and cassia," which carry the mind to the offerings of the wise men, and to the spices with which the holy body of Jesus was embalmed at His burial<sup>1</sup>. This seems the connecting link between the former and the latter verses of the Psalm, the former setting forth the royalty of the Bridegroom, our Lord Jesus Christ; the latter declaring the royalty of the Bride, His Church.

St. John the Baptist was the first to mention the Bride in New Testament times when he said, "He that hath the Bride is the Bridegroom." [John iii. 29.] Similar phraseology appears in our Lord's earliest words [Mark ii. 19; Luke v. 34], and in several of His parables, where He represents the kingdom of Heaven under the figure of marriage. St. Paul speaks of his <sup>1</sup> It is observable that the anointing oil of the Mosaic dispensation [Exod. xxx. 23] was made of "principal spices" and olive oil. The "principal spices" named are myrrh, sweet cinnamon, sweet calamus, and cassia, the myrrh and cassia being each to weigh as much as both the others put together. This oil was used for anointing the Tabernacle, the vessels, and the priests, including Aaron.

Among the plants of the "garden enclosed" [Song of Solomon iv. 12], the "spring shut up," the "fountain sealed," are spikenard, calamus, cinnamon, frankincense, myrrh, and aloes, with "all the chief spices." Myrrh, aloes, and cinnamon (which is nearly identical with cassia) are also named together in Proverbs vii. 17.

THE XLVI PSALM.

Deus noster refugium.

The IX. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

GOD is our hope and strength :
a very present help in trouble.

Gen. vii. 11.
viii. 1.

2 Therefore will we not fear, though the earth be moved : and though the hills be carried into the midst of the sea.

3 Though the waters thereof rage and swell : and though the mountains shake at the tempest of the same.

Isa. lxvi. 12.
Rev. xxii. 1.
Ezek. xlviii. 7. 12.
Joel iii. 18.

4 The rivers of the flood thereof shall make glad the city of God : the holy place of the tabernacle of the most Highest.

Matt. xviii. 20.
xxviii. 20.

5 God is in the midst of her, therefore shall she not be removed : God shall help her, and that right early.

6 The heathen make much ado, and the kingdoms are moved : but God hath shewed his voice, and the earth shall melt away.

Isaiah vii. 14.

Matt. i. 23.

7 The Lord of hosts is with us :
the God of Jacob is our refuge.

8 O come hither, and behold the works of the Lord : what destruction he hath brought upon the earth.

PSALMUS XLV.

DEUS noster refugium et virtus : adjutor in tribulationibus quæ
invenerunt nos nimis.

Tuesd. Mattins.
Epiphany.
3rd Noct.
Transfiguration,
Dedic. Church,
1st Noct.
Trinity,
H. V. M.
Virg. & Matr.
2nd Noct.

Propterea non timebimus dum tur-babitur terra : et transferentur montes in cor maris.

Sonuerunt et turbatæ sunt aquæ aquæ ejus eorum : conturbati sunt montes in for-titudine ejus.

Fluminis impetus lætificat civitatem
Dei : sanctificavit tabernaculum suum Altissimus.

Deus in medio ejus ; non commo-vebitur : adjuvabit eam Deus mane diluculo.

adjuvavit eam
Deus vultu suo

Conturbatæ sunt Gentes, et incli-nata sunt regna : dedit vocem suam, Altissimus et mota mota est terra.

Dominus virtutum nobiscum : sus-ceptor noster Deus Jacob.

Venite et videte opera Domini :
quæ posuit prodigia super terram.

earnest desire to present the Church as "a chaste virgin" to Christ [2 Cor. xi. 2], and likens the union between it and Christ to the union of husband and wife. [Eph. v. 23—32.] But, above all, the tone of this Psalm is taken up in the latter chapters of the Revelation, "Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honour to Him : for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and His wife hath made herself ready." [Rev. xix. 7.] "And I John saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God, out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband." [Ibid. xxi. 2.] "And there came unto me one of the seven angels . . . saying, Come hither, I will show thee the bride, the Lamb's wife. And he carried me away in the Spirit to a great and high mountain, and showed me that great city, the holy Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God." [Ibid. 9.]

And as the King, the Incarnate Word, is fairer than the children of men in natural beauty of body and soul, so the Queen on His right hand is also represented as being adorned with all that can make fit to stand before Him, as well as being "all glorious within." Though the Church is "clothed with the sun" [Rev. xii. 1] in a spiritual sense, yet in a literal sense also she is to have all that external splendour which is typified by clothing of wrought gold and raiment of needlework ; a vesture of gold, wrought about with divers colours, reflecting the glory of the Bridegroom's "vesture dipped in blood."

In this Psalm, therefore, the Church ever offers a hymn of thanksgiving to Christ for that Betrothal of Himself to His Mystical Body which will be perfected by the final assumption of the Bride to His right hand in Heaven. Girt with the sword of His Human Nature, and clad with transfigured garments which are still perfumed with the myrrh, aloes, and cassia of His atoning work, the King of Glory stands prepared to receive to His side the Church which He has espoused ; that as a Queen she may enter into His palace, as a Queen be crowned with a never-fading beauty, and as a Queen reign with Him, "having the glory of God." [Rev. xxi. 11.]

PSALM XLVI.

As the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdom of the Lord and of His Christ, so the waters which rage and swell and shake the earth to its foundations, shall be subdued at the Divine command, "Be still," and become the river which makes glad the City of God. "There shall be no more sea," to trouble the Church [Rev. xxi. 1] ; but there shall be "a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and the Lamb" [Ibid. xxii. 1], and "every thing shall live whither the river cometh." [Ezek. xlvii. 8.]

Such is the mystical strain which this Psalm carries up to the praise of God. The ordinary antagonism of the world may embarrass the Church, or active persecution trouble it, but the Spirit of God moves upon the face of the waters to bring life out of death ; God will remember Noah, to make that by which He brings destruction upon the earth, be also the salvation of His Church. Christ, though asleep, is yet in the ship of the Apostles, ready to rebuke the winds and the waves, and to say, "Peace, be still."

Grant, O Lord, we beseech Thee, that the course of this world may be so peaceably ordered by Thy governance, that Thy Church may joyfully serve Thee in all godly quietness, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

<sup>1</sup> There is an accidental coincidence of a very striking character between this Christmas Mattins Psalm and the first lesson on Christmas Eve, which is Isaiah lx. See also p. 76.

The IX. Day.
Morning Prayer.
Isa. ii. 4.
Micah iv. 3.

9 He maketh wars to cease in all the world : he breaketh the bow, and knappeth the spear in sunder, and burneth the chariots in the fire.

Mark iv. 39.

10 Be still then, and know that I am God : I will be exalted among the heathen, and I will be exalted in the earth.

11 The Lord of hosts is with us : the God of Jacob is our refuge.

THE XLVII PSALM.

Omnes gentes, plaudite.

Evening Prayer.
Ascens. Even-song.

O CLAP your hands together, all ye people : O sing unto God with the voice of melody.

Isa. xl. 5.
Luke ii. 32.

2 For the Lord is high, and to be feared : he is the great King upon all the earth.

3 He shall subdue the people under us : and the nations under our feet.

1 Pet. i. 4.

4 He shall choose out an heritage for us : even the worship of Jacob, whom he loved.

Luke xxiv. 51, 52.
Eph. iv. 8.

5 God is gone up with a merry noise : and the Lord with the sound of the trump.

6 O sing praises, sing praises unto our God : O sing praises, sing praises unto our King.

Rev. iv. 9.

7 For God is the King of all the earth : sing ye praises with understanding.

8 God reigneth over the heathen : God sitteth upon his holy seat.

Rev. xi. 15.
Eph. ii. 14—22.
Gen. xv. 1.

9 The princes of the people are joined unto the people of the God of Abraham : for God, which is very high exalted, doth defend the earth, as it were with a shield.

THE XLVIII PSALM.

Magnus Dominus.

Whitsunday Mattins.

GREAT is the Lord, and highly to be praised : in the city of our God, even upon his holy hill.

Auferens bella usque ad finem terræ : arcum conteret, et confringet arma ; et scuta comburet igni.

Vacate, et videte quoniam ego sum Deus : exaltabor in Gentibus, et exaltabor in terra.

Dominus virtutum nobiscum :ceptor noster Deus Jacob.

PSALMUS XLVI.

OMNES Gentes plaudite manibus : jubilatè Deo in voce exultationis.

Quoniam Dominus excelsus terribilis : Rex magnus super omnem terram.

Subjecit populos nobis : et gentes sub pedibus nostris.

Elegit nobis hæreditatem suam : speciem Jacob quam dilexit.

Ascendit Deus in júbilo : et Dominus in voce tubæ. jubilatiōe

Psallite Deo nostro, psallite : psallite Regi nostro, psallite.

Quoniam Rex omnis terræ Deus : psallite sapienter.

Regnabit Deus super Gentes : Deus sedet super sedem sanctam suam. Dominus super omnes

Principes populorum congregati sunt cum Deo Abraham : quoniam dii fortes terræ vehementer elevati sunt. p'puli congregaverunt nimium

PSALMUS XLVII.

MAGNUS Dominus, et laudabilis nimis : in civitate Dei nostri, in monte sancto ejus.

Tuesd. Whitsuntide, Mattins, Name of Jesus, 1st Noct. Christmas, Circumc., Trin. Sund., Dedic. Church, Transfiguration, 2nd Noct.

PSALM XLVII.

This is a hymn of triumph, not for any temporal victory of Christ's Church, but for that glorious work of peace, by which the fold of the Good Shepherd is being extended that it may embrace all races of mankind. As holy Simeon saw that the Sun of Righteousness had arisen to be a Light to lighten the Gentiles, as well as God's ancient people Israel, so the prophet had been inspired to tell of the then distant age of the Messiah, that "God reigneth over the heathen," and, that "the princes of the people," beyond the bounds of the chosen race, are joined unto the people of the God of Abraham.

The selection of this Psalm for Ascension Day is connected partly with the ordinary interpretation of the fifth verse, but not less with the general tone of victory which pervades the whole, and which is so suitable to the leading of captivity captive by Christ when He ascended up on high, to reign over the people whom He had bought with a price, and to place His Human Nature on the holy throne of Divine majesty and power.

It is a song of trust also in Christ, in which the Church declares

The IX. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Matt. v. 35.

2 The hill of Sion is a fair place, and the joy of the whole earth : upon the north-side lieth the city of the great King ; God is well known in her palaces as a sure refuge.

Rev. xi. 2.
xviii. 2.

3 For lo, the kings of the earth :
are gathered and gone by together.

Isa. ii. 11.

4 They marvelled to see such things : they were astonished, and suddenly cast down.

Rev. xviii. 10, 15.

5 Fear came there upon them, and sorrow : as upon a woman in her travail.

Isa. ii. 16.
Rev. xviii. 17.

6 Thou shalt break the ships of the sea : through the east-wind.

7 Like as we have heard, so have we seen in the city of the Lord of hosts, in the city of our God : God upholdeth the same for ever.

Acts ii. 1.

8 We wait for thy loving-kindness,
O God : in the midst of thy temple.

9 O God, according to thy Name, so is thy praise unto the world's end :
thy right hand is full of righteousness.

10 Let the mount Sion rejoice, and the daughter of Judah be glad : because of thy judgements.

Rev. xxi. 10—27.

11 Walk about Sion, and go round about her : and tell the towers thereof.

Ezek. xl. 4.

12 Mark well her bulwarks, set up her houses : that ye may tell them that come after.

13 For this God is our God for ever and ever : he shall be our guide unto death.

THE XLIX PSALM.

Audite hæc, omnes.

O HEAR ye this, all ye people : ponder it with your ears, all ye that dwell in the world ;

Fundatur exultatione universæ terræ Dilatans exulta- mons Sion : latera aquilonis, civitas tionis Regis magni.

Deus in domibus ejus cognoscetur : in gradibus ejus cum suscipiet eam. diagnosticur

Quoniam ecce reges terræ congregati sunt : convenerunt in unum.

Ipsi videntes sic admirati sunt, conturbati sunt, commoti sunt : tremor apprehendit eos.

Ibi dolores ut parturientis : in spiritu sicut paturientes vehementi conteres naves Tharsis.

Sicut audivimus, sic vidimus in civitate Domini virtutum, in civitate Dei nostri : Deus fundavit eam in æternum.

Suscepimus, Deus, misericordiam tuam : in medio templi tui.

Secundum Nomen tuum, Deus, sic et laus tua in fines terræ : justitia plena est dextera tua.

Lætetur mons Sion, et exsultent filiæ
Judæ : propter judicia tua, Domine.

Circundate Sion, et complectimini eam : narrate in turribus ejus.

Ponite corda vestra in virtute ejus :
et distribuite domos ejus ; ut enarretis gradus ejus
in progenie altera.

Quoniam hic est Deus, Deus noster hic est Deus noster in æternum, et in sæculum sæculi :
ipse reget nos in sæcula.

PSALMUS XLVIII.

A UDITE hæc, omnes gentes : auri- Tuesd. Mattins.
bus percipite omnes qui habita-tis orbem.

that, as the "word of the Lord came unto Abram in a vision, saying, Fear not, Abram, I am thy shield, and thy exceeding great reward," so will the same WORD, God, which is very high exalted, over defend as with a shield the inheritance which He has won for His own.

PSALM XLVIII.

Much light is thrown upon this Psalm, by comparing together the two chapters of the Revelation in which are described the fall of the mystical city Babylon, and the establishment for ever of the New Jerusalem. The eighteenth chapter expands the third and following three verses of the Psalm into a fearful description of a sudden destruction, and privation of the Light and Presence of God : "Alas, alas that great city, that was clothed in fine linen, and purple, and scarlet, and decked with gold, and precious stones, and pearls ! For in one hour so great riches is come to nought. . . . And the light of a candle shall shine no more at all in thee ; and the voice of the bridegroom and of the bride shall be heard no more at all in thee." [Rev.

xviii. 16. 23.] The Holy City, on the other hand, whose foundations were laid at Pentecost, is seen descending from God, "prepared as a bride adorned for her husband . . . and the city had no need of the sun, neither of the moon, to shine in it ; for the glory of God did lighten it, and the Lamb is the Light thereof . . .
they need no candle, neither light of the sun ; for the Lord God giveth them light." [Ibid. xxi. 2. 23 ; xxii. 5.]

The IX. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Prov. viii. 6.

2 High and low, rich and poor :
one with another.

3 My mouth shall speak of wisdom :
and my heart shall muse of understanding.

Ezek. xvii. 2.

4 I will incline mine ear to the parable : and shew my dark speech upon the harp.

Gen. iii. 15.

5 Wherefore should I fear in the days of wickedness : and when the wickedness of my heels compasseth me round about?

Mark x. 23, 24.
Dan. iv. 30.

6 There be some that put their trust in their goods : and boast themselves in the multitude of their riches.

Isa. lix. 16.

7 But no man may deliver his brother : nor make agreement unto God for him ;

8 For it cost more to redeem their souls : so that he must let that alone
for ever ;

9 Yea, though he live long : and see not the grave.

Eccles. ii. 15, 16.

10 For he seeth that wise men also die, and perish together : as well as the ignorant and foolish, and leave their riches for other.

Luke xii. 16—20.

11 And yet they think that their houses shall continue for ever : and that their dwelling-places shall endure from one generation to another ; and call the lands after their own names.

12 Nevertheless, man will not abide in honour : seeing he may be compared unto the beasts that perish ;
this is the way of them.

Luke xii. 21.

13 This is their foolishness : and their posterity praise their saying.

Quique terrigenæ, et filii hominum :
simul in unum dives et pauper.

Os meum loquetur sapientiam : et meditatio cordis mei prudentiam.

Inclinabo in parabolam aurem ad similitudinem meam : aperiam in psalterio proposi-tionem meam.

Cur timebo in die mala ? iniquitas calcanei mei circumdabit me. circumdedit

Qui confidunt in virtute sua : et in quique in abun- multitudine divitiarum suarum glori-antur, dantia . . gloria- buntur

Frater non redimit ; redimet homo : redimit homo non dabit Deo placationem suam,

Et pretium redemptionis animæ Nec pret.
suar : et laborabit in æternum, et vivet adhuc in finem.

Non videbit interitum cum viderit Quoniam non vid.
sapientes morientes : simul insipiens et stultus peribunt.

Et relinquent alienis divitias suas :
et sepulchra eorum domus illorum in æternum.

Tabernacula eorum in progenie et in generatione et progenie : vocaverunt nomina sua in terris suis. invocabunt

Et homo, cum in honore esset, non intellexit : comparatus est jumentis insipientibus, et similis factus est illis.

Hæc via illorum scandalum ipsis :
et postea in ore suo complacent. benedicent

While therefore the city of Antichrist, which says in its pride, “I shall be a lady for ever” [Isa. xlvii. 7], is a marvel to see, because of its gigantic ruin, the City of God, the Temple of the Holy Ghost, shall stand firm in all its towers and bulwarks, because God Himself upholds it, and dwells in the midst of its streets.

PSALM XLIX.

The “parable” and “dark speech” of this Psalm appear to refer to the vision of a better resurrection which upholds the faithful soul when depressed by adversity. The strain of the Psalm is, Look not at the outward prosperity of this life, as that which is most to be desired, and the loss of which is most to be lamented ; but rather look to that deliverance from eternal misery [v. 15] and that reception into the Presence of God, which will be the only true and enduring prosperity. Until Christ brought life and immortality to light by the Gospel, it was only in parables and dark sayings that they were made known to the world, and even the seventh and fifteenth verses speak of redemption and a future life of blessedness only in negative and enigmatical terms.

Such parables and enigmas have, however, received their interpretation by the word and work of Christ ; and thus an additional force is given to them as they are used in the Church. God has revealed even to babes the truths that were hidden from the wise and prudent of old, and every Christian can behold the unveiling of mysteries, which prophets and kings looked into without understanding. And thus, when we sing that no man may deliver his brother, we do it in the knowledge that One has made Himself our Brother, to redeem us by making an atonement with God for us ; and when, “But God hath delivered My soul from the place of hell ; for He shall receive Me,” we know that we are speaking of Him Who lay in darkness and the shadow of death, that He might make us the children of God, and exalt us to everlasting life. He is the Righteous Who could say, “All souls are Mine,” and could have domination over them, to lead captivity captive, in the morning of His Resurrection.

The IX. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Luke xvi. 23. 25.

14 They lie in the hell like sheep, death gnaweth upon them, and the righteous shall have domination over them in the morning : their beauty shall consume in the sepulchre out of their dwelling.

Isa. xxv. 8.

15 But God hath delivered my soul from the place of hell : for he shall receive me.

16 Be not thou afraid, though one be made rich : or if the glory of his house be increased ;

Luke xvi. 19. 23.

17 For he shall carry nothing away with him when he dieth : neither shall his pomp follow him.

Luke xvi. 25.

18 For while he lived, he counted himself an happy man : and so long as thou doest well unto thyself, men will speak good of thee.

Prov. iv. 19.

19 He shall follow the generation of his fathers : and shall never see light.

Dan. iv. 23.

20 Man being in honour hath no understanding : but is compared unto the beasts that perish.

THE L PSALM.

Deus deorum.

The X. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Mal. i. 11.

THE Lord, even the most mighty God, hath spoken : and called the world, from the rising up of the sun unto the going down thereof.

Mal. iii. 2.
Heb. xii. 22.

2 Out of Sion hath God appeared : in perfect beauty.

Heb. xii. 29.

3 Our God shall come, and shall not keep silence : there shall go before him a consuming fire, and a mighty tempest shall be stirred up round about him.

Isa. i. 2.
Rev. xx. 12.
1 Pet. iv. 17.

4 He shall call the heaven from above : and the earth, that he may judge his people.

Sicut oves in inferno positi sunt : mors depascet eos.

Et dominabuntur eorum justī in matutino : et auxilium eorum veterasceat in inferno a gloria eorum.

oblinebunt eos justi et a gloria sua expuli sunt

Veruntamen Deus redimet animam meam de manu inferi : cum acceperit me.

Ne timueris cum dives factus fuerit homo : et cum multiplicata fuerit gloria domus ejus.

Quoniam cum interierit, non sumet omnia : neque descendet cum eo gloria ejus.

non cum morietur accipiet hæc omnia neque simul descendit cum eo gloria domus ejus

Quia anima ejus in vita ipsius benedicetur : confitebitur tibi cum benefeceris ei.

Introibit usque in progenies patrum suorum : et usque in æternum non videbit lumen.

Homo, cum in honore esset, non intellexit : comparatus est jumentis insipientibus, et similis factus est illis.

PSALMUS XLIX.

DEUS deorum Dominus locutus est : et vocavit terram, Tuesd. Mattins.

A solis ortu usque ad occasum : ex Sion species decoris ejus.

Deus manifeste veniet : Deus noster, et non silebit.

Ignis in conspectu ejus exardescet : et in circuitu ejus tempestas valida.

Advocavit cælum desursum : et terram, discernere populum suum.

ut discerneret

There is an obvious association of ideas between this Psalm and our Blessed Lord's parables of the rich fool, and of Dives and Lazarus. The one thought that his house should continue for ever, but while he was planning for the future heard the voice, "This night shall thy soul be required of thee," and was compared unto the beasts that perish. The other "was clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day," yet carried nothing away with him, neither did his pomp follow him; for it was in hell and in torment that he opened the eyes which had been closed by death. But though a Job or a Lazarus may be compassed about with the consequences of that sin which bruised the heel even of the Second Adam, he may say, "Wherefore should I fear?" "I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that He shall stand at the latter day upon the earth; and though worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God." And thus, while the wicked follows the generation of his fathers, and shall never see light, they that live in Christ follow the generation of the New birth, and walking in the path of light which He will show them, attain at last to the perfect Day.

PSALM L.

This Psalm proclaims the Advent of the Son of God to establish a new covenant between God and man. In the old covenant the voice of the Lord was heard from Sinai by a single nation, but in the new covenant He speaks to the whole world, and sends forth His invitation "from the rising up of the sun unto the going down thereof." But, although it declares the Advent of Christ in the "perfect beauty" of the Incarnation, it sets Him forth

The X. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Rev. xiv. 16.

Rev. xv. 3, 4.
xix. 2.
John v. 22. 27.

Rev. xxi. 3.

Isa. I. 11.

Mat. ii. 1.

Mal. iii. 7. 14.

Mal. iii. 5.

5 Gather my saints together unto me : those that have made a covenant with me with sacrifice.

6 And the heavens shall declare his righteousness : for God is Judge himself.

7 Hear, O my people, and I will speak : I my self will testify against thee, O Israel; for I am God, even thy God.

8 I will not reprove thee because of thy sacrifices, or for thy burnt-offerings : because they were not alway before me.

9 I will take no bullock out of thine house : nor he-goat out of thy folds.

10 For all the beasts of the forest are mine : and so are the cattle upon a thousand hills.

11 I know all the fowls upon the mountains : and the wild beasts of the field are in my sight.

12 If I be hungry, I will not tell thee : for the whole world is mine, and all that is therein.

13 Thinkest thou that I will eat bulls' flesh : and drink the blood of goats?

14 Offer unto God thanksgiving : and pay thy vows unto the most Highest.

15 And call upon me in the time of trouble : so will I hear thee, and thou shalt praise me.

16 But unto the ungodly said God : Why dost thou preach my laws, and takest my covenant in thy mouth;

17 Whereas thou hatest to be reformed : and hast cast my words behind thee?

18 When thou sawest a thief, thou consentedst unto him : and hast been partaker with the adulterers.

Congregate illi sanctos ejus : qui <sup>illie sanctos . . . ordinaverunt</sup> ordinant testamentum ejus super sacrificia.

Et annuntiabunt cœli justitiam ejus : quoniam Deus judex est.

Audi populus meus, et loquar; Israël, et testificabor tibi : Deus, Deus <sup>quoniam Deus tuus, ego sum.</sup>

Non in sacrificiis tuis arguam te : <sup>super sacrificia tua</sup> holocausta autem tua in conspectu meo sunt semper.

Non accipiam de domo tua vitulos : neque de gregibus tuis hircos.

Quoniam meæ sunt omnes feræ silvarum : jumenta in montibus et boves.

Cognovi omnia volatilia cœli : et pulchritudo agri mecum est. <sup>species agri</sup>

Si esuriero non dicam tibi : meus est enim orbis terræ et plenitudo ejus.

Nunquid manducabo carnes tauro-rum ? aut sanguinem hircorum potabo ?

Immola Deo sacrificium laudis : et redde Altissimo vota tua.

Et invoca me in die tribulationis : <sup>trib. tuæ ut eripiam te et magnificabis me</sup> eruam te et honorificabis me.

Peccatori autem dixit Deus, Quare tu enarras justitias meas : et assumis testamentum meum per os tuum ?

Tu vero odisti disciplinam : et projecisti sermones meos retrorsum. <sup>serm. post te</sup>

Si videbas furem, currebas cum eo : <sup>simul currebas</sup> et cum adulteris portionem tuam ponebas.

especially in that character to which our Lord referred when He said, "The Father hath committed all judgment unto the Son." And hence the Psalm is a continual witness, that, although we are come to the "Mount Sion" of mercy, and not to the mount which burned with the fire of judgment, yet the dispensation of the Son of Man is a continuous dispensation of judgment even in this life. Our righteous Judge is judging His people while the day of grace is still theirs, saying even to His saints, and those that have made a covenant with Him, with the sacrifice of the New Dispensation, "Hear, O My people, and I will speak. . . . Consider this, lest I pluck you away, and there be none to deliver you." This judgment is, therefore, as far as it relates to the present life, our Lord's merciful appeal to the consciences of His people, by which He is striving to bring them to penitence, love, and a closer walk with Him. At the same time, as His prophetic words concerning the destruction of Jerusalem had a further reference to the end of the world, so, when speaking of judging His people in this life, He refers also to that final and irrevocable judgment, from which, if He have not saved, there is none to deliver. Thus we are reminded of His words as He wept over the Holy City, "How often would I have gathered thy children together, as a hen doth gather her brood under her wings;" or

The X. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

19 Thou hast let thy mouth speak wickedness : and with thy tongue thou hast set forth deceit.

20 Thou satest, and spakest against thy brother : yea, and hast slandered thine own mother's son.

Luke xix. 22.

21 These things hast thou done, and I held my tongue, and thou thoughtest wickedly, that I am even such a one as thy self : but I will reprove thee, and set before thee the things that thou hast done.

Isa. i. 18.

22 O consider this, ye that forget God : lest I pluck you away, and there be none to deliver you.

Mal. i. 11.

23 Whoso offereth me thanks and praise, he honoureth me : and to him that ordereth his conversation right will I shew the salvation of God.

THE LI PSALM.

Miserere mei, Deus.

Ash-Wednesday,
Commination,
A penitential
Psalm.

HAVE mercy upon me, O God, after thy great goodness : according to the multitude of thy mercies do away mine offences.

Zech. xiii. 1.

2 Wash me throughly from my wickedness : and cleanse me from my sin.

3 For I acknowledge my faults : and my sin is ever before me.

Luke xv. 21.
Rom. iii. 4, 5.

4 Against thee only have I sinned, and done this evil in thy sight : that thou mightest be justified in thy saying, and clear when thou art judged.

Rom. iii. 23.
2 Pet. i. 4.

5 Behold, I was shapen in wickedness : and in sin hath my mother conceived me.

Os tuum abundavit malitia : et nequitia lingua tua concinnabat dolos.

Sedens adversus fratrem tuum loque-baris : et adversus filium matris tuæ ponebas scandalum ; hæc fecisti, et tacui.

Existimasti inique quod ero tui similis : arguam te, et statuam contra faciem tuam.

Intelligite hæc, qui obliviscimini Deum : nequando rapiat, et non sit qui eripiat.

Sacrificium laudis honorificabit me : et illic iter quo ostendam illi salutare Dei.

PSALMUS L.

MISERERE mei, Deus : secundum magnam misericordiam tuam.

Ferial Lauds.
Lauds of the de-
parted.

Et secundum multitudinem miserationum tuarum : dele iniquitatem meam.

Amplius lava me ab iniquitate mea :
et a peccato meo munda me.

ab injustitia mea et a delicto meo

Quoniam iniquitatem meam ego cognosco : et peccatum meum contra me est semper.

agnosco et delictum meum
coram me

Tibi soli peccavi, et malum coram te feci : ut justificeris in sermonibus tuis, et vincas cum judicaris.

Ecce enim in iniquitatibus conceptus sum : et in peccatis concepit me mater mea.

in delictis peperit

of His words spoken by the prophet, "Come, now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord ; Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow ; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool. If ye be willing and obedient, ye shall eat the good of the land."

The references to sacrifices which this Psalm contains, are to be taken in two senses. First, they speak of the unacceptableness of offerings made in hypocrisy, and which are not accompanied by penitence, obedience, and love ; offerings which are again repudiated by God in the penitential Psalm that follows : "To what purpose is the multitude of your sacrifices unto Me ? saith the Lord : I am full of the burnt-offerings of rams, and the fat of fed beasts ; and I delight not in the blood of bullocks, or of lambs, or of he goats. . . . Bring no more vain oblations ; incense is an abomination unto Me." [Isa. i. 11—13.] Secondly, they look prophetically to the passing away of the old dispensation, which was founded on a system of sacrifices wherein slain animals were offered, and to the coming in of the new dispensation, which is founded on the once-offered sacrifice of Christ, presented before God continually in Heaven, and re-presented on earth, in the sacrifice of the Holy Eucharist. Thus, "Offer unto God thanksgiving," and, "Whoso offereth Me thanks and praise, he honoureth Me," look to that of which the prophet Malachi spoke when, after saying, "I have no pleasure in you, saith the Lord of hosts, neither will I accept an offering at your hand," he added, "For from the rising of the sun even unto the going down of the same, My Name shall be great among the Gentiles ; and in every place incense shall be offered unto My Name, and a pure offering : for My Name shall be great among the heathen, saith the Lord of hosts." [Mal. i. 11.]

PSALM LI.

Such was the completeness of our Blessed Redeemer's identification of Himself with our nature, that even these words of deep and sorrowing penitence are His words, spoken as the Representative of all sinners. God laid upon Him the iniquities of us all, and

The X. Day.
*Morning
Prayer.*

Lev. xiv. 1-9.
Numb. xix. 11-20.
Mark xvi. 16.
John iii. 5.
xiii. 10.

Luke xv. 7, 22.

Matt. v. 8.
Jer. xxiv. 7.

Ezek. xviii. 31.
xi. 19.
xxxvi. 26.

Mattins and Evensong Ver-sicles.

6 But lo, thou requirest truth in the inward parts : and shalt make me to understand wisdom secretly.

7 Thou shalt purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean : thou shalt wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow.

8 Thou shalt make me hear of joy and gladness : that the bones which thou hast broken may rejoice.

9 Turn thy face from my sins : and put out all my misdeeds.

10 Make me a clean heart, O God : and renew a right spirit within me.

11 Cast me not away from thy presence : and take not thy holy Spirit from me.

12 O give me the comfort of thy help again : and stablish me with thy free Spirit.

13 Then shall I teach thy ways unto the wicked : and sinners shall be converted unto thee.

14 Deliver me from blood-guiltiness, O God, thou that art the God of my health : and my tongue shall sing of thy righteousness.

15 Thou shalt open my lips, O Lord : and my mouth shall shew thy praise.

16 For thou desirest no sacrifice, else would I give it thee : but thou delightest not in burnt-offerings.

17 The sacrifice of God is a troubled spirit : a broken and contrite heart, O God, shalt thou not despise.

Ecce enim veritatem dilexisti : incerta et occulta sapientiæ tuæ manifestasti mihi.

Asperges me, Domine, hyssopo, et mundabor : lavabis me, et super nivem dealbabor.

Auditui meo dabis gaudium et lætitiā : et exsultabunt ossa humiliata.

Averte faciem tuam a peccatis meis : et omnes iniquitates meas dele.

Cor mundum crea in me, Deus : et spiritum rectum innova in visceribus meis.

Ne projicias me a facie tua : et spiritum sanctum tuum ne auferas a me.

Redde mihi lætitiā salutaris tui : et spiritu principali confirma me.

Docebo iniquos vias tuas : et impii ad te convertentur.

Libera me de sanguinibus, Deus, Deus salutis meæ : et exsultabit lingua mea iustitiam tuam.

Domine, labia mea aperies : et os meum annuntiabit laudem tuam.

Quoniam si voluisses sacrificium, dedissem : utique holocaustis non delectaberis.

Sacrificium Deo spiritus contribulatus : cor contritum et humiliatum, Deus, non despicies.

non spernit

thus He speaks as One in whom all the woes of mankind, all original and all actual sin, were for the time condensed into a focus, that, by the intensity of His penitence, they might be brought within the reach of mercy and pardon. Hence, all the millions of mankind that have inherited sin from the first Adam, are brought before the all-righteous Judge in the Person and by the voice of the Second Adam, Who says for them, and not for Himself, "Have mercy upon Me," "Do away Mine offences," "Wash Me," "Cleanse Me." Have mercy upon Me, for in Me Thou dost behold not Thy sinless Son alone, but Him whom Thou hast made sin for all Thy sinful children. Do away Mine offences, for not only am I Thy Son, in Whom is no guile, but the new Head and Leader and Representative of Thine offending offspring. Wash Me, Whose Immaculate Conception left no need for baptism, and cleanse Me, Who have no defilement of My Nature, for I am made like unto My brethren in all things, that I may win purity for them. I acknowledge My faults, for theirs have I taken on Me, and My sin is ever before Me, for the burden of their sin weighs Me down from My cradle in the manger at Bethlehem to My Cross on the hill of Calvary. O be favourable and gracious unto Thy Sion, and build Thou the walls of Thy New Jerusalem, that the Eucharists of My atoning Sacrifice may ever be presented before Thee, and in that and in them all other sacrifices find their fulfilment, their completion, and their climax.

It is only in the way thus indicated that a full explanation can be given of (1) the deep and intense spirit of self-accusation ; (2) the entire confidence in the cleansing power of God ; and (3) the sense of most intimate relation between Himself and His Judge, by which the penitent's words in this Psalm are so strikingly characterized. In his degree, and that a very high degree, David was a type of our atoning Lord when he uttered this Psalm, and thus his tone of penitence so far exceeded that which ordinary sinners could thoroughly assume : but David's penitence was that of an actual sinner, who could say literally of himself individually, that he was shapen in wickedness, that his mother had conceived him with the taint of original sin, that he needed purging with hyssop from the leprosy of actual sin, and deliverance from blood-guiltiness. The personal sinlessness of the Lamb of God aggravated the pain of the burden laid upon Him,

The X. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Rev. xxi. 14, 17,
18.

18 O be favourable and gracious unto Sion : build thou the walls of Jerusalem.

19 Then shalt thou be pleased with the sacrifice of righteousness, with the burnt-offerings and oblations : then shall they offer young bullocks upon thine altar.

THE LII PSALM.

Quid gloriaris ?

2 Thess. ii. 4.
Rev. xiii. 6, 7, 13.

WHY boastest thou thy self, thou tyrant : that thou canst do mischief ;

2 Whereas the goodness of God : endureth yet daily ?

2 Thess. ii. 9.
Isa. ix. 15.

3 Thy tongue imagineth wickedness : and with lies thou cuttest like a sharp rasor.

1 Tim. iv. 2.

4 Thou hast loved unrighteousness more than goodness : and to talk of lies more than righteousness.

5 Thou hast loved to speak all words that may do hurt : O thou false tongue.

Job xix. 10.
Jude 12.
Rev. xx. 10.

6 Therefore shall God destroy thee for ever : he shall take thee, and pluck thee out of thy dwelling, and root thee out of the land of the living.

7 The righteous also shall see this, and fear : and shall laugh him to scorn.

Rev. xiii. 17.

8 Lo, this is the man that took not God for his strength : but trusted unto the multitude of his riches, and strengthened himself in his wickedness.

Benigne fac, Domine, in bona voluntate tua Sion : ut ædificentur muri Hierusalem.

Tunc acceptabis sacrificium justitiæ, oblationes et holocausta : tunc imponent super altare tuum vitulos.

PSALMUS LII.

QUID gloriaris in malitia : qui potens es in iniquitate ? Tuesd. Mattins.

Tota die injustitiam cogitavit lingua tua : sicut novacula acuta fecisti dolum.

Dilexisti malitiam super benignitatem : iniquitatem magis quam loqui æquitatem.

Dilexisti omnia verba præcipationis : lingua dolosa. in lingua

Propterea Deus destruet te in finem : evellet te, et emigrabit te de tabernaculo tuo ; et radicem tuam de terra viventium.

Videbunt justi et timebunt, et super eum ridebunt, et dicent : Ecce homo qui non posuit Deum adiutorem suum :

Sed speravit in multitudine divitarum suarum : et prævaluit in vanitate sua.

and also enabled Him to see the whole of God's hatred for sin as no actual sinner could<sup>1</sup>. And thus when He "was made sin for us," that He might make intercession for us by a vicarious penitence, the intensity of the words of penitence was in proportion to His thorough and penetrative perception of its necessity. As He was set forth to us for an example of innocence, so He is also set forth for an example of penitence ; and hence, where we should least expect it, in Him Who knew no sin, we find the perfect Pattern which the sinner is to copy when he comes before God confessing his transgressions, praying for pardon, promising amendment of life, and faithfully expecting a perfect absolution.

Part of the tenth, eleventh, and fifteenth verses of this Psalm are daily used as versicles at Mattins and Evensong. The whole Psalm was formerly used every day except Sunday.

<sup>1</sup> This explains "Against Thee only have I sinned." In the depth of His vicarious penitence, the offence against God becomes so blindingly apparent that the offence against man is for the time invisible.

PSALM LII.

The title of this Psalm connects it with the iniquitous acts of Doeg in slaying Ahimelech and a multitude of other priests and their families at the command of Saul. [1 Sam. xxii. 18, 19.] By this wicked act both Saul and Doeg constituted themselves types of Antichrist, and the words spoken against them by the Psalmist derive a part of their force from the fact that they are also a prophecy respecting the great enemy of the Lord, and of His Church. This gives the key to the strong language respecting the "lies" of the "tyrant" by which the Psalm is characterized ; for the whole rule of Antichrist will reflect the one great lie set up in his person, when "he as God sitteth in the temple of God, showing himself that he is God." [2 Thess. ii. 4.] But the "sharp razor" of Antichrist will be vanquished by the "two-edged sword" [Rev. i. 16] of truth, which proceeds out of the mouth of "the WORD of God." [Ibid. xix. 13. 2 Thess. ii. 8.]

The X. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Jer. xi. 16.

9 As for me, I am like a green olive-tree in the house of God : my trust is in the tender mercy of God for ever and ever.

10 I will always give thanks unto thee for that thou hast done : and I will hope in thy Name, for thy saints like it well.

THE LIII PSALM.

Dixit insipiens.

Evening
Prayer.
Ps. xiv. 1.
Ps. xiv. 2.

THE foolish body hath said in his heart : There is no God.

2 Corrupt are they, and become abominable in their wickedness : there is none that doeth good.

Ps. xiv. 3.

3 God looked down from heaven upon the children of men : to see if there were any that would understand, and seek after God.

Ps. xiv. 4.

4 But they are all gone out of the way, they are altogether become abominable : there is also none that doeth good, no not one.

Ps. xiv. 8.

5 Are not they without understanding that work wickedness : eating up my people as if they would eat bread ? they have not called upon God.

Ps. xiv. 9.
Piv. xxviii. 1.
Job xv. 20.

6 They were afraid where no fear was : for God hath broken the bones of him that besieged thee ; thou hast put them to confusion, because God hath despised them.

Ps. xiv. 11.
Rev. vi. 10.

7 Oh, that the salvation were given unto Israel out of Sion : Oh, that the Lord would deliver his people out of captivity.

8 Then should Jacob rejoice : and Israel should be right glad.

THE LIV PSALM.

Deus, in nomine.

Good Friday,
Mattins.

SAVE me, O God, for thy Name's sake : and avenge me in thy strength.

Ego autem, sicut oliva fructifera in domo Dei : speravi in misericordia Dei in æternum ; et in sæculum sæculi.

Confitebor tibi in sæculum, quia tibi Domine fecisti : et exspectabo Nomen tuum, quoniam bonum est in conspectu sanctorum tuorum.

PSALMUS LII.

DIXIT insipiens in corde suo : Non est Deus. Wed. Mattins.

Corrupti sunt, et abominabiles facti sunt in iniquitatibus : non est qui in voluntatibus suis bonum non est usque ad unum faciat bonum.

Deus de cælo prospexit super filios hominum : ut videat si est intelligens, aut requirens Deum.

Omnes declinaverunt, simul inutiles facti sunt : non est qui faciat bonum, non est usque ad unum.

Nonne scient omnes qui operantur iniquitatem : qui devorant plebem meam ut cibum panis ? cognoscent sicut escam

Deum non invocaverunt : illic trepidaverunt timore, ubi non fuit timor.

Quoniam Deus dissipavit ossa eorum qui hominibus placent : confusi sunt, quoniam Deus sprexit eos. dissipat ossa hominum sibi placentium ... quia

Quis dabit ex Sion salutare Israël ? cum converterit Deus captivitatem plebis suæ : exultabit Jacob, et lætabitur Israël. dum avertit

PSALMUS LIII.

DEUS, in Nomine tuo salvum me fac : et in virtute tua judica me.

Sund. and all
Festivals,
Prime. Good
Friday Mattins,
2nd Noct.
Easter Eve,
3rd Noct.
libera me

Thus also a contrast is set forth in this Psalm between the kingdom of Antichrist and the Church. The one will be rooted out of the land of the living, the other planted like a green olive-tree in the House of God. For all past mercies to her, therefore, the Church here gives thanks to God, assured that she may still hope in His Name, Who has promised that the gates of Hell shall not prevail against her.

PSALM LIII.

This Psalm is nearly identical with the fourteenth. The difference, and a very conspicuous one, is, that there is here no mention of "the Poor" and "the Righteous," after the words "They were afraid where no fear was." This omission gives the Psalm a more direct application to the persecution of the Church by Antichrist than to the opposition offered by him to our Lord personally ; and thus it may be taken as a hymn of the Church in the last days of its militant condition, when the souls under the altar will cry, "How long, O Lord, holy and true, dost Thou not judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth ?" and when Antichrist having been empowered "to make war with the saints and to overcome them," they also will cry, "Oh, that the salvation were given unto Israel out of Sion ;

The X. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Luke xxiii 14.

2 Hear my prayer, O God : and hearken unto the words of my mouth.

3 For strangers are risen up against me : and tyrants, which have not God before their eyes, seek after my soul.

John xviii. 11.
x. x. 11.

4 Behold, God is my helper : the Lord is with them that uphold my soul.

5 He shall reward evil unto mine enemies : destroy thou them in thy truth.

Luke xxii. 42.
xxiii. 46.

6 An offering of a free heart will I give thee, and praise thy Name, O
Lord : because it is so comfortable <sup>1</sup>.

Luke xxiii. 34.
Isa. liii. 11.

7 For he hath delivered me out of all my trouble : and mine eye hath seen his desire upon mine enemies.

THE LV PSALM.

Exaudi, Deus.

Lament. iii. 8.
Heb. v. 7.

HEAR my prayer, O God : and hide not thyself from my petition.

2 Take heed unto me, and hear me :
how I mourn in my prayer, and am vexed.

3 The enemy crieth so, and the ungodly cometh on so fast : for they are minded to do me some mischief, so maliciously are they set against
me.

John xli. 27.
xiii. 21.

4 My heart is disquieted within me : and the fear of death is fallen upon me.

Deus, exaudi orationem meam : auribus percipe verba oris mei.

Quoniam alieni insurrexerunt ad-versum me, et fortes quæsierunt ani- in me
mam meam : et non proposuerunt
Deum ante conspectum suum.

Ecce enim Deus adjuvat me : et Dominus susceptor est animæ meæ.

Averte mala inimicis meis : et in veritate tua disperse illos.

Voluntarie sacrificabo tibi ; et confitebor nomini tuo, Domine : quoniam bonum est.

Quoniam ex omni tribulatione eripuisti me : et super inimicos meos despexit oculus meus.

PSALMUS LIV.

EXAUDI, Deus, orationem meam : Wed. Mattins. et ne despexeris deprecationem meam ; intende mihi, et exaudi me.

Contristatus sum in exercitatione mea : et conturbatus sum a voce ini-mici, et a tribulatione peccatoris.

Quoniam declinaverunt in me ini-quitates : et in ira molesti erant mihi.

Cor meum conturbatum est in me : et formido mortis cecidit super me.

oh, that the Lord would deliver His people out of captivity." But "he that leadeth into captivity shall go into captivity; he that killeth with the sword must be killed with the sword. Here is the patience and faith of the saints." [Rev. xiii. 10.]

PSALM LIV.

The long-established custom of the Church has given us the true meaning of this Psalm by appropriating it to the commemoration of our Blessed Lord's Passion. In the words "Save me, O God," we hear the same voice as that which uttered the bitter cry which was taken from the twenty-second Psalm. In "strangers are risen up against me," we hear the prediction, ages beforehand, of the fact that Jesus would be put to death by a foreign ruler and foreign soldiers, a circumstance in the last degree, unlikely to have occurred to the uninspired mind of a Jew in David's time, but clearly foreseen and foreordained by God. In "the tyrants which have not God before their eyes," we see the unjust conduct of Pilate, who was convinced of the holy Sufferer's innocence, and yet condemned Him through fear of men. In "God is my helper" may be traced the spirit which prompted the words, "Put up thy sword into the sheath," and "Thou couldest have no power at all against Me, except it were given thee from above." In the "offering of a free heart," we see the submission expressed in the words "not My will but Thine be done," and the voluntary yielding up of His life when no man had power to take it from Him. Lastly, the "vengeance" spoken of here receives its proper interpretation by a comparison of the last words of the Psalm with our Lord's words, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." The prayer was heard, and Jesus, looking forth from His cross, "saw of the travail of His soul and was satisfied," for even His enemies were afterwards made to be at peace with Him by the power of His Intercession.

PSALM LV.

The sorrows of our Blessed Redeemer's soul are here predicted by His own inspiration, so that the prophecy becomes a history, setting forth the mental trouble which preceded His apprehension and death. This anguish culminated in the Agony of Gethsemane and the Cross, but it also pervaded all His life, and especially that period of it when His Ministry brought Him within the nearer contemplation of man's ingratitude.

<sup>1</sup> comfortable] i.e. strengthening. So the earliest English Bibles read Isa. xli. 7, "And he comfortide hym with nailes, that it shulde not be moved." And Phil. iv. 13, "I may alle thingis in him that comfortith me." The ultimate derivation of "comfort" is from "fortis."

The X. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Job iv. 14.

5 Fearfulness and trembling are come upon me : and an horrible dread hath overwhelmed me.

6 And I said, O that I had wings like a dove : for then would I flee away and be at rest.

Rev. xii. 6. 14.

7 Lo, then would I get me away far off : and remain in the wilderness.

8 I would make haste to escape : because of the stormy wind and tempest.

Gen. xi. 7.
John xix. 20.
Acts ii. 4.

9 Destroy their tongues, O Lord, and divide them : for I have spied unrighteousness and strife in the city.

10 Day and night they go about within the walls thereof : mischief also and sorrow are in the midst of it.

11 Wickedness is therein : deceit and guile go not out of their streets.

John xiii. 21. 26.

12 For it is not an open enemy that hath done me this dishonour : for then I could have borne it.

13 Neither was it mine adversary that did magnify himself against me : for then peradventure I would have hid my self from him.

Luke xxii. 47.
Mark xiv. 45.
Matt. xxvi. 50.

14 But it was even thou, my companion : my guide, and mine own familiar friend.

15 We took sweet counsel together : and walked in the house of God as friends.

Matt. xxvii. 5.

16 Let death come hastily upon them, and let them go down quick into hell : for wickedness is in their dwellings, and among them.

17 As for me, I will call upon God : and the Lord shall save me.

Timor et tremor venerunt super me : et contexerunt me tenebræ.

Et dixi, quis dabit mihi pennas sicut columbæ : et volabo, et requiescam.

Ecce elongavi fugiens : et mansi in solitudine.

Exspectabam eum qui salvum me fecit : a pusillanimitate spiritus et tempestate. faceret a pusillanimitate et temp.

Præcipita, Domine, divide linguas eorum : quoniam vidi iniquitatem et contradictionem in civitate.

Die ac nocte circundabit eam super muros ejus iniquitas ; et labor in medio ejus, et injustitia.

Et non defecit de plateis ejus : usura et dolus.

Quoniam si inimicus meus male dixisset mihi : sustinuissem utique. supporlassem

Et si is qui oderat me super me magna locutus fuisset : abscondissem me forsitan ab eo. absconderem me utique ab eo

Tu vero homo unanims : dux meus et notus meus :

Qui simul mecum dulces capiebas cibos : in domo Dei ambulavimus cum consensu. Cf. Matt. xxvi. 23.

Veniat mors super illos : et descendant in infernum viventes.

Quoniam nequitie in habitaculis eorum : in medio eorum. nequitia in hospitibus

Ego autem ad Deum clamavi : et Dominus salvavit me. exaudivit

That the holy Jesus suffered from the fear of death is a proof of His perfect oneness in nature with those whom He came to save. But He doubtless suffered more than the ordinary fear of death from the knowledge that He was to tread the winepress alone, and that of the people there was none with Him. [Isa. lxiii. 3.] As David went up the "ascent of the Mount of Olivet, and wept as he went," on the occasion when this Psalm was written, "the people that was with him" were also "weeping as they went up." [2 Sam. xv. 30.] But when the Son of David stedfastly set His face to go up to Jerusalem, "He went before them" [Mark x. 32], walking alone in such a manner as to show His purpose, to amaze them and make them afraid. So, when in the garden of Gethsemane, He first left the body of His Apostles at the gate, and then "went a little further," that He might be divided from the companionship even of the three chosen disciples ; and as if to make His loneliness more complete, they could not even at a distance watch with Him, but fell asleep.

Alone He went with those who apprehended Him, for "all forsook Him and fled ;" alone He appeared before the High Priest and Pilate, even Peter denying that he was His friend ; alone He hung upon the cross, His disciples "standing afar off." Such utter isolation in His sufferings and sorrows may have aggravated greatly the fear of death, and the horrible dread by which He was overwhelmed ; and still more would that fear be aggravated by the "storm and tempest" of the bitter and tumultuous assembly by which He was surrounded.

The twelfth and following verses contain an indication of the character of that intercourse between Christ and His Apostles, which led Him to say that He had called them friends and not servants, and that, whereas a servant knew not his master's will, they, as friends, had been admitted to take sweet counsel with Him. It was one of these whose words were smoother than oil when he said, "Master, Master, and kissed Him," and yet were as the piercing of a sword, since they were words with which he

The X. Day.
Evening
Prayer.

18 In the evening, and morning, and at noon-day will I pray, and that instantly : and he shall hear my voice.

Luke xxii. 43.

19 It is he that hath delivered my soul in peace from the battle that was against me : for there were many with me.

20 Yea, even God, that endureth for ever, shall hear me, and bring them down : for they will not turn, nor fear God.

Luke xxii. 53.

21 He laid his hands upon such as be at peace with him : and he brake his covenant.

Mark xiv. 45.
Prov. xii. 18.

22 The words of his mouth were softer than butter, having war in his heart : his words were smoother than oil, and yet be they very swords.

1 Pet. v. 7.

23 O cast thy burden upon the Lord, and he shall nourish thee : and shall not suffer the righteous to fall for ever.

24 And as for them : thou, O God, shalt bring them into the pit of destruction.

Acts i. 25.

25 The blood-thirsty and deceitful men shall not live out half their days : nevertheless, my trust shall be in thee, O Lord.

THE LVI PSALM.

Miserere mei, Deus.

The XI. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

BE merciful unto me, O God, for man goeth about to devour me : he is daily fighting and troubling me.

1 Pet. v. 8.

2 Mine enemies are daily in hand to swallow me up : for they be many that fight against me, O thou most Highest.

3 Nevertheless, though I am sometime afraid : yet put I my trust in thee.

Vespere, et mane, et meridie narabo et annuntiabo : et exaudiet vocem meam.

Redimet in pace animam meam ab his qui appropinquant mihi : quoniam inter multos erant mecum.

Exaudiet Deus, et humiliabit illos : qui est ante sæcula.

sæcula et minet in æternum

Non enim est illis commutatio, et non timuerunt Deum : extendit manum suam in retribuendo.

Contaminaverunt testamentum ejus : divisi sunt ab ira vultus ejus, et appropinquavit cor illius.

adpropinavit cor ejus

Molliti sunt sermones ejus super oleum : et ipsi sunt jacula.

Mollierunt

Jacta super Dominum curam tuam et ipse te enutriet : et non dabit in æternum fluctuationem justo.

in Dominum cogitationum tuum

Tu vero, Deus, deduces eos : in puteum interitus.

Viri sanguinum et dolosi non dimidiabunt dies suos : ego autem sperabo in te, Domine.

PSALMUS LV.

MISERERE mei, Deus, quoniam conculcavit me homo : tota die impugnans tribulavit me.

bellans

Conculcaverunt me inimici mei tota die : quoniam multi bellantes adversum me.

tota die ab altitudine diei quoniam multi qui debellant

Ab altitudine diei timebo : ego vero in te sperabo.

me timebunt : ego vero in te betrayed that Master. It was to that one that, even at the last, the meek, loving, and forgiving Jesus said, "Friend, wherefore art thou come?"

The peculiar circumstances under which St. Peter quoted the twenty-third verse, "casting all your care upon Him, for He careth for you," show that this Psalm may be taken also as the words of Christ's mystical body, speaking of the troubles which come upon her from Antichrist. The afflictions of the Church under Nero's persecution, foreshadowed those which will come upon her in the latter days, as is shown by our Lord's prophecy of both those periods. And, as the Jews led on the persecution of the Church whenever opportunity offered, so, doubtless, there will be those who ought to be loving brethren, but will prove the most bitter of foes, in the terrible persecution of Antichrist. Thus, many verses of this Psalm have a future application to the position of the Church, as well as a past application to the sorrows of Christ. And they may, in a degree, be applied to all periods of trouble which fall upon the City of God, through the constant and persistent antagonism of "the Prince of this world."

PSALM LVI.

The tone of this Psalm agrees with that of the preceding : and it as clearly refers to that life-long persecution which our Lord

The XI. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Isa. xxxi. 5.
xl. 6.

4 I will praise God, because of his word : I have put my trust in God, and will not fear what flesh can do unto me.

Luke xxiii. 2.
Matt. xxvi. 61.
xxvii. 47.

5 They daily mistake my words : all that they imagine is to do me evil.

Gen. iii. 15.

6 They hold altogether, and keep themselves close : and mark my steps, when they lay wait for my soul.

7 Shall they escape for their wickedness : thou, O God, in thy displeasure shalt cast them down.

Heb. v. 7.
Mal. iii. 16.

8 Thou tellest my flittings ; put my tears into thy bottle : are not these things noted in thy book ?

9 Whensoever I call upon thee, then shall mine enemies be put to flight : this I know ; for God is on my side.

10 In God's word will I rejoice : in the Lord's word will I comfort me.

11 Yea, in God have I put my trust : I will not be afraid what man can do unto me.

12 Unto thee, O God, will I pay my vows : unto thee will I give thanks.

13 For thou hast delivered my soul from death, and my feet from falling : that I may walk before God in the light of the living.

THE LVII PSALM.

Miserere mei, Deus.

Easter Day,
Mattins.
Ps. xvii. 8.

BE merciful unto me, O God, be merciful unto me, for my soul trusteth in thee : and under the shadow of thy wings shall be my refuge, until this tyranny be over-past.

In Deo laudabo sermones meos ; in Deo speravi : non timebo quid faciat mihi caro.

meos tota die ... sperabo
mihi homo

Tota die verba mea execrabantur : adversum me omnes cogitationes eorum in malum.

omnia consilia

Inhabitabunt et abscondent : ipsi calcaneum meum observabunt.

Sicut sustinuerunt animam meam, pro nihilo salvos facies illos : in ira populos confringes.

expectavit anima mea

Deus, vitam meam annuntiavi tibi : posuisti lachrymas meas in conspectu tuo.

Sicut et in promissione tua : tunc convertentur inimici mei retrorsum.

In quacunque die invocavero te : ecce cognovi quoniam Deus meus es.

agnovi

In Deo laudabo verbum, in Domino laudabo sermonem : in Deo speravi, non timebo quid faciat mihi homo.

sperabo

In me sunt, Deus, vota tua : quæ reddam, laudationes tibi.

vota quæ reddam laudationis

Quoniam eripuisti animam meam de morte, et pedes meos de lapsu : ut placeam coram Deo in lumine viventium.

oculus meus a lacrimis pedes

PSALMUS LVI.

MISERERE mei, Deus, miserere mei : quoniam in te confidit anima mea.

Wed. Mattins.

Et in umbra alarum tuarum sperabo : donec transeat iniquitatis.

underwent from those who lay wait for Him, who endeavoured to entangle Him in His talk, and who daily mistook His words, by imputing to Him treason against God and man. But although man was thus imagining evil against Christ, all His life was laid open before the Righteous Judge, His sorrows were noted in God's Book of remembrance, and "when He had offered up prayers and supplications, with strong crying and tears, unto Him that was able to save Him from death, He was heard in that He feared."

There is also to be found in this Psalm a direct and particular reference to the Passion of our Lord. "Man" going about to devour Him represents in one sense concrete human nature, the sins of which were the cause of all Christ's trouble ; but, in another sense, the Adversary who is ever going about seeking whom he may devour, and of whom our Lord sometimes spoke parabolically under the figure of a human Enemy. The "daily" of verses 1 and 2, should be understood as "all the day long," and the "swallowing up" of the same verses bears also the sense of pressing down as of grapes into a wine-vat. Thus we have given to us a key to the interpretation of the Psalm as spoken of that day when our Redeemer's Body and Soul were afflicted so sorely by the sins of mankind, and bruised in the winepress of the wrath of God, that the life-giving blood might flow forth as an offering of Atonement and a fountain of health : of that day when fear bore Him down from the sixth hour to the ninth—"from the height of the day"—during the time of darkness ; when they mistook even His last cry of anguish for a cry after human succour ; when some marked His steps by sitting down and watching Him in a spirit of mere cruel curiosity, and others lay wait for His soul by saying, "Let be, let us see whether Elias will come to save Him."

So solemn a meaning of this Psalm will warn against its too close application to the troubles of our ordinary life. The member of Christ is, indeed, surrounded by spiritual enemies, the Evil

The XI. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

2 I will call unto the most high God : even unto the God that shall perform the cause which I have in hand.

3 He shall send from heaven : and save me from the reproof of him that would eat me up.

2 Tim. iv. 17.

4 God shall send forth his mercy and truth : my soul is among lions.

5 And I lie even among the children of men, that are set on fire : whose teeth are spears and arrows, and their tongue a sharp sword.

6 Set up thyself, O God, above the heavens : and thy glory above all the earth.

John xi. 48.
xviii. 39.
xix. 15.

7 They have laid a net for my feet, and pressed down my soul : they have digged a pit before me, and are fallen into the midst of it themselves.

Ps. cviii. 1.

8 My heart is fixed, O God, my heart is fixed : I will sing, and give praise.

Ps. cviii. 2.

9 Awake up, my glory ; awake, lute and harp : I my self will awake right early.

Ps. cviii. 3.

10 I will give thanks unto thee, O Lord, among the people : and I will sing unto thee among the nations.

Ps. cviii. 4.

11 For the greatness of thy mercy reacheth unto the heavens : and thy truth unto the clouds.

Ps. cviii. 5.

12 Set up thyself, O God, above the heavens : and thy glory above all the earth.

Clamabo ad Deum altissimum :
Deum qui benefecit mihi.

Misit de cœlo, et liberavit me : dedit in opprobrium conculcantes me.

Misit Deus misericordiam suam et veritatem suam : et eripuit animam meam de medio catulorum leonum ; dormivi conturbatus.

Filii hominum dentes eorum arma et sagittæ : et lingua eorum gladius machæra acuta acutus.

Exaltare super cœlos, Deus : et in omnem terram gloria tua.

Laqueum paraverunt pedibus meis : et incurvaverunt animam meam.

Foderunt ante faciem meam foveam : et inciderunt in eam.

ipsi inciderunt

Paratum cor meum, Deus, paratum cor meum : cantabo et psalmum dicam Domino.

Exsurge gloria mea, exsurge psalterium et cithara : exurgam diluculo.

Confitebor tibi in populis, Domine : et psalmum dicam tibi in gentibus :

Quoniam magnificata est usque ad cœlos misericordia tua : et usque ad nubes veritas tua.

Exaltare super cœlos, Deus : et super omnem terram gloria tua.

One and all his evil instruments, and against these the prayerful words of the Psalm may legitimately be used. But words that were primarily spoken as a prophecy relating to the persecution of Christ are infinitely too solemn to be referred to the human foes, however evil, of any other human person, however saintly.

Of the Church as a body, the whole Psalm may, however, be used without such hesitation, seeing that all foes of Christ are also enemies of His Church, and that they who persecute the Church are re-opening the wounds of the Crucified Jesus Himself. [Acts ix. 5.]

PSALM LVII.

The Easter character of this Psalm is evident in the sixth and the last five verses, the latter of which are identical with the first five verses of the 108th Psalm.

It was written by David when in the Cave of Adullam, to which there is supposed to be some reference in the appeal of the first verse to a refuge under the shadow of God's wings, and in the expression "my soul is among lions," in the fourth verse. These early verses are not less applicable to the Son of David, however, than the latter ones, describing as they do the bitter tyranny with which He was persecuted, condemned, and tormented by those who "digged a pit before Him," and afterwards fell into the destruction which they had prepared for Him and His.

And as of David in the Cave of Adullam, and among lions in the surrounding wilderness ; as of Christ on the Cross and in the cave wherein He was buried ; so does the Psalm sing of His mystical Body taking refuge in "dens and caves of the earth," cast to the lions in the amphitheatre, smitten and slain with a tyranny to which the world never saw a parallel : and yet ever saying, "Under the shadow of Thy wings shall be my refuge, until the day-dawn come, and I awake right early."

The prophetic reference to Christ as God in the sixth and twelfth verses is strikingly plain. It is the voice of the Church calling upon Him to crown His Passion with His Resurrection, and answering His words, "I Myself will awake right early," with the chorus, "Set up Thyself, O God, above the heavens ;" "Awake up, My glory," with "Set up Thy glory above all the earth."

And as the Church has part with Christ in His sufferings, so

THE LVIII PSALM.

Si vere utique.

The XI. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

ARE your minds set upon righteousness, O ye congregation : and do ye judge the thing that is right, O ye sons of men ?

2 Yea, ye imagine mischief in your heart upon the earth : and your hands deal with wickedness.

Isa. xlviii. 8.

3 The ungodly are froward, even from their mother's womb : as soon as they are born, they go astray, and speak lies.

Rom. iii. 13.
Matt. iii. 7.
xii. 34.
Acts vii. 57.

4 They are as venomous as the poison of a serpent : even like the deaf adder that stoppeth her ears ;

Jer. viii. 17.

5 Which refuseth to hear the voice of the charmer : charm he never so wisely.

6 Break their teeth, O God, in their mouths, smite the jaw-bones of the lions, O Lord : let them fall away like water that runneth apace, and when they shoot their arrows, let them be rooted out.

Ecc. vi. 3.
Job iii. 16.

7 Let them consume away like a snail, and be like the untimely fruit of a woman : and let them not see the sun.

8 Or ever your pots be made hot with thorns : so let indignation vex him, even as a thing that is raw.

Rev. xi. 17, 18.
xii. 12.

9 The righteous shall rejoice when he seeth the vengeance : he shall wash his footsteps in the blood of the ungodly.

10 So that a man shall say, Verily there is a reward for the righteous : doubtless there is a God that judgeth the earth.

PSALMUS LVII.

SI vere utique iustitiam loquimini : Wed. Morning.
recta iudicate filii hominum. iusta

Etenim in corde iniquitates operamini in terra : injustitias enim manus vestrae concinnant.

Alienati sunt peccatores a vulva ; erraverunt ab utero : locuti sunt falsa.

Furor illis secundum similitudinem Ira serpentis : sicut aspidis surdae et obdurantis aures suas.

Quae non exaudiet vocem incantantium : et venefici incantantis sapienter. quae incantantur a sapiente

Deus conteret dentes eorum in ore ipsorum : molas leonum confringet Dominus.

Ad nihilum devenient tanquam aqua decurrens : intendit arcum suum donec infirmetur.

Sicut cera quae fluit, auferentur : liquefacta supercecidit ignis, et non viderunt solem.

Priusquam intelligerent spinæ vestrae rhamnum : sicut viventes, sic in ira absorbet eos.

Lætabitur justus cum viderit vindictam : manus suas lavabit in sanguine peccatoris. vindictam impiorum

Et dicet homo, Si utique est fructus iusto : utique est Deus iudicans eos in terra.

also in the joy and triumph of His resurrection. While therefore the Head sings, "Awake up, My glory . . . I Myself will awake right early," the prophetic echo is heard, "Thy dead men shall live, together with My dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust : for Thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead." [Isa. xxvi. 19.]

PSALM LVIII.

David was not at any time brought before a "congregation," or assembly of judges, nor was his conduct ever debated in a judicial sense by those who gave counsel to Saul or Absalom. Our Lord was, however, brought before the Sanhedrim, the supreme assembly of judicature among the Jews, and the Psalm has a literal meaning in respect to Him which it has not in respect to David. To the unjust judgment of those who condemned Christ, and to the Jewish nation as represented by them, this Psalm must be considered to apply ; and as, in the preceding one, the cruel severity of His foes is spoken of, so here is their cruel injustice. The comparison of these unjust judges to poisonous serpents meets with a parallel in the expression used both by St. John the Baptist and our Lord, "ye generation of vipers ;" and the reference to the deafness of the viper or adder is a prediction of the spirit in which the judges of our Lord said, "what need we any further witness ?" and in which those who stoned the first martyr of His Church, "cried out with a loud voice, and stopped their ears, and ran upon him with one accord." It was venomous hatred which prompted the foes of Christ and His Church, in both cases, and not a desire for either truth or justice.

In the latter verses of the Psalm there are some of those terrible imprecations upon which some comments are given in the notes on Psalm lix. The explanation of the eighth verse (as it is given in the Prayer Book version) appears to be conveyed in such a paraphrase as "Though your cooking vessels can be rapidly heated by the quickly-burning thorns gathered in the wilderness,

THE LIX PSALM.

Eripe me de inimicis.

The XI. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
A Passion Psalm.
Luke xxii. 42.

DELIVER me from mine enemies, O God : defend me from them that rise up against me.

2 O deliver me from the wicked doers : and save me from the bloodthirsty men.

3 For lo, they lie waiting for my soul : the mighty men are gathered against me, without any offence or fault of me, O Lord.

4 They run and prepare themselves without my fault : arise thou therefore to help me, and behold.

5 Stand up, O Lord God of hosts, thou God of Israel, to visit all the heathen : and be not merciful unto them that offend of malicious wickedness.

6 They go to and fro in the evening : they grin like a dog, and run about through the city.

7 Behold, they speak with their mouth, and swords are in their lips :
for who doth hear ?

8 But thou, O Lord, shalt have them in derision : and thou shalt laugh
all the heathen to scorn.

9 My strength will I ascribe unto thee : for thou art the God of my refuge.

10 God sheweth me his goodness plenteously : and God shall let me see my desire upon mine enemies.

11 Slay them not, lest my people forget it : but scatter them abroad among the people, and put them down,
O Lord, our defence.

12 For the sin of their mouth, and for the words of their lips they shall be taken in their pride : and why ?
their preaching is of cursing and lies.

Exod. xxxii. 34.
Luke xix. 44.

Ps. xxii. 20.
Matt. vii. 6.
xv. 2 : 27.
Rev. xxii. 15.

Gen. iv. 14, 15.
Rev. ix. 6.
Lev. xxvi. 33.
Deut. iv. 27.
Ezek. xii. 15.

PSALMUS LVIII.

ERIPE me de inimicis meis, Deus meus : et ab insurgentibus in me libera me.

Wed. Mattins,
Good Friday,
3rd Noct.

Eripe me de operantibus iniquita-tem : et de viris sanguinum salva me.

Quia ecce ceperunt animam meam : occupaverunt irruerunt in me fortes.

Neque iniquitas mea, neque pecca-tum meum, Domine : sine iniquitate cucurri, et direxi.

et dirigebar

Exsurge in occursum meum, et vide :
et tu, Domine, Deus virtutum, Deus Israël.

Intende ad visitandas omnes gentes :
non miserearis omnibus qui operantur iniquitatem.

Convertentur ad vesperam, et famem patientur ut canes : et circuibunt civitatem.

Ecce loquentur in ore suo et gladius in labiis eorum : quoniam quis audi-vit ?

Et tu, Domine, deridebis eos : et ad pro nihilo habebis nihilum deduces omnes gentes.

Fortitudinem meam ad te custodiam, quia Deus susceptor meus : Deus meus, misericordia ejus præveniet me.

Deus ostendit mihi super inimicos mihi bona inter meos ; ne occidas eos : nequando obli- occideres . . . obl.
viscantur populi mei. legis tuæ

Disperge illos in virtute tua : et de-pone eos protector meus, Domine.

Delictum oris eorum, sermonem la- Delicta . . . sermo biorum ipsorum : et comprehendantur in superbia sua.

Et de execratione et mendacio : an- mendacio compen- nuntiabuntur in consummatione. lantur in ira consum.

yet the indignation of God shall more quickly overtake these unjust judges : swiftly as raw flesh could be thus sodden, more swiftly shall the fire of God's wrath destroy them."

PSALM LIX.

This Psalm has been universally interpreted as being spoken of our Lord's Passion and the destruction of the Jewish nation. It is also prophetic of the sufferings of Christ's mystical Body, and of the ultimate overthrow of Antichristian power.

In the first words we have a parallel to the historical words of our Lord, "If it be possible, let this cup pass from Me," the human nature of Christ being made perfect in weakness, so that He might ascribe His strength unto the Divine Nature. The bloodthirstiness of the Jews was conspicuously shown in their conduct before Pilate : for when he desired to release Christ, they cried, "Crucify Him, crucify Him ;" and when Pilate washed his hands before them, they willingly accepted the responsibility thrown upon them by that act, saying, "His blood be on us and on our children." Such a thirsting for His blood on the part of His brethren was doubtless an addition to the bitterness of Christ's suffering. It is compared in this Psalm to the savage voracity of the dogs of Eastern cities, whose wild ferocity is notorious to this

The XI. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Mark ix. 43—48.

13 Consume them in thy wrath, consume them, that they may perish : and know that it is God that ruleth in Jacob, and unto the ends of the world.

Hab. i. 8.
Zeph. iii. 3.
Rev. xiii. 7. 17.

14 And in the evening they will return : grin like a dog, and will go about the city.

15 They will run here and there for meat : and grudge if they be not satisfied.

2 Sam. xxiii. 4.
Matt. xxviii. 1.
Mark xvi. 2.
Luke xxiv. 1.
John xx. 1.

16 As for me, I will sing of thy power, and will praise thy mercy betimes in the morning : for thou hast been my defence and refuge in the day of my trouble.

Rev. xi. 17.

17 Unto thee, O my strength, will I sing : for thou, O God, art my refuge, and my merciful God.

THE LX PSALM.

Deus, repulisti nos.

Rom. xi. 1—36.

O GOD, thou hast cast us out, and scattered us abroad : thou hast also been displeased, O turn thee unto us again.

2 Thou hast moved the land, and divided it : heal the sores thereof, for it shaketh.

3 Thou hast shewed thy people heavy things : thou hast given us a drink of deadly wine.

Isa. xi. 12.
xlix. 22.
lxii. 10.

4 Thou hast given a token for such as fear thee : that they may triumph because of the truth.

In ira consummationis, et non erunt : et scient quia Deus dominabitur Jacob et finium terræ.

Convertentur ad vesperam, et famem patientur ut canes : circuibunt civitatem.

Ipsi dispergentur ad manducandum : Ecce ipsi si vero non fuerint saturati, et murmurabunt.

Ego autem cantabo fortitudinem virtutem tuam : et exaltabo mane misericordiam tuam.

Quia factus es susceptor meus : et refugium meum in die tribulationis meæ.

Adjutor meus, tibi psallam : quia Deus susceptor meus es ; Deus meus, misericordia mea.

PSALMUS LIX.

DEUS, repulisti nos, et destruxisti Wed. Mattins. nos : iratus es et misertus es nobis.

Commovisti terram et conturbasti eam : sana contritiones ejus ; quia commota est.

Ostendisti populo tuo dura : potasti nos vino compunctionis.

Dedisti metuentibus te significationem : ut fugiant a facie arcus.

day, and the comparison recalls the words of the prophet Zephaniah, "Her princes within her are roaring lions ; her judges are evening wolves."

It is observable that this Psalm presents the unconverted Jews under the aspect of heathen, for to them as the persecutors of our Lord the words of the Psalm plainly apply. This is explained by Theodoret as a result of the change of circumstances which has taken place since their persistent and national rejection of our Lord : "The Jews, who once were the children, have, for their own wickedness, been degraded to the rank of dogs ; while the Gentiles, who were once dogs, have been advanced to the dignity of sons." Nothing can, in fact, be more repugnant to Christianity than the Judaism of Christian times. The Judaism of ancient days derived all its reality from Christ, to Whom all its ordinances looked forward, and upon Whom they all depended for their efficacy. But the Judaism of Christian times rejects Christ altogether, and hence the very substance of the ancient faith, with which it professes to be one, is eliminated ; and since there is none other Name under Heaven by which men must be saved, that system which rejects the Saviour is mere heathenism ; or, at best, a mere empty imitation of the religion professed by Moses, David, and the prophets.

Thus the Jews have become the enemies of Christ, and of the one Church in which there is salvation. This they have ever shown themselves to be in days when they had opportunity to lead persecutions, and it is likely that the fourteenth verse of this Psalm predicts a time when they will again return, in the evening of the world's history as in the evening of our Lord's life, and devastate the City of God. When such a period arrives, the Church will look forward as Christ did ; and though bowed down with the evening of trouble, look forward to a Resurrection of triumph, when she may sing her new song, praising God's mercy betimes in the morning, because He has been her refuge, and her merciful God.

PSALM LX.

As the last Psalm was a prophecy respecting the rejection of those among the ancient people of God who reject Christ, so this is the prophetic pleading of those among them who recognize the token, or banner of the Cross, which He has given for an ensign to all people, and a sign of His truth [verse 4]. As a body "Israel hath not obtained that which he seeketh for," but there were multitudes of Jews from the Apostles downward who believed in Christ, and they were "the election" who "hath obtained

The XI. Day.

Evening

Prayer.

Ps. cviii. 6.

Ps. cviii. 7.

Ps. cviii. 8.

Ps. cviii. 9.

Ps. cviii. 10.

Ps. cviii. 11.

Ps. cviii. 12.

Ps. cviii. 13.

Acts iv. 29.

Acts i. 8.

Matt. xvi. 18.
1 Cor. x. 4.John xiv. 2.
Rev. xxi. 3.Isa. liii. 11.
Rev. xxii. 5.

5 Therefore were thy beloved delivered : help me with thy right hand, and hear me.

6 God hath spoken in his holiness, I will rejoice, and divide Sichem : and mete out the valley of Succoth.

7 Gilead is mine, and Manasses is mine : Ephraim also is the strength of my head ; Judah is my lawgiver,

8 Moab is my washpot ; over Edom will I cast out my shoe : Philistia, be thou glad of me.

9 Who will lead me into the strong city : who will bring me into Edom ?

10 Hast not thou cast us out, O God : wilt not thou, O God, go out with our hosts ?

11 O be thou our help in trouble : for vain is the help of man.

12 Through God will we do great acts : for it is he that shall tread down our enemies.

THE LXI PSALM.

Exaudi Deus.

HEAR my crying, O God : give ear unto my prayer.

2 From the ends of the earth will I call upon thee : when my heart is in heaviness.

3 O set me up upon the rock that is higher than I : for thou hast been my hope, and a strong tower for me against the enemy.

4 I will dwell in thy tabernacle for ever : and my trust shall be under the covering of thy wings.

5 For thou, O Lord, hast heard my desires : and hast given an heritage unto those that fear thy Name.

Ut liberentur dilecti tui : salvum et . . . electi fac dextera tua, et exaudi me.

Deus locutus est in sancto suo : lætabor et partibor Sichimam ; et con- dividam vallem tabernaculorum metibor.

Meus est Galaad, et meus est Manasses : et Ephraim fortitudo capitis mei.

Juda rex meus : Moab olla spei meæ.

In Idumæam extendam calceamentum meum : mihi alienigenæ subditi allopilæ sunt.

Quis deducet me in civitatem munitam : quis deducet me usque in Idumæam ?

Nonne tu, Deus, qui repulisti nos : et non egredieris, Deus, in virtutibus nostris ?

Da nobis auxilium de tribulatione : quia vana salus hominis.

In Deo faciemus virtutem : et ipse ad nihilum deducet tribulantes nos.

PSALMUS LX.

EXAUDI, Deus, deprecationem meam : intende orationi meæ.

A finibus terræ ad te clamavi, dum anxietur cor meum : in petra exaltasti me.

Deduxisti me, quia factus es spes mea : turris fortitudinis a facie inimici.

Inhabitabo in tabernaculo tuo in sæcula : protegar in velamento alarum tuarum.

Quoniam tu, Deus meus, exaudisti orationem meam : dedisti hæreditatem timentibus Nomen tuum.

Wed. Mattins.
App. and l.v.v.,
Name of Jesus,
2nd Noct.

PSALM LXI.

This is the aspiration of the Church of Christ, which He has placed even in "the ends of the earth," and of which He has promised that it should be founded on the Rock of His Person, so that the gates of Hell shall not prevail against it. Thus Christ speaks in His mystical Body ; declaring (1) the perpetual dependence of the Church on her Head ; (2) the everlasting reign of Christ in and with those who have been made "kings and priests" by His redeeming love ; and (3) the never-ending work of adoration which is commenced in the day-by-day worship of the Church Militant, and perfected in the joy and praise of the Church Triumphant.

From one end of the earth to the other, then, the Church of it." [Rom. xi. 7.] The full meaning of this Psalm will probably be brought out in a blaze of light by some great conversion of the Jews in the latter days, when they will recognize the sign of the Son of Man, and call upon Him to go forth with their hosts to the "strong city," the new Jerusalem descending out of Heaven from God. And whether or not it be God's purpose to restore His ancient people to their land, as the sixth and three following verses might be thought to intimate, they must certainly be gathered in to a blessed home if they are taken into the Church of their Redeemer.

The Psalm has an evident application to any season of trouble in the Church of God ; and is at all times a call upon Christians to look to the Cross of their Saviour as the sign of truth, and of victory over the enemies of the faith as well as over spiritual foes.

The XI. Day.
*Evening
Prayer.*
Luke i. 33.
Rev. i. 18.
xix. 16.
xi. 15.

6 Thou shalt grant the King a long life : that his years may endure throughout all generations.

7 He shall dwell before God for ever : O prepare thy loving mercy and faithfulness, that they may preserve him.

Rev. xix. i. 7.

8 So will I always sing praise unto thy Name : that I may daily perform my vows.

THE LXII PSALM.

Nonne Deo ?

The XII. Day.
*Morning
Prayer.*

MY soul truly waiteth still upon God : for of him cometh my salvation.

2 Cor. iv. 9. 18.

2 He verily is my strength and my salvation : he is my defence, so that I shall not greatly fall.

Isa. xxx. 13.
Ezek. xiii. 11.

3 How long will ye imagine mischief against every man : ye shall be slain all the sort of you ; yea, as a tottering wall shall ye be, and like a broken hedge.

Ezek. xiii. 10.

4 Their device is only how to put him out whom God will exalt : their delight is in lies, they give good words with their mouth, but curse with their heart.

5 Nevertheless, my soul, wait thou still upon God : for my hope is in him.

Matt. x. 22.

6 He truly is my strength and my salvation : he is my defence, so that I shall not fall.

Matt. xvi. 18.

7 In God is my health, and my glory : the rock of my might, and in God is my trust.

1 Sam. i. 15.

8 O put your trust in him alway, ye people : pour out your hearts before him, for God is our hope.

Dies super dies regis adjicies : annos ejus usque in diem generationis et seculi et secula generationis.

Permanet in æternum in conspectu permanebit Dei : misericordiam et veritatem ejus quis requireret ?

Sic psalmum dicam Nomini tuo in Sic psallam nom. sæculum sæculi : ut reddam vota mea tuo Deus de die in diem.

PSALMUS LXI.

NONNE Deo subjecta erit anima mea ? ab ipso enim salutare Wed. Mattins. meum. subdita erit

Nam et ipse Deus meus et salutaris meus : susceptor meus non movebor adjutor amplius.

Quousque irruitis in hominem : interficitis universi vos, tanquam parieti inclinato et maceriæ depulsæ ?

Veruntamen pretium meum cogita- honorem meum verunt repellere : cucurri in siti ; ore suo benedicebant, et corde suo male- dicebant.

Veruntamen Deo subjecta esto anima subdita erit mea : quoniam ab ipso patientia mea.

Quia ipse Deus meus et salvator et enim ipse est . . meus : adjutor meus ; non emigrabo. et salutaris meus

In Deo salutare meum, et gloria mea : Deus auxilii mei ; et spes mea in Deo est.

Sperate in eo omnis congregatio conventus plebis populi : effundite coram illo corda ves- tra ; Deus adjutor noster in æternum.

Christ is beseeching Him to draw closer that union with Himself which is here spoken of as a setting up upon the Rock. She is pleading the merit of His Intercession Whose desires have been heard, and Who, looking forth on the heritage gained by the travail of His soul, was satisfied. Knowing His prayer, "That they all may be one ; as Thou, Father, art in Me, and I in Thee, that they also may be one in us" [John xvii. 21], she knows that He Who was dead and is alive again, Who is King of kings and Lord of lords, and Who will reign for ever and ever, will prepare His loving mercy and faithfulness for the preservation of His mystical Body, and that the "crying" of her prayers here will end in the eternity of her praises hereafter.

PSALM LXII.

The exclamation of strong faith in the second and seventh verses of this Psalm connects it with the preceding one, in which

"O set me up upon the Rock that is higher than I," is the characteristic aspiration. It is the faith of Christ's mystical Body while in a state of outward depression : "We are troubled on every side, yet not distressed ; we are perplexed, but not in despair ; persecuted, but not forsaken ; cast down, but not destroyed . . . while we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen : for the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal."

The third verse seems to associate itself very naturally with the passages of Isaiah and Ezekiel noted in the margin ; and especially with the latter of them, in which the prophets who seduced the people from their true allegiance to God are said to build up a wall, and temper it with untempered mortar only to see it utterly destroyed. For the device of those who "imagine mischief" is plainly against Christ's dignity : it is "only to put Him out Whom God will exalt," to depreciate the glory of our

The XII. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

9 As for the children of men, they are but vanity : the children of men are deceitful upon the weights, they are altogether lighter than vanity itself.

Ezek. xiii. 8.
Rev. xii. 14.

10 O trust not in wrong and robbery, give not yourselves unto vanity : if riches increase, set not your heart upon them.

John v. 22. 27.
Rev. xix. 1.

11 God spake once, and twice I have also heard the same : that power belongeth unto God ;

2 Cor. v. 10.
1 Cor. iii. 8.

12 And that thou, Lord, art merciful : for thou rewardest every man according to his work.

THE LXIII PSALM.

Deus, Deus meus.

[A daily Morning
Psalm of the Eastern Ch.]

O GOD, thou art my God : early will I seek thee.

John xix. 28.

2 My soul thirsteth for thee, my flesh also longeth after thee : in a barren and dry land where no water is.

3 Thus have I looked for thee in holiness : that I might behold thy power and glory.

4 For thy loving kindness is better than the life itself : my lips shall praise thee.

Heb. vii. 25.
1 Tim. ii. 8.

5 As long as I live will I magnify thee on this manner : and lift up my hands in thy Name.

6 My soul shall be satisfied even as it were with marrow and fatness : when my mouth praiseth thee with joyful lips.

7 Have I not remembered thee in my bed : and thought upon thee when I was waking ?

8 Because thou hast been my helper : therefore under the shadow of thy wings will I rejoice.

9 My soul hangeth upon thee : thy right hand hath upholden me.

Veruntamen vani filii hominum, mendaces filii hominum in stateris : ut decipiant ipsi de vanitate in idipsum.

Nolite sperare in iniquitate, et rapinas nolite concupiscere : divitiæ si affluent, nolite cor apponere.

Semel locutus est Deus, duo hæc audiui ; quia potestas Dei est, et tibi, Domine, misericordia : quia tu reddes unicuique juxta opera sua.

singulis secundum

PSALMUS LXII.

DEUS, Deus meus : ad te de luce vigilo.

Lauds, ferial and festival.
Lauds of the de-
parted.

Sitivit in te anima mea : quam multipliciter tibi caro mea.

In terra deserta, invia, et inaquosa ; sic in sancto apparui tibi : ut viderem virtutem tuam, et gloriam tuam.

In deserto, et in invia et in inaquoso

Quoniam melior est misericordia tua super vitas : labia mea laudabunt te.

vitam

Sic benedicam te in vita mea : et in nomine tuo levabo manus meas.

Sicut adipe et pinguedine repleatur anima mea : et labiis exsultationis laudabit os meum.

*labia exsulta-tionis laudabunt nomen
tuum*

Sic memor fui tui super stratum meum ; in matutinis meditabor in te : quia fuisti adjutor meus.

factus es

Et in velamento alarum tuarum exsultabo ; adhæsit anima mea post te : me suscepit dextera tua.

Lord as Incarnate God, and to deny the sovereign exaltation to which He has been raised.

From these two associations we may very properly consider this Psalm as referring to all those developments of unbelief in our Blessed Lord which will reach their climax in the final persecution of Him, in His Church, by Antichrist.

PSALM LXIII.

Our Lord's words upon the cross are recalled by the opening exclamation of this Psalm, "O God, Thou art my God," and His cry "I thirst," by the second verse. St. Augustine also remembers, when commenting upon the eleventh verse, that our Lord said of Herod, "Go tell that fox ;" and as Herod was an Edomite and not a Jew, he conjectures that the imprecation of that verse was fulfilled by the Jews falling under the dominion of foreign rulers : "they rejected the Lamb, they chose the fox." This idea seems to be confirmed by the immediate reference to "the King" which follows ; for, in the Psalms, the King spoken of is ever, mystically, the King of kings, and Lord of lords. Thus light is thrown on several parts of this Psalm as applying to our Lord. "Early will I seek Thee," recalls to mind that "very early in the morning" when the sepulchre was found empty by the holy women,

The XII. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

10 These also, that seek the hurt of my soul : they shall go under the earth.

11 Let them fall upon the edge of the sword : that they may be a portion for foxes.

Luke xiii. 32.

2 Tim. ii. 19.
Rev. xii. 5.
2 Thess. ii. 8.

12 But the King shall rejoice in God ; all they also that swear by him shall be commended : for the mouth of them that speak lies shall be stopped.

THE LXIV PSALM.

Exaudi, Deus.

HEAR my voice, O God, in my prayer : preserve my life from fear of the enemy.

Gen. xlix. 6.
Jer. xv. 17.

2 Hide me from the gathering together of the froward : and from the insurrection of wicked doers ;

John xx. 12. 15.
Luke xxiii. 10.
21.

3 Who have whet their tongues like a sword : and shoot out their arrows, even bitter words ;

4 That they may privily shoot at him that is perfect : suddenly do they hit him, and fear not.

John xi. 46—57.

5 They encourage themselves in mischief : and commune among themselves, how they may lay snares, and say, that no man shall see them.

Rev. xvii. 13, 14.

6 They imagine wickedness, and practise it : that they keep secret among themselves, every man in the deep of his heart.

Deut. xxxii. 23.
Rev. xviii. 8.

7 But God shall suddenly shoot at them with a swift arrow : that they shall be wounded.

8 Yea, their own tongues shall make them fall : insomuch that whoso seeth them shall laugh them to scorn.

Ipsi vero in vanum quæsierunt animam meam ; introibunt in inferiora terræ : tradentur in manus gladii ; partes vulpium erunt.

Rex vero lætabitur in Deo ; laudantur omnes qui jurant in eo : quia obstructum est os loquentium iniqua.

PSALMUS LXIII.

EXAUDI, Deus, orationem meam cum deprecor : a timore inimici eripe animam meam.

Wed. Mattins.
App. and Evv.,
2nd Noct.
tribulor

Protexisti me a conventu malignantium : a multitudine operantium iniquitatem.

Quia exacerunt ut gladium linguas suas : intenderunt arcum rem amaram, ut sagittent in occultis immaculatum.

Subito sagittabunt eum, et non timebunt : firmaverunt sibi sermo- verbum malum nem nequam.

Narraverunt ut absconderent la- Disputaverunt queos : dixerunt, Quis videbit eos ?

Scrutati sunt iniquitates : defecerunt scrutantes scrutinio.

Accedet homo ad cor altum : et exaltabitur Deus.

Sagittæ parvulorum factæ sunt plagæ eorum : et infirmatæ sunt contra et pro nihilo habuerunt contra eos linguæ eorum.

Conturbati sunt omnes qui videbant eos : et timuit omnis homo.

because Christ had arisen to seek His Father : "they also that swear by Him" are they who "name the Name of Christ," and have "this seal, The Lord knoweth them that are His," the mystic Tau, or Cross, of Ezekiel [Ezek. ix. 4], the "seal of the living God," with which "the servants of our God are sealed in their foreheads" [Rev. vii. 2].

Thus also we may judge that "them that speak lies" is to be interpreted in no ordinary sense, but of that Antichrist unto whom was given a "mouth speaking great things and blasphemies," whose "mark" also will be received "in their right hand, or in their foreheads," by those who are deceived by him, but whom the Lord shall "consume with the spirit of His mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of His Coming."

PSALM LXIV.

The tone of this Psalm clearly identifies it with Christ and His enemies ; and, by a more remote anticipation, with the Church of God, and the simulative Church which Antichrist will establish in the last days.

As a prophetic hymn sung in the person of Christ, He is heard praying in it that He may be preserved from the malice of the Sanhedrim and of the general assembly of the Jewish multitude : who were devising secret plots, and making tumultuous insurrection against "Him that is perfect." Whose immaculacy was openly acknowledged by the chief judge and governor of the nation ; and more privately by their own subornation of false witnesses. But the arrow of God's justice sped more swiftly and surely against them than their own arrows against Christ ; and their own tongues, their "bitter words," were one cause of their fall. They said, "We have no king but Cæsar," and Cæsar avenged their rebellion against him by destroying their Temple, city, and nation. They said, "His blood be upon us and on our children," and their words were fulfilled by an avenging of that holy blood which has lasted from that day for more than eighteen centuries ; an avenging so clearly the work of a Divine Ruler that all men who see into the inner meaning of great events and courses of events say, "This hath God done," perceiving "that it is His work." So have the Jews fallen, that their degeneracy has made that nation an object of just scorn, which was anciently the most noble nation on the face of the earth. But THE RIGHT-

The XII. Day.

Morning

Prayer.

Rev. xviii. 10. 20.

Exod. viii. 19.

Rev. xix. 1. 15.

9 And all men that see it shall say,
This hath God done : for they shall perceive that it is his work.

10 The righteous shall rejoice in the Lord, and put his trust in him : and all they that are true of heart shall be glad.

THE LXV PSALM.

Te decet hymnus.

THOU, O God, art praised in Sion : and unto thee shall the vow be performed in Jerusalem.

2 Thou that hearest the prayer :
unto thee shall all flesh come.

3 My misdeeds prevail against me :
O be thou merciful unto our sins.

4 Blessed is the man, whom thou choosest, and receivest unto thee : he shall dwell in thy court, and shall be satisfied with the pleasures of thy house, even of thy holy temple.

5 Thou shalt shew us wonderful things in thy righteousness, O God of our salvation : thou that art the hope of all the ends of the earth, and of them that remain in the broad sea.

6 Who in his strength setteth fast the mountains : and is girded about with power.

7 Who stilleth the raging of the sea : and the noise of his waves, and the madness of the people.

8 They also that dwell in the utter-most parts of the earth shall be afraid at thy tokens : thou that makest the outgoings of the morning and evening to praise thee.

Et annuntiaverunt opera Dei : et facta ejus intellexerunt.

Lætabitur justus in Domino et sperabit in eo : et laudabuntur omnes recti
corde.

PSALMUS LXIV.

Te decet hymnus, Deus, in Sion : et Wed. Mattins.
Lauds of the de-
parted.
tibi reddetur votum in Hieru-salem.

Exaudi orationem meam : ad te omnis caro veniet.

Verba iniquorum prævaluerunt super nos : et impietatibus nostris tu propitiaberis.

Beatus quem elegisti, et assumpsisti :
inhabitabit in atriis tuis.

tabernaculis

Replebimur in bonis domus tuæ :
sanctum est templum tuum, mirabile
in æquitate.

Exaudi nos, Deus salutaris noster :
spes omnium finium terræ, et in mari longe.

Præparans montes in virtute tua, accinctus potentia : qui conturbas profundum maris, sonum fluctuum ejus.

fluc. ejus quis sustinebit.

Turbabuntur gentes, et timebunt qui habitantes terminos a signis tuis : exitus matutini et vespere delectabis.

omnes qui habitant fines de-lectaveris

ous rejoices in the Lord in the new Israel, whom He has made
"true of heart" by the new heart with which He has endowed the regenerate.

Against the future gathering together of the froward under the rule of Antichrist the spouse of Christ will prevail as He Himself prevailed, and, like Him, after a period of suffering.
Then again will the Hand of an Almighty Judge make itself evident to all, so that it shall be said of the mystical Babylon, "Rejoice over her, thou Heaven, and ye holy Apostles and Prophets ; for God hath avenged you on her." . . . "True and righteous are His judgments."

PSALM LXV.

The doctrine of the Holy Trinity was revealed in Old Testament prophecies in such language that the coming of Christ and the Holy Ghost could alone give the key to its meaning. This and the two following Psalms the Christian may thus use as hymns to the praise of God the Creator, God the Redeemer, and God the Sanctifier, when the Jew could see in them only the praise of God as He revealed Himself on Sinai.

But the Three Persons of the Blessed Trinity are so intimately united that no human thought can safely dwell upon their individuality, and consequently these three Psalms run into each other, mingling the praises of the whole Trinity with those of each Person. So also, as God's kingdom of Nature and His kingdom of Grace are separate, and yet closely united, the Psalm in praise of God as the Creator of the visible world of nature, looks, all through, to the "things which are not seen," magnifying His glory in the "new Heavens and the new Earth" which have been founded in the redeeming work of Christ.

The second, third, and fourth verses of this Psalm are to be interpreted in the spirit of St. Paul's words, that "we must all appear before the judgment-seat of Christ," and "who shall deliver me from the body of this death ? I thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord." As the continual intercession of our Mediator is being heard always by God, so also is "the prayer"

The XII. Day.

*Evening
Prayer.*Ezek. xlvii. 9.
John iv. 13, 14.
Rev. xxii. 1.
John vi. 35.
xii. 24.9 Thou visitest the earth, and bless-est it : thou makest it very plenteous.10 The river of God is full of water :
thou preparest their corn, for so thou providest for the earth.11 Thou waterest her furrows, thou sendest rain into the little valleys thereof : thou makest it soft with the drops of rain, and blessest the increase of it.John vi. 51.
Rev. xxii. 2.12 Thou crownest the year with thy goodness : and thy clouds drop fatness.Isa. xviii. 4.
Hos. xiv. 5.13 They shall drop upon the dwellings of the wilderness : and the little hills shall rejoice on every side.John x. 16.
Matt. xxv. 31.
Joel iii. 13.
Matt. xiii. 39.
Rev. xiv. 15. 18.14 The folds shall be full of sheep :
the valleys also shall stand so thick with corn, that they shall laugh and sing.

THE LXVI PSALM.

*Jubilate Deo.*Prayers to be used at Sea.O BE joyful in God, all ye lands :
sing praises unto the honour of his Name, make his praise to be glorious.Acts ii. 11.
Rev. xv. 3.2 Say unto God, O how wonderful art thou in thy works : through the greatness of thy power shall thine enemies be found liars unto thee.Isa lx. 3.
Rev. vii. 9.3 For all the world shall worship thee : sing of thee, and praise thy Name.Visitasti terram et inebriasti eam :
multiplicasti locupletare eam.Flumen Dei repletum est aquis :
parasti cibum illorum ; quoniam ita est præparatio ejus.Rivos ejus inebrians, multiplica ge- multiplicans generationes ejus lætabitur dum exoriatur
nimina ejus : in stillicidiis ejus læta-bitur germinans.Benedices coronæ anni benignitatis Benedicens coro-nam
tuæ : et campi tui replebuntur uber-tate.Pinguesscent speciosa deserti : et finis deserti exultatione colles accingentur.Induti sunt arietes ovium, et valles abundabunt frumento : clamabunt ;
etenim hymnum dicent.

PSALMUS LXV. "

JUBILATE Deo omnis terra, psalmum dicite Nomini ejus : date gloriam laudi ejus.Wed. Mattins.
Epiphany,
1st Noct.
Exalt. Cross,
2nd No. t.Dicite Deo, Quam terribilia sunt opera tua, Domine : in multitudine vir-tutis tuæ mentientur tibi inimici tui.Omnis terra adoret te, et psallat tibi : psalmum dicat Nomini tuo.

tuo Altissime

of His Church, "Thy kingdom come;" and in answer to it "all flesh shall come" unto Him. In that day who will be able to say otherwise than "my misdeeds prevail against me, O be Thou merciful unto our sins?" And, on the other hand, how vast "a multitude, which no man can number," will be able to claim a share in the saving words of Christ, "Behold, I and the children whom Thou hast given Me," and to say, "Blessed is THE MAN Whom Thou choosest and receivest unto Thee." Blessed all they who in that day are still part of His mystical Body : "they shall see His face, and His Name shall be in their foreheads."

The remainder of the Psalm is so full of suggestive thoughts in reference to the work of grace in the Church Militant, and that of salvation in the Church Triumphant, that it is impossible to draw out its Christian application thoroughly in a few lines. Some such thoughts are indicated by the marginal references : and the key to the whole Psalm may be found in the song with which the four-and-twenty elders worship the Creator, proclaiming His glory as revealed in the fourfold Gospel :—"Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power : for Thou hast created all things, and for Thy pleasure they are and were created." [Rev. iv. 11.] Thou hast set fast the mountains of the earth, and the Rock of Thy Church : Thou art girded about with the power of the Godhead and of the Manhood : Thou didst still the raging of the Deluge, and Thou hast bidden the winds and the waves to "be still" around Thy saving Ark : Thee the Sons of God praised in the morning of Creation, Thee all the redeemed praise in the evening of redemption and salvation : Thou hast visited the earth with natural abundance, and with the abundance of the river of Life and the Bread of Heaven : Thou crownest year by year with Thy goodness, and Thy good-ness shall be our song when Thou dost crown the whole period of redemption with Thy good salvation. And in that day, O Lord, shall Thy folds be full of Thy sheep, and Thy garners rejoicing in the harvest of that "Corn of wheat" which abideth not alone.

PSALM LXVI.

In the Septuagint version the title affixed to this Psalm is, "For the end, a Song of a Psalm of Resurrection," which shows that the Church has for many ages, and perhaps even before the time of the Incarnation, considered it to be especially associated with Him Who is now revealed to us as the second Person in the Blessed Trinity. As the general strain of the preceding Psalm associated the works of Creation with those of Grace, so that of this Psalm associates with the latter the wonderful doings of God's Providence toward the children of men : the contemplation of those doings centring upon His dealings with the ancient and the new Israel. The song is thus sung of the Resurrection of Christ's

The XII. Day.
Evening
Prayer.

4 O come hither, and behold the works of God : how wonderful he is in his doing toward the children of men.

Exod. xiv. 22.
Isa. xi. 15.
Zech. x. 11.
Rev. xxi. 1.

5 He turned the sea into dry land : so that they went through the water on foot ; there did we rejoice thereof.

6 He ruleth with his power forever ; his eyes behold the people : and such as will not believe shall not be able to exalt themselves.

Rev. xix. 5.

7 O praise our God, ye people : and make the voice of his praise to be heard ;

8 Who holdeth our soul in life : and suffereth not our feet to slip.

Isa. i. 25.
xlviii. 10.
Zech. xiii. 9.
1 Pet. i. 7.
Mal. iii. 3.

9 For thou, O God, hast proved us : thou also hast tried us, like as silver is tried.

10 Thou broughtest us into the snare : and laidest trouble upon our loins.

Isa. li. 23.
xliii. 2.

11 Thou sufferedst men to ride over our heads : we went through fire and water, and thou broughtest us out into a wealthy place.

12 I will go into thine house with burnt-offerings : and will pay thee my vows, which I promised with my lips, and spake with my mouth, when I was in trouble.

13 I will offer unto thee fat burnt-sacrifices, with the incense of rams : I will offer bullocks and goats.

Phil. iii. 8—11.

14 O come hither, and hearken, all ye that fear God : and I will tell you what he hath done for my soul.

15 I called unto him with my mouth : and gave him praises with my tongue.

Venite et videte opera Dei : terribilis in consiliis super filios hominum. quam terribilis

Qui convertit mare in aridam ; in flumine pertransibunt pede : ibi læta- pertransibit bimur in ipso.

Qui dominatur in virtute sua in æternum ; oculi ejus super gentes respiciunt : qui exasperant non exalten- in ira provocant tur in semetipsis.

Benedicite gentes Deum nostrum : et auditam facite vocem laudis ejus. et obaudite vocem

Qui posuit animam meam ad vitam : et non dedit in commotionem pedes commoveri meos.

Quoniam probasti nos, Deus : igne nos examinasti, sicut examinatur argentum.

Induxisti nos in laqueum, posuisti tribulationes in dorso nostro : imposuisti homines super capita nostra.

Transivimus per ignem et aquam : et eduxisti nos in refrigerium.

Introibo in domum tuam in holocaustis : reddam tibi vota mea quæ distinxerunt labia mea.

Et locutum est os meum : in tribulatione mea.

Holocausta medullata offeram tibi cum incenso arietum : offeram tibi incensum et arietibus boves cum hircis.

Venite, audite, et narrabo, omnes qui timetis Deum : quanta fecit animæ meæ.

Ad ipsum ore meo clamavi : et ex- Ab ipso ore meo altavi sub lingua mea.

mystical Body rather than respecting that of His natural Body : and it may be observed that the expressions used in the opening verses are of the most comprehensive character : "all ye lands," "all the world," distinctly prophesying the universal spread of Christ's Kingdom.

The first words of those who were converted out of "all lands" on the Day of Pentecost show the fulfilment of the first words of this Psalm :—"We do hear them speak in our tongues the wonderful works of God : " and among the earliest of the songs of the redeemed is named the "song of Moses and the Lamb :"—"Great and marvellous are Thy works, Lord God Almighty ; just and true are Thy ways, Thou King of Saints. Who shall not fear Thee, O Lord, and glorify Thy Name ? for Thou only art holy : for all nations shall come and worship before Thee ; for Thy judgments are made manifest." In the same strain the Church of Christ is ever pointing to the mercies of God in creating, redeeming, and sanctifying mankind and invites all to come and join their voices in His praise. He led His ancient people through the sea as on dry land ; and so He has ever preserved His new Israel from being overwhelmed by the sea of the world ; but has turned the sea into dry land by making the kingdoms of this world the kingdoms of the Lord and of His Christ. Hereafter He will so order it that there shall be an opposing world no longer, but only His Church :—"there shall be no more sea."

The nation of the Jews passed through much affliction, which the prophecies tell us was sent partly for their punishment, and partly for their purification. The latter was never so effectually accomplished as to fulfil entirely the words and spirit in which the whole Psalm, from the seventh verse to the end, is written. We must, therefore, look for a more complete fulfilment of it in God's trial of the Church by some great "fight of affliction," such as our Lord predicts will happen in the end of the world [Matt. xxiii. 4—31]. At that time, the prophet Malachi tells us, the Lord "shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver ; and He shall

The XII. Day. 16 If I incline unto wickedness
Evening with mine heart : the Lord will not
Prayer. hear me.
 Isa. i. 15.
 John ix. 31.

17 But God hath heard me : and considered the voice of my prayer.

Rev. vii. 14. 18 Praised be God who hath not cast out my prayer : nor turned his mercy from me.

THE LXVII PSALM.

Deus misereatur.

Evensong Canticle.
 Holy Matrimony.
 John i. 4.
 Isa. lx. 1. GOD be merciful unto us, and bless us : and shew us the light of his countenance, and be merciful unto us ;

Isa. xxxvii. 15—20.
 Luke ii. 30. 2 That thy way may be known upon earth : thy saving health among all nations.

3 Let the people praise thee, O God :
 yea, let all the people praise thee.

Isa. lx. 3.
 ix. 7. 4 O let the nations rejoice and be glad : for thou shalt judge the folk righteously, and govern the nations upon earth.

5 Let the people praise thee, O God :
 let all the people praise thee.

Isa. xlv. 8.
 Ezek. xxxiv. 27. 6 Then shall the earth bring forth her increase : and God, even our own God, shall give us his blessing.

Isa. lx. 20.
 Zech. viii. 12, 13. 7 God shall bless us : and all the ends of the world shall fear him.

THE LXVIII PSALM.

Exsurgat Deus.

The XIII. Day.
Morning LET God arise, and let his enemies
Prayer. be scattered : let them also that Whitsunday
 Mattins.
 Numb. x. 35. hate him flee before him.

Iniquitatem si aspexi in corde meo : conspexi
non exaudiet Dominus.

Propterea exaudivit Deus : et atten- intendit
dit voci deprecationis meæ.

Benedictus Deus, qui non amovit
deprecationem meam : et misericordiam suam a me.

PSALMUS LXVI.

DEUS misereatur nostri, et bene- Sund. and Fest.
 dicat nobis : illuminet vultum Lauds.
 suum super nos, et misereatur nostri. Lauds of the de-
parted.

Ut cognoscamus in terra viam tuam : in omnibus gentibus salutare
 tuum.

Confiteantur tibi populi, Deus : confiteantur tibi populi omnes.

Lætentur et exsultent gentes, quoniam judicas populos in æquitate : et gentes in terra dirigis.

Confiteantur tibi populi, Deus, confiteantur tibi populi omnes : terra dedit fructum suum.

Benedicat nos Deus, Deus noster ; benedicat nos Deus : et metuant eum omnes fines terræ.

PSALMUS LXVII.

EXSURGAT Deus, et dissipentur Wed. Whitsun- inimici ejus : et fugiant qui ode- tide, Mattins.
 runt eum a facie ejus.

purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver, that they may offer unto the Lord an offering in righteousness." And speaking of the palm-bearers thus refined, the angel told St. John, "These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." [Rev. vii. 14.]

PSALM LXVII.

It has been pointed out at page 35, that there is some similarity between the Song of Simeon and this Psalm. Perhaps the Gospel Canticle was suggested by the well-known words of the Psalm, as the Magnificat appears to have been suggested by the Song of Hannah : but, whether it were so or not, the Psalm is clearly to be understood only by taking it as a prophecy of the spread of the Gospel, the illumination of mankind by that Light of the world Who alone can make God's way truly known upon earth.

Hence this Psalm is to be interpreted as a hymn to God the Holy Ghost. He was merciful to mankind by blessing it with the Incarnation of our Lord, and thus causing to shine on earth the WORD, "the true Light, which, coming into the world, lighteth every man." [John i. 9.] He blessed mankind by spreading the knowledge of His saving health among all nations, when He gave the Apostles those marvellous gifts by which they were enabled to convert the world. He causes the earth to bring forth her spiritual increase by bestowing on the Ministry of the Church those ordinary gifts which enable them to give sacramental life and nourishment. "Neither is he that planteth any thing, nor he that watereth ; but God that giveth the increase." [1 Cor. iii. 7.]

The jubilant tone of this prophetic hymn may encourage us to hope that, notwithstanding the dreadful position in which the Jews stand towards the one only Saviour, whom they wilfully and blindly deny, the time will come when "a remnant according to the election of grace" [Rom. xi. 5] will again be found as in the first days of Christianity, and when the prophecy in Zech. viii. 13 will be again fulfilled : "So will I save you, and ye shall be a blessing."

The XIII. Day.

Morning
Prayer.Judg. v. 31.
Mal. iii. 2.

2 Like as the smoke vanisheth, so shalt thou drive them away : and like as the wax melteth at the fire, so let the ungodly perish at the presence of God.

3 But let the righteous be glad and rejoice before God : let them also be merry and joyful.

4 O sing unto God, and sing praises unto his Name : magnify him that rideth upon the heavens, as it were upon an horse; praise him in his Name, yea, and rejoice before him.

5 He is a Father of the fatherless, and defendeth the cause of the widows : even God in his holy habitation.

6 He is the God that maketh men to be of one mind in an house, and bringeth the prisoners out of captivity : but letteth the runagates continue in scarceness.

7 O God, when thou wentest forth before the people : when thou wentest through the wilderness,

8 The earth shook, and the heavens dropped at the presence of God : even as Sinai also was moved at the presence of God, who is the God of Israel.

9 Thou, O God, sentest a gracious rain upon thine inheritance : and refreshedst it when it was weary.

10 Thy congregation shall dwell therein : for thou, O God, hast of thy goodness prepared for the poor.

Sicut deficit fumus, deficient : sicut fluit cera a facie ignis, sic pereant peccatores a facie Dei.

Et justi epulentur, et exsultent in conspectu Dei : et delectentur in lætitiis.

Cantate Deo, psalmum dicite Nomini ejus : iter facite ei qui ascendit super occasum ; Dominus Nomen illi.

Exsultate in conspectu ejus : turbabuntur a facie ejus, patris orphanorum, et iudicis viduarum.

Deus in loco sancto suo : Deus qui inhabitare facit unius moris in domo. unanimis

Qui educit vinetos in fortitudine : similiter eos qui exasperant, qui habitant in sepulchris. et eos qui in terra provocant

Deus, cum egredereris in conspectu populi tui : cum pertransires in deserto ; coram populo . . . transgredieris per

Terra mota est ; etenim cœli distillaverunt a facie Dei Sinai : a facie Dei Israël. Dei mons Sina a facie

Pluviam voluntariam segregabis, segregans Deus, hæreditati tuæ ; et infirmata est : tu vero perfecisti eam.

Animalia tua habitabunt in ea : parasti in dulcedine tua pauperi, Deus.

PSALM LXVIII.

The whole Western Church has used this Psalm on Whitsunday time immemorial, and in the ancient Church of England it was also used every morning during the Octave. It is thus interpreted

1 This is a form of the holy Name "JEHOVAH," and is found in the song of Moses [Exod. xv. 2], where the authorized version translates it "the LORD." It is the termination of the familiar word Hallelu-jah of Rev. xix. 4, 6, and of the Psalms, a word which forms an integral part of the praises of the Jewish economy, the Christian Church, and of glorified saints in Heaven.

This sacred word was not introduced into the authorized version until A.D. 1611, although it is found in the Geneva Bible. It had not, therefore, of course, any place in the Great Bible of 1540, from which the Prayer-book Psalms are taken. The earliest Prayer Book in which it has been discovered is an Oxford octavo of Baskett, dated 1716, but it was not commonly printed until the middle of the last century. Yet in the Scottish Book of 1637 it had already appeared.

In an English Psalter of 1540 [Douce BB. 71, Bodl. Lib.] the latter half of the verse is rendered as in the Vulgate, "Take your journey to Him that ascendeth up above the west, the Lord is His Name;" but in Matthew's Bible of 1537 it is the same as in the Great Bible of 1540. It seems difficult to believe that some confusion has not arisen in our English version through the identity of the German word "jah" and the English word "yea." The sacred Name is undoubtedly in the Hebrew, but the Septuagint is identical with the Vulgate: and it seems preferable to use the form of the verse adopted in the Sealed Books, as above, rather than to sing the Ineffable Name itself, for which "the LORD" is reverently substituted in the English Bible.

as a hymn of praise to God the Holy Ghost, commemorating His work in the Church of God, and setting forth the typical relation to that work of God's dealings with His ancient congregation.

The whole Psalm conveys the idea of a triumphant, irresistible march: the forward march of the Church of Christ, according to the words of the prophet,—“I will surely assemble, O Jacob, all of thee; I will surely gather the remnant of Israel; I will put them together as the sheep of Bozrah, as the flock in the midst of their fold: they shall make great noise by reason of the multitude of men. The Breaker is come up before them; they have broken up, and have passed through the gate, and are gone out by it: and their King shall pass before them, and the Lord on the head of them.” [Micah ii. 13.] It seems to have been founded on words recorded in the book of Numbers:—“And it came to pass, when the ark set forward, that Moses said, Rise up, Lord, and let Thine enemies be scattered, and let them that hate Thee flee before Thee. And when it rested, he said, Return, O Lord, unto the many thousands of Israel.” But there are so many expressions in this Psalm which can only be explained with reference to the spiritual triumph of the Church of Christ, that it may be doubted whether it was written with any local or temporary meaning, and whether it is not to be regarded simply as a prophetic hymn of the same character as some portions, and especially the sixtieth chapter, of Isaiah. Such a sense, at least, is the only one in which it can be used in Divine Service.

The XIII. Day.

Morning

Prayer.

Acts ii. 4.
Isa. lii. 7.
Rom. x. 15.
Rev. vi. 15.
Isa. liii. 12.
Rev. v. 10.
Isa. lx. 15.
Matt. iii. 16.

Matt. xiii. 41-43.
Isa. i. 18.
Rev. i. 14.
iii. 5.

Deut. xxxiii. 2, 3.
Gal. iii. 19.
Heb. ii. 2.

Eph. iv. 8.
John xv. 26.
xvi. 7.
Acts i. 8.
1 Cor. xii. 11.

Gen. iii. 15.

11 The Lord gave the word : great was the company of the preachers.

12 Kings with their armies did flee, and were discomfited : and they of the houshold divided the spoil.

13 Though ye have lien among the pots, yet shall ye be as the wings of a dove : that is covered with silver wings, and her feathers like gold.

14 When the Almighty scattered kings for their sake : then were they as white as snow in Salmon.

15 As the hill of Basan, so is God's hill : even an high hill, as the hill of Basan.

16 Why hop ye so, ye high hills?
this is God's hill, in the which it pleaseth him to dwell : yea, the Lord will abide in it for ever.

17 The chariots of God are twenty thousand, even thousands of angels :
and the Lord is among them, as in the holy place of Sinai.

18 Thou art gone up on high, thou hast led captivity captive, and received gifts for men : yea, even for thine enemies, that the Lord God might dwell among them.

19 Praise'd be the Lord daily : even the God who helpeth us, and poureth his benefits upon us.

20 He is our God, even the God of whom cometh salvation : God is the Lord, by whom we escape death.

21 God shall wound the head of his enemies : and the hairy scalp of such a one as goeth on still in his wickedness.

Dominus dabit verbum evangelizan-tibus : virtute multa.

Rex virtutum dilecti dilecti : et virt. dilecti et specie
speciei domus dividere spolia.

Si dormiatis inter medios cleros, pennæ columbæ deargentatæ : et pos-teriora dorsi ejus in pallore auri. specie auri

Dum discernit cœlestis reges super eam, nive dealbabuntur in Selmon :
mons Dei, mons pinguis. montem Dei mon-tem uberem

Mons coagulatus, mons pinguis : ut quid suspicamini montes coagulatos? suspicitis montes uberes

Mons in quo beneplacitum est Deo habitare in eo : etenim Dominus ha-bitabit in finem. usque in finem

Currus Dei decem millibus multi-plex, millia lætantium : Dominus in eis, in Sinai in sancto.

Ascendisti in altum, cepisti captivi-tatem : accepisti dona in hominibus. *Ascendens in altum captivum
duri captivi-tatem d. d. i dona hominibus*

Etenim non credentes : inhabitare Dominum Deum.

Benedictus Dominus die quotidie : de die in diem prosperum iter faciet nobis Deus salu-tarium nostrorum.

Deus noster, Deus salvos faciendi :
et Domini Domini exitus mortis.

Veruntamen Deus confringet capita conquassavit inimicorum suorum : verticem capilli perambulantium in delictis suis.

In the first verse, then, in the eighteenth (which is the central one of the Psalm), and in the last, unmistakeable reference is made to our Lord's glorious Resurrection, Ascension, and Session at the right hand of God, as the source of all blessing and glory to the Church : His Resurrection having achieved the victory, His Ascension celebrated the triumph, His Session in "the holy place" within the veil established His Intercessory office on behalf of His people.

The first and second verses contain a metaphor similar to that of Malachi,—"Unto you that fear My Name shall the Sun of Righteousness arise with healing in his wings," an arising of the Light of the world, before which all the mists of moral and spiritual darkness must fly, in the time of probation ; and before which all enemies must succumb in the Day of Judgment.

The following three verses [4, 5, 6] contain a declaration of the glory of the Lord similar to that in the words of Isaiah, adopted by the Baptist ; the true sense being, "make straight in the deserts a highway for Him that rideth : " and doubtless this is closely analogous to the words of St. John,—"I saw Heaven opened, and behold a white horse, and He that sat upon him was called Faithful and True, and in righteousness He doth judge and make war . . . and He hath on His vesture and on His thigh a Name written, KING OF KINGS AND LORD OF LORDS." [Rev. xix. 16.] Notwithstanding this, He is the Prince of Peace, and under His dispensation of the peace which He left with His Church, the Holy Ghost is ever binding together in one Body the children of God, "making men to be of one mind in an house," i. e. in the spiritual Temple wherein He dwells.

In the seventh verse the leading of Israel through the wilderness by God is taken as a type of the new Israel going through the world under the leadership of Him respecting Whom the prophet said, "Behold, the Lord God will come with strong hand, and His arm shall rule for Him." The earth quaked at His Resurrection, when He became the Firstfruits of the great harvest, entering Heaven at the head of a risen army of saints, as the Firstborn among many brethren. So will there be great earthquakes at the Second Advent, when once more He will go forth before the people. And so also, when His Presence with the Church was

The XIII. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

22 The Lord hath said, I will bring my people again, as I did from Basan : mine own will I bring again, as I did sometime from the deep of the sea.

Rev. xiv. 20.
xix. 13.

23 That thy foot may be dipped in the blood of thine enemies : and that the tongue of thy dogs may be red through the same.

24 It is well seen, O God, how thou goest : how thou, my God and King, goest in the sanctuary.

Exod. xv. 20.

25 The singers go before, the minstrels follow after : in the midst are the damsels playing with the timbrels.

26 Give thanks, O Israel, unto God the Lord in the congregations : from the ground of the heart.

Phil. iii. 5.
Matt. iv. 13.

27 There is little Benjamin their ruler, and the princes of Judah their counsel : the princes of Zabulon, and the princes of Nephthali.

Rev. xxi. 22.
Isa. lx. 2—10.
xlix. 23.
xviii. 7.

28 Thy God hath sent forth strength for thee : stablish the thing, O God, that thou hast wrought in us, 29 For thy temple's sake at Jerusalem : so shall kings bring presents unto thee.

30 When the company of the spearmen and multitude of the mighty are scattered abroad among the beasts of the people, so that they humbly bring pieces of silver : and when he hath scattered the people that delight in war ;

i. e. the land of the Moors.
Rev. xii. 15.

31 Then shall the princes come out of Egypt : the Morians' land shall soon stretch out her hands unto God.

32 Sing unto God, O ye kingdoms of the earth : O sing praises unto the Lord.

John v. 25.

33 Who sitteth in the heavens over all from the beginning : lo, he doth send out his voice, yea, and that a mighty voice.

Dixit Dominus, Ex Basan convertam : convertam in profundum maris : convertar in Ut intingatur pes tuus in sanguine : Donec int.

lingua canum tuorum ex inimicis ab ipso.

Viderunt ingressus tuos, Deus : in- Visi sunt ingres- gressus Dei mei, Regis mei qui est in sus tui
sancto.

Prævenērunt principes conjuncti psallentibus : in medio juvenecularum juvenum tympanistriarum.

In ecclesiis benedicite Deo : Domino de fontibus Israël.

Ibi Benjamin adolescentulus : in adolescentior in mentis excessu. pavore

Principes Juda, duces eorum : principes Zabulon, et principes Neptalim.

Manda Deus virtuti tuæ : confirma hoc, Deus, quod operatus es in nobis :

A templo tuo in Hierusalem : tibi offerent reges munera.

Increpa feras arundinis, congregatio silvarum, concilium taurorum in vaccis populorum : ut excludant eos qui probati sunt argento. taurorum ut non excludantur ii qui Dissipa gentes quæ bella volunt ; venient legati ex Ægypto : Æthiopia præveniet manus ejus Deo.

Regna terræ, cantate Deo : psallite Domino :

Psallite Deo qui ascendit super cœlum cœli : ad orientem.

again manifested by the coming of the Holy Ghost, and as an answer to the prayer of the Apostles, there was on the one occasion "a rushing mighty wind," while on the other "the place was shaken where they were assembled together." With such signs did God send "the gracious rain" of the Holy Spirit "upon His inheritance," refreshing it when it was weary through the long absence of His manifestations from the ancient Temple and its system.

Passing over many things without further illustration than that contained in the marginal references, the twenty-seventh verse may be selected as showing that nothing is set down at random in Holy Scripture, and that mystical meanings probably underlie almost every idea that it contains. The tribes there named are Benjamin and Judah, Zabulon and Nephthali.

These were the most prominent of all the tribes during the history of Israel as an united people, and Benjamin and Judah were located nearest of all to the holy house of God. From these four tribes, also, sprung all the Apostles of our Lord ; those who were Galilæans belonging to Zabulon and Nephthali, the "brethren" (or "cousins," as we say in modern language) of our Lord to the tribe of Judah, and St. Paul to Benjamin<sup>1</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> It is worth remark that St. Paul's name signifies "little," a circumstance which partly suggested, perhaps, his assertion that he was "the least of all the Apostles." It is also to be noted that "little Benjamin their ruler" was represented by the twelfth stone in the breastplate of Aaron, which stone was a jasper. But in the foundations of the wall of the city of God, "the first foundation was jasper," as if signifying that "the last shall be first." [Cf. Exod. xxviii. 20. Rev. xxi. 19.]

The XIII. Day. 34 Ascribe ye the power to God Morning over Israel : his worship and strength
Prayer. is in the clouds.
Rev. iv. 1.

Heb. ix. 12. 35 O God, wonderful art thou in thy Isa. xl. 29—31. holy places : even the God of Israel ;
he will give strength and power unto his people ; blessed be God.

THE LXIX PSALM.

Salvum me fac.

Evening SAVE me, O God : for the waters are Prayer. come in, even unto my soul.
Good Friday
Evensong.
A Passion Psalm.

Jonah ii. 5. 2 I stick fast in the deep mire, where no ground is : I am come into deep waters, so that the floods run over
me.

3 I am weary of crying, my throat is dry : my sight faileth me for waiting so long upon my God.

John xv. 25. 4 They that hate me without a cause are more than the hairs of my head : they that are mine enemies, and would destroy me guiltless, are mighty.

2 Cor. v. 21. 5 I paid them the things that I never took : God, thou knowest my simpleness, and my faults are not hid from thee.

Mark viii. 38. 6 Let not them that trust in thee, Gal. v. 11. O Lord God of hosts, be ashamed for Matt. xi. 6. my cause : let not those that seek thee be confounded through me, O Lord God of Israel.

Jer. xv. 15. 7 And why? for thy sake have I suffered reproof : shame hath covered my face.

John xviii. 8. 8 I am become a stranger unto my Mark xi. 40. brethren : even an alien unto my mother's children.

Ecce dabit voci suæ vocem virtutis ; <sup>vocem suam vocem</sup> date gloriam Deo super Israël : magni- <sup>date honorem</sup> ficentia ejus et virtus ejus in nubibus.

Mirabilis Deus in sanctis suis : Deus Israël ipse dabit virtutem et fortitudi-nem plebi suæ ; benedictus Deus.

PSALMUS LXVIII.

SALVUM me fac Deus : quoniam <sup>Thursd. Mattins.</sup> Intraverunt aquæ usque ad animam <sup>Maudy Thurs.</sup> meam. <sup>1st Noct.</sup>

Infixus sum in limo profundum : et non est substantia.

Veni in altitudinem maris : et tempestas demersit me.

Laboravi clamans, raucae factæ sunt fauces meæ : defecerunt oculi mei, dum spero in Deum meum.

Multiplicati sunt super capillos capitis mei : qui oderunt me gratis.

Confortati sunt qui persecuti sunt <sup>super me qui me</sup> me inimici mei injuste : quæ non rapui, <sup>persequuntur</sup> tunc exsolvebam.

Deus, tu seis insipientiam meam :
et delicta mea a te non sunt abscon-dita.

Non erubescant in me qui expectant te Domine : Domine virtutum.

Non confundantur super me : qui <sup>revereantur</sup> quærunte te, Deus Israël.

Quoniam propter te sustinui oppro- <sup>supportavi impro-</sup> brium : operuit confusio faciem meam. <sup>perium reve-</sup> <sup>rentia</sup>

Extraneus factus sum fratribus meis : <sup>Exter . . . et</sup>
et peregrinus filiis matris meæ. <sup>hospis</sup>

Thus the princes of these tribes represent those princes of the Church, of whom our Lord said, that they should sit on twelve thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel ; those by whom "He sent forth strength for" His Church, and established the thing that He had wrought for His Temple's sake, the Temple of the Holy Ghost, in His New Jerusalem.

PSALM LXIX.

This awful prophecy of our Blessed Saviour's Passion is much quoted in the New Testament, and seems to have been often in the minds of Christ and His Apostles when not directly quoted by them. It has also a strong analogy with some portions of the prophecy and the Lamentations of Jeremiah, whose great sufferings seem to have been typical, in the highest degree, of the Passion of the Lord.

The cry of anguish with which the Psalm opens is of the same nature as others which are heard from the lips of Christ in other Psalms, and it testifies here and elsewhere to the thoroughly human character of that human nature which He bore ; so human that it was liable to the same fear of death which all experience. Hezekiah in his sickness, Jonah in the deep of the sea, Jeremiah in the mire of the pit, were all types of our Lord in this : but great as were their troubles and their fears, they were not overwhelmed as He was by the "floods of ungodliness" borne for others, nor had their fear of death that supernatural character which made His so infinitely painful. Yet, though He called upon the Father to save Him, He would not shorten or lessen His own suffering. He saved others, and He could have saved Himself : He walked upon the natural waters, but He suffered Himself to sink into the miry bed of that sea of persecution which surrounded Him : He comforted the penitent thief with the loving promise, "To-day shalt thou

The XIII. Day.

Evening
Prayer.John ii. 17
Rom. xv. 3.

9 For the zeal of thine house hath even eaten me : and the rebukes of them that rebuked thee are fallen upon me.

10 I wept and chastened myself with fasting : and that was turned to my reproof.

Lament. iii. 14.

11 I put on sackcloth also : and they jested upon me.

i. e. the rulers.
Lament. iii. 63.
Job xxx. 9.

12 They that sit in the gate speak against me : and the drunkards make songs upon me.

Luke xxiii. 44.
46.
2 Kings xix. 36.
Ezra ix. 5.
Dan. ix. 21.

13 But, Lord, I make my prayer unto thee : in an acceptable time.

14 Hear me, O God, in the multitude of thy mercy : even in the truth of thy salvation.

Jer. xxxviii. 6, 22.

15 Take me out of the mire, that I sink not : O let me be delivered from them that hate me, and out of the deep waters.

Lament. iii. 55.
Numb. xvi. 33.

16 Let not the water-flood drown me, neither let the deep swallow me up : and let not the pit shut her mouth upon me.

17 Hear me, O Lord, for thy loving-kindness is comfortable : turn thee unto me according to the multitude of thy mercies.

Lament. iii. 56.

18 And hide not thy face from thy servant, for I am in trouble : O haste thee, and hear me.

Lament. iii. 57.

19 Draw nigh unto my soul, and save it : O deliver me, because of mine enemies.

Quoniam zelus domus tuæ comedit me : et opprobria exprobrantium tibi, ceciderunt super me.

Et operui in jejunio animam meam : et factum est in opprobrium mihi.

Et posui vestimentum meum cilicium : et factus sum illis in parabolam.

Adversum me loquebantur qui sedebant in porta : et in me psallebant qui bibebant vinum.

Ego vero orationem meam ad te, Domine : tempus beneplaciti, Deus.

In multitudine misericordiæ tuæ exaudi me : in veritate salutis tuæ.

Eripe me de luto, ut non infigar : libera me ab his qui oderunt me, et de profundis aquarum.

Non me demergat tempestas aquæ : neque absorbeat me profundum ; neque urgeat super me puteus os suum.

Exaudi me, Domine, quoniam benigna est misericordia tua : secundum multitudinem miserationum tuarum respice in me.

Et ne avertas faciem tuam a puero tuo : quoniam tribulor, velociter exaudi me.

Intende animæ meæ, et libera eam : propter inimicos meos eripe me.

me Domine

be with Me in Paradise ;" but for Himself was the cry of woe, "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" ever ready to hear the cry of others, He Himself, for our sins, was "weary of crying," His "sight failing through waiting so long upon His God."

Thus, throughout this Psalm, the intensity of Christ's sufferings is set forth in language equalled only in its awful sadness by the twenty-second Psalm. He is guiltless and alone, and weak with weeping and fasting ; His enemies are mighty, and more in number than the hairs of His head. The sins of those who sinned against God are fallen upon Him Who knew no sin. He exchanged the joys of Heaven for the sorrows of earth, fasted from the Presence of His Father, and put on the sackcloth of human nature ; His loving work was turned to His reproof, so that when He spoke of God as His Father, they charged Him with blasphemy, and, instead of beholding His immaculate Human Nature, called Him the "son of the carpenter ;" the judges that "sat in the gate" condemned Him unjustly, and the foolish soldiers and passers by reviled Him.

But, in the midst of all this sorrowing prophecy of Christ's Passion, there is a continual appeal from the injustice of man to the justice and love of God ; and also a constant declaration of the great Truth that Christ suffered for the sins of mankind.

Thus, "They that hate Me without a cause" . . . . "I paid them the thing that I never took" . . . . "They that would destroy Me guiltless" . . . . "God, Thou knowest My simpleness, and My faults are not hid from Thee" . . . . "For Thy sake have I suffered reproof" . . . . "The zeal of Thine house hath even eaten Me" . . . . "But, Lord, I make My prayer unto Thee" . . . . "Hear Me, O Lord, for Thy loving-kindness is comfortable" . . . . "Thou hast known My reproof, My shame, and My dishonour" . . . . "Thy rebuke hath broken My heart."

Thus did the spotless Lamb of God plead from the midst of the fire of the sacrifice, pleading not for Himself, but for others. Thus did He pray that the sin by which He was borne down might be removed from Him, that it might be removed from those for whom He bore it. Thus did He cry "Save Me," "Take Me out of the deep waters," that, being Himself saved, He might be "mighty to save" all men. Thus did He hold forth His broken heart as an atonement for the hard hearts of sinners.

Like all Psalms of our Lord's Passion, this also ends in a song of Resurrection joy ; and in the expressions used we may trace clearly the manner in which Christ's Death, Descent into Hell, Resurrection, and Ascension, are all events in which the redeemed are made partakers through their union with Him. So the Lord hears the intercessions of the Poor, and the prisoners of hope

The XIII. Day. 20 Thou hast known my reproof,
Evening Prayer.
 Lament. iii. 61. my shame, and my dishonour : mine adversaries are all in thy sight.

John xix. 34. 21 Thy rebuke hath broken my heart ; I am full of heaviness : I looked for some to have pity on me, but there was no man, neither found I any to comfort me.

Lament. iii. 5.
 Matt. xxvii. 34
 John xix. 29. 22 They gave me gall to eat : and when I was thirsty they gave me vinegar to drink.

Rom. xi. 9. 10.
 2 Cor. ii. 16. 23 Let their table be made a snare to take themselves withal : and let the things that should have been for their wealth be unto them an occasion of falling.

Isa. xlv. 18.
 John xii. 40.
 Acts xviii. 26.
 2 Cor. iii. 14. 24 Let their eyes be blinded, that they see not : and ever bow thou down their backs.

25 Pour out thine indignation upon them : and let thy wrathful displeasure take hold of them.

Acts i. 20. 26 Let their habitation be void :
 and no man to dwell in their tents.

Isa. liii. 4, 5. 27 For they persecute him whom thou hast smitten : and they talk how they may vex them whom thou hast wounded.

Matt. xxiii. 32. 28 Let them fall from one wickedness to another : and not come into thy righteousness.

Tu seis improperium meum et Tu enim confusionem meam : et reverentiam verecundiam
 meam.

In conspectu tuo sunt omnes qui tri-bulant me : improperium expectavit cor meum et miseriam.

Et sustinui qui simul contristaretur meum contr.
 et non fuit : et qui consolaretur, et non et consolantem me inveni. quasi et

Et dederunt in escam meam fel : et in siti mea potaverunt me aceto.

Fiat mensa eorum coram ipsis in laqueum : et in retributiones et in scandalum.

Obscurentur oculi eorum ne videant :
 et dorsum eorum semper incurva.

Effunde super eos iram tuam : et furor iræ tuæ comprehendat eos. indignatio iræ

Fiat habitatio eorum deserta : et in tabernaculis eorum non sit qui inhabitet.

Quoniam quem tu percussisti, per-secuti sunt : et super dolorem vulne-rum meorum addiderunt.

Appone iniquitatem super iniquitatem eorum : et non intrent in justitiam tuam.

are released from their dark dungeon of death, to live in the light of Paradise ; the City of God is built up out of Christ's own Body, and all they which are written in the Lamb's book of life shall inherit it : "and every creature which is in Heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them," shall be heard "saying, Blessing, and honour, and glory, and power, be unto Him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb," even the Lamb as it had been slain, "for ever." [Rev. v. 13.]

§ The Imprecations.

Gentle-minded and loving Christians have often felt a difficulty in the use of those Psalms which, like the sixty-ninth, contain such strong expressions of feeling towards evil-doers as are apparently inconsistent with the precepts of charity enjoined in the New Testament. Psalms of this character have been sometimes called the "cursing" or "imprecatory" Psalms, and the spirit of them has been supposed to be so thoroughly Judaical as to make them unsuitable for use by the Christian Church. But such ideas respecting them are founded on an insufficient appreciation of the true sense in which all the Psalms are to be regarded : and they are, perhaps, accompanied by a too limited application of them to the experience and circumstances of the individual person who uses them.

It should be remembered as a first principle in the use of the imprecatory Psalms, that the imprecations are uttered against the enemies of God, not against those of David or any other merely human person. It may be doubted whether the sweet singer of Israel could ever have uttered them in any but a prophetic sense, for he was of too meek, forgiving, and tender a character to entertain so strong a spirit of vengeance as the personal application of his words would imply. When Saul was a most bitter enemy to him, David twice refrained from taking his life, though the king was completely in his power : when Shimei cursed him with the most shameful imprecations, he forgave him as a man, although as a righteous ruler he could not altogether overlook the crime committed against the sovereign's person : when his rebellious son Absalom died, the most pathetic tenderness was exhibited by the bereaved father, so that his "O Absalom, my son, my son," shadows forth the "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem," of the Son of David in after ages.

It was, therefore, as an inspired prophet, and not as a private writer, that David wrote the maledictions of the Psalms ; and he wrote them, not respecting any men because they were enemies of his own, but because they were enemies of his God. In the same spirit they are to be used by the Christian Church.

And this particular Psalm contains some striking references to the facts of the Crucifixion, which furnish a key to the use of the maledictions or imprecations wherever they are found. For these references to facts, which belong exclusively to the sufferings of our Lord, show that the enemies of Christ are those against whom the terrible words are recorded : as, also, that they are spoken in the Person of Christ, the righteous and most merciful Judge of all men. Thus we are led to the Gospel narrative,

The XIII. Day. 29 Let them be wiped out of the Evening
Prayer.
 Lament. iii. 66.
 Rev. xx. 15.
 xxi. 27.
 Matt. v. 11.

book of the living : and not be written among the righteous.

30 As for me, when I am poor and in heaviness : thy help, O God, shall lift me up.

Jonah ii. 9. 31 I will praise the Name of God with a song : and magnify it with thanksgiving.

Heb. ix. 23. 32 This also shall please the Lord :
 better than a bullock that hath horns and hoofs.

John v. 25 33 The humble shall consider this,
 vi. 57. xiv. 19.
 Isa. xl. 31. and be glad : seek ye after God, and your soul shall live.

Zech. ix. 12. 34 For the Lord heareth the poor :
 Isa. xli. 7. and despiseth not his prisoners.
 1 Pet. iii. 19.

35 Let heaven and earth praise him :
 the sea, and all that moveth therein.

Isa. xlv. 26. 36 For God will save Sion, and Rev. xxi. 10—23. build the cities of Judah : that men may dwell there, and have it in possession.

Isa. liii. 10. 37 The posterity also of his servants
 Rev. xxi. 27. shall inherit it : and they that love his Name shall dwell therein.

THE LXX PSALM.

Deus, in adiutorium.

Ps. xl. 16.

HASTE thee, O God, to deliver me : make haste to help me, O Lord.

Deleantur de libro viventium : et cum justis non scribantur.

Ego sum pauper et dolens : salus tua, et salus vultus tui Deus, suscepit me.

Laudabo Nomen Dei cum cantico : et magnificabo eum in laude.

Et placebit Deo super vitulum no-vellum : cornua producentem et un-gulas.

Videant pauperes et lætentur : quærite Deum, et vivet anima vestra.

Quoniam exaudivit pauperes Dominus : et vinctos suos non despexit. sprevit

Laudent illum cœli et terra : mare et omnia reptilia in eis. et omnia quæ in eis sunt

Quoniam Deus salvam faciet Sion : et ædificabuntur civitates Judæ.

Et inhabitabunt ibi : et hæreditate acquirant eam.

Et semen servorum ejus possidebit eam : et qui diligunt Nomen ejus habi-tabunt in ea.

PSALMUS LXIX.

DEUS, in adiutorium meum in-tende : Domine, ad adjuvandum me festina. *Thursd. Mattins.
 Maundy Thursd.,
 1st Noct.*

and to the historical words of Christ, to examine whether any thing analogous is to be found in the record of His meek, loving, and gentle life. And there it is to be observed, that He Who uttered the eight Benedictions in the Sermon on the Mount, also uttered the eight woes in the very same discourse : that He Who was merciful to repentant publicans and sinners, denounced unrepentant hypocrites in terms of extreme sternness as a "generation of vipers," and meted out to them words of most bitter scorn and condemnation : that He Who wept over Jerusalem, predicted at the same time, and in the terms of one passing a judicial sentence, that fearful siege and destruction, the details of which are unmatched for horror in the history of the world :
 that He Who prayed for His murderers, "Father, forgive them," was the same Who revealed His own future words, "Depart, ye cursed, into everlasting fire."

Remembering the disposition towards sinners which was entertained by the Saviour Who came to give up His life for them, we thus arrive at the conclusion that the more perfect the love of God and of souls is, the more decided and definite is the righteous indignation which is felt against those who dishonour the One, and ruin the other. And a further indication of this is found in the fact that it was the "Apostle of love" who wrote most severely of all the Apostles against unbelievers : and who was chosen by God to wind up the words of Holy Writ with the fearful maledictions, "He that is unjust, let him be unjust still ; and he which is filthy, let him be filthy still" . . . "If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book ; and if any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy city, and from the things which are written in this book." [Rev. xxii.

 11. 18, 19.]

The imprecations of the Psalms are, then, utterances of that "wrath of the Lamb," to fly from which, sinners, the enemies of Christ, will at the last call upon the rocks and hills to fall upon them, hide them, and annihilate them. [Rev. vi. 15—17.] They are spoken respecting those who finally refuse to become His friends, and who reject for ever the redeeming love which would have won them to His fold. When they are sung or said in the course of Divine Service or in private devotion, there must be no thought of applying them to any particular persons, or of taking them as words which have any reference to our own real or supposed wrongs.
 They are the words of Christ and His Church, not our words spoken as individual persons : they are uttered against the finally impenitent ; and who these are the Great Judge of all alone can decide. They must be used, therefore, in the spirit in which the martyrs cry, "Lord, how long," in which the Church Militant prays day by day, "Thy Kingdom come," and in which at the last, notwithstanding the horrors attending the Last Judgment, the Bride will respond to "Him that testi-fieth, I come quickly," "Even so, come, Lord Jesus."

PSALM LXX.

This Psalm is almost identical with the last six verses of the 3 G 2

The XIII. Day. ~ 2 Let them be ashamed and con-
Evening
Prayer.
Ps. xl. 17.
 founded that seek after my soul : let them be turned backward and put to confusion that wish me evil.

Ps. xl. 18.
 3 Let them for their reward be soon brought to shame : that cry over me,
 There, there.

Ps. xl. 19.
 4 But let all those that seek thee be joyful and glad in thee : and let all such as delight in thy salvation say always, The Lord be praised.

Ps. xl. 20.
 5 As for me, I am poor and in misery : haste thee unto me, O God.

Ps. xl. 21.
 6 Thou art my helper, and my redeemer : O Lord, make no long tarrying.

THE LXXI PSALM.

In te, Domine, speravi.

The XIV. Day. IN thee, O Lord, have I put my Morning
Prayer.
Visitation of the Sick.
Ps. xxxi. 1, 2.
 trust, let me never be put to confusion : but rid me, and deliver me in thy righteousness ; incline thine ear unto me, and save me.

Ps. xxxi. 3, 4.
 2 Be thou my strong hold, whereunto I may always resort : thou hast promised to help me, for thou art my house of defence and my castle.

3 Deliver me, O my God, out of the hand of the ungodly : out of the hand of the unrighteous and cruel man.

4 For thou, O Lord God, art the thing that I long for : thou art my hope, even from my youth.

5 Through thee have I been holden up ever since I was born : thou art he that took me out of my mother's womb ;
 my praise shall be always of thee.

6 I am become as it were a monster unto many : but my sure trust is in thee.

Matt. i. 20.
Luke ii. 52.
Matt. iii. 17.

i.e. a miraculous
prodigy.
Isa. viii. 18.
Zech. iii. 8.
Luke ii. 34.

Confundantur et revereantur : qui <sup>revereantur int-</sup> quærunt animam meam. <sup>mici mei qui</sup>

Avertantur retrorsum et erubescant :
 qui volunt mihi mala.

Avertantur statim erubescences : qui dicunt mihi, Euge, euge. <sup>ecogitant</sup>

Exultent et lætentur in te omnes qui <sup>læ'tentur qui quæ-</sup> quærunt te : et dicant semper, Magni- <sup>runt te Domine</sup> ficetur Dominus, qui diligunt salutare
 tuum.

Ego vero egenus et pauper sum :
 Deus, adjuva me.

Adjutor meus et liberator meus es tu :
 Domine, ne moreris. <sup>retardaveris</sup>

PSALMUS LXX.

IN te Domine speravi, non confundar <sup>Thursd. Mornings.</sup> in æternum : in justitia tua libera <sup>Maundy Thursd.,</sup> me et eripe me. <sup>1st Noct.</sup>

Inclina ad me aurem tuam : et salva <sup>libera</sup>
 me.

Esto mihi in Deum protectorem, et in locum munitum : ut salvum me facias.

Quoniam firmamentum meum : et refugium meum es tu.

Deus meus, eripe me de manu pec-catoris : et de manu contra legem agentis et iniqui. <sup>inique</sup>

Quoniam tu es patientia mea, Do-mine : Domine, spes mea a juventute mea.

In te confirmatus sum ex utero : de ventre matris meæ tu es protector meus :

In te cantatio mea semper : tanquam prodigium factus sum multis, et tu adjutor fortis.

fortieth ; but, as the second book of the Psalms is chiefly spoken in the person of Christ's Mystical Body, while the first is chiefly spoken in the Person of Christ Himself, so it has been thought that this Psalm is the voice of the Church crying out, "Lord, how long," at a period of great tribulation.

It is observable that the language of the second and third verses is such as will bear an interpretation of blessing rather than cursing. Saul sought after the souls of those whom he dragged to prison, and of God's holy martyr Stephen, and while he was "breathing out slaughters" such shame and confusion fell upon him, and so was he "turned backward," that he was converted to become a life servant and martyr of that Lord Who said to him,
 "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou Me?" [Acts vii. 58 ; ix. 4.]
 Many persecutors are known to have been converted to Christ in those ages, and doubtless there were among them some of those very men who had cried, "There, there," against the Lord Himself.

In praying, therefore, "Make haste to help me, O Lord," the Church prays in the same tone which the merciful Jesus taught when He bade us pray daily, "Thy Kingdom come;" that all, even the enemies and persecutors of Christ, may be brought, like St. Paul, to be joyful and glad in Him.

PSALM LXXI.

Although the subject of this Psalm is the same as that of the preceding, its subdued tone and the absence of any expressions of extreme anguish give it quite a different character. While the one may be supposed to represent the bitter pain of the Cross,

The XIV. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

Rev. i. 14.
2 Cor. xii. 10.

Rev. xx. 10.

Rev. i. 14.

Rom. viii. 35.

7 O let my mouth be filled with thy praise : that I may sing of thy glory and honour all the day long.

8 Cast me not away in the time of age : forsake me not when my strength faileth me.

9 For mine enemies speak against me, and they that lay wait for my soul take their counsel together, saying : God hath forsaken him ; persecute him, and take him, for there is none to deliver him.

10 Go not far from me, O God : my God, haste thee to help me.

11 Let them be confounded and perish that are against my soul : let them be covered with shame and dishonour that seek to do me evil.

12 As for me, I will patiently abide alway : and will praise thee more and more.

13 My mouth shall daily speak of thy righteousness and salvation : for I know no end thereof.

14 I will go forth in the strength of the Lord God : and will make mention of thy righteousness only.

15 Thou, O God, hast taught me from my youth up until now : therefore will I tell of thy wondrous works.

16 Forsake me not, O God, in mine old age, when I am gray-headed : until I have shewed thy strength unto this generation, and thy power to all them that are yet for to come.

17 Thy righteousness, O God, is very high : and great things are they that thou hast done ; O God, who is like unto thee ?

Repleatur os meum laude ut cantem ut possim cantare gloriam tuam : tota die magnitudinem magnificentiam
tuam.

Ne projicias me in tempore senectutis : cum defecerit virtus mea, ne derelinquas me.

Quia dixerunt inimici mei mihi : et mala mihi qui custodiebant animam meam consilium fecerunt in unum.

Dicentes, Deus dereliquit eum : persequimini et comprehendite eum ; quia non est qui eripiat.

Deus, ne elongeris a me : Deus meus, in auxilium meum respice.

Confundantur et deficiant detrahentes animæ meæ : operiantur confusione et pudore qui quærunt mala mihi.

Ego autem semper sperabo : et adjiciam in te sperabo super omnem laudem tuam.

Os meum annuntiabit justitiam pronuntiabit
tuam : tota die salutare tuum.

Quoniam non cognovi litteraturam, negotiationes introibo in potentias Domini : Domine memorabor justitiæ tuæ solius.

Deus, docuisti me a juventute mea : et usque nunc pronuntiabo mirabilia tua.

Et usque in senectam et senium : Deus, ne derelinquas me :

Donec annuntiem brachium tuum : generationi omni quæ ventura est :

Potentiam tuam et justitiam tuam, Deus, usque in altissima, quæ fecisti magnalia : Deus, quis similis tibi ?

the other may be taken as illustrating the period immediately preceding the Resurrection, when the remembrance of the Passion has not yet given place to the triumphant joy of a completed Victory. It is the same Voice which said, "Thou shalt not leave My soul in Hell, neither wilt Thou suffer Thine Holy One to see corruption." Thus the Psalm represents to us the "patient abiding alway" of the holy Jesus, waiting for the arrival of the appointed time for Him to be brought from the deep of the earth again, going forth in the strength of the Divine Nature, and never doubting the righteousness of the Divine Will<sup>1</sup>.

From the fourth to the eighth verses inclusive, and also in the fifteenth and sixteenth, there are such references to the duration of our Lord's life on earth as seem to indicate that, although it continued for only thirty-three years, yet every period of man's life was represented by, or condensed into it. "Cast Me not away in the time of age," may well lead us to believe that the closing part of our suffering Redeemer's time of humiliation was, to Him, as the concluding part of an old man's life, rather than that of a man in the vigour of youth ; and that in so many years as are reckoned to one generation He exhausted the experiences of the longest lifetime. There may be, also, in the expression, "Forsake Me not when My strength faileth Me," and in the pleading of the two following verses, a prayer that the Godhead may yet continue with the Manhood, even when the strength of the Incarnation [see note on Psalm xciii. 1] seemed to be failing in the last epoch of Christ's humiliation, the Descent into Hell. If so, then these verses show that Christ's enemies were not quieted by His death, but that the great Adversary and his hosts "lay wait for" His "soul," under the impression that it was forsaken by the Divine Nature when they beheld it separated from His Body. It cannot be doubted, that, to the Omniscient Eye which foresaw the events of Christ's Passion in the time of <sup>1</sup> It is observable that although the first part of this Psalm is identical with the first part of the thirty-first, the special compline words of our Lord, "Into Thy hands I commend My spirit," are not found here.

The XIV. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Rom. x. 7.
Eph. iv. 9.

18 O what great troubles and adversities hast thou shewed me! and yet didst thou turn and refresh me : yea, and broughtest me from the deep of the earth again.

Acts vii. 56.
Rev. i. 13.
v. 5—10.

19 Thou hast brought me to great honour : and comforted me on every side.

20 Therefore will I praise thee and thy faithfulness, O God, playing upon an instrument of musick : unto thee will I sing upon the harp, O thou Holy One of Israel.

21 My lips will be fain when I sing unto thee : and so will my soul whom thou hast delivered.

Rev. xx. 14.

22 My tongue also shall talk of thy righteousness all the day long : for they are confounded and brought unto shame that seek to do me evil.

THE LXXII PSALM.

Deus, judicium.

Luke i. 32.
John v. 22.
Isa. ix. 6.

GIVE the King thy judgements, O God : and thy righteousness unto the King's son.

Isa. xxxii. 1.
Matt. v. 3. 17.

2 Then shall he judge thy people according unto right : and defend the poor.

Micah iv. 3.

3 The mountains also shall bring peace : and the little hills righteousness unto the people.

4 He shall keep the simple folk by their right : defend the children of the poor, and punish the wrong doer.

5 They shall fear thee, as long as the sun and moon endureth : from one generation to another.

Quantas ostendisti mihi tribulationes multas et malas ; et conversus vivificasti me : et de abyssis terræ iterum reduxisti me.

Multiplicasti magnificentiam tuam : justitiam et conversus consolatus es me. exornatus es

Nam et ego confitebor tibi in vasis psalmi : veritatem tuam, Deus ; psallam tibi in cithara, sanctus Israël.

Exsultabunt labia mea cum cantavero Gaudebunt tibi : et anima mea quam redemisti.

Sed et lingua mea tota die meditabitur mea (tota die)
justitiam tuam : cum confusi et reveriti fuerint qui quærunt mala mihi.

PSALMUS LXXI.

DEUS, judicium tuum Regi da : et justitiam tuam Filio Regis : *Thursd Mattins Christmas, Epiphany, Maundy
Thursday,
Trinity Sund.,
2nd Noct.*

Judicare populum tuum in justitia : justitia tua et pauperes tuos in judicio.

Suscipiant montes pacem populo : populo tuo et colles justitiam.

Judicabit pauperes populi, et salvos In sua justitia faciet filios pauperum : et humiliabit judicabit calumniatorem.

Et permanebit cum sole et ante lunam : in generatione et generatio- in sæculum sæculi nem.

the Psalmist, the spiritual foes of the Redeemer must have been as penetratingly known, at least, as those who visibly stood in the hall of Pilate, or around the Cross.

Like all Psalms which relate to the sufferings of our Lord, this one ends in tones of joy and triumph :—"O what great troubles and adversities hast Thou showed Me" in My Life and My Death, "and yet didst Thou turn and refresh Me" in Paradise, "yea, and broughtest Me from the deep of the earth again" by the re-union of Body and Soul in a glorious Resurrection.

A manifest application of this Psalm to the Church, and to Christians in a time of sickness, is suggested by the words of the prophet Isaiah :—"They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength ; they shall mount up with wings as eagles ; they shall run, and not be weary ; and they shall walk, and not faint." [Isa. xl. 31.] As Christ was a "wonder" unto many, so His Church has sometimes been so far partaker in His sufferings as to say, "We are made a spectacle unto the world, and to angels, and to men." [1 Cor. iv. 9.] But such afflictions draw closer the bonds of union between the Head and the members, and will enable Him to say at last, "Behold, I and the children whom the Lord hath given Me are for signs and for wonders in Israel from the Lord of hosts, which dwelleth in Mount Zion." [Isa. viii. 18. Heb. ii. 13.]

PSALM LXXII.

These words of prophetic joy were ever considered by the Jews to be spoken of the Messiah and His Kingdom : to the Christian, with the light of the Gospel and the history of the Church before him, this Psalm can have no other meaning<sup>1</sup>. If it ever had a partial application to Solomon, it could only have been in a very inferior degree applied to him as a type of the Son of David, Whose <sup>1</sup> The neglect of the spiritual interpretation of the Psalms is painfully illustrated by a perversion of the seventh verse in the hymn ordered instead of Venite Exullemus in the "Accession Service." Some other perversions in this hymn are equally objectionable.

The XIV. Day.
Morning

Prayer.
Judg. vi. 37.
Ps. lxxviii. 9.

Rev. xii. 1.

6 He shall come down like the rain into a fleece of wool : even as the drops that water the earth.

7 In his time shall the righteous flourish : yea, and abundance of peace, so long as the moon endureth.

Rev. xi. 15.
Micah vii. 12.

8 His dominion shall be also from the one sea to the other : and from the flood unto the world's end.

9 They that dwell in the wilderness shall kneel before him : his enemies shall lick the dust.

Isa. lx. 9.
Zeph. ii. 11.
Matt. xii. 42.

10 The kings of Tharsis and of the isles shall give presents : the kings of Arabia and Saba shall bring gifts.

Rev. iv. 10.
xxi. 24.

11 All kings shall fall down before him : all nations shall do him service.

2 Cor. viii. 9.

12 For he shall deliver the poor when he crieth : the needy also, and him that hath no helper.

13 He shall be favourable to the simple and needy : and shall preserve the souls of the poor.

Rev. vi. 10.
xix. 2.

14 He shall deliver their souls from falsehood and wrong : and dear shall their blood be in his sight.

Rev. i. 18.

15 He shall live, and unto him shall be given of the gold of Arabia : prayer shall be made ever unto him, and daily shall he be praised.

John xii. 24.
Rev. xxii. 2.

16 There shall be an heap of corn in the earth, high upon the hills : his fruit shall shake like Libanus, and shall be green in the city like grass upon the earth.

17 His Name shall endure for ever ; his Name shall remain under the sun among the posterities : which shall be blessed through him ; and all the heathen shall praise him.

Descendet sicut pluvia in vellus : et sicut stillicidia stillantia super terram.

Orietur in diebus ejus justitia, et abundantia pacis : donec auferatur extollatur luna.

Et dominabitur a mari usque ad mare : et a flumine usque ad terminos orbis terrarum.

Coram illo procident Æthiopes : et inimici ejus terram lingent.

Reges Tharsis et insulæ munera offerent : reges Arabum et Saba dona adducent.

Et adorabunt eum omnes reges : omnes gentes servient ei.

Quia liberabit pauperem a potente : et pauperem cui non erat adjutor. et inopem

Parcet pauperi et inopi : et animas pauperum salvas faciet.

Ex usuris et iniquitate redimet liberabit animas eorum : et honorabile nomen præclarum eorum coram illo.

Et vivet et dabitur ei de auro Arabiæ : et adorabunt de ipso semper ; tota die benedicent ei.

Erit firmamentum in terra in summis montium ; superextolletur super Libanum fructus ejus : et florebunt de civitate sicut fœnum terræ.

Sit Nomen ejus benedictum in sæcula : ante solem permanet Nomen ejus. permanet nomen ejus et ante lunam sedis ejus

Et benedicentur in ipso omnes tribus terræ : omnes gentes magnificabunt eum.

glorious reign was to be universal and without end ; and of Whom another prophet wrote, "Behold, a King shall reign in righteousness, and princes shall rule in judgment. And a Man shall be as an hiding-place from the wind, and a covert from the tempest ; as rivers of water in a dry place ; as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land." "For unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given : and the government shall be upon His shoulder ; and His Name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace. Of the increase of His government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon His Kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice, from henceforth even for ever." "Behold, a greater than Solomon is here."

The perpetuity, the universality, and the infinite blessings of Christ's Kingdom are, then, mystically set forth in this Psalm. Christ came among the Jews as the rain upon Gideon's fleece, leaving all around dry : but as the fleece was afterwards left dry while all around it fell the rain, so, when He was rejected by His own nation, He caused the Gentile world to blossom and bear fruit. He came, therefore, to establish an universal dominion "from sea to sea," even to the "utmost bounds of the earth," to establish also a "Kingdom of God within" us, from the sea of Baptism to the sea of glass before the throne, one from the flood to the world's end, even from the flood of destruction to the "river of the water of life." And it is very observable that this perpetual and universal Kingdom depends altogether on the "righteousness" of the King's Son, that immaculate holiness and obedience which enabled Him to be the Saviour of sinners, the "work" of which is "peace," and the effect of it "quietness and assurance for ever."

To Him, then, is the "gold" of worship and the incense of 1 "Tharsis and the isles" indicate all known and unknown regions lying beyond the Straits of Gibraltar.

The XIV. Day. 18 Blessed be the Lord God, even Morning the God of Israel : which only doeth
Prayer. wondrous things ;
Isa. vi. 3. 19 And blessed be the Name of his Rev. xviii. 1. Majesty for ever : and all the earth shall be filled with his Majesty.
Amen, Amen.

THE LXXIII PSALM.

Quam bonus Israel !

Evening TRULY God is loving unto Israel : Prayer. even unto such as are of a clean heart.
2 Nevertheless, my feet were almost gone : my treadings had well-nigh slipt.
Jer. xii. 1—4. 3 And why ? I was grieved at the wicked : I do also see the ungodly in such prosperity.
Job xxi. 7—9. 4 For they are in no peril of death :
but are lusty and strong.
Luke xvi. 19. 5 They come in no misfortune like other folk : neither are they plagued like other men.
6 And this is the cause that they are so holden with pride : and overwhelmed with cruelty.
Luke xii. 18. 7 Their eyes swell with fatness :
and they do even what they lust.
Job xxi. 14. 8 They corrupt other, and speak of Rev. xiii. 6. wicked blasphemy : their talking is against the most High.
9 For they stretch forth their mouth
ai. "into." unto the heaven : and their tongue goeth through the world.
10 Therefore fall the people unto them : and thereout suck they no small advantage.

Benedictus Dominus Deus Israël : qui facit mirabilia solus : magna

Et benedictum Nomen majestatis ejus in æternum : et replebitur majes- in æternum et in tate ejus omnis terra. saculum saculi Fiat, fiat.

PSALMUS LXXII.

QUAM bonus Israël Deus : his qui Thursd. Mattins.
recto sunt corde. Maundy Thursd.,
2nd Noct.

Mei autem pene moti sunt pedes :
pene effusi sunt gressus mei.

Quia zelavi super iniquos : pacem peccatorum videns. in peccatoribus

Quia non est respectus morti eorum : declinatio morti et firmamentum in plaga eorum. eorum nec

In labore hominum non sunt : et cum hominibus non flagellabuntur.

Ideo tenuit eos superbia : operti sunt iniquitate et impietate sua.

Prodiit quasi ex adipe iniquitas eorum : transierunt in affectum cordis. in disputatione

Cogitaverunt et locuti sunt nequi-tiam : iniquitatem in excelso locuti
sunt.

Posuerunt in cœlum os suum : et lingua eorum transivit in terra.

Ideo convertetur populus meus hic : revertetur huc et dies pleni invenientur in eis.

prayer to be offered day by day through all ages ; and by Him is the earth blessed with "an heap of corn," the "Bread of Life," to be the sustenance of His people here, and until the time when "His fruit shall shake like Libanus" in the Tree of Life, and be "green in the midst of the street of" the New Jerusalem.

The doxology of this Psalm forms to it a fitting conclusion of servent praise, but it also marks the end of the second book of Psalms ; in which it may be observed that the Church, as the Mystical Body of Christ, has been more prominently brought forward than in the first book.

THE THIRD BOOK.

PSALM LXXIII.

As our Lord Jesus increased in wisdom as well as in stature [Luke ii. 52], it must be concluded that the fulness of knowledge did not at once come to His Human Nature, notwithstanding its union with His Omniscient Divine Nature. It is not, therefore, irreverent to suppose that some actual condition of our Lord's mind is predicted in this Psalm ; and that there was a period in His life when the vision of a Divine Providence was in some degree veiled from His sight, as at last was the Vision of the Divine Presence.

Another view that may be taken is, that, as the Penitential Psalms are the words of Christ speaking for and in His sinful members, so these are His words speaking for and in those whose eyes behold things darkly, so that "men" seem "as trees walking," until His word causes them to see clearly, and His unveiled Presence reveals the mysteries of His hidden Providence.

The twenty-first chapter of Job is very similar in character to the seventy-third Psalm, and it is one of the many striking and instructive coincidences brought out by the daily services of the sanctuary that on the 14th of June the one is the first lesson at Mattins, the other an Evensong Psalm. This coincidence is not the less striking because of the manner in which Job, as well as David, was so conspicuous a type of our Blessed Lord : for it

The XIV. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Job xxi. 15.

11 Tush, say they, how should God perceive it : is there knowledge in the most High ?

12 Lo, these are the ungodly, these prosper in the world, and these have riches in possession : and I said, Then have I cleansed my heart in vain, and washed mine hands in innoceny.

Luke xvi. 20.

13 All the day long have I been punished : and chastened every morning.

Isa. liii. 8—10.

14 Yea, and I had almost said even as they : but lo, then I should have condemned the generation of thy children.

15 Then thought I to understand this : but it was too hard for me,

1 Cor. xiii. 12.

16 Until I went into the sanctuary of God : then understood I the end of these men ;

17 Namely, how thou dost set them in slippery places : and castest them down, and destroyest them.

Job xxi. 13.
Luke xvi. 23.
xii. 20.

18 Oh, how suddenly do they consume : perish, and come to a fearful end !

19 Yea, even like as a dream when one awaketh : so shalt thou make their image to vanish out of the city.

20 Thus my heart was grieved : and it went even through my reins.

21 So foolish was I, and ignorant : even as it were a beast before thee.

Heb. xii. 7.

22 Nevertheless, I am alway by thee : for thou hast holden me by my right hand.

Heb. xii. 2.

23 Thou shalt guide me with thy counsel : and after that receive me with glory.

1 Cor. ii. 9.

24 Whom have I in heaven but thee : and there is none upon earth that I desire in comparison of thee.

25 My flesh and my heart faileth : but God is the strength of my heart, and my portion for ever.

Et dixerunt, Quomodo scit Deus :
et si est scientia in Excelso ?

Ecce ipsi peccatores, et abundantes in sæculo : obtinuerunt divitias.

Et dixi, Ergo sine causa justificavi cor meum : et lavi inter innocentes manus meas :

Et fui flagellatus tota die : et castigatio mea in matutinis. et index meus in mat.

Si dicebam, Narrabo sic : ecce nationem filiorum tuorum reprobavi. natio filiorum tuorum quibus disposui

Existimabam ut cognoscerem : hoc labor est ante me.

Donec intrem in sanctuarium Dei :
et intelligam in novissimis eorum. novissima

Veruntamen propter dolos posuisti eis : dejecisti eos dum allevarentur. disposuisti

Quomodo facti sunt in desolationem ? subito defecerunt : perierunt propter iniquitatem suam.

Velut somnium surgentium, Domine : a somno exur-ge tū . . . imaginem ipsorum ad
nihilum rediges. gines eorum

Quia inflammatum est cor meum, et renes mei commutati sunt : et ego ad nihilum redactus sum et nescivi. delectatum est cor resoluti sunt

Ut jumentum factus sum apud te :
et ego semper tecum.

Tenuisti manum dexteram meam, et in voluntate tua deduxisti me : et cum gloria suscepisti me. adsumpsisti me

Quid enim mihi est in cælo ? et a te quid volui super terram ? et astat in cælo

Defecit caro mea et cor meum :
Deus cordis mei et pars mea Deus in æternum. in sæcula illustrates the principle laid down by Christ that the Scriptures speak in every page concerning Him. It was true of Him in the most literal sense that while the ungodly were prospering in the world and had great riches in possession, He was punished all the day long, chastened every morning, and without a place where to lay His Head.

There are few portions of Holy Scripture which offer so much consolation to the Church of Christ, or to individual Christians in time of affliction and depression. The powers of wickedness have often seemed to be prevailing, and God's purposes to be failing ; prosperity has often seemed to follow the footsteps of vice, and misery that of virtue : but this is only a superficial and short-sighted view of things, which may be corrected by "going into the sanctuary of God," and looking at the eternal life of mankind as the true life. Then it will be found, that, though Antichrist and his ministers may prevail for a time, Christ and His Church shall reign for ever and ever ; and that though wicked Dives may have his good things and holy Lazarus

The XIV. Day. Evening
Prayer.
Rev. xviii. 3. 9.

26 For lo, they that forsake thee shall perish : thou hast destroyed all them that commit fornication against thee.

Heb. x. 36.
2 Kings xix. 21.

27 But it is good for me to hold me fast by God, to put my trust in the Lord God : and to speak of all thy works in the gates of the daughter of Sion.

THE LXXIV PSALM.

Ut quid, Deus.

Rev. vi. 10.

O GOD, wherefore art thou absent from us so long : why is thy wrath so hot against the sheep of thy pasture?

Deut. ix. 29.
Exod. xv. 16.
1 Cor. vi. 20.

2 O think upon thy congregation : whom thou hast purchased and redeemed of old.

Gen. xlix. 10.
Heb. vii. 14.

3 Think upon the tribe of thine inheritance : and mount Sion, wherein thou hast dwelt.

4 Lift up thy feet, that thou mayest utterly destroy every enemy : which hath done evil in thy sanctuary.

2 Thess. ii. 4.
Rev. xiii. 16.

5 Thine adversaries roar in the midst of thy congregations : and set up their banners for tokens.

6 He that hewed timber afore out of the thick trees : was known to bring it to an excellent work.

1 Kings vi. 29.
2 Kings xxv. 13.

7 But now they break down all the carved work thereof : with axes and hammers.

2 Kings xxv. 9.
Jer. lii. 13.

8 They have set fire upon thy holy places : and have defiled the dwelling-place of thy Name, even unto the ground.

9 Yea, they said in their hearts, Let us make havock of them altogether : thus have they burnt up all the houses of God in the land.

Quia ecce, qui elongant se a te peribunt : perdidisti omnes qui fornicantur abs te.

Mihi autem adhærere Deo bonum est : ponere in Domino Deo spem meam :

Ut annuntiem omnes prædicationes laudes tuas : in portis filiæ Sion.

PSALMUS LXXIII.

UT quid, Deus, repulisti in finem : iratus est furor tuus super oves pascuæ tuæ ? Thursd. Mattins.
Maundy Thursd.,
2nd Noct.
gregis tui

Memor esto congregationis tuæ : quam possedisti ab initio. creasti

Redemisti virgam hæreditatis tuæ : Liberasi . . . habilius in idipso mons Sion, in quo habitasti in eo.

Leva manus tuas in superbias eorum in finem : quanta malignatus est inimicus in sancto.

Et gloriati sunt qui oderunt te : in medio solennitatis tuæ. in medio atrio tuo

Posuerunt signa sua, signa : et non cognoverunt sicut in exitu super summum. in via supra

Quasi in silva lignorum securibus exciderunt januas ejus in idipsum : in securi et ascia dejecerunt eam. bipenne et Incenderunt igni sanctuarium tuum in terra : polluerunt tabernaculum Nominis tui.

Dixerunt in corde suo cognatio eorum simul : Quiescere faciamus omnes dies festos Dei a terra. eorum inter se Venite comprimamus omnes

PSALM LXXIV.

This wailing lamentation belongs either historically or prophetically to the period when God's Presence had been removed from Zion during the time of the Babylonish Captivity<sup>1</sup>. It is his evil things in this world, yet hereafter the prosperous sinner will be tormented and the afflicted saint comforted.

<sup>1</sup> It is a mistake to consider this Psalm as applicable to the destruction of the Temple by the Romans under Titus. When this event occurred, the Presence of God had been removed from the Temple to the Church. The Spirit of God, speaking by St. Paul, declared that however glorious the Old Dispensation was, the New Dispensation far exceeded it in glory. The same Spirit, speaking by the Psalmist, would not have lamented the passing away of that Old Dispensation in such terms as are here used. But such terms are quite natural in respect to the temporary destruction of a system which was not yet permanently replaced by a better.

As yet we cannot understand these mysteries of Providence any more than we can understand the mysteries of God's Personality and Trinity ; though we know as much as this, that Christ Himself was chastened, and was made perfect through sufferings, and that "if ye endure chastening, God dealeth with you as with sons." Hereafter, they who obtain an entrance into the eternal sanctuary of the Heavenly Jerusalem will understand these things. Man once endeavoured prematurely to attain such fulness of knowledge and to "be as God : " hereafter "we shall be like Him" in our degree, even in the understanding of His Providential acts : no longer looking upon Him darkly as through a glass, but seeing "Him as He is," perfect in justice, love, and truth. [1 John iii. 2.]

The XIV. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Dan. xi. 31.
Job xxi. 20.

10 We see not our tokens, there is not one prophet more : no, not one is there among us, that understandeth any more.

11 O God, how long shall the adversary do this dishonour : how long shall the enemy blaspheme thy Name, for ever?

Cf. Prov. xxvi. 15.

12 Why withdrawest thou thy hand : why pluckest thou not thy right hand out of thy bosom to consume the enemy?

13 For God is my King of old : the help that is done upon earth he doeth it himself.

Gen. iii. 15.
Matt. xxviii. 19.

14 Thou didst divide the sea through thy power : thou brakest the heads of the dragons in the waters.

Rev. xix. 17.

15 Thou smotest the heads of Leviathan in pieces : and gavest him to be meat for the people in the wilderness.

Zech. xiii. 1.
John iv. 14.
Rev. vii. 17.
xii. 16.

16 Thou broughtest out fountains and waters out of the hard rocks : thou driedst up mighty waters.

John i. 9.
Mal. iv. 2.

17 The day is thine, and the night is thine : thou hast prepared the light and the sun.

18 Thou hast set all the borders of the earth : thou hast made summer and winter.

Rev. xiii. 1. 6.

19 Remember this, O Lord, how the enemy hath rebuked : and how the foolish people hath blasphemed thy Name.

20 O deliver not the soul of thy turtle-dove unto the multitude of the enemies : and forget not the congregation of the poor for ever.

Jer. xxxi. 31.

21 Look upon the covenant : for all the earth is full of darkness, and cruel habitations.

22 O let not the simple go away ashamed : but let the poor and needy give praise unto thy Name.

Signa nostra non vidimus, jam non est propheta : et nos non cognoscet amplius.

Usquequo, Deus, improperebit inimicus : irritat adversarius Nomen tuum in finem ?

Ut quid avertis manum tuam : et faciem tuam dexteram tuam de medio sinu tuo in finem ?

Deus autem Rex noster ante sæcula : operatus est salutem in medio terræ.

Tu confirmasti in virtute tua mare : contribulasti capita draconum in aquis.

Tu confregisti capita draconis : de- magni et dedisti disti eum escam populis Æthiopum.

Tu dirupisti fontes et torrentes : tu siccasti fluvios Ethan.

Tuus est dies, et tua est nox : tu fecisti solem et lunam fabricatus es auroram et solem.

Tu fecisti omnes terminos terræ : æstatem et ver tu plasmasti ea. tu fecisti ea

Memor esto hujus, inimicus improperavit Domino : et populus insipiens incitavit Nomen tuum. hujus creature tuæ exacerboasti nomen

Ne tradas bestiis animas confitentes tibi : et animas pauperum tuorum ne obliviscaris in finem.

Respice in testamentum tuum : quia repleti sunt qui obscurati sunt terræ domibus iniquitatum.

Ne avertatur humilis factus confusus : pauper et inops laudabunt Nomen tuum.

not, however, the lamentation of penitents, like the prayer of Daniel (which in some respects corresponds with this Psalm), but of the Church speaking by her Head. Hence there is no trace of such words as those of Daniel, "Yea, all Israel have transgressed Thy law . . . therefore the curse is poured upon us." [Dan. ix. 11.] The one thought which pervades the Psalm is that of the dishonour done to God by the desolation of His holy House ; and the cry goes up to His Throne, "How long shall the Adversary do this dishonour ? . . . Maintain Thine own cause." It is not the sinner who speaks, pleading, "O Lord, hear ; O Lord, forgive ; O Lord, hearken and do : defer not, for Thine own sake, O my God ; for Thy city and Thy people are called by Thy Name." [Dan. ix. 19.] But it is the Voice of Him Who cried, "Father, glorify Thy Name."

This literal application of it to the Captivity, and the destruction of Solomon's Temple, is sufficiently evident ; and it is only necessary to point out that Christ seems already to be pleading for His Church even before the Dispensation of Sinai had given place to that of the Incarnation. It is far more clear, however, that the Psalm represents Him as pleading for the New Jerusalem in times of depression, affliction, and persecution : and especially in that time of desolation of which He Himself prophesied

The XIV. Day.
Evening
Prayer.

23 Arise, O God, maintain thine own cause : remember how the foolish man blasphemeth thee daily.

24 Forget not the voice of thine enemies : the presumption of them that hate thee increaseth ever more and more.

THE LXXV PSALM.

Confitebimur tibi.

The XV. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

Cf. Song of Hannah, 1 Sam. ii. 1-10, and the Magnificat.

UNTO thee, O God, do we give thanks : yea, unto thee do we give thanks.

2 Thy Name also is so nigh : and that do thy wondrous works declare.

Luke xxii. 30.
1 Cor. vi. 2.

3 When I receive the congregation : I shall judge according unto right.

4 The earth is weak, and all the inhabitants thereof : I bear up the pillars of it.

2 Thess. ii. 4.
Rev. xiii. 6. 8.

5 I said unto the fools, Deal not so madly : and to the ungodly, Set not up your horn.

6 Set not up your horn on high : and speak not with a stiff neck.

[Cf. Dan. viii. 6.
9. xi. passim.
Rev. xvi. 12.]

7 For promotion cometh neither from the east, nor from the west : nor yet from the south.

2 Kings xix. 25,
26.
Rev. xiii. 7.

8 And why? God is the Judge : he putteth down one, and setteth up another.

Rev. xiv. 10.

9 For in the hand of the Lord there is a cup, and the wine is red : it is full mixed, and he poureth out of the same.

Rev. xvi. 19.

10 As for the dregs thereof : all the ungodly of the earth shall drink them, and suck them out.

Rev. xix. 1.

11 But I will talk of the God of Jacob : and praise him for ever.

Rev. xvii. 3. 16.
xvii. 2.
v. 6.

12 All the horns of the ungodly also will I break : and the horns of the righteous shall be exalted.

Exsurge, Deus, judica causam tuam : memor esto improperorum tuorum, eorum quæ ab insipiente sunt tota die.

Ne obliviscaris voces inimicorum tuorum : superbia eorum qui te oderunt ascendit semper voces quærentium te ascendit semper ad te

PSALMUS LXXXIV.

CONFITEBIMUR tibi, Deus, confitebimur : et invocabimus Nomen tuum.

Thursd. Mattins.
Monday Thursd.
App. and Evng.,
3rd Noct.

Narrabimus mirabilia tua : cum accepero tempus, ego justitias judicabo.

Narrabo omnia

Liquefacta est terra et omnes qui habitant in ea : ego confirmavi columnas ejus.

Dixi iniquis, Nolite inique agere : et delinquentibus, Nolite exaltare cornu.

Nolite extollere in altum cornu vestrum : nolite loqui adversus Deum iniquitatem.

Quia neque ab oriente, neque ab occidente, neque a desertis montibus : quoniam Deus judex est.

Hunc humiliat et hunc exaltat : quia calix in manu Domini vini meri plenus mixto.

Et inclinavit ex hoc in hoc ; veruntamen fæx ejus non est exinanita : bibent omnes peccatores terræ.

bibent ex eo

Ego autem annuntiabo in sæculum : in sæcula gaudebo cantabo Deo Jacob.

Et omnia cornua peccatorum confringam : et exaltabuntur cornua justi.

as to happen in the last days. No human words can heighten the awful horror of the picture drawn by our Lord in Matt. xxiv., and by St. John in Rev. xiii. 8, in which both are setting forth the final attempt of the Adversary to dishonour God by destroying His Church ; and to that period, doubtless, belongs the full force of this Psalm.

But every opposition offered to the true work of Christ's Church, is an approach towards that height of blasphemy and persecution which will characterize that period. In respect to all such trouble, therefore, the Church continually sings this supplicatory hymn, beseeching the Lord to "maintain His own cause."

PSALM LXXXV.

This is a song of triumphant hope sung by the Church of God in prospect of the final contest with Antichrist : sung, not as by a human community, but as by the Mystical Body of Christ ; and, therefore, as by Christ Himself speaking in and by His Church.

The "Name" of God is brought "so nigh" to man through the Incarnation of the second Person in the Blessed Trinity, and evidence of its nighness is given by all the wondrous works which have been done in the kingdom which Christ appointed to His Church as His Father had appointed unto Him. [Luke xxii. 29.] Though, therefore, the earth is weak (or "poured out" in weakness), yet does Christ, by His Presence in the Church, "bear up the pillars of it," and establish His Kingdom as "a city which cannot be moved." Hence the folly of those who oppose and seek to overthrow the Church of Christ ; a folly which will culminate in the mad and terrible violence of the great Antichrist who will be "revealed in his time," the "Ungodly," who sets up his horn

THE LXXVI PSALM.

Notus in Judæa.

The XV. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

Gen. xiv. 18.
Heb. vii. 2.

2 Kings xix. 35.
Rev. xix. 15, 20.

Rev. xvii. 9.
xiv. 1.

Rev. xvi. 18.
xx. 11.

Rev. xxi. 24.

Rev. xxi. 25.

IN Jewry is God known : his Name is great in Israel.

2 At Salem is his tabernacle : and his dwelling in Sion.

3 There brake he the arrows of the bow : the shield, the sword, and the battle.

4 Thou art of more honour and might : than the hills of the robbers.

5 The proud are robbed, they have slept their sleep : and all the men whose hands were mighty have found nothing.

6 At thy rebuke, O God of Jacob :
both the chariot and horse are fallen.

7 Thou, even thou art to be feared :
and who may stand in thy sight when thou art angry ?

8 Thou didst cause thy judgement to be heard from heaven : the earth trembled, and was still,

9 When God arose to judgement :
and to help all the meek upon earth.

10 The fierceness of man shall turn to thy praise : and the fierceness of them shalt thou refrain.

11 Promise unto the Lord your God, and keep it, all ye that are round about him : bring presents unto him that ought to be feared.

12 He shall refrain the spirit of princes : and is wonderful among the kings of the earth.

PSALMUS LXXV.

NOTUS in Judæa Deus : in Israël magnum Nomen ejus.

Et factus est in pace locus ejus : et habitatio ejus in Sion.

Ibi confregit potentias : arcum, scu- confregit cornua tum, gladium et bellum.

Illuminans tu mirabiliter a montibus illuminas tu æternis : turbati sunt omnes insipientes
corde.

Dormierunt somnum suum : et nihil invenerunt omnes viri divitiarum in manibus suis.

Ab increpatione tua Deus Jacob :
dormitaverunt qui ascenderunt equos.

Tu terribilis es et quis resistet tibi ?
ex tunc ira tua.

De cælo auditum fecisti judicium : judicium jacula- terra tremuit et quievit, tum est terra

Cum exsurgeret in judicio Deus : ut salvos faceret omnes mansuetos terræ. quielos

Quoniam cogitatio hominis confite-bitur tibi : et reliquæ cogitationis diem festum agent tibi.

Vovete et reddite Domino Deo vestro : omnes qui in circuitu ejus affertis munera,

Terribili, et ei qui aufert spiritum principum : terribili apud reges terræ.

on high by offering himself as an object of worship instead of Christ, and speaking blasphemous things against the Most Highest. As God "brought it to pass" and not Sennacherib himself, that the Assyrian king should "be to lay waste fenced cities into ruinous heaps," so it is God also by Whom it will be "given unto" Antichrist "to make war with the saints, and to overcome them," for some good purpose towards His Church, doubtless its purgation by persecution.

There may be some reverent hesitation in interpreting the ninth verse without any reference to the Blessed Sacrament: yet it seems to be in strict analogy with two passages in the Revelation, in which "the wine of the wrath of God," and "the cup of His indignation" is given to the worshippers of Antichrist, and to "great Babylon." And this sense seems to be confirmed by the undoubted reference in the last verse to the triumph of "the Lamb as it had been slain, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven spirits of God," over both Antichrist and Babylon.

PSALM LXXVI.

As the preceding Psalm is a prophetic hymn of Christ's Mystical Body looking forward to the onslaught of Antichrist, so in this still higher strain of triumph is to be discerned the celebration of a victory accomplished. The Septuagint title describes it as sung respecting the Assyrian, doubtless after the destruction of Sennacherib's host: and, like the former Psalm, this also is to be regarded as a hymn of victory over that Antichrist of whom Sennacherib was one of the many personal types. It is very significant that the City of God is spoken of under the name of Salem, not Jerusalem; the former being the name which it bore in the time of Melchizedec, after the order of whose Priesthood Christ came, Whose undisputed reign alone will establish a City of perfect Peace<sup>1</sup>. [Rev. vi. 4. Isa. ii. 4. Micah iv. 3.]

This may be taken, therefore, as an Evangelical hymn of that new Jewry, Salem, and Sion, of which St. John heard the "great voice out of Heaven, saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and He will dwell with them, and they shall be His people, and God Himself shall be with them, and be their God And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain, for the former things are passed away." [Rev. xxi. 3, 4.] The troubles of the last days are spoken of as

<sup>1</sup> The LXX translates the Hebrew "עִיר שְׁלוֹמָה."

THE LXXVII PSALM.

Voce mea ad Dominum.

The XV. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Isa. lviii. 9.

I WILL cry unto God with my voice : even unto God will I cry with my voice, and he shall hearken unto me.

Isa. xxxviii. 2.

2 In the time of my trouble I sought the Lord : my sore ran, and ceased not in the night-season ; my soul refused comfort.

3 When I am in heaviness, I will think upon God : when my heart is vexed, I will complain.

4 Thou holdest mine eyes waking : I am so feeble, that I cannot speak.

Rom. xv. 4.
1 Cor. x. 11.

5 I have considered the days of old : and the years that are past.

6 I call to remembrance my song : and in the night I commune with mine own heart, and search out my spirits.

7 Will the Lord absent himself for ever : and will he be no more intreated ?

8 Is his mercy clean gone for ever : and is his promise come utterly to an end for evermore ?

Isa. lix. 1.

9 Hath God forgotten to be gracious : and will he shut up his loving-kindness in displeasure ?

Mat. viii. 26.

10 And I said, It is mine own infirmity : but I will remember the years of the right hand of the most Highest.

Isa. lxiii. 7.

11 I will remember the works of the Lord : and call to mind thy wonders of old time.

12 I will think also of all thy works : and my talking shall be of thy doings.

13 Thy way, O God, is holy : who is so great a God as our God ?

Exod. xv. 11.

14 Thou art the God that doest wonders : and hast declared thy power among the people.

PSALMUS LXXVI.

VOCE mea ad Dominum clamavi : Thursd. Mattins.
Maundy Thursd.,
3rd Noct.
voce mea ad Deum, et inténdit mihi.

In die tribulationis meæ Deum exquisivi, manibus meis nocte contra eum : et non sum deceptus. coram eo

Renuit consolari anima mea : memor fui Dei, et delectatus sum, et exercitatus sum ; et defecit spiritus meus. Negavi . . animam meam paulisper spiritus

Anticipaverunt vigilias oculi mei : turbatus sum et non sum locutus.

Cogitavi dies antiquos : et annos æternos in mente habui.

Et meditatus sum nocte cum corde meo : et exercitabar et scopebam spiritum meum. et ventilabam in me

Nunquid in æternum projiciet Deus : aut non apponet ut complacitior sit adhuc ? Et disci numquid ut bene placitum sit

Aut in finem misericordiam suam abscindet : a generatione in generationem ? a sæculo et generatione

Aut obliviscetur misereri Deus ? aut continebit in ira sua misericordias suas ?

Et dixi, Nunc cœpi : hæc mutatio dexteræ Excelsi.

Memor fui operum Domini : quia memor ero ab initio mirabilium tuorum.

Et meditabor in omnibus operibus tuis : et in adinventionibus tuis exercebor. meditatus sum.
observationibus

Deus, in sancto via tua ; quis Deus magnus sicut Deus noster ? tu es Deus qui facis mirabilia. mirabilia solus past ; Antichrist is subdued and overthrown ; the judgment of Christ has been heard from the "great white throne ;" the perfect supremacy of the "King of kings and Lord of lords" is for ever established in an endless reign of peace.

PSALM LXXVII.

In the first half of this Psalm the voice of Christ's Mystical Body cries out to God from the midst of some affliction in which He has seemed to hide His face. The tenth verse recalls to mind that God is never really absent from the Church, and that if He seems to be so it is because our own infirmity and want of faith prevent us from beholding His Presence. In the latter half of the Psalm God's dealings with His people of old are recounted as a memorial before Him in the tone of the Litany Antiphon :—"O Lord, arise, help us, and deliver us for Thy Name's sake."

There were occasions on which the way of Christ was "in the sea, and His path in the deep waters ;" and when "the waters saw" Him their God "and were afraid, and the depths were troubled ;" and these miracles of our Lord's Person and Word seem to be prophetically commemorated in this Psalm no less

The XV. Day.
*Morning
Prayer.*
Cf. Ps. lxxx. 2, 3.

15 Thou hast mightily delivered thy people : even the sons of Jacob and Joseph.

Exod. xiv. 21.
Matt. viii. 26.

16 The waters saw thee, O God, the waters saw thee, and were afraid : the depths also were troubled.

2 Sam. xxii. 14.
Josh. x. 11.
2 Sam. xxii. 15.

17 The clouds poured out water, the air thundered : and thine arrows went abroad.

18 The voice of thy thunder was heard round about : the lightnings shone upon the ground, the earth was moved, and shook withal.

Mark vi. 48.
Rom. xi. 33.

19 Thy way is in the sea, and thy paths in the great waters : and thy footsteps are not known.

20 Thou leddest thy people like sheep : by the hand of Moses and Aaron.

THE LXXVIII PSALM.

Attendite, popule.

*Evening
Prayer.*
Isa. li. 4.

HEAR my law, O my people : incline your ears unto the words of my mouth.

Matt. xiii. 35.
1 Cor. x. 11.

2 I will open my mouth in a parable : I will declare hard sentences of old ;

Exod. xii. 14.
Deut. vi. 20.

3 Which we have heard and known : and such as our fathers have told us ;

Coloss. i. 27.

4 That we should not hide them from the children of the generations to come : but to shew the honour of the Lord, his mighty and wonderful works that he hath done.

Heb. viii. 8.

5 He made a covenant with Jacob, and gave Israel a law : which he commanded our forefathers to teach their children ;

Notam fecisti in populis virtutem tuam : redemisti in brachio tuo populum tuum, filios Jacob et Joseph.

Viderunt te aquæ, Deus, viderunt te aquæ et timuerunt : et turbatæ sunt abyssi.

Multitudo sonitus aquarum : vocem dederunt nubes.

Etenim sagittæ tuæ transeunt : vox tonitruui tui in rota.

Illuxerunt coruscationes tuæ orbi terræ : commota est et contremuit terra. vidit et commota est terra

In mari via tua, et semitæ tuæ in aquis multis : et vestigia tua non cognoscentur.

Deduxisti sicut oves populum tuum : in manu Moysi et Aaron.

PSALMUS LXXVII.

ATENDITE, popule meus, legem meam : inclinate aurem vestram in verba oris mei. Thursd. Mattine.

Aperiam in parabolis os meum : loquar propositiones ab initio. initio sæculi

Quanta audivimus et cognovimus ea : et patres nostri narraverunt nobis.

Non sunt occultata a filiis eorum : in generatione altera.

Narrantes laudes Domini et virtutes ejus : et mirabilia ejus quæ fecit.

Et suscitavit testimonium in Jacob : et legem posuit in Israël.

than the miraculous passage of the Red Sea is historically commemorated. On one of these occasions the storm arose when our Lord was asleep in the ship, and after being awoke He expressly rebuked the disciples for their want of faith, reminding them that their fear arose from their "own infirmity," for that His Presence not less than His Word is a sure token of safety to the Church. On the other occasion our Lord walked on the sea to the disciples who were toiling in vain against a contrary wind, and they were by His Presence brought immediately to the haven where they would be. Then, too, it is recorded of them that their faith was wanting, "for they considered not the miracle of the loaves : for their heart was hardened."

Thus the key-note of the Psalm is struck in the tenth verse. Adversity may surround the Church or particular members of it, and Christ's Presence may seem far off, or if He is in the ship yet is He asleep ; faith, however, will say, This appearance of danger is from "mine own infirmity, but I will remember the years of the right hand of the most Highest." Though we may be in the midst of "the waves of this troublesome world" and He on the shore of His Father's Throne, yet is His way in the sea, and His path in the great waters ; so that nothing can separate the Church from the protection of His Presence. Though He may seem to be heedless of our danger yet may we rely on His Presence and be sure that if He is in the ship, though asleep, it is an Ark of safety.

Very great comfort may therefore be found in this Psalm at all times of tribulation, for in it we memorialize God, and remind ourselves, of His wonders to His Church in old time, and of His never-failing love towards her for ever. As He led His ancient people like sheep by the hand of Moses and Aaron, so does He Himself as the Good Shepherd go before His sheep that they may hear His voice, and follow Him to pastures of safety and peace.

PSALM LXXVIII.

This didactic hymn sets forth the history of the ancient Israel as in a parable for the instruction of the new Israel of God, and

|                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                      |
|-----------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| The XV. Day.Evening Prayer.              | 6 That their posterity might know it : and the children which were yet unborn ;                                                                                               | Quanta mandavit patribus nostris : Quam . . . ut nctam nota facere ea filiis suis ; ut cognoscat generatio altera ;           |
| Deut. vi. 20.                                       | 7 To the intent that when they came up : they might shew their children the same ;                                                                                            | Filii qui nascentur et exsurgent : et narrabunt filiis suis.                                                                         |
|                                                     | 8 That they might put their trust in God : and not to forget the works of God, but to keep his commandments ;                                                                 | Ut ponant in Deo spem suam : et non obliviscantur operum Dei ; et mandata ejus exquirant.                                            |
| Deut. xxi. 18.Acts vii. 51.2 Chron. xxx. 7. | 9 And not to be as their forefathers, a faithless and stubborn generation : a generation that set not their heart aright, and whose spirit cleaveth not stedfastly unto God ; | Ne fiant sicut patres eorum : gene- genus pravam et ratio prava et exasperans. peramaram                                      |
|                                                     | 10 Like as the children of Ephraim : who being harnessed, and carrying bows, turned themselves back in the day of battle.                                                     | Generatio quæ non direxit cor suum : Genus quod et non est creditus cum Deo spiritus ejus.                                    |
| Hosea x. 13.                                        | 11 They kept not the covenant of God : and would not walk in his law ;                                                                                                        | Filii Ephrem intendentes et mit- intendentes ar- tentes arcum : conversi sunt in die culum et mit- bell. tentes sagittas suas |
| 2 Kings xvii. 14.Isa. i. 3.                     | 12 But forgot what he had done : and the wonderful works that he had shewed for them.                                                                                         | Non custodierunt testamentum Dei : et in lege ejus noluerunt ambulare.                                                               |
|                                                     | 13 Marvellous things did he in the sight of our forefathers, in the land of Egypt : even in the field of Zoan.                                                                | Et obliti sunt benefactorum ejus : et mirabilium ejus quæ ostendit eis.                                                              |
| Numb. xiv. 22.Isa. xxx. 3, 4.                   | 14 He divided the sea, and let them go through : he made the waters to stand on an heap.                                                                                      | Coram patribus eorum fecit mirabilia in terra Ægypti : in campo Thaneos.                                                             |
| Exod. xiv. 21.1 Cor. x. 2.                      | 15 In the day-time also he led them with a cloud : and all the night through with a light of fire.                                                                            | Interrupit mare et perduxit eos : et statuit aquas quasi in utre.                                                                    |
| Exod. xiii. 21.Isa. iv. 5.                      | 16 He clave the hard rocks in the wilderness : and gave them drink thereof, as it had been out of the great depth.                                                            | Et deduxit eos in nube diei : et tota nocte in illuminatione ignis.                                                                  |
| Exod. xvii. 6.Numb. xx. 11.1 Cor. x. 4.     | 17 He brought waters out of the stony rock : so that it gushed out like the rivers.                                                                                           | Interrupit petram in eremo : et ad- quavit eos velut in abyssu multa.                                                                |
| Heb. iiii. 16.                                      | 18 Yet for all this they sinned more against him : and provoked the most Highest in the wilderness.                                                                           | Et eduxit aquam de petra : et de- duxit tanquam flumina aquas.                                                                       |
| Exod. xvi. 8.                                       | 19 They tempted God in their hearts : and required meat for their lust.                                                                                                       | Et apposuerunt adhuc peccare ei : in iram concitaverunt Excelsum in Deum excelsum iniquo. in siccitatem                       |
|                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                               | Et tentaverunt Deum in cordibus suis : ut peterent escas animabus suis.                                                              |

for memorializing Him of His mercies to the Church of all ages. As regards the Jews it has a parallel in the discourse of St. Stephen before the Council of the Sanhedrim, especially in setting forth the persistent disobedience to God by which their history had been marked, and the continual forgiveness with which He had requited their misdeeds. That the parable is spoken with reference to the Christian Church also we may clearly understand from the words with which St. Paul concludes a short enumeration of some of the sins of Israel:—

“Now all these things happened unto them for ensamples, and they are written for our admonition, upon whom the ends of the world are come<sup>1</sup>.” The Psalm, therefore, comes to the Church as the voice of Christ, saying, “Hearken unto Me, My people, and give ear unto Me, O My nation ; for a law shall proceed from Me, and I will make My judgment to rest for a light of <sup>1</sup> It has been observed as illustrating the typical force of this Psalm, that though relating to past events the Hebrew verbs are in the future.

The XV. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
John vi. 52. 60.

20 They spake against God also, saying : Shall God prepare a table in the wilderness ?

21 He smote the stony rock indeed, that the water gushed out, and the streams flowed withal : but can he give bread also, or provide flesh for his people ?

Numb. xi. 4. 22.

Numb. xi. 1.

22 When the Lord heard this, he was wroth : so the fire was kindled in Jacob, and there came up heavy displeasure against Israel ;

23 Because they believed not in God : and put not their trust in his help.

John vi. 32.

24 So he commanded the clouds above : and opened the doors of heaven.

25 He rained down manna also upon them for to eat : and gave them food from heaven.

John vi. 51.

26 So man did eat Angels' food : for he sent them meat enough.

Numb. xi. 31.

27 He caused the east-wind to blow under heaven : and through his power he brought in the south-west-wind.

28 He rained flesh upon them as thick as dust : and feathered fowls like as the sand of the sea.

29 He let it fall among their tents : even round about their habitation.

30 So they did eat, and were well filled, for he gave them their own desire : they were not disappointed of their lust.

Numb. xi. 33.

31 But while the meat was yet in their mouths, the heavy wrath of God came upon them, and slew the wealthiest of them : yea, and smote down the chosen men that were in Israel.

Numb. xii. 2.

32 But for all this they sinned yet more : and believed not his wondrous works.

33 Therefore their days did he consume in vanity : and their years in trouble.

2 Chron. xxx. 9.

34 When he slew them, they sought him : and turned them early, and enquired after God.

Et male locuti sunt de Deo : dixerunt, Nunquid poterit Deus parare mensam in deserto ?

Qui percussit petram, et fluxerunt aquæ : et torrentes inundaverunt : Quoniam

Nunquid et panem poterit dare : aut parare mensam populo suo ?

Ideo audivit Dominus et distulit : et ignis accensus est in Jacob, et ira ascendit in Israël. et superposuit et ignis

Quia non crediderunt in Deo : nec speraverunt in salutari ejus.

Et mandavit nubibus desuper : et januas cœli aperuit.

Et pluit illis manna ad manducandum : et panem cœli dedit eis.

Panem angelorum manducavit homo : cibaria misit eis in abundantia.

Transtulit austrum de cœlo : et induxit in virtute sua aficum. frumentationem misit Et excitavit Austrum

Et pluit super eos sicut pulverem carnes : et sicut arenam maris volatilia pennata.

Et ceciderunt in medio castrorum eorum : circa tabernacula eorum.

Et manducaverunt, et saturati sunt nimis, et desiderium eorum attulit eis : non sunt fraudati a desiderio suo.

Adhuc escæ eorum erant in ore ipsorum : et ira Dei ascendit super eos.

Et occidit pingues eorum : et electos Israël impeditivit. plurimos eorum

In omnibus his peccaverunt adhuc : et non crediderunt in mirabilibus ejus.

Et defecerunt in vanitate dies eorum : et anni eorum cum festinatione.

Cum occideret eos, quærebant eum et revertebantur : et diluculo veniebant ad eum. et convertebantur ante lucem et veniebant

the people. My righteousness is near ; My salvation is gone forth ; and Mine arm shall judge the people ; the isles shall wait upon Me, and on Mine arm shall they trust." "All these things spake Jesus unto the multitude in parables ; and without a parable spake He not unto them."

As it will be impracticable to follow out this typical character of the Psalm in any lengthy detail, a few particulars may be selected for the purpose of illustration from several of its various sections.

The whole Psalm obviously symbolizes the passage of the new Israel at all periods of its history from spiritual bondage and the wilderness of this world to the promised land of rest and the heavenly Jerusalem. Hence the significance of the fourteenth verse, relating to the Baptism of the Israelites in the cloud and

The XV. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Deut. xxxii. 4.
15. 18. 30.

35 And they remembered that God was their strength : and that the high God was their Redeemer.

36 Nevertheless, they did but flatter him with their mouth : and dissembled with him in their tongue.

37 For their heart was not whole with him : neither continued they stedfast in his covenant.

Exod. xxxiv. 6.

38 But he was so merciful, that he forgave their misdeeds : and destroyed them not.

Numb. xiv. 20.
Exod. xiv. 11, 12.
xv. 23, 24.
xvi. 2. 20. 27.
28. xvii. 1—3.
xxxii. 8.
Numb. xi. 1. 4.
xiv. 1, 2.

39 Yea, many a time turned he his wrath away : and would not suffer his whole displeasure to arise.

40 For he considered that they were but flesh : and that they were even a wind that passeth away, and cometh not again.

41 Many a time did they provoke him in the wilderness : and grieved him in the desert.

Acts vii. 52.

42 They turned back and tempted God : and moved the Holy One in Israel<sup>1</sup>.

43 They thought not of his hand : and of the day when he delivered them from the hand of the enemy ;

44 How he had wrought his miracles in Egypt : and his wonders in the field of Zoan.

Exod. vii. 19, 20.
Rev. xvi. 4. 6.

45 He turned their waters into blood : so that they might not drink of the rivers.

Exod. viii. 24, 6.
Rev. xvi. 13, 14.

46 He sent lice among them, and devoured them up : and frogs to destroy them.

Exod. x. 14.
Rev. ix. 3.

47 He gave their fruit unto the caterpillar : and their labour unto the grasshopper.

Exod. ix. 24.
Rev. xvi. 21.

48 He destroyed their vines with hail-stones : and their mulberry-trees with the frost.

Et rememorati sunt quia Deus adiutor est eorum : et Deus excelsus Redemptor eorum est.

Et dilexerunt eum in ore suo : et lingua sua mentiti sunt ei.

Cor autem eorum non erat rectum cum eo : nec fideles habiti sunt in testamento ejus. fides habita est in test.

Ipsæ autem sunt misericors et propitius fiet peccatis eorum : et non disperdet eos.

Et abundavit ut averteret iram suam : et non accendit omnem iram suam. multiplicavit

Et recordatus est quia caro sunt : spiritus vadens et non rediens.

Quotiens exacerbaverunt eum in deserto : in iram concitaverunt eum in iniquo? in terra sine aqua

Et conversi sunt et tentaverunt Deum : et Sanctum Israël exacerbaverunt.

Non sunt recordati manus ejus : die qua redemit eos de manu tribulantis. liberavit

Sicut posuit in Ægypto signa sua : et prodigia sua in campo Thaneos.

Et convertit in sanguinem flumina eorum : et imbres eorum, ne biberent. et pluviales aquas

Misit in eos cynomyiam, et comedit eos : et ranam, et disperdidit eos. Immisit in eis muscam cynomyiam . . . ranam et exterminavit

Et dedit ærugini fructus eorum : et labores eorum locustæ.

Et occidit in grandine vineas eorum : et moros eorum in pruina.

in the sea at the outset of their journey towards the land of promise, and of all those following verses which set forth God's mercy in providing drink and food for them during the whole period of their wanderings. St. Paul's words respecting these circumstances show that we should much undervalue the true teaching of Holy Scripture if we failed to see their typical meaning : and his immediate reference to the "Cup of Blessing" and "the Bread which we break" clearly indicates that this typical meaning looks towards the sacramental life of the Christian Church. While, then, we recount the wonders of old time when God divided the sea to let His ancient people pass through, we recount, also, His continual mercy in causing His new Israel to pass through the waters of Baptism that they may be cleansed from the spiritual defilement of the Egypt out of which He has brought them.

A prophecy of Isaiah also connects this portion of the history of Israel very distinctly with the abiding of the Holy Ghost in the Church. Having spoken of the day when "the Branch of the Lord" shall be beautiful and glorious, and the remnant of Israel "shall be called holy even every one that is written among

It has been pointed out by a modern critic that the latter part of verse 42 is literally they "crossed the Holy One of Israel," a striking prophecy of the manner in which "the Jews filled up the measure of their guilt by tempting God manifest in the flesh amongst them, and by 'crossing' the Holy One of Israel." [Thrupp on the Psalms, ii. 26. note.]

The XV. Day.
Evening
Prayer.

49 He smote their cattle also with hail-stones : and their flocks with hot thunder-bolts.

50 He cast upon them the furiousness of his wrath, anger, displeasure, and trouble : and sent evil angels among them.

Exod. ix. 8.

51 He made a way to his indignation, and spared not their soul from death : but gave their life over to the pestilence ;

Exod. xii 27—30.

52 And smote all the first-born in Egypt : the most principal and mightiest in the dwellings of Ham.

Exod. xii. 37.

53 But as for his own people, he led them forth like sheep : and carried them in the wilderness like a flock.

Exod. xiv. 27.

54 He brought them out safely, that they should not fear : and overwhelmed their enemies with the sea.

Deut. ix. 1.

55 And brought them within the borders of his sanctuary : even to his mountain which he purchased with his right hand.

Deut. xxxi. 3.
Josh. xi. 23.
xiv. 5.
Cf. p. 396 note.

56 He cast out the heathen also before them : caused their land to be divided among them for an heritage, and made the tribes of Israel to dwell in their tents.

57 So they tempted and displeased the most high God : and kept not his testimonies ;

Hosea vii. 16.

58 But turned their backs, and fell away like their forefathers : starting aside like a broken bow.

Judges ii. 11. 13.

59 For they grieved him with their hill-altars : and provoked him to displeasure with their images.

2 Kings xvii 18.

60 When God heard this, he was wroth : and took sore displeasure at Israel.

1 Sam. i. 3.
iii. 1.

61 So that he forsook the tabernacle in Silo : even the tent that he had pitched among men.

Et tradidit grandini jumenta eorum : et possessionem eorum igni.

Misit in eos iram indignationis suæ : indignationem et iram, et tribulationem ; immissiones per angelos malos.

Viam fecit semitæ iræ suæ, et non pepercit a morte animarum eorum : et jumenta eorum in morte conclusit.

Et percussit omne primogenitum in terra Ægypti : primitias omnis laboris eorum in tabernaculis Cham.

Et abstulit sicut oves populum suum : et perduxit eos tanquam gregem in deserto.

Et eduxit eos in spe, et non timuerunt : et inimicos eorum operuit mare.

Et induxit eos in montem sanctificationis suæ : montem, quem acquisivit dextera ejus.

Et ejecit a facie eorum gentes : et sorte divisit eis terram in funiculo distributionis.

Et habitare fecit in tabernaculis eorum : tribus Israël. Et habitavit in Et tentaverunt et exacerbaverunt Deum excelsum : et testimonia ejus non custodierunt.

Et averterunt se, et non servaverunt pactum : quemadmodum patres eorum, conversi sunt in arcum pravum. observaverunt (pactum) perversum

In iram concitaverunt eum in colibus suis : et in sculptilibus suis ad æmulationem eum provocaverunt. emulati sunt eum

Audivit Deus et sprexit : et ad nihilum redegit valde Israël. nimis Israel

Et repulit tabernaculum Silo : tabernaculum suum ubi habitavit in hominibus.

the living in Jerusalem," the prophet goes on to say that the Lord shall then have "washed away the filth of the daughter of Zion" and purged the blood of Jerusalem "by the spirit of judgment, and the spirit of burning. And the Lord will create upon every dwelling-place upon mount Zion, and upon her assemblies, a cloud and smoke by day, and the shining of a flaming fire by night : for upon all the glory shall be a defence. And there shall be a tabernacle for a shadow in the day time from the heat, and for a place of refuge, and for a covert from storm and from rain." [Isa. iv. 2—6.] Thus the cloudy pillar of the Psalm clearly typifies that cloud by which the house was filled where the Apostles were assembled, and which first signified to the Church the coming of the Holy Ghost to abide with it for ever.

Led by the same inspired teaching we know that the rock which God "clave" in the wilderness is a type of Christ the "Rock of ages;" and in the continual provision of water from that fountain we thus see a type of that ever-flowing Fountain which has been opened for us in the grace of our Lord, the "living water" of which men drink here as a foretaste of the water of life provided for them in the glorified City of God.

We have still higher authority, if it were possible, that of Christ's own words in the sixth chapter of St. John's Gospel, for taking the Manna of the wilderness as a significant type of the "Living Bread" of the Church. This has been already referred to in the Introduction to the Liturgy [p. 161], but a word may be added as to the significance of the twentieth and

The XV. Day.

Evening
Prayer.

Judges ii. 14—23.

1 Sam. iv. 17.

1 Sam. iv. 10.

62 He delivered their power into captivity : and their beauty into the enemy's hands.

63 He gave his people over also unto the sword : and was wroth with his inheritance.

64 The fire consumed their young men : and their maidens were not given to marriage.

1 Sam. iv. 11, 19, 20.

65 Their priests were slain with the sword : and there were no widows to make lamentation.

66 So the Lord awaked as one out of sleep : and like a giant refreshed with wine.

1 Sam. v. 6—12.

67 He smote his enemies in the hinder parts : and put them to a perpetual shame.

1 Sam. vi. 12.
vii. 1.
Isa. xi. 13.

68 He refused the tabernacle of Joseph : and chose not the tribe of Ephraim ;

1 Chron. xvi. 1.
vi. 31.

69 But chose the tribe of Judah : even the hill of Sion which he loved.

2 Chron. i. 4.

70 And there he built his temple on high : and laid the foundation of it like the ground which he hath made continually.

2 Chron. ii. 1.

1 Sam. xvi. 11.

71 He chose David also his servant : and took him away from the sheep-folds.

2 Sam. v. 2.

72 As he was following the ewes great with young ones he took him : that he might feed Jacob his people, and Israel his inheritance.

John x. 11.
Isa. xl. 11

73 So he fed them with a faithful and true heart : and ruled them prudently with all his power.

THE LXXIX PSALM.

Deus, venerunt.

The XVI. Day.

Morning
Prayer.

Matt. xxiv. 15.

2 Thess. ii. 4.

Rev. xiii. 6.

O GOD, the heathen are come into thine inheritance : thy holy temple have they defiled, and made Jerusalem an heap of stones.

Et tradidit in captivitatem virtutem eorum : et pulchritudinem eorum in manus inimici.

Et conclusit in gladio populum suum : et hæreditatem suam sprevit.

Juvenes eorum comedit ignis : et virgines eorum non sunt lamentatæ.

Sacerdotes eorum in gladio ceciderunt : et viduæ eorum non plorabantur. non ploraverunt

Et excitatus est tanquam dormiens Dominus : tanquam potens crapulatus a vino.

Et percussit inimicos suos in posteriora : opprobrium sempiternum dedit illis.

Et repulit tabernaculum Joseph : et tribum Ephraim non elegit :

Sed elegit tribum Juda : montem Sion quem dilexit.

Et ædificavit sicut unicornium sanctificium suum : in terra quam fundavit in terra fundavit eam in sæcula.

Et elegit David servum suum, et sustulit eum de gregibus ovium : de post fœtantes accepit eum, Pascere Jacob servum suum : et populum suum Israël hæreditatem suam :

Et pavit eos in innocentia cordis sui : in emalitia cordis in sensum manuum et in intellectibus manuum suarum deduxit eos.

PSALMUS LXXVIII.

DEUS, venerunt gentes in hæreditatem tuam : polluerunt templum sanctum tuum ; posuerunt Hierusalem in pomorum custodiam.

Thursd. Mattins.
All Saints,
2nd Noct.
Name of Jesus,
Many Martyrs,
3rd Noct.
conquinaverunt temp.

twenty-first verses. The half belief here indicated is one which has been illustrated in all ages of the Church. It was that which laid the foundation of heresies in the early Church, and that which has hindered the full reception of sacramental doctrine in later times. Up to a certain point doctrines respecting Christ and the Sacraments are received with comparative facility : but there is a point when these become "a hard saying" and many turn back from following after our Lord into the fulness of mystery :—"He smote the stony rock indeed, that the water gushed out, and the streams flowed withal : " He came as a Man beyond all men, He gave mankind the Sacrament of a New Birth in Holy Baptism, "But can He give bread also, or provide flesh for His people?" did He come simply and truly as God Incarnate? does

He give the Living Bread from Heaven, His own Flesh, the Life of the Baptized,—in the Sacrament of the Holy Communion?

It may be observed in conclusion (1) that a comparison of the plagues of Egypt which are here enumerated with certain passages in the Book of the Revelation will show that the Egypt of the Israelites represents typically the Antichrist of the Church : and (2) that as the Lord refused the tabernacle of Joseph and chose not the tribe of Ephraim, so He suffered some of the most flourishing Churches to have their candlestick removed out of its place in the early days of Christianity. The latter warning is for every age of the Church : "Let us therefore fear, lest, a promise being left us of entering into His rest, any of you should seem to come short of it." [Heb. iv. 1.]

The XVI. Day.
Morning

Prayer.
Rev. xiii. 7, 15.
Jer. iii. vii. 33.
xiv. 16—18.

Rev. xi. 9, 10.

2 The dead bodies of thy servants have they given to be meat unto the fowls of the air : and the flesh of thy saints unto the beasts of the land.

3 Their blood have they shed like water on every side of Jerusalem : and there was no man to bury them.

4 We are become an open shame to our enemies : a very scorn and derision unto them that are round about us.

5 Lord, how long wilt thou be angry : shall thy jealousy burn like fire for ever ?

Jerem. x. 25.

6 Pour out thine indignation upon the heathen that have not known thee : and upon the kingdoms that have not called upon thy Name.

Rev. xi. 2.

7 For they have devoured Jacob : and laid waste his dwelling-place.

Hosea xiv. 1.

8 O remember not our old sins, but have mercy upon us, and that soon : for we are come to great misery.

9 Help us, O God of our salvation, for the glory of thy Name : O deliver us, and be merciful unto our sins, for thy Name's sake.

10 Wherefore do the heathen say : Where is now their God ?

Rev. vi. 10.

11 O let the vengeance of thy servants' blood that is shed : be openly shewed upon the heathen in our sight.

Zech. ix. 12.

12 O let the sorrowful sighing of the prisoners come before thee : according to the greatness of thy power, preserve thou those that are appointed to die.

Posuerunt morticina servorum tuo- mortalia rum escas volatilibus cœli : carnes sanctorum tuorum bestiis terræ.

Effuderunt sanguinem eorum tanquam aquam in circuitu Hierusalem :
et non erat qui sepeliret.

Facti sumus opprobrium vicinis nostris : subsannatio et illusio his qui derisus et con- in circuitu nostro sunt. templu

Usquequo, Domine, irasceris in finem : accendetur velut ignis zelus tuus ?

Effunde iram tuam in gentes quæ te non noverunt : et in regna quæ
Nomen tuum non invocaverunt :

Quia comederunt Jacob : et locum ejus desolaverunt.

Ne memineris iniquitatum nostrarum antiquarum : cito anticipent nos misericordiæ tuæ, quia pauperes facti sumus nimis.

Adjuva nos, Deus salutaris noster,
et propter gloriam Nominis tui, Do- honorem mine, libera nos : et propitius esto peccatis nostris, propter Nomen tuum :

Ne forte dicant in gentibus, Ubi est Deus eorum ? et innotescat in nationibus coram oculis nostris,

Ultio sanguinis servorum tuorum, Vindica sangui- qui effusus est : introëat in conspectu nem . . . introet tuo gemitus compeditorum.

Secundum magnitudinem brachii tui : posside filios mortificatorum. morte punitorum

PSALM LXXIX.

The ancient appropriation of this as a proper Psalm for All Saints' Day points out its constant function as a commemoration of the martyrs of the Church. It is also to be taken as a prophecy of those future martyrdoms which our Lord and His Apostle St. John have predicted as characterizing the last great war of Antichrist against the Kingdom of the Cross : for again is heard the cry of the souls under the altar, "How long, O Lord, holy and true, dost Thou not judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth :?" a fit Antiphon to this Psalm.

The words of the Psalm had, doubtless, a very literal application to the condition of the Jewish nation at such periods of its history as the Babylonish Captivity, and the desolation that fell upon its religion in the time of Antiochus Epiphanes. Jeremiah had predicted, "The carcases of this people shall be meat for the fowls of the heaven and for the beasts of the earth ; and none shall fray them away . . . Both the great and the small shall die in this land : and they shall not be buried, neither shall men lament for them :?" and no doubt his prophecy was exactly fulfilled. We know also, from the books of the Maccabees, how much the persecution which fell upon Judæa in their days was like the persecution of Christianity three and four centuries later. But, however literally the words of the Psalm may express the sad condition of Judæa at such periods, their meaning is not exhausted by such an application, and there are clearly features of martyrdom portrayed to which the suffering Jews, as a body, could not lay claim.

We are rather to look for the true Christian meaning of this Psalm in the Church of the first three centuries, and of that period of which our Lord prophesied when He spoke of the abomination of desolation standing in the holy place [Matt. xxiv. 15.] : and respecting the troubles of which time He adds, "And except those days should be shortened, there should no flesh be saved, but for the elect's sake those days shall be shortened." Of this desolation of the Church by Antichrist St. Paul also speaks,

The XVI. Day. 13 And for the blasphemy where-Morning with our neighbours have blasphemed
Prayer. thee : reward thou them, O Lord,
Jerem. xxxii. 18. seven-fold into their bosom.

John x. 16. 14 So we that are thy people and Mat't. xv. 24. sheep of thy pasture shall give thee
xxv. 33. thanks for ever : and will alway be showing forth thy praise from generation to generation.

THE LXXX PSALM.

Qui regis Israel.

Ezek. xxxiv. 23. HEAR, O thou Shepherd of Isxxxvii. 24. rael, thou that leadest Joseph John x. ii. 14. like a sheep : shew thy self also, thou
Heb. xiii. 20. that sittest upon the Cherubims.

Numb. ii. 18—24. 2 Before Ephraim, Benjamin, and
x. 22—24. Manasses : stir up thy strength, and come, and help us.

3 Turn us again, O God : shew the light of thy countenance, and we shall be whole.

4 O Lord God of hosts : how long wilt thou be angry with thy people that prayeth ?

5 Thou feedest them with the bread of tears : and givest them plenteousness of tears to drink.

6 Thou hast made us a very strife unto our neighbours : and our enemies laugh us to scorn.

7 Turn us again, thou God of hosts : shew the light of thy countenance, and we shall be whole.

John xv. 1. 8 Thou hast brought a vine out of Hosca xi. 1. Egypt : thou hast cast out the hea-Matt. ii. 15. then, and planted it.

9 Thou madest room for it : and when it had taken root it filled the land.

Et redde vicinis nostris septuplum in sinu eorum : improprium ipsorum, quod exprobraverunt tibi, Domine.

Nos autem populus tuus et oves regis tui pascuæ tuæ : confitebimur tibi in sæculum.

In generatione et generationem : et in sæculum sæculi narrabimus
annuntiabimus laudem tuam.

PSALMUS LXXIX.

QUI regis Israël, intende : qui de- Thursd. Mattins. ducis velut ovem Joseph.

Qui sedes super Cherubin : mani- appare coram festare coram Ephraim, Benjamin, et Manasse.

Excita potentiam tuam, et veni : ut salvos facias nos.

Deus converte nos : et ostende fa- Domine Deus
ciem tuam, et salvi erimus. virtutum

Domine Deus virtutum : quousque irasceris super orationem servi tui ?

Cibabis nos pane lachrymarum : et potum dabis nobis in lachrymis in mensura ?

Posuisti nos in contradictionem vicinis nostris : et inimici nostri sub- deriserunt sannaverunt nos.

Deus virtutum, converte nos : et Domine Deus ostende faciem tuam, et salvi erimus.

Vineam de Ægypto transtulisti :
ejecisti gentes, et plantasti eam.

Dux itineris fuisti in conspectu Viam fecisti in ejus : et plantasti radices ejus, et im- consp.
plevit terram. repleta est terra clearly intimating at the same time that its peculiar and dreadful character cannot be fully comprehended until it is "revealed" by its actual occurrence. "That Day shall not come," says he, "except there come a falling away first, and that man of sin be revealed, the son of perdition : who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshipped, so that he, as God, sitteth in the temple of God, showing himself that he is God." [2 Thess. ii. 3, 4.] To the reign of this Enemy of God the book of the Revelation applies almost exactly the opening verses of this Psalm :—"And when they shall have finished their testimony, the beast that ascendeth out of the bottomless pit shall make war against them, and shall overcome them, and kill them. And their dead bodies shall lie in the street of the great city, which spiritually is called Sodom, and Egypt, where also our Lord was crucified." As the Revelation was written long after the destruction of Jerusalem, it is clearly to some future period that these words refer. And to such period, also, does this Psalm refer whose mystical meaning may often receive a partial fulfilment, but a complete one only in the last great and terrible days.

PSALM LXXX.

This is a hymn of prayer to the Good Shepherd of the new Israel : to Him Who knows His sheep by name, and Who leadeth them in the wilderness of this world like a flock even while He sits enthroned in the world on high surrounded by His unfallen flock, the hosts of Heaven. The first verse catches up the strain of the preceding Psalm, "We that are Thy people, and the sheep of thy pasture : " but the more characteristic figure of the Psalm is that of the Vine, which our Lord subsequently adopted in the interpretative form : "I am the Vine, ye are the branches." Hence also the mournful reference to God's ancient

The XVI. Day
Morning
Prayer.
Isa. v. 1—7

10 The hills were covered with the shadow of it : and the boughs thereof were like the goodly cedar-trees.

11 She stretched out her branches unto the sea : and her boughs unto the river.

Isa. v. 5.

12 Why hast thou then broken down her hedge : that all they that go by pluck off her grapes ?

13 The wild boar out of the wood doth root it up : and the wild beasts of the field devour it.

14 Turn thee again, thou God of hosts, look down from heaven : behold, and visit this vine ;

Jerem. xxii. 5.
Zech. iii. 8.
vi. 12.

15 And the place of the vineyard that thy right hand hath planted : and the branch that thou madest so strong for thy self.

16 It is burnt with fire, and cut down : and they shall perish at the rebuke of thy countenance.

Ps xciii. 1.
Matt. iii. 16, 17.

17 Let thy hand be upon the man of thy right hand : and upon the son of man, whom thou madest so strong for thine own self.

18 And so will not we go back from thee : O let us live, and we shall call upon thy Name.

19 Turn us again, O Lord God of hosts : shew the light of thy countenance, and we shall be whole.

Operuit montes umbra ejus : et arbusta ejus cedros Dei.

Extendit palmites suos usque ad mare : et usque ad flumen propagines ejus.

Ut quid destruxisti maceriam ejus : deposuisti et vindemiant eam omnes, qui præter- transcunt grediuntur viam ?

Exterminavit eam aper de silva : et singularis ferus depastus est eam.

Deus virtutum, convertere : respice Domine Deus de cælo, et vide, et visita vineam istam.

Et perfice eam quam plantavit dirige dextera tua : et super filium hominis quem confirmasti tibi.

Incensa igni et suffossa : ab incre- effossa manu patione vultus tui peribunt.

Fiat manus tua super virum dexterae tuæ : et super filium hominis quem confirmasti tibi.

Et non discedimus a te ; vivificabis nos : et Nomen tuum invocabimus.

Domine Deus virtutum, converte nos : et ostende faciem tuam, et salvi erimus.

favour towards His people becomes a prayer against that falling away altogether from the True Vine of which our Lord said, "If a man abide not in Me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered ; and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they are burned." [John xv. 6.]

This parable of the Vine illustrates the wonderful consistency of Holy Scripture in general, and of prophecy in particular. The vineyard was an ancient figure in prophecy as regarded the Israelites and their kingdom: and though, humanly speaking, it might have become so because of the local importance of the Vine and the familiarity of it in all its aspects to the people ; yet there is evidently a Divine spiritual meaning underlying all that is said about it. Noah planted a vineyard immediately on leaving the Ark, probably on the south-east slopes of Lebanon : Melchizedek, king of Salem nearly five hundred years before the descendants of Abraham were "brought out of Egypt," brought to the Patriarch a symbolical offering of the fruit of the Corn of wheat, and the juice of the True Vine : Jacob, in his blessing, declared of Judah, "The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet, until Shiloh come : and until him shall the gathering of the people be. Binding his foal unto the Vine, and his ass's colt unto the choice Vine, he washed his garments in wine, and his clothes in the blood of grapes ; his eyes shall be red with wine, and his teeth white with milk." [Gen. xlix. 10. 12. Cf. Isa. lxiii. 1—3.]

Passing over other illustrations furnished by the early history of Israel [e.g. Deut. viii. 8. Numb. xx. 5 ; xiii. 1. Deut. vi. 11. Cant. viii. 11. Isa. vii. 1. 23.], we come to the Vine and Vineyard of this Psalm, of Isaiah v. 1—7, and of our Blessed Lord's Parables ; all which bear a consistent interpretation as applicable to the ancient Church of God among the children of Israel, and to the Mystical Body of the True Vine.

The wail of this Psalm carries back the mind to the prophecy of Moses, and to that of our Lord. The one had declared, among the threatenings with which He almost closed His work, "Thou shalt plant a vineyard, and shalt not gather the grapes thereof . . . the fruit of thy land and all thy labours shall a nation which thou knowest not eat up" [Deut. xxviii. 30. 33.] : and among the last words of our Lord were those, the meaning of which was so well understood by the Jews, "He shall come and destroy these husbandmen, and give the vineyard to others." [Luke xx. 16.]

Thus the stream of prophecy is always found to be flowing in the same direction, leading us to the conclusion that as God's Providence brought out of Egypt the Vine of the Jewish Church and planted it in the Mount of God, to take deep root and fill the land from the Mediterranean to the Jordan and to be His own Vineyard, so did He "break down her hedge" and "give the vineyard to others," because of the fruitlessness of the Vine through the wickedness of the husbandmen. The same prophecy teaches us that the Vineyard of the Lord is now planted in "a very fruitful field" and has taken deep root throughout the world, but that times of apostasy will yet come when the faithful part of Christ's Church will have to take up the words of this Psalm as the faithful Jews wailed out their sorrow before God during the Babylonian Captivity. In prospect of that time, and at all

THE LXXXI PSALM.

Exsultate Deo.

The XVI. Day.

*Morning Prayer.*Isa. lii. 9.
Rev. xix. 6.

SING we merrily unto God our strength : make a cheerful noise unto the God of Jacob.

2 Take the psalm, bring hither the tabret : the merry harp with the lute.

3 Blow up the trumpet in the new-moon : even in the time appointed, and upon our solemn feast-day.

4 For this was made a statute for Israel : and a law of the God of Jacob.

5 This he ordained in Joseph for a testimony : when he came out of the land of Egypt, and had heard a strange language.

Exod. v. 4. 7, 8.

6 I eased his shoulder from the burden : and his hands were delivered from making the pots.

7 Thou calledst upon me in troubles, and I delivered thee : and heard thee what time as the storm fell upon thee.

8 I proved thee also : at the waters of strife.

Isa. xlviii. 12.

9 Hear, O my people, and I will assure thee, O Israel : if thou wilt hearken unto me, 10 There shall no strange god be in thee : neither shalt thou worship any other god.

Ezek. iii. 1.
Rev. x. 8—11.

11 I am the Lord thy God, who brought thee out of the land of Egypt : open thy mouth wide, and I shall fill it.

12 But my people would not hear my voice : and Israel would not obey me.

PSALMUS LXXX.

EXSULTATE Deo adiutori nostro : jubilare Deo Jacob.

Friday Mattins.
All Saints,
Corp. Chr.,
3rd Noct.

Sumite psalmum, et date tympanum :
psalterium jucundum cum cithara.

Buccinate in neomenia tuba : in in- Cantate in initio mensis signi die solennitatis vestræ :

Quia præceptum in Israël est : et judicium Deo Jacob.

Testimonium in Joseph posuit illud, cum exiret de terra Ægypti : linguam
quam non noverat audivit.

Divertit ab oneribus dorsum ejus :
manus ejus in cophino servierunt.

In tribulatione invocasti me, et liberavi te : exaudivi te in abscondito tempestatis ; probavi te apud aquam contradictionis.

Audi populus meus et contestabor et loquar Israel et testificabor tibi te : Israël si audieris me, non erit in te deus recens, neque adorabis deum alienum.

Ego enim sum Dominus Deus tuus, qui eduxi te de terra Ægypti : dilata os tuum et implebo illud.

Et non audivit populus meus vocem meam : et Israël non intendit mihi.

periods when afflictions befall the Church of Christ, the remembrance of our Lords words, "I am the Vine, ye are the branches," may give comfort such as the Jews could not possess, teaching that the Church is so associated with the Lord Himself that nothing can finally overthrow it. And while she cries "Turn us again, O Lord God of hosts," she can also say "Let Thy hand be upon the Man of Thy right hand : and upon the Son of Man Whom Thou madest so strong for Thine own self." The sacramental Life of the Vine can never be destroyed, because it is the Life of Christ our God.

PSALM LXXXI.

As the previous mournful hymn of the Church represents Christ's Mystical Body under the figure of a Vine, it seems to be with some mystical reason that this Psalm of the Church's triumph is entitled "upon Gittith," i. e., as the Septuagint translates it, "upon the winepress." For so, when the question is asked, "Who is this that cometh from Edom, with dyed garments from Bozrah ? this that is glorious in His apparel, travelling in the greatness of His strength ? . . . Wherefore art Thou red in Thine apparel, and Thy garments like him that treadeth in the wine-vat ?" the triumphing Messiah answers, "I have trodden the winepress alone." So also the same Lord, speaking by Isaiah, speaks of the winepress which He has made in His vineyard [Isa. v. 2] ; in the parable which He spoke to the Jews He also uses the same figure [Matt. xxi. 33] : and in the last triumph of Christ and His Church there is "a winepress without the City, and blood came out of the winepress." [Rev. xiv. 20.] Thus it seems that the title of this Psalm as well as its substance indicates it to be a hymn of victory for the Church when the days of her warfare are accomplished, and her sorrow is at an end.

Thus at the new "beginning of months," the "solemn feast-day" when the "trumpet shall sound and the dead shall be raised," the song of joy is heard "Sing we merrily unto God our strength," "Alleluia, for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth." It is the song of the Church's deliverance from Egypt, and of her delive-

The XVI. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

13 So I gave them up unto their own hearts' lusts : and let them follow their own imaginations.

Isa. xlviii. 18.

14 O that my people would have hearkened unto me : for if Israel had walked in my ways, 15 I should soon have put down their enemies : and turned my hand against their adversaries.

16 The haters of the Lord should have been found liars : but their time should have endured for ever.

Dent. xxxii. 13, 14.
John vi. 31.
Cant. iv. 11.
1 Cor. x. 4.

17 He should have fed them also with the finest wheat-flour : and with honey out of the stony rock should I have satisfied thee.

THE LXXXII PSALM.

Deus stetit.

Evening
Prayer.
Luke xxii. 66.

GOD standeth in the congregation of princes : he is a Judge among gods.

Luke xxii. 71.
xxiii. 10. 18.

2 How long will ye give wrong judgement : and accept the persons of the ungodly ?

3 Defend the poor and fatherless : see that such as are in need and necessity have right.

4 Deliver the out-cast and poor : save them from the hand of the ungodly.

John xii. 36, 37.

5 They will not be learned nor understand, but walk on still in darkness : all the foundations of the earth are out of course.

Exod. xxii. 28.
Acts xxiii. 5.
John x. 34.

6 I have said, Ye are gods : and ye are all the children of the most High-est.

7 But ye shall die like men : and fall like one of the princes.

Isa. lx. 3.
John x. 16.

8 Arise, O God, and judge thou the earth : for thou shalt take all heathen to thine inheritance.

Et dimisi eos secundum desideria cordis eorum : ibunt in adinventio-nibus suis. in voluntatibus suis

Si populus meus audisset me : Israël si in viis meis ambulasset :

Pro nihilo forsitan inimicos eorum Ad nihilum ini- humiliassem : et super tribulantes eos micos misissem manum meam.

Inimici Domini mentiti sunt ei : et erit tempus eorum in sæcula. in æternum

Et cibavit eos ex adipe frumenti : et de petra melle saturavit eos. satiavit eos

PSALMUS LXXXI.

DEUS stetit in synagoga deorum : Friday Mattins.
in medio autem deos dijudicat. Deus discernit

Usquequo judicatis iniquitatem : et facies peccatorum sumitis ?

Judicate egeno et pupillo : humilem et pauperem justifycate.

Eripite pauperem : et egenum de manu peccatoris liberate.

Nescierunt, neque intellexerunt ; in tenebris ambulant : movebuntur omnia fundamenta terræ.

Ego dixi, Dii estis : et filii Excelsi omnes.

Vos autem sicut homines moriemini : et sicut unus de principibus cadetis.

Surge, Deus, judica terram : quoniam Exsurge tu hæreditabis in omnibus gentibus.

rance from "the burden" of sin, and the death which comes from sin<sup>1</sup>.

In that day it will be plainly seen by all that the triumph of the people of God is the result of His mercy in Christ, and not of their own worthiness : that though the prayer has been going up continually "Thy Kingdom come," yet the coming of that Kingdom has been hindered by the sins of Israel : that the words of this Psalm are literally true, "If Israel had walked in My ways, I should soon have put down their enemies : " and that even in her highest triumph "no man in Heaven, nor in earth, neither under the earth, will be able to open the Book," or be found worthy to stand in his own righteousness. The final interpretation of "Sing we merrily unto God our strength," will therefore be, "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and blessing." [Rev. v. 12.]

<sup>1</sup> It is not altogether without interest that the word translated "pots" (literally "baskets"), is rendered by a word identical with our English "coffins," both in the LXX and the Vulgate. The practice of Urn-burial is well known.

PSALM LXXXII.

When the Incarnate WORD stood before the Sanhedrim, the first verses of this Psalm were literally fulfilled : GOD—the Second Person of the Blessed Trinity inseparably united with Human Nature—standing in the congregation of princes, and the

THE LXXXIII PSALM.

Deus, quis similis?

The XVI. Day.
Evening
Prayer.

HOLD not thy tongue, O God, keep not still silence : refrain not thy self, O God.

2 For lo, thine enemies make a murmuring : and they that hate thee have lift up their head.

Rev. xlii. 13.
Col. iii. 3.

3 They have imagined craftily against thy people : and taken counsel against thy secret ones.

Rev. xlii. 15.

4 They have said, Come, and let us root them out, that they be no more a people : and that the name of Israel may be no more in remembrance.

Rev. xvi. 13.

5 For they have cast their heads together with one consent : and are confederate against thee ;

Dan. vii. 24.
Rev. xlii. 1.
xvii. 12.

6 The tabernacles of the Edomites, and the Ismaelites : the Moabites, and Hagarens ;

7 Gebal, and Ammon, and Amalek :
the Philistines, with them that dwell at Tyre.

8 Assur also is joined with them :
and have holpen the children of Lot.

9 But do thou to them as unto the Madianites : unto Sisera, and unto Jabin at the brook of Kison ;

10 Who perished at Endor : and became as the dung of the earth.

Judg. vii. 23.
viii. 12, 21.

11 Make them and their princes like Oreb and Zeb : yea, make all their princes like as Zeba and Salmana ;

12 Who say, Let us take to our selves : the houses of God in possession.

Isa. xlvii. 13.
Job xxi. 18.

13 O my God, make them like unto a wheel : and as the stubble before the wind ;

PSALMUS LXXXII.

DEUS, quis similis erit tibi? ne taceas, neque compescaris, Deus :

Friday Mattins.

Quoniam ecce inimici tui sonuerunt:
et qui oderunt te extulerunt caput.

Super populum tuum malignaverunt consilium : et cogitaverunt adversus sanctos tuos. In plebem tuam astute cogita-runt consilium

Dixerunt, Venite et disperdamus eos de gente : et non memoretur nomen Israël ultra. amplius

Quoniam cogitaverunt unanimiter simul adversus te : testamentum disposuerunt, tabernacula Idumæorum et Ismaelitæ : consensum in unum simul

Moab, et Agareni, Gebal, et Ammon, et Amalec : alienigenæ, cum habitanti-bus Tyrum.

Etenim Assur venit cum illis : facti sunt in adjutorium filiis Lot. susceptione filio

Fac illis sicut Madian et Sisaræ :
sicut Jabin in torrente Cison.

Disperierunt in Endor : facti sunt ut stercus terræ.

Pone principes eorum sicut Oreb et Zeb : et Zebee, et Salmana.

Omnes principes eorum qui dixerunt : Hæreditate possideamus sanctuarium Dei.

Deus meus, pone illos ut rotam : et sicut stipulam ante faciem venti.

Judge of all the world among the judges. So also was the second verse literally fulfilled when wrong judgment was given against the Holy One, and the person of the ungodly murderer and rebel Barabbas accepted instead. "All the foundations of the earth" seemed indeed to be "out of course" when such terrible injustice could be done by judges who, on account of their most sacred office, had received from God Himself the name of "gods." The last words of our Lord's public ministrations were, "While ye have the light, believe in the light, that ye may be the children of light." But they walked on still in darkness, unwilling to learn from Him or to understand His words. Therefore the Jews were given up by God :—"Ye shall die like men," while He Who stood before the unjust judges arose in the glory of His new Kingdom to "take all the heathen to" that inheritance which His ancient people had despised.

Such seems to be the prophetic and Christian meaning of this Psalm. Its meaning as a general exhortation to all judges is too obvious to need illustration.

PSALM LXXXIII.

A continuation of the call for judgment upon the enemies of Christ and His Church is to be found in this Psalm. At the time of the great Diocletian persecution a general attempt was made throughout the world to destroy the Church, and the words of the fourth verse are strongly illustrated by the heathen monuments of the day, which declared that Christianity had been overthrown, and its very name blotted out. The agreement of the Cæsars who governed the Roman world in such an universal persecution may be represented by the confederation of the ten nations named in the sixth, seventh, and eighth verses. Notwithstanding the fierceness of this terrible persecution, the Church was so far from being rooted out as that it should be no more a people, and the

The XVI. Day.
Evening
Prayer.

14 Like as the fire that burneth up the wood : and as the flame that consumeth the mountains.

15 Persecute them even so with thy tempest : and make them afraid with thy storm.

16 Make their faces ashamed, O Lord : that they may seek thy Name.

17 Let them be confounded and vexed ever more and more : let them be put to shame and perish.

18 And they shall know that thou, whose Name is Jehovah : art only the most Highest over all the earth.

Zech. xiv. 9.
Rev. xvii. 14.

THE LXXXIV PSALM.

Quam dilecta.

O HOW amiable are thy dwellings : thou Lord of hosts.

2 My soul hath a desire and longing to enter into the courts of the Lord : my heart and my flesh rejoice in the living God.

3 Yea, the sparrow hath found her an house, and the swallow a nest where she may lay her young : even thy altars, O Lord of hosts, my King and my God.

4 Blessed are they that dwell in thy house : they will be alway praising thee.

5 Blessed is the man whose strength is in thee : in whose heart are thy ways.

6 Who going through the vale of misery use it for a well : and the pools are filled with water.

Phil. i. 23.
iii. 8-11.

Matt. viii. 20.

Ps. i. 1.

John iv. 10. 14.
Isa. xli. 3.

Sicut ignis qui comburit silvam : et sicut flamma comburens montes :

Incendat montes

Ita persequeris illos in tempestate tua : et in ira tua turbabis eos.

Imple facies eorum ignominia : et quærent Nomen tuum, Domine.

Erubescant, et conturbentur in sæculum sæculi : et confundantur, et pereant.

Et cognoscant quia nomen tibi Dominus : tu solus Altissimus in omni terra.

PSALMUS LXXXIII.

QUAM dilecta tabernacula tua, Domine virtutum : concupiscit et deficit anima mea in atria Domini.

Cor meum et caro mea : exsultaverunt in Deum vivum.

Fr'day Mattins.
Transfig., Dedic.
Ch., 2nd Noct.
All Saints,
Corp. Chr.
Many Confess.
3rd Noct.
*Quam amabilia
sunt concupiuit et defecit*

Etenim passer invenit sibi domum et turtur nidum sibi : ubi reponat pullos suos :

Altaria tua, Domine virtutum : Rex meus, et Deus meus.

Beati qui habitant in domo tua, Domine : in sæcula sæculorum laudabunt te.

Beatus vir cujus est auxilium abs te : ascensiones in corde suo disposuit, in valle lachrymarum, in loco quem posuit.

abs te Domine ascendens

quem disposuisti eis

name of Christ's Israel no more had in remembrance, that it arose from its ashes to a life of greater vigour than before, and within a few years was the one recognized religion of the very Empire which had attempted its extermination.

Such a general persecution of the Church has never again occurred, but there is a continuous confederacy of its various foes, who are the representatives of the ten nations named in this Psalm. Some utterly reject the Lord Jesus Christ, as the Heathen and the utter Infidel. Some recognize Him, in a certain sense, as the Mahometans, and the various sects of (falsely so called) "Unitarian" heretics. Some recognize the Person of the Lord, but deny His work in His Mystical Body. Some, by their wickedness, practically reject both Him and His work, though they may theoretically acknowledge Him. All these various classes are among the enemies of God who "make a murmuring," and in their hatred "lift up their head" whenever favourable opportunities occur of opposing Christ and His Church.

But the mystical meaning of the Psalm has probably a prophetic aspect which bears reference to the enmity and opposition of Antichrist in the last time. In him all the various opponents of the Church will find a "head" whom they may "lift up" against Christ, as one professing himself to be God in the place of the Lord Jesus, and accepting Divine worship in the Church. Thus, perhaps, the ten nations of the Psalm find their parallel in the ten kingdoms of Antichrist; and the final "Come, let us root them out," is represented by the prophetic record, that he caused "that as many as would not worship the image of the beast should be killed." [Rev. xiii. 15.]

PSALM LXXXIV.

This is the prayer of the Anointed of the Lord, our Saviour Jesus Christ, expressing the longing of His Soul while on earth ; a longing which was revealed in its suffering form when He said, "Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man hath not where to lay His head." All the creatures of God found a resting-place in the loving care and Providence of their Maker, but the Son of Man looked on afar at the Presence of His Father as One who had taken upon Himself the form of sinful man, of man cast out of the Paradise of God. "The Man," therefore, whose blessedness is proclaimed in the fifth verse is the same MAN Who is set before us in the very first words of the book of Psalms ; and the blessedness here spoken of

The XVI. Day.
Evening

Prayer.
2 Cor. iii. 18.
Matt. v. 8.
Rev. xxii. 4.

7 They will go from strength to strength : and unto the God of gods appeareth every one of them in Sion.

8 O Lord God of hosts, hear my prayer : hearken, O God of Jacob.

9 Behold, O God our defender : and look upon the face of thine Anointed.

Luke xxiii. 43.

10 For one day in thy courts : is better than a thousand.

Cf. Acts xix. 35,
in the Greek.

11 I had rather be a door-keeper in the house of my God : than to dwell in the tents of ungodliness.

Isa. lx. 1. 19.
Rev. xxi. 23.

12 For the Lord God is a light and defence : the Lord will give grace and worship, and no good thing shall he withhold from them that live a godly life.

13 O Lord God of hosts : blessed is the man that putteth his trust in thee.

THE LXXXV PSALM.

Benedixisti, Domine.

Christmas Day
Mattins.

LORD, thou art become gracious unto thy land : thou hast turned away the captivity of Jacob.

Isa. liv. 7.
Heb. ix. 12.

2 Thou hast forgiven the offence of thy people : and covered all their sins.

3 Thou hast taken away all thy displeasure : and turned thy self from thy wrathful indignation.

Etenim benedictionem dabit legis- dabit qui legem lator ; ibunt de virtute in virtutem : dedit ambula- videbitur Deus deorum in Sion. bant

Domine, Deus virtutum, exaudi ora- precem meam tionem meam : auribus percipe Deus Jacob.

Protector noster aspice, Deus : et respice in faciem Christi tui :

Quia melior est dies una in atriis tuis : super millia.

Elegi abjectus esse in domo Dei mei : magis quam habitare in tabernaculis peccatorum.

Quia misericordiam et veritatem diligit Deus : gratiam et gloriam dabit Dominus.

Non privabit bonis eos qui ambulant in innocentia : Domine virtutum, Dominus non ambulantes beatus homo qui sperat in te.

PSALMUS LXXXIV.

BENEDIXISTI, Domine, terram Friday Mattins.
tuam : avertisti captivitatem Christma- Jacob. Dedic. Church,
2nd Noct.

Remisisti iniquitatem plebis tuæ : operuisti omnia peccata eorum.

Mitigasti omnem iram tuam : avertisti ab ira indignationis tuæ.

is that arising from His entire submission of His heart to the ways of the Divine Providence and purpose respecting the redemption of mankind. By such submission His "strength" was elevated above the strength of even the holiest humanity, and became a superhuman, Divine strength, a strength in God, "mighty to save." Thus endowed with the power of the Incarnation, our Lord passed through the "vale of misery," making His humiliation a fountain or well of life, as if the tears which He shed had become inexhaustible "pools" of living water springing up into everlasting life. Such is the strength of our Lord's Incarnation on earth ; but "they" will go from strength to strength, and unto the God of gods appeareth every one of them in Sion." Jesus Triumphant is even more "mighty to save" than Jesus Suffering ; the Intercessor offering His Sacrifice before the Throne is even more the "Strength of Israel" than the Saviour offering that Sacrifice upon the Cross. Let us look, therefore, not only on the Crucifix, setting forth His Passion before our eyes, but let us also hear the words of the angel, "He is not here, but is risen," and behold in the vacant Cross, as in the empty tomb, the Sign of the Son of Man's continual Sacrifice of Intercession ; a passing from the strength of earth to the strength of Heaven. By such an Ascension did the Son of Man find the aspirations of His heart fulfilled that His human heart and flesh should rejoice in the living God, entering into His courts, and dwelling there for an eternal "day."

From such a view of this Psalm it is easy to see also that it reveals Christ praying for His Mystical Body that it may be glorified by its final reception into the Divine Presence. Here the Church of God is in the "vale of tears," but the everlasting benediction of God will go forth upon its work as the Church Militant in a state of grace, so that though "weeping may endure for a night, joy cometh in the morning," when it enters on a state of glory. "But we all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord."

In viewing the Psalm as the words of our Blessed Lord, we shall also find the key to its use as the words of His members. Nothing else uttered by human lips ever so fully expressed the longing which the devout soul, especially in seasons of sorrow, has to "depart and be with Christ" even in "the lowest room." Oh, how much rather the most abject place in "the house not made with hands," than the highest throne in the mystical Babylon ! How infinite the blessings of one day in Heaven, compared to all that earth can furnish in threescore years and ten !

PSALM LXXXV.

The Incarnation of our Blessed Lord was the true turning away of the Captivity of God's people, and His speaking of peace to them ; so that this Psalm has been appropriated, time immemorial, to the celebration of His Nativity ; when a multitude of the heavenly host was heard "praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, goodwill towards men." To Him Who is the Prince of Peace, Who said of Him-<sup>1</sup> The frequent interchange of pronouns is here again illustrated. Compare notes at pp. 324. 347.

The XVI. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Zech. i. 3.

4 Turn us then, O God our Saviour :
and let thine anger cease from us.

5 Wilt thou be displeased at us for ever : and wilt thou stretch out thy wrath from one generation to another?

Rev. vi. 10.
Ezek. xxxviii.
1—14.

6 Wilt thou not turn again, and quicken us : that thy people may rejoice in thee?

7 Shew us thy mercy, O Lord : and grant us thy salvation.

Isa. ix. 6.
Luke ii. 14.

8 I will hearken what the Lord God will say concerning me : for he shall speak peace unto his people, and to his saints, that they turn not again.

Luke x. 9.
Rev. xxi. 3—11.
John i. 14. 17.

9 For his salvation is nigh them that fear him : that glory may dwell in our land.

Rom. i. 5.

10 Mercy and truth are met together : righteousness and peace have kissed each other.

John i. 14.
xiv. 6.
Rev. xix. 11.

11 Truth shall flourish out of the earth : and righteousness hath looked down from heaven.

Isa. xxvi. 15.

12 Yea, the Lord shall shew loving-kindness : and our land shall give her increase.

Isa. xl. 5.

13 Righteousness shall go before him : and he shall direct his going in the way.

THE LXXXVI PSALM.

Inclina, Domine.

The XVII. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
2 Cor. viii. 9.

BOW down thine ear, O Lord, and hear me : for I am poor and in misery.

Rev. xv. 3, 4.
[1 Cor. i. 2.
Lev. xi. 44, 45.
1 Pet. i. 15.]

2 Preserve thou my soul, for I am holy : my God, save thy servant that putteth his trust in thee.

Heb. v. 7.

3 Be merciful unto me, O Lord :
for I will call daily upon thee.

4 Comfort the soul of thy servant :
for unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul.

Converte nos, Deus salutaris noster :
et averte iram tuam a nobis.

Nunquid in æternum irasceris nobis? Ut non in æter- aut extendes iram tuam a generatione num in generationem. neque ext. . . a progenie in pro- geniem

Deus, tu conversus vivificabis nos : conversus et plebs tua lætabitur in te.

Ostende nobis, Domine, misericor-diam tuam : et salutare tuum da nobis.

Audiam quid loquatur in me, Dominus Deus : quoniam loquetur pacem in plebem suam :

Et super sanctos suos : et in eos qui convertuntur ad cor. ad ipsam

Veruntamen prope timentes eum salutare ipsius : ut inhabitet gloria in terra nostra.

Misericordia et veritas obviaverunt sibi : justitia et pax osculatæ sunt. complexæ sunt ad

Veritas de terra orta est : et justitia de cælo prospexit.

Etenim Dominus dabit benignitatem : et terra nostra dabit fructum
suum.

Justitia ante eum ambulabit : et ponet in via gressus suos.

PSALMUS LXXXV.

INCLINA, Domine, aurem tuam, et exaudi me : quoniam inops et pauper sum ego. Friday Mattins.
Epiphany,
2nd Noct.
Name of Jesus,
3rd Noct.

Custodi animam meam, quoniam
sanctus sum : salvum fac servum tuum, Deus meus, sperantem in te.

Miserere mei, Domine, quoniam ad te clamavi tota die ; lætifica animam servi tui : quoniam ad te, Domine, ani-mam meam levavi.

self, "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life," and Whose perfect Righteousness fits Him to be the Judge of all men, to Him and to His work alone such words as those of the ninth and following verses belong : and in His constant declarations, "The Kingdom of Heaven is at hand," "The Kingdom of God is come nigh unto you," "The Kingdom of God is within you," the Psalmist's prophecy is fulfilled, "For His salvation is nigh them that fear Him."

The penitential tone of verses 4—7, shows that this Psalm looks also prophetically to the second Coming of our Lord, and the "quickening" of the general resurrection. Until then the Church is going through a second captivity, since it cannot before enter upon the full glory of its inheritance. When that captivity draws to a close, the Prince of Peace will again fulfil the eleventh verse—He that is "called Faithful and True" going forth "in righteousness" to "judge and make war" that "glory may dwell in our land" by the subjugation of all evil.

PSALM LXXXVI.

The central idea of this Psalm is to be found in the central verse, the ninth, which doubtless gives the key to its use as an Epiphany Psalm in the ancient system of the Church. It is entitled "a Prayer of David," and is to be taken as the supplication of Him Whom David prefigured. In "the time of His trouble,"

The XVII. Day.
Morning Prayer.

5 For thou, Lord, art good and gracious : and of great mercy unto all them that call upon thee.

6 Give ear, Lord, unto my prayer : and ponder the voice of my humble desires.

John xi. 33. 41.
xii. 27, 28.

7 In the time of my trouble I will call upon thee : for thou hearest me.

Heb. i. 4—14.
1 Cor. viii. 5, 6.

8 Among the gods there is none like unto thee, O Lord : there is not one that can do as thou doest.

Phil. ii. 10.
Rev. v. 9—14.
iv. 11. vii. 9.
xv. 3, 4.

9 All nations whom thou hast made shall come and worship thee, O Lord : and shall glorify thy Name.

10 For thou art great, and doest wondrous things : thou art God alone.

11 Teach me thy way, O Lord, and I will walk in thy truth : O knit my heart unto thee, that I may fear thy Name.

12 I will thank thee, O Lord my God, with all my heart : and will praise thy Name for evermore.

Ps. xvi. 10.
Acts ii. 31.
[Matt. xvi. 18.
Jonah ii. 2.
Col. i. 13.]

13 For great is thy mercy toward me : and thou hast delivered my soul from the nethermost hell.

14 O God, the proud are risen against me : and the congregations of naughty men have sought after my soul, and have not set thee before their eyes.

Exod. xxxiv. 6.

15 But thou, O Lord God, art full of compassion and mercy : long-suffering, plenteous in goodness and truth.

16 O turn thee then unto me, and have mercy upon me : give thy strength unto thy servant, and help the son of thine handmaid.

Luke i. 48.

Isa. liii. 11.
Rev. i. 7.
Matt. xxiv. 30.

17 Shew some token upon me for good, that they who hate me may see it, and be ashamed : because thou, Lord, hast holpen me and comforted me.

Quoniam tu, Domine, suavis, et mitis ; et multæ misericordiæ omnibus et copiosus in misericordia invocantibus te.

Auribus percipe, Domine, orationem meam : intende voci deprecationis meæ.

In die tribulationis meæ clamavi ad te : quia exaudisti me.

Non est similis tui in diis, Domine : et non est secundum opera tua.

Omnes gentes quascunque fecisti, venient et adorabunt coram te, Domine : et glorificabunt Nomen tuum. honorificabunt

Quoniam magnus es tu, et faciens mirabilia : tu es Deus solus.

Deduc me, Domine, in via tua, et in- ambuiabo grediar in veritate tua : lætetur cor meum ut timeat Nomen tuum.

Confitebor tibi, Domine, Deus meus, in toto corde meo : et glorificabo No- honorificabo men tuum in æternum.

Quia misericordia tua magna est super me : et eruisti animam meam ex eripuisti inferno inferiori.

Deus, iniqui insurrexerunt super me, et synagoga potentium quæsierunt animam meam : et non proposuerunt te in conspectu suo.

Et tu, Domine Deus, miserator et meus miserator misericors : patiens, et multæ miseri- multum miseri- cordiæ, et verax, curs

Respice in me et miserere mei ; da imperium tuum puero tuo : et salvum potestatem puero fac filium ancillæ tuæ.

Fac mecum signum in bono, ut mecum Domine videant qui oderunt me, et confundantur : quoniam tu, Domine, adjuvisti me, et consolatus es me.

even when "He groaned in the spirit" again and again, He was able to say, "Father, I thank Thee that Thou hast heard Me." So also when He said, "Now is My soul troubled, and what shall I say? Father, save Me from this hour? But for this cause came I unto this hour: Father, glorify Thy Name. Then came there a voice from heaven, saying, I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again." Thus the perfect obedience of the Son of Man when He was "poor and in misery" brought for His Human Nature the highest Epiphanies of Divine glory; and eventually brought all nations to come and worship Him, and glorify His Name. "And they sing the song of Moses, the servant of God, and the song of the Lamb, saying, Great and marvellous are Thy works, Lord God Almighty; just and true are Thy ways, Thou King of saints. Who shall not fear Thee,

O Lord, and glorify Thy Name? For Thou only art holy; for all nations shall come and worship before Thee; for Thy judgments are made manifest." Only He who is "King of saints," and to whom all saints and angels sing "Thou only art holy," could say in its full sense, "I am holy;" and thus the song of Moses and of the Lamb is a suitable antiphon to this Psalm, striking the mystical key-note of its Christian use. The Son of God became "poor" that He might make many rich. He was despised and rejected of men in His "misery" that He might bring many sons unto glory [Heb. ii. 10]: He was "made in the form of a servant" that He might enfranchise many from the bondage of Satan to the perfect freedom of God: He prayed as with the voice of a sinner, that bearing the sins of the whole world, He might lead forth His people "from the nethermost

THE LXXXVII PSALM.

Fundamenta ejus.

The XVII. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

Heb. xi. 10.

xii. 22.

Isa. ii. 2.

Eph. ii. 20.

Rev. xxi. 10. 12.

Matt. xvi. 13.

v. 14.

Isa. lx. 14.

xix. 18.

Heb. viii. 10.

Eph. iii. 19.

Isa. lx. 6, 7. 14.

i. e. the Moors.

Gal. iv. 19.

Rev. xii. 5.

Ezek. ix. 2. 4.

Isa. ix. 6.

John iv. 10.

Rev. vii. 15.

xxii. 1.

HER foundations are upon the holy hills : the Lord loveth the gates of Sion more than all the dwellings of Jacob.

2 Very excellent things are spoken of thee : thou city of God.

3 I will think upon Rahab and Babylon : with them that know me.

4 Behold ye the Philistines also : and they of Tyre, with the Morians ; lo, there was he born.

5 And of Sion it shall be reported that he was born in her : and the most High shall stablish her.

6 The Lord shall rehearse it when he writeth up the people : that he was born there.

7 The singers also and trumpeters shall he rehearse : All my fresh springs shall be in thee.

THE LXXXVIII PSALM.

Domine Deus.

Good Friday
Evensong.
Passion Psalm.
[A daily Morning
Psalm in the Eastern Ch.]

O LORD God of my salvation, I have cried day and night before thee : O let my prayer enter into thy presence, incline thine ear unto my calling.

Hell." He thus went through all the travail of His soul that He might see "some token for good," and be "satisfied" with the mighty results of His sufferings; that the great work of man's redemption might be accomplished; and that hereafter the "token for good" may be showed before all men in the sign of the Son of Man which shall appear as a cross of suffering transformed into a banner of triumph; at whose appearing "they which pierced Him" shall look on His transfigured wounds, and acknowledge Him for their Judge.

With careful and reverent reserve this Psalm may be used by the members of Christ as His voice speaking in them. The bracketed marginal references will indicate how far Christ's own words respecting Himself may be adopted by Christians respecting themselves; and a due appreciation of this and similar Psalms in their highest sense will be the best preservative against a presumptuous application of them.

PSALM LXXXVII.

Whatever application this Psalm may originally have had to the earthly Sion has been transfigured and glorified by the subsequent Revelation of the City of God in the prophetic vision of St. John. Of the new Jerusalem it was predicted, "It shall come to pass in the last days that the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills, and all nations shall flow unto it;" and of this St. John had a glorious vision long after the earthly Sion had been destroyed; when "he carried me away in the spirit to a great and high mountain, and showed me that great city, the holy Jerusalem, descending out of Heaven from God,

PSALMUS LXXXVI.

FUNDAMENTA ejus in montibus sanctis : diligit Dominus portas Sion super omnia tabernacula Jacob.

Friday Mattins.
Circumc., Dedic.
Ch., B. V. M.,
Virg. & Matr.
2nd Noct.

Gloriosa dicta sunt de te : civitas Dei.

Memor ero Rahab et Babylonis : scientium me.

Ecce alienigenæ, et Tyrus, et populus Æthiopum : hi fuerunt illic.

Nunquid Sion dicet, Homo, et homo natus est in ea : et ipse fundavit eam Altissimus?

Meter Sion . . .
Jactus est

Dominus narrabit in scripturis populorum : et principum horum qui fuerunt in ea.

Sicut lætantium omnium : habitatio est in te. omnium nostrum

PSALMUS LXXXVII.

DOMINE Deus salutis meæ : in die clamavi et nocte coram te.

Friday Mattins.
Good Friday,
Easter Eve,
3rd Noct.

Intret in conspectu tuo oratio mea : inclina aurem tuam ad precem meam : meam Domine having the glory of God; and her light was like unto a stone most precious, even like a jasper stone, clear as crystal; and had a wall great and high, and had twelve gates, and at the gates twelve angels, and names written thereon, which are the names of the twelve tribes of the children of Israel; . . . and the wall of the city had twelve foundations, and in them the names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb." This city had already been spoken of also by St. Paul: "But ye are come to mount Sion, and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem," "built upon the foundation of the Apostles and Prophets, Jesus Christ Himself being the chief corner-stone;" and to the same our Lord referred when He said, "Upon this Rock I will build My Church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Thus the New Testament rings out a clear antiphon to this Psalm, "I saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God, out of Heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband." [Rev. xxi. 2]—a city belonging to all the peoples of the world, and in which Christ is ever being born, through the increase of His Mystical Body.

PSALM LXXXVIII.

Nothing but the Passion of our Blessed Redeemer can give the key to the mournful words of this Psalm; and as the holy Name Jesus, though often borne by men before it was adopted by the

1 It is pointed out by a modern commentator on the Psalms that the use of the words "spoken of" in verse 2, is identical with that in Canticles viii. 8, and has reference to betrothal, "With glorious promises He claimeth thee as His bride." [Thurupp on Psalms, ii. 90.]

The XVII. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Ysa. liii. 12.
Acts i. 26.

2 For my soul is full of trouble :
and my life draweth nigh unto hell.

3 I am counted as one of them that go down into the pit : and I have been even as a man that hath no strength.

Hos. xiii. 14.

4 Free among the dead, like unto them that are wounded, and lie in the grave : who are out of remembrance, and are cut away from thy hand.

5 Thou hast laid me in the lowest pit : in a place of darkness and in the deep.

6 Thine indignation lieth hard upon me : and thou hast vexed me with all thy storms.

7 Thou hast put away mine acquaintance far from me : and made me to be abhorred of them.

8 I am so fast in prison : that I cannot get forth.

Exod. xvii. 11, 12.
Isa. xxv. 11.
1. e. all the day.

9 My sight faileth for very trouble :
Lord, I have called daily upon thee, I have stretched forth my hands unto thee.

10 Dost thou shew wonders among the dead : or shall the dead rise up again, and praise thee ?

11 Shall thy lovingkindness be shewed in the grave : or thy faithfulness in destruction ?

Job x. 21, 22.
Ecc. viii. 10.
ix. 5.

12 Shall thy wondrous works be known in the dark : and thy righteousness in the land where all things are forgotten ?

13 Unto thee have I cried, O Lord : and early shall my prayer come before
thee.

Quia repleta est malis anima mea :
et vita mea inferno appropinquavit. adpropinquabit Æstimatus sum cum descendentibus in lacum : factus sum sicut homo sine adjutorio, inter mortuos liber.

Sicut vulnerati, dormientes in sepul- dorm. projecti in chris, quorum non es memor amplius : monumentis . .
et ipsi de manu tua repulsi sunt. meministi et guidem ipsi . . expulsi

Posuerunt me in lacu inferiori : in tenebrosis et in umbra mortis.

Super me confirmatus est furor tuus : ira tua et omnes et omnes fluctus tuos induxisti super elutiones
me.

Longe fecisti notos meos a me : posuerunt me abominationem sibi.

Traditus sum et non egrediebar : oculi mei languerunt præ inopia. infirmati sunt præ

Clamavi ad te, Domine : tota die expandi ad te manus meas.

Nunquid mortuis facies mirabilia :
aut medici suscitabunt, et confitebun- resuscitabunt
tur tibi ?

Nunquid narrabit aliquis in sepulchro misericordiam tuam : et veritatem tuam in perditione ?

Nunquid cognoscentur in tenebris mirabilia tua : et justitia tua in terra oblivionis ?

Et ego ad te, Domine, clamavi : et mane oratio mea præveniet te.

Saviour, can never again be reverently used by them, so if this Psalm ever expressed the personal experience of David or any other saint, it has yet now become too sacred to be applied to any but Christ : in whose Name it is sung by His Mystical Body. No other Psalm expresses so fully the profundity of the spiritual darkness which overwhelmed the soul of the suffering Jesus on the Cross, or expresses it so utterly without the breaking in upon it of one hopeful ray of light. We are almost compelled to go even further, and to receive the Psalm as a Divine revelation of a darkness beyond the Cross which is not referred to in the holy Gospel ; for all the expressions in the Psalm refer to death as past, and to the state after death as that which is present to the mind of the speaker<sup>1</sup>.

But such an interpretation, in a literal form, seems to be inconsistent with our Lord's last words, "It is finished," and "Father, into Thy hands I commend My spirit." It is safer, therefore, to suppose that the darkness of the state after death formed part of our Lord's sufferings by anticipation, that the actual descent into Hell was a part of the Resurrection Victory, and that the misery of God's "wrathful displeasure" with sinners after death formed part of those unknown sufferings which were veiled by the "darkness over all the earth," and the evidence of which is condensed into the awful cry, "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me ?" As the fear of death entered into His sufferings, so also did the fear of what comes after death form a part of them. Thus "I am counted as one of them that go down into the pit" may be interpreted in the same manner as "He was numbered<sup>2</sup> with the transgressors : " viz., that He bore all the shame of a transgressor though He was not actually one, and that, being "made sin for us," He suffered the full punishment of sin—privation of the Divine Presence—though He did not suffer during His vicarious but triumphant descent into the kingdom of Satan.

<sup>1</sup> The one apparent exception, verse 15, is not really so. The "point" is so placed as to interfere with the true meaning, which is, "From my youth up I have been at the point to die." See the Vulgate and the Bible Version.

<sup>2</sup> So when Matthias was made an Apostle it is said "he was numbered with the eleven Apostles."

The XVII. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Matt. xxvii. 46.

14 Lord, why abhorrest thou my soul : and hidest thou thy face from me ?

[The : ought to be placed after
"youth up."]

15 I am in misery, and like unto him that is at the point to die : even from my youth up ; thy terrors have I suffered with a troubled mind.

16 Thy wrathful displeasure goeth over me : and the fear of thee hath undone me.

i. e. all the day.

17 They came round about me daily like water : and compassed me together on every side.

Matt. xxvi. 56.

18 My lovers and friends hast thou put away from me : and hid mine acquaintance out of my sight.

THE LXXXIX PSALM.

Misericordias Domini.

Evening
Prayer.
Christmas Day,
Yvesong.

MY song shall be alway of the lovingkindness of the Lord : with my mouth will I ever be shewing thy truth from one generation to another.

2 For I have said, Mercy shall be set up for ever : thy truth shalt thou stablish in the heavens.

Isa. lv. 3.
2 Sam. vii. 12. 14.
Heb. i. 5.

3 I have made a covenant with my chosen : I have sworn unto David my servant ;

Heb. ii. 13.
Rev. xxii. 16.
Isa. ix. 6. 7.
Luke i. 32. 33.

4 Thy seed will I stablish for ever : and set up thy throne from one generation to another.

Rev. xix. 5.
xv. 3.
Eph. iii. 10.

5 O Lord, the very heavens shall praise thy wondrous works : and thy truth in the congregation of the saints.

Matt. xxvi. 64.

6 For who is he among the clouds : that shall be compared unto the Lord ?

1 Cor. viii. 5.
Heb. i. 6.

7 And what is he among the gods : that shall be like unto the Lord ?

Rev. iv. 2—11.
v. 12.

8 God is very greatly to be feared in the council of the saints : and to be had in reverence of all them that are round about him.

9 O Lord God of hosts, who is like unto thee : thy truth, most mighty Lord, is on every side.

Ut quid, Domine, repellis orationem meam : avertis faciem tuam a me ?

Pauper sum ego et in laboribus a Egens sum juventute mea : exaltatus autem, humiliatus sum et conturbatus. et confusus

In me transierunt iræ tuæ : et terrores tui conturbaverunt me.

Circunderunt me sicut aqua tota Circueierunt die : circunderunt me simul.

Elongasti a me amicum et proximum : et notos meos a miseria.

PSALMUS LXXXVIII.

MISERICORDIAS Domini : in Friday Mattins.
æternum cantabo. Christmas,
3rd Noct.

In generatione et generationem : et progenie pro- annuntiabo veritatem tuam in ore nuntiabo meo.

Quoniam dixisti, in æternum misericordia ædificabitur in cœlis : præparabitur veritas tua in eis.

Disposui testamentum electis meis : juravi David servo meo, Usque in æternum preparabo semen tuum.

Et ædificabo in generatione et gene- in sæculum sæculi rationem : sedem tuam.

Confitebuntur cœli mirabilia tua, Domine : etenim veritatem tuam in ecclesia sanctorum.

Quoniam quis in nubibus æquabitur Domino : similis erit Deo in filiis aut quis similis Dei ?

Deus qui glorificatur in consilio sanctorum : magnus et terribilis super et metuendus omnes qui in circuitu ejus sunt.

Domine, Deus virtutum, quis similis tibi ? potens es, Domine, et veritas tua in circuitu tuo.

Beyond this general indication of the manner in which this Psalm applies to Christ's Passion it may be undesirable to go, for when once the pervading sense of it has been perceived, the details are so plain that they are scarcely in need of further explanation, and may be more reverently left without it.

PSALM LXXXIX.

This song of the Lord's loving-kindness celebrates the Nativity of our Blessed Saviour, and the establishment of the true David's spiritual seed by virtue of His Incarnation, and of the results which followed therefrom. "For unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given, and the government shall be upon His shoulder ; and His Name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace. Of the increase of His government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to

The XVII. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Mark iv. 39.

Rev. xi. 8.

10 Thou rulest the raging of the sea : thou stillest the waves thereof when they arise.

11 Thou hast subdued Egypt, and destroyed it : thou hast scattered thine enemies abroad with thy mighty arm.

12 The heavens are thine, the earth also is thine : thou hast laid the foundation of the round world, and all that therein is.

13 Thou hast made the north and the south : Tabor and Hermon shall rejoice in thy Name.

Rev. v. 5.

14 Thou hast a mighty arm : strong is thy hand, and high is thy right hand.

15 Righteousness and equity are the habitation of thy seat : mercy and truth shall go before thy face.

Matt. xiii. 16.

16 Blessed is the people, O Lord, that can rejoice in thee : they shall walk in the light of thy countenance.

17 Their delight shall be daily in thy Name : and in thy righteousness shall they make their boast.

Luke i. 68, 69.

18 For thou art the glory of their strength : and in thy lovingkindness thou shalt lift up our horns.

19 For the Lord is our defence : the Holy One of Israel is our King.

1 Sam. xiii. 14.
xvi. 1. 7. 12.
Matt. xii. 18.

20 Thou spakest sometime in visions unto thy saints, and saidst : I have laid help upon one that is mighty ; I have exalted one chosen out of the people.

Acts xiii. 22.
Ezek. xxxiv. 24.
Hos. iii. 5.

21 I have found David my servant : with my holy oil have I anointed him.

John iii. 34.

22 My hand shall hold him fast : and my arm shall strengthen him.

John xiv. 30.

23 The enemy shall not be able to do him violence : the son of wickedness shall not hurt him.

John xviii. 6.
Phil. ii. 8.
Rev. xix. 11—16.

24 I will smite down his foes before his face : and plague them that hate him.

Tu dominaris potestati maris : motum autem fluctuum ejus tu mitigas.

Tu humiliasti, sicut vulneratum, superbum : in brachio virtutis tuæ dis-in virtute brachii tui persisti inimicos tuos.

Tui sunt cæli, et tua est terra : orbem terræ et plenitudinem ejus tu fundasti ; aquilonem et mare tu creasti.

Thabor et Hermon in Nomine tuo exsultabunt : tuum brachium cum potentia.

Firmetur manus tua, et exaltetur dextera tua : justitia et judicium præparatio sedis tuæ.

Misericordia et veritas præcedent
præibunt ante
faciem tuam : beatus populus, qui scit jubilationem.

Domine, in lumine vultus tui ambulabunt, et in Nomine tuo exsultabunt tota die : et in justitia tua exaltabuntur.

Quoniam gloria virtutis eorum tu es : et in beneplacito tuo exaltabitur cornu nostrum.

Quia Domini est assumptio nostra : et sancti Israël Regis nostri.

Tunc locutus es in visione sanctis in aspectu filiorum tuis
tuis : et dixisti, Posui adjutorium in potente, et exaltavi electum de plebe mea.

Inveni David servum meum : oleo sancto meo unxi eum.

Manus enim mea auxiliabitur ei : et brachium meum confortabit eum.

Nihil proficiet inimicus in eo : et filius iniquitatis non apponet nocere ei.
non nocet ei

Et concidam a facie ipsius inimicos ejus : et odientes eum in fugam convertam.

establish it with judgment and with justice, from henceforth, even for ever." "I will make an everlasting covenant with you, even the sure mercies of David." "He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest, and the Lord God shall give unto Him the throne of His father David : and He shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever : and of His Kingdom there shall be no end."

Thus the Psalm praises God, first for the fulfilment of His promise in raising up a Messiah from the seed of David ; and secondly, for establishing the seed of the Messiah Himself in a perpetual succession from one generation to another. It is also to be understood, in part, as a song of praise to Christ Himself, Whose wondrous works, in His Incarnation, Resurrection, and Ascension, the very heavens praised by the mouth of holy Angels. In this sense we see how fully the Divine glory of "the Man Christ Jesus" is illustrated by the voice of prophecy. When St. Paul writes, "But to which of the angels said He at any time, Sit on My right hand, until I make Thine enemies Thy footstool ?" he does but take up the tone of David, "Who is He among the clouds that shall be compared unto the Lord ? And what is He among the gods that shall be like unto the Lord ?" So also, when the Evangelical record tells us that Jesus "arose and

The XVII. Day.
Evening
Prayer.

25 My truth also and my mercy shall be with him : and in my Name shall his horn be exalted.

Isa. xlix. 6.
Zech. ix. 10.

26 I will set his dominion also in the sea : and his right hand in the floods.

2 Sam. vii. 14.
Luke i. 32.

27 He shall call me, Thou art my Father : my God, and my strong salvation.

Matt. iii. 17.
Col. i. 13.

28 And I will make him my first-born : higher than the kings of the earth.

29 My mercy will I keep for him for evermore : and my covenant shall stand fast with him.

2 Sam. vii. 13.
Isa. ix. 7.
Isa. lxi. 10.

30 His seed also will I make to endure for ever : and his throne as the days of heaven.

Isa. viii. 18.

31 But if his children forsake my law : and walk not in my judgments ;

2 Sam. vii. 14.
Heb. xii. 6. 10.

32 If they break my statutes, and keep not my commandments : I will visit their offences with the rod, and their sin with scourges.

2 Sam. vii. 15.

33 Nevertheless, my lovingkindness will I not utterly take from him : nor suffer my truth to fail.

34 My covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that is gone out of my lips : I have sworn once by my holiness, that I will not fail David.

2 Sam. vii. 16.

35 His seed shall endure for ever : and his seat is like as the sun before me.

Isa. lv. 4.
Rev. i. 5.

36 He shall stand fast for evermore as the moon : and as the faithful witness in heaven.

Ps. xlv. 7.
Matt. xxvii. 46.

37 But thou hast abhorred and forsaken thine Anointed : and art displeased at him.

Cf. Ps. cxxxii. 19.

38 Thou hast broken the covenant of thy servant : and cast his crown to the ground.

Et veritas mea et misericordia mea cum ipso : et in Nomine meo exaltabitur cornu ejus.

Et ponam in mari manum ejus : et in fluminibus dexteram ejus.

Ipse invocavit me, Pater meus es invocabilis tu : Deus meus, et susceptor salutis meæ.

Et ego primogenitum ponam illum : excelsum præ regibus terræ.

In æternum servabo illi misericordiam meam : et testamentum meum fidele ipsi.

Et ponam in sæculum sæculi semen ejus : et thronum ejus sicut dies cœli. sedem ejus

Si autem dereliquerint filii ejus legem meam : et in judiciis meis non ambulaverint.

Si justitias meas profanaverint : et justificationes mandata mea non custodierint.

Visitabo in virga iniquitates eorum : et in verberibus peccata eorum.

Misericordiam autem meam non dispergam ab eo : neque nocebo in veritate mea.

Neque profanabo testamentum meum : et quæ procedunt de labiis meis non faciam irrita.

Semel juravi in sancto meo, si David mentiar : semen ejus in æternum manebit.

Et thronus ejus sicut sol in conspectu meo : et sicut luna perfecta in æternum, et testis in cœlo fidelis. sedes ejus

Tu vero repulisti et despexisti : distulisti Christum tuum. et sprevisisti

Evertisti testamentum servi tui : Avertisti profanasti in terra sanctuarium ejus. sanctitatem ejus rebuked the wind, and said unto the sea, Peace, be still ; and the wind ceased, and there was a great calm :” the words are as distinct an historical comment on “Thou rulest the raging of the sea, Thou stillest the waves thereof when they arise,” as is the account given in Exodus of the Passage of the Red Sea. Hence in this first section of the Psalm there is much of mystical application to our Lord : and we may interpret the eighth verse of the worship given by all the saints and angels to “the Lamb as it had been slain,” the eleventh verse of the subjugation of Antichrist, the twelfth of that final glory of Christ, when “all things shall be put under His feet.”

The twentieth verse begins another section in which the Church, or rather Christ in the Person of His Mystical Body, recounts the ancient promises of God respecting the establishment of the Messiah and His Kingdom. These promises had a partial relation to David himself, but there is very much in them which is clearly typical, and relating to Him Who was “chosen out of the people” by being born of the Virgin Mary, “anointed” with the Holy Ghost at His Baptism in Jordan, declared to be the “First-born” of God by the Voice from Heaven, “This is My beloved Son,” made “higher than the kings of the earth” by His reign over a Kingdom which embraces all kingdoms, to Whom is given a

The XVII. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Isa. v. 5.

39 Thou hast overthrown all his hedges : and broken down his strong holds.

40 All they that go by spoil him :
and he is become a reproach to his neighbours.

41 Thou hast set up the right hand of his enemies : and made all his adversaries to rejoice.

42 Thou hast taken away the edge of his sword : and givest him not victory in the battle.

43 Thou hast put out his glory :
and cast his throne down to the ground.

Cf. Hos. vii. 9.

44 The days of his youth hast thou shortened : and covered him with dishonour.

Job xlii. 24.

45 Lord, how long wilt thou hide thy self, for ever : and shall thy wrath burn like fire ?

46 O remember how short my time is : wherefore hast thou made all men for nought ?

1 Cor. xv. 22.

47 What man is he that liveth, and shall not see death : and shall he deliver his soul from the hand of hell ?

Isa. lv. 3.

48 Lord, where are thy old lovingkindnesses : which thou swarest unto David in thy truth ?

Ps. lxi. 21.
Rev. iii. 19.
Isa. liii. 4, 5.
Acts ix. 4, 5.

49 Remember, Lord, the rebuke that thy servants have : and how I do bear in my bosom the rebukes of many
people ;

50 Wherewith thine enemies have blasphemed thee, and slandered the footsteps of thine Anointed : Praised be the Lord for evermore. Amen, and Amen.

Rev. xix. 6.

Destruxisti omnes sepes ejus : po- macherias ejus suisti firmamentum ejus formidinem. munitiones ejus in formidine

Diripuerunt eum omnes transeuntes viam : factus est opprobrium vicinis suis.

Exaltasti dexteram deprimentium inimicorum ejus eum : lætificasti omnes inimicos ejus.

Avertisti adjutorium gladii ejus : et non es auxiliatus ei in bello.

Destruxisti eum ab emundatione : et Dissolvisti sedem ejus in terram collisisti.

Minorasti dies temporis ejus : per-fudisti eum confusione.

Usquequo, Domine, avertis in finem : irasceris exardescet sicut ignis ira tua ?

Memorare quæ mea substantia : Domine quæ nunquid enim vane constituisti omnes non enim . . .
filios hominum ? (omnes)

Quis est homo qui vivet, et non videbit mortem : eruet animam suam aut quis eruet de manu inferi ?

Ubi sunt misericordiæ tuæ antiquæ, Domine : sicut jurasti David in veri-tate tua ?

Memor esto, Domine, opprobrii ser-vorum tuorum : quod continui in sinu meo multarum gentium.

Quod exprobraverunt inimici tui, Domine : quod exprobraverunt commutationem Christi tui.

Benedictus Dominus in æternum :
Fiat, Fiat.

"seed" that "shall endure for ever," and a throne "like as the sun" in its glory and stability before God.

After recounting these promises, there is a transition in the thirty-seventh verse to a strain which is that of a Passion Psalm. Coming where it does, this strain illustrates the fact that Christ's whole life on earth was one of deep humiliation, and that the Incarnation itself was the first step towards the Cross. Except in the last few words, the remainder of the Psalm all takes this sad tone, and it is, thus, much in keeping with the tone of our Lord's personal feelings so far as they are revealed to us in the Gospels. It is impossible to explain how His holy mind could have been so filled with what in ordinary persons we should call despondency, when the glorious end of all must have been visible to Him. Yet the fact is plain in the Gospel narrative, and the latter portion of this Psalm, written concerning Him, is an inspired confirmation of the fact. Such depression and despondency has not unfrequently come upon the Church of Christ also at certain periods of her history : and a time will probably arrive when, as "the very elect" will be, "if it were possible," deceived by "false Christs," so they will be driven almost to despair of God's promise that the gates of hell shall not prevail against His Church.

The concluding burst of praise (the Doxology of the third Book) which makes a new and so sudden a transition from the sorrow of the preceding verses is, more or less, common to nearly all the Psalms which set forth the humiliation and suffering of our Lord. "Heaviness may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning:" and the morning of the Resurrection brought its earliest rays of Light to the garden tomb. As the triumph and glory of Christ followed immediately on His greatest humiliation and suffering, so after the last depression and persecution of His Mystical Body the Light of God and the Lamb will shine upon her, and with unceasing joy the Bride will sing, "Alleluia, for the Lord God Omnipotent reigneth."

THE XC PSALM.

*Domine, refugium.*The XVIII.
Day.*Morning
Prayer.*Burial of the dead.
Gen. i. 1.
John i. 1.LORD, thou hast been our refuge : from one generation to another.2 Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever the earth and the world were made : thou art God from everlasting, and world without end.Gen. iii. 19.
1 Cor. xv. 22.3 Thou turnest man to destruction :
again thou sayest, Come again, ye children of men.2 Pet. iii. 8.
Numb. xiv. 34.
Ezek. ii. 4. 6.4 For a thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday : seeing that is past as a watch in the night.

Job xiv. 10.

5 As soon as thou scatterest them they are even as a sleep : and fade away suddenly like the grass.Ecc. i. 4.
Isa. xl. 6. 8.
1 Pet. i. 25.6 In the morning it is green, and groweth up : but in the evening it is cut down, dried up, and withered.Job xiv. 1.
James iv. 14.7 For we consume away in thy displeasure : and are afraid at thy wrathful indignation.

Rom. v. 12.

8 Thou hast set our misdeeds before thee : and our secret sins in the light of thy countenance.

Job xiv. 13.

9 For when thou art angry all our days are gone : we bring our years to an end, as it were a tale that is told.Gen. xlvii. 9.
1 Kings i. 1.
Ecc. ii. 22, 23.10 The days of our age are three-score years and ten<sup>1</sup>; and though men be so strong that they come to fourscore years : yet is their strength then but labour and sorrow; so soon passeth it away, and we are gone.11 But who regardeth the power of thy wrath : for even thereafter as a man feareth, so is thy displeasure.

PSALMUS LXXXIX.

DOMINE, refugium factus es no- Thursd. Lauds. bis : a generatione in genera- et progenie tionem.Priusquam montes fierent, aut for- firmaretur maretur terra et orbis : a sæculo et usque in sæculum tu es Deus.Ne avertas hominem in humilitatem : et dixisti, Convertimini filii hominum.Quoniam mille anni ante oculos tuos : tanquam dies hesternæ, quæ præterit.Et custodia in nocte : quæ pro ni- Et sicut hilo habentur, eorum anni erunt.Mane sicut herba transeat, mane floreat et transeat : vespere decidat, induret, et arescat.Quia defecimus in ira tua : et in furore tuo turbati sumus.Posuisti iniquitates nostras in conspectu tuo : sæculum nostrum in illuminatione vultus tui.Quoniam omnes dies nostri defece-runt : et in ira tua defecimus.Anni nostri sicut aranea meditabun- meditabantur tur : dies annorum nostrorum, in ipsis septuaginta anni.Si autem in potentatibus octoginta anni : et amplius eorum labor et dolor. plurimumQuoniam supervenit mansuetudo : supervenit super et corripiemur. nosQuis novit potestatem iræ tuæ : et præ timore tuo iram tuam dinumerare?

THE FOURTH BOOK.

PSALM XC.

The title of this Psalm is "a prayer of Moses the servant of God," and there is no reason to suppose otherwise than that it comes down from him. It seems to be a typical intercession of the typical mediator, uttered in view of that revelation of the Fall of man, and of the sentence, "Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return," which is recorded in the Book of Genesis : and the second verse confirms this view by its striking analogy with the opening of that book. It may be, also, that the third verse is the prophet's contemplation of God's promise to Eve that One should arise of her descendants who should bruise the head of the Tempter, and thus open the gates of Paradise for the return of the children of men. It may be, also, that a dim foreshadowing of the time when Christ should appear is indicated by the fourth verse, though the Psalm was probably written about fifteen hundred years before His Advent<sup>2</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> Moses himself lived to the age of 120, and was then in full vigour. [Deut. xxxii. 7.] But the forty years which Israel spent in the wilderness appears to have been the extreme limit of a generation : and we may, therefore, conclude that "threescore years and ten" was the average age of mankind even in the time of Moses, and that his case was of an exceptional, perhaps miraculous, character.

<sup>2</sup> St. Barnabas quotes the fourth as one indication among others that the world will last for 6060 years in its present condition. "Therefore, my children," he adds, "in six days, that is in the six thousand years, all things shall be finished. And He rested on the seventh day : this means, when His Son shall come, and shall abolish the time of the Wicked One," [Anti-christ,] "and shall judge the ungodly, and shall change the sun and moon and stars. Then shall He rest gloriously on the seventh day."

The XVIII.

Day.
Morning
Prayer.
al. O teach us.
Job xiv. 5, 6.

12 So teach us to number our days :
that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom.

13 Turn thee again, O Lord, at the last : and be gracious unto thy servants.

14 O satisfy us with thy mercy, and that soon : so shall we rejoice and be glad all the days of our life.

Job xiv. 15.
Luke xvi. 25.

15 Comfort us again now after the time that thou hast plagued us : and for the years wherein we have suffered adversity.

Exod. xxxiii. 18.
John xi. 25. 40.

16 Shew thy servants thy work :
and their children thy glory.

1 Cor. xv. 49. 58.
Eccl. ix. 10.
Rev. xxi. 11.

17 And the glorious Majesty of the Lord our God be upon us : prosper thou the work of our hands upon us,
O prosper thou our handy-work.

THE XCI PSALM.

Qui habitat.

WHOSO dwelleth under the defence of the most High : shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty.

2 I will say unto the Lord, Thou art my hope, and my strong hold : my God, in him will I trust.

1 Tim. iii. 7.
Cf. Ezek. xlii. 18.
20.

3 For he shall deliver thee from the snare of the hunter : and from the noisome pestilence.

Matt. xxiii. 37.

4 He shall defend thee under his wings, and thou shalt be safe under his feathers : his faithfulness and truth shall be thy shield and buckler.

Prov. iii. 24.
Eph. vi. 16.

5 Thou shalt not be afraid for any terror by night : nor for the arrow that flieth by day ;

Dexteram tuam sic notam fac : et Domine notam eruditos corde in sapientia. fac nobis

Convertere, Domine, usquequo : et Domine aliquan- deprecabilis esto super servos tuos. tulum et appro- care super

Repleti sumus mane misericordia tua : et exsultavimus et delectati sumus omnibus diebus nostris.

Lætati sumus pro diebus quibus nos Delectati humiliasti : annis quibus vidimus mala.

Respice in servos tuos et in opera op. tua Domine tua : et dirige filios eorum.

Et sit splendor Domini Dei nostri super nos ; et opera manuum nostrarum dirige super nos : et opus manuum nostrarum dirige.

PSALMUS XC.

QUI habitat in adjutorio Altissimi : Compline. in protectione Dei cæli commo- Dedic. Ch , rabitur. 3rd Noct.

Dicet Domino, Susceptor meus es tu, et refugium meum : Deus meus, sperabo in eum.

Quoniam ipse liberavit me de laqueo liberabit
venantium : et a verbo aspero.

Scapulis suis obumbrabit tibi : et sub pennis ejus sperabis.

Scuto circundabit te veritas ejus :
non timebis a timore nocturno.

Even at this early date, God thus revealed to all to whom the words of this Psalm came the Evangelical truth more fully declared in after ages, that death is not a natural circumstance, belonging to the constitution of the human body and soul ; but that it is a consequence of sin : " By one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin, and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned." [Rom. v. 12.] It is a truth which is likely to be brought into discredit in an age when physiological studies are not so much tempered as they ought to be by theological studies : but yet a truth which no physiological research can disprove, and which Holy Scripture distinctly asserts. Man does not die because it is a necessary part of his nature to wear out ; but because the decree has gone forth, " Dying, thou shalt die." [Gen. ii. 17.] The key-note, or Antiphon, of this Psalm is, then, to be found in the words of Isaiah, partly adopted by St. Peter : " The Voice said, Cry. And he said, What shall I cry ? All flesh is grass, and all the goodness thereof is as the flower of the field. The grass withereth, the flower fadeth, because the Spirit of the Lord bloweth upon it : surely the people is grass. The grass withereth, and the flower fadeth, but the Word of our God shall stand for ever." Blessed be God that a further revelation also has been made to us, " I am the Resurrection and the Life : he that believeth in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live : and whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die." " Said I not unto thee, that, if thou wouldest believe, thou shouldst see the glory of God ? "

PSALM XCI.

When the Tempter misquoted the eleventh and twelfth verses of this Psalm, he was the means of giving us evidence that it is spoken of Christ, for the holy Jesus did not contradict the application of it to Himself, but rebuked the wrong application of it<sup>1</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> As Satan distorted God's command to our first parents, so he omitted " in all Thy ways,"—the ways of Christ's work and duty,—in quoting these verses.

The XVIII.
Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Hos. xiii. 14.
1 Cor. xv. 55.

6 For the pestilence that walketh in darkness : nor for the sickness that destroyeth in the noon-day.

7 A thousand shall fall beside thee, and ten thousand at thy right hand : but it shall not come nigh thee.

8 Yea, with thine eyes shalt thou behold : and see the reward of the ungodly.

John xix. 11.

9 For thou, Lord, art my hope : thou hast set thine house of defence very high.

10 There shall no evil happen unto thee : neither shall any plague come nigh thy dwelling.

Luke xxii. 43.
Matt. xxvi. 53.
Luke iv. 9—11.
Heb. i. 14.

11 For he shall give his angels charge over thee : to keep thee in all thy ways.

12 They shall bear thee in their hands : that thou hurt not thy foot against a stone.

1 Pet. v. 8.
Gen. iii. 15.
Rev. xiii. 2.
xx. 1—3.

13 Thou shalt go upon the lion and adder : the young lion and the dragon shalt thou tread under thy feet.

14 Because he hath set his love upon me, therefore will I deliver him : I will set him up, because he hath known my Name.

Acts vii. 56.
Rev. v. 8—14.

15 He shall call upon me, and I will hear him : yea, I am with him in trouble ; I will deliver him, and bring him to honour.

Rev. i. 18.

16 With long life will I satisfy him : and shew him my salvation.

THE XCII PSALM.

Bonum est confiteri.

IT is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord : and to sing praises unto thy Name, O most Highest ;

A sagitta volante in die, a negotio perambulante in tenebris : ab incursu, a ruina et et dæmonio meridiano.

Cadent a latere tuo mille, et decem millia a dextris tuis : ad te autem non tibi autem non adpropinabit appropinquabit.

Veruntamen oculis tuis considerabis : et retributionem peccatorum videbis.

Quoniam tu es, Domine, spes mea : Altissimum posuisti refugium tuum. posuit

Non accedet ad te malum : et flagellum non appropinquabit tabernaculo tuo. adpropinabit

Quoniam angelis suis mandavit de mandabit te : ut custodiant te in omnibus viis tuis.

In manibus portabunt te : ne forte ne unquam offendas ad lapidem pedem tuum.

Super aspidem et basiliscum ambulabis : et conculcabis leonem et draconem.

Quoniam in me speravit, liberabo sperabit et eum : protegam eum, quoniam cognovit Nomen meum.

Clamabit ad me, et ego exaudiam Invocabit me eum : eum ipso sum in tribulatione ; eripiam eum et glorificabo eum.

Longitudine dierum replebo eum : adimplebo et ostendam illi salutare meum.

PSALMUS XCI.

BONUM est confiteri Domino : et psallere Nomini tuo, Altissime. Saturday Lauds. All Saints, Mattins, 2nd Noct.

Amidst the frequent changes of pronouns which occur, it may yet be clearly discerned that the Psalm is substantially a continuous promise of GOD to the Beloved Son in Whom He is well pleased. The literal figure of the first and fourth verses looks, doubtless, towards the Mercy-seat over which the wings of the Cherubim were spread forth : but mystically it looks to that unity of the First and Second Person of the Blessed Trinity which St. John speaks of when he writes, "the only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father." [John i. 18.] For this dwelling under the defence of the Most High and abiding under the shadow of the Almighty was the strength and safety of our Lord's Human Nature. Thus He was delivered from the snares which the devil laid for Him in the Temptation : having been already delivered by His Immaculate Conception from the "noisome pestilence" of original sin. Thus the "fiery darts" of the Evil One were shot against Him in vain. Thus, though a thousand fell beside Him and ten thousand at His right hand by the sting of death, that pestilence came not nigh Him, for He was able to say, "O death, I will be Thy plagues." Thus, also, did He withstand the "roaring lion" who goeth about seeking whom he may devour : thus did He bruise the head of the "adder : " and thus, hereafter, will He tread under His feet "the Dragon, that old serpent, which is the Devil," in His final glorious victory over all that is evil.

And since He vouchsafes to make such an intimate union as He does make between Himself and His Church, therefore these promises that were made primarily to Him, the Bridegroom, may be taken as applicable, in a secondary degree, to her, the Bride. "Clothed with the Sun" of Righteousness, she will eventually tread down under her feet the symbol and the power of Antichrist, she will be brought to honour in the Presence of her Lord, and "having the glory of God," notwithstanding all the dangers and persecutions through which she will have to pass.

The XVIII.
Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Lam. iii. 23.

2 To tell of thy lovingkindness early in the morning : and of thy truth in the night-season ;

3 Upon an instrument of ten strings, and upon the lute : upon a loud instrument, and upon the harp.

4 For thou, Lord, hast made me glad through thy works : and I will rejoice in giving praise for the operations of thy hands.

Isa. lv. 9.
Rom. xi. 33.

5 O Lord, how glorious are thy works : thy thoughts are very deep.

6 An unwise man doth not well consider this : and a fool doth not understand it.

Isa. xl. 6—8.
1 Pet. i. 25.

7 When the ungodly are green as the grass, and when all the workers of wickedness do flourish : then shall they be destroyed for ever ; but thou, Lord, art the most Highest for evermore.

8 For lo, thine enemies, O Lord, lo, thine enemies shall perish : and all the workers of wickedness shall be destroyed.

Luke i. 69.
Ps. cxxxii. 17.

9 But mine horn shall be exalted like the horn of an unicorn : for I am anointed with fresh oil.

10 Mine eye also shall see his lust of mine enemies : and mine ear shall hear his desire of the wicked that arise up against me.

Ios. xiv. 5—7.
Ezek. xl. 16. 26.
31. xli. 18.

11 The righteous shall flourish like a palm-tree : and shall spread abroad like a cedar in Libanus.

Rev. xxii. 2.

12 Such as are planted in the house of the Lord : shall flourish in the courts of the house of our God.

John xv. 2.

13 They also shall bring forth more fruit in their age : and shall be fat and well-liking.

Ps. i. 3.

14 That they may shew how true the Lord my strength is : and that there is no unrighteousness in him.

Ad annuntiandum mane misericor-diam tuam : et veritatem tuam per noctem.

In decachordo psalterio : cum cantico, in cithara.

Quia delectasti me, Domine, in factura tua : et in operibus manuum tuarum exultabo.

Quam magnificata sunt opera tua, Domine : nimis profundæ factæ sunt cogitationes tuæ.

Vir insipiens non cognoscet : et stultus non intelliget hæc.

Cum exorti fuerint peccatores sicut fœnum : et apparuerint omnes qui operantur iniquitatem :

Ut intereant in sæculum sæculi : tu
autem Altissimus in æternum, Domine.

Quoniam, ecce, inimici tui, Domine, (quoniam ecce inimici tui)
quoniam, ecce, inimici tui peribunt : et dispergentur omnes qui operantur iniquitatem.

Et exaltabitur sicut unicornis cornu meum : et senectus mea in misericordia uberi.

Et despexit oculus meus inimicos respexit meos : et insurgentibus in me malig-nantibus audiet auris mea. audivit auris tua

Justus ut palma florebit : sicut cedrus Libani multiplicabitur.

Plantati in domo Domini : in atriis domus Dei nostri florebut.

Adhuc multiplicabuntur in senecta uberi : et bene patientes erunt, ut annuntient,

Quoniam rectus Dominus Deus nos- justus ter : et non est iniquitas in eo.

PSALM XCII.

The title, "a Psalm and song for the Sabbath day," points out this to be a song of the Church during that rest upon which she has already, in some degree, entered, and in anticipation of the great Sabbath when she will enjoy complete rest from her warfare with sin : the "rest that remaineth for the people of God."

The Psalm has an Eucharistic character, the twelfth and thirteenth verses especially pointing to the Sacramental life out of which the eternal life of Heaven will spring. In the ninth verse, also, there is a reference to that anointing which ever looks, in the Psalms, to the work of the Holy Ghost, and to His Presence with the Mystical Body of Christ. He Himself was "anointed with the oil of gladness above His fellows : " but of His members it is also said, "Ye have an unction from the Holy One" [1 John ii. 20] : and their song, at the last, is an Evangelical paraphrase of this ninth verse, "Thou hast made us unto our God kings and priests." [Rev. v. 10.]

The concluding verses of the Psalm speak of the mystical Tree of Life so often referred to in this and in other parts of Holy Scripture. Our Lord adopts the figure of the Vine : here it is the palm and the cedar, the one renowned as providing food in extraordinary abundance, the other noted for beauty and strength. In each case the one Root, Stem, and Branch are signified ; Him

THE XCIII PSALM.

Dominus regnavit.

The XVIII.

Day.

Evening

Prayer.

Isa. lxviii. 1. 5.

Rev. i. 13—16. 18.

Rev. xxi. 1.

Heb. i. 8.

Luke vi. 48.

Rom. viii. 35—39.

Rev. xxi. 27.

THE Lord is King, and hath put on glorious apparel : the Lord hath put on his apparel, and girded himself with strength.

2 He hath made the round world so sure : that it cannot be moved.

3 Ever since the world began hath thy seat been prepared : thou art from everlasting.

4 The floods are risen, O Lord, the floods have lift up their voice : the floods lift up their waves.

5 The waves of the sea are mighty, and rage horribly : but yet the Lord,
who dwelleth on high, is mightier.

6 Thy testimonies, O Lord, are very sure : holiness becometh thine house
for ever.

THE XCIV PSALM.

Deus ultionum.

Deut. xxxii. 35.

Heb. x. 30.

Matt. xxvi. 64.

Rev. vi. 10.

O LORD God, to whom vengeance belongeth : thou God, to whom vengeance belongeth, shew thyself.

2 Arise, thou Judge of the world :
and reward the proud after their deserving.

3 Lord, how long shall the ungodly :
how long shall the ungodly triumph ?

4 How long shall all wicked doers speak so disdainfully : and make such proud boasting ?

2 Pet. iii. 3, 4.

from Whom the Israel of God alone derive Life, strength, and glory. "I will be as the dew unto Israel: he shall grow as the lily, and cast forth his roots as Lebanon. His branches shall spread, and his beauty shall be as the olive-tree, and his smell as Lebanon. They that dwell under his shadow shall return: they shall revive as the Corn, and grow as the Vine: the scent thereof shall be as the wine of Lebanon."

PSALM XCIII.<sup>1</sup>

The magnificent opening of this Psalm indicates the beginning of a series of which the 100th Psalm is the last, and in which (designedly or accidentally) the Advent of our Lord and His Kingship are the continued subjects of praise. As God He was supreme from eternity: but when He put on the apparel of His Human Nature He girded Himself with strength to become the Saviour of mankind; and, when that apparel became glorious by His Resurrection, to become King of kings and Lord of lords. "Who is this that cometh from Edom, with dyed garments from <sup>1</sup> The Septuagint title of the 93rd Psalm assigns it to "the day before the Sabbath, when the earth was founded." St. Augustine connects this title with the subject of the Psalm by reminding his hearers that on the sixth day God created man in His own Image, and that our Lord's Incarnation began the sixth age of the world.

PSALMUS XCII.

DOMINUS regnavit; decorem induit : indutus est Dominus fortitudinem, et præcinxit se.

Sund. and Fest.
Lauds.
regnabit decorem induit : induit præcinxit se
virtutem

Etenim firmavit orbem terræ: qui non commovebitur.

Parata sedes tua ex tunc : a sæculo tu es.

Elevaverunt flumina, Domine: ele-vaverunt flumina vocem suam.

Elevaverunt flumina fluctus suos : a vocibus aquarum multarum.

Mirabiles elationes maris: mirabilis in altis Dominus.

in excelsis

Testimonia tua credibilia facta sunt tua Domine nimis: domum tuam decet sanctitudo, Domus tuæ decet Domine, in longitudinem dierum.

sancta

PSALMUS XCIII.

DEUS ultionum Dominus : Deus ultionum libere egit.

Friday Mattins.
Good Friday,
3rd Noct.

Exaltare qui judicas terram: redde retributionem superbis.

Usquequo peccatores, Domine: usquequo peccatores gloriabuntur:

Effabuntur, et loquentur iniquita- Pronuntiabunt et tem: loquentur omnes qui operantur injustitiam?

Bozrah? this that is glorious in His apparel, travelling in the greatness of His strength? I that speak in righteousness, mighty to save." . . . "I looked, and there was none to help; and I wondered that there was none to uphold: therefore Mine own arm brought salvation unto Me: and My fury, it upheld Me."

By that Advent and Incarnation the King of kings "hath made the round world" of His spiritual Kingdom "so sure that it cannot be moved" from the Rock on which He has founded it, and the gates of Hell cannot prevail against it. The floods of the sea of this world "beat vehemently upon that House," but it is founded on a Rock: and within its walls is that throne of everlasting dominion which was prepared ever since the world began in the loving purpose of an all-pitying God to become the Saviour of man. Amid all the trouble that may fall on the Church, the immovability of her foundation and the eternal Royalty of her Head will be her true consolation and support. "In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good comfort; I have overcome the world." [John xvi. 33.]

PSALM XCIV.

The first act of Christ's final sovereignty will necessarily be the judgment and subjugation of those who oppose His Kingdom. His own words declare the nature of His Second Advent and

The XVIII.
Day.
Evening
Prayer.

5 They smite down thy people, O Lord : and trouble thine heritage.

6 They murder the widow and the stranger : and put the fatherless to death.

7 And yet they say, Tush, the Lord shall not see : neither shall the God of Jacob regard it.

1 Thess. v. 3.

8 Take heed, ye unwise among the people : O ye fools, when will ye understand ?

Isa. lix. 1.

9 He that planted the ear, shall he not hear : or he that made the eye, shall he not see ?

10 Or he that nurtureth the heathen : it is he that teacheth man knowledge, shall not he punish ?

1 Cor. iii. 20.

11 The Lord knoweth the thoughts of man : that they are but vain.

Heb. xii. 2.

12 Blessed is the man whom thou chastenest, O Lord : and teachest him in thy law ;

Luke xxi. 19.
Heb. x. 36.
2 Thess. i. 4—10.
Rev. xvii. 8.
xx. 14.

13 That thou mayest give him patience in time of adversity : until the pit be digged up for the ungodly.

14 For the Lord will not fail his people : neither will he forsake his inheritance ;

15 Until righteousness turn again unto judgement : all such as are true in heart shall follow it.

16 Who will rise up with me against the wicked : or who will take my part against the evil-doers ?

2 Thess. ii. 16, 17.

17 If the Lord had not helped me : it had not failed but my soul had been put to silence.

18 But when I said, My foot hath slipped : thy mercy, O Lord, held me up.

Luke xxiii. 46.
Acts vii. 56.

19 In the multitude of the sorrows that I had in my heart : thy comforts have refreshed my soul.

Populum tuum, Domine, humiliaverunt : et hæreditatem tuam vexaverunt.

Viduam et advenam interfecerunt : et pupillos occiderunt.

Et dixerunt, Non videbit Dominus : nec intelliget Deus Jacob.

Intelligite insipientes in populo : et stulti aliquando sapite.

Qui plantavit aurem, non audiet ? aut qui finxit oculum, non considerat ?

Qui corripit gentes, non arguet ? qui docet hominem scientiam ?

Dominus scit cogitationes hominum : quoniam vanæ sunt.

Beatus homo quem tu erudieris, Domine : et de lege tua docueris eum.

Ut mitiges ei a diebus malis : donec fodiatur peccatori fovea.

Quia non repellet Dominus plebem suam : et hæreditatem suam non derelinquet.

Quoadusque justitia convertatur in judicium : et qui juxta illam omnes et qui timent eam omnes qui recto sunt corde.

Quis consurget mihi adversus malignantes ? aut quis stabit mecum adversus operantes iniquitatem. exsurget

Nisi quia Dominus adjuvit me : quod Dominus adjuvasset paulominus habitasset in inferno anima mea.

Si dicebam, Motus est pes meus : misericordia tua, Domine, adjuvabat me.

Secundum multitudinem dolorum meorum in corde meo : consolationes tuæ lætificaverunt animam meam. tuæ Domine manifestation, "Hereafter shall ye see the Son of Man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven:" the opening words of the Revelation declare, "Behold, He cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see Him, and they also which pierced Him: and all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of Him. Even so, Amen" [Rev. i. 7]: and the prophet of the New Dispensation heard the martyrs using almost the words with which this Psalm opens, when "they cried with a loud voice, saying, How long, O Lord, holy and true, dost Thou not judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth?" This Psalm, therefore, is the call of the Church to Christ to fulfil her constant prayer, "Thy Kingdom come," and the antecedent of her great Eucharistic hymn,—“We give Thee thanks, O Lord God Almighty, Which art, and wast, and art to come; because Thou hast taken to Thee Thy great power, and hast reigned." [Rev. xi. 17.]

That events will occur shortly before our Lord's Second Advent which will cause the Church of God to cry out in anguish for Christ to hasten His Kingdom and to judge her cause against the great Persecutor of that time, our Lord Himself revealed in His last discourse to the Apostles before His suffering. A constant tradition of the Christian world has also been maintained to the same effect. No doubt the full application of this Psalm will be revealed when that time arrives, a time when the faith and patience of Christians will be tried to the uttermost.

But, although the crowning violence of the great Enemy of

The XVIII.
Day.
Evening
Prayer.

Luke xxiii. 14. 23.
Acts ix. 4, 5.

20 Wilt thou have any thing to do with the stool of wickedness : which imagineth mischief as a law ?

21 They gather them together against the soul of the righteous : and condemn the innocent blood.

22 But the Lord is my refuge : and my God is the strength of my confidence.

Rev. xi. 18.

23 He shall recompense them their wickedness, and destroy them in their own malice : yea, the Lord our God shall destroy them.

THE XCV PSALM.

Venite, exultemus.

The XIX. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Invitatory Psalm.

O COME, let us sing unto the Lord : let us heartily rejoice in the strength of our salvation.

2 Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving : and shew ourselves glad in him with psalms.

Titus ii. 13.
2 Pet. i. 4.

3 For the Lord is a great God : and a great King above all gods.

4 In his hand are all the corners of the earth : and the strength of the hills is his also.

5 The sea is his, and he made it : and his hands prepared the dry land.

6 O come, let us worship and fall down : and kneel before the Lord our Maker.

7 For he is the Lord our God : and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand.

Hcb. iii. 7—11.
iv. 7.
Numb. xiv. 1—45.
Exod. xvii. 7.

8 To-day if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts : as in the provocation, and as in the day of temptation in the wilderness ;

Nunquid adhæret tibi sedes iniquitatis : qui fingis laborem in præcepto ? dolorem

Captabunt in animam justi : et sanguinem innocentem condemnabunt.

Et factus est mihi Dominus in refugium : et Deus meus in adiutorium in auxilium spei meæ.

Et reddet illis iniquitatem ipsorum, illis Dominus et in malitia eorum disperdet eos : disperdet illos Dominus Deus noster.

PSALMUS XCIV.

VENITE, exultemus Domino : jubilemus Deo salutari nostro. Invitatory Psalm Epiphany. Mattins. 2nd Noct.

Præoccupemus faciem ejus in confessione : et in psalmis jubilemus ei.

Quoniam Deus magnus Dominus : et rex magnus super omnes deos. omnes deos quoniam non repetit

Quia in manu ejus sunt omnes fines terræ : et altitudines montium ipsius sunt. let Dominus plebem suam montium ipse conspiciat

Quoniam ipsius est mare, et ipse fecit illud : et siccam manus ejus formaverunt. arida . . fundaverunt

Venite adoremus et procidamus et ploremus ante Dominum qui fecit nos : quia ipse est Deus noster : Dominus Deus

Et nos populus pascuæ ejus : et oves manus ejus. populus ejus et oves pascuæ ejus

Hodie si vocem ejus audieritis : nolite obdurare corda vestra.

Sicut in irratione : secundum diem exacerbatione tentationis in deserto.

God and man is reserved for a future time, he is still the great Enemy at all times, and the prayer, "Thy Kingdom come," is conjoined with the prayer, "Deliver us from evil,"—the Evil One and all the evil which he causes. Hence the continual prayer of the Church is uttered as in the face of an Enemy whose hatred never ceases, and whose power is being exercised against her year by year and day by day. The One Body, therefore, of whose sufferings the words of this Psalm were once most literally true, and of whom they will be so again, utters them still (even in a time when there is little outward persecution of Christians), because her foe is still what he has been and ever will be, and because all history is one continuous present in the eye of the Lord.

A large portion of this Psalm will bear personal application to the case of individual Christians, who may, in its words, acknowledge before God their sense of His love in the chastisements that are sent to them, and of the comforts with which He alone can refresh the soul in the multitude of its sorrows.

PSALM XCV.

For many ages this Psalm has been sung every morning in the whole Western Church, and a portion of it in the Eastern Church, as an Introductory hymn to the other portions of the Psalter ; the key to such an usage being found in the second verse, and in the invitation to worship Christ which gives its character to the whole Psalm<sup>1</sup>.

In its place in the Psalter it may be regarded as setting forth, in the first half, the Divine Nature of our Lord as "a great God ;" His Royalty as "a great King ;" His supremacy above all the angels to whom in their majesty and might the name of gods is, in a lower sense, conceded ; His glory and power as the Creator of the land and sea (with all that is comprehended in those terms) ; and as the Sustainer, in His Divine Providence, of all that He has created. In the second half of the Psalm, beginning with <sup>1</sup> See p. 6 for a note on the use of this as an Invitatory Psalm.

The XIX. Day. 9 When your fathers tempted me :
Morning proved me, and saw my works.

Prayer.
 1 Cor. x. 9.
 Deut. ii. 14.

10 Forty years long was I grieved with this generation, and said : It is a people that do err in their hearts, for they have not known my ways ;

Deut. i. 35.

11 Unto whom I swear in my wrath : that they should not enter into my rest.

THE XCVI PSALM.

Cantate Domino.

Isa. xlii. 10.
1 Chron. xvi. 23
 —33.

O SING unto the Lord a new song : sing unto the Lord, all the whole earth.

2 Sing unto the Lord, and praise his Name : be telling of his salvation from day to day.

Acta x. 15.
xv. 7, 8.
xxviii. 28.

3 Declare his honour unto the heathen : and his wonders unto all people.

4 For the Lord is great, and cannot worthily be praised : he is more to be feared than all gods.

Acts xvii. 29. 24.

5 As for all the gods of the heathen, they are but idols : but it is the Lord that made the heavens.

Rev. xxi. 10, 11.

6 Glory and worship are before him : power and honour are in his sanctuary.

7 Ascribe unto the Lord, O ye kindreds of the people : ascribe unto the Lord worship and power.

Rev. xxi. 24.

8 Ascribe unto the Lord the honour due unto his Name : bring presents, and come into his courts.

9 O worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness : let the whole earth stand in awe of him.

Phil. ii. 9—11.

10 Tell it out among the heathen that the Lord is King : and that it is he who hath made the round world so fast that it cannot be moved ; and how that he shall judge the people righteously.

Ubi tentaverunt me patres vestri :
 probaverunt et viderunt opera mea.

Quadraginta annis offensus fui gene- proximus fui rationi illi : et dixi, Semper hi errant
 corde.

Et isti non cognoverunt vias meas : Ipse vero . . . quibus ut juravi in ira mea, Si introibunt in Juravi requiem meam.

PSALMUS XCV.

CANTATE Domino canticum no-vum : cantate Domino omnis terra.

Friday Mattins.
Christmas, Cir-
cumc., Epi- phany, Trinity
Sund., Dedic.
Ch., B. V. M.,
St. Michael,
Transfig.,
Name of Jesus,
Ex. Cross,
Virg. & Matr.
3rd Noct.

Cantate Domino, et benedicite No-mini ejus : annuntiate de die in diem salutare ejus.

Annuntiate inter gentes gloriam ejus : in omnibus populis mirabilia ejus.

Quoniam magnus Dominus, et laudabilis nimis : terribilis est super omnes deos.

Quoniam omnes dii gentium dæmonia : Dominus autem cœlos fecit.

Confessio et pulchritudo in conspectu ejus : sanctimonia et magnificentia in sanctitas sanctificatione ejus.

Afferte Domino, patriæ gentium, afferte Domino gloriam et honorem :
 afferte Domino gloriam Nomini ejus.

Tollite hostias, et introite in atria aula ejus : adorare Dominum in atrio sancto
 ejus.

Commoveatur a facie ejus universa terra : dicite in gentibus quia Dominus nationibus Domi-
 regnavit. nus

Etenim correxit orbem terræ, qui non commovebitur : judicabit populos in æquitate.

in æquitate et gentes in ira sua

the sixth verse, the glory of Christ is set forth with respect to the relation between Him and mankind : Let us worship Him, for He is not only Creator of the Universe, but He is our Creator, our God, our Divine Shepherd. The latter verses of this second division of the Psalm consist of a warning to the Christian flock of the Good Shepherd drawn from the history of His Jewish flock. "Let us labour, therefore, to enter into that rest, lest any man fall, after the same example of unbelief." [Heb. iv. 11.]

PSALM XCVI.

As our Lord said, "A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another : as I have loved you, that ye also love one another" [John xiii. 34] : so a "new song" commemorates the great change which His Death and Resurrection effected by drawing the heathen into His fold. The glory of the King of kings is no longer to be declared only to His people Israel, but also to the heathen, out of whom He gathers a new Israel when rejected by the unbelieving Jews. The Christian sense of this Psalm, therefore, makes it not only a proclamation of the glory of God as a God infinitely superior to the idols of the heathen, but also a proclamation of the glory of His salvation wrought for all, and an invitation to all to come and sacrifice in His courts, and to worship Him in the beauty of holiness.

This beautiful hymn is therefore a prophetic anticipation of the

The XIX. Day. 11 Let the heavens rejoice, and let the earth be glad : let the sea make a noise, and all that therein is.

Morning
Prayer.
Rev. v. 13.

12 Let the field be joyful, and all that is in it : then shall all the trees of the wood rejoice before the Lord.

Acts i. 11.
xvii. 31.
Rev. i. 7.
xii. 20.

13 For he cometh, for he cometh to judge the earth : and with righteousness to judge the world, and the people with his truth.

THE XCVII PSALM.

Dominus regnavit.

Rev. xix. 16.
Isa. xl. 31.
xlii. 12.
li. 5.

THE Lord is King, the earth may be glad thereof : yea, the multitude of the isles may be glad thereof.

2 Clouds and darkness are round about him : righteousness and judgement are the habitation of his seat.

2 Thess. i. 8.

3 There shall go a fire before him : and burn up his enemies on every side.

4 His lightnings gave shine unto the world : the earth saw it, and was afraid.

2 Pet. iii. 12.

5 The hills melted like wax at the presence of the Lord : at the presence of the Lord of the whole earth.

6 The heavens have declared his righteousness : and all the people have seen his glory.

Heb. i. 6.

7 Confounded be all they that worship carved images, and that delight in vain gods : worship him, all ye gods.

8 Sion heard of it, and rejoiced : and the daughters of Judah, were glad, because of thy judgements, O Lord.

Isa. xxiv. 23.

9 For thou, Lord, art higher than all that are in the earth : thou art exalted far above all gods.

Latentur cœli, et exsultet terra ; commoveatur mare, et plenitudo ejus : gaudebunt campi, et omnia quæ in eis sunt.

Tunc exsultabunt omnia ligna silvarum a facie Domini, quia venit : quoniam niam venit judicare terram.

Judicabit orbem terræ in æquitate : et populos in veritate sua.

PSALMUS XCVI.

DOMINUS regnavit, exsultet terra : latentur insulæ multæ.

Friday Mattins.
Circumc., Epiphany, Trinity Sund., Apo. &
Evv., B. V. M.,
St. Michael,
Transfig., Ex.
Cross, Dedic.
Ch., Virg. and Mair., 3rd N.

Nubes et caligo in circuitu ejus : justitia et judicium correctio sedis ejus.

Ignis ante ipsum præcedet : et inflammabit in circuitu inimicos ejus.

Alluxerunt fulgura ejus orbi terræ : Intulxerunt vidit et commota est terra.

Montes sicut cera fluxerunt a facie Domini : a facie Domini omnis terra.

Domini remittit
omnis

Annuntiaverunt cœli justitiam ejus : et viderunt omnes populi gloriam ejus.

Confundantur omnes qui adorant sculptilia : et qui gloriantur in simulachris suis.

Adorate eum omnes angeli ejus : audivit et lætata est Sion.

Et exsultaverunt filiæ Judæ : propter judicia tua, Domine.

Quoniam tu Dominus altissimus super omnem terram : nimis exaltatus es super omnes deos.

miracle of Pentecost when men of every nation under Heaven heard the wonderful works of God in the Incarnation, Death, and Resurrection of the Lord Jesus, proclaimed to them in their native languages: and of that time when the Apostles learned more distinctly still that it was the purpose of their Master that they should found His Church among the Gentiles as well as the Jews. "God hath highly exalted Him, and given Him a Name which is above every name, that at the Name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth : and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father."

PSALM XCVII.

From the manner in which St. Paul quotes the seventh verse of this Psalm, it must be taken as written altogether to the praise of our Lord : "When He bringeth in the First-begotten into the world He saith, And let all the angels of God worship Him." It is therefore a hymn to the glory of Christ in respect to His reign in the Kingdom gained by His Incarnation. "He Who stood before the judge, He Who received blows, He Who was scourged, He Who was spit upon, He Who was crowned with thorns, He Who was buffeted, He Who hung upon the cross, He Who, as He hung upon the wood, was mocked, He Who died upon the cross, He Who was pierced with the spear, He Who was buried, He Who arose from the dead : The Lord is King." Such are the forcible words with which St. Augustine begins His exposition of the first verse, and he adds that "the word of God hath been preached, not in the continent alone, but also in those isles which lie in mid-sea ; even these are full of Christians, full of the servants of God ;" by which he appears to refer to the British Isles as

The XIX. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
1 Tim. vi. 14.

10 O ye that love the Lord, see that ye hate the thing which is evil : the Lord preserveth the souls of his saints ; he shall deliver them from the hand of the ungodly.

1 Tim. vi. 15, 16.
Isa. lx. 1.

11 There is sprung up a light for the righteous : and joyful gladness for such as are true-hearted.

12 Rejoice in the Lord, ye righteous : and give thanks for a remembrance of his holiness.

THE XCVIII PSALM.

Cantate Domino.

Evening
Prayer.
Evensong Can-
ticle.

O SING unto the Lord a new song : for he hath done marvellous things.

Rev. xv. 2.
Isa. lii. 10.
lix. 16.

2 With his own right hand, and with his holy arm : hath he gotten himself the victory.

Luke ii. 28—30.
iii. 6.

3 The Lord declared his salvation : his righteousness hath he openly shewed in the sight of the heathen.

Isa. lx. 3, 9.

4 He hath remembered his mercy and truth toward the house of Israel : and all the ends of the world have seen the salvation of our God.

5 Shew your selves joyful unto the Lord, all ye lands : sing, rejoice, and give thanks.

Rev. v. 8, 9.
xiv. 2.

6 Praise the Lord upon the harp : sing to the harp with a psalm of thanksgiving.

7 With trumpets also, and shawms : O shew your selves joyful before the Lord the King.

Rev. v. 13.

8 Let the sea make a noise, and all that therein is : the round world, and they that dwell therein.

Isa. lv. 12.

9 Let the floods clap their hands, and let the hills be joyful together before the Lord : for he is come to judge the earth.

10 With righteousness shall he judge the world : and the people with equity.

Qui diligitis Dominum, odite malum : custodit Dominus animas sanctorum suorum, de manu peccatoris liberabit eos. servorum

Lux orta est justo : et rectis cordo lætitia.

Lætamini justi in Domino : et confitemini memoriæ sanctificationis ejus. sanctitatis

PSALMUS XCVII.

CANTATE Domino canticum novum : quia mirabilia fecit. Sat. Mattins. Christmas. Circumc., Trinity Sund., B. V. M., Virg. & Matr., 3rd Noct.

Salvavit sibi dextera ejus : et brachium sanctum ejus.

Notum fecit Dominus salutare suum : in conspectu gentium revelavit justitiam suam.

Recordatus est misericordiæ suæ : et veritatis suæ domui Israël. Memoravit . . . suam Jacob . . . domus

Viderunt omnes termini terræ salutem Dei nostri : jubilate Deo omnis terra : cantate et exultate et psallite. fines

Psallite Domino in cithara, in cithara et voce psalmi : in tubis ductilibus, et voce tubæ cornæ. Deo nostro

Jubilate in conspectu Regis Domini : moveatur mare et plenitudo ejus : orbis terrarum et qui habitant in eo. et universi qui

Flumina plaudent manu, simul montes exultabunt a conspectu Domini : quoniam venit judicare terram. in id ipsum montes exultaverunt ante faciem

Judicabit orbem terrarum in justitia : et populos in æquitate.

among those who were known to be glad that the Lord is King. "Let them give glory unto the Lord, and declare His praise in the islands." "My righteousness is near; My salvation is gone forth, and Mine arms shall judge the people: the isles shall wait upon Me, and on Mine arm shall they trust."

Thus does all the earth bow down before Jesus as King of kings and Lord of lords, waiting for that time when He shall come in the clouds of heaven to reign in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, and before His ancients gloriously: once reigning from the Cross by suffering, for ever from the throne in the majesty of Divine Power.

PSALM XCVIII.

This is a prophetic hymn of the whole Church of God, Jew and Gentile, gathered into the one Christian fold, and singing to the glory of one Lord and King, coming to judge the world with righteousness, power, love, and mercy. The Israel of old, the people gathered from "the ends of the earth," all the created

THE XCIX PSALM.

Dominus regnavit.

The XIX. Day.
Evening
Prayer.

Rev. xi. 17, 18.
Dan. vii. 14.
Ezek. i. 5.
Rev. iv. 6.

THE Lord is King, be the people never so impatient : he sitteth between the cherubims, be the earth never so quiet.

2 The Lord is great in Sion : and high above all people.

3 They shall give thanks unto thy Name : which is great, wonderful, and holy.

4 The King's power loveth judgement; thou hast prepared equity : thou hast executed judgement and righteousness in Jacob.

1 Chron. xxviii. 2.
Isa. lxvi. 1.
Matt. v. 35.

5 O magnify the Lord our God : and fall down before his footstool, for he is holy.

Jer. xv. 1.
Exod. xxxii. 11.
1 Sam. vii. 9.

6 Moses and Aaron among his priests, and Samuel among such as call upon his Name : these called upon the Lord, and he heard them.

Exod. xxxiii. 9—11.

7 He spake unto them out of the cloudy pillar : for they kept his testimonies, and the law that he gave them.

8 Thou heardest them, O Lord our God : thou forgavest them, O God, and punishedst their own inventions.

Isa. vi. 3.
Rev. iv. 8.

9 O magnify the Lord our God, and worship him upon his holy hill : for the Lord our God is holy.

THE C PSALM.

Jubilate Deo.

Mattins Canticle.

O BE joyful in the Lord, all ye lands : serve the Lord with gladness, and come before his presence with a song.

PSALMUS XCVIII.

DOMINUS regnavit, irascantur populi : qui sedes super Cherubin, moveatur terra.

Sat. Mattins.
App. and Evv.,
Transfl.,
St. Michael,
3rd Noct.
regnabit

Dominus in Sion magnus : et excelsus super omnes populos.

Confiteantur Nomini tuo magno ; quoniam terribile et sanctum est : et honor regis judicium diligit.

et terribili quoniam sanctum

Tu parasti directiones : judicium et justitiam in Jacob tu fecisti.

parasti æquitatem

Exaltate Dominum Deum nostrum et adorate scabellum pedum ejus : quoniam sanctum est.

Moyses et Aaron in sacerdotibus ejus : et Samuël inter eos qui invocant Nomen ejus.

Invocabunt Dominum, et ipse exaudiebat eos : in columna nubis loquebatur ad eos.

Custodiebant testimonia ejus : et præceptum quod dedit illis.

præcepta quæ dederat

Domine, Deus noster, tu exaudiebas eos ; Deus tu propitius fuisti eis : et ulciscens in omnes adinventiones eorum.

et vindicans in omnia studia

Exaltate Dominum Deum nostrum, et adorate in monte sancto ejus : quoniam sanctus Dominus Deus noster.

PSALMUS XCIX.

JUBILATE Deo omnis terra : servite Domino in lætitia.

Sat. Mattins.
Sund. and Fest.
Lauds.

Introite in conspectu ejus : in exultatione.

works of God, are called upon to sing the new song which proclaims the final victory of the King of kings. Such praises for the marvellous works of Christ in the salvation of mankind are being offered day by day in the Psalms and hymns of the Church, and still more in her Eucharistic Sacrifices : but they will be offered more purely and fully when the vision of St. John becomes a reality : "Every creature which is in Heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them heard I saying, Blessing, and honour, and glory, and power, be unto Him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever." Already with voice and with instrumental music the Church sings her new song of thanksgiving to her King, but hereafter those who have attained a part in His Victory over evil will stand upon "as it were a sea of glass mingled with fire" surrounded with the dazzling light of a heavenly sunshine, "having the harps of God," and singing "the song of Moses the servant of God, and the song of the Lamb, saying,

Great and marvellous are Thy works, Lord God Almighty ; just and true are Thy ways, Thou King of saints."

PSALM XCIX.

The Presence of the Lord in His Church is here set forth. "He sitteth between the Cherubims" on His throne of mercy, and His greatness is manifested in "Zion," the City of God. Before the "footstool" of His earthly altar the worship of all is to be offered, while His priests and prophets are ministering before God and man in the work of intercession : and as His Presence was then manifested by a Voice out of the cloudy pillar, so now also have we a sure word of promise that where two or three are gathered together in His Name, there will He be in the midst of them.

It may be observed that the Ter-sanctus of Isaiah and of the Revelation is, in some measure, represented in this Psalm. Holy is God's Name [v. 3], Holy is He [v. 5], Holy is the Lord our

The XIX. Day.

Evening

Prayer.

Deut. xxviii. 6.

Isa. xliii. 7.

Eph. ii. 10.

John x. 14.

1 Pet. ii. 25.

John x. 7. 9.

2 Be ye sure that the Lord he is God; it is he that hath made us, and not we our selves : we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture.

3 O go your way into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise : be thankful unto him, and speak good of his Name.

Matt. xxviii. 20.

4 For the Lord is gracious, his mercy is everlasting : and his truth endureth from generation to generation.

THE CI PSALM.

Misericordiam et judicium.

Royal Accession.

MY song shall be of mercy and judgement : unto thee, O Lord, will I sing.

1 Sam. xviii. 14.

2 O let me have understanding : in the way of godliness.

2 Pet. iii. 12.

Rev. xxii. 20.

3 When wilt thou come unto me : I will walk in my house with a perfect heart.

4 I will take no wicked thing in hand ; I hate the sins of unfaithfulness : there shall no such cleave unto me.

5 A froward heart shall depart from me : I will not know a wicked person.

6 Whoso privily slandereth his neighbour : him will I destroy.

7 Whoso hath also a proud look and high stomach : I will not suffer him.

Scitote quoniam Dominus, ipse est Deus : ipse fecit nos, et non ipsi nos.

Populus ejus et oves pascuæ ejus, Nos autem pop. introite portas ejus in confessione : atria ejus in hymnis ; confitemini illi. hymnis confessionum

Laudate Nomen ejus ; quoniam suavis est Dominus ; in æternum misericordia ejus : et usque in generationem in sæculum sæculi et generationem veritas ejus.

PSALMUS C.

MISERICORDIAM et judicium : Sat. Mattins. cantabo tibi, Domine.

Psallam et intelligam in via immaculata : quando venies ad me.

Perambulabam in innocentia cordis mei : in medio domus meæ.

Non proponebam ante oculos meos rem injustam : facientes prævaricationes odivi. rem malam

Non adhæsit mihi cor pravum : declinantem a me malignum non cognoscebam.

Detrahentem secreto proximo suo : adversus proximum suum occulte hunc persequabar.

Superbo oculo et insatiabili corde : cum hoc non edebam. hoc simul

God [v. 9] : and that (as in Isaiah, Ezekiel, and the Vision of St. John) the Presence of God is associated with mysterious beings called "living creatures," "Seraphim" and "Cherubim." As Isaiah spake of Christ, and beheld His glory in that vision of the Lord, high and lifted up and sitting upon His throne, so also did St. John when he beheld the throne in the midst of the four-and-twenty elders of the Old and New Dispensation. So also in this Psalm we behold the Lord Jesus set before us as the King of glory, the Object of our highest reverence and worship, manifesting His Presence at His footstool.

PSALM C.

This is also a jubilant thanksgiving of the Catholic Church of Christ for the blessing of God's adoption. No longer is the Divine Presence manifested in one land alone, but "all lands" are illuminated by it : no longer is the fold of God opened only to one people, but all the baptized are numbered among the sheep of His pasture ; and they are His, not because He has "made" them according to natural Creation, but because they have become adopted children through the supernatural re-creation by which they have been born again.

With great joy, therefore, the Church remembers the words of the Lord "I am the Good Shepherd, and know My sheep, and am known of Mine." With great joy she calls to mind that He also said, "By Me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and go in and out, and find pasture" . . . "there shall be one fold, and one Shepherd." And knowing what "gracious words proceeded out of His mouth" when He was visible among men, those words are to faithful hearts as if they were being continuously spoken, words of mercy and words of truth that never cease to be heard by those who listen for the voice of the Good Shepherd.

This Psalm is, therefore, to be taken as a thanksgiving for the grace given in the Church by the manifestation of Christ's Presence : according to His words of enduring truth, "Lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the world." "The Lord is King," "Be ye sure that the Lord He is God : " even the Lord our Shepherd.

PSALM CI.

Mercy and judgment are the two great characteristics which mark the acts of Christ towards others while He was upon earth, and the two which distinguish His rule in His Kingdom. This Psalm expresses first His righteous purposes while preparing the way of His Kingdom and lifting up the longings of His human heart to the Father ; and, secondly, His Voice speaking from the midst of His Mystical Body during the period of its probation and of its waiting for the Second Advent.

Under these two aspects is thus set forth the entire holiness of

The XIX. Day.

Evening
Prayer.

8 Mine eyes look upon such as are faithful in the land : that they may dwell with me.

9 Whoso leadeth a godly life : he shall be my servant.

Rev. xxi. 27.
Eph. v. 27.

10 There shall no deceitful person dwell in my house : he that telleth lies shall not tarry in my sight.

Rev. xxii. 12.
Matt. iii. 12.

11 I shall soon destroy all the ungodly that are in the land : that I may root out all wicked doers from the city of the Lord.

THE CII PSALM.

Domine, exaudi.

The XX. Day.

Morning
Prayer.Ash-Wednesday
Evensong.
A Penitential
Psalm.

HEAR my prayer, O Lord : and let my crying come unto thee.

2 Hide not thy face from me in the time of my trouble : incline thine ear unto me when I call ; O hear me, and that right soon.

Job vii. 6.
ix. 25.
Prov. xvii. 22.
Job xxx. 30.

3 For my days are consumed away like smoke : and my bones are burnt up as it were a fire-brand.

Ps. lxix. 20.

4 My heart is smitten down, and withered like grass : so that I forget to eat my bread.

Isa. xxxviii. 14.
Job xix. 20.
Lam. iv. 8.

5 For the voice of my groaning : my bones will scarce cleave to my flesh.

Isa. xxxviii. 13.
Job xxx. 29.

6 I am become like a pelican in the wilderness : and like an owl that is in the desert.

7 I have watched, and am even as it were a sparrow : that sitteth alone upon the house-top.

Matt. xxvii. 39.
41.

8 Mine enemies revile me all the day long : and they that are mad upon me are sworn together against me.

Oculi mei ad fideles terræ, ut sedent mecum : ambulans in via immaculata, hic mihi ministrabat.

Non habitabit in medio domus meæ qui facit superbiam : qui loquitur iniqua, non direxit in conspectu oculorum meorum.

In matutino interficiebam omnes peccatores terræ : ut disperderem de civitate Domini omnes operantes iniquitatem.

PSALMUS CI.

DOMINE, exaudi orationem meam : Sat. Mattins.
et clamor meus ad te veniat.

Non avertas faciem tuam a me : in quacunque die tribulor, inclina ad me aurem tuam.

In quacunque die invocavero te : velociter exaudi me.

Quia defecerunt sicut fumus dies mei : et ossa mea sicut cremium aruerunt. sicut in frigidum confusa sunt

Percussus sum ut fenum, et aruit cor meum : quia oblitus sum comedere panem meum. manducare panem

A voce gemitus mei : adhæsit os meum carni meæ. adhaerunt ossa mea

Similis factus sum pelicano solitudinis : factus sum sicut nycticorax in domicilio.

Vigilavi : et factus sum sicut passer solitarius in tecto. unicus in edificio

Tota die exprobrabant mihi inimici mei : et qui laudabant me adversum me jurabant.

the Lord Jesus, to Whom alone of all men was given a "perfect heart" in its original nature, and in the obedience of will. To such perfect holiness and righteousness, froward or wilful wickedness, whether of the unfaithful, of the slanderer, of him who has been misled by that pride which gave Satan his first hold on man, of deceitful and lying persons who copy the "father of lies" in their sin, or of any other perverse unholiness, is thoroughly hateful : and our Lord showed His abhorrence of such while He was upon earth ; as He declares respecting His glorified Church that none such shall have a place in the New Jerusalem.

And each particular Christian may take up the words of his holy Lord in the unity of His Mystical Body, so as humbly to use this Psalm respecting his own determination to root out sin from the City of the Lord.

PSALM CII.

In this, the fifth of the Penitential Psalms, the Voice of Christ, as the Representative Penitent, is heard pleading with God for pardon and restoration to His Presence. Though, as St. Augustine says, there are some things which make us fear to say so, there are other things which force us to say so : and a humble reverence influencing all our thoughts on so awful a subject, we may thankfully accept such a meaning as exhibiting the fulness and depth of our Saviour's Sacrifice of Himself for sinners. The same holy Voice is also heard lifting up the supplication of His fainting Church that God will build up the walls of the Heavenly City, and raise it to the glory of a never-ending endurance by filling it with the glory of His eternal Presence. So out of the

The XX. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

Ps. xxxviii. 1.
Gal. iii. 13.

Isa. xxxviii. 12.

Isa. lx. 1.
Gal. iv. 4.

Isa. lxii. 2.

Isa. xl. 5.
Heb. xii. 22.
Isa. liv. 11.

Isa. lxii. 4.

Isa. lxxv. 17, 18.
Eph. ii. 10.
John iii. 3. 5.

Isa. xl. 9.

9 For I have eaten ashes as it were bread : and mingled my drink with weeping ;

10 And that because of thine indignation and wrath : for thou hast taken me up, and cast me down.

11 My days are gone like a shadow : and I am withered like grass.

12 But thou, O Lord, shalt endure for ever : and thy remembrance throughout all generations.

13 Thou shalt arise, and have mercy upon Sion : for it is time that thou have mercy upon her, yea, the time is come.

14 And why ? thy servants think upon her stones : and it pitieth them to see her in the dust.

15 The heathen shall fear thy Name, O Lord : and all the kings of the earth thy Majesty ;

16 When the Lord shall build up Sion : and when his glory shall appear ;

17 When he turneth him unto the prayer of the poor destitute : and despiseth not their desire.

18 This shall be written for those that come after : and the people which shall be born shall praise the Lord.

19 For he hath looked down from his sanctuary : out of the heaven did the Lord behold the earth ;

20 That he might hear the mournings of such as are in captivity : and deliver the children appointed unto death ;

21 That they may declare the Name of the Lord in Sion : and his worship at Jerusalem.

Quia cinerem tanquam panem manducabam : et potum meum cum fletu miscebam.

temperabam

A facie iræ indignationis tuæ : quia iræ et elevans allisisti me.

Dies mei sicut umbra declinaverunt : et ego sicut fœnum arui.

Tu autem, Domine, in æternum permanes : et memoriale tuum in generatione et generationem.

Tu exurgens, Domine, misereberis Sion : quia tempus miserendi ejus, quia venit tempus.

Quoniam placuerunt servis tuis lapides ejus : et terræ ejus miserebuntur.

Quia benedictionum subterunt servi tui

Et timebunt gentes Nomen tuum, Domine : et omnes reges terræ gloriam tuam.

Quia ædificavit Dominus Sion : et videbitur in gloria sua.

ædificabit . . . in majestate

Respexit in orationem humilium : et non sprevit precem eorum.

pauperum

Scribantur hæc in generatione altera : et populus qui creabitur laudabit Dominum.

Quia prospexit de excelso sancto suo : Dominus de cœlo in terram aspexit ;

Ut audiret gemitus compeditorum : ut solveret filios interemptorum.

gemitum vinculatorum

Ut annuntiet in Sion Nomen Domini : et laudem ejus in Hierusalem.

annuntiatur . . . et laus

depth of sorrow for sin Faith looks forward to that blessed time when "God shall wipe away all tears from the eyes of His people; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away." [Rev. xxi. 4.]

It is significant of our Lord's great humiliation that His words here are in several places similar to those used by Job : "ye have heard of the patience of Job, and have seen the end of the Lord." [James v. 11.] Thus Job laments, "My days are swifter than a weaver's shuttle, and are spent without hope. . . . My skin is black upon me, and my bones are burned with heat. . . . My bone cleaveth to my skin, and to my flesh. . . . I am a brother to dragons, and a companion to owls. . . . My harp also is turned to mourning, and my organ into the voice of them that weep." Some expressions are also similar to those used by other suffering servants of God ; as of Hezekiah when he said, "I reckoned till morning, that, as a lion, so will He break all my bones; from day even to night, so wilt Thou make an end of me. Like a crane or a swallow, so did I chatter : I did mourn as a dove : mine eyes fail with looking upward : O Lord, I am oppressed, undertake for me." Or as Jeremiah in his Lamentations respecting Israel, "Their visage is blacker than a coal : they are not known in the streets : their skin cleaveth to their bones ; it is withered, it is become like a stick." And thus it seems to be intimated that "in all our afflictions He was afflicted," and that when He bore our sins in His own Body on the Cross, He bore all the miseries also that sins bring with them condensed into one scorching ray of woe upon His Person<sup>1</sup>.

It is out of the midst of such misery that "The Afflicted One" looked forth on the travail of His soul and was satisfied ; and though He had but a few hours before predicted of the Temple and of Jerusalem that not one stone should be left upon another, yet He could say, "Thou shalt arise, and have mercy upon Sion

<sup>1</sup> The title of this Psalm is, "A Prayer of the Afflicted, when He is overwhelmed, and poureth out His complaint before the Lord."

The XX. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

22 When the people are gathered together : and the kingdoms also, to serve the Lord.

23 He brought down my strength in my journey : and shortened my days.

Isa. xxxviii. 10.

24 But I said, O my God, take me not away in the midst of mine age : as for thy years, they endure throughout all generations.

Hab. i. 10.
2 Pet. iii. 5.

25 Thou, Lord, in the beginning hast laid the foundation of the earth : and the heavens are the work of thy hands.

Hab. i. 11.
2 Pet. iii. 10.

26 They shall perish, but thou shalt endure : they all shall wax old as doth a garment ;

Hab. i. 12.
Isa. xxxiv. 4.
Mal. iii. 6.

27 And as a vesture shalt thou change them, and they shall be changed : but thou art the same, and thy years shall not fail.

Isa. lx. 19—22.
liv. 13.

28 The children of thy servants shall continue : and their seed shall stand fast in thy sight.

THE CIII PSALM.

Benedic, anima mea.

[A daily Morning
Psalm in the Eastern Ch.]

PRAISE the Lord, O my soul : and all that is within me praise his holy Name.

2 Praise the Lord, O my soul : and forget not all his benefits ;

3 Who forgiveth all thy sin : and healeth all thine infirmities ;

Job xxxiii. 18.
Lam. iii. 22.

4 Who saveth thy life from destruction : and crowneth thee with mercy and lovingkindness ;

In conveniendo populos in unum :
et reges ut serviant Domino.

Respondit ei in via virtutis suæ :
paucitatem dierum meorum nuntia mihi.

Ne revoces me in dimidio dierum meorum : in generatione et genera- in sæculum sæculi tionem anni tui.

Initio tu, Domine, terram fundasti :
et opera manuum tuarum sunt cœli.

Ipsi peribunt, tu autem permanes :
et omnes sicut vestimentum veterascent.

Et sicut opertorium mutabis eos, et mutabuntur : tu autem idem ipse es, et anni tui non deficient.

Filii servorum tuorum habitabunt :
et semen eorum in sæculum dirigetur. sæculi

PSALMUS CII.

BENEDIC, anima mea, Domino :
et omnia quæ intra me sunt,
Nomini sancto ejus.

Benedic, anima mea, Domini : et noli oblivisci omnes retributiones ejus.

Qui propitiatur omnibus iniquitati- propitius fit bus tuis : qui sanat omnes infirmitates languores tuas.

Qui redimit de interitu vitam tuam : vitam tuam qui quia coronat te in misericordia et mise- salvat in bonis rationibus. desiderium tuam qui coro-
nat te in mise- ratione et mise- ricordia : renov.

... When the Lord shall build up Sion," for He knew that the fulness of time had come, and that though the earthly Zion was about to become a desolation, the City of God was to be built up anew, a spiritual house, not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

To the edification of the spiritual Zion the rest of the Psalm looks ; seeming to say with the prophet, " O Thou afflicted, tossed with tempest, and not comforted, behold, I will lay Thy stones with fair colours, and lay Thy foundations with sapphires. And I will make Thy windows of agates, and Thy gates of carbuncles, and all Thy borders of pleasant stones. And all Thy children shall be taught of the Lord ; and great shall be the peace of Thy children. In righteousness shalt Thou be established." " Thy sun shall no more go down, neither shall Thy moon withdraw itself ; for the Lord shall be Thine everlasting Light, and the days of Thy mourning shall be ended."

So Christ looked forward from His throne of suffering and vicarious penitence to His throne of dominion and glory. So the Church, His Mystical Body, looks forward from the time of her militant waiting, her contest with sin, her persecution at the hands of Christ's enemies, to the time when the Lord shall create all things new. So the penitent soul, abased before the Judge of all, may look forward too ; and making its prayer " the prayer of the Poor destitute," receive of the riches which His poverty gained for sinners in an Absolution on earth that will be ratified in that Day when the redeemed and pardoned shall " stand fast," upheld by the Cross of their afflicted and glorified Saviour.

PSALM CIII.

The Evangelical key-note to this Psalm was given by St. Paul when he wrote, " Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places, in Christ."

In its Liturgical use it is to be regarded as the thanksgiving of the Church for the redeeming work of Christ : a thanksgiving offered up indeed on behalf of the whole body of human nature for every individual member of which that ever lived, or ever will live, Christ died. For the Church is the true "anima mundi," and,

The XX. Day.

Morning

Prayer.

Zech. ix. 17.

Isa. xl. 11. 31.

2 Tim. ii. 26.

5 Who satisfieth thy mouth with good things : making thee young and lusty as an eagle.

6 The Lord executeth righteousness and judgement : for all them that are oppressed with wrong.

Exod. xxxiv. 6, 7. 7 He shewed his ways unto Moses : his works unto the children of Israel.

8 The Lord is full of compassion and mercy : long-suffering, and of great goodness.

9 He will not alway be chiding : neither keepeth he his anger for ever.

10 He hath not dealt with us after our sins : nor rewarded us according to our wickednesses.

Isa. i. 18.

11 For look how high the heaven is in comparison of the earth : so great is his mercy also toward them that fear him.

Eph. iii. 18.

12 Look how wide also the east is from the west : so far hath he set our sins from us.

John xx. 17.

13 Yea, like as a father pitieth his own children : even so is the Lord merciful unto them that fear him.

Gen. iii. 19.

14 For he knoweth whereof we are made : he remembereth that we are but dust.

Isa. xl. 6—8.

15 The days of man are but as grass : for he flourisheth as a flower of the field.

16 For as soon as the wind goeth over it, it is gone : and the place thereof shall know it no more.

17 But the merciful goodness of the Lord endureth for ever and ever upon them that fear him : and his righteousness upon children's children ;

18 Even upon such as keep his covenant : and think upon his commandments to do them.

Qui replet in bonis desiderium tuum : renovabitur ut aquilæ juvenus tua.

Faciens misericordias Dominus : et judicium omnibus injuriam patientibus.

Notas fecit vias suas Moysi : filiis Israël voluntates suas.

Miserator et misericors Dominus : paciens et longanimis et multum misericors.

Non in perpetuum irascetur : neque in finem irascitur in æternum comminabitur. .. indignabitur

Non secundum peccata nostra fecit nobis : neque secundum iniquitates nostras retribuit nobis.

Quoniam secundum altitudinem cœli a terra : corroboravit misericordiam confirmavit Domi- suam super timentes se. nus

Quantum distat ortus ab occidente : oriens . . . elongavit longe fecit a nobis iniquitates nostras.

Quomodo miseretur pater filiorum, Sicut misertus est Dominus timentibus se : quoniam ipse cognovit figmentum nos- quia ipse scit trum.

Recordatus est quoniam pulvis Memento Domine sumus : homo sicut fœnum dies ejus ; quod pulvis tanquam flos agri sic effloreat. ita floriet

Quoniam spiritus pertransibit in illo, et non subsistet : et non cognoscet pertransiit . . . et amplius locum suum. nou erit

Misericordia autem Domini ab æter- a sæculo et usque no : et usque in æternum super timentes in sæculum eum. sæculi

Et justitia illius in filios filiorum : his qui servant testamentum ejus ; custodiētibz

• Et memores sunt mandatorum ip- Et memoria reti- sius : ad faciendum ea. nentibus man- data ejus ut faciant ea

although the world without, and even the dumb creation, praises God in a certain sense by the fulfilment of its duty and vocation, it is within the Church alone that mankind can appreciate the blessings of Redemption, and praise the Lord for them.

The Psalm contemplates mankind, then, as a whole, and in its fallen condition, and looks forward to that work whose effects reached back to the age of the Psalmist and to all previous times, the work by which the Saviour of all brought about the forgiveness of all. The "sin" is thus not any particular sins of one person, but the aggregate sin of mankind, there being no sin for which the blood of Christ is not a sufficient sacrifice and Atonement. The "infirmities" are also those which came upon mankind through sin ; all that long train of physical weaknesses and degenerations which culminate in death : and all those spiritual weaknesses which the grace of God only can prevent from ending in spiritual destruction. Thus Christ procured a modification of the sentence, "Thou shalt surely die," by redeeming the life of human nature from that incapacity for immortality which was the consequence of the Fall ; and restoring it to the vigour of its first state, making it "young and lusty as an eagle."

This gives the key to the interpretation of the whole Psalm. Man deserved the loss of eternal life and of the Vision of God, but the Lord was full of compassion and mercy, and provided a means of pardon and restoration. Man alienated himself from the family of God, yet He pitieth men as His children still, and remembers that they were created with a power of falling from

The XX. Day.

Morning
Prayer.John i. 1.
Rev. v. 12.
xix. 11—16. xxii. 1.
Dan. vii. 10.
Heb. i. 14.
Eph. iii. 10.

19 The Lord hath prepared his seat in heaven : and his kingdom ruleth over all.

20 O praise the Lord, ye Angels of his, ye that excel in strength : ye that fulfil his commandment, and hearken unto the voice of his words.

Rev. iv. 8—11.

21 O praise the Lord, all ye his hosts : ye servants of his that do his pleasure.

Col. i. 16.

22 O speak good of the Lord, all ye works of his, in all places of his dominion : praise thou the Lord, O my soul.

THE CIV PSALM.

Benedic, anima mea.

Evening

Prayer.

Whitsunday,
Evensong.
Job xl. 10.
Isa. vii. 3.

PRAISE the Lord, O my soul : O Lord my God, thou art become exceeding glorious ; thou art clothed with majesty and honour.

Exod. iii. 2.
1 Tim. vi. 16.
1 John i. 5.
Rev. i. 12—16.
xxi. 23.

2 Thou deckest thy self with light as it were with a garment : and spread-est out the heavens like a curtain.

3 Who layeth the beams of his chambers in the waters : and maketh the clouds his chariot, and walketh upon the wings of the wind.

Heb. i. 7.

4 He maketh his angels spirits :
and his ministers a flaming fire.

5 He laid the foundations of the earth : that it never should move at any time.

2 Pet. iii. 5.
Job xxxviii. 9.

6 Thou coveredst it with the deep like as with a garment : the waters stand in the hills.

Gen. i. 9.

7 At thy rebuke they flee : at the voice of thy thunder they are afraid.

8 They go up as high as the hills, and down to the valleys beneath : even unto the place which thou hast appointed for them.

Dominus in cœlo paravit sedem suam : et regnum ipsius omnibus dominabitur.

Benedicite Domino, omnes angeli ejus : potentes virtute, facientes verbum illius, ad audiendam vocem sermonum ejus.

Benedicite Domino, omnes virtutes ejus : ministri ejus qui facitis voluntatem ejus.

Benedicite Domino, omnia opera ejus : in omni loco dominationis ejus ;
benedic, anima mea, Domino.

PSALMUS CIII.

BENEDIC, anima mea, Domino : Saturday, Whit-Domine, Deus meus, magnifica- suntide Mattins.
tus es vehementer.

Confessionem et decorem induisti :
amictus lumine sicut vestimento.

Extendens cœlum sicut pellem : qui tegis aquis superiora ejus.

Qui ponis nubem ascensum tuum : Qui ponit, &c.
qui ambulat super pennas ventorum.

Qui facis angelos tuos spiritus : et ministros tuos ignem urentem.

Qui fundasti terram super stabilitatem suam : non inclinabitur in sæculum sæculi.

Abyssus, sicut vestimentum, amictus pallium
ejus : super montes stabunt aquæ.

Ab increpatione tua fugient : a voce tonitru tui formidabunt.

Ascendunt montes ; et descendunt campi : in locum quem fundasti eis.

their first estate, and of returning to the dust from which they were taken. In His "merciful goodness," therefore, the Son of God comes down from Heaven to become Man Himself, that the righteousness of God may be extended upon "children's children" if they are in the new covenant founded on the Incarnation.

The last verses of the Psalm express the unity of the Church in Heaven with the Church on earth through the work of Christ. "Ye are come unto mount Sion, and unto the City of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable company of angels : to the general assembly and Church of the Firstborn, which are written in Heaven." [Heb. xii. 22.]

PSALM CIV.

This is a hymn of praise to the Creator of all things visible and invisible : and it looks beyond the first Creation to that time of which Isaiah was inspired to prophesy in the words of God Himself, "Behold, I create new heavens and a new earth : and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind ; but be ye glad and rejoice in that which I create : for, behold, I create Jerusalem a rejoicing, and her people a joy." [Isa. lxxv. 17.] For this reason the Church has appointed this Psalm for Whitsunday, as being one the mystical sense of which glorifies God the Holy Ghost, the "Giver of life," in the spiritual creation : and formerly this sense was brought out even more conspicuously by the use of the Psalm throughout the Octave as well as on Whitsun-day itself.

Whatever is recorded in Holy Scripture respecting the natural Creation is set down from information given by the Creator Himself : and in whatever language, whether that of history, prophecy, or poetry, such information is given, the absolute Truthfulness of

The XX. Day.
Evening

Prayer.
Job xxxviii. 11.
Gen. i. 6, 7.
Job xxxviii. 16.

9 Thou hast set them their bounds which they shall not pass : neither turn again to cover the earth.

10 He sendeth the springs into the rivers : which run among the hills.

11 All beasts of the field drink thereof : and the wild asses quench their thirst.

12 Beside them shall the fowls of the air have their habitation : and sing among the branches.

Job xxxviii. 26.
Deut. xi. 14.
Matt. v. 45.

13 He watereth the hills from above :
the earth is filled with the fruit of thy works.

14 He bringeth forth grass for the cattle : and green herb for the service of men ;

Gen. xiv. 18.
Matt. xxvi. 27.
Ps. xiv. 7.
Rev. vi. 6.

15 That he may bring food out of the earth, and wine that maketh glad the heart of man : and oil to make him a cheerful countenance, and bread to strengthen man's heart.

Rev. xxii. 2.
Numb. xxiv. 6.

16 The trees of the Lord also are full of sap : even the cedars of Libanus which he hath planted.

17 Wherein the birds make their nests : and the fir-trees are a dwelling for the stork.

18 The high hills are a refuge for the wild goats : and so are the stony rocks for the conies.

19 He appointed the moon for certain seasons : and the sun knoweth his going down.

20 Thou makest darkness that it may be night : wherein all the beasts of the forest do move.

21 The lions roaring after their prey : do seek their meat from God.

22 The sun ariseth, and they get them away together : and lay them down in their dens.

23 Man goeth forth to his work, and to his labour : until the evening.

Terminum posuisti, quem non transgredientur : neque convertentur operire terram.

Qui emittis fontes in convallibus : emittit inter medium montium pertransibunt
aquæ.

Potabunt omnes bestię agri : expec- bestię silvarum
tabunt onagri in siti sua.

Super ea volucres cœli habitabunt :
de medio petrarum dabunt voces.

Rigans montes de superioribus suis :
de fructu operum tuorum satiabitur
terra.

Producens fœnum jumentis : et herbam servituti hominum.

Ut educas panem de terra : et vinum educat
lætificet cor hominis.

Ut exhilaret faciem in oleo : et panis cor hominis confirmet.

Saturabuntur ligna campi, et cedri omnia ligna sil- Libani quas plantavit : illic passeret varum
nidificabunt. plantasti

Herodii domus dux est eorum : Fulcie domus montes excelsi cervis ; petra refugium herinaciis.

Fecit lunam in tempora : sol cogno-vit occasum suum.

Posuisti tenebras, et facta est nox :
in ipsa pertransibunt omnes bestię
silvæ.

Catuli leonum rugientes, ut rapiant :
et quærant a Deo escam sibi.

Ortus est sol, et congregati sunt :
et in cubilibus suis collocabuntur.

Exibit homo ad opus suum : et ad operationem suam usque ad vesperam.

God makes it impossible that the substance of it should be inconsistent with fact. In this Psalm we are, therefore, provided with a Divine Creed respecting the work of the Creator. The words are given us by God Himself that we may use them in His praise.
Although perfectly consistent with the Mosaic narrative, the Psalm has sufficiently independent characteristics to make it improbable that it was in any way founded on that narrative, and we may consider it more justly as a new revelation, in which the Divine Wisdom teaches man to speak of his Creator's work out of the depth of a knowledge that cannot err ; and especially to glorify that continuous act of Creation by which the universe is preserved in order, beauty, and usefulness.

Such a Christian strain is a constant witness against that kind of unbelief which denies the overruling hand of God, and believes a monstrous fable of independent and self-originate action in the operations of nature. It is the voice of the Church reading God's glory from age to age in every page of the book of Nature, and saying, "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory, and honour, and power ; for Thou hast created all things, and for Thy pleasure they are and were created." [Rev. iv. 11.]

The XX. Day
Evening
Prayer.

24 O Lord, how manifold are thy works : in wisdom hast thou made them all ; the earth is full of thy riches.

25 So is the great and wide sea also : wherein are things creeping innumerable, both small and great beasts.

Job xli. 1.

26 There go the ships, and there is that Leviathan : whom thou hast made to take his pastime therein.

27 These wait all upon thee : that thou mayest give them meat in due season.

28 When thou givest it them they gather it : and when thou openest thy hand they are filled with good.

Job xxxiv. 14, 15.

29 When thou hidest thy face they are troubled : when thou takest away their breath they die, and are turned again to their dust.

Ezek. xxxvii. 9, 10.

30 When thou lettest thy breath go forth they shall be made : and thou shalt renew the face of the earth.

Isa. lxv. 17—19.

31 The glorious Majesty of the Lord shall endure for ever : the Lord shall rejoice in his works.

32 The earth shall tremble at the look of him : if he do but touch the hills, they shall smoke.

Isa. lxvi. 22, 23.

33 I will sing unto the Lord as long as I live : I will praise my God while I have my being.

34 And so shall my words please him : my joy shall be in the Lord.

Rev. xix. 1—7.

35 As for sinners they shall be consumed out of the earth, and the ungodly shall come to an end : praise thou the Lord, O my soul, praise the Lord.

THE CV PSALM.

Confitemini Domino.

The XXI. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

1 Chron. xvi. 8—22.
Cf. Acts vii. 2—45.

O GIVE thanks unto the Lord, and call upon his Name : tell the people what things he hath done.

Quam magnificata sunt opera tua, Domine: omnia in sapientia fecisti; impleta est terra possessione tua.

creatura tua

Hoc mare magnum et spatiosum manibus: illic reptilia quorum non est numerus.

spatiosum illius reptilia

Animalia pusilla cum magnis: illic naves pertransibunt.

Draco iste quem formasti ad illudendum ei: omnia a te expectant, ut des illis escam in tempore.

exp. Domine

Dante te illis, colligent: aperiente te manum tuam, omnia implebuntur bonitate.

replebuntur uberitate

Avertente autem te faciem, turbabuntur: auferes spiritum eorum et deficient, et in pulverem suum revertentur.

Emitte spiritum tuum et creabuntur: et renovabis faciem terræ.

Sit gloria Domini in sæculum: lætabitur Dominus in operibus suis.

sæc. sæculi

Qui respicit terram, et facit eam tremere: qui tangit montes et fumigant.

fumigant

Cantabo Domino in vita mea: psallam Deo meo quamdiu sum.

Jucundum sit ei eloquium meum: ego vero delectabor in Domino.

Suavis sit ei luxatio mea

Deficient peccatores a terra, et iniqui ita ut non sint: benedic, anima mea, Domino.

PSALMUS CIV.

CONFITEMINI Domino et invocate Nomen ejus: annuntiate inter gentes opera ejus.

Sat. Mattins.

It has already been remarked that this Psalm has a further meaning, viz., a typical reference to the spiritual world of New Creation. The manner in which this mystical sense may be drawn out is almost self-evident to any mind accustomed to use the Psalms from day to day in the services of the Church. When we sing, "Thou deckest Thyself with light as with a garment," we cannot but think of those frequent allusions to light in connexion with God's Presence which culminate in the Apostolic saying, "God is Light;" the words of our Lord, "I am the Light of the world;" and the Vision of the New Creation in the Apocalypse, "The City had no need of the sun, neither of the moon, to shine in it: for the glory of God did lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof." The Creator laying "the beams of His chambers in the waters" brings up thoughts of those waters of Baptism on which the Holy Spirit founds the work of New Creation in the Church of God. The many allusions to water will lead the mind to dwell on the streams of grace which flow like a "pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb." Man "going forth to his work and to his labour until the evening" represents the whole period of that dispensation which will end in "the rest that remaineth for the people of God;" and the regeneration and glorious resurrection of mankind and nature is clearly indicated by the renewal of the earth under the operation of God's Spirit

The XXI. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

2 O let your songs be of him, and praise him : and let your talking be of all his wondrous works.

3 Rejoice in his holy Name : let the heart of them rejoice that seek the Lord.

4 Seek the Lord and his strength : seek his face evermore.

5 Remember the marvellous works that he hath done : his wonders, and the judgements of his mouth ;

6 O ye seed of Abraham his servant : ye children of Jacob his chosen.

7 He is the Lord our God : his judgements are in all the world.

Luke i. 72, 73.

8 He hath been alway mindful of his covenant and promise : that he made to a thousand generations ;

Gen. xvii. 2—7.
xxvi. 3.

9 Even the covenant that he made with Abraham : and the oath that he swore unto Isaac ;

Gen. xxviii. 14.
xxxv. 11, 12.

10 And appointed the same unto Jacob for a law : and to Israel for an everlasting testament ;

11 Saying, Unto thee will I give the land of Canaan : the lot of your inheritance.

Gen. xii. 1—20.
xiii. 12.
xx. 3—7.
xxvi. 11.
Luke xii. 32.

12 When there were yet but a few of them : and they strangers in the land ;

13 What time as they went from one nation to another : from one kingdom to another people ;

14 He suffered no man to do them wrong : but reprov'd even kings for their sakes ;

Rev. vii. 3.

15 Touch not mine Anointed : and do my prophets no harm.

Gen. xli. 54.

16 Moreover, he called for a dearth upon the land : and destroyed all the provision of bread.

Gen. xxxvii. 28.
36.

17 But he had sent a man before them : even Joseph, who was sold to be a bondservant ;

Cantate ei et psallite ei : narrate omnia mirabilia ejus ; laudamini in Nomine sancto ejus.

Lætetur cor quærentium Dominum ; quærite Dominum et confirmamini : quærite faciem ejus semper.

Mementote mirabilium ejus quæ fecit : prodigia ejus et judicia oris ejus.

Semen Abraham servi ejus : filii Jacob electi ejus.

Ipse Dominus Deus noster : in universa terra judicia ejus.

Memor fuit in sæculum testamenti sui : verbi quod mandavit in mille generationes.

Quod disposuit ad Abraham : et juramenti sui ad Isaac.

Et statuit illud Jacob in præceptum : et Israël in testamentum æternum.

Dicens, Tibi dabo terram Chanaan : funiculum hæreditatis vestræ.

Cum essent numero brevi : paucissimi, et incolæ ejus.

Et pertransierunt de gente in gentem : et de regno ad populum alterum.

Non reliquit hominem nocere eis : permisit et corripuit pro eis reges.

Nolite tangere christos meos : et in prophetis meis nolite malignari.

Et vocavit famem super terram : et omne firmamentum panis contrivit.

Misit ante eos virum : in servum venundatus est Joseph.

again going forth as at the first Creation. Thus we sing to the glory of the Lord, not only respecting the visible Creation, but also respecting that of which "He that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new."

PSALM CV.

This and the following Psalm were written, prophetically or historically, with reference to the Captivity in Babylon. The one rehearses, in the form of a didactic hymn, the great goodness which God had ever shown to His people, and His faithfulness in keeping the covenant which He had made with their forefathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and with themselves, as a nation, in the time of Moses. The other recounts the history of the unfaithfulness which Israel had so continually shown towards God, and the sins for which He had suffered them to be carried into captivity.

The first fifteen verses of this Psalm form part of that of which it is said, "On that day David delivered first this Psalm to thank the Lord into the hand of Asaph and his brethren," and the first and the last two verses of the 106th Psalm are identical with the last three of the one so spoken of. [1 Chron. xvi. 1—36.] Both the 105th and the 106th Psalms seem to be also associated with the 104th by the sequence of the subjects and by the Hallelujah, or Praise ye the Lord, which concludes all three and

The XXI. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

Gen. xli. 14.

Gen. xli. 40, 43.

Gen. xlii. 6.
Deut. x. 22.

Exod. i. 7, 12.

Exod. iii. 10.
iv. 14.

Exod. x. 22.
Cf. Gen. i. 3.
Rev. viii. 12.
xvi. 10.

Exod. vii. 20, 21.
Rev. viii. 8.
xvi. 3—7.

Exod. viii. 6.
Rev. xvi. 13, 14.

Exod. viii. 24, 17.

Exod. ix. 23, 24.
Rev. viii. 7.
xvi. 8, 21.

Exod. ix. 25.

18 Whose feet they hurt in the stocks : the iron entered into his soul ;

19 Until the time came that his cause was known : the word of the Lord tried him.

20 The king sent, and delivered him : the prince of the people let him go free.

21 He made him lord also of his house : and ruler of all his substance ;

22 That he might inform his princes after his will : and teach his senators wisdom.

23 Israel also came into Egypt : and Jacob was a stranger in the land of Ham.

24 And he increased his people exceedingly : and made them stronger than their enemies ;

25 Whose heart turned so, that they hated his people : and dealt untruly with his servants.

26 Then sent he Moses his servant : and Aaron whom he had chosen.

27 And these shewed his tokens among them : and wonders in the land of Ham.

28 He sent darkness, and it was dark : and they were not obedient unto his word.

29 He turned their waters into blood : and slew their fish.

30 Their land brought forth frogs : yea, even in their kings' chambers.

31 He spake the word, and there came all manner of flies : and lice in all their quarters.

32 He gave them hail-stones for rain : and flames of fire in their land.

33 He smote their vines also and fig-trees : and destroyed the trees that were in their coasts.

Humiliaverunt in compedibus pedes ejus : ferrum pertransiit animam ejus, donec veniret verbum ejus.

Eloquium Domini inflammavit eum misit rex et solvit eum ; princeps populorum et dimisit eum.

Constituit eum dominum domus suæ : et principem omnis possessionis suæ.

Ut erudiret principes ejus sicut semetipsum : et senes ejus prudentiam doceret.

Et intravit Israël in Ægyptum : et Jacob accola fuit in terra Cham. habilitavit

Et auxit populum suum vehementer : nimis et firmavit eum super inimicos ejus.

Convertit cor eorum ut odirent populum ejus : et dolum facerent in servos ejus.

Misit Moysen servum suum : Aaron quem elegit ipsum.

Posuit in eis verba signorum suorum : et prodigiorum in terra Cham. Chanaan

Misit tenebras et obscuravit : et non quia exacerbaverunt . . . ejus exacerbavit sermones suos.

Convertit aquas eorum in sanguinem : et occidit pisces eorum.

Et dedit terra eorum ranas : in pen- Misit . . . in cubilibus talibus regum ipsorum.

Dixit et venit cynomyia et ciniphes : in omnibus finibus eorum.

Posuit pluvias eorum grandinem : ignem comburentem in terra ipsorum.

Et percussit vineas eorum et ficulneas eorum : et contrivit lignum finium omne lignum eorum.

begins the two former<sup>1</sup>, and appears, for the first time, in this series of Psalms.

As the Old Testament is now as much the heritage of the Christian as it was anciently of the Jewish Church, so the history of God's ancient people is part of the history of the one chosen people of God : for there is an essential continuity between the Church of the Old and the Church of the New Dispensation through the Person of our Blessed Lord. In singing this Psalm, therefore, the Church of Christ is (1) celebrating the merciful Providence of God in so preserving the particular nation of the Jews that from among their number the Saviour should be born : and (2) praising Him also for His continual loving-kindness to those whom Christians must regard as their own spiritual ancestors.

But, in addition to this literal sense in which the Psalm is to be used, it must be remembered that the history of Israel is typical in the highest degree : and that we are, therefore, justified in looking for mystical meanings throughout in any portion of Holy Scripture, and especially the Psalms, in which the events of that history are recounted. Some of these mystical meanings may be particularly noticed. The foundation of the whole Psalm, for example, is the covenant which God made with the patriarchs, "saying, Unto thee will I give the land of Canaan, the lot of <sup>1</sup> The 78th, 135th, and 136th Psalms are of a similar character to the 195th and 106th, as is also the discourse of St. Stephen.

The XXI. Day.

MorningPrayer.

Exod. x. 15.

Rev. ix. 3—10.

34 He spake the word, and the grasshoppers came, and caterpillars innumerable : and did eat up all the grass in their land, and devoured the fruit of their ground.

Exod. xii. 29.
Rev. vi. 15.

35 He smote all the first-born in their land : even the chief of all their strength.

Exod. xii. 35, 36.

36 He brought them forth also with silver and gold : there was not one feeble person among their tribes.

37 Egypt was glad at their departing : for they were afraid of them.

Exod. xiii. 21, 22.

38 He spread out a cloud to be a covering : and fire to give light in the night-season.

Exod. xvi. 13, 14.

39 At their desire he brought quails : and he filled them with the bread of heaven.

Exod. xvii. 6.

40 He opened the rock of stone, and the waters flowed out : so that rivers ran in the dry places.

Gen. xv. 14.

41 For why? he remembered his holy promise : and Abraham his servant.

42 And he brought forth his people with joy : and his chosen with gladness ;

Deut. vi. 10, 11.

43 And gave them the lands of the heathen : and they took the labours of the people in possession ;

Deut. vi. 24, 25.

44 That they might keep his statutes : and observe his laws.

THE CVI PSALM.

Confitemini Domino.Evening
Prayer.
1 Chron. xvi. 34.

O GIVE thanks unto the Lord, for he is gracious : and his mercy endureth for ever.

Dixit et venit locusta et bruchus :
cujus non erat numerus.

Et comedit omne fœnum in terra fœnum in terra eorum et percussit omne, &c.
eorum : et comedit omnem fructum terræ eorum.

Et percussit omne primogenitum in terra eorum : primitias omnis laboris terra Egypti eorum.

Et eduxit eos cum argento et auro :
et non erat in tribus eorum infirmus.

Lætata est Ægyptus in profectione eorum : quia incubuit timor eorum cecidit super eos.

Expandit nubem in protectionem eorum : et ignem ut luceret eis per noctem.

Petierunt, et venit coturnix : et pane Petierunt carnes et cœli saturavit eos.

Dirupit petram et fluxerunt aquæ :
abierunt in sicco flumina :

Quoniam memor fuit verbi sancti sui : quod habuit ad Abraham puerum quod locutus est ad suum.

Et eduxit populum suum in exultatione : et electos suos in lætitia.

Et dedit illis regiones gentium : et labores populorum possederunt :

Ut custodiant justificationes ejus : et legem ejus exquirant.

PSALMUS CV.

CONFITEMINI Domino, quoniam Sat. Mattins.
bonus : quoniam in sæculum misericordia ejus.

your inheritance :” which covenant was made when “there were yet but a few of them : and they strangers in the land.” Such a covenant, also, was made by God with His newly-chosen people, a covenant signified in our Lord’s words, “Fear not, little flock ; for it is your Father’s good pleasure to give you the kingdom.” [Luke xii. 32.] “To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with Me in My throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with My Father in His throne.” [Rev. iii. 21.] Again, the Touch not Mine Anointed of the Psalm clearly refers, literally, to the Patriarchs and to their descendants ; mystically it is impossible not to see its reference to Christ and to those who are made kings and priests by the unction of the Holy Spirit. In the sending a Man before them, even Joseph, who was sold to be a bond-servant, whose feet they hurt in the stocks, the iron entered into his soul, we cannot fail to see a mystical type of the Man Who took upon Him the form of a servant, Whose feet were fastened to the Cross, Whose heart the iron lance pierced through, and Whom the King delivered in the Resurrection, making Him Lord also of His house, and Ruler of all His substance, by raising His Human Nature to the throne of Heaven. So also, in the increase of the people of Israel, in their growing stronger than their enemies, in the hatred of them, and the untrue dealing to which they were subjected, it is not difficult to see a typical representation of the first growth of the Church, and of its contest with the heathen world. Lastly, the plagues of Egypt find their parallel in the last plagues of Antichrist predicted in the Apocalypse : and the deliverance of the people from Egypt, their going forth with gladness, is a type of that final rest of the Church when it will have entered upon the many mansions prepared for it by the Father.

PSALM CVI.

The first and the last two verses of this Psalm are to be found, as already mentioned, in the dedication hymn of David : but the

The XXI. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Ecclus. xliii. 30.

2 Who can express the noble acts of the Lord : or shew forth all his praise ?

3 Blessed are they that alway keep judgement : and do righteousness.

Neh. xlii. 14.
22.

4 Remember me, O Lord, according to the favour that thou bearest unto thy people : O visit me with thy salvation.

Luke x. 23.

5 That I may see the felicity of thy chosen : and rejoice in the gladness of thy people, and give thanks with thine inheritance.

Dan. ix. 5.
Acts vii. 51—53.

6 We have sinned with our fathers : we have done amiss, and dealt wickedly.

Exod. xiv. 11, 12.

7 Our fathers regarded not thy wonders in Egypt, neither kept they thy great goodness in remembrance : but were disobedient at the sea, even at the Red sea.

Exod. ix. 16.

8 Nevertheless, he helped them for his Name's sake : that he might make his power to be known.

Exod. xiv. 21, 22.
Rev. xvi. 12.

9 He rebuked the Red sea also, and it was dried up : so he led them through the deep, as through a wilderness.

Exod. xiv. 30.

10 And he saved them from the adversary's hand : and delivered them from the hand of the enemy.

Exod. xiv. 28.

11 As for those that troubled them, the waters overwhelmed them : there was not one of them left.

Exod. xv. 1—21.

12 Then believed they his words : and sang praise unto him.

Exod. xvi. 2.

13 But within a while they forgot his works : and would not abide his counsel.

Numb. xi. 4.

14 But lust came upon them in the wilderness : and they tempted God in the desert.

Numb. xi. 31.

15 And he gave them their desire : and sent leanness withal into their soul.

Numb. xvi. 1.

16 They angered Moses also in the tents : and Aaron the saint of the Lord.

Quis loquetur potentias Domini : auditas faciet omnes laudes ejus ?

Beati qui custodiunt judicium et faciunt justitiam : in omni tempore.

Memento nostri, Domine, in beneplacito populi tui : visita nos in salutari tuo.

Ad videndum in bonitate electorum tuorum, ad lætandum in lætitia gentis tuæ : ut lauderis cum hæreditate tua.

Peccavimus cum patribus nostris : injuste egimus, iniquitatem fecimus.

Patres nostri in Ægypto non intellexerunt mirabilia tua : non fuerunt memores multitudinis misericordiæ tuæ.

Et irritaverunt ascendentes in mare : asc in Rubro mare mare Rubrum.

Et salvavit eos propter Nomen suum : liberavit ut notam faceret potentiam suam.

Et increpuit mare Rubrum, et exsiccatum est : et deduxit eos in abyssis in aquis multis sicut in deserto.

Et salvavit eos de manu odientium : liberavit et redemit eos de manu inimici.

Et operuit aqua tribulantes eos : unus ex eis non remansit.

Et crediderunt verbis ejus : et laudaverunt laudem ejus. cantaverunt

Cito fecerunt, obliti sunt operum ejus : et non sustinuerunt consilium ejus.

Et concupierunt concupiscentiam in deserto : et tentaverunt Deum in inanitate in siccitate quoso.

Et dedit eis petitionem ipsorum : et misit saturitatem in animas eorum.

Et irritaverunt Moysen in castris : Aaron sanctum Domini.

fourth and sixth verses seem to connect it with the prophets Daniel and Nehemiah. The whole Psalm is a confession of national sins, cast in the form of a penitential hymn : and its tone is that of Daniel's prayer when he knew that the time of the Captivity was drawing to a close, "We have sinned, and have committed iniquity, and have done wickedly, and have rebelled, even by departing from Thy precepts, and from Thy judgments." As the preceding Psalm recounts the noble acts of the Lord with a view to His praise, so are they recounted, in this one, for the sake of confession on the part of His people : and as, in that, God is glorified by the Christian Church for His mercies to His one people in the days before Christ and in the present dispensation, so this Psalm of confession is offered up on behalf, and in the name, of the same one continuous spiritual fellowship in both periods of its progress towards the unveiled Presence of the Lord, "the felicity of His chosen."

Thus the Church of God is ever being brought out of the mys-

The XXI. Day. 17 So the earth opened, and swallowed up Dathan : and covered the congregation of Abiram.

Evening Prayer.

Numb. xvi. 31—33.

Numb. xvi. 35. 18 And the fire was kindled in their company : the flame burnt up the ungodly.

Exod. xxxii. 4. 19 They made a calf in Horeb : and worshipped the molten image.

Jer. ii. 11. 20 Thus they turned their glory : into the similitude of a calf that eateth hay.

21 And they forgot God their Saviour : who had done so great things in Egypt ;

22 Wondrous works in the land of Ham : and fearful things by the Red sea.

Exod. xxxii. 9—14. 23 So he said, he would have destroyed them, had not Moses his chosen stood before him in the gap : to turn away his wrathful indignation, lest he should destroy them.

Numb. xiii. 32. 24 Yea, they thought scorn of that pleasant land : and gave no credence unto his word ;

Numb. xiv. 2. 25 But murmured in their tents : and hearkened not unto the voice of the Lord.

Numb. xiv. 23, 29. 26 Then lift he up his hand against them : to overthrow them in the wilderness ;

Lev. xxvi. 33. 27 To cast out their seed among the nations : and to scatter them in the lands.

Numb. xxv. 3. 28 They joined themselves unto Baal-peor : and ate the offerings of the dead.

29 Thus they provoked him to anger with their own inventions : and the plague was great among them.

Numb. xxv. 7, 8. 30 Then stood up Phinees and prayed : and so the plague ceased.

Numb. xxv. 11—13. 31 And that was counted unto him for righteousness : among all posterities for evermore.

Aperta est terra, et deglutivit Dathan : et operuit super congregationem Abiron. synagoga

Et exarsit ignis in synagoga eorum : flamma combussit peccatores.

Et fecerunt vitulum in Horeb : et adoraverunt sculptile.

Et mutaverunt gloriam suam : in similitudinem vituli comedentis fœ- manducantis num.

Obliti sunt Deum qui salvavit eos : liberavit qui fecit magnalia in Ægypto, mirabilia in terra Cham, terribilia in mari Chanaan Rubro.

Et dixit ut disperderet eos : si non Moyses electus ejus stetisset in con- fractione in conspectu ejus.

Ut averteret iram ejus, ne disperderet eos : et pro nihilo habuerunt terram desiderabilem.

Non crediderunt verbo ejus, et murmuraverunt in tabernaculis suis : non exaudierunt vocem Domini.

Et elevavit manum suam super eos : ut prosterneret eos in deserto :

Et ut dejiceret semen eorum in nationibus : et disperderet eos in regionibus.

Et initiati sunt Beëlphégor : et consecrati . . . et comederunt sacrificia mortuorum. manducaverunt

Et irritaverunt eum in adinven- in studiis suis tionibus suis : et multiplicata est in eis ruina.

Et stetit Phinees, et placavit : et et exoravit cessavit quassatio.

Et reputatum est ei in justitiam : in generatione et generationem, usque in in sæculum sempiternum.

tical Egypt by the guiding Providence of her Almighty Head, and ever being "delivered from the hand of the Enemy." This was most conspicuous in the early ages when Satan made the heathen persecutors his instruments for the destruction of the Church, and when her continued existence was a continuous miracle of Divine power. Passing through a Red Sea of persecution, the very waters into which she was driven by the Adversary's hand were the means of her preservation, and Heathenism itself was thus overwhelmed by what was intended to have been the destruction of Christianity. It has been generally thought by holy men that the words, "there was no more sea" [Rev. xxi. 1], are a mystical prophecy of the time when the Adversary's hand will cease to be lifted up for the destruction of the Church, and God will give her final rest and peace.

But "within a while they forgot His works." With the overwhelming of Heathenism and the comparative peace which followed, "lust came upon them in the wilderness," a desire of temporal power, and a general worldliness in which Christians often "forgot His counsel," "My Kingdom is not of this world." In the Eastern and the Western Church its rulers and people alike

The XXI. Day. 32 They angered him also at the Evening waters of strife : so that he punished
Prayer. Moses for their sakes ;

Numb. xx. 12.
Numb. xx. 10. 33 Because they provoked his spirit :
so that he spake unadvisedly with his lips.

Judg. i. 21. 27— 34 Neither destroyed they the 33. heathen : as the Lord commanded them ;

Judg. ii. 2. 35 But were mingled among the heathen : and learned their works.

Judg. ii. 12. 36 Inasmuch that they worshipped their idols, which turned to their own decay : yea, they offered their sons and their daughters unto devils ;

Lev. xx. 1—5. 37 And shed innocent blood, even Cf. Jer. xxxii. 35. the blood of their sons and of their Numb. xxxv. 34. daughters : whom they offered unto the idols of Canaan, and the land was defiled with blood.

38 Thus were they stained with their own works : and went a whoring with their own inventions.

Judg. ii. 14. 39 Therefore was the wrath of the Lord kindled against his people : inso much that he abhorred his own inheritance.

40 And he gave them over into the hand of the heathen : and they that hated them were lords over them.

41 Their enemies oppressed them :
and had them in subjection.

Judg. ii. 16. 42 Many a time did he deliver them :
but they rebelled against him with their own inventions, and were brought down in their wickedness.

43 Nevertheless, when he saw their adversity : he heard their complaint.

Lev. xxvi. 42. 44 He thought upon his covenant, Ezra ix. 9. and pitied them according unto the multitude of his mercies : yea, he made all those that led them away captive to pity them.

Et irritaverunt eum ad aquas contradictionis : et vexatus est Moyses propter eos ; quia exacerbaverunt spi-ritum ejus.

Et distinxit in labiis suis : non dis-perdiderunt gentes quas dixit Domi- dixerat nus illis.

Et commixti sunt inter gentes, et didicerunt opera eorum ; et servierunt sculptilibus eorum : et factum est illis in scandalum.

Et immolaverunt filios suos : et filias
suas dæmoniis.

Et effuderunt sanguinem innocen-tem, sanguinem filiorum suorum et filiarum suarum : quas sacrificaverunt sculptilibus Chanaan.

Et infecta est terra in sanguinibus, et contaminata est in operibus eorum :
et fornicati sunt in adinventionibus observationibus
suis.

Et iratus est furore Dominus in popu- animo Domini lum suum : et abominatus est hære-ditatem suam.

Et tradidit eos in manus gentium :
et dominati sunt eorum qui oderunt
eos.

Et tribulaverunt eos inimici eorum :
et humiliati sunt sub manibus eorum ;
sæpe liberavit eos.

Ipsi autem exacerbaverunt eum in consilio suo : et humiliati sunt in iniquitatibus suis.

Et vidit cum tribularentur : et Et respexit eos .
audivit orationem eorum. cum Exaudiret

Et memor fuit testamenti sui : et Quia memor pœnituit eum secundum multitudinem misericordiæ suæ.

Et dedit eos in misericordias : in spectu omnium qui ceperant eos.

thought scorn of the pleasant land promised to them hereafter when they should reign with Christ for ever and ever, and acted as if they had "a continuing city" in this world. Then God gave them their desire, the Visible Church became great and powerful in the world's eyes, but its external prosperity was accompanied by internal weakness, through the heresies and schisms by which it was accompanied, and He "sent leanness withal into their soul." The Church and the world were mingled together, and the former "learned the works" of the latter. Then, again, God "gave them over into the hand of the heathen" deadly heresies sprung up which culminated in Mahometanism, and what was once the fairest portion of the Church's heritage has for ages been "oppressed" and "had in subjection" by the enemies of Christ and of His Mystical Body.

Thus, in confessing the sins of Israel in old time, we are also confessing the sins of the Church in later ages : and such confession belongs, not to one period alone, but, in its degree, to all.

It is to be observed also that as, in the preceding Psalm, Joseph is a personal type of Christ in His Providential Office towards the Church, so in this one Moses is a type of Christ in His Mediatorial Office. He continually "stands before God in the gap," and without any such infirmity as that recorded of Moses in the thirty-third verse, He ever holds up His hands in intercession for His people, that they may not be destroyed by their own sins. It is His

The XXI. Day. 45 Deliver us, O Lord our God, and
Evening
Prayer. gather us from among the heathen :
 1 Chron. xvi. 35, that we may give thanks unto thy
 36. holy Name, and make our boast of thy
 Dan. ix. 4—19. praise.

Ps. xii. 13. 46 Blessed be the Lord God of Israel from everlasting, and world without end : and let all the people say, Amen.

THE CVII PSALM.

Confitemini Domino.

The XXII. Day. O GIVE thanks unto the Lord, for
Morning
Prayer. he is gracious : and his mercy Prayers to be used endureth for ever.
 at Sea.
 Isa. li. 11.
 Rev. v. 9.

2 Let them give thanks whom the Lord hath redeemed : and delivered from the hand of the enemy ;

Isa. xxxv. 10. 3 And gathered them out of the lands, from the east, and from the west :
 from the north, and from the south.

Heb. xiii. 14. 4 They went astray in the wilderness out of the way : and found no city to dwell in ;

5 Hungry and thirsty : their soul fainted in them.

Matt. v. 4. 6 So they cried unto the Lord in their trouble : and he delivered them from their distress.

Heb. xi. 16. 7 He led them forth by the right way : that they might go to the city where they dwelt.

8 O that men would therefore praise the Lord for his goodness : and declare the wonders that he doeth for the children of men ;

John vi. 35. 9 For he satisfieth the empty soul :
 and filleth the hungry soul with goodness.

Job iii. 5. 10 Such as sit in darkness and in xxiv. 17. the shadow of death : being fast bound xxviii. 3. in misery and iron ;

Salvos fac nos, Domine, Deus noster :
 et congrega nos de nationibus :
 Ut confiteamur Nomini sancto tuo :
 et gloriemur in laude tua.

Benedictus Dominus Deus Israël a sæculo et usque in sæculum : et dicet omnis populus ; Fiat, Fiat.

PSALMUS CVI.

CONFITEMINI Domino, quoniam Sat. Mattins.
 bonus : quoniam in sæculum
 misericordia ejus.

Dicant qui redempti sunt a Domino :
 quos redemit de manu inimici ; et de regionibus congregavit eos.

A solis ortu et occasu : ab Aquilone et mari.

Erraverunt in solitudine, in ina- in siccitate . . .
 habitationis quoso : viam civitatis habitaculi non invenerunt.

Esurientes et sitientes : anima eorum in ipsis defecit.

Et clamaverunt ad Dominum cum tribularentur : et de necessitatibus eorum eripuit eos. liberavit eos

Et deduxit eos in viam rectam : ut irent in civitatem habitationis.

Confiteantur Domino misericordiæ
 ejus : et mirabilia ejus filiis hominum.

Quia satiavit animam inanem : et animam esurientem satiavit bonis.

Sedentes in tenebris et umbra mortis :
 vinctos in mendicitate et ferro. et vinculis ligatos

Voice, speaking from the midst of the Church Militant, which is heard, in the concluding verses of the Psalm, praying that the Captivity of its militant condition may be ended ; and that the glory of God may be perfected by the final redemption of His people. Their confession, "We have sinned with our fathers," is therefore supplemented by the prayer of their Intercessor, "Father, I will that they also, whom Thou hast given Me, be with Me where I am : that they may behold My glory, which Thou hast given Me." [John xvii. 24.] And the doxology of this Psalm (which is also the doxology of the fourth Book) is a type of that hymn of the purified Church, "Amen, Alleluia, Praise our God, all ye His servants, and ye that fear Him, both small and great. Alleluia, for the Lord God Omnipotent reigneth." [Rev. xix. 4—6.]

THE FIFTH BOOK.

PSALM CVII.

The five divisions of this Psalm are each concluded with a doxology in two verses, that at the end of the last division being, as it stands, of a less marked character than the rest, but finding its complement in the Gloria Patri. Each division related originally to circumstances connected with the Captivity of the Israelites ; and, in the first four, commentators have found an expansion of the third verse, which refers to the gathering of the people from, and therefore their previous dispersion to, the desert on "the east" of Judæa, Egypt on "the west," Babylon on "the north," and the sea on "the south," where the Red Sea is situated.

The XXII. Day. 11 Because they rebelled against Morning the words of the Lord : and lightly Prayer. regarded the counsel of the most Highest ;

Isa. xxxix. 6. 12 He also brought down their heart through heaviness : they fell down, and there was none to help them.

13 So when they cried unto the Lord in their trouble : he delivered them out of their distress.

Luke i. 79. 14 For he brought them out of Hosea xiii. 14. darkness, and out of the shadow of Job xxxviii. 17. death : and brake their bonds in sunder.

15 O that men would therefore praise the Lord for his goodness : and declare the wonders that he doeth for
the children of men ;

Isa. xlv. 2. 16 For he hath broken the gates of brass : and smitten the bars of iron in sunder.

Jonah i. 17. 17 Foolish men are plagued for their offence : and because of their wickedness.

18 Their soul abhorred all manner of meat : and they were even hard at death's door.

Jonah ii. 1—10. 19 So when they cried unto the Lord in their trouble : he delivered them out of their distress.

Jonah i. 14. 20 He sent his word, and healed them : and they were saved from their destruction.

21 O that men would therefore praise the Lord for his goodness : and declare the wonders that he doeth for
the children of men ;

Jonah ii. 9. 22 That they would offer unto him the sacrifice of thanksgiving : and tell out his works with gladness.

Quia exacerbaverunt eloquia Dei:
et consilium Altissimi irritaverunt.

Et humiliatum est in laboribus cor eorum : infirmati sunt, nec fuit qui adjuvaret.

Et clamaverunt ad Dominum cum tribularentur : et de necessitatibus
eorum liberavit eos.

Et eduxit eos de tenebris et umbra mortis : et vincula eorum dirupit.

Confiteantur Domino misericordiæ
ejus : et mirabilia ejus filiis hominum.

Quia contrivit portas æreas : et vectes ferreos confregit.

Suscepit eos de via iniquitatis eorum :
propter injustitias enim suas humiliati
sunt.

Omnem escam abominata est anima eorum : et appropinquaverunt usque appropriarum ad portas mortis.

Et clamaverunt ad Dominum cum tribularentur : et de necessitatibus
eorum liberavit eos.

Misit verbum suum, et sanavit eos :
et eripuit eos de interitionibus eorum. interitu

Confiteantur Domino misericordiæ
ejus : et mirabilia ejus filiis hominum.

Et sacrificent sacrificium laudis : et annuntient opera ejus in exultatione.

A parallel is found in the prophecy of Isaiah : "Fear not ; for I am with thee : I will bring thy seed from the east, and gather thee from the west : I will say to the north, Give up ; and to the south, Keep not back : bring My sons from far, and My daughters from the ends of the earth." [Isa. xliii. 5, 6.] Such a gathering of His own Mystical Body the Lord Jesus also predicted when He said, "They shall come from the east, and from the west, and from the north, and from the south, and shall sit down in the Kingdom of God." [Luke xiii. 29.]

The Christian application of the Psalm appears to be to that blessed time when our Lord's words will have received their final and complete fulfilment at the marriage supper of the Lamb, when "the redeemed of the Lord shall return and come with singing unto Zion ; and everlasting joy shall be upon their head ; they shall obtain gladness and joy ; and sorrow and mourning shall flee away." As, therefore, the Church looks back, in her praises, to past history, recounting God's mercy to her in the days of the Jewish economy, so also does she look forward to the glorious end of all, and sings by anticipation the "new song," "Thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by Thy blood, out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation."

Thus interpreted, the Psalm may be regarded as celebrating (1) the goodness of God to His people in gathering them out of the wilderness of this world into His Church ; (2) His comfort of them in the last hour when they "sit in darkness and the shadow of death ;" (3) His support of them in the intermediate state ; (4) His bringing them to "the haven" of His Presence "where they would be," and (5) His creation of a new Heaven and a new earth, the City of God, for those who have hungered and thirsted after righteousness "to dwell in."

The XXII. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

23 They that go down to the sea in ships : and occupy their business in great waters ;

24 These men see the works of the Lord : and his wonders in the deep.

25 For at his word the stormy wind ariseth : which lifteth up the waves thereof.

26 They are carried up to the heaven, and down again to the deep : their soul melteth away because of the trouble.

27 They reel to and fro, and stagger like a drunken man : and are at their wits' end.

Matt. viii. 25.

28 So when they cry unto the Lord in their trouble : he delivereth them out of their distress.

Matt. viii. 26.

29 For he maketh the storm to cease : so that the waves thereof are still.

John vi. 21.

30 Then are they glad, because they are at rest : and so he bringeth them unto the haven where they would be.

31 O that men would therefore praise the Lord for his goodness : and declare the wonders that he doeth for the children of men ;

Isa. xxxv. 1—10.

32 That they would exalt him also in the congregation of the people : and praise him in the seat of the elders.

33 Who turneth the floods into a wilderness : and drieth up the water-springs.

34 A fruitful land maketh he barren : for the wickedness of them that dwell therein.

35 Again, he maketh the wilderness a standing water : and water-springs of a dry ground.

Matt. v. 6.
Rev. vii. 16.
xxi. 1—27.

36 And there he setteth the hungry : that they may build them a city to dwell in ;

Qui descendant mare in navibus : facientes operationem in aquis multis.

Ipsi viderunt opera Domini : et mirabilia ejus in profundo.

Dixit, et stetit spiritus procellæ : et exaltati sunt fluctus ejus.

Ascendunt usque ad cœlos, et descendunt usque ad abyssos : anima eorum in malis tabescebat.

Turbati sunt, et moti sunt sicut ebrius : et omnis sapientia eorum deglutita est vorata est.

Et clamaverunt ad Dominum cum tribularentur : et de necessitatibus eorum eduxit eos. liberavit

Et statuit procellam ejus in auram : et siluerunt fluctus ejus.

Et lætati sunt quia siluerunt : et deduxit eos in portum voluntatis eorum. voluntatis eorum et de necessitatibus eorum liberavit eos

Confiteantur Domino misericordiæ ejus : et mirabilia ejus filiis hominum.

Et exaltent eum in ecclesia plebis : et in cathedra seniorum laudent eum.

Posuit flumina in desertum : et exitus aquarum in sitim. Quia posuit

Terram fructiferam in salsuginem : a malitia inhabitantium in ea.

Posuit desertum in stagna aquarum : et terram sine aqua in exitus aquarum.

Et collocavit illic esurientes : et constituerunt civitatem habitationis.

The first division, with its doxology<sup>1</sup>, is comprised in the first nine verses. It represents the leading into the Church of Christ, "the city where they dwelt," of that human nature which had been going astray in the wilderness from the time of the Fall. Departing "out of the way" in which the Creator had placed it, there was still hunger, thirst, and emptiness ; a fainting for the grace of God. Then the Good Shepherd came and led His flock into the right way, gathering them into His one fold, satisfied the empty soul with His grace, and filled the hungry soul with His goodness. Such was His good word, "He that cometh to Me shall never hunger, and he that believeth on Me shall never thirst."

The second division extends from the tenth to the sixteenth verses inclusive, and celebrates the victory of Christ over that death which had come upon all mankind through the disobedience of their first parents, and the inheritance of a mortal nature by all their descendants. When the Lord saw there was none to help them, His own arm brought salvation. God asked of Job, "Have the gates of death been opened unto thee ? or hast thou seen the doors of the shadow of death ?" but of His "anointed," under the type of Cyrus, He says, "I will loose the loins of kings to open before Him the two-leaved gates ; and the gates shall not be shut : I will go before Thee, and make the crooked places straight : I <sup>1</sup> These doxologies (verses 8, 9 ; 15, 16 ; 21, 22 ; 31, 32 ; and 42, 43) should be distinctly marked by "full" singing.

The XXII. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

37 That they may sow their land, and plant vineyards : to yield them fruits of increase.

38 He blesseth them, so that they multiply exceedingly : and suffereth not their cattle to decrease.

39 And again, when they are mi-nished and brought low : through oppression, through any plague, or trouble ;

Matt. v. 10—12.

40 Though he suffer them to be evil intreated through tyrants : and let them wander out of the way in the wilderness ;

Matt. v. 3.
Isa. xliii. 2.
Rev. vii. 16.

41 Yet helpeth he the poor out of misery : and maketh him households like a flock of sheep.

42 The righteous will consider this, and rejoice : and the mouth of all wickedness shall be stopped.

43 Whoso is wise will ponder these things : and they shall understand the lovingkindness of the Lord.

THE CVIII PSALM.

Paratum cor meum.

Evening
Prayer.
Ascension Day,
Evensong.
Ps. lvii. 8.

O GOD, my heart is ready, my heart is ready : I will sing and give praise with the best member that I have.

Ps. lvii. 9.

2 Awake, thou lute and harp : I my self will awake right early.

Ps. lvii. 10.

3 I will give thanks unto thee, O
Lord, among the people : I will sing praises unto thee among the nations.

Ps. lvii. 11.

4 For thy mercy is greater than the heavens : and thy truth reacheth unto the clouds.

Et seminaverunt agros, et plantaverunt vineas : et fecerunt fructum nati-vitat.

Et benedixit eis, et multiplicati sunt nimis : et jumenta eorum non mino- sunt minorata ravit.

Et pauci facti sunt : et vexati sunt
a tribulatione malorum et dolore. et dolorum

Effusa est contemptio super prin-cipes : et errare fecit eos in invio, et et seduxerunt eos non in via.

Et adjuvit pauperem de inopia : et adjuvavit
posuit sicut oves familias.

Videbunt recti, et lætabuntur : et omnis iniquitas oppilabit os suum. oppilavit

Quis sapiens, et custodiet hæc : et intelliget misericordias Domini.

PSALMUS CVII.

PARATUM cor meum, Deus, para- Sat. Mattins.
tum cor meum : cantabo et psal- et psalmum dicam
lam in gloria mea. Domino

Exsurge gloria mea, exsurge psalterium et cithara : exsurgam diluculo.

Confitebor tibi in populis, Domine :
et psallam tibi in nationibus.

Quia magna est super cælos mise- Quoniam magni- ricordia tua : et usque ad nubes veritas ficata est usque
tua. ad cælos

will break in pieces the gates of brass, and cut in sunder the bars of iron." So has the Lord Jesus overcome for His people that they can say, "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?"

The third division, verses 17—22, and the fourth division, verses 23—32, both refer to the work of the Redeemer for His Church in the intermediate state, when the WORD, which had become flesh that mankind might be "healed," descended into Hell that He might carry His power even to the regions where the souls of men were "hard at the door of" eternal "death," and only that power could save them from final destruction.
The representation of the Intermediate State under the figure of men in the midst of the deep is illustrated by the punishment of Jonah, which our Lord interprets as a figure of His own abiding for three days in the "heart of the earth." [Matt. xii. 40.] A further illustration may also be found in the miracle wrought by our Lord when the disciples were overtaken in a storm : "they willingly received Him into the ship : and immediately the ship was at the land whither they went."

The fourth division, from the thirty-third verse to the end, celebrates, by anticipation, the rest and glory of Christ's Church when it has passed from the wilderness of this world, and been gathered in for ever to that City of God where the river of the water of life flows through the midst of its streets : where the Mystical Body of the POOR is helped out of misery for ever, and there is one fold and one Shepherd. In view of that blessed consummation of His Church's pilgrimage, "the righteous will consider this, and rejoice," and whatever may be the troubles attending it in life or in death, "they shall understand the loving-kindness of the Lord" in all His dealings with His people.

PSALM CVIII.

There is scarcely any variation between the words of this Psalm and those verses of the fifty-seventh and sixtieth which are indicated in the margin. The two portions combined form a hymn of victory, the spiritual meaning of which is shown by the appropriation of the Psalm to Ascension Day. It is the voice of the Church offering up her Eucharistic Sacrifice before the throne in

The XXII. Day. 5 Set up thy self, O God, above the Evening
Prayer.
Ps. lvii. 12. heavens : and thy glory above all the earth.

Ps. lx. 5. 6 That thy beloved may be delivered : let thy right hand save them, and hear thou me.

Ps. lx. 6. 7 God hath spoken in his holiness :
I will rejoice therefore and divide Si-chem, and mete out the valley of Suc-coth.

Ps. lx. 7. 8 Gilead is mine, and Manasses is mine : Ephraim also is the strength of my head.

Ps. lx. 8. 9 Juda is my law-giver, Moab is my wash-pot : over Edom will I cast out my shoe ; upon Philistia will I triumph.

Ps. lx. 9. 10 Who will lead me into the strong city : and who will bring me into Edom ?

Ps. lx. 10. 11 Hast not thou forsaken us, O God : and wilt not thou, O God, go forth with our hosts ?

Ps. lx. 11. 12 O help us against the enemy :
for vain is the help of man.

Ps. lx. 12. 13 Through God we shall do great acts : and it is he that shall tread down our enemies.

THE CIX PSALM.

Deus laudum.

Job i. 6—12.
ii. 1—7.
Rev. xii. 10.
1 Pet. v. 8.
Zech. iii. 1.

HOLD not thy tongue, O God of my praise : for the mouth of the ungodly, yea the mouth of the deceitful is opened upon me.

Ps. xxxv. 11. 2 And they have spoken against me with false tongues : they compassed me about also with words of hatred, and fought against me without a cause.

3 For the love that I had unto them, lo, they take now my contrary part :
but I give my self unto prayer.

Ps. xxxv. 12. 4 Thus have they rewarded me evil for good : and hatred for my good will.

Exaltare super cœlos, Deus, et super omnem terram gloria tua : ut liberentur dilecti tui. electi

Salvum fac dextera tua, et exaudi me : Deus locutus est in sancto suo.

Exultabo et dividam Sichimam : et Labor . . meli- convallem tabernaculorum dimetiar. lor

Meus est Galaad, et meus est Ma-nasses : et Ephraim susceptio capitis fortitudo capitis
mei.

Juda rex meus : Moab lebes spei meæ. olla spei

In Idumæam extendam calceamentum meum : mihi alienigenæ amici alliphilli subditi
facti sunt. sunt

Quis deducet me in civitatem mu-nitam ? quis deducet me usque in Idu-mæam ?

Nonne tu, Deus, qui repulisti nos :
et non exhibis Deus in virtutibus nos- egredieris
tris.

Da nobis auxilium de tribulatione :
quia vana salus hominis.

In Deo faciemus virtutem : et ipse ad nihilum deducet inimicos nostros. tribulantes nos

PSALMUS CVIII.

DEUS, laudem meam ne tacueris : Sat. Mattins.
quia os peccatoris et os dolosi super me apertum est.

Locuti sunt adversum me lingua dolosa : et sermonibus odii circunde-derunt me, et expugnaverunt me gratis.

Pro eo ut me diligerent, detrahebant mihi : ego autem orabam.

Et posuerunt adversum me mala pro bonis : et odium pro dilectione mea.

the Person of the ascended Jésus, the Head of all His members : “Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of Man standing on the right hand of God.” [Acts vii. 56.]

PSALM CIX.

When our Blessed Lord offered up to the Father the prayer which forms the seventeenth chapter of St. John's Gospel, He used words which give us a key to the meaning of this awful Psalm, “While I was with them in the world, I kept them in Thy Name: those that Thou gavest Me I have kept, and none of them is lost, but the son of perdition; that the Scripture might be fulfilled.” [John xvii. 12.] The “son of perdition” has always been understood to mean Judas, of whom two Evangelists record that “Satan entered into him.” These words are a Divine illustration of the fifth verse of the Psalm, “Let Satan stand at his right hand.” The seventh verse was also distinctly quoted by St. Peter a few days later, as among the words which the Holy Ghost had spoken before “concerning Judas,” “His bishopric let another take.” We thus have the highest possible warrant for interpreting this Psalm as a Prayer of the Redeemer spoken prophetically of His betrayal, spoken against him who betrayed Him, and against Satan the “ungodly” and “deceitful,” the great

The XXII. Day.
Evening

Prayer.
John xiii. 27.
Luke xxii. 3.
Cf. Ps. lxi. 23—29.
Prov. xv. 8.
xxviii. 9.

Acts i. 20.

Exod. xxii. 24.
Jer. xviii. 21.

Gen. iv. 12.

Matt. v. 26.

Ezek. v. 11.

Gen. iii. 17.

Matt. xxiii. 35.

Matt. xxvii. 25.

5 Set thou an ungodly man to be ruler over him : and let Satan stand at his right hand.

6 When sentence is given upon him, let him be condemned : and let his prayer be turned into sin.

7 Let his days be few : and let another take his office.

8 Let his children be fatherless : and his wife a widow.

9 Let his children be vagabonds, and beg their bread : let them seek it also out of desolate places.

10 Let the extortioner consume all that he hath : and let the stranger spoil his labour.

11 Let there be no man to pity him : nor to have compassion upon his fatherless children.

12 Let his posterity be destroyed : and in the next generation let his name be clean put out.

13 Let the wickedness of his fathers be had in remembrance in the sight of the Lord : and let not the sin of his mother be done away.

14 Let them alway be before the Lord : that he may root out the memorial of them from off the earth ;

15 And that, because his mind was not to do good : but persecuted the poor helpless man, that he might slay him that was vexed at the heart.

16 His delight was in cursing, and it shall happen unto him : he loved not blessing, therefore shall it be far from him.

17 He clothed himself with cursing, like as with a raiment : and it shall come into his bowels like water, and like oil into his bones.

Constituere super eum peccatorem : et diabolus stet a dextris ejus.

Cum judicatur, exeat condemnatus : et oratio ejus fiat in peccatum.

in peccatum. Fiat habitatio ejus deserta et non sit qui habitet in ea. Fiant dies

Fiant dies ejus pauci : et episcopatum ejus accipiat alter.

Fiant filii ejus orphani : et uxor ejus vidua.

Nutantes transferantur filii ejus et mendicent : et ejiciantur de habitationibus suis.

Commoti amoveantur filii

Scrutetur fœnerator omnem substantiam ejus : et diripiant alieni labores ejus.

Non sit illi adjutor : nec sit qui misereatur pupillis ejus.

Fiant nati ejus in interitum : in generatione una deleatur nomen ejus.

In memoriam redeat iniquitas patrum ejus in conspectu Domini : et peccatum matris ejus non deleatur.

Fiant contra Dominum semper, et dispereat de terra memoria eorum : pro eo quod non est recordatus facere misericordiam :

Et persecutus est hominem inopem et mendicem : et compunctum corde mortificare.

mortem tradidit

Et dilexit maledictionem, et venit ei : et noluit benedictionem, et elongabitur ab eo.

Et induit maledictionem sicut vestimentum : et intravit sicut aqua in interiora ejus, et sicut oleum in ossibus ejus.

Accuser of Job (a personal type of our suffering Lord), and of "our brethren . . . which accused them before our God day and night." And thus, while the awful imprecations of the Psalm have reference to Judas, they have also reference, in a still greater degree, to the great Adversary of God and man by whom Judas was possessed ; and they are used in this latter sense by the Church of Christ. The constant, vigilant enmity of that Adversary is shown by the words just quoted from the Revelation. "Day and night" his accusations are being made before God against the Mystical Body of Christ, with the same malice as against the Holy One Himself before the earthly tribunal : and the terms of the Psalm lead us to suppose that these accusations are not only those which may justly be made against sinners, but also the slanderous inventions of him who is the "father of lies."

As Christ is heard speaking, therefore, in this Psalm, with regard to His Betrayal, so also is He heard speaking in and for His Mystical Body with regard to its persecution before the throne of God, by the slanders of Satan. So far as they who wilfully take part in this work of Satan are alluded to in the Psalm, they are spoken of as the enemies of Christ : and those who, having utterly and finally rejected Him and His mercies, have cut themselves off from the operation of His redemption and pardon, find there is "no Man to pity them." [See former remarks on the Imprecations, at page 410.] Nothing can more awfully set forth the danger of speaking against Christ ; or (what is more likely to be done in these days) of making slanderous accusations against His Church, the Temple of the Holy Ghost. "Whosoever speaketh against the Holy Ghost, it shall

The XXII. Day.
Evening
Prayer.

18 Let it be unto him as the cloke that he hath upon him : and as the girdle that he is alway girded withal.

19 Let it thus happen from the Lord unto mine enemies : and to those that speak evil against my soul.

20 But deal thou with me, O Lord God, according unto thy Name : for sweet is thy mercy.

Zech. iii. 3.

21 O deliver me, for I am helpless and poor : and my heart is wounded within me.

22 I go hence like the shadow that departeth : and am driven away as the grasshopper.

23 My knees are weak through fasting : my flesh is dried up for want of fatness.

Mark xv. 29.

24 I became also a reproach unto them : they that looked upon me shook their heads.

25 Help me, O Lord my God : O save me according to thy mercy ;

26 And they shall know, how that this is thy hand : and that thou, Lord, hast done it.

27 Though they curse, yet bless thou : and let them be confounded that rise up against me ; but let thy servant rejoice.

Ps. xxxv. 26.

28 Let mine adversaries be clothed with shame : and let them cover themselves with their own confusion, as with a cloke.

Ps. xxxv. 23.
Heb. ii. 12.

29 As for me, I will give great thanks unto the Lord with my mouth : and praise him among the multitude ;

Zech. iii. 2. 4.
Rev. xii. 10.

30 For he shall stand at the right hand of the poor : to save his soul from unrighteous judges.

The XXIII.
Day.
Morning
Prayer.

Christmas Day
Evensong.
Matt. xxii. 44.
Mark xii. 36.
Luke xx. 42.
Acts ii. 34.
Heb. i. 13.

THE CX PSALM.

Dixit Dominus.

THE Lord said unto my Lord : Sit thou on my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

Fiat ei sicut vestimentum quo operitur : et sicut zona qua semper præcingitur.

Hoc opus eorum qui detrahunt mihi apud Dominum : et qui loquuntur mala adversus animam meam.

Et tu, Domine, Domine, fac mecum propter Nomen tuum : quia suavis est misericordia tua.

*mecum misericor.
diam propter*

Libera me, quia egenus et pauper ego sum : et cor meum conturbatum est intra me.

Sicut umbra cum declinat ablatus sum : et excussus sum sicut locustæ.

Genua mea infirmata sunt a jejuniis : et caro mea immutata est propter oleum.

Et ego factus sum opprobrium illis : viderunt me, et moverunt capita sua.

Adjuva me, Domine, Deus meus : salvum me fac secundum misericordiam tuam.

Et sciant quia manus tua hæc : et tu, Domine, fecisti eam.

Maledicent illi, et tu benedices : qui insurgunt in me confundantur ; servus autem tuus lætabitur.

Induantur qui detrahunt mihi pudore : et operiantur sicut diploide confusione sua.

mihi reverentia

Confitebor Domino nimis in ore meo : et in medio multorum laudabo eum.

Qui astitit a dextris pauperis : ut salvam faceret a persequentibus animam meam.

PSALMUS CIX.

DIXIT Dominus Domino meo : Sunday, Christmas, App. and Evv., Corp. Chr., Vespers.
Sede a dextris meis :
Donec ponam inimicos tuos : scabellum pedum tuorum.

not be forgiven him, neither in this world, nor in the world to come<sup>1</sup>. [Matt. xii. 32.]

<sup>1</sup> All readers are affectionately warned of the danger which hangs about any words spoken in depreciation of the Sacraments, or of the work of priests and bishops, the efficacy of which is entirely derived from the Holy Ghost. Such words as "the soul-destroying doctrine of Baptismal Regene-

The last verse of the Psalm brings out very strongly the completeness of that deliverance which God will give to the Mystical Body of Christ from the accusations of Satan. The Accuser stands at the right hand of the Betrayer and the Slanderer as ration" were once quite common ; and fearfully intemperate language has been used respecting the Presence of Christ in the Holy Communion.

The XXIII.
Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Matt. xxvi. 64.
Matt. i. 11.
Rev. iv. 1—11.
xix. 1.

2 The Lord shall send the rod of thy power out of Sion : be thou ruler, even in the midst among thine enemies.

3 In the day of thy power shall the people offer thee free-will offerings with an holy worship : the dew of thy birth is of the womb of the morning.

Heb. v. 6.
vii. 17, 21.

4 The Lord sware, and will not repent : Thou art a Priest for ever after the order of Melchisedech.

Rev. xix. 11—18.

5 The Lord upon thy right hand : shall wound even kings in the day of his wrath.

Rev. xx. 11—15.
1 Cor. xv. 26. 55.

6 He shall judge among the heathen ; he shall fill the places with the dead bodies : and smite in sunder the heads over divers countries.

Mark xvi. 19.
Heb. i. 3. x. 12.

7 He shall drink of the brook in the way : therefore shall he lift up his head.

THE CXI PSALM.

Confitebor tibi.

Easter Day,
Mattins.

I WILL give thanks unto the Lord with my whole heart : secretly among the faithful, and in the congregation.

Virgam virtutis tuæ emittet Dominus ex Sion : dominare in medio inimicorum tuorum. et dominaveris

Tecum principium in die virtutis tuæ, in splendoribus sanctorum : ex utero ante luciferum genui te.

Juravit Dominus, et non pœnitebit eum : Tu es Sacerdos in æternum secundum ordinem Melchisedech.

Dominus a dextris tuis : confregit in die iræ suæ reges. confregit

Judicabit in nationibus ; implebit ruinas : conquassabit capita in terra multorum. terra copiosa

De torrente in via bibet : propterea exaltabit caput.

PSALMUS CX.

CONFITEBOR tibi, Domine, in toto corde meo : in consilio justorum, et congregatione. Sunday, Christmas, Vespers. Corp. Chr., 1st Vespers.

well as at the right hand of "Joshua the High Priest;" but while in the one case the words are heard "Let him be condemned," in the other the words are "The Lord rebuke thee, O Satan; even the Lord that hath chosen Jerusalem rebuke thee: is not this a brand plucked out of the fire?" Thus God Himself shall stand at the right hand of the Poor to save his soul from unrighteous judges. And thus the prophecy will be fulfilled, "I heard a loud voice saying in Heaven, Now is come salvation, and strength, and the Kingdom of our God, and the power of His Christ: for the Accuser of our brethren is cast down, which accused them before our God day and night."

PSALM CX.

Our Lord and His Apostles distinctly certify to us that this Psalm is spoken of the Messiah, by quoting the first and the fourth verses and applying them to Him. It is, in fact, quoted in the New Testament more than any other Psalm; and may be taken,—as Christ's use of it shows,—as a treasury of Mystical truth respecting the Kingship and Priesthood of the Son of Man.

In the first words there is a revelation of the First and Second Persons of the Holy Trinity, since they are spoken by the Father to the Son. They are also considered to contain a reference to the Third Person, since it was by the Holy Ghost descending on the Son of Man that He was consecrated to that work by means of which His Human Nature attained to the glory of the Father's right hand. In the words "My Lord" has also been observed a prophecy of the Incarnation, David speaking of Christ as his because He was descended from him, as his Lord, because He was the Son of God.

The second verse proclaims the Kingship and Kingdom of Christ, both proceeding forth from the elder Church of God, and prevailing even over the Gentiles who had for so long been the enemies of God, ruling with a rod of iron, the sceptre of His power and redeeming love, the power and love of the Incarnation.

To His Royal Person in "the Lord's Day" of the Incarnation the wise men were to bring offerings of gold, frankincense, and myrrh: to it the Church will be rendering the homage of Divine worship for ever in earth and in Heaven; recognizing in the Holy Child Jesus the Day Star from on high, the Sun of Righteousness arising with healing in His beams.

And as the Kingship of Christ is here commemorated in holy song, so also is His eternal and supreme Priesthood, by which He offers up Himself as a perpetual Sacrifice before the throne of God, and from the Fountain of which originate all the streams of grace by which the Church waters and refreshes the world.

The Victory of the Messiah in the Resurrection and the Judgment is prefigured in the fifth and sixth verses. He will go forth conquering and to conquer, all things will be put under His feet, He will cause the dead both small and great to stand before His throne of righteous judgment, and will destroy even the last enemy; so that when the graves are opened and the sea gives up her dead, and everlasting life dawns on the redeemed, they will say, "O Death, where is thy sting? O Grave, where is thy victory?"

So shall the Lord Jesus bruise the head of the tempter for ever, and His own head shall be lifted up in eternal triumph. He drank of the water-floods which ran over Him in His Passion, and so was His prophecy fulfilled, "I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto Me."

PSALM CXI.<sup>1</sup>

The praises of the Church are here offered to God for the spiritual works which He has wrought through the "grace and truth" which "came by Jesus Christ." The "works of the Lord" are, therefore, those works the power and efficacy of <sup>1</sup> This is one of the "alphabet Psalms," each verse or clause successively, in the Hebrew, beginning with the successive letters of the alphabet.

The XXIII.
Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Isa. lxxv. 1.

2 The works of the Lord are great :
sought out of all them that have pleasure therein.

Rev. xv. 3.

3 His work is worthy to be praised,
and had in honour : and his righteousness endureth for ever.

John vi. 27. 35.
Rev. ii. 17.

4 The merciful and gracious Lord hath so done his marvellous works :
that they ought to be had in remembrance.

Rev. xv. 3.

5 He hath given meat unto them that fear him : he shall ever be mindful of his covenant.

6 He hath shewed his people the power of his works : that he may give them the heritage of the heathen.

Isa. xlv. 8.
John i. 14. 17.
Phil. ii. 10.

7 The works of his hands are verity and judgement : all his commandments are true.

8 They stand fast for ever and ever :
and are done in truth and equity.

Prov. i. 7.

9 He sent redemption unto his people :
he hath commanded his covenant for ever ;
holy and reverend is his Name.

THE CXII PSALM.

Beatus vir.

Cf. Prov. xi. 16—31.

BLESSED is the man that feareth the Lord : he hath great delight in his commandments.

Isa. liiii. 10.

2 His seed shall be mighty upon earth : the generation of the faithful shall be blessed.

3 Riches and plenteousness shall be in his house : and his righteousness
endureth for ever.

Magna opera Domini : exquisita in omnes voluntates ejus.

Confessio et magnificentia opus ejus :
et justitia ejus manet in sæculum
sæculi.

Memoriam fecit mirabilium suorum ;
misericors et miserator Dominus :
escam dedit timentibus se.

Memor erit in sæculum testamenti sui : virtutem operum suorum annuntiabit populo suo :

Ut det illis hæreditatem gentium :
opera manuum ejus veritas et judicium.

Fidelia omnia mandata ejus ; confirmata in sæculum sæculi : facta in veritate et æquitate.

Redemptionem misit Dominus populo suo : mandavit in æternum testamentum
suum.

Sanctum et terribile Nomen ejus :
initium sapientiæ timor Domini.

Intellectus bonus omnibus facientibus eum : laudatio ejus manet in sæculum
sæculi.

PSALMUS CXI.

BEATUS vir qui timet Dominum : Sunday, Christmas, Vespers. in mandatis ejus volet nimis. cupiet

Potens in terra erit semen ejus :
generatio rectorum benedicetur.

Gloria et divitiæ in domo ejus : et justitia ejus manet in sæculum sæculi.

which proceed from the Person of God Incarnate. Hence the subject of praise in this Psalm is our Lord Himself as the source of redemption, grace, and salvation : "I am sought of them that asked not for Me: I am found of them that sought Me not." "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna." "Great and marvellous are Thy works, Lord God Almighty: just and true are Thy ways, Thou King of saints."

PSALM CXII.<sup>1</sup>

Our Lord's words, "It is more blessed to give than to receive" [Acts xx. 35], offer a comprehensive illustration of this Psalm, which recounts the blessedness of the Man Christ Jesus, Who "is merciful and lendeth" the talents of His grace, Who "hath dispersed abroad and given to the poor" of the bounties of His mercy.

This is also an alphabet Psalm.

In His perfect obedience to the will of His Father our Lord became the source of regeneration to mankind, and in Him the prophecy was fulfilled, "He shall see His seed, He shall prolong His days." Thus, having originated a new people, the riches and plenteousness of His grace are stored up in His Church for them: and He is the "good Man" Who scattereth and yet increaseth, and Who in His mercifulness so bestows His grace that He can say to His Church respecting it, "Freely ye have received, freely give."

These indications of a spiritual interpretation of this Psalm will be a guide to further development of it in the same direction;

The XXIII.
Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Isa. lvi. 10.
lx. 1.
Matt. xiv. 43.
Luke xix. 13.

4 Unto the godly there ariseth up light in the darkness : he is merciful, loving, and righteous.

5 A good man is merciful, and lendeth : and will guide his words with discretion.

6 For he shall never be moved : and the righteous shall be had in everlasting remembrance.

7 He will not be afraid of any evil tidings : for his heart standeth fast, and believeth in the Lord.

8 His heart is established, and will not shrink : until he see his desire upon his enemies.

2 Cor. ix. 9.
Prov. xi. 23, 24.

9 He hath dispersed abroad, and given to the poor : and his righteousness remaineth for ever ; his horn shall be exalted with honour.

Luke xiii. 28.
Matt. viii. 12.
xiii. 42.
xxv. 30.

10 The ungodly shall see it, and it shall grieve him : he shall gnash with his teeth, and consume away ; the desire of the ungodly shall perish.

THE CXIII PSALM.

Laudate, pueri.

Easter Day,
Evensong.
Cf. Magnificat.

PRAISE the Lord, ye servants :
O praise the Name of the Lord.

2 Blessed be the Name of the Lord : from this time forth for evermore.

Mal. i. 11.
iv. 2.

3 The Lord's Name is praised : from the rising up of the sun, unto the going down of the same.

4 The Lord is high above all heaven : and his glory above the heavens.

Exortum est in tenebris lumen rectis :
misericors, et miserator, et justus.

*corde misericors
... et justus Dominus*

Jucundus homo qui miseretur et commodat ; disponet sermones suos in judicio : quia in æternum non commovebitur.

In memoria æterna erit justus : ab auditu auditione mala non timebit.

Paratum cor ejus sperare in Domino ; confirmatum est cor ejus : non commovebitur donec despiciat inimicos suos.

Dispersit, dedit pauperibus ; justitia ejus manet in sæculum sæculi : cornu ejus exaltabitur in gloria.

Peccator videbit et irascetur ; dentibus suis fremet et tabescet : desiderium peccatorum peribit.

PSALMUS CXII.

LAUDATE, pueri, Dominum : laudate Nomen Domini.

*Sund., App. and Evv., Vespers.
Christmas,
Trinity,
Name of Jesus,
1st Vespers.*

Sit Nomen Domini benedictum : ex hoc nunc et usque in sæculum.

A solis ortu usque ad occasum : laudabile Nomen Domini.

Excelsus super omnes gentes Dominus : et super cælos gloria ejus.

especially when considered in connexion with the remarkable parallel expressions in the eleventh chapter of Proverbs, and with the passages referred to in the margin opposite to the fifth and tenth verses.

PSALMS CXIII.—CXVIII.

THE GREAT HALLELUJAH.

"And when they had sung an hymn, they went out into the Mount of Olives."—Mark xiv. 26.

The group of Psalms which begins with the hundred and thirteenth and ends with the hundred and eighteenth is endowed with a special character as a link between the Old Dispensation and the New above all the rest of the Psalms. At the time of the Passover it was the custom of the Jewish ritual to sing the hymn made up of these six Psalms partly in the Temple, and partly at home, under the title of the Great Hallelujah, the hymn beginning with that word, and having it also in several other places. The first three of the Psalms of which it is composed were sung "in the courts of the Lord's house" during the time occupied by slaying the Passover lambs: the latter three, beginning "I am well pleased," were sung in the room in which the Passover lamb had been eaten, and at the conclusion of all the ceremonies connected with the Supper.

Whether the Great Hallelujah was composed for this purpose or not, there are several historical and local expressions in it which indicate its fitness for use at the Passover. The first division, for public use in the Temple, is a hymn of thanksgiving to the Lord for His mercy and loving-kindness to the people of Israel: a national hymn in which the distinctive position of the separated nation is prominently kept in view, and the Lord praised as the God of Israel. The hundred and thirteenth and hundred and fourteenth Psalms are supposed to have been written for the foundation of the second Temple by Ezra. In the first of these the allusion to the worship of God "from the rising up of the sun unto the going down of the same," seems to give evidence of a travelled people who had retained their true faith and religious customs in a distant land, and among the heathen who are named directly afterwards. Then the praise of the condescension of the Lord of Heaven towards the simple and poor, who had lain in the dust and the mire, but was now being lifted up by Him to be set among princes, speaks the natural feeling of those who had returned from the Captivity, and were once more beginning a national existence: while in "the barren

The XXIII.

Day.
Morning
Prayer.
John i. 1. 14.
Phil ii. 6.

5 Who is like unto the Lord our God, that hath his dwelling so high : and yet humbleth himself to behold the things that are in heaven and earth.

1 Sam. ii. 8.

6 He taketh up the simple out of the dust : and lifteth the poor out of the mire.

7 That he may set him with the princes : even with the princes of his people.

1 Sam. ii. 5.
Isa. viii. 18.
Iv. 1.
Gal. iv. 27.

8 He maketh the barren woman to keep house : and to be a joyful mother of children.

THE CXIV PSALM.

In exitu Israel.

Evening

Prayer.
Easter Day.
Evensong.
Hosea xi. 1.
Matt. ii. 15.
Ps. lxxxii. 5.
1 Cor. x. 1—11.

WHEN Israel came out of Egypt : and the house of Jacob from among the strange people,

2 Judah was his sanctuary : and Israel his dominion.

Quis sicut Dominus Deus noster, qui in altis habitat : et humilia respicit in cœlo et in terra ?

Suscitans a terra inopem : et de stercore erigens pauperem :

Ut collocet eum cum principibus : cum principibus populi sui.

Qui habitare facit sterilem in domo : matrem filiorum lætantem.

PSALMUS CXIII.

IN exitu Israël de Ægypto : domus Jacob de populo barbaro : Sunday Vespers.

Facta est Judæa sanctificatio ejus : Israël potestas ejus.

potestas ejus
Israel regnavit in ea

woman" we see the long-desolated Church of Israel once more about to "keep house" in the Holy City and be a joyful mother of children to be added to the household of God. The following Psalm, the hundred and fourteenth, refers to still more ancient mercies of God towards His people, when He took them out of their Egyptian bondage, and after their long miraculous sustenance by means of the stream which sprung from the rock in the wilderness, cleft the waters of Jordan in two, as He had done those of the Red Sea, that He might make a way for Israel to go to their home, the land which was to be marked so signally as the sanctuary and dominion of the Lord. Such national mercies of old time lead on, through the humble acknowledgment "Not unto us, O Lord, not unto us, but unto Thy Name give the praise," to an expression of faith and confidence in the continued loving-kindness of the Lord and in His providential care for Israel. A small band,—on their return from captivity, and even at the best of times,—among the heathen round about, yet the Lord's manifest dealings towards them are an answer to the taunt which had been cast upon them by those heathen on account of the depressed state of Israel, "Where is now their God?" What evidence could Heathendom give to prove any Providence exercised by their idols, though they were idols of silver and idols of gold? But for the house of Israel and the Priesthood of Aaron there was abundant reason for trusting in God, who had shown Himself to be their succour and defence in past ages, and would show Himself the same in time to come towards those who feared Him with the loving reverence of filial fear. The Lord had sent His people into captivity for their national sins, but He had not forsaken them altogether; He would still bless the separated nation, and the separated priesthood, and show once more that they were His chosen. Such is the substance of the hymn sung in the Temple, which ends as it began with the sacred and joyous cry, "Hallelujah."

The second portion of the hymn is all written in the first person, with the exception of the two verses numbered as the hundred and seventeenth Psalm, which seem to be a choral refrain taking up the burden of the Temple part of the hymn, and so connecting the private and the public divisions of it. In this there are several references to the Passover itself. The "cup of salvation" cannot but have referred to the cup of wine over which a Benediction was said, and which was partaken of several times during the supper as a part of the ritual of the Passover. "Bind the sacrifice with cords, yea, even unto the horns of the altar," is a memorial of the offering made in the Temple, and upon which the household has been reverently feasting at home. So also with the verse, "I will offer to Thee the sacrifice of thanksgiving . . . I will pay my vows." And not less distinct is the local application of the words "The voice of joy and health is in the dwellings of the righteous," and of "This is the day which the Lord hath made: we will rejoice and be glad in it:" while throughout this portion of the hymn, as of the other, there are references to the circumstances of the first Passover and the early history of Israel which unite the thanksgivings for present mercies to commemorations of the never-to-be-forgotten providence of God's hand in ancient days.

But, draw out the meaning and the application of this hymn as we will, it is impossible not to feel that these are so far from being exhausted by their connexion with the Old Dispensation that they seem only like morsels of gold lying upon the surface which point out to the observant eye the place where rich veins of treasure are to be found by deeper research. This is especially the case with the latter portion, beginning "I am well pleased," and a flood of light is thrown upon the whole of the Great Hallelujah by the use of this portion under the circumstances narrated by St. Mark, "When they had sung an hymn, they went out into the Mount of Olives."

For the moment at which this hymn was sung by our Blessed Saviour and His Apostles was the crisis of the Old and New Dispensation, when the Passover sacrifice was about to be merged in that great Sacrifice of the Lamb of God whereof it was the type, when the Passover Supper was vanishing before the Supper of the Lord then instituted, when typical shadows were about to become sacramental realities, and when the hidden words of this prophetic hymn were to receive their full interpretation in the woful, yet glorious, work of the three following days. It is in the light so shed upon the Great Hallelujah that it is to be viewed now that it is used in Divine Service and by Christian worshippers: in that Light in which we shall see light; as the Hallelujah of Him Who, when He had sung it, went forth to the Mount of Olives, to Gethsemane, and to Calvary.

The XXIII.
Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Hab. iii. 6-10.

3 The sea saw that, and fled : Jordan was driven back.

4 The mountains skipped like rams : and the little hills like young sheep.

5 What aileth thee, O thou sea, that thou fleddest : and thou Jordan, that thou wast driven back?

6 Ye mountains, that ye skipped like rams : and ye little hills, like young sheep?

7 Tremble, thou earth, at the presence of the Lord : at the presence of the God of Jacob ;

8 Who turned the hard rock into a standing water : and the flint-stone into a springing well.

Mic. vi. 1, 2.
Heb. xii. 25.
Rev. xvi. 20.

Isa. xli. 18.
Zech. xiii. 1.
John iv. 14.

THE CXV PSALM.

Non nobis, Domine.

Isa. xlviii. 2, 11.

NOT unto us, O Lord, not unto us, but unto thy Name give the praise : for thy loving mercy, and for thy truth's sake.

Ps. lxxix. 10.
2 Pet. iii. 4.

2 Wherefore shall the heathen say : Where is now their God?

Ecc. viii. 3.
Dan. iv. 35.

3 As for our God, he is in heaven : he hath done whatsoever pleased him.

Isa. xli. 7.
Ps. cxxxv. 15.

4 Their idols are silver and gold : even the work of men's hands.

Ps. cxxxv. 16.

5 They have mouths, and speak not : eyes have they, and see not.

Ps. cxxxv. 17.

6 They have ears, and hear not : noses have they, and smell not.

Mare vidit, et fugit : Jordanis conversus est retrorsum.

Montes exsultaverunt ut arietes : et colles sicut agni ovium.

Quid est tibi, mare, quod fugisti : et tu Jordanis, quia conversus es retrorsum?

Montes exsultastis sicut arietes : et Montes juare colles sicut agni ovium.

A facie Domini mota est terra : a facie Dei Jacob.

Qui convertit petram in stagna solidam petram aquarum : et rupem in fontes aquarum.

[PSALMUS CXIII. v. 9.]

Non nobis Domine, non nobis : sed Sunday Vespers Nomini tuo da gloriam.

Super misericordia tua et veritate tua : nequando dicant gentes, Ubi est Deus eorum?

Deus autem noster in cœlo : omnia cœlo sursum cœlo quæcunque voluit, fecit. et in terra

Simulachra gentium argentum, et aurum : opera manuum hominum.

Os habent, et non loquentur : oculos habent, et non videbunt.

Aures habent, et non audient : nares habent, et non odorabunt.

PSALM CXIII.—The first three Psalms of this series are of a much less individual character in their language than the later three ; and are thus to be taken as the voice of the Church, while the others are the Voice of Christ Himself. In the 113th, the Church praises God for the rising of the Sun of Righteousness upon her, and with Him shining in the midst, speaks in the tone of Malachi's Eucharistic prophecy : "From the rising of the sun unto the going down of the same, My Name shall be great among the Gentiles, and in every place incense shall be offered unto Me, and a pure offering, for My Name shall be great among the heathen, saith the Lord of hosts." [Mal. i. 11.] Looking forward to Christ's "lifting up" to the throne of the Cross, He is beheld also rising again to His Easter throne of victory and everlasting dominion, taken up out of the dust of death, and set "far above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come." [Eph. i. 22.] And this glory of Christ is seen to be also the glory of "the Church, which is His Body, the fulness of Him that filleth all in all" [Ibid. 23.] : so that the Psalm ends with words of rejoicing which also find their parallel in prophecy : "Sing, O barren, thou that didst not bear : break forth into singing, and cry aloud, thou that didst not travail with child : for more are the children of the desolate, than the children of the married wife saith the Lord."

PSALM CXIV.—The same strain is continued in the next of the series ; in which it must be understood that the ancient Israel and the Gentiles have changed places, and that the former being rejected the latter have been accepted in their stead<sup>1</sup>. The coming forth of Israel from Egypt is to be taken, therefore, as the taking of His little flock (soon to become a great people) out from among the world, by Christ ; and the succeeding verses are to be interpreted in the sense which was given by the coming of Christ to the ancient prophecy : "Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill shall be made low, and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough places plain : and the glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together, for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it." [Isa. xl. 4, 5.] When that glory was revealed the Rock of Ages became a sacramental Fountain of life, opened for all uncleanness : and from the Corner-Stone flowed forth a springing well of grace, whose waters are for the refreshment of every age.

PSALM CXV.—The third of the series still proclaims the great work of salvation about to be wrought in the sufferings and glory of Christ : but the tone is rather that of confident faith in some-<sup>1</sup> See note on Psalm lix. p. 396.

The XXIII.
Day.
Evening
Prayer.

Ps. cxxxv. 18.

Isa. xli. 8.
Ps. cxxxv. 19—21.

Isa. lv. 5.

Isa. xxvi. 15.

Gen. xiv. 19.

Isa. xxxviii. 18.

Mic. vii. 18—20.

7 They have hands, and handle not; feet have they, and walk not : neither speak they through their throat.

8 They that make them are like unto them : and so are all such as put their trust in them.

9 But thou, house of Israel, trust thou in the Lord : he is their succour and defence.

10 Ye house of Aaron, put your trust in the Lord : he is their helper and defender.

11 Ye that fear the Lord, put your trust in the Lord : he is their helper and defender.

12 The Lord hath been mindful of us, and he shall bless us : even he shall bless the house of Israel, he shall bless the house of Aaron.

13 He shall bless them that fear the Lord : both small and great.

14 The Lord shall increase you more and more : you and your children.

15 Ye are the blessed of the Lord : who made heaven and earth.

16 All the whole heavens are the Lord's : the earth hath he given to the children of men.

17 The dead praise not thee, O Lord : neither all they that go down into silence.

18 But we will praise the Lord : from this time forth for evermore. Praise the Lord.

THE CXVI PSALM.

Dilexi, quoniam.

The XXIV.
Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Churching of Women.
Heb. vii. 25.

I AM well pleased : that the Lord hath heard the voice of my prayer ;

2 That he hath inclined his ear unto me : therefore will I call upon him as long as I live.

Manus habent, et non palpabunt ; pedes habent, et non ambulabunt : non clamabunt in gutture suo.

guttur suo neque enim spiritus in ore ipsorum

Similes illis fiant qui faciunt ea : et omnes qui confidunt in eis.

Domus Israël speravit in Domino : adjutor eorum et protector eorum est.

Domus Aaron speravit in Domino : adjutor eorum et protector eorum est.

Qui timent Dominum, speraverunt sperant in Domino : adjutor eorum et protector eorum est.

Dominus memor fuit nostri : et benedixit nobis.

Benedixit domui Israël : benedixit domui Aaron.

Benedixit omnibus qui timent Dominum : pusillis cum majoribus.

Adjiciat Dominus super vos : super vos, et super filios vestros.

Benedicti vos a Domino : qui fecit cælum et terram.

Cælum cæli Domino : terram autem dedit filiis hominum.

Non mortui laudabunt te Domine : neque omnes qui descendunt in infernum.

Sed nos qui vivimus benedicimus Domino : ex hoc nunc et usque in sæculum.

PSALMUS CXIV.

DILEXI, quoniam exaudiet Dominus : vocem orationis meæ.

Quia inclinavit aurem suam mihi : et in diebus meis invocabo.

Monday, Vespers.
Vigils of the departed.
Name of Jesus, 1st Vespers.

thing yet to come than of assurance respecting a gain already acquired. The second verse points to the taunts with which the Jews mocked our Lord when upon the Cross, and to those with which the heathen long assailed the Church respecting her invisible God and Saviour. The blindness of those who reject Christ is also compared to the senselessness of the idols which they set up in His place ; idols, at one time of material silver and gold, at another of the imagination and distorted reason, but all equally worthless as objects of worship and faith. The new Israel of Christ is bidden to stand firm against the shock of all such taunts and all such seductions, to look for the blessing of its Divine Head, and to be assured that though only a "little flock" they shall grow into a vast people, a living body spread over the earth, which has become the heritage of the Son of Man, and singing Hallelujah to Him for evermore.

PSALM CXVI<sup>1</sup>.—This and the last Psalm of the series are of a much more distinctly personal character than those which form the first half of the series, as if they were words spoken within the privacy of that inner fold of Apostles in which Christ was accustomed to expound privately the things which had been spoken to the people at large in parables, and as if the time of the Great Pass-<sup>1</sup> This Psalm was associated with the Burial of the Dead as early as the time of St. Chrysostom.

The XXIV.
Day.
Morning
Prayer.

3 The snares of death compassed me round about : and the pains of hell gat hold upon me.

4 I shall find trouble and heaviness, and I will call upon the Name of the Lord : O Lord, I beseech thee, deliver my soul.

5 Gracious is the Lord, and righteous : yea, our God is merciful.

6 The Lord preserveth the simple : I was in misery, and he helped me.

Isa. xxvi. 3.
Matt. xi. 28—30.

7 Turn again then unto thy rest, O my soul : for the Lord hath rewarded thee.

Isa. xxv. 8.

8 And why? thou hast delivered my soul from death : mine eyes from tears, and my feet from falling.

9 I will walk before the Lord : in the land of the living.

2 Cor. iv. 13.
Rom. iii. 4.

10 I believed, and therefore will I speak ; but I was sore troubled : I said in my haste, All men are liars.

1 Thess. iii. 9.

11 What reward shall I give unto the Lord : for all the benefits that he hath done unto me?

Luke xxii. 17.
Numb. xxviii. 7, 8.

12 I will receive the cup of salvation : and call upon the Name of the Lord.

13 I will pay my vows now in the presence of all his people : right dear in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints.

Isa. xli. 8.
Phil. ii. 6, 7.

14 Behold, O Lord, how that I am thy servant : I am thy servant, and the son of thine handmaid ; thou hast broken my bonds in sunder.

15 I will offer to thee the sacrifice of thanksgiving : and will call upon the Name of the Lord.

16 I will pay my vows unto the Lord in the sight of all his people : in the courts of the Lord's house, even in the midst of thee, O Jerusalem. Praise the Lord.

Circunderunt me dolores mortis : et pericula inferni invenerunt me.

Tribulationem et dolorem inveni : et Nomen Domini invocavi.

O Domine, libera animam meam ; misericors Dominus, et justus : et Deus noster miseretur.

Custodiens parvulos Dominus : humiliatus sum, et liberavit me.

Convertere, anima mea, in requiem tuam : quia Dominus benefecit tibi.

Quia eripuit animam meam de morte, oculos meos a lachrymis : pedes meos a lapsu.

Placebo Domino : in regione vivorum.

PSALMUS CXV.

CREDIDI, propter quod locutus sum : ego autem humiliatus sum nimis.

Ego dixi in excessu meo : Omnis homo mendax.

Quid retribuam Domino : pro omnibus quæ retribuit mihi.

Calicem salutaris accipiam : et Nomen Domini invocabo.

Vota mea Domino reddam coram omni populo ejus : pretiosa in conspectu Domini mors sanctorum ejus.

O Domine, quia ego servus tuus : O Domine ego servus tuus, et filius ancillæ tuæ.

Dirupisti vincula mea ; tibi sacrificabo hostiam laudis : et Nomen Domini invocabo.

Vota mea Domino reddam in conspectu omnis populi ejus : in atriis domus Domini, in medio tui Hierusalem.

Monday. Maundy
Th. red., Good Friday, App. and Evv..
Many Martyrs,
All S. ints,
Vespers,
Corp. C. P.,
Name of Jesus,
1st Vespers.
excessu mentis
meæ.

nomen Domini in-vocatio Pretiosa in conspectu

laudis. Vota mea.
&c.

over was felt to be drawing nearer and nearer. The tone of this Psalm is like that of One already recovering from a great Agony, comforted and reassured by having been heard in His prayer which He had thrice uttered out of the midst of snares of death and the pains of hell through which He had passed. Further trouble and heaviness yet await Him, but His resignation is now complete, "not My will but Thine:" and His vision of future deliverance is clear. Thus we cannot fail to associate the "Cup of salvation" with that of which He said, "If it be possible, remove this Cup from Me," and with His words to the sons of Zebedee, "Are ye able to drink of the Cup that I shall drink of?" That Cup is viewed, now, not as a cup of suffering, but as an Eucharistic Cup, "I will offer to Thee the sacrifice of thanksgiving;" and it is to be offered in the presence of all His people, in facie Ecclesiæ, as a Memorial of that Death of the King of Saints which is "right dear in the sight of the Lord," as a prevailing Intercession.

THE CXVII PSALM.

Laudate Dominum.

The XXIV.
Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Rom. xv. 11.
Luke i. 78, 79.

O PRAISE the Lord, all ye heathen : praise him, all ye nations.

2 For his merciful kindness is ever more and more towards us : and the truth of the Lord endureth for ever.
Praise the Lord.

THE CXVIII PSALM.

Confitemini Domino.

Easter Day,
Evensong.
2 Chron. v. 13.
vii. 3.
Ezra iii. 10, 11.

O GIVE thanks unto the Lord, for he is gracious : because his mercy endureth for ever.

2 Let Israel now confess, that he is gracious : and that his mercy endureth
for ever.

3 Let the house of Aaron now confess : that his mercy endureth for ever.

4 Yea, let them now that fear the Lord confess : that his mercy endureth
for ever.

5 I called upon the Lord in trouble :
and the Lord heard me at large.

Zech. iii. 2.
Heb. xiii. 6.

6 The Lord is on my side : I will not fear what man doeth unto me.

7 The Lord taketh my part with them that help me : therefore shall I see my desire upon mine enemies.

John ii. 24, 25.

8 It is better to trust in the Lord :
than to put any confidence in man.

9 It is better to trust in the Lord :
than to put any confidence in princes.

10 All nations compassed me round about : but in the Name of the Lord will I destroy them.

11 They kept me in on every side, they kept me in, I say, on every side :
but in the Name of the Lord will I destroy them.

Cf. Ps. lvi. 8.

12 They came about me like bees, and are extinct even as the fire among the thorns : for in the Name of the Lord I will destroy them.

13 Thou hast thrust sore at me that I might fall : but the Lord was my help.

PSALMUS CXVI.

L AUDATE Dominum omnes Monday, General Festival,
Vespers.
Christmas,
Trinity,
1st Vespers.
gentes : laudate eum omnes
populi :

Quoniam confirmata est super nos misericordia ejus : et veritas Domini manet in æternum.

PSALMUS CXVII.

C ONFITEMINI Domino quoniam Sunday Prime.
bonus : quoniam in sæculum
misericordia ejus.

Dicat nunc Israël quoniam bonus :
quoniam in sæculum misericordia ejus.

Dicat nunc domus Aaron : quoniam quoniam bonus quoniam
in sæculum misericordia ejus.

Dicant nunc qui timent Dominum : omnes qui quoniam bonus
quoniam
quoniam in sæculum misericordia ejus.

De tribulatione invocavi Dominum :
et exaudivit me in latitudine Dominus.

Dominus mihi adjutor : non timebo quid faciat mihi homo.

Dominus mihi adjutor : et ego despi- videbo
ciam inimicos meos.

Bonum est confidere in Domino :
quam confidere in homine.

Bonum est sperare in Domino :
quam sperare in principibus.

Omnes gentes circuierunt me : et in circuiderunt in nom. Domini ultus, &c.
Nomine Domini quia ultus sum in
eos.

Circuidentes circuiderunt me : et in Nomine Domini quia ultus sum in Domini ultus eos.

Circuiderunt me sicut apes, et exarserunt sicut ignis in spinis : et in Nomine Domini quia ultus sum in eos. Domini vindicator in eis

Impulsus eversus sum ut caderem : versatus sum et Dominus suscepit me.

PSALM CXVII.—This expansion of the word Hallelujah is to be considered as a doxology uniting the 116th and 118th Psalms, calling upon all people to join with the "little flock" of the Saviour in praising the Lord for His merciful kindness and for the fulfilment of His covenant with mankind respecting their salvation.

PSALM CXVIII.—The first four verses of the last Psalm of the series are a continuation of the strain taken up in the preceding Doxology : in the fifth verse the individual or personal Voice of Christ is again heard, and thenceforward to the end. That tone is a triumphant anticipation, throughout, of the Easter victory :

The XXIV.
Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Exod. xv. 2.
Isa. xii. 2.
Isa. xl. 1—11.

14 The Lord is my strength, and my song : and is become my salvation.

15 The voice of joy and health is in the dwellings of the righteous : the right hand of the Lord bringeth mighty things to pass.

16 The right hand of the Lord hath the pre-eminence : the right hand of the Lord bringeth mighty things to pass.

17 I shall not die, but live : and declare the works of the Lord.

18 The Lord hath chastened and corrected me : but he hath not given me over unto death.

19 Open me the gates of righteousness : that I may go into them, and give thanks unto the Lord.

20 This is the gate of the Lord : the righteous shall enter into it.

21 I will thank thee, for thou hast heard me : and art become my salvation.

22 The same stone which the builders refused : is become the head-stone in the corner.

23 This is the Lord's doing : and it is marvellous in our eyes.

24 This is the day which the Lord hath made : we will rejoice and be glad in it.

25 Help me now, O Lord : O Lord, send us now prosperity.

26 Blessed be he that cometh in the Name of the Lord : we have wished you good luck, ye that are of the house of the Lord.

27 God is the Lord who hath shewed us light : bind the sacrifice with cords, yea, even unto the horns of the altar.

Fortitudo mea et laus mea Dominus : et factus est mihi in salutem.

Vox exultationis et salutis : in tabernaculis justorum.

Dextera Domini fecit virtutem, dextera Domini exaltavit me : dextera Domini fecit virtutem.

exaltavit me, Non moriar, &c.

Non moriar, sed vivam : et narrabo opera Domini.

Castigans castigavit me Dominus : et morti non tradidit me.

Aperite mihi portas justitiæ, et ingressus in eas confitebor Domino : hæc porta Domini ; justi intrabunt in eam.

Confitebor tibi, quoniam exaudisti tibi Domine me : et factus es mihi in salutem.

Lapidem quem reprobaverunt ædificantes : hic factus est in caput anguli.

A Domino factum est istud : et est mirabile in oculis nostris.

Hæc est dies quam fecit Dominus : exsulemus et lætemur in ea.

O Domine, salvum me fac, O Domine, bene prosperare : benedictus qui venit in Nomine Domini.

Benediximus vobis de domo Domini : Deus Dominus, et illuxit nobis.

Constituite diem solennem in condensis : usque ad cornu altaris.

Exod. xv. 6.

Heb. xii. 7.

Ps. xxiv. 7—10.
Isa. xxvi. 2.

John x. 9.

Matt. xxi. 42.
Mark xii. 10.
Luke xx. 17.
Acts iv. 11.
Eph. ii. 20.
Isa. xxviii. 16.
1 Pet. ii. 7.

John viii. 56.
1 Cor. v. 7.

Nehem. i. 11.

Matt. xxi. 9.
xxiii. 39.

John xii. 46, 35.
36. i. 4, 5.
iii. 19. viii. 12.
xii. 32.

and its climax is reached in the twenty-seventh verse, where the Lamb of God offers Himself willingly for the coming Sacrifice<sup>1</sup>. A few days before the singing of the Great Hallelujah, the multitude had led Jesus into Jerusalem with the glad proclamation taken from the twenty-sixth verse of this Psalm. [Matt. xxi. 9.] When our Lord was taking His last farewell of the city He said "Ye shall not see Me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is He that cometh in the Name of the Lord." [Matt. xxiii. 39.] His last words to the people at large were "Yet a little while is the Light with you. Walk while ye have the Light, lest darkness come upon you : for he that walketh in darkness knoweth not whither he goeth. While ye have light, believe in the Light, that ye may be of the children of light." [John xii. 35, 36.] Thus are His "lifting up" [Ibid. 32], and His accustomed cry "I am come a Light into the world" [Ibid. 46], associated with the twenty-sixth and twenty-seventh verses of this Psalm, and the ancient words of Abraham were illustrated in their fulfilment, "My son, God will provide Himself a Lamb for a burnt offering." [Gen. xxii. 8.]

From the tenth to the thirteenth verses is expressed the suffering Saviour's prevision of the result of His work : in the seventeenth, eighteenth, and nineteenth, the same prevision of a glorious Resurrection through which He Himself was to become eternally the Door whereby His flock should enter into life : and the twenty-fourth verse is a prophetic welcome of that Day of the Lord in which all mankind should keep a perpetual Easter of joy. And thus throughout are heard such words as those of the prophet, "In that day thou shalt say, O Lord, I will praise Thee : though Thou wast angry with me, Thine anger is turned away, and Thou comfortedst me. Behold, God is my salvation ; I will <sup>1</sup> Some modern critics read this verse as if "bind the sacrifice with cords" were a parenthesis, and the "light" a fire extending even to the horns of the altar. The association of the verses indicated in the above note may lead us to doubt the accuracy of such an interpretation.

The XXIV.
Day.
Morning
Prayer.

28 Thou art my God, and I will thank thee : thou art my God, and I will praise thee.

Ezra iii. 10, 11.

29 O give thanks unto the Lord, for he is gracious : and his mercy
endureth for ever.

THE CXIX PSALM.

Beati immaculati.

Evening
Prayer.
Heb. ix. 14.
1 Pet. i. 19.
Cant. iv. 7.

Eph. v. 27.
2 Pet. iii. 14.

BLESSED are those that are un-defiled in the way : and walk in the law of the Lord.

2 Blessed are they that keep his testimonies : and seek him with their whole heart.

Luke ii. 52.
i. 6. 80.

3 For they who do no wickedness :
walk in his ways.

4 Thou hast charged : that we shall diligently keep thy commandments.

5 O that my ways were made so direct : that I might keep thy statutes.

1 John ii. 8.

6 So shall I not be confounded :
while I have respect unto all thy commandments.

7 I will thank thee with an unfeigned heart : when I shall have learned the judgements of thy righteousness.

8 I will keep thy ceremonies : O forsake me not utterly.

In quo corrigit.

2 Pet. i. 4.

WHEREWITHAL shall a young man cleanse his way : even by ruling himself after thy word.

John vi. 38.

10 With my whole heart have I sought thee : O let me not go wrong out of thy commandments.

Deus meus es tu, et confitebor tibi :
Deus meus es tu, et exaltabo te.

Confitebor tibi quoniam exaudisti tibi Dominus me : et factus es mihi in salutem.

Confitemini Domino quoniam bonus :
quoniam in sæculum misericordia ejus.

PSALMUS CXVIII.

[A. ALLELUIA. ALEPH EST DEUS.]

BEATI immaculati in via : qui ambulant in lege Domini. Prime.
Commendation of Souls.

Beati qui scrutantur testimonia ejus :
in toto corde exquirunt eum.

Non enim qui operantur iniquitatem :
in viis ejus ambulaverunt.

Tu mandasti : mandata tua custo-diri nimis.

Utinam dirigantur viæ meæ : ad custodiendas justificationes tuas.

Tunc non confundar : cum per- respiço
spexero in omnibus mandatis tuis.

Confitebor tibi in directione cordis :
in eo quod didici judicia justitiæ tuæ.

Justificationes tuas custodiam : non me derelinquas usquequaque.

[B. BETH EST FILIUS.]

In quo corrigit adolescentior viam Prime.
suam : in custodiendo sermones tuos.

In toto corde meo exquisivi te : ne repellas me a mandatis tuis.

trust, and not be afraid : for the Lord JEHOVAH is my strength and my song ; He also is become my salvation." [Isa. xii. 2.]
"O give thanks unto the Lord, for He is gracious, and His mercy endureth for ever."

PSALM CXIX<sup>1</sup>.

The characteristic feature of this Psalm is a pervading reference to the will of God and the grace of obedience. It was noted by <sup>1</sup> This is an "alphabet Psalm" of a peculiar character. Each division is made of verses which begin with the same letter, the sections answering to the verses of the other alphabet Psalms. The same arrangement is found in the Book of Lamentations. In the earlier Vulgate, which is represented (so far as it differs from the later) in the margin, the Hebrew division is recognized as in our English Psalter. But in the Sarum Psalter, and in the modern Vulgate, the Psalm is divided into sections of sixteen verses. The bracketed titles of each section are from the ancient Vulgate, and are inserted in the text instead of the margin for convenience of arrangement.

the ancient Jewish commentators that every verse contains some word associated with the spoken will of God : and the light of Gospel truth leads clearly to the interpretation of all, or nearly all, of these, in connexion with the Person of our Blessed Lord.
This is the more evident as in forty out of one hundred and seventy-six such expressions, the actual title of the "WORD" is used, by which the Second Person in the Blessed Trinity is designated in the New Testament : while the remainder, such as Law, Testimony, Commandment, Judgment, Way, Truth, are all of a character that gives them a personal association with Him Who declared "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life," and Whose declaration "I am the Light of the world," also exhibits
Him as being the Personal Manifestation of Divine Will and Law.

As, moreover, we know by later revelations that our Lord Jesus is set forth to mankind as the highest standard of obedience and holiness, so we hear, throughout this Psalm, the Voice of His

The XXIV.
Day.
Evening
Prayer.

11 Thy words have I hid within my heart : that I should not sin against thee.

12 Blessed art thou, O Lord : O teach me thy statutes.

John vii. 17.
ix. 31.

13 With my lips have I been telling : of all the judgements of thy mouth.

14 I have had as great delight in the way of thy testimonies : as in all manner of riches.

John xvii. 14.

15 I will talk of thy commandments : and have respect unto thy ways.

John iv. 34.
v. 30.

16 My delight shall be in thy statutes : and I will not forget thy word.

Retribue servo tuo.

O DO well unto thy servant : that I may live, and keep thy word.

18 Open thou mine eyes : that I may see the wondrous things of thy law.

John i. 11.
Heb. xi. 13.
Kph. ii. 19.

19 I am a stranger upon earth : O hide not thy commandments from me.

20 My soul breaketh out for the very fervent desire : that it hath alway unto thy judgements.

21 Thou hast rebuked the proud : and cursed are they that do err from thy commandments.

22 O turn from me shame and rebuke : for I have kept thy testimonies.

Matt. xxvi. 65.
xxvii. 1. 12.

23 Princes also did sit and speak against me : but thy servant is occupied in thy statutes.

24 For thy testimonies are my delight : and my counsellors.

Adhæsit pavimento.

Matt. xxvi. 38.

MY soul cleaveth to the dust : O quicken thou me, according to thy word.

In corde meo abscondi eloquia tua : ut non peccem tibi.

Benedictus es, Domine : doce me justificationes tuas.

In labiis meis pronuntiavi : omnia judicia oris tui.

In via testimoniorum tuorum delectatus sum : sicut in omnibus divitiis.

In mandatis tuis exercebor : et con- me exercebo siderabo vias tuas.

In justificationibus tuis meditabor : non obliviscar sermones tuos.

[Γ. CAMEL EST CONSOLATIO.]

RETRIBUE servo tuo ; vivifica Prime. vivum et custodiam me : et custodiam sermones tuos.

Revela oculos meos : et considerabo mirabilia de lege tua.

Incola ego sum in terra : non abscondas a me mandata tua.

Concupivit anima mea desiderare justificationes tuas : in omni tempore.

Increpasti superbos : maledicti qui declinant a mandatis tuis.

Aufer a me opprobrium et contemptum : quia testimonia tua exquisivi.

Etenim sederunt principes, et adversum me loquebantur : servus autem tuus exercebatur in justificationibus tuis.

Nam et testimonia tua meditatio mea est : et consilium meum et consolatio mea justificationes tuæ.

[Δ. DELETH EST JUDICIUM.]

Adhæsit pavimento anima mea : Prime. vivifica me secundum verbum tuum.

Human Nature, speaking as the Representative of God's children : and speaking in such tones as to make Himself, in His perfect obedience, the One Example for us, according to our ability, to follow. "Learn of Me, for I am meek, and lowly of heart."

And, lastly, as our Lord's Person is the Sacramental Fountain of all holiness, so incorporation with the WORD is mystically set forth in every portion of this Psalm as the means by which holiness is to be attained. "I am the Vine, ye are the branches : he that abideth in Me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit : for severed from Me ye can do nothing." [John xv. 5, marg.]

The whole Psalm is, therefore, to be interpreted on one principle, as setting forth the blessedness of conformity to the example of our Lord Jesus Christ by the transformation of our own wills through sacramental union with Him, THE WORD. In many parts there seems to be little other coherence between the separate sections, or even the separate verses of a section ; but this pervading principle is a bond of unity which makes it impossible

The XXIV.
Day.
Evening
Prayer.

26 I have acknowledged my ways, and thou heardest me : O teach me thy statutes.

27 Make me to understand the way of thy commandments : and so shall I talk of thy wondrous works.

Luke xxii. 43.

28 My soul melteth away for very heaviness : comfort thou me according unto thy word.

29 Take from me the way of lying :
and cause thou me to make much of thy law.

John xvii. 4.

30 I have chosen the way of truth :
and thy judgements have I laid before
me.

31 I have stuck unto thy testimonies : O Lord, confound me not.

32 I will run the way of thy commandments : when thou hast set my heart at liberty.

Legem pone.

The XXV. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

TEACH me, O Lord, the way of thy statutes : and I shall keep it unto the end.

34 Give me understanding, and I shall keep thy law : yea, I shall keep it with my whole heart.

Rom. vii. 22.

35 Make me to go in the path of thy commandments : for therein is my desire.

36 Incline my heart unto thy testimonies : and not to covetousness.

37 O turn away mine eyes, lest they behold vanity : and quicken thou me in thy way.

38 O stablish thy word in thy servant : that I may fear thee.

Ps lxi. 20.

39 Take away the rebuke that I am afraid of : for thy judgements are good.

40 Behold, my delight is in thy commandments : O quicken me in thy righteousness.

Et veniat super me.

LET thy loving mercy come also unto me, O Lord : even thy salvation, according unto thy word.

Vias meas enuntiavi, et exaudisti me : doce me justificationes tuas.

Viam justificationum tuarum in- insinua me strue me : et exercebor in mirabilibus tuis.

Dormitavit anima mea præ tædio :
confirma me in verbis tuis.

Viam iniquitatis amove a me : et de lege tua miserere mei.

Viam veritatis elegi : judicia tua non sum oblitus.

Adhæsi testimoniis tuis, Domine :
noli me confundere.

Viam mandatorum tuorum cucurri :
cum dilatasti cor meum. dilatares

[E. ELI EST VIA SALUTIS.]

LEGEM pone mihi, Domine, viam Tierce.
justificationum tuarum : et exquiram eam semper.

Da mihi intellectum, et scrutabor legem tuam : et custodiam illam in toto corde meo.

Deduc me in semita mandatorum tuorum : quia ipsam volui.

Inclina cor meum in testimonia tua :
et non in avaritiam.

Averte oculos meos ne videant vani-tatem : in via tua vivifica me.

Statue servo tuo eloquium tuum :
in timore tuo.

Amputa opprobrium meum quod suspiciatus sum : quia judicia tua ju-cunda.

Ecce concupivi mandata tua : in æquitate tua vivifica me.

[Z. VALI EST NON HABET.]

Et veniat super me misericordia tua, Tierce.
Domine : salutare tuum secundum eloquium tuum.

to consider the Psalm as a fortuitous collection of pious thoughts, as some have supposed. At the same time there does not seem to be any formal division of the Psalm into separate subjects, and it must be taken as a continuous elaboration of the one idea indicated; the turning about of a diamond whose light is refracted through many facets, and whose brilliant beauty is discerned from whatever point of view it is looked at.

This characteristic of the 119th Psalm seems to make it unnecessary to give any exposition of it in further detail. It is sufficient to offer the suggestion that the principle indicated should be carefully kept in view in the liturgical use of the Psalm, and that a mind imbued with pervading reverence for our Lord's Person and Example can hardly apply that principle in too minute detail.

The XXV. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
John xviii. 36.

42 So shall I make answer unto my blasphemers : for my trust is in thy word.

43 O take not the word of thy truth utterly out of my mouth : for my hope is in thy judgements.

44 So shall I alway keep thy law : yea, for ever and ever.

45 And I will walk at liberty : for I seek thy commandments.

Luke xxii. 69.
John xviii. 37.

46 I will speak of thy testimonies also, even before kings : and will not be ashamed.

47 And my delight shall be in thy commandments : which I have loved.

Heb. xii. 12.

48 My hands also will I lift up unto thy commandments, which I have loved : and my study shall be in thy statutes.

Memor esto servi tui.

O THINK upon thy servant, as concerning thy word : wherein thou hast caused me to put my trust.

Joh. i. 4.

50 The same is my comfort in my trouble : for thy word hath quickened me.

1 Cor. ii. 14.

51 The proud have had me exceedingly in derision : yet have I not shrunk from thy law.

52 For I remembered thine everlasting judgements, O Lord : and received comfort.

53 I am horribly afraid : for the ungodly that forsake thy law.

2 Cor. v. 1.

54 Thy statutes have been my songs : in the house of my pilgrimage.

Job xxxv. 10.

55 I have thought upon thy Name, O Lord, in the night-season : and have kept thy law.

56 This I had : because I kept thy commandments.

Portio mea, Domine.

THOU art my portion, O Lord : I have promised to keep thy law.

Matt. xxvi. 42.

58 I made my humble petition in thy presence with my whole heart : O be merciful unto me, according to thy word.

59 I called mine own ways to remembrance : and turned my feet unto thy testimonies.

Et respondebo exprobrantibus mihi verbum : quia speravi in sermonibus tuis.

Et ne auferas de ore meo verbum veritatis usquequaque : quia in judiciis tuis supersperavi.

speravi

Et custodiam legem tuam semper : in sæculum et in sæculum sæculi.

in æternum et in sæc.

Et ambulabam in latitudine : quia mandata tua exquisivi.

Et loquebar in testimoniis tuis in conspectu regum : et non confundebar.

Et meditabar in mandatis tuis : quæ dilexi.

meditabor . . . dilexi nimis

Et levavi manus meas ad mandata tua quæ dilexi : et exercebor in justificationibus tuis.

dilexi vehementer

[H. NAU EST PASSIO.]

MEMOR esto verbi tui servo tuo : Tierce. in quo mihi spem dedisti.

Hæc me consolata est in humilitate mea : quia eloquium tuum vivificavit me.

Superbi inique agebant usquequaque : a lege autem tua non declinavi.

Memor fui iudiciorum tuorum a sæculo, Domine : et consolatus sum.

Defectio tenuit me : pro peccatoribus derelinquentibus legem tuam.

Defectio animi . . . præ

Cantabiles mihi erant justificationes tuæ : in loco peregrinationis meæ.

incolatus mei

Memor fui nocte Nominis tui, Domine : et custodivi legem tuam.

Hæc facta est mihi : quia justificationes tuas exquisivi.

[Θ. ΖΑΕ ΕΣΤ ΕΛΕΜΕΝΤΟ ΜΟΥ.]

Portio mea, Domine : dixi custodire legem tuam.

Tierce.

Deprecatus sum faciem tuam in toto corde meo : miserere mei secundum eloquium tuum.

Cogitavi vias meas et converti pedes meos : in testimonia tua.

The XXV. Day. 60 I made haste, and prolonged not Morning the time : to keep thy command-Prayer. ments.
Cant. i. 4.
Luke ii. 21.

61 The congregations of the un-godly have robbed me : but I have not forgotten thy law.

Mark xvi. 2. 62 At midnight I will rise to give thanks unto thee : because of thy righteous judgements.

John xv. 14. 63 I am a companion of all them
Heb. ii. 11. that fear thee : and keep thy commandments.

64 The earth, O Lord, is full of thy mercy : O teach me thy statutes.

Bonitatem fecisti.

O LORD, thou hast dealt graciously with thy servant : according unto thy word.

66 O learn me true understanding and knowledge : for I have believed thy commandments.

67 Before I was troubled, I went wrong : but now have I kept thy word.

68 Thou art good and gracious :
O teach me thy statutes.

Job xiii. 14. 69 The proud have imagined a lie against me : but I will keep thy commandments with my whole heart.

70 Their heart is as fat as brawn :
but my delight hath been in thy law.

1 Pet. iv. 1. 71 It is good for me that I have been in trouble : that I may learn thy statutes.

Prov. iii. 14. 72 The law of thy mouth is dearer unto me : than thousands of gold and silver.

Manus tuæ fecerunt me.

Evening THY hands have made me and Prayer. fashioned me : O give me under-Job x. 8. standing, that I may learn thy commandments.

74 They that fear thee will be glad when they see me : because I have put my trust in thy word.

Deut. xxxii. 4. 75 I know, O Lord, that thy judge-1 Cor. x. 13. ments are right : and that thou of Heb. xii. 6. very faithfulness hast caused me to be troubled.

76 O let thy merciful kindness be my comfort : according to thy word unto thy servant.

Paratus sum, et non sum turbatus :
ut custodiam mandata tua.

Funes peccatorum circumplexi sunt me : et legem tuam non sum oblitus.

Media nocte surgebam ad confitendum tibi : super judicia justifica- justitia tua tionis tuæ.

Particeps ego sum omnium timen-tium te : et custodientium mandata
tua.

Misericordia tua, Domine, plena est terra : justificationes tuas doce me.

[I. ETA EST VITA.]

BONITATEM fecisti cum servo Tierce. tuo, Domine : secundum verbum
tuum.

Bonitatem et disciplinam et scientiam doce me : quia mandatis tuis credidi.

Priusquam humiliarer ego deliqui :
propterea eloquium tuum custodivi.

Bonus es tu : et in bonitate tua doce me justificationes tuas.

Multiplicata est super me iniquitas superborum : ego autem in toto corde meo scrutabor mandata tua.

Coagulatum est sicut lac cor eorum :
ego vero legem tuam meditatus sum.

Bonum mihi quia humiliasti me :
ut discam justificationes tuas.

Bonum mihi lex oris tui : super millia auri et argenti.

[K. THET EST BONUM.]

Manus tuæ fecerunt me et plasma- Tierce.
verunt me : da mihi intellectum, ut discam mandata tua.

Qui timent te videbunt me et lætabuntur : quia in verba tua supersperavi.

Cognovi, Domine, quia æquitas judicia tua : et in veritate tua humiliasti
me.

Fiat misericordia tua ut consoletur Fiat nunc me : secundum eloquium tuum servo tuo.

The XXV. Day.
Evening
Prayer.

77 O let thy loving mercies come unto me, that I may live : for thy law is my delight.

78 Let the proud be confounded, for they go wickedly about to destroy me : but I will be occupied in thy commandments.

79 Let such as fear thee, and have known thy testimonies : be turned unto me.

80 O let my heart be sound in thy statutes : that I be not ashamed.

Defecit anima mea.

Luke ii. 29.

MY soul hath longed for thy salvation : and I have a good hope because of thy word.

82 Mine eyes long sore for thy word : saying, O when wilt thou comfort me ?

83 For I am become like a bottle in the smoke : yet do I not forget thy statutes.

Rev. vi. 9.

84 How many are the days of thy servant : when wilt thou be avenged of them that persecute me ?

Gen. xxxvii. 20.
24.

85 The proud have digged pits for me : which are not after thy law.

86 All thy commandments are true : they persecute me falsely ; O be thou my help.

87 They had almost made an end of me upon earth : but I forsook not thy commandments.

88 O quicken me after thy loving-kindness : and so shall I keep the testimonies of thy mouth.

In æternum, Domine.

Isa. lx. 8.

OLORD, thy word : endureth for ever in heaven.

90 Thy truth also remaineth from one generation to another : thou hast laid the foundation of the earth, and it abideth.

91 They continue this day according to thine ordinance : for all things serve thee.

92 If my delight had not been in thy law : I should have perished in my trouble.

93 I will never forget thy commandments : for with them thou hast quickened me.

Veniant mihi miserationes tuæ et vivam : quia lex tua meditatio mea est.

Confundantur superbi, quia injuste iniquitatem fecerunt in me : ego autem exercebor in mandatis tuis.

Convertantur mihi timentes te : et qui noverunt testimonia tua.

Fiat cor meum immaculatum in justificationibus tuis : ut non confundar.

[A. JUTH EST JESUS CHRISTUS DEUS.]

DEFECIT in salutare tuum anima mea : et in verbum tuum supersperavi. Sexts.
speravi

Defecerunt oculi mei in eloquium tuum : dicentes, Quando consolaberis me ?

Quia factus sum sicut uter in pruina : justificationes tuas non sum oblitus.

Quot sunt dies servi tui : quando facies de persequentibus me judicium ?

Narraverunt mihi iniqui fabulationes : sed non ut lex tua. ita ut lex tua,
Domine

Omnia mandata tua veritas : iniqui persecuti sunt me, adjuva me.

Paulominus consummaverunt me in terra : ego autem non dereliqui mandata tua.

Secundum misericordiam tuam vivifica me : et custodiam testimonia oris tui.

[M. TAP EST FRUCTUS MANUUM.]

In æternum, Domine : verbum tuum permanet in cœlo. Sexts.

In generatione et generationem veritas tua : fundasti terram et permanet. Et in sæculum saculi veritas

Ordinatione tua perseverat dies : quoniam omnia serviunt tibi.

Nisi quod lex tua meditatio mea est : tunc forte periissem in humilitate mea.

In æternum non obliviscar justificationes tuas : quia in ipsis vivificasti me.

The XXV. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
John xvii. 10, 11.

94 I am thine, O save me : for I have sought thy commandments.

95 The ungodly laid wait for me to destroy me : but I will consider thy testimonies.

1 Pet. i. 24, 25.

96 I see that all things come to an end : but thy commandment is exceeding broad.

Quomodo dilexi.

LORD, what love have I unto thy law : all the day long is my study in it.

98 Thou through thy commandments hast made me wiser than mine enemies : for they are ever with me.

Luke ii. 46, 47.

99 I have more understanding than my teachers : for thy testimonies are my study.

100 I am wiser than the aged : because I keep thy commandments.

101 I have refrained my feet from every evil way : that I may keep thy word.

102 I have not shrunk from thy judgements : for thou teachest me.

Rev. x. 9, 10.

103 O how sweet are thy words unto my throat : yea, sweeter than honey unto my mouth.

104 Through thy commandments I get understanding : therefore I hate all evil ways.

Lucerna pedibus meis.

The XXVI.
Day.

Morning
Prayer.

John i. 9.
viii. 12.
Prov. vi. 23.

THY word is a lantern unto my feet : and a light unto my paths.

106 I have sworn, and am stedfastly purposed : to keep thy righteous judgements.

107 I am troubled above measure : quicken me, O Lord, according to thy word.

108 Let the free-will offerings of my mouth please thee, O Lord : and teach me thy judgements.

1 Sam. xix. 5.
Job xiii. 14.
Acts xx. 23.

109 My soul is alway in my hand : yet do I not forget thy law.

110 The ungodly have laid a snare for me : but yet I swerved not from thy commandments.

111 Thy testimonies have I claimed as mine heritage for ever : and why? they are the very joy of my heart.

Tuus sum ego, salvum me fac : quoniam justificationes tuas exquisivi.

Me expectaverunt peccatores ut perderent me : testimonia tua intellexi.

Omnis consummationis vidi finem : latum mandatum tuum nimis.

[N. LAB EST DOCTRINA.]

QUOMODO dilexi legem tuam, Sexts.
Domine : tota die meditatio mea est.

Super inimicos meos prudentem me fecisti mandato tuo : quia in æternum mihi est.

Super omnes docentes me intellexi : quia testimonia tua meditatio mea est.

Super senes intellexi : quia mandata tua quæsivi.

Ab omni via mala prohibui pedes meos : ut custodiam verba tua.

A judiciis tuis non declinavi : quia tu legem posuisti mihi.

Quam dulcia faucibus meis eloquia tua : super mel ori meo ?

mel et favum

A mandatis tuis intellexi : propterea odivi omnem viam iniquitatis.

odio habui . . iniquitatis quia tu legem posuisti mihi

[E. MEM EST MEDULLA.]

Lucerna pedibus meis verbum tuum : Sexts.
et lumen semitis meis.

Juravi et statui : custodire judicia justitiæ tuæ.

Humiliatus sum usquequaque, Domine : vivifica me secundum verbum tuum.

Voluntaria oris mei beneplacita fac, Domine : et judicia tua doce me.

Anima mea in manibus meis semper : et legem tuam non sum oblitus.

Posuerunt peccatores laqueum mihi : et de mandatis tuis non erravi.

Hæreditate acquisivi testimonia tua in æternum : quia exsultatio cordis mei sunt.

The XXVI.
Day.
Morning
Prayer.
1 Pet. i. 9.

112 I have applied my heart to fulfil thy statutes alway : even unto the end.

Iniquos odio habui.

I HATE them that imagine evil things : but thy law do I love.

114 Thou art my defence and shield : and my trust is in thy word.

115 Away from me, ye wicked : I will keep the commandments of my God.

116 O stablish me according to thy word, that I may live : and let me not be disappointed of my hope.

117 Hold thou me up, and I shall be safe : yea, my delight shall be ever in thy statutes.

118 Thou hast trodden down all them that depart from thy statutes : for they imagine but deceit.

119 Thou puttest away all the ungodly of the earth like dross : therefore I love thy testimonies.

120 My flesh trembleth for fear of thee : and I am afraid of thy judgments.

Feci judicium.

I DEAL with the thing that is lawful and right : O give me not over unto mine oppressors.

122 Make thou thy servant to delight in that which is good : that the proud do me no wrong<sup>1</sup>.

123 Mine eyes are wasted away with looking for thy health : and for the word of thy righteousness.

124 O deal with thy servant according unto thy loving mercy : and teach me thy statutes.

125 I am thy servant, O grant me understanding : that I may know thy testimonies.

126 It is time for thee, Lord, to lay to thine hand : for they have destroyed thy law.

127 For I love thy commandments : above gold and precious stone.

128 Therefore hold I straight all thy commandments : and all false ways I utterly abhor.

Inclinavi cor meum ad faciendas justificationes tuas in æternum : propter retributionem.

[O. NUN EST MENS.]

INIQUOS odio habui : et legem Sexts. tuam dilexi.

Adjutor et susceptor meus es tu : et in verbum tuum supersperavi. speravi

Declinate a me maligni : et scrutabor mandata Dei mei.

Suscipe me secundum eloquium tuum, et vivam : et non confundas me ab expectatione mea.

Adjuva me, et salvus ero : et meditabor in justificationibus tuis semper.

Sprevisti omnes discedentes a judiciis tuis : quia injusta cogitatio eorum.

Prævaricantes reputavi omnes peccatores terræ : ideo dilexi testimonia tua.

Confige timore tuo carnes meas : a Infige a timore judiciis enim tuis timui.

[II. SAMECH RESUPINATIO SIVE REQUIES.]

Feci judicium et justitiam : non tra- Sexts. das me calumniantibus me. persequentibus me

Suscipe servum tuum in bonum : Elege servum non calumnientur me superbi.

Oculi mei defecerunt in salutare tuum : et in eloquium justitiæ tuæ.

Fac cum servo tuo secundum misericordiam tuam : et justificationes tuas doce me.

Servus tuus sum ego : da mihi intellectum ut sciam testimonia tua.

Tempus faciendi, Domine : dissipaverunt legem tuam. iniqui legem

Ideo dilexi mandata tua : super aurum et topazion.

Propterea ad omnia mandata tua dirigebar : omnem viam iniquam odio habui.

Isa. i. 25.
Ezek. xxii. 17—
22.
Mat. iii. 3.

Job iv. 14.

Isa. xxxviii. 14.

Heb. ii. 3.

Phil. ii. 7.

<sup>1</sup> The ancient Jewish interpreters noted this verse as the only one which does not contain "thy word" or an equivalent expression.

Mirabilia.

The XXVI.
Day.
Morning
Prayer.

John i. 5. 9.
1 John i. 7.

THY testimonies are wonderful : therefore doth my soul keep
them.

130 When thy word goeth forth : it giveth light and understanding unto the simple.

131 I opened my mouth, and drew in my breath : for my delight was in thy commandments.

132 O look thou upon me, and be merciful unto me : as thou usest to do unto those that love thy Name.

133 Order my steps in thy word :
and so shall no wickedness have dominion over me.

134 O deliver me from the wrongful dealings of men : and so shall I keep thy commandments.

135 Shew the light of thy countenance upon thy servant : and teach me thy statutes.

136 Mine eyes gush out with water : because men keep not thy law.

Jer. ix. 1.
xiii. 17.
Lam. i. 16.
John xi. 35.
Luke xix. 41.

Justus es, Domine.

Rev. xvi. 5.

RIGHTEOUS art thou, O Lord : and true is thy judgement.

138 The testimonies that thou hast commanded : are exceeding righteous and true.

John ii. 17.

139 My zeal hath even consumed me : because mine enemies have forgotten thy words.

140 Thy word is tried to the utter-most : and thy servant loveth it.

Isa. lx. 22.
Phil. ii. 7.

141 I am small, and of no reputation : yet do I not forget thy commandments.

142 Thy righteousness is an everlasting righteousness : and thy law is the truth.

143 The righteousness of thy testimonies is everlasting : O grant me understanding, and I shall live.

144 Trouble and heaviness have taken hold upon me : yet is my delight in thy commandments.

Clamavi in toto corde meo.

Evening
Prayer

I CALL with my whole heart :
I hear me, O Lord, I will keep thy statutes.

[P. ENA EST OCULUS.]

MIRABILIA testimonia tua, Do- Nones. mine : ideo scrutata est ea anima mea.

Declaratio sermonum tuorum illuminat : et intellectum dat parvulis.

Os meum aperui, et attraxi spiritum :
quia mandata tua desiderabam.

Aspice in me et miserere mei : secundum judicium diligentium Nomen
tuum.

Gressus meos dirige secundum elo-quium tuum : ut non dominetur mei omnis injustitia.

Redime me a calumniis hominum :
ut custodiam mandata tua.

Faciem tuam illumina super servum tuum : et doce me justificationes tuas.

Exitus aquarum deduxerunt oculi transierunt
mei : quia non custodierunt legem
tuam.

[Σ. CAPH EST VOX.]

Justus es, Domine : et rectum judi- Nones.
cium tuum.

Mandasti justitiam testimonia tua :
et veritatem tuam nimis.

Tabescere me fecit zelus meus : quia zelus domus tuae obliti sunt verba tua inimici mei.

Ignitum eloquium tuum vehementer : et servus tuus dilexit illud.

Adolescentulus sum ego, et contemptus : justificationes tuas non sum oblitus.

Justitia tua justitia in æternum : et lex tua veritas.

Tribulatio et angustia invenerunt me : mandata tua meditatio mea est. mandata autem

Æquitas testimonia tua in æternum :
intellectum da mihi et vivam.

[T. RES EST PRINCIPIUM.]

CLAMAVI in toto corde ; exaudi Nones. me, Domine : justificationes tuas requiram.

The XXVI.
Day.
*Evening
Prayer.*

Mark i. 35.

Lam. ii. 19.

Zech. iii. 1, 2.

Ps. xxxv. 1. 24.

Luke xxiii. 1.

Luke xxiii. 28.
Matt. xxiii. 37.

Dan. vi. 4.

146 Yea, even unto thee do I call :
help me, and I shall keep thy testimonies.

147 Early in the morning do I cry unto thee : for in thy word is my trust.

148 Mine eyes prevent the night-watches : that I might be occupied in thy words.

149 Hear my voice, O Lord, according unto thy loving-kindness :
quicken me according as thou art wont.

150 They draw nigh that of malice persecute me : and are far from thy law.

151 Be thou nigh at hand, O Lord :
for all thy commandments are true.

152 As concerning thy testimonies,
I have known long since : that thou hast grounded them for ever.

Vide humilitatem.

O CONSIDER mine adversity, and deliver me : for I do not forget thy law.

154 Avenge thou my cause, and deliver me : quicken me according to thy word.

155 Health is far from the un-godly : for they regard not thy statutes.

156 Great is thy mercy, O Lord :
quicken me, as thou art wont.

157 Many there are that trouble me and persecute me : yet do I not swerve from thy testimonies.

158 It grieveth me when I see the transgressors : because they keep not thy law.

159 Consider, O Lord, how I love thy commandments : O quicken me, according to thy loving-kindness.

160 Thy word is true from everlasting : all the judgements of thy righteousness endure for evermore.

Principes persecuti sunt.

PRINCIPES have persecuted me without a cause : but my heart standeth in awe of thy word.

162 I am as glad of thy word : as one that findeth great spoils.

Clamavi ad te ; salvum me fac : ut custodiam mandata tua.

Præveni in maturitate, et clamavi :
quia in verba tua supersperavi. in verbo tuo
speravi

Prævenerunt oculi mei ad te di- Prævenerunt luculo : ut meditarer eloquia tua.

Vocem meam audi secundum mise-ricordiam tuam, Domine : et secundum judicium tuum vivifica me.

Appropinquaverunt persequentes me Adpropinquaverunt iniquitati . . iniqui iniquitati : a lege autem tua longe facti sunt.

Prope es tu, Domine : et omnes viæ omnia mandata tua
tuæ veritas.

Initio cognovi de testimoniis tuis :
quia in æternum fundasti ea.

[Y. SEN EST VLE RECTÆ.]

Vide humilitatem meam et eripe me : Nones.
quia legem tuam non sum oblitus.

Judica judicium meum et redime me : propter eloquium tuum vivifica
me.

Longe a peccatoribus salus : quia justificationes tuas non exquisierunt.

Misericordiæ tuæ multæ, Domine : Miserationes . .
multæ nimis
secundum judicium tuum vivifica me.

Multi qui persequuntur me et tri-bulant me : a testimoniis tuis non declinavi.

Vidi prævaricantes, et tabescebam : non servantes pactum
quia eloquia tua non custodierunt.

Vide quoniam mandata tua dilexi, Domine : in misericordia tua vivifica
me.

Principium verborum tuorum veritas : in æternum omnia judicia justitiæ tuæ.

[Φ TAU EST MANSUETUS.]

PRINCIPES persecuti sunt me Nones. gratis : et a verbis tuis formi-davit cor meum.

Lætabor ego super eloquia tua : sicut qui invenit spolia multa.

The XXVI.
Day
Evening
Prayer.

163 As for lies, I hate and abhor them : but thy law do I love.

164 Seven times a day do I praise thee : because of thy righteous judgments.

Matt. xxvi. 63.

165 Great is the peace that they have who love thy law : and they are not offended at it.

166 Lord, I have looked for thy saving health : and done after thy commandments.

167 My soul hath kept thy testimonies : and loved them exceedingly.

168 I have kept thy commandments and testimonies : for all my ways are before thee.

Appropinquet deprecatio.

LET my complaint come before thee, O Lord : give me understanding, according to thy word.

170 Let my supplication come before thee : deliver me, according to thy word.

171 My lips shall speak of thy praise : when thou hast taught me thy statutes.

172 Yea, my tongue shall sing of thy word : for all thy commandments are righteous.

173 Let thine hand help me : for I have chosen thy commandments.

174 I have longed for thy saving health, O Lord : and in thy law is my delight.

175 O let my soul live, and it shall praise thee : and thy judgements shall help me.

Isa. liii. 6.
Jer. l. 6.
Luke xv. 6.
Ezek. xxxiv. 12.

176 I have gone astray like a sheep that is lost : O seek thy servant, for I do not forget thy commandments.

THE CXX PSALM.

Ad Dominum.

The XXVII.
Day.
Morning
Prayer.
A Gradual Psalm.

WHEN I was in trouble I called upon the Lord : and he heard me.

2 Deliver my soul, O Lord, from lying lips : and from a deceitful tongue.

Iniquitatem odio habui et abominatus sum : legem autem tuam dilexi.

Septies in die laudem dixi tibi : super judicia justitiæ tuæ.

Pax multa diligentibus legem tuam : nomen tuum et non est illis scandalum. in illis

Expectabam salutare tuum, Domine : et mandata tua dilexi.

Custodivit anima mea testimonia tua : et dilexit ea vehementer.

Servavi mandata tua et testimonia tua : quia omnes viæ meæ in conspectu tuo. tuo Domine

[X. ψ. ω.]

Appropinquet deprecatio mea in conspectu tuo, Domine : juxta eloquium tuum da mihi intellectum. Nones. Adpropinquet oratio mea . . secundum eloq.

Intret postulatio mea in conspectu tuo : secundum eloquium tuum eripe me. conspectu tuo Domine

Eructabunt labia mea hymnum : cum docueris me justificationes tuas.

Pronuntiabit lingua mea eloquium tuum : quia omnia mandata tua æquitas.

Fiat manus tua ut salvet me : quoniam mandata tua elegi. salvum me faciat

Concupivi salutare tuum, Domine : et lex tua meditatio mea est.

Vivet anima mea et laudabit te : et judicia tua adjuvabunt me.

Erravi sicut ovis quæ periit : quære servum tuum, quia mandata tua non sum oblitus. perierat require . . tuum Domine

PSALMUS CXIX.

AD Dominum cum tribularer clamavi : et exaudivit me.

Domine, libera animam meam a labiis iniquis : et a lingua dolosa.

Mond., Maundy
Thursday,
Good Friday,
Vespers.
Commendation of Souls.
Vigils of the departed.

THE PSALMS OF DEGREES.

CXX—CXXIV.

These fifteen Psalms have been so called from very distant times, perhaps from the time when they were originally composed. They have also been named "Psalmi communes" and "Psalmi pœnitentiales," but these names have been less generally recognized than the other.

Several explanations have been given of the title "Songs of Degrees." Some have supposed that it indicated Psalms which were to be sung by the Levites with a high voice [2 Chron. xx. 19]; others that they were Psalms of special excellency, as persons are sometimes said to be of "high degree" [1 Chron. xvii.

The XXVII.

Day.

Morning

Prayer.

Luke xvi. 24.

Isa. xxi. 17.

Gen. xxv. 13.

Isa. xlii. 11.

Matt. xvii. 17.

3 What reward shall be given or done unto thee, thou false tongue : even mighty and sharp arrows, with hot burning coals.

4 Wo is me, that I am constrained to dwell with Mesech : and to have my habitation among the tents of Kedar.

5 My soul hath long dwelt among them : that are enemies unto peace.

6 I labour for peace, but when I speak unto them thereof : they make them ready to battle.

THE CXXI PSALM.

Levavi oculos.

I WILL lift up mine eyes unto the hills : from whence cometh my help.

2 My help cometh even from the Lord : who hath made heaven and earth.

3 He will not suffer thy foot to be moved : and he that keepeth thee will not sleep.

4 Behold, he that keepeth Israel : shall neither slumber nor sleep.

5 The Lord himself is thy keeper : the Lord is thy defence upon thy right hand ;

Quid detur tibi, aut quid apponatur tibi : ad linguam dolosam ?

a lingua dolosa

Sagittæ potentis acutæ : cum car- Sagittæ potentis bonibus desolatoriis.

Heu mihi, quia incolatus meus prolongatus est ; habitavi cum habitantibus Cedar : multum incola fuit anima mea.

Cum his qui oderunt pacem eram pacificus : cum loquebar illis, impugnabant me gratis.

PSALMUS CXX.

LEVAVI oculos meos in montes : unde veniet auxilium mihi.

Monday Vespers.
Vigils of the de-
parted.
Purification of Women.
B.V.M. Tierce.

Auxilium meum a Domino : qui fecit cælum et terram.

Non det in commotionem pedem tuum : neque dormitet qui custodit te. neque obdormiet qui custodit te

Ecce non dormitabit neque dormiet : qui custodit Israël. neque obdormiet

Dominus custodit te, Dominus protectio tua : super manum dexteram tuam.

A Gradual Psalm.
Ps. lxxxvii. 1.
Rev. xxi. 10.

Isa. v. 27.
Matt. xvi. 18.

Isa. xxv. 4.

17] ; others again that they were Psalms composed to be sung at the "going up" of the banished tribes from Babylon to Judæa ; others that they were intended to be used by the people when "going up" to the feasts at Jerusalem. The most generally received explanation of the title is, however, that it marks processional Psalms which were sung during the ascent of the fifteen steps which led up to the Temple. [Cf. Ezek. xl. 22—34.] The first of these Psalms is entitled in the Chaldee "A Song for the goings up out of the deep," a superscription which is consistent with either of the two latter theories. They were probably written by David as part of that preparation which he made for the building of the Temple, and for the Divine Service to be carried on there : and although he himself was not permitted to lay a single stone, he thus in prophetic vision beheld the choirs of the House of God going up in procession to their work of praise. All of them bear the appearance of being written originally for use in the Temple Service, containing as they do such frequent references to Zion and Jerusalem, the Temple of the Lord, and the habitation of the mighty God of Jacob, references which, in a Christian sense, must be understood to apply to the Church of Christ. In that sense we may thus take the "Songs of Degrees" as hymns relating to the progress of Christ's Mystical Body through the successive stages of its pilgrimage and ascent towards its heavenly glory and rest.

PSALM CXX.

This opening Psalm of the series represents Christ in the time of His sojourning on earth, and the Church in the time of her warfare, lamenting the wickedness of those who refuse the "peace of God which passeth all understanding," and are ever ready to contend against Him Who would lead them to the true Salem.

It is, therefore, the Voice of Christ's Mystical Body dwelling in exile from the Presence of God, and carrying on her conflict with the great Enemy. The Church, passing through the wilderness of this world, has often had to say, "We are troubled on every side, yet not distressed ; we are perplexed, but not in despair ; persecuted, but not forsaken ; cast down, but not destroyed." [2 Cor. iv. 8, 9.] But, looking forward and upward to the end of her pilgrimage she beholds the place of God's Presence there, and says also, "We look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen : for the things which are seen are temporal ; but the things which are not seen are eternal." "When I was in trouble, I called upon the Lord, and He heard me."

PSALM CXXI.

Thus in her pilgrimage the Church lifts up her eyes to look upon "the Holy City, New Jerusalem," whose foundations are in the holy hills, beholding her joy from afar. Yet is she ever drawing nearer and nearer to the help which cometh from the Lord : to <sup>1</sup> This title has been associated with an ancient Chaldee tradition that after the Captivity a flood poured forth from the earth which reached to the height of fifteen cubits, threatening to overwhelm the whole area of the Temple ; and that its destructive progress was stayed by writing the ineffable Name upon each of the steps.

The XXVII.
Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Rev. vii. 15—17.

6 So that the sun shall not burn thee by day : neither the moon by night.

7 The Lord shall preserve thee from all evil : yea, it is even he that shall keep thy soul.

Isa. lviii. 8. 11.

8 The Lord shall preserve thy going out, and thy coming in : from this time forth for evermore.

THE CXXII PSALM.

Lætatus sum.

A Gradual Psalm.
Mal. iii. 1.
Luke ii. 46. 49.

I WAS glad when they said unto me : We will go into the house of the Lord.

2 Our feet shall stand in thy gates : O Jerusalem.

Eph. ii. 20—22.
Rev. xxi. 16.

3 Jerusalem is built as a city : that is at unity in itself.

Isa. ii. 3.

4 For thither the tribes go up, even the tribes of the Lord : to testify unto Israel, to give thanks unto the Name of the Lord.

Rev. xxii. 3.
Isa. ii. 4.

5 For there is the seat of judgment : even the seat of the house of David.

6 O pray for the peace of Jerusalem : they shall prosper that love thee.

John xiv. 27.
Acts x. 26.

7 Peace be within thy walls : and plenteousness within thy palaces.

8 For my brethren and companions' sakes : I will wish thee prosperity.

Eph. iv. 3.

9 Yea, because of the house of the Lord our God : I will seek to do thee good.

Per diem sol non uret te : neque luna per noctem.

Dominus custodit te ab omni malo : custodiat animam tuam Dominus.

Dominus custodiat introitum tuum et exitum tuum : ex hoc nunc et usque in sæculum.

PSALMUS CXXI.

LÆTATUS sum in his quæ dicta sunt mihi : in domum Domini ibimus.

Tuesday, Dedic.
Ch., Vespers,
B. V. M.,
Name of Jesus,
1st Vespers.

Stantes erant pedes nostri : in atriis tuis Hierusalem.

Hierusalem quæ ædificatur ut civitas ; ejus participatio ejus in idipsum :

Illuc enim ascenderunt tribus, tribus Domini : testimonium Israël, ad confitendum Nomini Domini.

nomini tuo

Quia illic sederunt sedes in judicio : sedes super domum David.

Rogate quæ ad pacem sunt Hierusalem : et abundantia diligentibus te.

Fiat pax in virtute tua : et abundantia in turribus tuis.

Propter fratres meos et proximos meos : loquebar pacem de te :

Propter domum Domini Dei nostri : Dei mei quæsivi bona tibi.

the time when "God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes ; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain : for the former things are passed away." [Rev. xxi. 4.]

And even the prospect of God's glory on the distant everlasting hills gives strength to the faith which recognizes His protecting Presence in the Church during the time of warfare and pilgrimage. So the promise is remembered that "none shall stumble or fall" who lean upon the strength of Israel, and that He has said that not even the gates of hell shall prevail against His Church. As the Presence of the Lord was manifested upon the tabernacle in its journeyings through the wilderness, so is it given to the Church in her pilgrimage, and the word is already fulfilled : "My Righteousness shall go before thee : the glory of the Lord shall be thy reward . . . and the Lord shall guide thee continually and satisfy thy soul in drought, and make fat thy bones : and thou shalt be like a watered garden, and like a spring of water, whose waters fail not."

PSALM CXXII.

The New Jerusalem is here set forth as being the treasury of Christ's peace and unity, according to our Lord's words, "My peace I leave with you," and His final prayer, "That they all may be one." The unity of the Church is symbolized in the Book of Revelation by the figure of a city built four-square, "having twelve foundations and in them the names of the twelve Apostles of the Lamb." And the association of this unity with peace is elaborated by St. Paul when he writes to the Ephesians that they should walk worthy of the vocation with which they are called, "endeavouring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace." "For," he adds, "there is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling ; One Lord, one faith, one baptism, One God and Father of all, Who is above all, and through all, and in you all." And, showing this unity of peace to be in Christ, he shows also that it is maintained by Apostolic order : "And He gave some apostles ; and some prophets ; and some evangelists ; and some pastors and teachers ; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the building up of the Body of Christ : till we all come, in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect Man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ."

From the Church of Christ, therefore, proceeds the peace which Christ left for His people, the "peace which passeth all understanding." Because His throne is within its walls it is a City which is at unity with itself in respect to the essentials of grace, however diverse its gates in the sight of men. Whatever may

THE CXXIII PSALM.

Ad te levavi oculos meos.

The XXVII.

Day.
Morning
Prayer.
A Gradual Psalm.
Isa. lxi. 1, 2.

UNTo thee lift I up mine eyes : O thou that dwellest in the heavens.

2 Behold, even as the eyes of servants look unto the hand of their masters, and as the eyes of a maiden unto the hand of her mistress : even so our eyes wait upon the Lord our God, until he have mercy upon us.

Neh. i. 3.

3 Have mercy upon us, O Lord, have mercy upon us : for we are utterly despised.

4 Our soul is filled with the scornful reproof of the wealthy : and with the despitefulness of the proud.

THE CXXIV PSALM.

Nisi quia Dominus.

A Gradual Psalm.

IF the Lord himself had not been on our side, now may Israel say : if the Lord himself had not been on our side, when men rose up against us ;

2 They had swallowed us up quick : when they were so wrathfully displeased at us.

Isa. xlii. 2.

3 Yea, the waters had drowned us : and the stream had gone over our soul.

Lam. iii. 4.
Jonah ii. 3.

4 The deep waters of the proud : had gone even over our soul.

5 But praised be the Lord : who hath not given us over for a prey unto their teeth.

6 Our soul is escaped even as a bird out of the snare of the fowler : the snare is broken, and we are delivered.

PSALMUS CXXII.

AD te levavi oculos meos : qui habitas in coelis.

Tuesday Vespers.
B. V. M., 1st
Vespers and Sexts.

Ecce sicut oculi servorum : in manibus dominorum suorum.

Sicut oculi ancillæ in manibus dominæ suæ : ita oculi nostri ad Dominum Deum nostrum, donec misereatur nostri.

Miserere nostri, Domine, miserere nostri : quia multum repleti sumus despectione :

contemptione

Quia multum repleta est anima nostra, opprobrium abundantibus : et despectio superbis.

PSALMUS CXXIII.

NISI quia Dominus erat in nobis, dicat nunc Israel : nisi quia Dominus erat in nobis :

Tuesday Vespers.
B. V. M., 1st
Vespers and Sexts.

Cum exsurgerent homines in nos :
forte vivos deglutissent nos :

Cum irasceretur furor eorum in nos :
forsitan aqua absorbuisset nos.

*animus eorum ad-versus nos velut
aqua absorbuisset*

Torrentem pertransivit anima nostra :
forsitan pertransisset anima nostra
aquam intolerabilem.

Benedictus Dominus, qui non dedit nos : in captionem dentibus eorum.

Anima nostra sicut passer erepta est : de laqueo venantium :

Laqueus contritus est : et nos liberati sumus.

seem the outward divisions of the one Catholic and Apostolic Church, there is a sacramental unity which must bind together all its parts so long as they are united to the Head. And hence even already the words of the prophet are fulfilled in their degree, though hereafter to receive a more complete fulfilment: "And many people shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob: and He will teach us of His ways, and we will walk in His paths; for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem. And He shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people: and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

PSALM CXXIII.

This is a prayer of the Church for times of trouble during her pilgrimage. The way of that pilgrimage is not one of unimpeded progress, for the sin of men brings down the displeasure of God even upon His Holy City, and the Evil One is permitted to bring desolation upon it, so that even "the remnant that are left of the Captivity . . . are in great affliction and reproach: the wall of Jerusalem also is broken down, and the gates thereof are burned with fire." Then her faithful prayer goes up to the throne of God to undo the work of her faithless children, memorializing Him that "they are Thy people and Thine inheritance, which Thou broughtest out by Thy mighty power, and Thy stretched-out arm." [Deut. ix. 29.]

PSALM CXXIV.

This is a thanksgiving, corresponding to the prayer of the preceding Psalm, acknowledging that it is God's arm which has delivered His Church in all time of trouble, and that but for His protecting Providence it could never continue from age to age in the face of opposition from Satan and the world. "When the

The XXVII.
Day.
Morning
Prayer.

7 Our help standeth in the Name of the Lord : who hath made heaven and earth.

THE CXXV PSALM.

Qui confidunt.

A Gradual Psalm.
Matt. xvi. 18.
vii. 25.

THEY that put their trust in the Lord shall be even as the mount Sion : which may not be removed, but standeth fast for ever.

Isa. v. 1, 2.

2 The hills stand about Jerusalem :
even so standeth the Lord round about his people, from this time forth for evermore.

Matt. xxiv. 21, 22.
Job ii. 4.

3 For the rod of the ungodly cometh not into the lot of the righteous : lest the righteous put their hand unto wickedness.

2 Cor. xiii. 11.

4 Do well, O Lord : unto those that are good and true of heart.

Isa. lvii. 20.
xlviii. 22.

5 As for such as turn back unto their own wickedness : the Lord shall lead them forth with the evil-doers ;
but peace shall be upon Israel.

THE CXXVI PSALM.

In convertendo.

Evening
Prayer.
A Gradual Psalm.
Isa. li. 11.
xxxv. 10.

WHEN the Lord turned again the captivity of Sion : then were we like unto them that dream.

2 Then was our mouth filled with laughter : and our tongue with joy.

Isa. li. 12.
Rev. xv. 3.

3 Then said they among the heathen : The Lord hath done great things for them.

4 Yea, the Lord hath done great things for us already : whereof we rejoice.

Adjutorium nostrum in Nomine Domini : qui fecit cælum et terram.

PSALMUS CXXIV.

QUI confidunt in Domino, sicut mons Sion : non commovebitur in æternum qui habitat in Hierusalem.

Tuesday Vespers.
B. V. M., 1st
Vespers and Sexis.

Montes in circuitu ejus, et Dominus in circuitu populi sui : ex hoc nunc, et usque in sæculum.

Quia non relinquet Dominus virgam peccatorum super sortem justorum :
ut non extendant justi ad iniquitatem manus suas.

Benefac, Domine : bonis et rectis
corde.

Declinantes autem in obligationes, adducet Dominus cum operantibus iniquitatem : pax super Israël.

PSALMUS CXXV.

IN convertendo Dominus captivita-tem Sion : facti sumus sicut consolati.

Tuesd., App. and Evv., Vespers,
B. V. M., 1st
Vespers and Nones.

Tunc repletum est gaudio os nostrum : et lingua nostra exultatione.

Tunc dicent inter gentes : Magni-ficavit Dominus facere cum eis.

Magnificavit Dominus facere nobiscum : facti sumus lætantes.

Enemy shall come in like a flood, the Spirit of the Lord shall lift up a Standard against him. And the Redeemer shall come to Zion, and unto them that turn from transgression in Jacob, saith the Lord." [Isa. lix. 19, 20.]

PSALM CXXV.

This is another hymn concerning the Lord's protection and care of His Church in the midst of the dangers to which it is subject from foes. It is a House built upon a rock, even the Rock of Christ's Person, and though the winds and storms of persecution may beat against it it cannot fall, nor can the gates of Hell prevail against it, because it is thus securely founded. It is a Vineyard in a very fruitful hill, which the Lord has fenced about with His Providence as Jerusalem was surrounded by its fortress mountains. And though His Church is in the midst of many and great dangers through the strength of the foe without and the weakness of those within, yet He will never suffer it to be overcome by the enemy : "I pray not that Thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that Thou shouldest keep them from the evil." [John xvii. 15.] He permitted Satan to stretch forth his hand on Job, but there was a restriction laid upon him, "Save his life;" and the effect of this limitation of the "rod of the ungodly" was that "in all this Job sinned not, nor charged God foolishly." Thus does the Lord fulfil His promise to His Church : "When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee; and through the floods, they shall not overflow thee: when thou walkest through the fire, thou shalt not be burned; neither shall the flame kindle upon thee. For I am the Lord thy God, the Holy One of Israel, thy Saviour." [Isa. xliii. 2.]

PSALM CXXVI.

This prophecy of Israel's return from the Babylonish Captivity, is also a prediction of the Lord's final reception of His Church out of its captivity in this world to its glory in heaven: and hence it is a hymn based on the constant prayer of the Church,
"Thy Kingdom come." When that time arrives, the living shall

The XXVII.
Day.

Evening
Prayer.

Isa. xi. 15, 16.
Isa. ix. 3.
xxx. 20.
Rev. xxi. 4.
Ecl. xi. 1.
Matt. xiii. 36—39.
Rev. xiv. 14, 16.

5 Turn our captivity, O Lord : as the rivers in the south.

6 They that sow in tears : shall reap in joy.

7 He that now goeth on his way weeping, and beareth forth good seed :
shall doubtless come again with joy,
and bring his sheaves with him.

THE CXXVII PSALM.

Nisi Dominus.

Churching of Women.
A Gradual Psalm.
1 Cor. iii. 9.

EXCEPT the Lord build the house : their labour is but lost that build it.

2 Except the Lord keep the city :
the watchman waketh but in vain.

3 It is but lost labour that ye haste to rise up early, and so late take rest, and eat the bread of carefulness : for so he giveth his beloved sleep.

[Isa. viii. 18.
Gal. iv. 28.
Gen. xviii. 10.
1 Sam. i. 5, 19.
Luke i. 6, 13.]

4 Lo, children and the fruit of the womb : are an heritage and gift that cometh of the Lord.

Ps. xix. 5.

5 Like as the arrows in the hand of the giant : even so are the young children.

Isa. xxix. 21.
xxxviii. 10.
1 Cor. xv. 49.
1 John iv. 17.

6 Happy is the man that hath his quiver full of them : they shall not be ashamed when they speak with their enemies in the gate.

THE CXXVIII PSALM.

Beati omnes.

Holy Matrimony.
A Gradual Psalm.

BLESSED are all they that fear the Lord : and walk in his ways.

be like those that have already been in the state of rest, "and we which are alive, and remain unto the coming of the Lord, shall not prevent them which are asleep . . . the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air, and so shall we ever be with the Lord." [1 Thess. iv. 15, 17.] The redeemed will sing of the great things that the Lord has done for them, "Great and marvellous are Thy works, Lord God Almighty:" "the ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with songs, and everlasting joy upon their heads: they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away." The bread which Christ the Sower hath cast upon the waters shall then be found after many days, and the full blessing revealed of them that sow beside all waters, in the joy with which He shall gather in His harvest. "And I looked, and behold a white cloud, and upon the cloud One sat like unto the Son of Man, having on His head a golden crown, and in His hand a sharp sickle . . . and He that sat on the cloud thrust in His sickle on the earth; and the earth was reaped."

PSALM CXXVII.

The building of the Temple by Solomon, the re-building of the wall of Jerusalem by Nehemiah, and of the ruined House of the Convertere, Domine, captivitatem nostram : sicut torrens in Austro.

Qui seminant in lachrymis : in exultatione metent.

gaudio

Euntes ibant et flebant : mittentes semina sua.

Venientes autem venient cum exultatione : portantes manipulos suos.

PSALMUS CXXVII.

NISI Dominus ædificaverit domum : in vanum laboraverunt qui ædificant eam.

Wed. , Dedie. Ch.,
Vesp. rs.
B. V. M.,
Nones.
laborant

Nisi Dominus custodierit civitatem : frustra vigilat qui custodit eam.

*in vanum vigilans
qui custodiant*

Vanum est vobis ante lucem surgere : surgite postquam sederitis, qui manducatis panem doloris.

Cum dederit dilectis suis somnum : ecce, hæreditas Domini filii; merces fructus ventris.

Sicut sagittæ in manu potentis : ita filii excussorum.

Beatus vir qui implevit desiderium suum ex ipsis : non confundetur cum loquetur inimicis suis in porta.

PSALMUS CXXVII.

BEATI omnes qui timent Dominum : qui ambulant in viis ejus.

Wed. Vespers.
Holy Matrimony.
Purification of Women.
B. V. M., Nones.
Corp. Chr., 1st
Vespers.

Lord by Zerubbabel, were all typical of the foundation and building of the City of God, whose walls are Salvation and her gates Praise. It was predicted respecting this "new house" that "The sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee . . . the glory of Lebanon shall come unto thee, the fir-tree, the pine-tree, and the box together, to beautify the place of My sanctuary, and I will make the place of My feet glorious." [Isa. lx. 11, 13.] But it was the sleep of the Beloved by which the Lord built the house, and by which He keeps the City. For as when Adam slept Eve was taken out of his side, so when the Second Adam fell asleep on the Cross there proceeded forth from His side the Sacramental streams by which the children who are the Lord's heritage and gift are new born to Him and nourished up to eternal life.

It is these children who are as arrows in the hand of the Bridegroom, rejoicing as a Giant to run His course: and He is the Man Whose happiness it is to say, "Behold I and the children whom the Lord hath given Me:" because, also, He is their Strength they shall have "boldness in the Day of Judgment" when the great Enemy shall be their accuser before the throne<sup>1</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> The "gate" in the last verse may be an antitype of both the "gate of death" and the gate in which the king sat to judge the people's causes. See 2 Sam. xv. 2; xix. 8.

The XXVII.

Day.

Evening

Prayer.

Rev. ii. 26. xv. 3.

Eph. ii. 10.

Heb. iv. 10, 11.

Isa. v. 2. liv. 5.

Jer. ii. 21.

John xv. 5—11.

Rom. xi. 17.

2 For thou shalt eat the labours of thine hands : O well is thee, and happy shalt thou be.

3 Thy wife shall be as the fruitful vine : upon the walls of thine house.

4 Thy children like the olive-branches : round about thy table.

5 Lo, thus shall the man be blessed :
that feareth the Lord.

Isa. liii. 12.

6 The Lord from out of Sion shall so bless thee : that thou shalt see Jerusalem in prosperity all thy life long.

Isa. liii. 12.

7 Yea, that thou shalt see thy children's children : and peace upon Israel.

THE CXXIX PSALM.

*Sæpe expugnauerunt.*A Gradual Psalm.
Gen. iii. 15.

MANY a time have they fought against me from my youth up :
may Israel now say.

2 Yea, many a time have they vexed me from my youth up : but they have not prevailed against me.

Isa. l. 6. liii. 5.
Matt. xxvii. 26.

3 The plowers plowed upon my back : and made long furrows.

4 But the righteous Lord : hath hewn the snares of the ungodly in pieces.

John xviii. 6.

5 Let them be confounded and turned backward : as many as have evil will at Sion.

Isa. xxxvii. 27.

6 Let them be even as the grass growing upon the house-tops : which withereth afore it be plucked up ;

Labores manuum tuarum quia man- fructuum tuorum
ducabis : beatus es, et bene tibi erit. manducabis

Uxor tua sicut vitis abundans : in lateribus domus tuæ.

Filii tui sicut novellæ olivarum :
in circuitu mensæ tuæ.

Ecce, sic benedicetur homo : qui timet Dominum.

Benedicat tibi Dominus ex Sion : et videas bona Hierusalem omnibus die-bus vitæ tuæ.

Et videas filios filiorum tuorum :
pacem super Israël.

PSALMUS CXXVIII.

SÆPE expugnauerunt me a juven-tute mea : dicat nunc Israël.

Wed. Vespers.
B. V. M.,
Compline.

Sæpe expugnauerunt me a juven-tute mea : etenim non potuerunt mihi.

Supra dorsum meum fabricaverunt peccatores : prolongaverunt iniquita-tem suam.

Dominus justus concidet cervices peccatorum : confundantur et convertantur retrorsum omnes qui oderunt
Sion.

Fiant sicut fœnum tectorum : quod edificiorum
priusquam evellatur exaruit.

PSALM CXXVIII.

Respecting this Psalm also the words of St. Paul may be put into the mouth of the Psalmist, "I speak concerning Christ and His Church." The figure of marriage is one constantly used in a mystical sense of the union which God establishes between Himself and His people. So He said of old, "Thy maker is thy Husband;" so also when all things are made new the Apocalyptic vision of the glorified Church is of one "prepared as a Bride adorned for her Husband," of whom the angel said, "Come hither, I will show thee the Bride, the Lamb's Wife." [Rev.
xxi. 1. 9.]

Thus this Psalm is to be taken, in its highest aspect, as spoken of Christ, "the Man" so often pronounced to be "blessed" throughout the whole Book of Psalms. The "labours of Thine hands" are those marvellous works for which the saints praise the King of Saints [Rev. xv. 3]: "Thy wife" is the Bride of Christ, made one with Himself "the true Vine," which has become the Tree of Life beside His House on earth: "Thy children" are they who have become the children of God through their regeneration. [1 Pet. i. 3. 1 John v. 1.] "Let us be glad, and rejoice, and give honour to Him; for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and His Wife hath made herself ready."

PSALM CXXIX.

From her youth up to her later ages the world and Satan have fought against the Church, and vexed her and made her to "till up that which is behind of the afflictions of Christ." [Col. i. 24.]
As "He gave His back to the smiters" and was "wounded for our transgressions" by the scourging which He suffered in the hall of Pilate, so the persecutions which fell upon the Church in its youth were as the torture of plowers plowing upon His Mystical Body, and making long furrows with the scourge of wicked tyranny. [Cf. Acts ix. 4, 5.]

Active persecution of this kind is but one phase of that continuous opposition to the work of Christ and His Church which the Apostle speaks of as "crucifying the Son of God afresh." It will never cease until the warfare of the Church is ended, Satan defeated, and all the foes of Christ made His footstool. But as the Lord Himself suffered the plowers to plow upon His back that His sufferings might work the salvation of men, so the persecutions which fall upon the Church are for her purification. At the

The XXVII.
Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Rev. xiv. 14.
Ruth ii. 4.
Ps. cxviii. 26.

7 Whereof the mower filleth not his hand : neither he that bindeth up the sheaves his bosom.

8 So that they who go by say not so much as, The Lord prosper you : we wish you good luck in the Name of the Lord.

THE CXXX PSALM.

De profundis.

Ash-Wednesday,
Evensong.
A Penitential
Psalm.
A Gradual Psalm.
Jonah ii. 2.

OUT of the deep have I called unto thee, O Lord : Lord, hear my voice.

2 O let thine ears consider well : the voice of my complaint.

3 If thou, Lord, wilt be extreme to mark what is done amiss : O Lord, who may abide it?

4 For there is mercy with thee : therefore shalt thou be feared.

5 I look for the Lord, my soul doth wait for him : in his word is my trust.

6 My soul fleeth unto the Lord : before the morning watch, I say, before the morning watch.

7 O Israel, trust in the Lord, for with the Lord there is mercy : and with him is plenteous redemption.

8 And he shall redeem Israel : from all his sins.

THE CXXXI PSALM.

Domine, non est.

A Gradual Psalm.
Isa. xlii. 2
Matt. xi. 29.

LORD, I am not high-minded : I have no proud looks.

last He will make manifest His good Providence in this, and say to the enemies of the new as He did to those of the ancient Israel, "Hast thou not heard long ago how I have done it: and of ancient times that I have formed it: now have I brought it to pass that thou shouldst be to lay defended cities into ruinous heaps . . . . I will turn thee back by the way by which thou camest."

PSALM CXXX.

This is the sixth of the Penitential Psalms: and has also been associated time immemorial with the mourning and watching of survivors over their departed brethren. It bears much similarity to the prayer of Jonah, which begins, "I cried by reason of mine affliction unto the Lord, and He heard me: out of the belly of hell cried I, and Thou heardest my voice." And as our Lord Himself declared that the prophet Jonah was a sign or type of Him so clear as to be evident even to that wicked generation which rejected Him, we have, in this coincidence of the prayer and the Psalm, an evidence that the latter is to be understood, like the other Penitential Psalms, as the words of Christ taking our sins upon Him, and offering up a vicarious penitence, by participation in the fulness of which by His brethren their imperfect

De quo non implevit manum suam implebit qui metit: et sinum suum qui mani-pulos colligit :

Et non dixerunt qui præteribant, Benedictio Domini super vos: bene-diximus vobis in Nomine Domini.

PSALMUS CXXIX.

DE profundis clamavi ad te, Do-mine: Domine, exaudi vocem meam.

Wed., Christmas,
Vespers.
Vigils of the de-
parted.

Fiant aures tuæ intendentes: in vocem deprecationis meæ. in orationem servi tui

Si iniquitates observaveris, Domine :
Domine, quis sustinebit?

Quia apud te propitiatio est: et propter legem tuam sustinui te, Do-mine.

Sustinuit anima mea in verbo ejus :
speravit anima mea in Domino.

A custodia matutina usque ad noc-tem : speret Israël in Domino.

Quia apud Dominum misericordia :
et copiosa apud eum redemptio.

Et ipse redimet Israël: ex omnibus iniquitatibus ejus.

PSALMUS CXXX.

DOMINE, non est exaltatum cor meum: neque elati sunt oculi
mei.

Wed. Vespers.
B. V. M.,
Compline.

penitence is made acceptable to God.

This Psalm expresses, however, the cry of the penitent in the state of the departed, rather than that of the sinner in the day of probation. As Jonah from his living grave, as Christ from His Cross, so the sinner from his place in the intermediate state calls "out of the deep" upon the mercy of God, pleads the impossibility of salvation if full justice is poured out upon his sins, memorializes God of His mercy through Christ, and lifts up the aspiration of his soul to flee unto the Lord "very early in the" resurrection "morning."

Thus this Psalm finds a proper Antiphon in the words of the prophets Nahum and Zechariah. "Who can stand before His indignation, and who can abide in the fierceness of His anger? His fury is poured out like fire, and the rocks are thrown down by Him. The Lord is good, a stronghold in the Day of trouble; and He knoweth them that trust in Him." "Turn you to the stronghold, ye prisoners of hope." [Zech. ix. 12.]

PSALM CXXXI.

This is the Voice of Him Who, esteeming it no robbery to be even equal with God, yet took upon Him the form of a servant,

The XXVII

Day.

Evening

Prayer.

Matt. xviii. 1—6.

2 I do not exercise myself in great matters : which are too high for me.

3 But I refrain my soul, and keep it low, like as a child that is weaned from his mother : yea, my soul is even as a weaned child.

4 O Israel, trust in the Lord : from this time forth for evermore.

THE CXXXII PSALM.

Memento, Domine.

The XXVIII.

Day.

Morning

Prayer.

Christmas Day,

Evensong.

A Gradual Psalm.

2 Chron. vi. 7.

Eph. iii. 11.

LORD, remember David : and all his trouble ;

2 How he swore unto the Lord : and vowed a vow unto the Almighty God of Jacob ;

3 I will not come within the tabernacle of mine house : nor climb up into my bed ;

4 I will not suffer mine eyes to sleep, nor mine eye-lids to slumber : neither the temples of my head to take any rest ;

5 Until I find out a place for the temple of the Lord : an habitation for the mighty God of Jacob.

6 Lo, we heard of the same at Ephrata : and found it in the wood.

7 We will go into his tabernacle : and fall low on our knees before his footstool.

8 Arise, O Lord, into thy resting-place : thou, and the ark of thy strength.

9 Let thy priests be clothed with righteousness : and let thy saints sing with joyfulness.

10 For thy servant David's sake : turn not away the presence of thine Anointed.

Hagg. i. 4.
Luke ix. 58.

Mic. v. 2.

Numb. x. 35.
2 Chron. vi. 41.
Luke i. 68.Matt. and Evensong Suffrages.

2 Chron. vi. 42.

veiled His Divine glory in a tabernacle of flesh, and came into the world in the likeness of sinful men. Such was our Lord, and such was the Example which He set forth, "Learn of Me, for I am meek and lowly of heart." On more than one occasion the people desired to take the holy Jesus and set Him up for their King, but His ordinary practice on such occasions was to go apart from the multitude, as not exercising Himself in great matters ; and only once, immediately before His sufferings, did He permit Himself to be led in triumph. Thus His holy Example illustrated the benediction which He uttered, "Blessed are the meek : for they shall inherit the earth." [Matt. v. 5.] And as our Lord, in the Psalms, mostly speaks in the Person of His Mystical Body, so here we may doubtless see both example and precept teaching us that the Church should ever be kept apart from schemes of secular ambition, and "exercised" only in such matters as are connected with her spiritual work.

Neque ambulavi in magnis : neque in mirabilibus super me.

Si non humiliter sentiebam : sed exaltavi animam meam.

Sicut ablactatus est super matre sua : ita retributio in anima mea.

retri'bues in

Speret Israël in Domino : ex hoc nunc, et usque in sæculum.

PSALMUS CXXXI.

MEMENTO, Domine, David : et omnis mansuetudinis ejus.

Thursd., Christ mas, Vespers.

Sicut juravit Domino : votum vovit Deo Jacob :

Si introiero in tabernaculum domus meæ : si ascendero in lectum strati mei :

Si dederò somnum oculis meis : et palpebris meis dormitationem ;

Et requiem temporibus meis, donec inveniam locum Domino : tabernaculum Deo Jacob.

Ecce, audivimus eam in Ephrata : invenimus eam in campis silvæ.

Introibimus in tabernaculum ejus : adorabimus in loco ubi steterunt pedes ejus.

Introibimus . . . adoravimus

Surge, Domine, in requiem tuam : tu et arca sanctificationis tuæ.

Sacerdotes tui induantur justitiam : et sancti tui exsultent.

latentur

Propter David servum tuum : non avertas faciem Christi tui.

PSALM CXXXII.

When David sang respecting the vow which He had made to God to build Him a house [vv. 1—10], and respecting God's promise to him as to the firm establishment of his seed in Sion [vv. 11—19], he was mystically indicating (1) the Son of David tabernacling among men in the flesh that He might find out a place for the spiritual Temple, and (2) the promises of God made to his children for the sake of His Beloved Son. "But thou, Bethlehem Ephrata, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall He come forth unto Me that is to be Ruler in Israel, Whose goings forth have been from of old, from the days of eternity." [Mic. v. 2. Matt. ii. 6.]

In this Psalm, God is therefore memorialized of the "good pleasure" which the Son of God "hath purposed in Himself," and of "the eternal purpose which He purposed in Christ Jesus."

The XXVIII.

Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Acts ii. 30.
2 Chron. vi. 16,
17.

11 The Lord hath made a faithful oath unto David : and he shall not shrink from it ;

12 Of the fruit of thy body : shall I set upon thy seat.

13 If thy children will keep my covenant, and my testimonies that I shall learn them : their children also shall sit upon thy seat for evermore.

Isa. xxiv. 23.

14 For the Lord hath chosen Sion to be an habitation for himself : he hath longed for her.

Hagg. ii. 7. 9.

15 This shall be my rest for ever : here will I dwell, for I have a delight therein.

Joel ii. 19.

16 I will bless her victuals with increase : and will satisfy her poor with bread.

Rev. v. 10.
xix. 8.

17 I will deck her priests with health : and her saints shall rejoice and sing.

Luke i. 69. 79.
ii. 32.
John v. 35.

18 There shall I make the horn of David to flourish : I have ordained a lantern for mine Anointed.

John xix. 2.
Rev. xiv. 14.
xix. 12.
1 Pet. v. 4.

19 As for his enemies, I shall clothe them with shame : but upon himself shall his crown flourish.

THE CXXXIII PSALM.

Ecce, quam bonum.

A Gradual Psalm.
John xvii. 22.
1 Cor. xii. 12—14.
Eph. iv. 8—11.
1 John iv. 7.

BEHOLD, how good and joyful a thing it is : brethren, to dwell together in unity.

1 John ii. 20.

2 It is like the precious ointment upon the head, that ran down unto the beard : even unto Aaron's beard, and went down to the skirts of his clothing.

Hos. xiv. 5.

3 Like as the dew of Hermon : which fell upon the hill of Sion.

John xv. 4.

4 For there the Lord promised his blessing : and life for evermore.

Juravit Dominus David veritatem, et non frustrabitur eam : de fructu ventris tui ponam super sedem tuam.

sedem meam

Si cum<sup>4</sup>odierint filii tui testamentum meum : et testimonia mea hæc quæ docebo eos :

Et filii eorum usque in sæculum : sedebunt super sedem tuam.

sedem meam

Quoniam elegit Dominus Sion : elegit eam in habitationem sibi.

Hæc requies mea in sæculum sæculi : hic habitabo ; quoniam elegi eam.

preelegi

Viduam ejus benedicens benedicam : pauperes ejus saturabo panibus.

Sacerdotes ejus induam salutari : et sancti ejus exsultatione exsultabunt.

Illuc producam cornu David : paravi lucernam Christo meo.

Inimicos ejus induam confusione : super ipsum autem effloreat sanctificatio mea.

PSALMUS CXXXII.

ECCE, quam bonum et quam jucundum : habitare fratres in unum.

Thursd. Vespera.

Sicut unguentum in capite : quod descendit in barbam, barbam Aaron :

Quod descendit in oram vestimenti ejus : sicut ros Hermon, qui descendit in montem Sion.

Quoniam illic mandavit Dominus benedictionem : et vitam usque in sæculum.

that the WORD should become flesh and dwell among us, and that "the Lord of hosts shall reign in Mount Zion, and in Jerusalem, and before His ancients, gloriously." "He has chosen for a rest," says St. Hilary, "those of whom the Lord says in the Gospel, 'No man can come to Me, except the Father which hath sent Me draw him.' He has chosen that holy Zion, that heavenly Jerusalem, to wit, the harmonious company of the faithful, and the souls hallowed by the sacraments of the Church, to the end that in them, as in a reasonable and intelligent habitation, thoroughly cleansed, and eternal through the glory of the Resurrection, the reasonable and intelligent, and undefiled, and eternal nature of His ineffable Divinity may rest."

Dwelling in His Church here, Christ thus reigns in His chosen habitation, blessing her corn and wine with sacramental increase that they may satisfy her poor with the Bread of Life. There does God make the horn of the Son of David to flourish, and there He has ordained a City set on an hill to be a lantern for His Christ. Hereafter all things will be put under His feet, and His enemies shall be clothed with shame when they see the crown of thorns blossoming into the corona radiata of an Imperial glory, the sign of just judgment, and of everlasting dominion.

PSALM CXXXIII.

This is a song of the Church respecting the Indwelling of the Holy Ghost in the Mystical Body of Christ. It is this by which the Unity of the Church is originated and maintained through

THE CXXXIV PSALM.

Ecce nunc.

The XXVIII.
Day.
Morning
Prayer.
A Gradual Psalm.
Heb vi. 22-24.
Rev. vii. 15.
1 Chron. ix. 33.

BEHOLD now, praise the Lord :
all ye servants of the Lord ;
2 Ye that by night stand in the house of the Lord : even in the courts of the house of our God.

3 Lift up your hands in the sanctuary : and praise the Lord.

4 The Lord that made heaven and earth : give thee blessing out of Sion.

Eph. vi. 18.
2 Tim. i. 18.

THE CXXXV PSALM.

Laudate Nomen.

Col. iii. 16.

O PRAISE the Lord, laud ye the Name of the Lord : praise it,
O ye servants of the Lord ;

2 Ye that stand in the house of the Lord : in the courts of the house of our God.

3 O praise the Lord, for the Lord is gracious : O sing praises unto his Name, for it is lovely.

4 For why? the Lord hath chosen Jacob unto himself : and Israel for his own possession.

5 For I know that the Lord is great : and that our Lord is above all gods.

6 Whatsoever the Lord pleased, that did he in heaven, and in earth :
and in the sea, and in all deep places.

7 He bringeth forth the clouds from the ends of the world : and sendeth forth lightnings with the rain, bringing the winds out of his treasures.

Jer. x. 13.
xiv. 22. ii. 16.
Job xxxviii. 22.

PSALMUS CXXXIII.

ECCE, nunc, benedicite Dominum : Compline.
Maundy Thursd.
Prime.
omnes servi Domini.

Qui statis in domo Domini : in
atriis domus Dei nostri.

In noctibus extollite manus vestras in sancta : et benedicite Dominum.

Benedicat te Dominus ex Sion : qui fecit cœlum et terram.

PSALMUS CXXXIV.

LAUDATE Nomen Domini : lau- Thursd. Vespers. date, servi Dominum.

Qui statis in domo Domini : in
atriis domus Dei nostri.

Laudate Dominum, quia bonus Do- benignus est
Dominus
minus : psallite Nomini ejus, quoniam suave.

Quoniam Jacob elegit sibi Dominus :
Israël in possessionem sibi.

Quia ego cognovi quod magnus est Dominus : et Deus noster præ omnibus diis.

Omnia quæcunque voluit Dominus, fecit in cœlo et in terra : in mari et in omnibus abyssis. in abyssis

Educens nubes ab extremo terræ :
fulgura in pluviam fecit.

Qui producit ventos de thesauris the union of the members with the Head, the engrafting and growth of the branches in the Vine. Poured out first upon Christ our High Priest, to Whom "God giveth not the Spirit by measure," it flowed down from Him to the Apostles, from the Apostles to the elect of God's ancient Israel, and thence to the Gentiles. Thus the superabundance of the heavenly Gift was bestowed upon the Body of Christ as the anointing oil poured forth upon the head of Aaron, so that its unction extended to the very skirts of his clothing : as the fertilizing dew which God sends forth to water the earth, and to cause it to bring forth much fruit to perfection. By such an indwelling of the Holy Ghost was the prayer of our Lord fulfilled, "That they all may be one ; as Thou, Father, art in Me, and I in Thee, that they also may be one in us," "And after these things I heard a great voice of much people in Heaven." [Rev. xix. 1.]

PSALM CXXXIV.

The Evensong of the Church day by day has always been associated with thoughts of the night which is at hand in the unseen world. So this ancient Compline Psalm looks to the condition of those members of Christ's Body who are in the state of the departed, in the darkness of night so far as our external vision is concerned, but who, in the Light of Christ's Presence, are yet united with the Church on earth in the one work of praising the Lord : the one work of those who "are before the throne of God, and serve Him day and night in His Temple."

The Church Militant, therefore, calls to the Church in the intermediate state to continue the work of God's praise ; and offers up her supplication for the departed, that the Lord Who made Heaven and earth, being their Lord still, will grant to them the blessed benefits of Christ's Passion from out of the inexhaustible stores of His Sion. "The Lord grant unto him that he may find mercy of the Lord in that Day."

PSALM CXXXV.

The antiphonal structure of each verse of this Psalm marks it especially with the characteristic which belongs to many others, that indicated by the heavenly worship seen and heard by Isaiah : "And one cried unto another, and said." Each verse contains what we are accustomed to call a versicle and response, priests

The XXVIII.
Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Exod. xii. 12, 29.

8 He smote the first-born of Egypt :
both of man and beast.

9 He hath sent tokens and wonders into the midst of thee, O thou land of Egypt : upon Pharaoh, and all his servants.

10 He smote divers nations : and slew mighty kings ;

Deut. iii. 6, 10.

11 Schon king of the Amorites, and Og the king of Basan : and all the kingdoms of Canaan ;

12 And gave their land to be an heritage : even an heritage unto Israel his people.

13 Thy Name, O Lord, endureth for ever : so doth thy memorial, O
Lord, from one generation to another.

Deut. xxxii. 36.

14 For the Lord will avenge his people : and be gracious unto his servants.

Ps. cxv. 4.

15 As for the images of the heathen, they are but silver and gold : the work of men's hands.

Ps. cxv. 5.

16 They have mouths, and speak not : eyes have they, but they see not.

Ps. cxv. 6.

17 They have ears, and yet they hear not : neither is there any breath in their mouths.

Ps. cxv. 8

18 They that make them are like unto them : and so are all they that put their trust in them.

Ps. cxv. 9, 10.

19 Praise the Lord, ye house of Israel : praise the Lord, ye house of Aaron.

Ps. cxv. 11.

20 Praise the Lord, ye house of Levi : ye that fear the Lord, praise the Lord.

21 Praised be the Lord out of Sion : who dwelleth at Jerusalem.

THE CXXXVI PSALM.

Confitemini.

Evening
Prayer.
1 Chron. xvi. 43.
2 Chron. v. 13.

O GIVE thanks unto the Lord, for he is gracious : and his mercy
endureth for ever.

suis : qui percussit primogenita Ægypti, ab homine usque ad pecus.

Et misit signa et prodigia in medio tui, Ægypte : in Pharaonem et in omnes servos ejus.

Qui percussit gentes multas : et oc-cidit reges fortes.

Sehon regem Amorrhæorum, et Og regem Basan : et omnia regna Chanaan. Chanaan occidit

Et dedit terram eorum hæreditatem :
hæreditatem Israël populo suo.

Domine, Nomen tuum in æternum :
Domine, memoriale tuum in generatione et generationem. in sæculum sæculi

Quia judicabit Dominus populum suum : et in servis suis deprecabitur. consolabitur

Simulachra gentium argentum et aurum : opera manuum hominum.

Os habent, et non loquentur : oculos habent, et non videbunt.

Aures habent, et non audient : neque enim est spiritus in ore ipsorum. non audient nares habent et non odorabunt. Manus habent et non palpabunt, pedes habent et non ambulabunt. Non clamabunt in gut-ture suo neque enim est spiritus, &c.

Similes illis fiant qui faciunt ea :
et omnes qui confidunt in eis.

Domus Israël, benedicite Dominum : domus Aaron, benedicite Dominum.

Domus Levi, benedicite Dominum : qui timetis Dominum, benedicite Dominum.

Benedictus Dominus ex Sion : qui habitat in Hierusalem.

PSALMUS CXXXV.

CONFITEMINI Domino, quoniam bonus : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus. *Sunday Lauds, Sept. to Easter.
Thursd. Vespers. in sæculum*

and people "teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs." This is most conspicuous in the first and last three verses, but the others also are evidently intended to be "cast," as it has been said, "from one to the other;" and in carrying out this purpose the Psalmist has been following a Divine pattern, shown to him in the mount of God.

In this Psalm the Church again praises God for His continuous mercy and goodness towards her in the days of His ancient as in those of His new Israel : and the greatness of this mercy is set forth by such references to the majesty and power of God as declare throughout that "the Lord thy God giveth thee not this good land to possess it for thy righteousness," but for His holy Name's sake, that "great Name" which He "will sanctify." [Deut. ix. 6. Ezek. xxxvi. 22.] And as it was a perpetual subject of rejoicing among God's ancient people that He had thus chosen them from among all nations as a people among whom He might dwell and manifest forth His glory, so the Presence of Christ in His Church is still the chief subject of praise. "What-

The XXVIII.
Day.
Evening
Prayer.

2 O give thanks unto the God of all gods : for his mercy endureth for ever.

Exod. xv. 11.

3 O thank the Lord of all lords : for his mercy endureth for ever.

Prov. iii. 19, 20.

4 Who only doeth great wonders : for his mercy endureth for ever.

Gen. 1. 2.
Isa. lv. 1.
John vii. 37.

5 Who by his excellent wisdom made the heavens : for his mercy endureth for ever.

Gen. 1. 16—18.

6 Who laid out the earth above the waters : for his mercy endureth for ever.

John i. 9.

7 Who hath made great lights : for his mercy endureth for ever ;

Isa. lx. 20.
Dan. xii. 3.
Matt. v. 14.

8 The sun to rule the day : for his mercy endureth for ever ;

9 The moon and the stars to govern the night : for his mercy endureth for ever.

Exod. xii. 29.

10 Who smote Egypt with their first-born : for his mercy endureth for ever ;

Exod. xii. 37.

11 And brought out Israel from among them : for his mercy endureth for ever ;

Exod. vi. 6.

12 With a mighty hand, and stretched out arm : for his mercy endureth for ever.

Exod. xiv. 21.

13 Who divided the Red sea in two parts : for his mercy endureth for ever ;

Exod. xiv. 22, 29.

14 And made Israel to go through the midst of it : for his mercy endureth for ever.

Exod. xiv. 27.

15 But as for Pharaoh and his host, he overthrew them in the Red sea : for his mercy endureth for ever.

16 Who led his people through the wilderness : for his mercy endureth for ever.

Confitemini Deo deorum : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

Confitemini Domino dominorum : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

Qui facit mirabilia magna solus : scilicet quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

Qui fecit cœlos in intellectu : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

Qui firmavit terram super aquas : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

Qui fecit luminaria magna : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

Solem in potestatem diei : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

Lunam et stellas in potestatem noctis : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

Qui percussit Ægyptum cum primogenitis eorum : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

Qui eduxit Israël de medio eorum : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

In manu potenti et brachio excelso : manu fortis quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

Qui divisit mare Rubrum in divisiones : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

Et eduxit Israël per medium ejus : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

Et excussit Pharaonem et virtutem exercitus ejus in mari Rubro : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

Qui traduxit populum suum per desertum. Qui eduxit aquam de petra rupis. Qui percussit quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

soever the Lord pleased, that did He in Heaven and in earth, and in the sea, and in all deep places," but He condescended to come down and take Human Nature upon Him, and, considering not His own Almighty and irresistible will alone, took pity also upon a fallen world. "Behold, the heaven and heaven of heavens cannot contain Thee; how much less this house that I have builded! Yet have Thou respect unto the prayer of Thy Servant, and to His supplication, O Lord My God."

PSALM CXXXVI.

God is here praised as the Creator, Preserver, and Giver of Life, and we are taught by the third and the last verses to offer up the Psalm as a tribute of praise to Him "by Whom all things were made," and by Whom the Light and Life of grace came into the world; to Him Whom the Church in Heaven praises as "King of kings, and Lord of lords."

Thus interpreted, the Psalm divides itself (after the Introductory verses) into three sections. In the first section [vv. 4—9] the marvels of Creation are set forth as tokens of the mercy of the Lord: a mercy whose objects may extend far beyond the boundaries of our own world, but of which our own experience gives us abundant reason to sing that it endureth for ever. But the great wonders of the natural world are types and symbols of those in the spiritual world. The heavens are the glorified Church: the earth is the Church in its militant condition. And because the Militant Church is that wherein souls are made fit for the Church glorified, therefore it is laid out above (or founded on) the waters of grace, wherein all souls are new born, and respecting which the invitation is ever going forth, "Ho! every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters." "If any man is athirst, let him come unto Me, and drink." The "great lights" are the Sun of Righteousness, "Light of Light," and the "lesser

The XXVIII.

Day.
Evening
Prayer.

17 Who smote great kings : for his mercy endureth for ever ;

18 Yea, and slew mighty kings : for his mercy endureth for ever ;

Deut. iii. 6.

19 Schon king of the Amorites : for his mercy endureth for ever ;

Deut. iii. 11.

20 And Og the king of Basan : for his mercy endureth for ever ;

21 And gave away their land for an heritage : for his mercy endureth for ever ;

22 Even for an heritage unto Israel his servant : for his mercy endureth for ever.

23 Who remembered us when we were in trouble : for his mercy endureth for ever ;

24 And hath delivered us from our enemies : for his mercy endureth for ever.

John vi. 51.

25 Who giveth food to all flesh : for his mercy endureth for ever.

26 O give thanks unto the God of heaven : for his mercy endureth for ever.

27 O give thanks unto the Lord of lords : for his mercy endureth for ever.

THE CXXXVII PSALM.

Super flumina.

Rev. xvii. 1—5.

BY the waters of Babylon we sat down and wept : when we remembered thee, O Sion.Rev. v. 8. xiv. 2.
xv. 2.

2 As for our harps, we hanged them up : upon the trees that are therein.

3 For they that led us away captive, required of us then a song, and melody, in our heaviness : Sing us one of the songs of Sion.

light," the Church, which derives all her light from Him, that she may shed it abroad on men during the "night" of His absence from their sight: the stars are they of whom the prophet said, "They that turn many to righteousness" shall shine "as the stars for ever and ever," and of whom our Lord said, "Ye are the light of the world."

In the second section [vv. 10—22] the mercy of the Lord is magnified for delivering human nature from the power of the Evil One, and the Church from the opposition of Antichrist: the progress of His people being symbolized by the triumphant march of Israel in the face of all her enemies; and the foes of Christ and His Church,—Satan and all his Antichristian agents,—by Pharaoh, the great and mighty kings, Schon and Og. Thus is signified how the "Prince of this world" is to be deprived of that dominion over which he has exercised his power since the Fall, and how the heritage is to be given to Israel God's servant, the Lord Jesus, and to His Mystical Body.

Qui percussit reges magnos : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

Et occidit reges fortes : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

Schon regem Amorrhæorum : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

Et Og regem Basan : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

Et dedit terram eorum hæreditatem : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

Hæreditatem Israël servo suo : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

Qui in humilitate nostra memor fuit nostri : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

Et redemit nos ab inimicis nostris : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus. de manu inimicorum nostrorumQui dat escam omni carni : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus. Qui dedit Confitemini Deo cœli : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

Confitemini Domino dominorum : quoniam in æternum misericordia ejus.

PSALMUS CXXXVI.

SUPER flumina Babylonis, illic sedimus et flevimus : dum recordamur tui, Sion. Thursd. Vespers.

In salicibus in medio ejus : suspendimus organa nostra.

Quia illic interrogaverunt nos : qui captivos duxerunt nos, verba canticum :

Et qui abduxerunt nos : Hymnum cantate nobis de canticis Sion.

The third section consists of verses 23, 24, and 25, and is characterized by the latter verse especially, in which is signified the mercy of the Second Person of the Blessed Trinity in giving Himself to be the "Living Bread," given for "the life of the world."

Thus recounting the mercies of her Saviour, the Church returns to her first strain of praise, "O give thanks unto the Lord of lords, for His mercy endureth for ever."

PSALM CXXXVII.

The pathos of this sorrowful strain looks beyond the exile and captivity of the Jews, and sets before God the longing of His Church for that Paradise out of which she was driven by the Fall, but to which she hopes to return after the destruction of the mystical Babylon [Rev. xviii.—xxii.]—that great world of confusion which has broken up the order and harmony of the Creator's good work.

In the Sion of God's Presence the four-and-twenty elders are

The XXVIII.
Day.
Evening
Prayer.

4 How shall we sing the Lord's song : in a strange land ?

5 If I forget thee, O Jerusalem : let my right hand forget her cunning.

Job xxix. 10.

6 If I do not remember thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth : yea, if I prefer not Jerusalem in my mirth.

Lam. iv. 22.
Ezek. xxv. 12—14.

7 Remember the children of Edom, O Lord, in the day of Jerusalem : how they said, Down with it, down with it even to the ground.

Rev. xviii. 10. 24.

8 O daughter of Babylon, wasted with misery : yea, happy shall he be that rewardeth thee, as thou hast served us.

Isa. xlii. 16.
Nahum iii. 10.
Rev. xviii. 6. 21.
Matt. xxi. 44.

9 Blessed shall he be, that taketh thy children : and throweth them against the stones.

THE CXXXVIII PSALM.

Confitebor tibi.

Heb. xii. 22.
1 Cor. viii. 5.

I WILL give thanks unto thee, O Lord, with my whole heart : even before the gods will I sing praise unto thee.

2 I will worship toward thy holy temple, and praise thy Name, because of thy lovingkindness and truth : for thou hast magnified thy Name and thy Word above all things.

Eph. iii. 16. 20.

3 When I called upon thee, thou heardest me : and enduedst my soul with much strength.

4 All the kings of the earth shall praise thee, O Lord : for they have heard the words of thy mouth.

Micah iv. 1, 2.
Isa. ii. 2, 3.

5 Yea, they shall sing in the ways of the Lord : that great is the glory of the Lord.

Quomodo cantabimus canticum Domini : in terra aliena ?

Si oblitus fuero tui, Hierusalem : oblivioni detur dextera mea.

obliscatur me dext.

Adhæreat lingua mea faucibus meis : si non meminero tui :

Si non proposuero Hierusalem : in principio lætitiæ meæ.

Memor esto, Domine, filiorum Edom : in die Hierusalem ;

Qui dicunt, Exinanite, exinanite : usque ad fundamentum in ea.

Filia Babylonis misera : beatus, qui retribuet tibi retributionem tuam, quam retribuisti nobis.

Beatus qui tenebit : et allidet pavulos tuos ad petram.

PSALMUS CXXXVII.

CONFITEBOR tibi, Domine, in toto corde meo : quoniam audisti verba oris mei.

Fridd., St Michael Vespers. Vigils of the departed, Name of Jesus, 1st Vespers, exaudisti omnia verba

In conspectu angelorum psallam tibi : adorabo ad templum sanctum tuum, et confitebor Nomini tuo.

Super misericordia tua et veritate tua : quoniam magnificasti super omne Nomen sanctum tuum.

super nos

In quacunque die invocavero te, exaudi me : multiplicabis in anima mea virtutem.

virtutem tuam

Confiteantur tibi, Domine, omnes reges terræ : quia audierunt omnia verba oris tui.

Et cantent in viis Domini : quoniam magna est gloria Domini.

in canticis Domini represented as "having every one of them harps," the New Song is "the voice of harpers harping with their harps," the martyrs "stand on the sea of glass having the harps of God," and when Babylon is fallen "the voice of harpers" is heard in her no more. Thus is symbolized the restoration to the redeemed of the joys from which the Church has been exiled while it dwelt in the "strange land" of a world which was held captive in the bondage of Satan. And while in that land, she is ever looking forward to the bliss of a restored Paradise ; a Jerusalem, "new" indeed, yet such as that happy place in which mankind could at first sing the Lord's song to the praise of their Creator in His Visible Presence, the Object of their worship speaking to them, and "walking in the garden."

"Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world," is thus the tone of this Psalm. The mystical Babylon is ever at enmity against God, and the prayer of His Church is ever that all may be destroyed which is not for His glory. Since, then,

"in her was found the blood of prophets and of saints, and of all that were slain upon the earth:" therefore the voice comes even from Heaven, "Reward her even as she rewarded you, and double unto her double according to her works."

PSALM CXXXVIII.

This Psalm may have been written by David when he was living as an exile in an idolatrous kingdom, and when he would be the more fervently calling upon God, because walking in the midst of trouble. It may have been upon the lips of the three young confessors as they walked in the midst of the furnace of Nebuchadnezzar : or of Daniel as he knelt three times a day before his God as aforetime, with his face toward Jerusalem, notwithstanding the cruel devices of his enemies to put him to death : or it may have been the song of those who sang praises at midnight in the prison, when they were brought before rulers and kings for Christ's sake. But more than all it is the voice of Christ

The XXVIII.

Day.
Evening
Prayer.

6 For though the Lord be high, yet hath he respect unto the lowly :
as for the proud, he beholdeth them afar off.

Isa. xliii. 2.
Heb. iv. 15.

7 Though I walk in the midst of trouble, yet shalt thou refresh me :
thou shalt stretch forth thy hand upon the furiousness of mine enemies, and thy right hand shall save me.

Phil. ii. 6.

8 The Lord shall make good his lovingkindness toward me : yea, thy mercy, O Lord, endureth for ever ; despise not then the works of thine own hands.

THE CXXXIX PSALM.

Domine, probasti.

The XXIX.

Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Joh xlii. 9.
xxx. 4.
Heb iv. 13.

O LORD, thou hast searched me out, and known me : thou know-est my down-sitting, and mine uprising ; thou understandest my thoughts long before.

2 Thou art about my path, and about my bed : and spiest out all my ways.

3 For lo, there is not a word in my tongue : but thou, O Lord, knowest it altogether.

Matt. xx. 1.

4 Thou hast fashioned me behind and before : and laid thine hand upon me.

5 Such knowledge is too wonderful and excellent for me : I cannot attain unto it.

6 Whither shall I go then from thy Spirit : or whither shall I go then from thy presence ?

Jer. xxiii. 23.
Amos ix. 2.

7 If I climb up into heaven, thou art there : if I go down to hell, thou art there also.

Quoniam excelsus Dominus, et hu-milia respicit : et alta a longe cognoscit.

Si ambulavero in medio tribulationis, vivificabis me : et super iram inimicorum meorum extendisti manum tuam, et salvum me fecit dextera tua.

Dominus retribuet pro me ; Domine, misericordia tua in sæculum : opera manuum tuarum ne despicias.

PSALMUS CXXXVIII.

DOMINE, probasti me, et cogno-visti me : tu cognovisti ses-sionem meam et resurrectionem meam.

Friday, App. and Evv., Vespers.
Commendation of Souls.

Intellexisti cogitationes meas de longe : semitam meam et funiculum meum investigasti.

directionem meam invest.

Et omnes vias meas prævidisti : quia non est sermo in lingua mea.

non est dolus

Ecce, Domine, tu cognovisti omnia, novissima et antiqua : tu formasti me, et posuisti super me manum tuam.

Mirabilis facta est scientia tua ex me : confortata est, et non potero ad eam.

Quo ibo a Spiritu tuo ? et quo a facie tua fugiam ?

Si ascendero in cælum, tu illic es :
si descendero in infernum, ades.

speaking for Himself and for His Mystical Body, praising and thanking God because He has magnified His Name and His Incarnate WORD above all things, even through the trouble and affliction of the Cross. For when He called upon His Father, His voice was heard, and His soul was endued with strength to subdue all the kings of the earth to His allegiance, so that they should "sing in the ways of the Lord," acknowledging that the kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of the Lord and of His Christ.

And though the Church walk in the midst of trouble, as Christ did, she is the work of the Saviour's "own hands," Whose mercy endureth for ever, and Who will not despise or forsake that which He has new created.

PSALM CXXXIX.

The ancient Introit of the Church of England for Low Sunday applied a portion of this Psalm to our Lord's Resurrection :

"When I wake up, I am present with Thee. Alleluia. Thou hast laid Thine hand upon Me. Alleluia. Such knowledge is too wonderful for Me. Alleluia. O Lord, Thou hast searched Me out and known Me : Thou knowest My down-sitting and Mine up-rising." This beautiful use of the first and fifth verses indicates to us the primary spiritual interpretation of the Psalm as relating to the Incarnation of our Blessed Lord, and to the formation of His Mystical Body, the Church. "Conceived by the Holy Ghost, born of the Virgin Mary," the Human Nature of the holy Jesus attained the climax of that mystery attending the origin and growth of all our kind, and of none could it be so fully said, "Thou hast fashioned Me behind and before : and laid Thine hand upon Me." It is, therefore, as if the Human Nature was speaking to the Divine Nature : "Thou hast fashioned Me by the overshadowing with which Thou hast covered Me in My Mother's womb ; Thou hast united Me inseparably with the overshadowing Spirit ; Thou hast taken Me into Thee, so that I cannot be sepa-

The XXIX.
Day.
Morning
Prayer.

8 If I take the wings of the morning : and remain in the uttermost parts of the sea ;

9 Even there also shall thy hand lead me : and thy right hand shall hold me.

Gen. iii. 8.

10 If I say, Peradventure the darkness shall cover me : then shall my night be turned to day.

Isa. l. 10.
Job xxxiv. 22.

11 Yea, the darkness is no darkness with thee, but the night is as clear as the day : the darkness and light to thee are both alike.

Eph. iv. 24.

12 For my reins are thine : thou hast covered me in my mother's womb.

Job x. 11.

13 I will give thanks unto thee, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made : marvellous are thy works, and that my soul knoweth right well.

EccI. xi. 5.
Eph. iv. 16.

14 My bones are not hid from thee : though I be made secretly, and fashioned beneath in the earth.

15 Thine eyes did see my substance, yet being imperfect : and in thy book were all my members written ;

Rom. iv. 17.

16 Which day by day were fashioned : when as yet there was none of them.

17 How dear are thy counsels unto me, O God : O how great is the sum of them !

18 If I tell them, they are more in number than the sand : when I wake up, I am present with thee.

19 Wilt thou not slay the wicked, O God : depart from me, ye blood-thirsty men.

Job xxi. 15.

20 For they speak unrighteously against thee : and thine enemies take thy Name in vain.

Si sumpsero pennas meas diluculo : ante lucem . . . in et habitavero in extremis maris ; postremo maris

Etenim illuc manus tua deducet me : et tenebit me dextera tua.

Et dixi, Forsitan tenebræ conculcabit me : et nox illuminatio mea in deliciis meis.

Quia tenebræ non obscurabuntur a te, et nox sicut dies illuminabitur : sicut tenebræ ejus, ita et lumen ejus.

Quia tu possedisti renes meos : sus- tu Dominus cepisti me de utero matris meæ.

Confitebor tibi, quia terribiliter mag- tibi Domine nificatus es : mirabilia opera tua, et mira . . . novis anima mea cognoscet nimis. nimis

Non est occultatum os meum a te, quod fecisti in occulto : et substantia mea in inferioribus terræ.

Imperfectum meum viderunt oculi tui, et in libro tuo omnes scribentur : dies formabuntur, et nemo in eis. firmabuntur

Mihi autem nimis honorificati sunt amici tui, Deus : nimis confortatus est principatus eorum.

Dinumerabo eos, et super arenam multiplicabuntur : exsurrexi, et adhuc sum tecum.

Si occideris, Deus, peccatores : viri sanguinum declinate a me.

Quia dicitis in cogitatione : Accipient in vanitate civitates suas.

rated from Thee, whether I ascend to Heaven or descend to Hell, whether I go forth to the rising of the morning sun, or to the darkness left by his departure in the west ; therefore I will offer up Myself as a never-ceasing Eucharist to Thee, declaring the marvellousness of Thy works in creating a New Man, after God, in righteousness and true holiness." The prophet Isaiah gave to the Church, therefore, a perpetual Antiphon to this Psalm when he said, "Behold, a Virgin shall conceive, and bear a Son, and shall call His Name Immanuel." [Isa. vii. 14.] "God with us." [Matt. i. 23.]

"But the actual fleshly Body of Christ was itself the type of His Mystical Body, the Church, and is as such continually represented in Scripture. His bodily agonies on the cross were a warning of the afflictions to which the Church should be continually exposed, always delivered unto death for Jesus' sake ; His unbroken bones betokened the undiminished strength which throughout her afflictions the Church should retain ; the blood and water which flowed from His pierced side exhibited to view what subsequent generations cherished in the two Christian sacraments. It would be impossible, therefore, with due regard to the analogy of other Scripture-teaching, to read in the Psalm before us a prophecy of the Incarnation of Christ, and yet not to behold in it also a picture of that more spiritual Body of His, in which, and in the different members of which, His glory was to be displayed forth to the world from the period of His first to that of His second coming. . . . In secret, in the darkness of His own grave, that Church was fearfully and wonderfully made : the Corn had to fall into the ground and die ere its much fruit could be brought forth. Then, after His Resurrection from the dead, and Ascension to His Father in Heaven,—'I have awaked, and am again with Thee,'—did His new life on earth in the person of the company of His redeemed people begin. It was then, when in His own Person He had left the world and gone to the Father, that He openly contemplates both the preciousness and the number of the

The XXIX.
Day.
Morning
Prayer.
2 John 2, 10.

21 Do not I hate them, O Lord, that hate thee : and am not I grieved with those that rise up against thee ?

22 Yea, I hate them right sore : even as though they were mine enemies.

23 Try me, O God, and seek the ground of my heart : prove me, and examine my thoughts.

24 Look well if there be any way of wickedness in me : and lead me in the way everlasting.

THE CXL PSALM.

Eripe me, Domine.

DELIVER me, O Lord, from the evil man : and preserve me from the wicked man.

2 Who imagine mischief in their hearts : and stir up strife all the day long.

3 They have sharpened their tongues like a serpent : adder's poison is under their lips.

4 Keep me, O Lord, from the hands of the ungodly : preserve me from the wicked men, who are purposed to overthrow my goings.

5 The proud have laid a snare for me, and spread a net abroad with cords : yea, and set traps in my way.

6 I said unto the Lord, Thou art my God : hear the voice of my prayers, O Lord.

7 O Lord God, thou strength of my health : thou hast covered my head in the day of battle.

8 Let not the ungodly have his desire, O Lord : let not his mischievous imagination prosper, lest they be too proud.

9 Let the mischief of their own lips fall upon the head of them : that compass me about.

Nonne qui oderunt te, Domine, oderam : et super inimicos tuos tabesceram ?

Perfecto odio oderam illos : inimici facti sunt mihi.

Proba me, Deus, et scito cor meum : interroga me, et cognosce semitas meas.

Et vide, si via iniquitatis in me est : et deduc me in via æterna.

PSALMUS CXXXIX.

ERIPE me, Domine, ab homine malo : a viro iniquo eripe me. Friday, Maundy Thursd., Good Friday, Vespers iniquo libera me

Qui cogitaverunt iniquitates in corde : malitias in corde tota die constituebant prælia.

Acuerunt linguas suas sicut serpentis : venenum aspidum sub labiis eorum.

Custodi me, Domine, de manu peccatoris : et ab hominibus iniquis eripe me. libera

Qui cogitaverunt supplantare gressus meos : absconderunt superbi laqueum mihi.

Et funes extenderunt in laqueum : pedibus meis : juxta juxta iter scandalum posuerunt mihi.

Dixi Domino, Deus meus es tu : exaudi, Domine, vocem deprecationis orationis meæ.

Domine, Domine, virtus salutis meæ : obumbrasti super caput meum in die obumbra caput belli.

Ne tradas me, Domine, a desiderio meo peccatori : cogitaverunt contra me ; ne derelinquas me, ne forte exaltentur. ne unquam exal.

Caput circuitus eorum : labor laborum ipsorum operiet eos.

Rom. iii. 13
Matt. xxiii. 33.

Jer. xviii. 22.

Eph. vi. 17.

friends of God, the members of His Body. Their preciousness was shown by the fulness of measure in which He poured forth His gifts upon them : their number was the Divine fulfilment of the promise originally made to Abraham, 'I will make thy seed as the dust of the earth : so that if a man can number the dust of the earth, then shall thy seed also be numbered <sup>1</sup>.'

The last six verses of this Psalm illustrate what has been said respecting the Imprecations in a note on the sixty-ninth Psalm <sup>2</sup>, showing that the hatred of the Church towards recklessly impenitent sinners is a hatred of them as the enemies of her Lord ; a hatred, in fact, of their reckless sin, mingled with grief for them in respect to the consequences which such impenitence will bring upon their bodies and souls.

PSALM CXL.

This is also one of those Psalms of which the sixty-ninth is a type, wherein the full wickedness of opposition to Christ and His Church is set forth by the strength of the language which is used in

<sup>1</sup> Thrupp on the Psalms, ii. 297.

<sup>2</sup> Page 410.

The XXIX.

Day.

Morning

Prayer.

Rev. xx. 2, 3. 14,

15.

Jer. xviii 18.

James i. 26.

Job xi. 2.

10 Let hot burning coals fall upon them : let them be cast into the fire, and into the pit, that they never rise up again.

11 A man full of words shall not prosper upon the earth : evil shall hunt the wicked person to overthrow him.

12 Sure I am that the Lord will avenge the poor : and maintain the cause of the helpless.

Matt. xiii. 43.

13 The righteous also shall give thanks unto thy Name : and the just shall continue in thy sight.

THE CXLI PSALM.

Domine, clamavi.

LORD, I call upon thee, haste thee unto me : and consider my voice, when I cry unto thee.

Luke i. 10.
Rev v. 8. viii. 3.
1 Kings xviii. 36.
Matt. xxvii. 46.

2 Let my prayer be set forth in thy sight as the incense : and let the lifting up of my hands be an evening sacrifice.

3 Set a watch, O Lord, before my mouth : and keep the door of my lips.

4 O let not mine heart be inclined to any evil thing : let me not be occupied in ungodly works, with the men that work wickedness, lest I eat of such things as please them.

Zech. xiii. 6, 7.

5 Let the righteous rather smite me friendly : and reprove me.

6 But let not their precious balms break my head : yea, I will pray yet against their wickedness.

7 Let their judges be overthrown in stony places : that they may hear my words, for they are sweet.

Cadent super eos carbones, in ignem carbones ignis deicies eos : in miseriis non subsistent.

Vir linguosus non dirigetur in terra :
virum injustum mala capient in in-teritu.

Cognovi quia faciet Dominus judicium inopis : et vindictam pauperum.

Veruntamen justi confitebuntur Nomini tuo : et habitabunt recti cum vultu tuo.

PSALMUS CXL.

DOMINE, clamavi ad te, exaudi me : intende voci meæ, cum clamavero ad te.

Friday, Maundy
Thursd., Good Friday, Vespers.
voci orationis
meæ

Dirigatur oratio mea sicut incensum in conspectu tuo : elevatio manuum mearum sacrificium vespertinum.

Pone, Domine, custodiam ori meo :
et ostium circumstantiæ labiis meis.

Non declines cor meum in verba malitiæ : ad excusandas excusationes in peccatis.

Ut non . . . in ver-
bum malum

Cum hominibus operantibus iniquitatem : et non communicabo cum electis eorum.

combinabor

Corripiet me justus in misericordia, et increpabit me : oleum autem pecca-toris non impinguet caput meum.

Quoniam adhuc et oratio mea in beneplacitis eorum : absorpti sunt juncti petræ iudices eorum.

continuati petra

Audient verba mea, quoniam potuerunt : sicut crassitudo terræ erupta est super terram.

its condemnation. "The evil man," and "the wicked man," who "have sharpened their tongues like a serpent," the "ungodly," and the "proud," are all representative terms, signifying, in their most extreme sense, that Evil One whom St. Paul calls "the Wicked," the "old Serpent," whose minister is Antichrist. From the temptation of the first Adam in Paradise to the Temptation of the Second Adam in the wilderness, and thence onward in all ages of the Church until the last great Day, this Evil One is imagining mischief against Christ and His Mystical Body, so that the prayer must ever go up, "Deliver us from the Evil," until Satan and his ministers have been cast into the "bottomless pit," among the "hot burning coals" of God's never-ending displeasure.

Then the event will show that God has surely avenged the Poor: the Mystical Body of the RIGHTEOUS shall give thanks to His Name, and shall continue in His Presence for ever.

PSALM CXLI.

This is the cry of the Lord and of His Church under suffering from the first and the last persecutors. When the Lamb of God was offered up in the evening of the world's duration, and on the evening of the first Good Friday, He became the true Evening Sacrifice, Whose very attitude was that then used in prayer, a lifting up of His hands, and spreading them forth as when one spreadeth forth his hands to swim. All the day long did He stretch forth His hands to a gainsaying people, yet not in vain, for it was all the day long also in intercession with His Father. And although there was a supernatural darkness over body and soul for a time, the incense of His supplication arose before the throne, and when the Evening Sacrifice had been offered, the prophecy was fulfilled, "It shall come to pass that at evening time it shall be light." [Zech. xiv. 7.]

The XXIX.

Day.

Morning

Prayer.

1 Sam. xxii. 16—

19.

Ezek. xxxvii. 2.

Luke xxi. 28.

Jer. xxxi. 15.

Isa. lxvii. 14.

Job xviii. 8—10.

8 Our bones lie scattered before the pit : like as when one breaketh and heweth wood upon the earth.

9 But mine eyes look unto thee, O Lord God : in thee is my trust, O cast not out my soul.

10 Keep me from the snare that they have laid for me : and from the traps of the wicked doers.

11 Let the ungodly fall into their own nets together : and let me ever escape them.

THE CXLII PSALM.

Voce mea ad Dominum.

Evening

Prayer.

Ps. lxxvii. 1—3.

I CRIED unto the Lord with my voice : yea, even unto the Lord did I make my supplication.

2 I poured out my complaints before him : and shewed him of my trouble.

Matt. xxvii. 38—

44.

3 When my spirit was in heaviness, thou knewest my path : in the way wherein I walked have they privily laid a snare for me.

Matt. xxvi. 56.

Luke xxiii. 49.

4 I looked also upon my right hand : and saw there was no man that would know me.

Matt. viii. 20.

5 I had no place to flee unto : and no man cared for my soul.

Luke xxiii. 46.

6 I cried unto thee, O Lord, and said : Thou art my hope, and my portion in the land of the living.

Isa. lxiii. 9.

7 Consider my complaint : for I am brought very low.

8 O deliver me from my persecutors : for they are too strong for me.

1 Sam. xxii. 1.

Isa. liii. 11.

9 Bring my soul out of prison, that I may give thanks unto thy Name : which thing if thou wilt grant me, then shall the righteous resort unto my company.

Dissipata sunt omnia ossa nostra sunt ossa secus infernum : quia ad te, Domine, Domine, oculi mei ; in te speravi, non auferas animam meam.

Custodi me a laqueo quem statuerunt mihi : et a scandalis operantium operantibus iniquitatem.

Cadent in retinaculo ejus peccatores : singulariter sum ego donec transeam.

PSALMUS CXLII.

VOCE mea ad Dominum clamavi : Friday, Maundy voce mea ad Dominum depre- Thursd., Good catus sum. Friday, Vespers.

Effundo in conspectu ejus orationem meam : et tribulationem meam ante ipsum pronuntio.

In deficiendo ex me spiritum meum : et tu cognovisti semitas meas.

In via hac qua ambulabam : absconderunt laqueum mihi.

Considerabam ad dexteram, et videbam : et non erat qui cognosceret me.

Periit fuga a me : et non est qui requirat animam meam.

Clamavi ad te, Domine ; dixi, Tu es spes mea : portio mea in terra viventium.

Intende ad deprecationem meam : in orationem quia humiliatus sum nimis.

Libera me a persequentibus me : quia confortati sunt super me.

Educ de custodia animam meam de carcere ad confitendum Nomini tuo : me expectant justi, donec retribuas mihi.

For the Church this is a continual hymn of exposition upon the words of Christ respecting the troubles of the last days : " In your patience possess ye your souls " . . . " when these things begin to come to pass, then look up and lift up your heads, for your redemption draweth nigh." [Luke xxi. 19. 28.] It is better for the Church and for each particular member of Christ to suffer chastisement for a season in the mercy of a righteous Father, than to gain a temporary prosperity by partaking of the " dainty and goodly things " of Babylon and Antichrist, and so fall into the snare and the net from which there is no escape. [Rev. xvii. and xviii.]

PSALM CXLII.

When David thus poured out his complaints to the Lord, and showed Him of his trouble, he prefigured the holy Son of David of Whom it is said, " In all their affliction He was afflicted." It is supposed that this Psalm was sung by David when he was in the cave of Adullam, as was also the fifty-seventh<sup>1</sup> : and if so, the circumstances in which he was may have contributed their typical character to it, since it evidently presents to us the Voice

<sup>1</sup> See p. 393.

THE CXLIII PSALM.

Domine, exaudi.

The XXIX.

Day.

Evening

Prayer.

Ash-Wednesday,

Evensong.

Penitential

Psalm.

[A daily Morning

Psalm of the

Eastern Ch.]

Gen. iii. 15.

Lam. iii. 6.

HEAR my prayer, O Lord, and consider my desire : hearken unto me for thy truth and righteousness' sake.

2 And enter not into judgement with thy servant : for in thy sight shall no man living be justified.

3 For the enemy hath persecuted my soul ; he hath smitten my life down to the ground : he hath laid me in the darkness, as the men that have been long dead.

4 Therefore is my spirit vexed within me : and my heart within me is desolate.

5 Yet do I remember the time past ; I muse upon all thy works : yea, I exercise myself in the works of thy hands.

John xix. 28.

6 I stretch forth my hands unto thee : my soul gaspeth unto thee as a thirsty land.

Matt. xxvii. 46.

Ps. xxviii. 1.

lxxxviii. 3.

7 Hear me, O Lord, and that soon, for my spirit waxeth faint : hide not thy face from me, lest I be like unto them that go down into the pit.

Luke xxiii. 46.

8 O let me hear thy lovingkindness betimes in the morning, for in thee is my trust : shew thou me the way that I should walk in, for I lift up my soul unto thee.

Ps. xxxi. 22.

9 Deliver me, O Lord, from mine enemies : for I flee unto thee to hide me.

10 Teach me to do the thing that pleaseth thee, for thou art my God : let thy loving Spirit lead me forth into the land of righteousness.

PSALMUS CXLII.

DOMINE, exaudi orationem meam ; Friday Lauds.
auribus percipe obsecrationem meam : in veritate tua exaudi me, in tua iustitia.

Et non intres in iudicium cum servo tuo : quia non justificabitur in conspectu tuo omnis vivens.

Quia persecutus est inimicus animam meam : humiliavit in terra vitam meam.

Collocavit me in obscuris sicut mortuos sæculi : et anxius est super me spiritus meus, in me turbatum est cor meum.

Memor fui dierum antiquorum, meditatus sum in omnibus operibus tuis : in factis manuum tuarum meditabar.

Expandi manus meas ad te : anima mea sicut terra sine aqua tibi.

Velociter exaudi me, Domine : defecit spiritus meus.

Non avertas faciem tuam a me : et similis ero descendentibus in lacum.

Auditam fac mihi mane misericordiam tuam : quia in te speravi.

speravi Domine

Notam fac mihi viam in qua ambulem : quia ad te levavi animam meam. ad te Domine

Eripe me de inimicis meis, Domine ; ad te confugi : doce me facere voluntatem tuam, quia Deus meus es tu.

Spiritus tuus bonus deducet me in in via recta terram rectam : propter Nomen tuum, Domine, vivificabis me in æquitate tua.

of Christ crying unto the Lord out of that darkness which was to Him as the "prison" of sinners<sup>1</sup>.

Thus, from His Cross, and in the greatest depth of His sorrows, the suffering Saviour cries unto the Lord, beseeching Him not to forsake Him, but to receive His Spirit. And in that darkest hour even, He can see of the travail of His soul and be satisfied, knowing that when that soul is brought out of prison, the great Eucharistic Sacrifice for all the world will have been offered, and that a vast congregation of those made righteous by it will gather to their Saviour's company, in His Mystical Body.

So, also, has the Church often been partaker in the sufferings of Christ to such an extent as to be able to take up the words spoken by Him in a great degree of their fulness. And as the Head was delivered from His persecutors to give thanks to God, in like manner will the faithfulness of His Church prevail, in the mercy of God, to her final rescue from sorrow, however strong her persecutors may be.

PSALM CXLIII.

This is the seventh, and last, of the Penitential Psalms. Like the preceding Psalm, it is the Voice of Christ speaking to us out of the anguish of the Cross, when God's ancient word was fulfilled by the Serpent bruising the heel of the Woman's Seed, and laying Him in the darkness as the men that have been long dead in the grave of their sin. From that Cross, stretching forth His wounded hands in supplication, He prayed to God as the One Penitent on Whom all the sins of mankind were gathered together, and Whose Voice was bewailing them in such tones of sorrow as none else could use, since only the Innocent, "made sin for us," could so feel the awful burden.

<sup>1</sup> See note on Ps. lxxxviii. p. 440.

The XXXIX.
Day.
Evening
Prayer.

11 Quicken me, O Lord, for thy Name's sake : and for thy righteousness' sake bring my soul out of trouble.

12 And of thy goodness slay mine enemies : and destroy all them that vex my soul ; for I am thy servant.

THE CXLIV PSALM.

Benedictus Dominus.

The XXX. Day.
Morning
Prayer.

2 Sam. xxii. 35.
40.

2 Sam. xxii. 2, 3.

BLESSED be the Lord my strength : who teacheth my hands to war, and my fingers to fight ;

2 My hope and my fortress, my castle and deliverer, my defender in whom I trust : who subdueth my people that is under me.

3 Lord, what is man, that thou hast such respect unto him : or the son of man, that thou so regardest him ?

4 Man is like a thing of nought : his time passeth away like a shadow.

5 Bow thy heavens, O Lord, and come down : touch the mountains, and they shall smoke.

6 Cast forth thy lightning, and fear them : shoot out thine arrows, and consume them.

7 Send down thine hand from above : deliver me, and take me out of the great waters, from the hand of strange children ;

8 Whose mouth talketh of vanity : and their right hand is a right hand of wickedness.

9 I will sing a new song unto thee, O God : and sing praises unto thee upon a ten-stringed lute.

2 Sam. xxii. 15.
Matt. xxviii. 2-4.
Luke xvii. 24.

2 Sam. xxii. 45.

Ps. viii. 4.
Heb. ii. 6.

Educes de tribulatione animam meam : et in misericordia tua disperdes omnes inimicos meos.

Et perdes omnes qui tribulant animam meam : quoniam ego servus tuus sum.

PSALMUS CXLIII.

BENEDICTUS Dominus Deus meus, qui docet manus meas ad prælium : et digitos meos ad bellum.

Misericordia mea et refugium meum : susceptor meus et liberator meus.

Protector meus, et in ipso speravi : qui subdit populum meum sub me.

subjiciens populum sub me

Domine, quid est homo, quia innotuisti ei ? aut filius hominis, quia reputas eum ?

Homo vanitati similis factus est : dies ejus sicut umbra prætereunt.

Domine, inclina cælos tuos, et descende : tange montes, et fumigabunt.

Fulgura coruscationem, et dissipabis eos : emitte sagittas tuas, et conturbabis eos.

Coruscan coruscationes tuas

Emitte manum tuam de alto ; eripe me, et libera me de aquis multis : et de manu filiorum alienorum.

Quorum os locutum est vanitatem : et dextera eorum dextera iniquitatis.

Deus, canticum novum cantabo tibi : in psalterio decachordō psallam tibi.

But the words of our holy Saviour's vicarious penitence are become a fountain of penitential expression for those whose sins are their own. The Enemy has persecuted their soul, smitten their spiritual life down to the ground, and laid them in the darkness of that sinful state in which the Vision of God is faint or lost. Then, in the words of their Saviour, they lay their vexed spirits and desolate hearts at the footstool of a merciful God, and stretch forth their hands to Him, beseeching Him not to hide His face from them for ever, but to let them hear His loving-kindness in the morning of the resurrection : to quicken their sin-stricken souls in this life, that they may arise to everlasting life in "the land of righteousness."

PSALM CXLIV.

David here prefigures the Captain of our salvation. So among his last words, when he said, "Thou hast girded me with strength unto the battle," he added such expressions regarding the future as could only be true of his Lord : "Thou hast also delivered me from the strivings of my people ; Thou hast kept me to be the head of the heathen : a people which I knew not shall serve me." David's conflict with the lion, the bear, and the Philistine champion, were all symbolical of the contest between Christ and the powers of evil, in the days of His flesh, and in the life of His Mystical Body. With the shepherd's staff of His Incarnate Body, and the "five smooth stones" of His wounds, His hands were taught to war and His fingers to fight, coming before the powers of evil not with sword and spear, but in the Name of the Lord of hosts.

This Psalm thus points to our Lord's work of victory by means of the Incarnation. "Man is like a thing of nought," but the Son of God became the Son of Man, and raised human nature to its former place in the harmony of God's Kingdom. The Hand was sent down from above, and delivered our nature from the hand of the oppressor, lifting it out of the great waters in which it was almost overwhelmed. The "everlasting arms" supported it, and the "right hand of wickedness" lost its power. Then was

The XXX. Day.
Morning
Prayer.
Rev. xix. 11—16.

10 Thou hast given victory unto kings : and hast delivered David thy servant from the peril of the sword.

11 Save me, and deliver me from the hand of strange children : whose mouth talketh of vanity, and their right hand is a right hand of iniquity.

Eph. ii. 20—22.
1 Pet. ii. 4, 5.

12 That our sons may grow up as the young plants : and that our daughters may be as the polished corners of the temple.

Matt. iii. 12.
John x. 1—16.
Heb. xiii. 20.

13 That our garners may be full and plenteous with all manner of store : that our sheep may bring forth thousands and ten thousands in our streets.

1 Cor. ix. 9, 10.
1 Tim. v. 18.

14 That our oxen may be strong to labour, that there be no decay : no leading into captivity, and no complaining in our streets.

15 Happy are the people that are in such a case : yea, blessed are the people who have the Lord for their God.

THE CXLV PSALM.

Exaltabo te, Deus.

Whitsunday,
Evensong.
Commemoration of Founders and Benefactors.

I WILL magnify thee, O God, my King : and I will praise thy Name for ever and ever.

2 Every day will I give thanks unto thee : and praise thy Name for ever and ever.

3 Great is the Lord, and marvellous, worthy to be praised : there is no end of his greatness.

4 One generation shall praise thy works unto another : and declare thy power.

5 As for me, I will be talking of thy worship : thy glory, thy praise, and wondrous works ;

Qui das salutem regibus : qui re- liberas demisti David servum tuum de gladio maligno, eripe me :

Et erue me de manu filiorum alieno- et libera me de rum, quorum os locutum est vanitatem : aquis multis et et dextera eorum dextera iniquitatis. de manu

Quorum filii sicut novellæ planta- novella planta- tiones : in juventute sua. tionis stabilitas

Filiæ eorum compositæ : circumor-natæ ut similitudo templi.

Promptuaria eorum plena : eructantia ex hoc in illud.

Oves eorum fœtosæ, abundantes in egressibus suis : boves eorum crassæ. itineribus

Non est ruina maceriæ, neque transitus : neque clamor in plateis eorum.

Beatum dixerunt populum, cui hæc sunt : beatus populus cujus Dominus Deus ejus.

PSALMUS CXLIV.

EXALTABO te Deus meus Rex : Sat. Vespers. et benedicam Nomini tuo in Christmas,
sæculum, et in sæculum sæculi. 1st Vespers.
Lauds of the de-
parted.
in æternum et

Per singulos dies benedicam tibi :
et laudabo Nomen tuum in sæculum, et in sæculum sæculi.

Magnus Dominus, et laudabilis nimis : et magnitudinis ejus non est
finis.

Generatio et generatio laudabit opera tua : et potentiam tuam pro-nuntiabunt.

Magnificentiam gloriæ sanctitatis majestatis tuæ et tuæ loquentur : et mirabilia tua nar- sanctitatem rabunt.

sung the "new song" of the Son of Man's triumph, a song of the victory which God had given to His anointed, and of the mercy of His Providence which had kept the true David from the peril of the Evil One's sword.

Out of that victory sprung the Church of the Redeemer, "the Temple of His Body" in which the children of God are built up as "living stones," and "polished corners," "built upon the foundation of the Apostles and Prophets, Jesus Christ Himself being the Chief Corner Stone ; in Whom all the building fitly framed together, groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord. In Whom ye also are builded together for an habitation of God, through the Spirit." Out of that victory sprung the sacramental abundance of the Church, by which myriads of souls are gathered into the heavenly garner, the flock of Christ's fold multiplied by thousands and ten thousands in the streets of the New Jerusalem, and the servants of God who wear the yoke of the priesthood endowed with ministerial ability [2 Cor. iii. 6], that they may be strong to labour in the grace-giving work of their Master.

PSALM CXLV.<sup>1</sup>

This is entitled "David's Psalm of praise," and it is thought by some that the title belongs to the whole final series, of which this is the commencement. Literally it is a hymn praising the Lord for His works of Creation, but mystically it praises Him for all His marvellous works in the redemption and salvation of mankind.

For these merciful works of our Lord Jesus Christ the Church already sings by anticipation "the song of Moses the servant of God, and the song of the Lamb, saying, Great and marvellous are <sup>1</sup> This is an alphabet Psalm, one letter being omitted. The fifteenth verse, and perhaps the whole Psalm, was used at the celebration of the Holy Communion in the time of St. Chrysostom.

The XXX. Day. 6 So that men shall speak of the Morning might of thy marvellous acts : and I
Prayer. will also tell of thy greatness.
Rev. xv. 3.

7 The memorial of thine abundant kindness shall be shewed : and men shall sing of thy righteousness.

Exod. xxxiv. 6. 8 The Lord is gracious, and merciful : long-suffering, and of great goodness.

9 The Lord is loving unto every man : and his mercy is over all his works.

Rev. v. 13. 10 All thy works praise thee, O
Job xxxviii. 7. Lord : and thy saints give thanks unto thee.

Luke ix. 20, 31. 11 They shew the glory of thy kingdom : and talk of thy power ;

12 That thy power, thy glory, and mightiness of thy kingdom : might be known unto men.

Dan. ii. 44. 13 Thy kingdom is an everlasting vi. 26. kingdom : and thy dominion endureth throughout all ages.

Heb. xii. 12. 14 The Lord upholdeth all such as James iv. 10. fall : and lifteth up all those that are down.

John vi. 51. 15 The eyes of all wait upon thee,
Rev. xxii. 2. O Lord : and thou givest them their meat in due season.

16 Thou openest thine hand : and fillest all things living with plenteousness.

17 The Lord is righteous in all his ways : and holy in all his works.

James iv. 8. 18 The Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon him : yea, all such as call upon him faithfully.

19 He will fulfil the desire of them that fear him : he also will hear their cry, and will help them.

Luke xxi. 18. 20 The Lord preserveth all them that love him : but scattereth abroad all the ungodly.

Et virtutem terribilium tuorum dicent : et magnitudinem tuam narabunt.

Memoriam abundantiae suavitatis Memoria tuae eructabunt : et justitia tua exsultabunt.

Miserator et misericors Dominus : patiens et multum misericors.

Suavis Dominus universis : et miserationes ejus super omnia opera ejus.

Confiteantur tibi, Domine, omnia opera tua : et sancti tui benedicant tibi.

Gloriam regni tui dicent : et potentiam tuam loquentur.

Ut notam faciant filiis hominum potentiam tuam : et gloriam magnificentiae regni tui.

Regnum tuum, regnum omnium tuum Domine saeculorum : et dominatio tua in omni generatione et generationem.

Fidelis Dominus in omnibus verbis in verbis suis : et sanctus in omnibus operibus suis.

Allevat Dominus omnes qui corruunt : et erigit omnes elisos.

Oculi omnium in te sperant, Domine : et tu das escam illorum in tempore opportuno.

Aperis tu manum tuam : et imple omne animal benedictione.

Justus Dominus in omnibus viis suis : et sanctus in omnibus operibus suis.

Prope est Dominus omnibus invocantibus eum : omnibus invocantibus eum in veritate. Prope est Dominus omnibus invocantibus eum in veritate

Voluntatem timentium se faciet : et deprecationem eorum exaudiet, et et orationes eorum salvos faciet eos.

Custodit Dominus omnes diligentes se : et omnes peccatores disperdet.

Thy works, Lord God Almighty ; just and true are Thy ways, Thou King of Saints ;" praising Him day by day for these in all her Psalms and Hymns and spiritual songs. One generation takes up the strain from its forerunner, and the song goes up unceasingly to the throne from the choirs of Cathedrals, parish churches, and religious houses, " We praise Thee, O God ; we acknowledge Thee to be the Lord. The holy Church throughout all the world doth acknowledge Thee ; the Father of an infinite Majesty ; Thine honourable, true, and only Son ; also the Holy Ghost the Comforter."

And with the voice of the redeemed Church goes up the voice of all the works of God, each in its appointed and orderly round setting forth His praise Who created it. " And every creature which is in Heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them, heard I saying, Blessing, and honour, and glory, and power, be unto Him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever."

And as in the natural, so in the spiritual world, the eyes of all wait upon the Lord the Holy Ghost, the Giver of Life, that He may give them their meat in due season. Already does the Life-

The XXX. Day.
Morning Prayer.
Rev. xiv. 7.

21 My mouth shall speak the praise of the Lord : and let all flesh give thanks unto his holy Name for ever and ever.

THE CXLVI PSALM.

Lauda, anima mea.

Commemoration
of Founders and Benefactors.
Windsor Obiit
Sunday.

Isa. ii. 22.

Gen. ii. 7.
Ez. 19.
Ps. civ. 29.

Col. i. 16, 17.

Isa. ix. 2.
xxxv. 5, 6.
Lam. i. 1.

Luke iv. 18, 21.

Isa. xxvi. 4.

PRAISE the Lord, O my soul ; while I live will I praise the Lord : yea, as long as I have any being, I will sing praises unto my God.

2 O put not your trust in princes, nor in any child of man : for there is no help in them.

3 For when the breath of man goeth forth he shall turn again to his earth : and then all his thoughts perish.

4 Blessed is he that hath the God of Jacob for his help : and whose hope is in the Lord his God ;

5 Who made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that therein is : who keepeth his promise for ever ;

6 Who helpeth them to right that suffer wrong : who feedeth the hungry.

7 The Lord looseth men out of prison : the Lord giveth sight to the blind.

8 The Lord helpeth them that are fallen : the Lord careth for the righteous.

9 The Lord careth for the stranger ; he defendeth the fatherless and widow : as for the way of the ungodly, he turneth it upside down.

10 The Lord thy God, O Sion, shall be King for evermore : and throughout all generations.

THE CXLVII PSALM.

Laudate Dominum.

Evening Prayer.
Commemoration of Founders and Benefactors.
Windsor Obiit
Sunday.

O PRAISE the Lord, for it is a good thing to sing praises unto our God : yea, a joyful and pleasant thing it is to be thankful.

Laudationem Domini loquetur os meum : et benedicat omnis caro Domini sancto ejus in sæculum, et in in æternum sæculum sæculi.

PSALMUS CXLV.

LAUDA, anima mea, Dominum ; laudabo Dominum in vita mea : psallam Deo meo quandiu fuero.

Sat. Vespers.
Christmas,
1st Vespers.
Vigils of the de-
parted.

Nolite confidere in principibus : in filiis hominum, in quibus non est salus.

Exibit spiritus ejus, et revertetur in terram suam : in illa die peribunt omnes cogitationes eorum.

Beatus cujus Deus Jacob adjutor ejus, spes ejus in Domino Deo ipsius, qui fecit cælum et terram : mare et omnia quæ in eis sunt.

Qui custodit veritatem in sæculum ; facit judicium injuriam patientibus : dat escam esurientibus.

Dominus solvit compeditos : Dominus illuminat cæcos.

Dominus erigit elisos : Dominus dirigigit justos.

Dominus custodit advenas ; pupil- lum et viduam suscipiet : et vias peccatorum disperdet.

viam peccatorum exterminabit

Regnabit Dominus in sæcula ; Deus tuus, Sion : in generatione et generationem.

in æternum
in sæculum sæculi

PSALMUS CXLVI.

LAUDATE Dominum, quoniam bonus est psalmus : Deo nostro sit jucunda decoraque laudatio.

Sat., Dedic. Ch.,
Vespers.
Christmas,
1st Vespers.
nostro jucunda sit laudatio

giver bestow on them Corn and Wine for sacramental life, the Bread which came down from Heaven, and the blood of the True Vine : hereafter will He provide for them the Tree of Life in the midst of the street of the New Jerusalem and on either side of the river of life, which shall bear "twelve manner of fruits, and yield her fruit every month," for the perpetual invigoration of His saints.

PSALM CXLVI.

This is a song of the Church when at rest and peace, able to lift up her soul without any sorrow in Hallelujahs to her King : and blessing Him Who has wrought her deliverance. "Trust ye in the Lord for ever ; for in the Lord Jehovah is everlasting strength."

The XXX. Day.
Evening
Prayer.

Isa. xl. 12. lvi. 8.
John xi. 52.

Isa. lxi. 1.
Luke iv. 18. 21.

Isa. xl. 26.
John x. 3.

Ps. civ. 13, 14.

Job xxxviii. 41.
Luke xii. 24.

Rev. xxi. 12.

2 The Lord doth build up Jerusalem : and gather together the outcasts of Israel.

3 He healeth those that are broken in heart : and giveth medicine to heal their sickness.

4 He telleth the number of the stars : and calleth them all by their names.

5 Great is our Lord, and great is his power : yea, and his wisdom is infinite.

6 The Lord setteth up the meek : and bringeth the ungodly down to the ground.

7 O sing unto the Lord with thanksgiving : sing praises upon the harp unto our God ;

8 Who covereth the heaven with clouds, and prepareth rain for the earth : and maketh the grass to grow upon the mountains, and herb for the use of men ;

9 Who giveth fodder unto the cattle : and feedeth the young ravens that call upon him.

10 He hath no pleasure in the strength of an horse : neither delighteth he in any man's legs.

11 But the Lord's delight is in them that fear him : and put their trust in his mercy.

12 Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem : praise thy God, O Sion.

13 For he hath made fast the bars of thy gates : and hath blessed thy children within thee.

Ædificans Hierusalem Dominus : dispersiones Israël congregabit. congregans

Qui sanat contritos corde : et alligat contritiones eorum.

Qui numerat multitudinem stellarum : et omnibus eis nomina vocat.

Magnus Dominus noster, et magna virtus ejus : et sapientiæ ejus non est numerus.

Suscipiens mansuetos Dominus : humilians autem peccatores usque ad terram.

Præcinite Domino in confessione : Incipite
psallite Deo nostro in cithara.

Qui operit cælum nubibus : et parat terræ pluviam.

Qui producit in montibus fœnum :
et herbam servituti hominum.

Qui dat jumentis escam ipsorum :
et pullis corvorum invocantibus eum.

Non in fortitudine equi voluntatem in viribus habebit : nec in tibiis viri beneplacitum erit ei.

Beneplacitum est Domino super timentes eum : et in eis qui sperant super misericordia ejus.

PSALMUS CXLVII.

LAUDA, Hierusalem, Dominum : lauda Deum tuum, Sion.

Quoniam confortavit seras portarum tuarum : benedixit filiis tuis in te.

Sat., Dedic. Ch.
Vespers.
Christmas,
Corp. Chr.,
1st Vespers.

Christ is, therefore, praised as the Creator of the natural and the spiritual world ; of the heaven, which is the Church above in glory ; of the earth, which is the Church Militant ; of the sea, which is the world without, into which the Church casts her net for a draught at her Master's word. Thus He is praised in terms founded on the prophecy of Isaiah which He Himself expounded when He said, "This day is this Scripture fulfilled in your ears :—" "The Spirit of the Lord is upon Me, because He hath anointed Me to preach the Gospel to the poor ; He hath sent Me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord." Blessed they who have this Helper for their own : they shall sing His praises as long as they have any being : and declare Him to be their King for evermore, and throughout all generations.

PSALM CXLVII.

The song of joy and thanksgiving is continued, the subject being the edification of the Church of God, the gathering in of the Gentiles, the healing work of sacramental grace. So in the Church Militant does Christ gather together in one the children of God that are scattered abroad, that there may be one fold and one Shepherd ; so in the Church Triumphant will His elect be gathered together from the four winds of heaven : and though no man could number the spiritual seed of Abraham more than he could count the stars, yet the Good Shepherd knows all His sheep, and "calleth His own by name, and leadeth them out." Thus the Lord setteth up Him Who was "meek and lowly of heart" in an eternal kingdom, and bringeth the ungodly, Satan and his evil ministers, down to the ground in an everlasting destruction.

Throughout this Psalm, as in many others, the blessings of supernatural grace are indicated by reference to those of natural provision. The clouds and rain represent the overshadowing abundance of the dew of the Holy Spirit, causing the sacramental food of God's children to grow upon the mountain of His Church, the City set on an hill, the "great and holy mountain" where the prophet saw "the holy Jerusalem descending out

The XXX. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Isa. ii. 4.

14 He maketh peace in thy borders :
and filleth thee with the flour of wheat.

15 He sendeth forth his commandment upon earth : and his word runneth very swiftly.

16 He giveth snow like wool : and scattereth the hoar-frost like ashes.

17 He casteth forth his ice like morsels : who is able to abide his frost ?

18 He sendeth out his word, and melteth them : he bloweth with his wind, and the waters flow.

19 He sheweth his word unto Jacob : his statutes and ordinances unto Israel.

20 He hath not dealt so with any nation : neither have the heathen knowledge of his laws.

THE CXLVIII PSALM.

Laudate Dominum.

Rev. v. 13.

O PRAISE the Lord of heaven :
praise him in the height.

2 Praise him, all ye angels of his :
praise him, all his host.

3 Praise him, sun and moon : praise him, all ye stars and light.

4 Praise him, all ye heavens : and ye waters that are above the heavens.

5 Let them praise the Name of the Lord : for he spake the word, and they were made ; he commanded, and they were created.

6 He hath made them fast for ever and ever : he hath given them a law which shall not be broken.

7 Praise the Lord upon earth : ye dragons, and all deeps ;

Qui posuit fines tuos pacem : et adipe frumenti satiat te.

Qui emittit eloquium suum terræ :
velociter currit sermo ejus.

Qui dat nivem sicut lanam : nebulam sicut cinerem spargit.

Mittit crystallum suam sicut bu- sicut frustra panis cellas : ante faciem frigoris ejus quis sustinebit ? subsistit

Emittet verbum suum, et liquefa-ciet ea : flabit spiritus ejus, et fluent flavit
aquæ.

Qui annuntiat verbum suum Jacob :
justitias et judicia sua Israël.

Non fecit taliter omni nationi : et judicia sua non manifestavit eis.

PSALMUS CXLVIII.

LAUDATE Dominum de cœlis : Lauds, ferial and festival.
laudate eum in excelsis. Lauds of the de-
parted.

Laudate eum, omnes angeli ejus :
laudate eum, omnes virtutes ejus.

Laudate eum, sol et luna : laudate eum, omnes stellæ et lumen.

Laudate eum, cœli cœlorum : et aquæ omnes quæ super cœlos sunt, aquæ quæ laudent Nomen Domini.

Quia ipse dixit, et facta sunt : ipse mandavit, et creata sunt.

Statuit ea in æternum, et in sæculum sæculi : præceptum posuit, et non præteribit.

Laudate Dominum de terra : draco-nes, et omnes abyssi ;

of Heaven from God." The "flour of wheat" with which Sion is filled when He maketh peace in her borders, signifies the Bread of Heaven which the Prince of Peace gives in His City of Peace.

There are other allusions, moreover, which can scarcely be dissociated from our Lord, as when His word running very swiftly reminds us of the eternal WORD, the Sun of righteousness, who goeth forth as a giant to run his course : or as when the giving of snow like wool recalls Him of whom it is said that "His head and His hairs were white like wool, as white as snow."

Thus we look, in this hymn of praise, to our Lord as the Source of all grace and strength in that City, the bars of whose gates He has made fast by sure foundation on Himself the Rock. No natural powers,—such as animal strength,—can win a place in that City, but only the fear of the Lord, and trust in His mercy. There he deals mercifully and graciously with the nation whom He has chosen to Himself to be His inheritance, giving them peace in their borders, and filling them with His grace, and showing them His Word.

PSALM CXLVIII.

The three concluding Psalms of the Psalter have always been specially connected together in the mind of the Church, as Alvoi, or "Lauds." They proclaim the final progress of the Church "from glory to glory," in the New Creation, the Resurrection, and the bliss of Heaven.

This, the first of the three, calls upon all created things to join their voices with the Church in Heaven and earth and praise the Lord of all, and is expanded in the Song of the Three Holy Children, the "Benedicite omnia Opera" of Morning Prayer. The mystery of a sympathy between all the works of God, animate and inanimate, is frequently referred to in the Psalms and elsewhere. When the Lord answered Job out of the whirlwind, He

- The XXX. Day.
Evening
Prayer.
Isa. lv. 12.
- 8 Fire and hail, snow and vapours :
wind and storm, fulfilling his word ;
- 9 Mountains and all hills : fruitful trees and all cedars ;
- 10 Beasts and all cattle : worms and feathered fowls ;
- 11 Kings of the earth and all people :
princes and all judges of the world ;
- Rev. xix. 5.
- 12 Young men and maidens, old men and children, praise the Name of the Lord : for his Name only is excellent, and his praise above heaven and earth.
- Luke i. 69.
Rev. xxii. 3.
- 13 He shall exalt the horn of his people ; all his saints shall praise him :
even the children of Israel, even the people that serveth him.

THE CXLIX PSALM.

Cantate Domino.

- Rev. xix. 1.
Eph. i. 1.
- O SING unto the Lord a new song :
let the congregation of saints
praise him.
- Matt. xxi. 5.
Cant. i. 4.
- 2 Let Israel rejoice in him that made him : and let the children of Sion be joyful in their King.
- 3 Let them praise his Name in the dance : let them sing praises unto him with tabret and harp.
- 4 For the Lord hath pleasure in his people : and helpeth the meek-hearted.
- Isa. xxvi. 19.
- 5 Let the saints be joyful with glory : let them rejoice in their beds.
- Rev. xix. 15.
- 6 Let the praises of God be in their mouth : and a two-edged sword in their hands ;
- 1 Cor. vi. 2.
- 7 To be avenged of the heathen :
and to rebuke the people ;
- 8 To bind their kings in chains :
and their nobles with links of iron.
- 9 That they may be avenged of them, as it is written : Such honour have all his saints.

Ignis, grando, nix, glacies, spiritus procellarum : quæ faciunt verbum ejus.

Montes, et omnes colles : ligna fructifera, et omnes cedri :

Bestiæ, et universa pecora : serpentes, et volucres pennatæ :

Reges terræ, et omnes populi : prin-cipes, et omnes judices terræ :

Juvenes et virgines, senes cum junioribus, laudent Nomen Domini :
quia exaltatum est Nomen ejus solius.

Confessio ejus super cælum et terram : et exaltavit cornu populi sui. exaltabit

Hymnus omnibus sanctis ejus : filiis
Israël, populo appropinquantibus sibi. adpropinquantibus

PSALMUS CXLIX.

CANTATE Domino canticum no-vum : laus ejus in ecclesia sanctorum. *Lauds, ferial and
festival.
Lauds of the de-
parted.*

Lætetur Israël in eo qui fecit eum :
et filii Sion exsultent in Rege suo.

Laudent Nomen ejus in choro : in tympano et psalterio psallant ei.

Quia beneplacitum est Domino in populo suo : et exaltavit mansuetos in salutem.

Exsultabunt sancti in gloria : lætabuntur in cubilibus suis.

Exsultationes Dei in gutture eorum : faucibus eorum et gladii ancipites in manibus eorum.

Ad faciendam vindictam in nationi-bus : increpationes in populis.

Ad alligandos reges eorum in compedibus : et nobiles eorum in manicis vinculis ferreis.

Ut faciant in eis judicium conscriptum : gloria hæc est omnibus sanctis
ejus.

spake of the foundation of the earth by Himself: "when the morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy." [Job xxxviii. 7.] When man fell, God said, "Cursed is the ground for thy sake," and St. Paul declares that the whole Creation groaneth and travaileth together, waiting for the adoption and redemption of man by the work of Christ. When, therefore, the Incarnation had changed the face of things, there was, doubtless, a participation even of the lower world of Creation in the blessings and joy which it brought, according to the prophecy, "The mountains and the hills shall break forth before you into singing, and all the trees of the field shall clap their hands." [Isa. lv. 12.] "Sing, O ye heavens ; for the Lord hath done it : shout, ye lower parts of the earth : break forth into singing, ye mountains, O forest, and every tree therein : for the Lord hath redeemed Jacob, and glorified Himself in Israel." [Isa. xlv. 23.]

PSALM CXLIX.

The last verse of the preceding Psalm forms the theme out of which this one is developed. For the congregation of saints is the Church of Christ, the spiritual children of Israel: the Israel

THE CL PSALM.

Laudate Dominum.

The XXX. Day.
Evening
Prayer.

Isa. vi. 3.
Rev. xxi. 22.
Rev. xv. 3.

O PRAISE God in his holiness : praise him in the firmament of his power.

2 Praise him in his noble acts :
praise him according to his excellent greatness.

Rev. xiv. 2.

3 Praise him in the sound of the trumpet : praise him upon the lute and harp.

4 Praise him in the cymbals and dances : praise him upon the strings and pipe.

5 Praise him upon the well-tuned cymbals : praise him upon the loud cymbals.

Rev. v. 13.

6 Let every thing that hath breath :
praise the Lord.

PSALMUS CL.

LAUDATE Dominum in sanctis Lauds, ferial and festival.
ejus : laudate eum in firma- Lauds of the departed
mento virtutis ejus.

Laudate eum in virtutibus ejus : in potentatibus
ejus laudate eum secundum multitudinem magnitudinis ejus.

Laudate eum in sono tubæ : laudate eum in psalterio et cithara.

Laudate eum in tympano et choro :
laudate eum in chordis et organo.

Laudate eum in cymbalis benesonantibus ; laudate eum in cymbalis jubilationis : omnis spiritus laudet Dominum.

whom Christ has made anew ; the children of the New Jerusalem of which He is the King ; the "servants" that "shall serve Him."

The fifth verse plainly gives the key to the prophetic meaning of the Psalm as a hymn of joy for those who sleep in the Lord Jesus in the Day of the general Resurrection : "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust : for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead."

Perhaps it is within the proper bounds of allegorical interpretation to consider the "two-edged sword" as the Cross of Victory, the banner of the Church's final triumph over evil. Yet it must be remembered that our Lord prophesied to His Apostles that they should "sit on twelve thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel," and that St. Paul wrote, "Do ye not know that the saints shall judge the world ?" Three times also in the Revelation our Lord is represented as having a sharp two-edged sword, this being twice said to proceed out of His mouth [Rev. i. 16 ; xix.
15], when He goes forth to judgment as the WORD of God.
Such words as those of this Psalm may therefore reveal that in the final triumph of the glorified Church it will be a partaker with Christ in His work of judgment.

PSALM CL.

The last Psalm is one which prefigures the song of praise that will rise before the Throne of God when there shall be no more curse, when evil no longer has a place in the City of God, and tears and sorrow shall be known in it no more. Hence the last verse of the preceding Psalm is again taken up by the first of that which follows ; and the "honour of God's saints" is identified with that glory of which Daniel spoke when he prophesied,

"They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament" [Dan. xii. 3], and our Lord when He said, "Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the Kingdom of their Father." [Matt. xiii. 43.]

For the Church has arrived at the end of her Militant and her waiting condition, and is henceforth to praise God in His inner Sanctuary, the Heavenly Jerusalem in which there is "no temple,"
"for the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are the temple of it."
There will the saints remember the "noble acts" of the Lord, singing to the "harps of God" the "song of Moses the servant of God, and the song of the Lamb, saying, Great and marvellous are Thy works, Lord God Almighty ; just and true are Thy ways, Thou King of Saints."

Thus the songs of David and of the Temple have become the songs of Christ and of the Church Militant. Thus will the same strains sound in the hymns of the Church Triumphant. And thus shall the last words of the last Psalm receive that further, most glorious, fulfilment which was foreshadowed to St. John when the door was opened in Heaven : "And every creature which is in Heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them, heard I saying, Blessing, and honour, and glory, and power, be unto Him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever."

ALLELUIA, FOR THE LORD GOD OMNIPOTENT REIGNETH

FORMS OF PRAYER

TO BE

USED AT SEA.

¶ The Morning and Evening Service to be used daily at Sea shall be the same which is appointed in the Book of Common Prayer.

¶ These two following Prayers are to be also used in her Majesty's Navy every day.

Deut. iv. 39.
Job ix. 8. xxvi.
10. xxxviii.
8. 11.
Jer. xvii. 5. 7.
1 Tim. ii. 8.
Ps. cviii. 11, 12.
lxv. 7. cvii.
23, 24. 28.
1 Kings v. 4.
1 Tim. ii. 1, 2.
Ps. xxix. 11.
cxxxviii. 2.
cvii. 8. lxxxvi.
12.
Eph. v. 20.

"Kingdoms" in the Sealed Books.

O ETERNAL Lord God, who alone spreadest out the heavens, and rulest the raging of the sea; who hast compassed the waters with bounds until day and night come to an end; Be pleased to receive into thy Almighty and most gracious protection the persons of us thy servants, and the Fleet in which we serve. Preserve us from the dangers of the sea, and from the violence of the enemy; that we may be a safeguard unto our most gracious Sovereign Lady, Queen VICTORIA, and her Dominions, and a security for such as pass on the seas upon their lawful occasions; that the inhabitants of our Island may in peace and quietness serve thee our God; and that we may return in safety to enjoy the blessings of the land, with the fruits of our labours, and with a thankful remembrance of thy mercies to praise and glorify thy holy Name; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

The Collect.

PREVENT us, O Lord, in all our doings, with thy most gracious favour, and further us with thy continual help; that in all our works begun, continued, and ended in thee, we may glorify thy holy Name, and finally by thy mercy obtain everlasting life; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Jer. x. 23.
Isa. lii. 12.
Ps. xc. 17.
Col. iii. 17.
Rom. vi. 12.

¶ Prayers to be used in Storms at Sea.

Jer. xxxii. 18.
Ps. xxix. 1—4.
10.
Nahum i. 3, 4.
Ps. cvii. 25.
lxxxix. 9.
Isa. lxiv. 8, 9.
Ps. cxli. 1.
Matt. viii. 25.
xiv. 30.
Ps. xxx. 6.
Neh. ix. 17. 26.
1 Thess. v. 3.
Ps. lxvi. 3. 5.
xcvi. 4.
1 Chron. xxix. 11.
Ps. xxxi. 19.
John xvi. 23.

O MOST powerful and glorious Lord God, at whose command the winds blow, and lift up the waves of the sea, and who stillest the rage thereof; We thy creatures, but miserable sinners, do in this our great distress cry unto thee for help: Save, Lord, or else we perish. We confess, when we have been safe, and seen all things quiet about us, we have forgot thee our God, and refused to hearken to the still voice of thy word, and to obey thy commandments: But now we see, how terrible thou art in all thy works of wonder; the great God to be feared above all: And therefore we adore thy Divine Majesty, acknowledging thy power, and imploring thy goodness. Help, Lord, and save us for thy mercy's sake in Jesus Christ thy Son, our Lord. Amen.

Or this.

O MOST glorious and gracious Lord God, who dwellest in heaven, but beholdest all things below;

Exod. xv. 6. 11.
Ps. cxxiii. 1.
Isa. lxiii. 15.
Ps. cxxx. 1, 2.
Jonah ii. 2, 3.
i. 4—6.

PRAYERS TO BE USED AT SEA.

THESE forms of Prayer were composed, and inserted here at the Revision of 1661. They were probably written or compiled by Bishop Sanderson<sup>1</sup>, but they have not been traced in any older form, and those portions which are not taken from other divisions of the Prayer Book are probably original compositions drawn up for the occasion. They are mentioned in the Preface as one of the additions which it was thought expedient to make, but no further light is thrown upon their origin. The only parallel to them in the ancient services is a Missa pro Navigantibus, but this is not represented in any of the present forms.

<sup>1</sup> The examination and revision of them was committed by Convocation to Stern, Bishop of Carlisle, on September 27th, 1661.

It is not unlikely that they were suggested by a "Supply of

Ps. lxxix. 1—3. 13
—15.
Isa. xxxviii. 10, 20.
Matt. viii. 25, 26.
Ps. lxxv. 5. 7.
cvii. 26—32.
Ps. lxxxvi. 12.
Ps. xxx. 10.
1 Chron. xvi. 35.
John xvi. 23, 24.

Look down, we beseech thee, and hear us, calling out of the depth of misery, and out of the jaws of this death, which is ready now to swallow us up: Save, Lord, or else we perish. The living, the living, shall praise thee. O send thy word of command to rebuke the raging winds, and the roaring sea; that we, being delivered from this distress, may live to serve thee, and to glorify thy Name all the days of our life. Hear, Lord, and save us, for the infinite merits of our blessed Saviour, thy Son, our Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

¶ The Prayer to be said before a Fight at Sea against any Enemy.

1 Chron. xxix. 11.
Dan. iv. 17. 35.
Ps. ix. 4.
2 Sam. xxii. 7.
2 Chron. xx. 10—
13.
Rom. xii. 19.
Ps. lxxx. 2.
Eccl. ix. 11.
1 Sam. xiv. 6.
Gen. iv. 10.
Neh. i. 11.
Ps. xxxi. 2.
lix. 1.
lxxxiii. 17, 18.
Isa. xli. 14. 20.
xlix. 26.

O MOST powerful and glorious Lord God, the Lord of hosts, that rulest and commandest all things; Thou sittest in the throne judging right, and therefore we make our address to thy Divine Majesty in this our necessity, that thou wouldest take the cause into thine own hand, and judge between us and our enemies. Stir up thy strength, O Lord, and come and help us; for thou givest not alway the battle to the strong, but canst save by many or by few. O let not our sins now cry against us for vengeance; but hear us thy poor servants begging mercy, and imploring thy help, and that thou wouldest be a defence unto us against the face of the enemy. Make it appear that thou art our Saviour and mighty Deliverer, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

¶ Short Prayers for single persons, that cannot meet to join in Prayer with others, by reason of the Fight, or Storm.

General Prayers.

Ps. vi. 4.
Luke xviii. 13.

LORD, be merciful to us sinners, and save us for thy mercy's sake.

Neh. ix. 6. 32.
Ps. lxxix. 9.

Thou art the great God, that hast made and rulest all things: O deliver us for thy Name's sake.

Thou art the great God to be feared above all: O save us, that we may praise thee.

Special Prayers with respect to the Enemy.

THOU, O Lord, art just and powerful: O defend our cause against the face of the enemy.

O God, thou art a strong tower of defence to all that flee unto thee: O save us from the violence of the enemy.

O Lord of hosts, fight for us, that we may glorify thee.

O suffer us not to sink under the weight of our sins, or the violence of the enemy.

O Lord, arise, help us, and deliver us for thy Name's sake.

Short Prayers in respect of a Storm.

THOU, O Lord, that stillest the raging of the sea, hear, hear us, and save us, that we perish not.

O blessed Saviour, that didst save thy disciples ready to perish in a storm, hear us, and save us, we beseech thee.

Lord, have mercy upon us.

Christ, have mercy upon us.

Lord, have mercy upon us.

O Lord, hear us

O Christ, hear us.

God the Father, God the Son, God the Holy Ghost, have mercy upon us, save us now and evermore. Amen.

OUR Father, which art in heaven Hallowed be thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, As it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us from evil: For thine is the kingdom, The power, and the glory, For ever and ever. Amen.

¶ When there shall be imminent danger, as many as can be spared from necessary ser-

Prayer for the Ships that want Ministers to pray with them," which was set forth by the rebel Parliament as a supplement to the "Directory of Public Worship," intended by them to supersede the Prayer Book. In the preface to this it is stated that the Common Prayer is still used on board ship, though "for many weighty reasons abolished:" and to prevent the necessity of using it any longer "it hath been thought fit to frame some prayers agreeing with the Directory established by Parliament."

On the restoration of the Prayer Book it was probably felt that the great increase of the Navy through the regular levy of "ship money" during Cromwell's time had made some special prayers of this kind desirable.

The prayers are for "occasional" use, with the exception of the first two: and all that calls for notice is the fact that they are framed on the strict principles of the Church of England. Confession and Absolution are appointed, in extreme danger, as a reality to which men will be glad to fly when their souls are about to appear suddenly before God. The responsive form is vice in the Ship shall be called together, and make an humble Confession of their sin to God: In which every one ought seriously to reflect upon those particular sins of which his conscience shall accuse him; saying as followeth,

The Confession.

ALMIGHTY God, Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Maker of all things, Judge of all men; We acknowledge and bewail our manifold sins and wickedness, Which we, from time to time, most grievously have committed, By thought, word, and deed, Against thy Divine Majesty, Provoking most justly thy wrath and indignation against us. We do earnestly repent, And are heartily sorry for these our misdoings; The remembrance of them is grievous unto us; The burden of them is intolerable. Have mercy upon us, Have mercy upon us, most merciful Father; For thy Son our Lord Jesus Christ's sake, Forgive us all that is past; And grant that we may ever hereafter Serve and please thee In newness of life, To the honour and glory of thy Name; Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

¶ Then shall the Priest, if there be any in the Ship, pronounce this Absolution.

ALMIGHTY God, our heavenly Father, who of his great mercy hath promised forgiveness of sins to all them that with hearty repentance and true faith turn unto him; Have mercy upon you; pardon and deliver you from all your sins; confirm and strengthen you in all goodness, and bring you to everlasting life; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Dan. ix. 9.
Joel ii. 12—14.
Ezek. xviii. 30—32.
Jer. xxxiii. 8.
Rom. vi. 14.
Dan. xi. 1.
Col. i. 10, 11.
Rom. vi. 22.

Thanksgiving after a Storm.

Jubilate Deo. Psalm lxvi.

Confitemini Domino. Psalm cvii.

Collects of Thanksgiving.

O MOST blessed and glorious Lord God, who art of infinite goodness and mercy; We thy poor creatures, whom thou hast made and preserved, holding our souls in life, and now rescuing us out of the jaws of death, humbly present ourselves again before thy Divine Majesty, to offer a sacrifice of praise and thanksgiving, for that thou heardest us when we called in our trouble, and didst not cast out our prayer, which we made before thee in our great distress: even when we gave all for lost, our ship, our goods, our lives, then didst thou mercifully look upon us, and wonderfully command a deliverance; for which we, now being in safety, do give all praise and glory to thy holy Name; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Or this:

O MOST mighty and gracious good God, thy mercy is over all thy works, but in special manner hath been extended toward us, whom thou hast so powerfully and wonderfully defended. Thou hast shewed us terrible things, and wonders in the deep, that we might see how powerful and gracious a God thou art; how able and ready to help them that trust in thee. Thou hast shewed us how both winds and seas obey thy command; that we may learn, even from them, hereafter to obey thy voice, and to do thy will. We therefore bless and glorify thy Name, for this thy mercy in saving us, when we were ready to perish. And, we beseech thee, make us as truly sensible now of thy mercy, as we were then of the danger: And give us hearts always ready to express our thankfulness, not only by words, but also by our lives, in being more obe-

Ps. lxxxix. 8, 9.
13.
Wisd. xiv. 3, 4.
2 Sam. xxii. 11.
14. 16, 17.
Ps. lxxv. 5.
Ps. cvii. 23, 24.
Ps. lxiv. 9.
Matt. xiv. 30, 31.
Ps. xxxi. 19.
Matt. viii. 27.
Mark iv. 39, 41.
Ps. cvii. 25, 29.
Matt. vii. 10.
Isa. xxxviii. 20.
Ps. cviii. 4, 5.
cviii. 18, 19, 21.
Exod. xv. 1, 2.
Jonah ii. 9.
Deut. v. 29.
Ps. cxix. 32.
Rom. xii. 1.
Luke i. 74, 75.
Gal. ii. 20.

[Printed at length
in the Sealed Books.]

1 Chron. xxix. 10
—12. 20.
Ps. ciii. 17.
Wisd. xvi. 13.
Ps. lxxvi. 9.
Dan. vi. 27.
Ps. lxxi. 13, 14.
Ps. cvii. 21, 22.
Ps. cvii. 6.
Ps. lxxvi. 18.
2 Cor. i. 9, 10.
Ps. cvii. 28—30.
xxxii. 7, 11.
Wisd. xiv. 3, 4.
Rom. xi. 36.

kept up throughout: and the "Hymns of Praise and Thanksgiving," as well as the use of the "Te Deum" after victory, presuppose a choral use of the Church's services. Some of the Prayers are evidently intended to be used in the same manner and place as the "Occasional Prayers and Thanksgivings," the ordinary daily Service being directed to be used both by the Rubric at the head of these Forms, and by the first of the "Articles of War." The latter is as follows:—

"Officers are to cause Public Worship, according to the Liturgy of the Church of England, to be solemnly performed in dient to thy holy commandments. Continue, we beseech thee, this thy goodness to us; that we, whom thou hast saved, may serve thee in holiness and righteousness all the days of our life; through Jesus Christ our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

A Hymn of Praise and Thanksgiving after a dangerous Tempest.

*Ps. xcv. 1.
Ps. cvii. 1.*

O COME, let us give thanks unto the Lord, for he is gracious : and his mercy endureth for ever.

*Ps. xlviii. 1.
Ps. cvii. 2.*

Great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised; let the redeemed of the Lord say so : whom he hath delivered from the merciless rage of the sea.

Ps. cxlv. 8.

The Lord is gracious and full of compassion : slow to anger, and of great mercy.

Ps. ciii. 10.

He hath not dealt with us according to our sins : neither rewarded us according to our iniquities.

Ps. ciii. 11.

But as the heaven is high above the earth : so great hath been his mercy towards us.

*Ps. cxvi. 3.
Ps. cvii. 18.*

We found trouble and heaviness : we were even at death's door.

Ps. cxxiv. 4. 3.

The waters of the sea had well nigh covered us : the proud waters had well nigh gone over our soul.

*Ps. xcvi. 7.
Ps. cvii. 25.*

The sea roared : and the stormy wind lifted up the waves thereof.

Ps. cvii. 26. 28

We were carried up as it were to heaven, and then down again into the deep : our soul melted within us, because of trouble ;

Then cried we unto thee, O Lord :

After Victory or Deliverance from an Enemy.

A Psalm or Hymn of Praise and Thanksgiving after Victory.

Ps. cxxlv. 1, 2.

IF the Lord had not been on our side, now may we say : if the Lord himself had not been on our side, when men rose up against us ;

Ps. cxxiv. 3.

They had swallowed us up quick :

and thou didst deliver us out of our distress.

Blessed be thy Name, who didst not despise the prayer of thy servants : but didst hear our cry, and hast saved us.

*Ps. lxxvi. 19, 20.
cxlv. 19.*

Thou didst send forth thy commandment : and the windy storm ceased, and was turned into a calm.

*Ps. cvii. 29.
cxlvii. 15.*

O let us therefore praise the Lord for his goodness : and declare the wonders that he hath done, and still doeth for the children of men.

Ps. cvii. 18.

Praised be the Lord daily : even the Lord that helpeth us, and poureth his benefits upon us.

Ps. lxxviii. 19, 20

He is our God, even the God of whom cometh salvation : God is the Lord by whom we have escaped death.

Thou, Lord, hast made us glad through the operation of thy hands : and we will triumph in thy praise.

Ps. xcii. 4.

Blessed be the Lord God : even the Lord God, who only doeth wondrous things ;

Ps. lxxii. 18, 19.

And blessed be the Name of his Majesty for ever : and let every one of us say, Amen, Amen.

Ps. cvi. 48.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son : and to the Holy Ghost ;

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be : world without end. Amen.

2 Cor. xiii.

THE grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Ghost, be with us all evermore. Amen.

when they were so wrathfully displeased at us.

Yea, the waters had drowned us, and the stream had gone over our soul : the deep waters of the proud had gone over our soul.

Ps. cxxiv. 4, 5.

But praised be the Lord : who hath not given us over as a prey unto them.

their ships, and take care that prayers and preaching by the chaplains be performed diligently, and that the Lord's Day be observed."

It is worthy of notice that the form with which the body is committed to the deep in the Burial Service differs from the older form in an important particular, "looking for the resurrection of the body . . . and the life of the world to come," being substituted for "in sure and certain hope of the resurrection to eternal life." This change has been adopted in the American Book of Common Prayer. The difference is only a verbal one, but circumstances have given it importance: and the words above have often been quoted as if they had originated in America instead of in our own revision of 1661; and with (as is probable) so Catholic-minded a Churchman as Bishop Sanderson.

1 Sam. xix. 3.

The Lord hath wrought : a mighty salvation for us.

Ps. xlv. 3.

We gat not this by our own sword, neither was it our own arm that saved us : but thy right hand, and thine arm, and the light of thy countenance, because thou hadst a favour unto us.

Ps. cxl. 7.
Isa. lxxv. 5.

The Lord hath appeared for us : the Lord hath covered our heads, and made us to stand in the day of battle.

Exod. xv. 6, 7.
2 Sam. xxii. 40.

The Lord hath appeared for us : the Lord hath overthrown our enemies, and dashed in pieces those that rose up against us.

Ps. cxv. 1.

Therefore not unto us, O Lord, not unto us : but unto thy Name be given the glory.

Ps. cxxvi. 3, 4.

The Lord hath done great things for us : the Lord hath done great things for us, for which we rejoice.

*Ps. cxxiv. 7.

Our help standeth in the Name of the Lord : who hath made heaven and earth.

Ps. cxliii. 2.

Blessed be the Name of the Lord : from this time forth for evermore.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son : and to the Holy Ghost;

*Ps. xli. 13.

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be : world without end. Amen.

¶ After this Hymn may be sung the Te Deum.

¶ Then this Collect.

O ALMIGHTY God, the Sovereign Commander of all the world, in whose hand is power and might which none is able to withstand ; We bless and magnify thy great and glorious Name for this happy victory, the whole glory whereof we do ascribe to thee, who art the only giver of victory. And, we beseech thee, give us grace to improve this great mercy to thy glory, the advancement of thy Gospel, the honour of our Sovereign, and, as much as in us lieth, to the good of all mankind. And, we beseech thee, give us such a sense of this great mercy, as may engage us to a true thankfulness, such as may appear in our lives by an humble, holy, and obedient walking before thee all our days, through Jesus Christ our Lord ; to whom with thee and the Holy Spirit, as for all thy mercies, so in particular for this victory and deliverance, be all glory and honour, world without end. Amen.

2 Cor. xiii.

THE grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Ghost, be with us all evermore. Amen.

Rev. xv. 3.
Ps. xlvii. 2, 6, 9.
2 Chron. xx. 6.
Neh. ix. 5.
Ps. xcvi. 1.
xlv. 7, 8.
cxv. 1.
Job xxxvi. 22, 24.
Isa. xlviii. 17.
Ps. lxxvii. 2, 3.
Gal. vi. 10.
Ps. cxvi. 7.
ix. 1.
Luke i. 74, 75.
Rom. xii. 1.
Ps. cxxxvi. 3, 4.
17, 18, 23—26.
1 Tim. i. 17.
*Ps. xli. 13.

At the Burial of their Dead at Sea.

¶ The Office in the Common Prayer-book may be used ; Only instead of these words [We therefore commit his body to the ground, earth to earth, &c.] say,

Jonah ii. 6.
1 Cor. xv. 42.
Rev. xx. 13.
John xi. 23—25.
Jude 21.
1 Cor. xv. 52.
Phil. iii. 20, 21.

WE therefore commit his body to the deep, to be turned into corruption, looking for the resurrection of the body, (when the sea shall give up her dead,) and the life of the world to come, through our Lord Jesus Christ ; who at his coming shall change our vile body, that it may be like his glorious body, according to the mighty working whereby he is able to subdue all things to himself.

INTRODUCTION TO THE ORDINAL.

THE fundamental principle of the Christian Ministry is that it is derived from our Blessed Lord Himself, from Whom it is perpetuated by Episcopal Ordination. In virtue of His Incarnation, our Lord, both God and man, received all power both in Heaven and earth, as primarily and plenarily the great High Priest and Apostle of our profession [Heb. iii. 1], the chief Shepherd and Bishop [1 Pet. ii. 25], and Deacon [Rom. xv. 8], anointed with power and the Holy Ghost [Luke iii. 22. Acts x. 37, 38]. Being thus endowed, He gave a commission by immediate substitution to men as fellow-workers with Him to continue the work of His office in His place and Name [John xx. 21] after His departure, in the Church which He had bought with His own blood; and to enable them to do so, He promised that His presence should be with them and their successors until His coming again [Matt. xxviii. 18, 20]. He Himself had the eternal incommunicable [ἀπαράβατον, Heb. vii. 24] Priesthood of Melchisedec, and those who ministered under His authority were in so far His successors in it, as being taken from among men not in a family, by birth-right, or according to the law of a carnal ordinance, as in the Aaronic priesthood. This new Priesthood had been foretold by Isaiah [lxvi. 21], by Jeremiah [xxxiii. 18], and Malachi [i. 11], and was to be elected from those whom the Holy Ghost had prepared for the work, by His call and gracious invitation, and merit and devotion recommended, so that in the people of God's adoption, kings and priests, a royal priesthood, it should not be by an earthly privilege, but by the gift of divine grace that the priesthood should be constituted. The Ordinal of the Syro-Nestorians beautifully says, "The Highest dwelt on Mount Zion, and His hand came upon Moses, and Moses laid it on Aaron, and thence it passed even unto John; John gave it to our Lord, our Lord gave it to Apostles, and they to all the orders of the Priesthood."

§ Succession of the Ministry from our Lord.

In order to show the analogy between the Aaronic and Evangelical Priesthoods, our Saviour instituted two Orders only, the Apostles [Mark iii. 14. John iv. 1, 2], who answered to the twelve Patriarchs and twelve Princes of the tribes, and the seventy disciples [Luke x. 1], who corresponded to the seventy fathers of families and elders of the Jews, whom Moses elected to govern the people of Israel [Burscough, Ch. Gov. ch. ii. p. 30. Bp. Andrewes, Minor Works, p. 351. Dr. Hammond, Dissert. against Blondel, c. ix. § v.]; or, as Anacletus says, the Orders of Bishops and Priests [Ep. iii. 8. 1].

An essential difference was placed between these Orders, for the Apostles were chosen to company with Christ in His temptations [Luke vi. 13; xxii. 28], received a distinct charge [Matt. xxviii. 19], and after His Ascension were baptized with fire and the Holy Ghost [Matt. iii. 11]. St. Chrysostom says that St. James was consecrated by our Lord Himself. The title of the Twelve was continued after the fall of Judas and the reception of other Apostles into the Sacred College [John xx. 24. 1 Cor. xv. 5. Rev. xxi. 14]. St. Matthias was the successor of Judas, St. Paul of St. James the Less, and St. Barnabas of St. James the Great. The Apostles were representatives of the Head over all to the Church, of which they were constituted Governors [Heb. xiii. 17] with spiritual authority [1 Cor. ix. 6, 12, 19. 1 Thess. iii. 9. John xviii. 36. 2 Cor. x. 6; xiii. 2, 10. 1 Cor. iv. 21] in His Kingdom [1 Cor. xv. 25. Matt. xix. 28. John vii. 39; xi. 16. 1 Pet. i. 21] under Him [Matt. xxiii. 10. 2 Cor. i. 14. 2 Thess. iii. 6; v. 4. 12. 1 Thess. iv. 11]. This power and authority remained in their office after their decease, with external and visible exercise, being transmitted to the chief pastors of the Church; for the Apostolate was in substance an Episcopate [Acts i. 20, 24, 25], an office of Divine institution, never abrogated by any precept of God, and not appropriated to the Apostles; being continued in order that there might be a ministration of those Sacraments which depended on a succession to the Apostolate for their lawful administration, agreeably to the promise of the Redeemer attached to their commission, which was designed in perpetuity for the supervision of His Church. This commission was to bring all nations under the discipline, and into the doctrine of the Lord Jesus, and is a right which descends to their spiritual heirs. The promise was to the office, not to the persons of the Apostles; and the office consisted in the propagation, edification, and government of the Church in all ages, and so they understood it, and therefore ordained others to take part in it and continue it. The promise of miraculous powers was restricted to their persons, and was temporary; but the assurance of the perpetual presence of Christ Himself in spirit and in power with the Bishops of His Church, who derive from the Apostles in uninterrupted succession, and with priests and deacons (who are constituted by the same authority and devoted to His service), is limited only by the end of all things.

Their extraordinary powers, and the Apostolate itself, ceased with the death of the Apostles, being, like their qualifications, special seals of their commission, and, being personal, were incommunicable. But they, acting of necessity [δεῖ ἡμᾶς, Acts i. 22], as in obedience to Divine direction, chose St. Matthias out of the number of the Seventy Disciples to be one of their own order, and further ordained a Bishop over each newly-erected Church. In order to continue the stewardship and ministration of the Divine Mysteries and the Word of life, it was indispensable to have men holy by their office, whose exclusive privilege should be attested not by individual presumption, or natural capacity, inclination, and preparation for its discharge, but by sufficient credentials. These could only be afforded by an open external call and mission, according to the appointment of God, Who is the Author of personal ability [2 Cor. iii. 6], and of authority and power of delegation [Matt. viii. 9. Luke vii. 8. John xiii. 20; xx. 21], by those rulers of His Church to whom, by an inalienable right, such power upon earth has been permitted to continue and to convey a spiritual succession. So we may observe that under the Law the Priests were required to prove their title to the sacred office by reference to their descent from the tribe of Levi, as proved by the registers of genealogy [Neh. vii. 64].

These chief pastors, or bishops, inherited the powers of Ordination, Government, and Church censures, the ordinary parts of the Apostolical office, the offering of spiritual sacrifice, the administration of the Holy Sacraments [Matt. xxviii. 19. Luke xxii.

19], the preaching of the Word [Mark xvi. 15], the Power of the Keys [Matt. xviii. 18. John xx. 23]; they were to be as pillars of the Church [Gal. ii. 19], as lights in the world [Matt. v. 14]; to be heard and received in Christ's stead [Matt. x. 40. Luke x. 16]. As the Priests under the Law exercised the ordinary sacerdotal offices although not called, like Aaron and his sons, in an extraordinary way, so these did not inherit the miraculous effusion, or the infallible guidance of the Holy Ghost [1 Tim. i. 18, 19; v. 21, 22], or an unlimited mission, as St. Paul did [1 Cor. xi. 23. Comp. John xiv. 26; xvi. 13]. They are called mediately through the Church by Ordination, they receive grace for grace, and are first tried, proved, and examined; but the heavenly mysteries having been first confided to their order, they, as the agents of the Holy Spirit, acting by commission from Christ, send forth priests and deacons. He that receiveth them receiveth Christ, and he that receiveth Christ receiveth Him that sent Him [Matt. x. 40. John xiii. 20. Mark ix. 37. Luke ix. 48]. Such is the doctrine of the Church of England: "The office and function of Priests and Ministers of the Church is appointed of God" [Royal Injunc. 1559, § xxviii.; 1547, § xxxii.]. "Holy Scripture openly teacheth that the order and ministry of Priests and Bishops was instituted of God, not by man's authority" [Cranmer's Paper, 1538, art. xv.]. "All are agreed that the Apostles received power of God to create Bishops" [Resol. of Bishops and Divines, 1540]. The twenty-sixth Article declares that the Clergy act "not in their own name, but in Christ's, and do minister by His commission and authority;" and the words of the Prayer Book are, "Almighty God, who by Thy Divine Providence" [Collect for Ember week], "by Thy Holy Spirit" [Collect in the Ordinal], "hast appointed divers orders of Ministers in Thy Church." The institution of the Ministry is from heaven, is of God, and the Holy Ghost is the Author of it.

§ Succession of the Ministry from the Apostles.

The order of Bishops is essential to the outward being of a Church. "Scire debes Episcopum in Ecclesiâ esse et Ecclesiam in Episcopo; et si qui cum Episcopo non sint in Ecclesiâ non esse" [St. Cyp., Epist. lxxvi. § 7]. "Ὅπου ἂν φαῖν ὁ ἐπίσκοπος ἐκεῖ τὸ πλῆθος ἔσται, ὥσπερ ὁποῦ ἂν ᾖ Χριστὸς Ἰησοῦς ἐκεῖ ἡ Καθολικὴ ἐκκλησία" [St. Ignat., Ep. ad Smyrn. § viii.]. But even before the ordination of Bishops, the Apostles then being alive, deacons were chosen as coadjutors, at first in relieving them of secular business, but subsequently with permission to preach and baptize [Acts viii. 5, 38]; and this, which was the constitution of the Church of Jerusalem, was adopted in cities [Tit. i. 5] which were too small to require the ministrations of Priests, as at Philippi [Phil. i. 1. St. Clem. ad Corinth. c. xlii.]. Thus Titus and Timothy by St. Paul, Clement by St. Peter, Polycarp of Smyrna by St. John, and St. Mark of Alexandria, and Evodius of Antioch, were consecrated bishops. However, as the "care of all the Churches" [2 Cor. xi. 28. Acts xv. 36. 1 Cor. v. 4] devolved on the Apostles, and their representatives the bishops in separate and local Churches found the oversight too laborious without assistance in their sacerdotal functions, they appointed Priests, about the year 45, though reserving to the chief pastors the rights of laying on of hands, jurisdiction, government, and episcopal visitation. These bodies of Priests are invariably mentioned in the plural number, as by St. Peter [1 Pet. v. 1] and St. Paul [1 Thess. v. 12. Tit. i. 5. Heb. xiii. 7. 1 Tim. v. 17]; and in consequence of their local supervision of places where there was no resident Bishop they were sometimes called Bishops [Acts xx. 28. 1 Pet. v. 2. Phil. i. 1]; they corresponded to the Seventy, being in that afterwards called technically the second order of Priesthood, Bishops occupying the first order, and then, as Theodoret says, called Apostles [in 1 Tim. iii.]. But until the second century the names were not invariably distinguished [St. Aug., Ep. lxxxii. Theodoret in 1 Tim. c. iii. St. Chrys., Hom. 1, ad Phil. c. 1]; thus St. John and St. Peter call themselves Priests [1 Pet. v. 1. 2 John 1]. St. Paul mentions Epaphroditus, without himself, as an Apostle [Phil. ii. 25], and Timothy as a Deacon [2 Tim. iv. 5]. By some mediæval and later ritualists the doctrine was held that Bishops and Priests formed one order with two degrees, and St. Jerome says that with the ancients the same man was bishop and priest, for one is a name of dignity, the other of age [Ep. lxxxii. ad Ocean. Comp. Theod. iii. p. 1, p. 700; and Theophylact, tom. ii. p. 626, A.]. But the Apostles, foreseeing that there would be a strife among the Priests who should be the greatest [St. Clem. Rom. c. xlii.], which would endanger unity, appointed chief overseers of the Churches [St. Hieron., Epist. c. 1, ad Evang., and Comm. in Ep. ad Tit. c. 1. St. Cyp., Ep. lv.] in provinces and principal cities. These were at first called also Angels [Phil. ii. 25. Rev. i. ii.], and had their known authority and superior place established a long time before their settled distinction of name and title took place. It is not improbable that the Apostolic Bishops may have been called Angels as ministering the New Testament with reference to the fact of the Law having been received by the disposition of angels [Acts vii. 53. Gal. iii. 19. Heb. ii. 12], and of our Lord being called the Angel of the presence [Isa. lxiii. 9] and of the covenant [Mal. iii. 1. Ps. lxxviii. 8. Numb. xx. 16. Exod. xxxii. 34; xxxiii. 2]; and St. Paul says that the Galatians received him as an angel of God [Gal. iv. 14]. At length the interchange of names ceased, and the three orders of Bishops, Priests, and Deacons were determined and distinguished nominally, even as from the beginning of Church polity they had been essentially distinct in office and powers.

It would be impossible within the compass of the space at our disposal to give a complete series of patristic authorities to illustrate the great fact of the Apostolic succession. A few must suffice.

St. Ignatius [A.D. 107]: "The Bishop sitting in God's place, Priests in the place of the company of Apostles, and Deacons" [ad Magnes. c. vi.].—St. Irenæus [A.D. 202]: "We can reckon up the list of Bishops ordained in the Churches by the Apostles up to our time" [Hær. l. iii. c. iii. § 1, 2].—St. Clement of Alexandria [A.D. 218]: "The Ecclesiastical honours of Bishops, Priests, and Deacons are, I trow, the resemblance of angelic glory" [Strom. l. vi. c. xiii.; Pæd. l. iii. c. xii.].—Tertullian [A.D. 220]: "The High Priest, i. e. the Bishop, has the right of giving baptism, then Priests and Deacons, but not without his authority" [de Bapt. c. xvii.]<sup>1</sup>.

Our adorable Lord was Himself externally commissioned for His Ministry by the visible descent of the Holy Ghost upon Him, and by an audible voice from heaven proclaiming Him to be the Messiah when He was about thirty years old. "Christ glorified not Himself to be made an high priest, but He that said unto Him, Thou art My Son, this day have I begotten Thee" [Heb. v. 3]. None of His Apostles or disciples presumed to undertake any ministry until they received a direct commission from Him [Mark iii. 14. John iv. 2. Luke x. 1]. It was the direct prophecy of God Himself that He would take for Priests and Levites [Isa. lxvi. 21], and therefore, as St. Paul says of the Evangelical Ministry, "No man *take*th this honour to himself but he that is called of God, as was Aaron" [Heb. v. 4]. Aaron, his sons, and all the Levites (corresponding to Bishops, Priests, and Deacons), were commissioned by God [Lev. viii. 1, 2. Numb. iii. 5], and death was the penalty of an invasion of their office [Numb. iii. 10; xviii. 17], as in the instance of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram [Numb. xvi. 39, 40]; and Uzzah, for acting in things pertaining to God without a divine commission [2 Sam. vi. 6, 7]. Saul lost his kingdom for offering sacrifice [1 Sam. xiii. 12, 14], and Uzziah was smitten with leprosy and excommunicated for burning incense [2 Chron. xxvi. 16], whilst Jeroboam's especial sin was that he consecrated all comers to the priesthood [1 Kings xiii. 33, 34; xii. 31]; and the heaviest censures of God are denounced on all usurpers of the prophetic office [Jer. xxiii. 19. 21. 31]. Such intruders, who come in their own name, are characterized by our Lord Himself as thieves and robbers [John v. 43; x. 1. 8]. St. Paul expressly speaks of the distinct ministerial offices as of God's ordinance [1 Cor. xii. 28, 29. Rom. xii. 7. Eph. iv. 11, 12]. "How shall they preach," he asks, "except they be sent?" [Rom. x. 15.] So also our Blessed Lord said, "As Thou hast sent Me into the world, even so have I sent them" (the Apostles) [John xvii. 18]; and, "Ye have not chosen Me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you" [ib. xv. 16].

<sup>1</sup> See also de Præsc. Hær. c. xxxii. xli.; Scorpiace, c. ix. Similar testimonies may be found in Origen, A.D. 254 [Hom. in Matt. c. xxii. Tr. xxiii.; in Hierem. Hom. xi.]; St. Cyprian, A.D. 258 [Ep. lxxx. § 4; lxxvi. § 3; xxxi. § 4]; Eusebius [Eccles. Hist. l. iii. c. iv.; iv. c. xxii.]; Optatus, A.D. 386 [de Schism. Donat. lib. i. c. xiii. xiv.]; St. Ambrose, A.D. 397 [de Dign. Sacerd. c. iiii. in Ps. cxviii.]; Epiphanius, A.D. 403 [Hær. l. iii. c. lxxix.]; St. Chrysostom, A.D. 407 [in 1 ad Tim. c. iii. Hom. xl.]; St. Jerome, A.D. 420 [ad Heliod., Ep. v. adv. Lucif., ad Marcell. xxvii., in Ps. xlv.]; St. Augustine [de Bapt. l. vii. c. xliii., de Verb. Evang. Sermon. cii., de Mor. Eccles. lib. i. c. xxxii.].

§ Derivation of the English Ordinal.

As there was only one Pontifical for the use of each diocese, copies of such collections of Services are among the rarest of ecclesiastical books. The Pontifical of Salisbury—collated with that of Winchester, which is in the University Library at Cambridge, and of Bangor, preserved among the cathedral muniments—has been printed by Mr. Maskell in his Monumenta Ritualia; and that of Exeter by Mr. Barnes. The Pontifical of Egbert has been published by the Surtees Society, and there are other uses in the Bodleian Library, Oxford; and, mostly imperfect, among the MSS. of the British Museum. These sources of information, collated with ancient Sacramentaries, Italian and French Pontificals, the Euchologium of the Greek Church, and the Ordinals of other Churches of that Communion, published by Martene, Morin, and Assemani, form the groundwork of the present illustrations of the English Ordinal: whilst the works of Catalani, Hallier, Morin, and Muratori, and the notes of Menard, and writers contained in the volume printed by Hittorp, have been freely used. It is a remarkable fact that English writers, such as Wheatley, Sparrow, and L'Estrange, have wholly omitted the subject; Mr. Palmer and Mr. Procter have only cursorily illustrated the Services; Bp. Cosin made his notes, now in his Library at Durham and in the British Museum, in copies of the Book of Common Prayer which do not contain the Forms of Ordination; and Dean Comber, like Dr. Mant and Dr. Doyly and Mr. Pinder, has done little more than offer some practical observations. With the exception therefore of a volume on the English Ordinal by the present writer, this series of notes may be regarded as the first ritualistic illustration of this all-important portion of the Book of Common Prayer, whilst they embody the earliest complete account of its development from ancient sources. For our Ordinal was not taken word for word from the Roman Pontifical, as Archbishop Whitgift asserted, but framed on the comprehensive and broad ground of all known forms and manners of Ordination used in all branches of the Catholic Church.

There was a British Church existing in the second century, and founded in the Apostolic age [Eusebius, Demonst. Evang. l. iii. c. vii. Theodoret adv. Gent. Disp. ix. in Ps. cxvi., Interpr. Tertullian adv. Jud. c. vii. St. Clement, Ep. ad Corinth. c. v. St. Jerome, Catal. Script. Eccles. § v.]. In 314, at the Council of Arles, probably at Nicea, 325, certainly at Sardica, 347, and Rimini, 360, British Bishops were present. In 428, St. Germain, Bishop of Auxerre, and Lupus, Bishop of Troyes, consecrated several Bishops [Bede, Hist. Eccl. l. i. c. xvii.], doubtless with the Gallican form, which had been derived from the Eastern Church. In 597, St. Augustine was consecrated by Ætherius, Bishop of Lyons, and Virgilius, Bishop of Arles; Wilfrid of York by Agilbert, Bishop of Paris, 665. There were also bishops consecrated in Rome, and Italy, by Saxon, Irish, and Scotch Bishops, several of the latter having derived their orders from Rome. For the purpose of simplifying the history of the gradual development of successive Ordinals, the contents of those used in England from the fifth century to the present time have been given, as well as the earliest known forms preserved in Sacramentaries, which prove that the latter were accepted as the formularies of the Western Church. It is certain that the further we can trace back rituals, the simpler they are; for they only gradually received additions and enlargement, with fresh rubrics designed to enhance the solemnity of the ceremonial. Possibly these were the innovations of an individual bishop, adopted by neighbouring dioceses, until authoritatively recognized. But they were changed according to the diversities of countries, times, and men's manners. It will be seen how much they varied. While the Church of England retained the essential form and matter, she ordained, changed, or abolished some of those ceremonies and rites of the Church which were ordained only by man's authority, so that all things might be done to edifying, and rendered more conformable with primitive usage.

The form and offices for making Deacons agree in containing a Prayer Ad ordinandum Diaconum, oremus dilectissimi, a Prayer for the Holy Spirit, Exaudi Domine, an address for united Prayer for the deacon, Ad consummandum Diaconum, Commune votum, and a Benediction, Domine Sancte Spei. The delivery of the stole and Gospel, and other ceremonials, were of later introduction.

Diaconus cum ordinatur, solus Episcopus qui eum benedicit manum super caput illius quia non ad sacerdotium sed ad ministerium consecratur [IV. Council of Carthage, ap. Morin. p. 260].

Sacramentary of St. Leo [Migne, p. 260].

Domine Deus, preces nostras clementer exaudi (§).
Oremus dilectissimi (a).
Deus Consolator.
Adesto quæsumus (β).

Sacramentary of Gelasius [Morin, p. 267].

Ordination.
Ad ordinand. Diac. Oremus dilectissimi (a).
Exaudi, Domine Deus, preces nostras (§).
Consecration—Adesto quæsumus (β).
Ad consummandum—Commune votum (γ).
Benediction—Domine Sancte Spei (δ).

Sacramentary of P. Gregory.

Presentation by the Archdeacon.
Address to the people—Auxiliante Domino (φ).
The Litany (χ).
Ordination with laying on of hands.
Prayer—Oremus dilectissimi (a).
Prayer for the Holy Spirit—Exaudi Domine Deus (§).
Consecration—Adesto quæsumus (β).
Investiture with the stole (ε).

Liturgia Alemannica [Gerberti, 40, 9th century].

Ordination.
Benedictio—Oremus dilectissimi (a).
Exaudi Domine (§).
Consecratio, Adesto quæsumus . . . honorum Dator (β).

Gallican Liturgy. Deacon [Muratori, 664; Migne, xxii., 320].

Allocutio ad populum, ending Si vestra apud meam concordat electio testimonium quod vultis vocis adprobate. Per Dominum.
Oratio—Oremus dilectissimi (a).
Consecratio—Adesto quæsumus (β).
Exaudi Domine (§).
Ad consummandum Diaconi officium—Commune votum (γ).
Benedictio—Domine Sancte Spei.

Pontifical [Clausius A. iii. 42 (Cotton MS.), of the 10th century].

Oratio ad ordinandum Diaconi—Oremus dilectissimi (a).
Exaudi, Domine, preces nostras (§).
Domine Deus omnipotens.
Consecratio—Adesto quæsumus omnipotens Deus honorum Dator (β).
Ad consummandum Diaconi officium—Commune votum (γ).
Benedictio—Domine Sancte Spei (δ).
Investiture with stole (ε).
Consecration of the deacon's hands with oil and chrism.
The Mass.

Pontifical of Egbert.

Address by the Bishop—Auxiliante Domino (φ).
The Litany (χ).

Investiture with stole.

Delivery of the Gospel.

Ordination of the Deacon with laying on of hands by the Bishop.

Benediction of the Deacon—Oremus, dilectissimi (α).

(alia) Exaudi, Domine (ζ).

Consecration of the Deacon—Prayer for the Holy Spirit, Adesto, quæsumus (β).

Collect ad conservandum diaconatus officii, Commune votum (γ).

Benediction—A Prayer referring to St. Stephen: Domine Sancte Spei (δ).

Consecration of the hands of the Deacon with holy oil and chrism.

DEACON [Harl. MS. 2906, fo. 8, 10th century].

Presentation by the Archdeacon (μ).

The Gospel is read.

Si quis.

Litany (χ).

Ordination by the Bishop only.

Commune votum—Address to the people (γ).

Præfatio Oremus dilectissimi (α).

Consecratio—Adesto quæsumus (β).

Delivery of the stole.

Prayer for the Deacon with allusion to St. Stephen.

Deacons.

Deacons and Subdeacons approach together with their habits [Bangor also] [separately Winchester and Exeter] (μ).

The Litany [omitted by Winton Pont.] (χ).

The Deacons retire. The Bishop's address.

Diaconum oportet [a longer form in Winton Pont.].

Ordination by the Bishop, saying, Accipe Spiritum Sanctum [the form omitted in Winton Pont.].

Præfatio—Oremus, dilectissimi (α).

Exaudi Domino (ζ).

Vere Dignum, with a prayer in it for the Holy Ghost—Emitte in cor Spiritum Sanctum.

Investiture with the stole.

[A long prayer in Winton Pontifical.]

[The delivery of the Gospels.]

[Commune votum] (γ).

[Domine Sancte, Pater Spei] (δ).

Delivery of the Gospels × ×.

Domine Sancte, Pater fidei spei, etc. (δ)

Delivery of the dalmatic.

Reading of the Gospels by a newly-ordained Deacon. oo 1549, 1552, 1662.

Presentation to the Bishop (μ).

Address to the people [Præfatio a. ζ. γ].

Litany (χ).

Holy Communion.

Collect—Almighty God, Who by Thy Divine Providence.

[Consecratio] (β).

The Epistle, 1 Tim. iii. 8, or Acts vi. 2.

Examination of Candidates.

Ordination by the Bishop.

Delivery of the Gospel × ×.

The Gospel, St. Luke xii. 35, read by a Deacon oo.

Collect—Almighty God, Giver of all good [ad consummandum] (δ).

Prevent us, O Lord [added 1662].

Benediction [added 1662].

Ordering of Priests.

The earliest services agree in containing a prayer, ad ordinandum Presbyterum, called the Preface in the Salisbury Pontifical; the Consecratio corresponding to the Collect, "Almighty God, Giver of all good things;" the Consummatio, a final Collect, and the Benedictio. The Prayer for the giving of the Holy Ghost was about the 10th century added to the proper Preface of the Mass Vere dignum, and after the 13th century took the direct form—"Receive the Holy Ghost," and in some Pontificals the Vere dignum is directed to be left out. As early as the time of Pope Gregory there was an investiture with the chasuble; and in the 10th century a delivery of the chalice and paten, and a change in the arrangement of the stole: the Consecration of the hands occurs in the Gregorian Sacramentary, and of the head in the Pontifical of Egbert. The arrangement of the chasuble, and the introduction of the Hymn, "Veni, Creator Spiritus," were far later insertions.

Presbyter cum ordinatur Episcopo eum benedicente et manum super caput ejus tenente, etiam omnes Presbyteri qui præsentés sunt manus suas juxta manum Episcopi super caput illius teneant [IV. Counc. of Carthage].

Sacramentary of Pope Leo [Migne, 55. 115].

Oremus, dilectissimi (β).

Exaudi nos (γ).

Domine Sancte (α).

Sacramentary of Gelasius [Morin, 267].

Priest.

Si quis.

Litany.

Ordination by the Bishop.

Ad ordinandum Presbyterum—Oremus, dilectissimi (β).

Exaudi nos (γ).

Consecratio—Domine Sancte, Pater omnipotens æterne Deus honorum, etc. (α).

Consummatio—Sit nobis fratres communis oratio (δ).

Benedictio—Sanctificationum omnium Autor (φ).

Gregory's Sacramentary.

Priest.

Presentation by the Archdeacon.

Litany.

Ordination with laying on of hands.

Prayer for blessing on the Priest—Oremus, dilectissimi (β).

Prayer for the Holy Ghost—Exaudi nos, quæsumus (γ).

Consecratio—Domine Sancte (α).

Investiture with the chasuble.

Consecration of the hands (ζ).

Gallican Liturgy [Muratori, 666; Migne, lxxii. 521].

Allocutio ad populum ending, Ideo electionem vestram debetis voce publica profiteri.

Oratio—Oremus, dilectissimi (β).

Exaudi nos (γ).

Consecratio—Domine Sancte . . . honorum, etc. (α)

Consummatio—Sit nobis patres communis oratio (δ).

Benedictio—Deus Sanctificationum (φ).

MS. Pontifical [Claud. A. iii.].

Priest.

Ordination.

Oratio ad Ordinandum Presbyterum.

Oremus, dilectissimi (β).

Exaudi quæsumus, Domine Deus (γ).

The stole is changed. Consecratio (α).

Domine Sancte Pater omnipotens æterne. Dispositor honorum, etc.

Consecration of the Priest's hands with chrism, with prayer, and of his head with oil.

*Investiture with the chasuble (ε).

Consecratio—Presbyteri, Sit nobis communis oratio (δ).

The Mass.

Pontifical of Egbert [735—766].

Investiture with the stole, with a prayer.

Mention of the title on which the Priest is ordained.

Ordination by laying on of the hands of the Bishop and Priests, with a prayer.

Oratio ad Presbyterum ordinandum—Oremus, dilectissimi (β).

Exaudi nos (γ).

Consecration of the Priest—Domine Sancte, Pater omnipotens (α).

Oratio—Sit nobis communis oratio (δ).

Benediction of the Priest—Deus Sanctificationum (φ).

Investiture with the chasuble (ε).

Consecration of the hands with chrism in the shape of (ζ) a cross, and of the head of the Priest with oil.

Liturgia Alemannica, 9th century [Gerberti, 41].

Ordination—The Priests holding their hands next the Bishop's hands.

Benedictio—Oremus, dilectissimi (β).

Consecratio—Domine Sancte (α).

Consecration of the hands.

PRIEST [Harl. 2906, 10th century].

Presentation by two Deacons and two Priests.

Ordination by Bishop and Priests.

Quoniam, dilectissimi.

Address to the people.

Præface—Oremus, dilectissimi (β).

Exaudi nos (γ).

Vere dignum, with Æterne Deus honorum dator (α).

Investiture with stole.

Benediction—Deus Sanctificationum (φ).

Cruciform unction of both hands (ζ).

Delivery of paten and chalice.

Benediction.

Salisbury.—Priests.

Presentation by Archdeacon.

Duties of Priesthood explained—Sacerdotem oportet.

[A long address by the Bishop. Winton Pontif.]

Ordination by the Bishop in silence, the Priests assisting.

Præfatio Sacerdotum cum nota stando, Oremus, dilectissimi (β).

[In the Exeter Pontifical is the Populi Communio, Commune votum.]

Exaudi nos, quæsumus.

Vere dignum, with prayer for the Priests.

Investiture with stole and chasuble.

Consecration of the hands with oil and chrism.

Oratio—Deus Sanctificationum omnium (φ).

The Hymn, "Veni, Creator Spiritus" [omitted in Winton Pontifical].

Blessing of the hands.

Delivery of the paten and chalice.

[In the Winton Pontifical Consummatio—Sit nobis.

Communis oratio (δ).

Deus Sanctificationum (φ).

The Benediction.]

The Mass—After the Post-Communion.

The ordination by the Bishop—Accipe Spiritum Sanctum.

Arrangement of the chasuble. [This is found also in the Greek Euchologium, where "the Bread" is put into the hand of the newly ordained Priest. The Deacon has a flapper delivered to him. Assemani, xi. 132.]

Benediction.

1549, 1552, 1662.

Sermon or Exhortation.

|      |   |                                                          |   |                                      |
|------|---|----------------------------------------------------------|---|--------------------------------------|
| 1662 | { | Presentation by the Archdeacon.                          | } | After theVeni, Creator,1552. |
|      |   | Address to the people.                                   |   |                                      |
|      |   | The Litany.                                              |   |                                      |
|      |   | Collect—Almighty God [the Consecration (α) and Preface]. |   |                                      |

Epistle, Eph. iv. 7 [Acts xx.; 1 Tim. iii., 1552].

The Gospel, Matt. ix. 36 [Matt. xviii., 1552].

John x. 1 [and John xx., 1552].

Address to the Candidates } [after the Veni, Creator, Prayer for them. } 1552.]

Veni, Creator [after the Gospel, 1552].

Prayer—Almighty God [Benediction (φ)].

Ordination by the Bishop, the Priests assisting.

Delivery of the Bible.

Collect—Most Merciful Father [Consummatio] (δ).

Prevent us, O Lord [1662].

The Benediction [1662].

CONSECRATION OF BISHOPS.

The offices for consecration of a Bishop agree in having a Prayer for the Elect, Oremus, dilectissimi, the Benediction, Adesto supplicationibus, and the Consecration, Deus honorum. The Unction appears first in the Sacramentary of Gelasius, and the delivery of the staff in Egbert's Pontifical. A form of enthronization also occurs at an early date.

Episcopus cum ordinatur, duo Episcopi ponant et teneant Evangeliorum codicem supra caput et cervicem ejus, et uno super eum fundente benedictionem reliqui omnes Episcopi qui adsunt manibus suis caput ejus tangant. [IV. Council of Carthage.]

Sacramentary of Pope Leo [Migne, lv. 114].

Exaudi, Domine, supplicum preces (ε).

Suscipe, Domine.

Adesto, Misericors Deus (γ).

Propitiare Deus (α).

Deus honorum omnium (β).

Sacramentary of Gelasius [Morin, 267].

Consecration with laying on of the Gospels.

Oremus, dilectissimi (δ).

Adesto supplicationibus (γ).

Propitiare Domine (α).

Deus honorum omnium (β).

Unction with chrism.

In a very ancient French Pontifical of Poitiers, c. 511—60, printed by Morin.

Exhortation to the people.

Oremus, dilectissimi (δ).

Exaudi, Domine (ε).

Propitiare, Domine (α).

Collect—Deum totius sanctificationis.

Consecratio—Deus honorum omnium (β), containing a prayer for spiritual unction.

Sacram. Gregorii [Migne, lxxviii. p. 223].

Ordination with imposition of hands.

Prayer for the Bishop—Oremus, dilectissimi (δ).

Benediction of the Bishop—Adesto supplicationibus nostris (γ).

Another prayer for the same—Propitiare, etc. (α).

Consecration—Deus honorum omnium (β).

Unction.

Gallican Liturgy [Muratori, 669; Migne, lxxii. 323].

Exhortatio ad populum.

Oratio et preces—Oremus, dilectissimi, the third Prayer in the Ordo Romanus (δ).

Exaudi, Domine (ε).

Propitiare, Domine (α).

Collectio—Deus omnium sanctificationum.

Consecratio—Deus honorum omnium, with a prayer for unction of the Holy Ghost, and for enthronement (β).

Liturgia Alemannica [9th century, Gerberti, 42].

Benedictio—Adesto quæsumus (γ).

Propitiare (α).

Consecratio—Deus honorum, with prayer for the Holy Spirit (β).

Pont. Egberti.

Ordination by one Bishop pronouncing the Benediction, two holding the Gospels over the neck of the ordained, and the rest holding their hands over his head.

Three Prayers { Oremus, dilectissimi (δ).
Adesto supplicationibus (γ).
Propitiare, Domine (α).

Consecration of the hands of the Bishop.

Unction of his head.

Delivery of the pastoral staff and ring.

Prayer ad pontificem ordinandum—Deus honorum omnium (β).
Installation of the Bishop on his throne, with prayer, Omnipotens Pater (ζ).

The Benediction.

Benedictio in consummatione Episcopi. Spiritus Sanctus Septiformis veniat super te, et virtus Altissimi sine peccato cus-todiat te, et omnis benedictio quæ in Scripturis Sanctis scripta est super te veniat. Confirmet te Deus Pater et Filius et Spiritus Sanctus, ut habeas vitam æternam et vivas in sæcula sæculorum.
Amen.

Salisbury Pontifical.

Bishop.

Presentation by two Bishops.

Examination by the Archbishop.

The Mass begun with the Prayer Adesto supplicationibus (γ), to the end of the Sequence.

The Archdeacon robes the Elect.

Two Bishops present him.

Oremus, dilectissimi (δ).

The Litany.

[The Hymn—Veni, Creator] [Winton Pontif.]

The Gospels laid on the head of the Elect [with Accipe Spiritum Sanctum, Exeter Pont.].

Veni, Creator.

Vere Dignum, with the preface for the Bishop Elect. Domine Sancte . . . honor omnium dignitatum (β).

Unction of the head of the Elect with oil and chrism.

Preface and Prayers for the Elect, for the gifts of the Holy Spirit.

Pater Sancte, omnipotens Deus (ζ).

Benediction of the Septiform Spirit [occurring also in Pont.
Egberti].

Unction of the hands of the Elect.

The delivery of the pastoral staff [also in Pont. Egbert and Dunstan].

The delivery of the ring [also in Pont. Egbert].

The delivery of the mitre.

The delivery of the Gospels.

The Post-Communion.

Greek Euchologium [of the 11th century].

Ordination of a Bishop.

After the Trisagion the Archbishop goes up upon the steps of the Sanctuary before the Holy Table, and receives a letter, stating that by the approbation of the Bishops, Priests, and Deacons, the heavenly grace which healeth the weak and supplieth that which is lacking, promotes this godly Priest N. to be Bishop of the city ✠, and we therefore pray that the Grace of the Holy Spirit may descend upon him.

The Archdeacon then says, "Attend," and the Patriarch reads the letter; then Kyrie Eleison is said, and the Elect is led up by three Bishops, assistants in the consecration. Then the Patriarch lays the book of the Gospels on his neck, the Bishops touching it; three signs of the cross are made on his head, and the Bishop holding his hand on it says two prayers: he then invests him with the pall; and after enthronization the newly consecrated Bishop communicates the Patriarch. Assemanni [xl. 125].

1549, 1552, 1662.

Communion Office.

Collect—Almighty God.

Epistle [1 Tim. iii. 1].

Acts xx. 17 [1662].

Gospel—John xxi. 15.

John xx. 19 [1662].

John x. [1552].

Matt. xxviii. 18 [1662].

Presentation to the Bishop.

Oath of due Obedience.

Address to the Congregation.

The Litany.

Prayer—Almighty God, Giver of all good things [Consecration] (β).

Address to the Elect.

Interrogation of the Elect.

The Elect robes.

Veni, Creator.

Prayer—Almighty God [Benediction] (γ).

Consecration by three Bishops.

Delivery of the Bible [and of the staff, 1549].

Prayer—Most Merciful Father.

Prevent us [1662].

Benediction [1662].

§ The Revision of the English Ordinal.

The first change in the old English Pontificals was made by the omission of the oath of Obedience to the Bishop of Rome by Act 28 Hen. VIII. c. x. In the winter of 1548, a Committee, consisting of the Primate, the Bishops of Rochester, Ely, Lincoln, and Westminster, according to Heylin [Hist. of Reform., pp. 57, 58], the Deans of St. Paul's, Lincoln, Exeter, Ch. Ch., Archdeacon Robertson, and Redmayne, Master of Trinity College, Cambridge, and, as Burnet adds, (Collier inclining to the same belief,) the Archbishop of York, and Bishops of London, Durham, Worcester, Norwich, St. Asaph, Salisbury, Coventry, Carlisle, Bristol, and
St. David's [Burnet, Hist. of the Reform. pt. ii. b. i., and Collier, Eccles. Hist. pt. ii. b. iv.], was appointed to reconstruct an Ordinal. The old books of Ecclesiastical offices had been destroyed ruthlessly and needlessly by the King's orders [Cardwell, Doc.
Ann., No. xx.]; and therefore, in November, 1549, the Parliament made an Act, declaring that "forasmuch as concord and unity to be had within the King's Majesty's dominions, it is requisite to have one uniform fashion and manner for making and consecrat-ing of bishops, priests, and deacons, or ministers of the Church:
Be it therefore enacted by the King's Highness, with the assent of the Lords spiritual and temporal, and the Commons in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that such form and manner of making and consecrating of archbishops, bishops, priests, deacons, and other ministers of the Church, as by six prelates and six other men of this realm, learned in God's law, by the King's Majesty to be appointed and assigned, or by the most number of them, shall be devised for that purpose, and set forth under the Great Seal of England before the 1st day of April next coming, shall by virtue of the present Act be lawfully exercised and used, and none other, any statute or law or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding" [3 and 4 Edw. VI. c.
xii.]. In the House of Lords, the Bishops of Durham, Chichester, Carlisle, Worcester, and Westminster, protested against the Act [Burnet, pt. ii. b. i.]. Cranmer had the chief hand of the work [Styripe's Mem. of Cranmer, ch. xi.], and, it is said, drew up the preface. Three offices only were prepared, although the Statute had mentioned the ordering of other Ministers of the Church, that is, clergy in minor orders, Subdeacons and Readers, &c. It was providential that the counsels of the more moderate party in the Church prevailed over the rash advice of the intemperate and Germanizing section, who would have abolished much that was of ancient use. Poynt wished to abandon the very name of Bishop. Grindal called it the mummery of consecration. Jewel would have had no clerical dress, and Hooper would not wear it.
In the new form the unction of the Priest's hands, a French rite in the sixth century, unknown in the Greek Church, and not practised at Rome until after the time of Nicholas I., was laid aside; as was also the blessing of the Priest's habit with a special blessing for his offering acceptable sacrifices, a ceremonial not of earlier date than the eighth century. But the delivery of the chalice, or cup with the bread, which had been practised in the tenth century, was retained. It may be observed, that under the Law certain portions of the offertory were placed in the hands of Aaron and of his sons, symbolically of their office of presenting the sacrifices before the Lord [Exod. xxix. 24]. The Service began with an Exhortation; and one of the following Psalms, xl., cxxxii., and cxxxv., at the discretion of the celebrant, was to be sung as the introit to the Holy Communion. For the Epistle was appointed Acts xx. 17—35, or else 1 Tim. iii. 1. 8; for the Gospel, Matt. xxviii. 18 to the end, or John x. 1—16, or John xx. 19—23. The Veni Creator having been sung, the Deacon was presented by the Archdeacon. Then followed the Litany with a special Collect. The Deacon to be ordained Priest was to have a plain albe upon him; the dress appointed for the candidate for Deacon's orders, with the addition of the word "white." The oath of the King's supremacy was administered, and the Exhortation made by the Bishop, who proceeded to put a series of questions copied literally in part, and wholly in spirit, from the interrogatories made in the Elder Pontificals to Bishops; after a certain space kept in silence for prayers by the congregation, the Bishop, having said a prayer, ordained the Deacon to the Priesthood, and delivered to him the Bible; the Holy Communion followed, with a special Prayer before the Benediction. In the ordering of Deacons, the order was as in the present Form.

In the Litany, however, three of the petitions ran thus:—"From all sedition and privy conspiracy, from the tyranny of the Bishop of Rome and all his detestable enormities," &c. "That it may please Thee to illuminate all Bishops, Priests, and Ministers of the Church," &c. "That it may please Thee to bless these men, and send Thy grace upon them, that they may duly execute the office now to be committed unto them to the edifying of Thy Church, and to Thy honour, praise, and glory." The Epistle was 1 Tim. iii. 8—16, or Acts vi. 2. The oath of the King's supremacy was much longer, and in a different form. The newly-appointed Deacon was to "read the Gospel of that day, putting on a tunicle." If Deacons and Priests were ordained at the same time, the whole of the three chapters of the First Epistle to Timothy was read. In the form of consecrating an Archbishop or Bishop, the Psalm for the introit at the Holy Communion was to be the same as at the ordering of Priests. The Epistle was 1 Tim. iii. 1, and the Gospel, John xxi. 15, or "chap. x., as in the order of Priests." At the presentation, the elected Bishop was to have upon him a surplice and cope, and the presenting Bishops to be in surplices and copes, and bearing their pastoral staves in their hands. The Archbishop laid the Bible on the neck of the consecrated Bishop, and put the staff into his hand, saying, "Be to the flock," &c.

This complete Form and Manner was published in March, 1549-1550, and printed by Richard Grafton, Printer to the King, and five Bishops were consecrated according to it. Unhappily the efforts of the extreme reformers prevailed now over the better judgment of the Catholic party. The influence of Peter Martyr, Alasco, Bucer, and Calvin was felt in the counsels of Hooper, Poyntet, and their followers. In consequence of their representations, a new review was instituted in the commencement of 1551; and on and after All Saints' Day, 1552, the Second Book of Edward VI. was ordered to be in use. The handiwork of violent men of factious, peevish, and perverse spirit is only too recognizable, "bewraying their own folly," and "full of innovations and newfangledness." Several laudable practices of the Church of England, or indeed of the whole Catholic Church of Christ, were now laid aside. The introits of the Holy Communion, the habits of the candidates and of the presenting and electing Bishops, the delivery of the chalice and sacred elements, and of the pastoral staff, was omitted, and only one change was made for the better at the instance of Hooper, the substitution in the oath of the King's supremacy of the words, So help me God, through Jesus Christ, for all Saints and the holy Evangelists. By statute 5 and 6 Edw. VI. cap. i. § 45, the form and manner of making and consecrating of Archbishops, Bishops, Priests, and Deacons, was annexed to the Book of Common Prayer, "faithfully and godly perused, explained, and made fully perfect." This Act passed the House of Commons, and was returned to the Lords, April 14, 1552 [Collier, Eccles. Hist. p. iv. b. ii. Burnet, p. ii. b. i.], and the 35th of the Articles drawn up in 1552 by a Committee delegated by both Houses of Convocation, and in force until 6 Eliz., declares that the book of the Ordering of the Ministers of the Church, for truth of doctrine is godly, and in nothing is repugnant to the sound doctrine of the Gospel, but agreeth thereto, and doth much promote and illustrate the same. The 25th Article, entitled, "Nemo in Ecclesia ministret nisi vocatus," is literally the same as the 23rd in the Articles of Religion of 1562. Only one Bishop was consecrated according to this Ordinal.

Out of twenty-six sees twenty were still occupied by Bishops who had been consecrated according to the use of the old Pontificals: upon the accession of Queen Mary, the Acts of 3 Edw. VI. c. xii., for drawing up the Ordinal, and 5 Edw. VI. c. i., for annexing it to the Book of Common Prayer, were repealed; and after December 20, 1553, the forms commonly used in England in the last year of King Henry VIII. were only to be used. An unanswerable testimony that the main body and essentials, as well in the chiefest materials as in the frame and order thereof, had been continued the same in the Reformed Ordinals, is contained in the fact that the Roman party contented themselves with requiring "the supply of those things wanted before," such as unction and the delivery of sacred vessels and of the proper habits [Art. xv. 1553. Burnet, pt. ii. b. ii.], and so reconciling the Ministers ordained according to the new form [Cardw., Doc. Ann., No. xxx. Heylin's Hist. of the Reform., p. 206], and Pope Julius in his Bull, 1553, giving Legatine power to Cardinal Pole, desired him to reconcile and reinstate the Bishops and Archbishops in their Cathedral Churches, and permit them to ordain to the priesthood,—ad quoscunque etiam sacros et Presbyteratus ordines promovere et in illis aut per eos jam licet minus rectè susceptis ordinibus, etiam in altaris ministerio ministrare necnon munus consecrationis suscipere [Cardw., Doc. Ann. xxxii.]. It will be borne in mind that these subsidiary rites and ceremonies, as will be shown on a later page, are regarded by Roman Catholic Canonists of the first rank and eminence to be wholly unessential and of very late introduction. On June 13, 1558, every copy of the English Ordinal was required to be delivered up to the Ordinary of the diocese [Cardwell, No. xxxix.]. Thirteen Bishops were consecrated during the imprisonment of the Primate Cranmer, and as many were irregularly intruded into sees not vacant [Burnet, pt. ii. b. ii. Heylin, p. 208] by the authority of the Pope, which had been renounced by the Provincial Synods of Canterbury and York, as well as by individual dioceses. In November, 1558, Queen Mary and Cardinal Pole died.

On the accession of Queen Elizabeth the Second Book of Edward VI. with the Ordinal having been reviewed by Parker, Cox, Pilkington, Grindal, Sandys, Guest, May, Bill, and Smith, was restored by Act of Parliament, April 20, 1 Eliz. c. ii. § 3, to be in force and effect after June 24, and the Act of Repeal passed in Queen Mary's reign was annulled. On December 17, 1559, at Lambeth Chapel, Parker was consecrated to the arch-see of Canterbury by the Bishops of Chichester, Bedford, and Exeter. The Ordinal had been included under the "words of Administration of Sacraments, Rites, and Ceremonies," but Bp. Bonner objected that it was not expressly named, although of course it formed an integral part of the Book of Common Prayer by statute of 1552, and had been repealed together with it in 1553. However, to put an end to all such exceptions, an Act was passed September 13, 1566, 8 Eliz. cap. i. § 3, 5, confirmed by 1 Jac. I. c. xxv. § 48, authorizing the use of the Ordinal in future, and declaring that all persons that had been or should be made, ordered, or consecrated by it were true Archbishops, Bishops, Priests, and Deacons. But the XXXVth Article of Religion, drawn up in 1562, and confirmed by Convocation, 1571, had already decreed the validity of all orders conferred according to the new Ordinal since the second year of Edward VI., and the Act, 13 Eliz. c. xii., required subscription to those Articles by the Clergy; the Constitutions Ecclesiastical, 1575, further required that Holy Orders should be given only according to the form and manner of the Ordinal; and in those of 1604 [c. xxxvi.] all impugnors of the Ordinal were declared excommunicate, and all candidates for the ministry required to acknowledge its conformity with the Word of God. Courayer mentions the important fact that Pope Pius IV. by his envoy offered to confirm the whole English Prayer Book, of course including the Ordinal, provided the Church of England would be reconciled to the Pope and acknowledge his supremacy [ch. xiii. p. 235]. In 1640, when a complete Pontifical was to have been drawn up, the form of Ordering Bishops, Priests, and Deacons was to have been retained [Heylin, Cypr. Anglic. pt. ii. p. 414]. In January, 1645, the Book of Common Prayer was proscribed.

On March 25, 1661, by royal commission, King Charles II. empowered Conferences to be held for a "review of the Book of Common Prayer, comparing the same with the most ancient Liturgies which have been used in the primitive and purest times." Bishops Cosin, Wren, Sanderson, Nicholson, Morley, Hinchman, Skinner, and Warner proceeded to undertake the work, assisted by the MS. notes of Bishops Cosin, Overal, and Andrewes. On November 29, the Upper House were still at work upon the revision of the Ordinal; on December 20, 1661, the Book was received, approved, and subscribed by both Houses. On May 19, 1662, the Bill for the Uniformity of Public Prayers and Administration of the Sacraments received the Royal Assent, and provided that the new Book should be used after the Feast of St. Bartholomew, 1662 [13 & 14 Car. II. c. iv. § 32]. It was authorized again by Act, 1706, 5 Ann. c. v. viii. art. xxv. § vii.

The alterations, additions, and variations were chiefly made in rubrics for the better direction of those officiating in the Service, in a clearer explanation of some words and phrases, and rendering the Epistles and Gospels according to the last translation. The former were numerous and of greater significance and importance.

In the Ordering of Deacons the words, "After Morning Prayer is ended there shall be a Sermon or," were added in the first rubric. The Bishop was required to be sitting in his chair near to the Holy Table, whilst the candidates were once more directed to be decently habited, that is in the habit and apparel suitable to the order to which they were to be ordained,—“the vestures appointed for their ministry,” a plain albe or surplice, with a cope for Priests, and albes with tunicles for Deacons, were appointed in the first Prayer Book of Edward VI. This rubric therefore restored in spirit that of the first Prayer Book of Edward VI., whilst it was opposed to the old custom of investiture of the candidates by the Bishop's own hands. In the Litany the word "rebellion" was substituted for the passage, "from the tyranny of the Bishop of Rome and his detestable enormities;" "Bishops, Priests, and Deacons," for the vague wording, "Bishops, pastors, and ministers of the Church;" and for "to bless these men and send," &c., "these Thy servants now to be admitted to the order of Deacons, and to pour Thy grace upon them." The Prayer of St. Chrysostom was omitted. This rubric was now added, "then shall be sung or said the Service for the Communion, with the Collect, Gospel, and Epistle as followeth." The candidate was desired to "humbly kneel before the Bishop." At the delivery of the Gospel, the words "thereto licensed by the Bishop himself," were substituted for "thereunto ordinarily commanded." Instead of the Gospel of the day, a proper Gospel was enjoined; and the Collect, "Prevent us, O Lord," was added from the Post-Communion Office. In the address on the duties of a Deacon, the words "to baptize" were enlarged into these, "in the absence of the Priest, to baptize infants;" and the sentence "they may be relieved by the parish or other convenient alms," was altered to "relieved with the alms of the parishioners or others."

The Ordering of Priests. The form hitherto began with the Service for the Holy Communion; after an Exhortation and the presentation of the Candidates, followed the singing of the Veni Creator, but it was now removed to the beginning of the Service in a manner like that for the Ordering of Deacons. For the Epistle of 1552, Acts xx. 17—35, or 1 Tim. iii., transferred to the Consecration of Bishops, because the πρεσβύτεροι mentioned therein were the Bishops of Asia Minor [St. Chrysostom, Hom. xi. 1. Theodoret in 1 Tim. iv. 14. Œcumenius, Comm. in 1 Tim. c. xiii. Theophylact in 1 Ep. ad Tim. iv. 14. Suicer, Thes. Eccles. ii. p. 824. Aquinas, Comm. cap. iv. § 3], Eph. iv. 7 was appointed. The Gospel, Matt. xxviii. 18—20, now the appropriate third Gospel for the Consecration of Bishops, was exchanged for Matt. ix. 36, and the third Gospel, John xx., was removed to that Service also. Another translation of the hymn, Veni Creator, probably made by Dryden, was added. The words "for the office and work of a Priest in the Church of God now committed unto thee by the imposition of our hands," were inserted after the words "Receive the Holy Ghost," in order to determine the Ordination to the Priesthood. The old rubric was ambiguous: "if the Orders of Deacon and Priesthood be given both upon one day, then shall all things at the Holy Communion be used as they are appointed at the Ordering of Priests, saving that for the Epistle the whole of 1 Tim. iii. shall be read as it is set out before in the Ordering of Priests, and immediately after the Epistle, the Deacons shall be ordered, and it shall suffice the Litany be said once." It was now expanded into a fuller and clearer shape: "And if on the same day the Orders of Deacons be given to some, and the Order of Priesthood to others, the Deacons shall be first presented and then the Priests, and it shall suffice that the Litany be once said for both. The Collects shall both be used, first that for Deacons, then that for Priests. The Epistle shall be Eph. iv. 7—13, as before in this Office. Immediately after which they that are to be made Deacons shall take the Oath of Supremacy, be examined and ordained as is above prescribed. Then one of them having read the Gospel, which shall be either out of Matt. ix. 36—38, as before in this Office, or else Luke xii. 35—38, as before in the form for Ordering of Deacons, they that are to be made Priests shall likewise take the Oath of Supremacy, be examined and ordained as in this Office is before explained."

Consecration of a Bishop. In place of the old title and rubric, "The form of Consecrating of an Archbishop or Bishop," these were added, "The form of Ordaining or Consecrating of an Archbishop or Bishop, which is always to be performed on some Sunday or Holyday." "When all things are duly prepared in the Church and set in order." "After Morning Prayer is ended, the Archbishop, or some other Bishop appointed, shall begin the Communion Service, in which this shall be the Collect," the latter containing a slight alteration of the Collect for St. Peter's day, the name of that Apostle being omitted. The word ordaining was added to show the distinction between the Orders of Priest and Bishop, and the ceremonial was directed to take place on a Sunday or Festival, a special collect being added. The Epistle, Acts xx. 17, with the rubric, "And another Bishop shall read the Epistle," was added, and the Gospel, John xx. 19 (in place of "John x., as in the Ordering of Priests"), or Matt. xxviii. 18, with the rubric, "Then another Bishop shall read the Gospel," was inserted; thus securing the presence of at least three Bishops, the Canonical number, and the reading of appropriate passages of Holy Scripture. The former rubric, "After the Gospel and Credo ended, first the elected Bishop shall be presented by two Bishops unto the Archbishop of that province, or to some other Bishop appointed by his commission, the Bishops that present him saying," was amplified thus, "After the Gospel and Nicene Creed and the Sermon are ended, the elected Bishop, vested with his rochet, shall be presented by two Bishops unto the Archbishop of that province, or to some other Bishop appointed by lawful commission, the Archbishop sitting in his chair near the Holy Table, and the Bishops that present him saying." A provision was thus made for a proper habit to be worn by the Elect, for the proper position of the Archbishop, and for the appointment of his representative in case of his illness or death. In the next rubric the words "person elected" were changed into "persons elected." In the Litany the rubric was altered from "he shall say," to "the proper suffrage there following shall be omitted, and this inserted instead of it." In the address to the Elect the words "to the government of the congregation of Christ," were altered to "government in the Church of Christ." After the sixth question, was inserted a new interrogatory, "Will you be faithful in ordaining, sending, or laying hands upon others? Answer. I will so be, by the help of God." After these questions, for the words "the Archbishop," the rubric was added, "then the Archbishop, standing up, shall say;" and for the rubric "then shall be sung or said, Come, Holy Ghost," another was substituted, "Then shall the Bishop Elect put on the rest of the Episcopal habit, and kneeling down, Veni Creator Spiritus shall be sung or said over him, the Archbishop beginning, and the Bishops with others that are present answering by verses as followeth." In the rubric preceding the Consecration the words, "kneeling before them on his knees," were added after "the elected Bishop;" and for the form, "Take the Holy Ghost, and remember that thou stir up the grace of God which is in thee by imposition of hands, for God hath not given us the spirit of fear, but of power, and love, and of sobriety," another was ordered: "Receive the Holy Ghost for the office and work of a Bishop in the Church of God, now committed unto thee by the imposition of our hands, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen. And remember," &c., thus emphatically marking the consecration to the Episcopate. The words "with other," were changed into "with others" who were to communicate with the new-consecrated Bishop; and "after the last Collect" to "for the last Collect," "Prevent us, O Lord," being inserted before the Benediction.

Such is the history of the great revision of the Ordinal of 1662. Some ceremonies were with reverence restored in conformity with ancient precedents; many improvements were made, and certain reconstructions to secure greater conformity in the services were carried out. In the year 1689 some insidious designs against the integrity of the Ordinal were set on foot; but, under God's good providence, frustrated. With some few variations, it is in use in that great branch of the Catholic Church founded in the United States of America, and in the sister Churches of Ireland and Scotland it has been preserved in its complete form.

§ The Essentials of Ordination.

The Greek words for Ordination were τελειοῦν, ἀγιάζειν [Johnson's Unbl. Sac. ch. ii. sect. 1], and τελειουργία, καθιέρωσις [Zouaras in I. Can. Apost.], and, by Dionysius, ἱερατικὴ τελείωσις, but almost universally χειροτονία in the sense both of Election [1 Conc. Nicæn. A.D. 325, c. iv. 1 Conc. Antioch, A.D. 341, c. xix., and Laodiceæ, A.D. 365, c. v. 2 Cor. viii. 19, as the Jewish Judges of Consistories and the public Magistrates of Athens were chosen by a show of hands] and of Ordination by laying on of hands [Acts xiv. 23. 1 Tim. iv. 14. 2 Tim. i. 6]. But the latter is almost wholly and certainly the proper sense in which it was applied. [St. Hieron., Comm. in Esai. c. lviii. Conc. Neo-Cæsar. c. ix. A.D. 314. Ancyra, c. 314, c. x. 2 Conc. Nic. c. xiv. St. Basil, Ep. ad Amph. c. x. St. Chrys. in Ep. ad Tit. c. i. Hom. ii. in Ep. ad Phil.] The word χειροθεσία, employed by the Council of Antioch, c. 341, c. x., and the 2 Conc. of Nicæa, c. 4, means benediction of the ordained; ἐπίθεσις τῶν χειρῶν, which expresses the actual ceremony or matter of Ordination, is a mere synonym for χειροτονία. The laying on of the Bishop's hands is the only essential rite of Ordination, being of Apostolical origin, having Scriptural authority, and being that ceremony which has prevailed in all ages and among all branches of the Catholic Church. [Inst. Calvini, lib. ix. c. iii. § 16. Reform. Leg. Eccles. de Sac. c. vi. Becan. de Sacram. c. xxvi. qu. iv. 3. 6.] Laying on of hands was the action used in blessing among the Jews [Gen. xlviii. 14], and was employed by our Saviour [Mark x. 16], and also in the consecration of Priests [Numb. xxvii. 18, 19. Deut. xxxiv. 9. Numb. viii. 10. Exod. viii. 6, 7], the hand being symbolical of Divine aid [Ps. lxxxix. 21, 22. Ezek. iii. 14]. Our Lord used the incommunicable ceremony of Breathing, as the Author of the heavenly gift, and as showing that the assistance of the Holy Ghost, which proceedeth from Him alone, could make efficient ministers of the New Testament, and would be given to them for their spiritual work. But as He ascended He laid on His uplifted hands and blessed His Apostles [Luke xxiii. 50], and this significant action was adopted by them as symbolical of Divine protection, and a token of delegated and spiritual power. Thus St. Paul and St. Barnabas were ordained with prayer and the laying on of hands, and are said to be sent forth by the Holy Ghost [Acts xiii. 3]. Thus St. Timothy was consecrated [1 Tim. iv. 14. 2 Tim. i. 6]; thus the Bishops, ordained by the Apostles, are said to have been constituted by the Holy Ghost [Acts xx. 28]. Thus Deacons were ordained [Acts vi. 3], and Priests [1 Tim. v. 22].

This doctrine has been held by Fathers, Councils, and Canonists. [St. Jerome in Esai. lviii. 10. St. Augustine de gest. cum Emer. § xi.; de Bapt. contr. Donat. c. i. § 2; contr. Ep. Parmen. l. ii. c. 13, § 28. St. Ambrose de Dign. Sacerd.; Comm. in 1 Tim. c. iv.

v. 14. St. Cyprian, Ep. lxvii. ad Cler. et pleb. Hisp. St. Basil, Ep. ad Amphil. c. 1. St. Chrysostom, in cap. xv. Act. Hom. xiv. St. Gregory Nazianzen, Orat. xliii. in laude Basilii; 1 Conc. Nicæn. A.D. 325, c. ix.; Antioch, 341, c. x.; IV. Carth. 398, c. iv. ix.; Ancyra, 314, c. x.; Conc. of Mayence, 1549, c. xxxv.; Cologne, 1536, pt. i. c. i.; Trent, 1551, Sess. xiv. c. 3; and by the Reform. Leg. Eccles. de Eccl. p. 99, and by the ritualists Syn. Thess. c. v.; Dionys. Areop.; P. Innoc. i. ad Episc. Maced. Ep. xxii. § 5. St. Thom. Aquinas, Dist. xxiv. qu. ii. act. iii. Estius, l. iv. d. 24, § 1. 24. Juennius de Sac. Q. iii. diss. viii. Habert's Archier. p. 121. Morin de Sac. Ord. pt. iii. Ex. i. c. 1, § 2. Dens. Tract. de Ord. vii. p. 47. Bellarmine de Sac. Ord. lib. i. cix.; de Rom. Pont. lib. i. c. xii. Marianus apanardum. Arcudius de Sac. Ord. l. vi. c. 5. Maldonatus de vii. Sac. qu. iii., &c. See also Prideaux, Validity, pp. 70—82, and my "Ordinal," pp. 248-9, note 1.] The ancient Sacramentaries make mention of no other rite. The Greek Bishops use only the right hand in the ordination of Priests and Deacons; and the same custom was observed, until the sixth century, it would seem, in the Western Church. In the English Church the Bishop lays on both hands, and in the Ordering of Priests, the Priests present, without speaking, lay their hands conjointly with the Bishop on the head of the Deacon as a sign of their approbation and reception of the newly-ordained Priest, to give a proof of previous deliberation, and to guarantee to the Church that the Bishop was acting with competent authority, and that there is no defect in his ministrations of the sacred rite. It is a bare ceremony, as in the Greek Church Priests salute the Priests, and Deacons the Deacons who are newly ordained. The transition from the custom of the Eastern to that of the Western Church can readily be traced in the following stages. "In the ordering of a Priest a Bishop, lay thyself thy hand in his hand, the Priests standing by" [Const. Apost. l. viii. c. xvi.]. "This is the form of Ordinations," says Theophilus of Alexandria; "all the Priests agree and choose, then the Bishop examines, and, with the assent of the Priests, ordains in the midst of the Church." The third Canon of the 4th Council of Carthage, A.D. 398, "When a Priest is ordained, the Bishop blesses and holds his hand above his head, and all the Priests hold their hands next the Bishop's hand above his head," is quoted in all the old Sacramentaries up to the twelfth century; but in the Pontifical of Corbey, of that date, the Priests are desired to hold their hands on his shoulder blades; and in a still earlier one of the ninth century and some of the tenth century a distinction was made, the Bishop laying on his hand and the Priests holding theirs elevated [Martene, l. i. c. viii., art. ix. § 9. Morin, P. ii. p. 280]. The Bishop alone laid on hands in the ordination of Deacons [Martene, u. s. § 1]. The Unction of the Priest's hands, and the delivery of the vessels and habits, were later ceremonies, which at the Reformation were laid aside; in the revised Prayer Book of 1552 the delivery of the chalice and paten and pastoral staff being also discontinued.

The delivery of the Epistle to the Deacon, and of the Holy Bible to the Bishop and Priest, was probably introduced from the East through the Gallican Church, as it was the custom at Constantinople to place the order for the Holy Communion in the hands of the Priest, with the word Ἄγιος; and by the Euchologium, the Priest is directed at once to read from the Book of the Liturgy. In the African and Western Churches the Bishop alone received the Bible, but it was at length also given to Priests as being associates of the Bishop in teaching the people and the office of preaching.

The essential words by which Orders are conveyed are Prayer for the grace of the Holy Ghost, with a blessing pronounced on the ordained. Hostiensis and P. Innocent, the chief of Canonists, held that it would be sufficient for the ordainer to say, "Be a Priest," or words to that effect, if the Church had not ordered a prescript form [P. Suavis, Polani. Hist. Conc. Trident. l. vii. art. 6]. For as Pope Innocent says, now that proper forms have been made and enacted by the Church, they must be of necessity observed [ap. Nich. arch. Panorm. Comm. s. ii. pt. i. I. Decret.]. The 4th Council of Carthage makes no mention of the form; while in some of the old Sacramentaries and Pontificals are found a long prayer or preface called the Consecration, and in others a prayer which was sung, beginning, "Giver of honours, and distributor of orders." Thus, St. Augustine says, "They prayed that the Holy Spirit might come upon them on whom they laid hands, a custom yet observed by the Church in her Bishops; we can receive this gift according to our measure, but certainly cannot shed it upon others; but that this may be done, we invoke God who worketh the same on their behalf over them" [de Trin. l. xv. c. xxvi. § 46]; and St. Ambrose, "The Church, as having true Priests, rightly claims this" [i. e. the Divine Commission]. The gift of the Holy Spirit is the priestly office. [De Pen. l. i. c. ii. § 7.] So God took of the Spirit which was upon Moses, and put it upon the Seventy. [Numb. xi. 17. 25.] In all this the old aphorism holds true, ἀνθρώπινῃ τὰς θεῶν δὲ χάρις. And in order to receive spiritual strength and grace, in all rituals communion in the Holy Eucharist is required from the new-ordained or consecrated. In the Greek Church the words employed are, "The Divine Grace, which helpeth them that are weak and supplieth that which lacketh, chooseth this godly Subdeacon (or Deacon) to be Deacon (or Priest)" [Euchol. ap. Morin. de Sacr. Ord. P. i. p. 79]; and in the Syro-Nestorian, "He is separated, sanctified, perfected, and consecrated to do the ministry of a Deacon in the Church, and the work of a Levite, as did Stephen, in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost." The Church of England makes an express mention of the order to which the Candidate is to be appointed.

For nine hundred years after Christ, there was no express statement of the Church respecting the power of consecrating Christ's Body and Blood in the ordering of Priests. The Greek Church does not give in express terms the power of consecrating the sacred elements, or of absolution; the invocation of the Holy Ghost, a prayer of consecration, and a benediction by the Bishop, constituting her form; but as an equivalent she prays God that the Priest may stand unblameable at His altar, to preach the Gospel of His salvation, to minister [ἱεραουργεῖν] the Word of His truth, to offer to Him gifts and spiritual sacrifices, and to renew His people by the laver of regeneration. The Benediction of the old Pontificals resembled this prayer—"May the blessing of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, be upon thee, that thou mayest be blessed in the order of Priesthood, and offer propitiatory sacrifices" [hostias]. In the Western Church the power of consecrating the Holy Eucharist was not named until the tenth century, and was not adopted in the Use of Bangor before the close of the thirteenth century; but it is found in the Pontifical of Caetan before A.D. 1000, at the delivery of the paten and elements, and the chalice with wine—"Take the power to offer the Sacrifice to God, and to celebrate Mass in the name of the Lord." The form conveying the power of absolution is later by three hundred years, but was alluded to in the shape of a prayer. In a Pontifical of Mayence of the thirteenth century, however, it occurs, "Receive the Holy Ghost, whose sins ye remit," &c., and in a Pontifical of Rouen, about the next century.

§ The Effect of Ordination.

The laying on of hands and prayer, with the delegation of ministerial order, constituting the essential and necessary form and matter of Ordination, it remains to consider the Divine vocation, and the results of Ordination. It is a sanctification of the person to do certain offices of religion, as in the case of Jeremiah [Jer. i. 5], and St. John Baptist [Luke i. 15], and also the imparting of grace to make the person meet to perform the same. The change of name adopted by St. Paul and St. Peter after their ordination expresses significantly the change of condition, the new honour sanctified by God. But, as St. Jerome says, "Let every one prove himself and so come; ecclesiastical order does not make a Christian" [ad Heliodor. Ep. v. al. 1]. The Candidate is to be called to a high dignity and a weighty office and charge, to be a messenger, watchman, and steward of the Lord. He is to be a worker together with God [2 Cor. vi. 1], and giving no offence in any thing, that the ministry be not blamed; approving himself in all things as the minister of God. He is to be one of that order, of whom it is said, that "he that heareth" them heareth Christ [Luke x. 16], he is to be God's witness [Luke xxiv. 47, 48], to have power over all the power of the enemy [Luke x. 19], and to exercise a most solemn delegation [John xx. 23]. But he has also to show by his deeds rather than by name what his profession is, and to apply himself wholly to one thing, the priesthood of the atonement and the ministry of reconciliation; to be one set apart by the most impressive vow at God's altar; to forsake all worldly cares and studies, and to sanctify and fashion his life after the rule and doctrine of Christ; to be a wholesome and godly example and pattern for the people to follow. He, like Moses and Joshua [Exod. iii. 5. Josh. v. 15], is bidden to a nearer access to God than the people [Exod. xxiv. 13, 14]. And who is sufficient for these things? for, as St. Chrysostom argues, from Lev. iv. 3—13; xxi. 17, and Luke xii. 47, as the fault of coming short of God's will is greater in His minister, so a more horrible punishment of neglect will ensue: he wants a great soul and a thousand eyes on every side. [Hom. iii. in c. i. Act.; xxvi. in c. viii. Matt.; de Sacerd. l. i. v. c. xi.] The Candidate when ordained will have need of learning, for, as Bishop Jeremy Taylor observed, an ignorant minister is a head without an eye; he requires to be a feeder [1 Pet. v. 2], a leader [John x. 4], an oracle [Mal. ii. 7], sober, grave, affable, firm, patient, long-suffering, kind, unwearied, zealous, and undaunted [2 Cor. vi. 1—10], "never ceasing labour, care, and diligence [Acts xx. 2. 1 Thess. ii. 17] until he has done all that lies in him, according to his bounden duty, to bring all such as are committed to his charge unto that agreement in the faith and knowledge of God, and to that ripeness and perfectness of age in Christ, that there be no place left among them either for error in religion or for viciousness in life."

The Candidate for the Diaconate professes his trust that he is inwardly moved by the Holy Ghost to take upon him that office and ministration, and the Candidate for the Priesthood, that he thinks in his heart that he is truly called, according to the will of our Lord Jesus Christ. Any state of life is said to be that to which God is pleased to call us [Catechism], and St. Theophylact renders τῇ κλήσει [1 Cor. vii. 17—20], as ἐν ὁρῇ βίᾳ καὶ ἐν ὁρῇ τὰγματι καὶ πολιτεύματι. Vocation is twofold: [I.] Extraordinary, when God calls men (1) immediately, as was Moses; (2) or by means and intervention of a prophet, as Elisha; (3) before the existence of an Order of Ministers, as Aaron and the tribe of Levi; (4) after the institution of a Ministry, as Samuel and Elias, the Twelve [John vi. 70], and the Seventy, St. Matthias, St. Paul [1 Cor. i. 1. 2 Cor. i. 1. Eph. i. 1. Col. i. 1. Gal. i. 1. Rom. i. 1], and St. Barnabas: and [II.] Ordinary, when men call and appoint a Minister in the Church according to the law prescribed by God, as were the Aaronic Priests and Levites; Titus and Timothy, Priests and Deacons of the Apostolic Churches, and now the Bishops, Priests, and Deacons of the Church. But the secret voice of the Holy Ghost does invite individuals [1 Cor. ii. 11. Jer. xi. 20; xvii. 10]; on the one hand, Moses hesitated to accept, on the other, Isaiah sought to receive, a mission, and the Apostle declares that the desire to become a Minister is good [1 Tim. iii. 1]. St. Augustine says, when Mother Church desires our work, "nec elatione avida suscipiatis nec blandiente desidia respuatis sed miti corde obtemperetis Deo" [Ep. xlviii.]. "They who came not were sent," says St. Jerome, "for He saith, they came, and I did not send them. In those who came is the presumption of rashness, in those who are sent the obedience of service" [Prol. in Comm. in St. Matt.].

The natural sense of men required a holy entrance on the Priesthood [Demosthenes contr. Androtion. Plato de Leg. l. vi. § vii.], and the Canonical impediments were read over to the Candidate in the Church during many centuries. "The evenest line of moderation in suits after spiritual functions which may be as ambitiously forborne as prosecuted, is not to follow them without conscience, nor of pride to withdraw ourselves utterly from them." The presence of earthly motives, such as desire of honour, wealth, and reputation, is utterly at variance with a Divine call. "The simple eye" [Matt. vi. 22, 23], "a good intention towards God, is a sign of its existence" [St. Chrysost., Hom. v. in 1 Tim. i. 8], as the one end sought is doing His work to His honour, and setting forward the salvation of all men, out of a good conscience [St. Aug. de Serm. Dom.; Ivo. de Excell. Sac. Ord.; Calvin de Exter. Med. ad Sal. l. iv. c. iii. § 11]. It is not said to the Candidate, "Have you such an inward perception of such a Divine impulse, that you can distinguish it from all other inward movements by its manner of impressing you?" but, "Do you trust that you are on good grounds persuaded that you have a Divine call, that is, from your serious preparation, your honest intention, your sacred resolution to discharge the duties of the office which you seek?" There is required of necessity no inward, secret, sensible testimony of God's blessed and sanctifying Spirit to a man's soul, nor any strong working of the Spirit of illumination; suffice it that there be inclination of nature, personal abilities, and care of education, without any extraordinary assistance of the Holy Ghost. [See Sanderson, iv. Serm. § 32.] "Here is now that glass wherein thou must behold thyself, and discern whether thou have the Holy Ghost within thee or the spirit of the flesh of man. See that thy works be virtuous and good, consonant to the prescript rule of God's word, savouring and tasting not of the flesh, but of the Spirit, then assure thyself that thou art endued with the Holy Ghost" [Homily on Whitsun-day]. The only sure preservative for such a devotion of life and thought to the work of the Ministry as will ensure its accomplishment, is the perpetual memory of Him Who gave the commission to perform it, of the end for which it was given, and the account we must one day render to the Great Shepherd of the Sheep.

The distinction between Clergy and lay persons is asserted by St. Chrysostom [in Ps. cxiii. v. 19, § 4], Tertullian [de Præsc. Hæc. c. xli.; de Monog. xi.; de Fuga xi.], St. Ambrose [de Dign. Sacerd. c. iii.], St. Cyprian [Ep. lix. ad Com.], and St. Jerome [adv. Lucif.]. The designation Clergy, κλήρος, a lot or inheritance, as in the suffrage "Bless Thine inheritance" [Ps. xvi. 15; lxxiii. 26], is another illustration of the analogy subsisting between the Aaronic and Christian Priesthood [Numb. xxviii. 20. Deut. xviii. 1, 2. St. Jerome, Ep. xxxiv. ad Nepot.], whilst there is also a reference to the circumstance of God overruling the lots in the case of St. Matthias, the first minister ordained by the Apostles [Acts i. 26. St. Aug., Enarr. in Ps. lxxvii. 19. Isidore, Orig. l. vii. c. xii.; de Off. Eccles. l. ii. c. 1]. The word ἀφορισμός, severance, setting apart, founded on Acts xiii. 2, is also used as a synonym for ordination [Bever. Serm. ii., On the Church].

This distinction rests upon the impression of the indelible Ecclesiastical mark or character, the "charisma certum veritatis," as Irenæus terms it [contr. Hæc. l. iv. c. xxvi. § 2], or as St. Augustine, "Sacramentum Ordinationis suæ" [de Bono Conj. c. xxviii.; contr. Donatist. l. i. c. 1, § 2; contr. Ep. Parmen. l. ii. c. xiii.]. The same doctrine is stated by Bishop Jeremy Taylor [Episc. Assert. s. xii. xxxi. 3], Archbishop Potter [Church Gov. ch. v.], Prideaux [Validity, &c., p. 25], Hooker [Eccles. Pol. b. v. c. lxxvii. § 3], Mason [de Min. Anglic. l. ii. c. xi. § 6], and Bingham [Orig. Eccles. b. xvii. c. ii. § 5]. It is that of the canon law, "Si quis clericus relicto officii sui ordine laicam voluerit agere vitam vel se militiæ tradiderit, excommunicationis pœna feriat" [Conc. Turon. A.D. 461, c. v.]. "Sanctorum decus honorum qualibet fuerit occasione perceptum manebit omnibus inconvulsum" [VIII. Conc. Tolet. A.D. 653, c. vii.]. "Ordo characterem, i. e., spirituale quoddam signum a cæteris distincturum imprimi in animâ indelebile" [Decr. Eugen. ad Armen. Conc. Flor. A.D. 1439. Comp. Conc. Trident. Sess. xxiii. A.D. 1563, c. iv.]. The Canonists use similar expressions [St. Thom. P. iii. qu. 63. Estius in Sent. Comm. l. iv. dist. i. § 20. Becanus, Ib. § 21; and Lyndewood, Walterus, sub. quæst. Prov. Angl. l. i. tit. 5], and our own Canons, "Sexuel receptus in Sacrum Ministerium ab eo imposterum non discedet, nec se aut vestitu aut habitu aut in ulla vitæ parte geret pro laico" [Articuli, A.D. 1571], with which Canon lxxvi. of 1604 concurs. This principle is grounded on the analogy of the perpetuity of the priesthood, both of Melchisedec and the Jews, and the Apostles and Clergy of the Primitive Church; on the enduring grace of Holy Baptism; on the self-dedication for life to God; on the fact that God has nowhere signified that the character will expire before death; on the actual unbroken tradition that re-ordination was a sacrilegious and heretical act, and that in cases even of deposition the exercise of sacred functions was only suspended [cf. Ed. Rev. art. v. Jan. 1849].

Holy Orders are not denied, in a large sense of the word and in another nature, the name of a Sacrament, by the ninth Homily of the English Church; but, as being restricted to a class in the community, as lacking the promise of remission of sins, and not having any visible sign or ceremony ordained of Christ [Art. xxv.], and not being generally necessary to salvation, they are so called in an inferior sense to the two Sacraments of the Gospel. With this reservation, the Church of England regards Orders as a Sacrament, or rather as sacramental. The title of the Book of Common Prayer includes "administration of the Sacraments and other rites and ceremonies of the Church." The Rubric of 1549 provided that "every parishioner shall communicate at the least three times in the year, and shall also receive the Sacraments and other rites according to the order of this Book appointed." Similar language is employed in the Act of Uniformity, 1 Eliz. c. ii., and the Homilies, P. 1. "On Common Prayer and Sacraments;" "Neither Orders nor any other Sacrament else be such Sacraments as Baptism and the Communion are" (p. 316). Melancthon included Ordination among Sacraments [Loc. Theol. tom. i. pp. 233, 234. Comp. Conf. Augsburg, pp. 29, 30]. The greatest English Theologians, however, cautiously guard against any misapprehension of the term Sacrament, on the safe ground that the outward ceremony of breathing has been changed into laying on of hands; that the Form of Words is given "as in the Person of Christ," and not from ourselves; and that the grace given is "gratis data," not "gratum faciens" [Bp. Andrewes, Serm. ix.]; but they still do not withhold the designation of Sacrament, provided that it be not understood as a true or necessary Sacrament [Bp. Jewel, Treat. on Sacr., p. 1225. Def. of Apology, p. ii. p. 459. Archbishop Wake, Expos. of Doctrine, Art. xv. p. 46. Calhill, Ans. to Martial, p. 229. Bp. Burnet, Vind. of Ord., p. 21. Archbishop Bramhall, Cons. of Bishops, disc. v. Crakanthorp, Def. Eccl. Angl. c. xxx. Bp. Beveridge on Art. xxv.].

From the distinction existing between the clergy and laity is derived the word "Order" [gradus sacerdotis, ordo sacerdotis], the state to which the ministers of God are ordained [St. Ambr. de Off. Min. lib. 1. c. viii. 25. St. August. de Civ. Dei, l. xix. c. 13. Gabriel Philad. c. ii. St. Leo, Ep. lxxxiv. c. 4. Bp. Jeremy Taylor, Episc. Assert. § xxxi. 1. 3]. The words potestas, officium, honor, dignitas, ἐξίς, ἐξέλιμα, locus, χώρα, are also synonyms of ordo.

§ The Preface to the Ordinal.

The Preface to the Ordinal sets forth the following statements and principles:—

- I. The Three Orders of the Ministry are Apostolical, and have ever been held in reverent estimation.
- II. That there are proper ages at which Orders should be conferred.
- III. That there are proper times and places for ordination.
- IV. That the Candidates shall be duly tested as to character and qualifications.
- V. That there are indispensable rites and ceremonies ministered by a Bishop for ordination, public prayer with imposition of hands.

I. If these three Orders be from the Apostles' times, they must be Divine. The Saviour, as High Priest upon earth, actually ordained His Apostles and seventy disciples as representing Priests and Levites. The first consecration of Apostles is referred to the Holy Ghost [Acts i. 24; xiii. 2], and the ordination of Deacon also, "being full of the Holy Ghost" [vi. 5]. The offices Bishops, Priests, and Deacons are quite clear in the New Testament; but distinct names for the three orders are not discernible at first until language permitted and circumstances demanded it. We find ordainers and persons ordained, and the names Bishops, Priests, and Deacons: even in the second century Presbyters were called Bishops, as overseers of a portion of the flock; but in the third century Bishops are nowhere called Presbyters. The Apostolical fathers distinctly enumerate Bishops, Priests, and Deacons as severally distinct. These orders, on the testimony of ancient authors, evidently existed at all times in Christ's Church, and must therefore be perpetuated by lawful authority, that is, by Bishops, who alone have the power of ordaining, in order that they may continue and be reverently used and esteemed.

II. The Canon Law defines thirty years to be the Canonical age for the reception of the Priesthood, but suffers the admission of the Candidate at twenty-five years of age. [P. Dist. lxxviii. c. 1, ii. v.] Pope Zosimus, 417, enacted the ages for Priesthood and the Diaconate to be respectively thirty and thirty-five years. [R. Maurus de Ord. Antiph. c. xiii.] Pope Siricius, 385—98, requires the ages to be thirty-five and thirty [Ep. i. § ix.]. The Councils of Agde, A.D. 506, c. xvi. xvii.; III. Carthage, A.D. 397, c. iv.; II. Toledo, A.D. 531, c. i., permitted the reception of the Diaconate at twenty-five years; that of Melfi, A.D. 1089, at twenty-four, and the Priesthood at thirty years of age. The latter age is also prescribed by the old Saxon laws, and the Councils of Neo-Cæsarea, A.D. 314, c. xi.; IV. Toledo, A.D. 633, c. xx.; IV. Arles, A.D. 524, c. i., and Trullo, 691, c. xiv. The third Council of Ravenna, A.D. 1314, Rubr. ii., forbids Deacons to be made under twenty, or Priests below twenty-five years of age. The Council of Trent, Sess. xxiii., A.D. 1563, c. xii., permits the ordination of Deacons at twenty-three, and of Priests at twenty-five years of age. In the Greek Church the age for a Deacon is twenty-five [that for Levites in the Jewish Church], for a Priest thirty years [Sym. Thess. c. v. Assemani, P. iv. p. 169]. The latter age is so often prescribed because at it our Lord began His ministry. [St. Luke iii. 23. Excerpt. Egbert, 750. Epist. c. xcv. St. Aug., Ep. xxxix. ad Theoph.] In the Ordinal of 1552, the age for the Diaconate was twenty-one, that of the Roman Sub-diaconate; which is still allowed in the American Church (1832) and Scottish Church (1838), twenty-four years of age being required in the candidate for the Priesthood. In 1584, Archbishop Whitgift required twenty-four years of age full in the candidate for orders [Cardw., Doc. Ann. No. xcix.]. In the Apostolical Constitutions the age for a Bishop is at least fifty years [lib. ii. c. 1], and Pope Boniface, in the eighth century, alludes to this rule; by Justinian [Novell. Const. 123, c. 1] it is fixed at thirty-five, but in Novell. cxxxvii. c. 2, at thirty; by Siricius and Zosimus forty-five [Theod. H. E. l. ii. c. 26]; but in the Greek Church it is probable that in the cases of St. Athanasius, Gregory Thaumaturgus, Athenodorus [Euseb. H. E. lib. vi. c. 30], Acholius [Ambros. Ep. lx.], Paul [Soc. H. E. lib. c. 5], and in the Western Church, Remigius of Rheims, who are all spoken of as young men, a lower age was sometimes accepted. By the Act 3 Eliz. c. xii. § v. vii., a Priest was required to be of twenty-four years of age, which is confirmed by the XXXIV. Canon of 1603, and by the present rubric: and the Canonical age for the Diaconate is fixed at twenty-three years, unless he have a faculty, that is, a licence, or dispensation from the Archbishop of Canterbury, given to persons of extraordinary abilities, by virtue of the Act 44 George III. c. xliii. c. 1, which confirmed the right hitherto held by the Primates [21 Hen. VIII. c. xxi. § 3]. Martene furnishes several instances of ordination before the canonical age [de Ant. Rit. Eccl. l. i. c. viii. Art. iii. § 4]. Archbishops Sharp and Ussher, and Bishops Bull and Jeremy Taylor, and Ven. Bede were all ordained Priests before the age of twenty-four years. And the monks of Westminster had the privilege of ordination to the Priesthood at twenty-one years of age.

The Deacon must continue in the office of a Deacon the space of a whole year ["at the least," 1552], except for reasonable causes it shall otherwise seem good unto the Bishop [his ordinary, 1552], to the intent he may be perfect and well expert in the things appertaining to ecclesiastical administration. An interval has always been required between ordination to the Diaconate and to the Priesthood [St. Greg. Naz., Orat. xxi. § 7; St. Hier., Ep. xxxv. ad Heliod.; St. Cyprian, Ep. lv. p. 103; Leo, Ep. lxxv. c. i.; Decret. P. i. dist. lxxviii. c. iii.]. The Councils of Barcelona, 599, c. iii.; Dalmatia, 1199, c. ii.; Bourdeaux, 1024, c. vi. n. iii., and Trent, Sess. xxiii. 1563, c. xiv., prescribe one year's service in the Diaconate; Zosimus [Ep. i. c. ii.], and Siricius [Ep. i. c. ix.], and Canon Law [Decr. i. dist. lxxvii. c. ii. iii.], five years; and the Council of Constantinople [870, Act. x. c. v. xvii.], and Hormisdas [Ep. xxv. c. i.] three years, and for the Priesthood, four years. By the old English

Pontifical: "Inhibemus quod nullus Ordinem recipiat Diaconatus nisi fuerit ætatis viginti annorum, Presbyteratus viginti quatuor, et vicesimum quintum attigerit." [Lacy's Pontifical, p. 78.]

III. By the XXXI. Canon, the place of ordination is defined to be the Cathedral or the Parish Church where the Bishop resideth, "and the ordination is to take place in presence of the Archdeacon, the Dean, and the two Prebendaries, at the least, or four grave persons, being M.A. at the least, and allowed to be preachers." The ordination is to take place "in the face of the Church;" and the Church is best represented by the Cathedral of the Diocesan who ordains. Bishops were absolutely interdicted from holding ordinations, except within their own dioceses, by the Apost. Can. c. xxxv.; I. Council of Nicæa, c. xv.; I. Constantinople, c. ii.; Antioch, c. xiii. xxii.; I. Tours, 461, c. ix.; III. Orleans, 538, c. xv., and Aix, 789, c. xi. As early as 1538, the X. Article says: "Docemus quod nullus ad ecclesiæ Ministerium vocatus, etiamsi Episcopus sit, hoc sibi jure divino vindicare possit, ut ullam Ecclesiasticam functionem in alienâ diocesi exercere valeat, hoc est nec Episcopus in alterius diocesi, etc." [§ xiii.] The Bishop at ordination is seated in a chair near the Holy Table, as the Candidates, according to Simeon of Thessalonica and Dionysius and Theodoret, were also ordained in the Sanctuary [Hist. Eccles. p. 166; Morin, P. ii. p. 47. 106], and the Greek Euchologium has a similar rubric, "The High Priest sitteth in front of the Holy Table on a little throne" [Goar, p. 292]. Amalarius also mentions that the Deacons and Priests received ordination before the Altar [de Div. Off. l. ii. c. vi.]. The Councils of Rouen, 1581, and Bourdeaux, 1624, require the ordinations to be made at the High Altar, and the IV. Council of Milan, that they should be held in the principal church of a town, if not in the cathedral, in both places reinforcing the decree of the Council of Trent [Sess. xxiii. c. viii.].

IV. The appointment of times for ordination is the public demand of the Church in the name of the Lord Himself, "Whom shall I send, and who shall go for Us?" [Isa. vi. 8.] There are besides the vocation and voluntary offer of the Candidate, two solemn preliminaries, examination by the Bishop and Clergy [Theophilus of Alexandria in Can. vi. Apost. Const. lii. c. 28, l. viii. c. 16. St. Cyprian, Ep. xxxviii. lxvii. Posidonius in Vit. Aug. c. xxi. IV. Council of Carthage, 398, c. xxii.], and the testimony of the people. The former is enforced by St. Paul himself; by St. Chrysostom de Sacerd. liv. c. ii.; St. Cyprian ad Cler., Ep. xxix.; by Gregory I. ad Adeod., Ep. xlix. l. iii.; Siricius, Ep. iii. c. i.; the Canon Law, Decret. P. i. dist. lxxxi. c. iv.; Theophilus Alex., Comm. in Can. vi.; Theophylact in 1 Tim. c. v., and these Councils—Nicæa, c. ix.; Aix, 789, c. ii.; Besiers, 1233, c. vi.; Lateran, 1215, c. xxvii.; VIII. Toledo, 653, c. viii.; Canon Arabic, 325, c. xii. The English Church has always observed the same rule. [Councils of Cloveshoe, 747, c. vi. Cealchythe, 787, c. vi. Oxford, 1222, de Ordin., and 1322.; Lambeth, 1330, c. vi.; Lyndewood, Prov. l. i. tit. v. vi., and App. p. 17, and Council of London, 1557, tit. de qual. ordin.] For this cause, and to prevent uncanonical intrusions, Bishops were forbidden to ordain clerks out of their own diocese, unless with the consent and letters of the Diocesan. [Councils of London, 1175, c. v.; III. Orleans, 538, c. vi.; Sardica, 347, c. xv.; III. Carthage, 397, c. xxi.; IV. Carthage, 398, c. xxvii.; II. Braga, 563, c. viii.; Mayence, 888, c. xiv.; Rouen, 1050, c. ix.; Lucca, 1308, c. xvi.; Rheims, 1564, c. viii. ix.; Cambay, 1565, c. x.; Bourges, 1584, c. iii.; and Trent. Sess. xxiii., 1563, de Reform. c. vii.] Nor may one Bishop ordain the Clerk of another without Letters dimissory from the latter granting his permission and sanction [XXXIV. Canon, 1603, Lyndew. Prov. l. i. tit. iv. pp. 27. 32. Cardw. Doc. Ann. ii. 322. 356. 420].

Wednesday appears to have been the usual day for the commencement of the examination, and three days are sometimes prescribed for it [Council of Nantes, c. xi.; Decret. P. i. dist. xxiv. c. v.]. Three points are insisted upon in the Canon Law—canonical age, sufficient knowledge, and virtuous conversation. The Bishop himself has the chief position in the examination, then the Archdeacon, the Dean and two Prebendaries of the Cathedral Church [Canon xxxi. xxxv. 1603], and his own Chaplains, of whom, by the Act of 25 Henry VIII., he is permitted to have two additional, and the Archbishop four, to assist him in ordination. "Grave and expert men" are required to aid him in this work by Gregory I. [Ep. xlix. l. iii. ind. xi.]. The Council of Nantes, 900, c. xi., appoints Priests attached to his person, and other prudent men, well skilled in the Divine law, and instructed in Ecclesiastical rule. Three examiners at least are appointed by the Council of Toledo, 1473, c. xi., and by others of later date three; in allusion, doubtless, to the Scriptural rule [Deut. xix. 15]. The English rule, says Bp. Stillingfleet in 1681, was to have four.

The examiners are to require virtuous conversation and sufficient knowledge of Latin and the Holy Scriptures. The old rubrics ran thus:—

"Nullus ordinetur nisi examinatio præcedat." [Lacy's Pontifical, p. 75.] "Postea fiant inhibitiones in generalibus ordinibus et Episcopo placuerit. In virtute Spiritus Sancti inhibemus sub pena anathematis ne quis se ingerat ordinandum nisi prius examinata persona, cum titulo intitulatus fuerit et vocatus. Nequis etiam mortalis peccati conscius vel excommunicatus aut suspensus ordines recipiat. Item nullus alterius diocesis, nisi literas dimissorias habuerit." [Lacy's Pontifical, p. 77.]

The Canon Law required that diligent inquiry should be made into the life, age, title, and place of education of the Candidate; whether he was well learned, instructed in the law of the Lord, and, above all, if he firmly held the Catholic faith, and could express it in simple words [Decret. P. i. dist. xxiv. c. v.]. But besides these requirements, a long list of canonical impediments, such as irregularity, i. e. bodily deformity, illegitimacy, and the like, offered hindrance to the reception of a Candidate. But all the Canons of the Church require him to be without crime [Prov. Lyndew. lib. i. tit. iv. v. vi., App. 16, 17; Conc. of Chichester, 1246; Exeter, 1287, c. viii.; IV. Carthage, 398, c. lxvii. lxviii.; Epaon, 517, c. iii.; III. Orleans, 538, c. vi.; Agde, c. xliii.; Nicæa, c. x.; IV. Toledo, 663, c. xix.; Canon. Apost. c. xviii.]. St. Cyprian says, that in accordance with the Divine law [Exod. xxi. 21; xix. 22; xxviii. 43], Priests and Deacons should be morally whole and without blemish [Ep. lxxii. Stephano], and, as St. Augustine well says, St. Paul, when he chose Priests and Deacons, saith not, "If any be without sin;" for had he said this, every man would be rejected, none would be ordained, but he saith, "If any be without crime, such as murder, adultery, any uncleanness, fornication, theft, cheatery, sacrilege, and the like." [Tract. xli. in St. Joann. c. viii.] The knowledge of letters is required by the I. Council of Rome, 465, c. ii.; Lucca, 1308, c. xxxiv.; II. Orleans, c. xvi.; and Canon Law Decr. P. i. dist. xxxvi. c. i. ix. x. xiv.; and Novell. Just. cxliii. tit. xv. c. xii.; and of Latin by the Councils of Genoa, 1274, c. 25, and Toledo, 1473, c. iii., and London, 1571, c. i. St. Paul required a man to be apt to teach, and to be distinguished from the unlearned [1 Cor. xiv. 16]. Knowledge of the Holy Scriptures is insisted upon by St. Jerome [Comm. in Agg. c. ii.], Councils of Nantes, 900, c. xi.; IV. Toledo, 663, c. xxv.; and Canterbury, 1525; while at the present time, knowledge of Greek is considered indispensable in Candidates, and Hebrew is sometimes required.

The concurrence of the people, or rather their testimony, is required, as the Levitical Priests were presented to the congregation [Exod. xxix. 4]; and seven men "of good report" were the first Deacons [Acts vi. 3]. In the Primitive Church, a proclamation of the Candidates, an ἐπικήρυξις, or prædicatio, was always used [Lampridius, c. xlv. Council of Chalcedon, A.D. 451]. A "Si quis" is now read out in the parish Church of the Candidate before ordination, and letters testimonial from his College, or three benefited Clergymen, are necessary. An appeal is also made to the congregation, whether they know any notable crime, or canonical impediment, in accordance with the rule of the Old English Church [Excerpt. Egberti, c. xcix.]. In the early Church, the people gave their approbation, or consent, or expressed their rejection of the unworthy by exclaiming "Ἀέτιος, or ἀνάετιος" [Const. Apost. l. viii. c. iv.; St. Ambros. de Dign. Sacerd. c. v.; Euseb. H. E. lib. vi. c. xxix. xliii.]. There was no election by the people, except in the case of the seven Deacons (and of them because made stewards of the common stock of the Church), and when Deacons were appointed to Ministerial offices, the people's voice had no share in the matter of choice, but reference was made to them, as by St. Peter at the consecration of St. Matthias. Yet whilst Bishops reserved to themselves the absolute and inherent right of acceptance or rejection [Decret. P. i. dist. lxiii. c. viii.; Posid. in Vit. Aug. c. iv.], they wisely, when the gift of discerning of spirits was withdrawn, asked for the testimony of the Clergy and people (not the people only), amongst whom the Candidate had lived, to his virtuous conversation [St. Cypr., Ep. xxxviii.; St. Jerome, Ep. xcv. ad Rust.; Siricius, Epist. i. c. x.; Leo, i. Ep. lxxxix. § 3; III. Council Carthage, 397, c. xxii.; IV. Carthage, 398, c. xxii.; and the ancient Sacramentaries and Pontificals]. If any crime was then objected [Apost. Can. c. lxi.] the ordination was deferred, and the accuser examined strictly within three months. If he failed to offer sufficient proof, if a clerk, he was degraded, and if a layman, adequately punished [Novell. Just. Const. cxxxvii. p. 408]. But the ordainer was not to take the accusation without proof [Conc. Chalc. c. cxi.], and no excommunicate person, or one not a communicant, was allowed to be heard [Conc. Constant. c. vi.]. Damasus, in 367, required the accuser to put in a caution that in default ample atonement to the sufferer might be made by him [Epist. iv. c. vii.], and the Canon Law forbade the delivery of the Holy Communion to a false accuser from that day forth [Decret. P. ii. Caus. ii. qu. iii. c. iv.]. In all rituals the congregation are desired to unite in prayer for the Candidates.

V. Our blessed Lord as the Chief Bishop and Great High Priest chose and ordained [St. John xv. 16] the Apostles and the Seventy Disciples, the first Bishops and Priests of His Church. After His Ascension, St. Matthias was elected by God [Prov. xvi. 33], and the Twelve were endowed with the miraculous power of discerning spirits, knowing men's hearts, whether they were sincere and spiritually minded [1 Cor. xii. 10], by prophecy, that is, by the Holy Ghost, says Theophylact [in 1 Tim. i. 18], and St. Chrysostom [Hom. v. in 1 Tim. i.], by ordinance of the Spirit, according to Ecumenius [in 1 Ep. ad Tim. iv.], by Divine revelation, as Theodoret explains [in 1 Tim. i.], or as Clement of Alexandria asserts of St. John, that he ordained Bishops and Clergy out of such as were signified by the Spirit [Euseb. iii. 23]. But as this heavenly gift died with the Apostles, St. Paul laid down rules for the fitness of Candidates to St. Timothy and Titus, and as St. Clement says, "The Apostles knew from our Lord Jesus Christ that there would be a strife touching the name of Bishops. For this cause, having a perfect foreknowledge, they established Bishops and Deacons, and a rule of future succession, that after their decease others approved [by the Holy Ghost] might receive their ministry" [ad Corinth. § xlv.]. This succession is that of Bishops.

The Jewish Priesthood was hereditary, adapted to the circumstances of a temporal dispensation, and a people forbidden communication with other nations. But the Church has a spiritual ministry, is one and Catholic, designed to bring all countries into the one fold, under one Shepherd, and to last even unto the end of the world. The Chief Bishop was born of the royal tribe, not of that of Levi, a Priest after the order of Melchisedec, not of Aaron. Therefore her "succession is not limited to a lineage, or her ministries assigned to a single family, but from every tribe, and people, and language, those whom Divine choice approves as fit and worthy, she constitutes Priests, not on the merits of birth, but of worth" [St. Cypr. de Unct. Chrism.]. The best of every nation she presses into her service [Const. Apost. l. vi. c. xxiii.]. Simony, heresy, schism, or any other grievous sin, will not hinder the effect of the laying on of the hands of the Ordainer [Art. xxvi. Glossa Decret. P. ii., c. i. qu. 1, c. xvii.], just as under the Law bodily blemishes did debar the Priest from offering the "Bread of God" [Lev. xxi. 17], yet did not cut off the entail, interrupt the succession, or disentitle his sons from the inheritance of the Priesthood. Moses, appointed by extraordinary commission from God, consecrated Aaron as High Priest, and Aaron's sons as Priests [Ps. xcix. 6. Exod. xxix. 30. Lev. viii.]. Aaron continued the succession [Heb. v. 4. Numb. viii. 11. 13]. When the Apostles received the gift of the Priesthood [1 Pet. ii. 25. Luke xxi. 29.

John xx. 22], they by Divine appointment divided the Ministry into such degrees and orders as were necessary to the government and comeliness of the Church. They, having consecrated Bishops [1 Tim. iv. 14. 2 Tim. i. 6. Tit. i. 45], either ordained Priests [Acts xiv. 23], or desired Bishops to ordain such, reserving the plenitude of power, which is the peculiar and special endowment of the Episcopate; and also ordained Deacons [Acts vi. 6]. It must be observed that there are only two exceptional instances, those of St. Paul and St. Barnabas, ordained by teachers and prophets [Acts xiii. 1]; but the one was miraculously called to be an Apostle [Gal. i. 12. 15. 17], and the other was sent out by the collective Church [Acts xi. 22. 30; xii. 25], and the Consecration is expressly referred to an extraordinary call by the Holy Ghost [Acts xiii. 2].

The great charter, bestowing the exclusive power of Ordination upon Bishops, lay in the words of the Redeemer to the Apostles, "As My Father hath sent Me, even so send I you;" as Bishops are the successors of the Apostles, so the Church has always kept this rule without break or doubtfulness. In the Eastern Church, the essential power of Ordination has always been reserved to Bishops exclusively, and it was not until the fourth century that the African Church permitted Priests to lay on their hands with the Bishops in the Ordination of Priests: nor after this rule was adopted by the Western Church, is there any example in ecclesiastical history of ordination by any but Bishops only, as their proper and peculiar function confirmed by the ancient Apostolical Canons and Constitutions, by the Councils of Ancyra, Antioch, c. ix., Sardica, c. xix., Alexandria, Nicæa, c. xix., Chalcedon, c. xi., VI. Trullo, c. xxxvii., Constantinople, Orange, II. Orleans, c. iii., Braga, c. iii., Chalchythe, c. vi., Dalmatia, c. ii., and Seville, c. vi.; by the testimonies of the fathers, St. Athanasius [II. Apol. c. Athan.], St. Chrysostom [in Phil., hom. i., in 1 Tim. iii.], St. Augustine [de Hær. c. lii.], St. Epiphanius, St. Jerome [Epist. ad Evang. ci.], St. Cyprian [Ep. xli.], Cornelius, Dionysius; by the acts of primitive Bishops, and by every sacramentary and ritual [Decret. P. i., dist. lxvii.]. On the other hand, Ordinations by Priests only were constantly declared to be null and void, and to communicate Presbyterian Ordination was affirmed to be heresy by the united voice of Christendom; and as Bp. Hall says, "that Presbyter would have been a monster among Christians, that should have dared to usurp it." The Catholic doctrine has ever been that without Sacraments there is no Church, and without Bishops there can be no Priests, and consequently no Sacraments. There is not one instance in Holy Scripture or ecclesiastical history, of Ordination by Presbyters only; it was the prerogative of Bishops, and therefore the present rubric (1662) declares that "no man shall be accounted or taken to be a lawful Bishop, Priest, or Deacon, or suffered to execute any of the said functions, except he be called, tried, examined, and admitted thereunto, according to the Form hereafter following, or hath had formerly Episcopal consecration or ordination." Priests of the Western and Eastern Church, on conforming to her discipline and doctrine, are therefore admitted at once to minister in the churches of England; and in the Office of Consecration of Bishops, in 1662, the question was significantly added: "Archbishop: Will you be faithful in ordaining, sending, or laying hands on others? Answer: I will so be, by the help of God." The special powers of the Bishop lie in the right to ordain, to consecrate persons and things, to administer Confirmation, and in jurisdiction; just as the Diaconate does not possess the privilege of the Priesthood, to consecrate the Holy Eucharist, to absolve, to preach, and ordinarily, to baptize.

The Priesthood, however, have an important part in Ordination of Priests and Deacons, for their testimony is required before the acceptance of a candidate, their aid in his examination, and their presence at the laying on of hands. Where the laying on of the hands of the Presbytery is mentioned by St. Paul [1 Tim. iv. 14], the Presbytery (a word sometimes used in the sense of an order) has been understood by St. Chrysostom, Theodoret, Œcumenius, Theophylact, Suicer, and all the best commentators, ancient and modern, to designate the College of Bishops; and this gift which is said to have been given by the laying on of their hands, is in the Second Epistle [c. i. 6] said to have been given by the laying on of the Apostles' hands, so that the utmost that could be made of the passage, even in conjunction with the Carthaginian Canon, would be, that Priests sometimes imposed their hands, together with an Apostle or Bishop. But St. Timothy was a Bishop [1 Tim. v. 22], and nowhere have we an example of Priests ordaining a Bishop; and the Council of Carthage, reserving the ordination of Deacons to the Bishop solely, only required the presence of the Priests (who were enjoined to be silent), in order to add solemnity to the Ordination, and to preclude the admission of unworthy or unfitting persons to the Priesthood. Even this canon was not in harmony with ancient practice, although it rightly permitted the Bishop alone to bless the person ordained. A remarkable use of prepositions in the passage of the Epistle to Timothy just cited, must also be noted. In the case of St. Paul it is διὰ, through, by means of, laying on of my hands, but in the case of "the Presbytery," μετὰ, together with: one was instrumental, the other assistant.

The Ephesian Presbytery after all were the "elders of the Church" of Ephesus, whom St. Paul says "the Holy Ghost had made Bishops over the flocks" [Acts xx. 17. 28]. The third Council of Carthage, held only one year before that which permitted Priests to assist, laid down this canon [c. xlv.]: "Episcopus unus esse potest per quem dignatione Divinâ Presbyteri multi constitui possunt;" and, to avoid any doubt, the Epistle, 1 Tim. iii., was transferred from the Ordering of Priests to the Consecration of Bishops, in 1662. The Catholic Church has ever held this doctrine, that true ministrations of grace depend on Episcopal ministries, and has always regarded all other ministries, whether assumed to be conferred by Presbyters, undertaken at will, or bestowed by a call from the congregation, to be wholly invalid. Luther, Knox, and Wesley were but Priests, Whitfield a Deacon, Calvin a Subdeacon, and others mere laymen; every mission by their hands is therefore absolutely null and void, according to Scriptural authority, Apostolical practice, and the unbroken tradition of eighteen centuries. Those only who have Episcopal orders of Bishop, Priest, or Deacon, in the Western and Eastern Churches (including also now that of America), according to the XXIII. and XXVI. Articles of our Church, minister the Word of God, and His Sacraments, in Christ's name, and by His commission and authority. All others must be actually ordained, whether of previous Presbyterian or congregational nomination, on conforming to the Church; as in 1661, four teachers of the former in Scotland were first ordained Deacons and Priests, and then, on Dec. 15, Bishops of the Scottish Church [Wood A. O. Fasti iv. 321]. A Roman or Greek Subdeacon is regarded as a layman. In some cases of the Superior or Major orders an imposition of hands "non-ordinativa sed reconciliatoria" has been used. One of the earliest declarations from authority after the Reformation, against orders conveyed by Presbyters, of the year 1585, may be seen in Cardwell, Doc. Ann. No. cii.

As the chief magistrate is the fountain of honour in the State, so in the Church the Bishop is the chief in the Christian polity, a prince in the spiritual commonwealth, with the sole power of Ordination, and distribution of grades and offices, and degrees of ministry; and the reservation of this power to the Episcopate is a visible symbol of the unity of the One Catholic and Apostolic Church. There is but one Spirit of grace, though there are diversities of gifts and operations. In 1549, the necessity of lawful admission by the Bishop was asserted in the Preface to the Ordinal, and this lawful admission, in the X. Article of 1538, is reproduced in the XXIII. of 1562 ("Non licet," it is not lawful by God's law, &c.), and is clearly expressed, "Docemus quod nemo debeat publice docere aut Sacramenta ministrare nisi rite vocatus et quidem ab his penes quos in Ecclesia juxta verbum Dei et leges et consuetudines uniuscujusque regionis jus est vocandi et admittendi." [§ xiii.] Therefore in the Litany she prays for the whole Catholic Church, for all Bishops, Priests, and Deacons; for all Bishops, Pastors, and Curates, in her Collect for St. Peter's Day, and her prayer for the Church militant; and in the first prayer for Ember Week supplications are offered without any limitation for the Bishops and Pastors of God's flock, all of one fold under one Shepherd.

THE FORM AND MANNER
OF MAKING, ORDAINING, AND CONSECRATING
OF BISHOPS, PRIESTS, AND DEACONS, ACCORDING TO THE Order of the Church of England.

Salisbury Use.
CELEBRATIO
ORDINUM.

THE PREFACE.

IT is evident unto all men diligently reading the holy Scripture and ancient Authors, that from the Apostles' time there have been these Orders of Ministers in Christ's Church; Bishops, Priests, and Deacons. Which Offices were evermore had in such reverend Estimation, that no man might presume to execute any of them, except he were first called, tried, examined, and known to have such qualities as are requisite for the same; and also by publick Prayer, with Imposition of Hands, were approved and admitted thereunto by lawful Authority. And therefore, to the intent that these Orders may be continued, and reverently used and esteemed in the Church of England; no man shall be accounted or taken to be a lawful Bishop, Priest, or Deacon in the Church of England, or suffered to execute any of the said Functions, except he be called, tried, examined, and admitted thereunto, according to the Form hereafter following, or hath had formerly Episcopal Consecration, or Ordination.

THE PREFACE.

Church of England] This is misprinted in some modern Prayer Books, "the United Church of England and Ireland." The above is the only legal form, and the reasons why it is desirable to retain that form are stated at page 2].

It is evident unto all men] For notes on this subject consult the preceding Introduction.

Twenty-three years of age] The excerpts of Archbishop Egbert, quoting a Carthaginian Canon, decree: "Placuit ut ante xxv annos ætatis, nec diaconus ordinetur, nec virgines consecraret, nisi rationabili necessitate cogente." The Pupilla Oculi [Lib. vii. cap. 4, A.], "Ordinandus in exorcistam, lectorem, seu ostiarium debet esse major infante, i.e. major septennio. Et similiter ille qui primam tonsuram suscipit ordinandus in acolytum debet esse major xiiij annis. Item major xvij annis potest ordinari in subdiaconum. Major etiam xix annis potest ordinari in diaconum: et major xxiv annis in sacerdotem: et major xxx annis potest esse Episcopus." [Maskell, Mon. Rit. iii. cvii.]

times appointed in the Canon] In 1661, on April 21, the Committee for the revision of the Ordinal resolved, "quod nullæ ordinationes clericorum per aliquos Episcopos fierent nisi intra quatuor tempora pro ordinationibus assignata." [Cardw. Synod. ii. 670.] These are the Ember Days, the Ymbren Dagas (from ymb, round, and ren, to run) [per totius anni circulum distributi. St. Leo, Serm. viii. de Jej. X. mens. Op. tom. i. col. 59] of the Anglo-Saxon Church, occurring in regular circuit and course, the Jajania Quatuor Temporum, corrupted into Quatember in German, and Ember in English, the Fast of the Four Seasons on which the year revolves. They are the Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday after the 1st Sunday in Lent, after Whitsunday, after Sept. 14, Holy Cross, and after Dec. 13, St. Lucy.

Gelasius, probably, was the first who limited the seasons of general ordination to certain times of the year. Micrologus says, "Gelasius papa constituit, ut ordinationes presbyterorum, et diaconorum non nisi certis temporibus fiant." [Cap. 24, p. 448, edit. Hittorp.] So also Rabanus Maurus: "Sacras ordinationes quatuor temporum diebus oportere fieri, decreta Gelasii papæ testantur." [De Instit. Cleric. lib. 2, cap. 24, p. 338, Ibid.] Maskell, Mon. Rit. iii. cxxii. Muratori is of opinion that no fixed and general rule for the observance of Ember weeks existed until the Pontificate of Gregory VII. c. 1085. [Diss. de Jej. IV. temp. c. vii. Anecd. tom. ii. p. 262.]

Our Canons of 1604 enjoin as follows:—

CANON 34.

The Quality of such as are to be made Ministers.

No Bishop shall henceforth admit any person into Sacred Orders, which is not of his own diocese, except he be either of one of the Universities of this realm, or except he shall bring Letters Dimissory (so termed) from the Bishop of whose diocese he is; and desiring to be a Deacon, is three and twenty years old; and to be a Priest, four and twenty years complete; and hath taken some degree of school in either of the said Universities; or at the least, except he be able to yield an account of his faith in Latin, according to the Articles of Religion approved

And none shall be admitted a Deacon, except he be Twenty-three years of age, unless he have a Faculty. And every man which is to be admitted a Priest shall be full Four-and-twenty years old. And every man which is to be ordained or consecrated Bishop shall be fully Thirty years of age.

And the Bishop knowing either by himself, or by sufficient testimony, any person to be a man of virtuous conversation, and without crime, and, after examination and trial, finding him learned in the Latin Tongue, and sufficiently instructed in holy Scripture, may at the times appointed in the Canon, or else, on urgent occasion, upon some other Sunday or Holy-day, in the face of the Church, admit him a Deacon, in such manner and form as hereafter followeth.

THE FORM AND MANNER

OF

MAKING OF DEACONS.

¶ When the day appointed by the Bishop is come, after Morning Prayer is ended, there shall be a Sermon or Exhortation, declaring the Duty and Office of such as come to be admitted Deacons; how necessary that Order is in the Church of Christ, and also, how the people ought to esteem them in their Office.

¶ First the Arch-Deacon, or his Deputy, shall ¶ Quando ordines agantur, primo fiat sermo si Salisbury Use. placeat . . . . . Dum officium canitur, vocentur nominalim illi qui ordinandi sunt . . . . .

¶ Deinde sedeat episcopus ante altare conver- in the Synod of the Bishops and Clergy of this realm, one thousand five hundred sixty and two, and to confirm the same by sufficient testimonies out of the holy Scriptures; and except moreover he shall then exhibit Letters Testimonial of his good life and conversation, under the seal of some College in Cambridge or Oxford, where before he remained, or of three or four grave Ministers, together with the subscription and testimony of other credible persons, who have known his life and behaviour by the space of three years next before.

ORDINATION OF DEACONS.

Sermon or Exhortation] An Exhortation to the Deacons after the presentation will be found in Assemani viii. 377, from the Pontifical of Clement VIII., and one to the Priests after the address to the people [Ib. 363]. By the Sarum and Exeter Pontifical, after the Introductory Sermon the Bishop read out the Prohibitions or Canonical Impediments. In the Winchester Pontifical, the sermon by the Bishop follows the presentation of the Deacons by the Archdeacon. The rubric directs that it shall treat “de castitate, de abstinencia, et his similibus virtutibus: terribiliter interdicens ne quis ad sacros ordines venire præsumat qui pecuniam dare promittere præsumperit.” [Mask. Mon. Rit. iii. 155.]

the Arch-Deacon] Next to the Bishop himself, his vicar the Archdeacon is charged with the duty of examining candidates for ordination, and is to declare that “he has inquired of them and also examined them.” [Comp. Catalani Pont. Rom. tom. i. § xvi. p. 51, Rome, 1739. Martene de Antiq. Rit. tom. ii. col. 39, B.O. Antv. 1736. Council of Coyaco, A.D. 1050, c. 5. Labbe, tom. xi. col. 1441, E.] This is in conformity with the Council of Carthage and the Canon Law as early as the ninth century.

“Nos meminimus expressisse quod ad Archidiaconum debeat pertinere examinatio etiam clericorum si fuerint ad Sacros Ordines promovendi.” [Decret. Greg. lib. i. tit. xxiv. cap. vii.] “Ea de jure communi ad Archidiaconi spectent officium, scil. representare ordinandos Episcopo et illos examinare.” [Ib. cap. ix. Corp. Jur. Can. tom. ii. col. 315. 48. 316. 44.] “De jure civili hæc examinatio pertinet ad Archidiaconum; ad hæc alias, si sit absens Episcopus, potest per se examinare, si velit, vel aliis idoneis circa latus suum id committere.” [Lyndewood, Prov. Anglic. lib. i. tit. v. vi., Oxf. 1679, p. 33. Comp. Bingham, Orig. Eccles. b. ii. c. xxi. sect. 7, vol. i. p. 94, ed. 1724; and Morin de Sacr. Ordin. pt. iii. c. iii. § 3, p. 218, D.] By the 4th Council of Carthage, A.D. 398, c. 5, 6, 7 [Labbe, ii. col. 1437-8], the Archdeacon was to give the vessels used by his order to the Deacon. By the Capitulars of Hincmar, A.D. 877, c. xi., the Archdeacons receive this injunction: “Sollicite providete de vitâ et scientiâ clericorum quos ad ordinationem adducetis, ne pro aliquo munere tales ad ordinandum introducat qui introducti non debent.” [Op. Hincmar. tom. i. p. 740, Lutet. 1645.] About the beginning of the eleventh century, the Archdeacon in the Greek Church bore a prominent part at ordinations [Euchologium; Morin de Sacr. Ord. pt. ii. p. 63, Antv. 1695], and two centuries after this rubric occurs, ὁ μέλλων χειροτονεῖσθαι εἰς τὴν διακονίαν προσάγεται ὑπὸ τοῦ ἀρχidiaκόνου. [Ib. p. 69.] In the Syro-Nestorian Ordinal as translated by Morin: “Stat præsul super sedem et qui ordinandi sunt subtus candelabrum ubi adorant; tum dicit Archidiaconus, Oremus” [P. ii. p. 373], and in the Coptic Ordinal: “Postquam præsentator Diaconi ex sacerdotibus intellexit eum hoc Ministro dignum esse, præsentabunt eum Episcopo testificantes de eo. Stabit autem præsentatus ante altare coram Episcopo.” [P. ii. p. 444, C.]

or his Deputy] In the Ordering of Priests, “or, in his present unto the Bishop (sitting in his chair, near to the holy Table) such as desire to be ordained Deacons, (each of them being decently habited,) saying these words,

Exod. xxviii. 4. 2.
1 Cor. iv. 15.
Matt. ix. 37, 38.
Acts vi. 1—6.

REVEREND Father in God, I present unto you these persons present, to be admitted Deacons.

The Bishop.

Numb. viii. 5, 6.
11—14.
1 Tim. v. 22.
iii. 8, 9.
2 Tim. ii. 24, 25.

TAKE heed that the persons, whom ye present unto us, be apt and meet, for their learning and godly conversation, to exercise their Ministry duly, to the honour of God, and the edifying of his Church.

¶ The Arch-Deacon shall answer,

Acts vi. 3.
1 John iv. 1.

I HAVE enquired of them, and also examined them, and think them so to be.

¶ Then the Bishop shall say unto the people :

1 Tim. iii. 7.
Acts xxiv. 16.

BRETHREN, if there be any of you who knoweth any Impediment, or notable Crime, in any of these persons presented to be ordered Deacons, for the which he ought not to be admitted to that Office, let him come forth in the Name of God, and shew what the Crime or Impediment is.

sus ad ordinandos, et archidiaconus capa Salisbury Use. indutus humiliter respiciens in episcopum cum his verbis alloquatur, ita dicens. . . .

POSTULAT hæc sancta Ecclesia reverende pater, hos viros ordinibus aptos consecrari sibi a vestra paternitate.

Resp. Episcopi: Vide ut natura, scientia, et moribus, tales per te introducantur, immo tales per nos in domo Domini ordinentur personæ, per quas Diabolus procul pellatur, et clerus Deo nostro multiplicetur.

Resp. Archidiaconi: Quantum ad humanum spectat examen, natura, scientia et moribus digni habentur, ut probi cooperatores effici in his, Deo volente, possint.

¶ Quibus expletis, dicat episcopus hanc orationem publice, stando, sine nota.

AUXILIANTE Domino et Salvatore nostro Jesu Christo, præsententes fratres nostri in sacrum ordinem electi sunt a nobis, et clericis huic sanctæ sedi famulantibus. Alii ad officium presbyterii, diaconii, vel subdiaconii, quidam vero ad cæteros ecclesiasticos gradus. Proinde admonemus et postulamus, tam vos clericos quam cæterum populum, ut pro nobis et pro illis puro corde et sincera mente apud divinam clementiam intercedere dignemini, quatenus nos dignos faciat pro illis exaudiri: et eos unumquemque in suo ordine eligere, et consecrare per manus nostras dignetur. Si quis autem habet aliquid contra hos viros, pro Deo et propter Deum, cum fiducia exeat et dicat, verumtamen memor sit communionis suæ.

* * * *

absence, one appointed in his stead." That is, one of the examiners of the Candidate, "alter clericus cui Episcopus faciendum injunxerit" [Pont. Mogunt. ann. circa cccc. Ord. xvi.; Martene de Ant. Rit. ii. col. 214], and so by English Canon Law: "In die ordinum celebrandorum Archidiaconus vel Examinator alius ad hoc deputatus, in actu celebrationis ordinum præsentabit Episcopo ordinanti ipsos ordinandos." [Provinc. lib. i. tit. v. vi. p. 33.]

decently habited] In the old rubric of 1549, they were desired to appear in an albe, but it must be remembered that then the Candidate was a Subdeacon, not, as now, a layman. The present rubric requires, if not an albe, at least a surplice, as the fitting dress of the Candidate for the Order of Deacon.

Reverend Father in God] Bishops are called Fathers by Epiphanius [Hær. l. iii. § lxxv. c. iv.], not of the universal Church, which God alone is, but in particular branches thereof. The title is founded on 1 Cor. iv. 15. 2 Cor. vi. 13. Gal. iv. 19. 1 John ii. 1. 13, 14. The word Papa was similarly used by St. Jerome [Ep. xciv.], and in the fifth and sixth centuries [Sidonius, lib. vi. Ep. 1—12; vii. Ep. 1—11]. According to Baronius, in 1076, it was restricted to the Bishop of Rome.

I present unto you] The ancient form of presentation was

¶ And if any great Crime or Impediment be objected, the Bishop shall surcease from Ordering that person, until such time as the party accused shall be found clear of that Crime.

1 Thess. v. 25.

¶ Then the Bishop (commending such as shall be found meet to be Ordered to the Prayers of the congregation) shall, with the Clergy and people present, sing or say the Litany, with the Prayers as followeth.

The Litany and Suffrages.

O GOD the Father, of heaven : have mercy upon us miserable sinners.

O God the Father, of heaven : have mercy upon us miserable sinners.

* * * * *

That it may please thee to illuminate all Bishops, Priests, and Deacons, with true knowledge and understanding of thy Word; and that both by their preaching and living they may set it forth, and shew it accordingly;

We beseech thee to hear us, good Lord.

That it may please thee to bless these thy servants, now to be admitted to the Order of Deacons, [or Priests,] and to pour thy grace upon them; that they may duly execute their Office, to the edifying of thy Church, and the glory of thy holy Name.

* * * * *

Let us pray.

WE humbly beseech thee, O Father, mercifully to look upon our infirmities; and for the glory of thy Name turn from us all those evils ¶ Deinde accedentes qui ordinandi sunt diaconi et sacerdotes cum vestibus suis, et prostrato episcopo ante altare cum sacerdotibus et levitis ordinandis, postea duo clerici incipiant litaniam . . . .

For originals, &c. of Litany, see pp. 46—61.

Ut Apostolicum donum, et omnes gradus ecclesiæ, in sancta religione conservare digneris,

Te rogamus.

¶ Hic surgat episcopus et sumat baculum in manu sua, et conversus ad ordinandos dicat.

Ut electos istos benedicere digneris,

Te rogamus.

Ut electos istos benedicere et sanctificare digneris,

Te rogamus.

Ut electos istos benedicere, sanctificare et consecrare digneris,

Te rogamus.

Ps. xxviii. 9.
Numb. viii. 14—16.
Heb. xiii. 9.
1 Pet. iv. 10.
Eph. iv. 11, 12.
Phil. i. 11.

“Postulat S. Mater Ecclesia.” This form is found in the Sacramentary of Gregory, and also in the old English Pontificals. It was, however, thought to be too bold a presumption, and was changed into a declaration by the Archdeacon in his own name.

[I have enquired, &c.] In the Sacramentary of Gregory, the answer of the Archdeacon was, “Quantum humana fragilitas nosse sinit et scio et testificor ipsos dignos esse ad hujus onus officii.” In our own form the words, “as far as human frailty suffereth,” being regarded as too vague an expression, and offering a shelter for prevarication, were omitted; whilst the assertion, “I know and bear witness,” was softened down by the tempered language, “I think them so to be.”

[commending such, &c.] In the Sacramentary of St. Gregory, the Bishop in the “Benedictio Diaconi” thus commends those who are to be ordained, to the prayers of the people: “Oremus, dilectissimi, Deum Patrem Omnipotentem, ut super hunc famulum suum, quem in sacrum ordinem Diaconatus officii dignatur assumere, Ille benedictionis suæ gratiam clementer effundat, eique donum consecrationis propitius indulgeat per quod eum ad præmia æterna perducatur, auxiliante Domino nostro Jesu Christo.” The Prayer in the Pontifical of Egbert is very similar, and differs only in the insertion of the clauses, “et preces nostras clementer exaudiat, ut suo eum prosequatur auxilio et sua potius electione justificet,” between “indulgeat” and “per quod.” In the Sarum Pontifical the same Prayer occurs, differing merely in a few words. It stands immediately after the ordination. There is also in the Winton Pontifical a similar Prayer, in which, after “hos famulos tuos” are inserted the words, “quorum nomina hic recitantur.” The same Prayer occurs after the Ordination in Harl. MS. 2906, fo. 8, b., as the Præfatio with a different ending, being preceded by the address to the people: “Commune votum communis oratio prosequatur, ut hi totius ecclesiæ prece qui in Diaconatus Ministerium præparantur Leviticæ benedictionis ordine clarescant, et, spirituali conversatione præfulgentes, gratia sanctificationis eluceant.” This address in the Winton Pontifical succeeds the delivery of the Gospel [Maskell, Mon. Rit. iii. 199].

[The Litany] The Rubric in the MS. Harl. 2906, fo. 8, a Pontifical of the tenth century, is, “Tunc prosternat se pontifex cum Archidiacono coram altari super stramenta cum hisque qui consecrandi sunt, et schola imponat letaniam;” and in the Cotton MS. Tib. c. i. fo. 142, b., which is perhaps earlier: “Pontifex super tapetia et qui consecrandi sunt super pavimentum prosterthat we most righteously have deserved; and grant, that in all our troubles we may put our whole trust and confidence in thy mercy, and evermore serve thee in holiness and pureness of living, to thy honour and glory; through our only Mediator and Advocate, Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

¶ Then shall be sung or said the Service for the Communion, with the Collect, Epistle, and Gospel, as followeth.

The Collect.

Matt. xxviii. 18.
20.
Eph. iv. 8. 11.
1 Cor. xii. 28.
Heb. v. 4. 5.
Acts vi. 3. 5. 6.
1 Tim. i. 2.
Acts xiii. 2.
John xiv. 16. 17.
26. xvi. 13.
xvii. 17.
Col. i. 9—11.
1 Tim. iii. 8—13.
iv. 12.
Tit. ii. 1. 7. 8.
Col. iv. 17.
1 Cor. xiv. 12.
1 Pet. iv. 11.

ALmighty God, who by thy Divine Providence hast appointed divers Orders of Ministers in thy Church, and didst inspire thine Apostles to choose into the Order of Deacons the first Martyr S. Steven, with others; Mercifully behold these thy servants now called to the like Office and Administration; replenish them so with the truth of thy doctrine, and adorn them with innocency of life, that, both by word and good example, they may faithfully serve thee in this Office, to the glory of thy Name, and the edification of thy Church; through the merits of our Saviour Jesus Christ, who liveth and reigneth with thee and the Holy Ghost, now and for ever. Amen.

The Epistle.

1 Tim. iii. 8[—13].

* * * * *

¶ Or else this, out of the Sixth of the Acts of the Apostles.

Acts vi. 2[—7].

* * * * *

nantur, ac tunc agatur letania, et inter alia dicatur: Ut fratres nostros ad sacrum ordinem electos in vera religione conservare digneris." The admonition to the Deacons, in the Winchester Pontifical, immediately follows their approach to the Bishop, nor does there seem in that age, according to the use of that Church, to have been a Litany appointed [Maskell, Mon. Rit. iii. 191].

Then shall be sung or said, &c. In the Harl. MS. 2906, fo. 8, the Rubric is, "Qua (i. e., letania) finita erigat se pontifex et ascendunt ipsi electi ad sedem pontificis, et benedicat eos ad quod vocati sunt, et descendant et stent in ordine suo. Benedictione accepta Archidiaconus imponat Evangelium, et cætera ex more."

The Rubric in the Sacramentary of Gregory is similar: "Litania expleta ascendunt ipsi ad sedem pontificis, et benedicat eos ad quod vocati sunt, et descendentes stant in ordine suo benedictione percepta." See also Pont. Egberti, p. 9. In Lacy's Pontifical it is directed: "Missam in qua ordinatus est totaliter audiat. Ordines non conferuntur a quolibet, nec cuilibet, nec quolibet die, nec quolibet hora dici, sed tempore Missæ."

DOMINE sancte, Pater fidei, spei, Salisbury Use gratiæ, et perfectum munerator, qui in cœlestibus et terrenis ministeriis ubique dispositis per omnia elementa voluntatis tuæ diffundis effectum: hos quoque famulos tuos speciali dignare illustrare aspectu, ut, tuis obsequiis expediti, sanctis tuis altaribus ministri puri accrescant, et indulgentia puriores, eorum gradu, quos apostoli in septenario munero, beato Stephano duce ac prævio, Sancto Spiritu auctore, elegerunt, digni existant et virtutibus universis, quibus tibi servire oportet, instructi polleant. Per Dominum. In unitate ejusdem.

The Collect] This corresponds to the Consecratio in the Sacramentary of St. Gregory and early Pontificals. Abbé Migne makes the following note:—"In primo Theod. hæc omnia [that is, the presentation of the Candidates and the Litany] omituntur usque ad 'Oremus dilectissimi,' cui præmittuntur orationes ad ordinandos Diaconos, eodem ritu cætera pro ordin. Presbyteri et Episcopi habentur." [Lxxviii. 220.]

The Apostolical Constitutions contain a similar prayer:—"Ἐπίφανον τὸ πρόσωπόν σου ἐπὶ τὸν δοῦλόν σου τόνδε τὸν προχειριζομένον σοὶ εἰς διακονίαν, καὶ πλησον αὐτὸν πνεύματος ἁγίου καὶ δυνάμεως, ὡς ἐπλησας Στέφανον τὸν μάρτυρα, καὶ καταξίωσον αὐτὸν εὐαρέστως λειτουργήσαντα τὴν ἐγχρισθεῖσαν αὐτῷ διακονίαν ἀτρέπτως, ἀμέμπτως, ἀνεγκλήτως, μείζονος ἀξιοθῆναι βαθμοῦ [Const. Apost. l. viii. cxviii. Assem. P. iv. p. 112. Morin, P. ii. p. 375].

Compare also the Collect in the Ordinal of the Syro-Nestorians, as translated by Morin: "Tu per gratiam Tuam elegisti Ecclesiam Tuam Sanctam, et suscitasti in ea Apostolos Sacerdotes et doctores ad perfectionem Sanctorum, et in ea quoque posuisti

¶ And before the Gospel, the Bishop, sitting in his chair; shall cause the Oath of the Queen's Supremacy, and against the power and authority of all foreign Potentates, to be ministered unto every one of them that are to be Ordered.

The Oath of the Queen's Sovereignty.

* * * * *

¶ Then shall the Bishop examine every one of them that are to be Ordered, in the presence of the people, after this manner following.

DO you trust that you are inwardly moved by the Holy Ghost to take upon you this Office and Ministration, to serve God for the promoting of his glory, and the edifying of his people?

Answer.

I trust so.

Matt. vi. 33.
James i. 17.
2 Cor. xiii. 5.
Gal. vi. 3—5.
2 Cor. v. 14.
xii. 19.
John viii. 50.

Diaconos, et quemadmodum elegisti Stephanum et socios ejus, ita nunc quoque, Domine, secundum misericordiam Tuam da servis Tuis istis gratiam Spiritus Sancti ut sint ministri electi in Ecclesia Tua sancta, et servant Altari Tuo puro cum puro corde, et conscientia bona, et splendeant in operibus justitiæ ministrantes mysteriis Tuis divinis." [P. ii. p. 378.]

The Epistle and Gospel] "In Ordinatione Diaconorum Lectio Epistolæ B. Pauli Apost. ad Timoth.: 'Diaconos constitue pudicos.' Sequentia S. Evangelii secundum Johannem, 'Nisi granum frumenti.'" [D. Hieron. Comes ap. Pamel. ii. 60.]

In the Gallican Church, the rubric was, "Legenda quando Diaconus ordinatur Lectio Ezechiel, Prop. c. xlv. 15, 16. Epist. S. Pauli ad Tim. iii. 8—15" [Mabillon, l. ii. No. lxxviii.], and the Gospel "Evang. S. Lucæ ix. 57. 62" [Ib. p. 170]. In the Syro-Maronite Ordinal, the rubric is, "Deinde traditur ei ut legat Epistolam Apostoli Pauli ad Timoth. 'Similiter Diaconi'" [Morin, P. ii. p. 329]. In the German Liturgy, the Epistle was 1 Tim.: "Fidelis sermo omni acceptione dignus;" and the Gospel St. John: "In illo tempore Jesus dixit . . . Pater Meus Qui est in cælis" [Gerbert, 416. 443]. In the ancient Ordo Romanus the Epistle is from 1 Tim., "Fratres Diaconos . . . in Christo Jesu Domino nostro." It is directed to follow the Introit and Prayer. In the Sarum Pontifical, the Gospel is St. Luke iii. 1—6.

Oath of the Queen's Supremacy] The following are the two forms successively used in Ordinations from 1661 until 1865. The third form is that now ordered to be taken —

Form of Oath printed in Sealed Books.

I, A. B., do utterly testify and declare in my conscience, That the King's Highness is the only Supreme Governour of this Realm, and of all other his Highnesses Dominions and Countries, as well in all Spiritual or Ecclesiastical things or causes, as Temporal: And that no foreign Prince, Person, Prelate, State, or Potentate hath or ought to have any jurisdiction, power, superiority, pre-eminence or authority Ecclesiastical or Spiritual within this Realm. And therefore I do utterly renounce and forsake all foreign jurisdictions, powers, superiorities and authorities; and do promise, That from henceforth I shall bear faith and true allegiance to the King's Highness, His Heirs and lawful Successors, and to my power shall assist and defend all jurisdictions, privileges, pre-eminences and authorities granted or belonging to the King's Highness, His Heirs and Successors, or united and annexed to the Imperial Crown of this Realm. So help me God, and the contents of this Book.

Form of Oath ordered by 1 W. & M. c. 8.

I, A. B., do swear, that I do from my heart abhor, detest, and abjure, as impious and heretical, that damnable Doctrine and Position, That Princes excommunicated or deprived by the Pope, or any authority of the See of Rome, may be deposed or murdered by their Subjects, or any other whatsoever. And I do declare, that no foreign Prince, Person, Prelate, State, or Potentate, hath or ought to have any jurisdiction, power, superiority, pre-eminence, or authority, ecclesiastical or spiritual, within this Realm. So help me God.

Form of Oath ordered by 21 & 22 Vict. c. 48.

I, A. B., do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Victoria, and will defend her to the utmost of my power against all conspiracies and attempts whatever which shall be made against her person, crown, or dignity; and I will do my utmost endeavour to disclose and make known to Her Majesty, her heirs and successors, all treasons and traitorous conspiracies which may be formed against her or them; and I do faithfully promise to maintain, support, and defend, to the utmost of my power, the succession of the Crown, which succession, by an Act, intituled "An Act for the further limitation of the Crown, and better securing the rights and liberties of the subject," is and stands limited to the Princess Sophia, Electress of Hanover, and the heirs of her body being Protestants, hereby utterly renouncing and abjuring any obedience and allegiance unto any other person claiming or pretending a right to the crown of this realm; and I do declare, that no foreign prince, person, prelate, state, or potentate, hath or ought to have any jurisdiction, power, superiority, pre-eminence, or authority, ecclesiastical or spiritual, within this realm; and I make this declaration upon the true faith of a Christian. So help me God.

In the first Prayer Book of Edward VI. the confirmation ran, "So help me God, all Saints, and the holy Evangelists;" owing to the remonstrance of Bp. Hooper it was altered to, "So help me God, through Jesus Christ" [Zur. Lett. iii. 81. 566. Hooper's Early Writings, 479]. In 1559, an entirely new form of oath was inserted, with a corresponding alteration in the rubric preceding and introducing it [Pref. Lit. Serv., Park. Soc. p. xxi., p. 281].

By the Clergy Subscription Act, 1865, 28 & 29 Vict. c. cxxii. § xi., Oaths are not to be administered during the Services of Ordination; but this does not extend to or affect the oath of due obedience to the Archbishop taken by Bishops on consecration, § xii.; by § iv. every person about to be ordained Priest or Deacon, shall, before Ordination, make and subscribe the declaration of assent, and take and subscribe the oath of allegiance and supremacy; and the Bishop's oath of due obedience to the Archbishop is retained.

Then shall the Bishop examine] The candidate is required to answer plainly to several questions, that is, "clara voce," and to make certain promises, which, as Bishop Beveridge says, "being made so solemnly before God and His Church, are certainly as binding as if made upon oath, and ought to be as religiously observed;" "ut non solum habeat Dei timorem sed etiam coram omnibus denunciationem et professionem erubescat" [Novell. Just.

The Bishop.

Matt. iv. 18—23.
vii. 22, 23.
Heb. v. 4, 5.
Rom. xiv. 5.

DO you think that you are truly called, according to the will of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the due order of this Realm, to the Ministry of the Church?

Answer.

I think so.

The Bishop.

2 Pet. iii. 2.
2 Tim. iii. 14—16.
1 Thess. ii. 13.

DO you unfeignedly believe all the Canonical Scriptures of the Old and New Testament?

Answer.

I do believe them.

The Bishop.

WILL you diligently read the same unto the people assembled in the Church where you shall be appointed to serve?

Exod. xxiv. 7.
Luke iv. 16.
Col. iv. 16.
Acts xiii. 15.

Answer.

I will.

The Bishop.

Numb. iii. 5—7.
Acts vi. 1—5.
viii. 5. 12.

IT appertaineth to the Office of a Deacon, in the Church where he shall be appointed to serve, to assist the Priest in Divine Service, and specially when he ministereth the holy Communion, and to help him in the distribution thereof, and to read holy Scriptures and Homilies in the Church; and to instruct the youth in the Catechism; in the absence of the Priest to baptize infants, and to preach, if he be admitted thereto by the Bishop. And furthermore, it is his Office, where provision is so made, to search for the sick, poor, and impotent people of the Parish, to intimate their estates, names, and places where they dwell,

Finita litania, redeant sacerdotes electi ad loca sua, remanentibus Levitis ad consecrandum, et episcopus dicat eis sine nota, sedendo. Salisbury Use.

DIACONUM oportet ministrare ad altare, evangelium legere, baptizare, et prædicare.

Auth. Coll. 1, tit. vi. cap. i. § 9, p. 19, Lugd. 1581]. All these interrogations are in accordance with St. Paul's demands of a good life, good government, and that second part of the pastoral office, sound and good doctrine according to the Word of Life, to be found in the Minister of God [1 Tim. v. 17]. They relate [I.] To a profession of the Catholic Faith, and the assurance of the candidates that they are lawfully called to be Ministers of the Church of England [Art. XXIII.]. [II.] A promise is given to observe the discipline of the Church, according to her laws and constitutions. [III.] A profession of obedience is made to ecclesiastical governors. They are grounded on the questions put to Bishops in ancient formularies, and were added to secure uniformity in the services. But they follow ancient precedent as given by the Codex Thuanus of the ninth century: "Primitus cum venerint ordinandi Clerici ante Episcopum debet Episcopus inquirere unumquemque si literatus, si bene doctus, si docibilis, si moribus temperatus, si vita castus, si sobrius, si domui bene præesse sciat, et ante omnia si Fidei documenta pleniter sciat. Et tunc demum in conspectu Episcopi vel Cleri sive populi polliceri debet quæ subter inserta sunt. Ut Sacras Scripturas quotidie meditetur et populum doceat; ut intentus sit lectioni assiduæ. Ut eleemosynarius, hospitalis, humilis, benignus, misericors, largus, ecclesiasticus prædicator, visitator infirmorum. Ut Ecclesiam suam in officiis divinis frequentare non negligat. Ut populum ad eam vel ad se venientem bene recipiat et instruat. Ut Canones pleniter discat et intelligat. Ut ecclesia una, i. e. sua cui ordinatus est, contentus sit. Ut sine iussione sui Episcopi extra suam ecclesiam non proficiantur" [Morin de Sacr. Ordin. pt. ii. p. 252, D.]. By the eleventh Council of Toledo, A.D. 675, c. x.: "Unusquisque qui ad ecclesiasticos gradus est accessurus non ante honoris consecrationem accipiat quam placiti sui innodatione promittat ut fidem Catholicam sincera cordis devotione custodiens, juste ac pie vivere debeat; et ut in nullis operibus suis Canonici regulis contradicat; atque ut debitum per omnia honorem atque obsequii reverentiam præminentibus sibi unusquisque dependat" [Labbe, Conc. tom. vii. 568, B.]. In 813, the Council of Chalons forbade the practice of Bishops exacting from Candidates an oath that they were worthy, would not contravene the Canons, and would obey the Bishop who ordained them, and the Church in which they were ordained, this being prejudicial to diocesan rights [c. xiii. Labbe, tom. ix. col. 362, C.].

It appertaineth, &c.] By the fifth Canon of the Council of York, 1195, "decrevimus etiam ut non nisi summa et gravi necessitate diaconus baptizet" [Wilkins, Conc. i. 501]. So by the Council of London, 1200, c. iii., "Ut non liceat diaconis baptizare, nisi duplici necessitate, viz., quia sacerdos non potest vel absens vel stulte non vult, et mors imminet puero" [Ib. 505]. And a Provincial Constitution gives similar directions [Ib. p. 636]. This question in the Sarum Pontifical occurs as an address to the candidate after the Litany, when the Deacons to be ordained Priests have returned to their places (see above). The admonition is much longer in the Winton Pontifical [Maskell, Mon. Rit. iii. 191].

unto the Curate, that by his exhortation they may be relieved with the alms of the Parishioners, or others. Will you do this gladly and willingly?

Answer.

I will so do, by the help of God.

The Bishop.

WILL you apply all your diligence to frame and fashion your own lives, and the lives of your families, according to the Doctrine of Christ; and to make both yourselves and them, as much as in you lieth, wholesome examples of the flock of Christ?

Heb. xiii. 6.

1 Tim. iii. 8-13.
i. 12. 16.
2 Tim. ii. 23.
Ps. cxix. 9.
1 Pet. v. 2, 3.

Answer.

I will so do, the Lord being my helper.

The Bishop.

WILL you reverently obey your Ordinary, and other chief Ministers of the Church, and them to whom the charge and government over you is committed, following with a glad mind and will their godly admonitions?

Answer.

I will endeavour myself, the Lord being my helper.

1 Pet. v. 5.
ii. 13.
Heb. xiii. 17.
1 Cor. xiv. 33.

¶ Then the Bishop laying his hands severally upon the head of every one of them, humbly kneeling before him, shall say,

Numb. xxvii. 18.
20. 23.
Acts xiii. 2, 3.
vi. 6.
2 Tim. ii. 2.
i. 6.
1 Tim. iii. 10.
Col. iii. 17.

TAKE thou Authority to execute the Office of a Deacon in the Church of God committed unto thee; In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

Quibus inclinantibus, solus episcopus qui eos Salisbury Use. benedicit, manum super capita singulorum ponat, dicens solus secrete, Accipe Spiritum Sanctum . . . Tunc ponat singulis, super sinistrum humerum, stolam usque ad ascellam dexteram subtus, dicens sine nota :

IN nomine Sanctæ Trinitatis, accipe stolam immortalitatis: imple ministerium tuum, potens est enim Deus ut augeat tibi gratiam, qui vivit et regnat . . .

the Curate] Towards the latter end of the sixteenth century Bishops restricted the word (which had been exclusively applied, as here properly, to parish Priests having cure of souls, in its subordinate and present sense) to their vicars [Art. 1576, § 28. Bancroft, Vis. Art. 1605, § 25]. These were formerly called "Substitutes" [Canons 1603, clxix. Comp. Cardw. Conf. ch. viii. p. 342. Grindal's Letters, xiii. p. 246]. Sheldon, however, employs it in the sense of a deputy in 1665 [Cardw. Doc. Ann., No. cxxxix., clii.].

Will you apply, &c.] A hint for this question may probably have been taken from the following prayer in the Sacramentary of St. Gregory: "Exaudi, Domine, preces nostras et super hunc famulum Tuum Spiritum Tuæ benedictionis emitte, ut celesti munere ditatus et Tuæ gratiam possit majestatis acquirere et bene vivendi aliis exemplum præbere."

your Ordinary] That is [1] the Bishop, as having ordinary jurisdiction in causes ecclesiastical, of common right, and of course: [2] Chancellors, Commissaries, Officials, and Archdeacons. So Lyndewood states that ordinaries are those "quibus competit jurisdictio ordinaria de jure privilegii vel consuetudine" [Lyndew. Prov. l. tit. ii.].

Then the Bishop laying his hands, &c.] The Salisbury Pontifical [see above] enjoins the words, "Accipe Spiritum Sanctum." The Bangor MS. also enjoins these words, but the Winton Pontifical does not. The modern Roman form, which does not mention the office of the Deacon, is, "Accipe Spiritum Sanctum ad robur, et ad resistendum diabolo, et tentationibus ejus. In nomine Domini." It is interpolated in the long prayer which is called Præfatio, beginning, "Honorum dator." Martene says that this form is not earlier than the thirteenth century. It does not occur in the Winton Pontifical, nor in the Brit. Mus. Pont. [MS. Harl. 2906], and for the first time appears in the Bangor Use. A clause in the prayer called the Consecration, corresponding to the English Collect, "Almighty God, giver of all good things," does occur in the Harl. Pontifical, and in those of Egbert and Lacy, "Emitte Spiritum Sanctum," and has been distorted into "the form" by Catalani and Martene. The Greek Church uses this form, substituting Priest or Deacon in the several ordering of both, Ἡ Θεία χάρις ἡ πάντοτε τὰ ἀσθενῆ θεραπεύουσα καὶ τὰ ἐλλείποντα ἀναπληροῦσα, προχειρίζεται τὸν δέινα τὸν εὐλαβεστάτον ὑποδιάκονον εἰς διάκονον [Morin de Sacr. Ordin. pt. i. p. 79, D.].

laying his hands severally] As regards this rite, the words of the fourth Council of Carthage, c. iv. [Mansi, tom. iii. col. 951], are, "Diaconus cum ordinatur solus Episcopus qui eum benedicit manum super caput illius ponat, quia non ad sacerdotium sed ad ministerium consecratur" [Morin, p. 260]. They are incorporated in the Sacramentary of St. Gregory, and the old "Ordo Romanus." But in the Gelasian Sacramentary, and an English Pontifical of Rouen, this clause is inserted, "Reliqui omnes Sacerdotes juxta manum Episcopi caput illius tangant, quia non ad sacerdotium," &c. Durand [Ration. lib. ii. c. ix. § 14] observes, "We read in the Acts of the Apostles that they set them in the sight of the Apostles, and they prayed and laid hands on them. Hereby we see that not only the Bishop, but the Priests that stand by, ought to lay hands upon the Deacon at Ordination." And Amalarius [de Offic. Eccles. lib. ii. c. xii.] agrees with Durand in objecting to the imposition of the hands of the Bishop alone, founding his argument on the same text: but Menard answers the objection, saying, "As this was the first Ordination, and all the Apostles were assembled, it was right that they should all lay on hands, although an unnecessary act, as only one of them would have been sufficient" [M. Sacram. Greg. Note, Migne, lxxviii. 484]. In the Harl. MS. 2906, fol. 8, b., the rubric is, "Et omnes qui ordinandi sunt oblationes deferant ad manus Episcopi cum ab eo ordinationem

¶ Then shall the Bishop deliver to every one of them the New Testament, saying,

2 Tim. ii. 15.
Rom. vi 7, 8.
Luke ix. 2. 6.

TAKE thou Authority to read the Gospel in the Church of God, and to preach the same, if thou be thereto licensed by the Bishop himself.

¶ Then one of them, appointed by the Bishop, shall read the Gospel.

Luke xii. 35[—38].

* * * *

¶ Then shall the Bishop proceed in the Communion, and all that are Ordered shall tarry, and receive the holy Communion the same day with the Bishop.

¶ The Communion ended, after the last Collect, and immediately before the Benediction, shall be said these Collects following.

Gen. xvii. 1.
James i. 17.
1 Pet. v. 5.
Rom. xii. 3.
1 Tim. iv. 14—16.
1 Cor. xiv. 40. 32.
Acts xxiv. 16.
2 Cor. i. 12.
Heb. xiii. 9.
Eph. vi. 10.
2 Tim. ii. 1—3.
1 Tim. iii. 13—15.
Luke xvi. 10.
2 Thess. ii. 16, 17.

ALmighty God, giver of all good things, who of thy great goodness hast vouchsafed to accept and take these thy servants unto the Office of Deacons in thy Church; Make them, we beseech thee, O Lord, to be modest, humble, and constant in their Ministration, to have a ready will to observe all spiritual Discipline;

. . . . Post hæc tradat eis librum evangeliorum Salisbury Use.
dicens sine nota :

IN nomine Sanctæ Trinitatis, accipe potestatem legendi evangelium in ecclesia Dei, tam pro vivis quam pro defunctis in nomine Domini. Amen. . .

¶ Ultimo concludendo ei qui lecturus est evangelium.

DOMINE sancte, Pater omnipotens, æterne Deus, honorum dator, ordinumque distributor, ac officiorum dispositor . . . Super hos quoque famulos tuos, quæsumus Domine, placatus intende, quos tuis sacrariis servituros in officium diaconii suppliciter dedi~~x~~camus. . . . Abundet in eis totius forma virtutis, auctoritas moaccipiant. Oratio Diaconi: Diaconus cum ordinatur, solus Episcopus qui eum benedicit manus super caput ejus inponit, quia non ad sacerdotium sed ad ministerium consecratur; et alloquitur populum his verbis: Commune votum. The Royal MS. and Codex of Noyon, as Migne observes, required the Priests to touch the Deacon's head.

the New Testament] “Tradat ei Episcopus sanctum Evangelium, dicens, Accipe istud volumen Evangelii, lege et intellige et aliis trade et opere adimple” [Ex. Anglic. Cod. Rotom. Eccles. ann. dccc., Morin, p. 232, E. Ord. ii. Pont. Gemmet. ante ann. dcccc., Martene, ii. col. 109, A. Ord. xi. Pont. Becc. ante ann. d., Ib. col. 179, B.].

“Accipite licentiam legendi Evangelium in Ecclesia Dei in nomine Domini” [Codex Bellovac. ann. dcl., Morin, p. 270, E. Ord. vi. Pont. Suess. ante ann. dc., Ib. col. 140, E. Ord. xv. Mogunt. ann. circa cccc., col. 219, D. Ord. xvii. Pont. Noviom. ann. circa dccc., Martene, tom. ii. col. 137, D. Ord. vii. Pont. Noviom. ann. cccc., col. 209, C. Ord. xvii. Pont. MS. Bibl. Colb. col. 234, C. Ord. xiii. Pont. Camerac. ann. d., col. 190, D.].

Martene says, “The most ancient Pontificals written before the ninth century, with the exception of the English copies, do not mention the delivery of the Gospels in the Ordering of Deacons. I say with the exception of English Pontificals, for the Pontificals of Archbishop Egbert of York, of the eighth century [tom. ii. col. 98, D.], of Junieges of the ninth century [Ib. 109, A.], of Rouen of the same date [Morin, p. 232, E.], which certainly were designed for the English use, expressly notice the delivery of the Gospels; so, therefore, this was a solemn rite in England, and found in all the rituals we have seen, it is clearly of English origin” [de Ant. Eccl. Rit. lib. 1, c. viii. art. ix. § 6, 7, tom. ii. col. 60, D., 61, A.]. An earlier Pontifical of Bec, ante ann. d., also mentions it [Ib. col. 179, B.]. Ivo of Chartres says, “Deacons receive the text of the Gospels from the Bishop, whereby they understand that they ought to be preachers of the Gospel” [de Reb. Eccles. Sum. ii. apud Hittorp. col. 776, D.]. Neither Rabanus Maurus, Isidore, Alcuin, nor Amalarius, mention the rite, but Durand says that as he wished to conform to the use of the other Churches, he wrote in the Ordinal of his church of Anicia, on the margin, that the book of the Gospels was to be given to the Deacon with a form of words [in IV. Sent. dist. xxiv. qu. 3]. In Spain [IV. Conc. Toledo, c. 27], Deacons do not seem to have read the Gospel.

In the Syro-Nestorian Church this rubric occurs: “Afterwards the Archdeacon delivers the book of the Apostle to the Bishop, who gives it to each of those that are to be ordained, saying, ‘He is set apart, sanctified, perfected, and consecrated for the Ecclesiastical Ministry of a Deacon in the name of the Father,’ &c. The Bishop takes the book from the hand of each of them, and delivers it to the Archdeacon” [Morin, pt. ii. p. 379]. The Nestorian Form enjoins the delivery of the Epistles to the Deacon, and the Gospel to the Priest [Ib. pt. iii. Exerc. ix. de Diac. c. i. § 16, p. 136].

one of them . . . shall read the Gospel] In the Greek Church the Deacon or Priest read the Gospel [Const. Apost. l. ii. c. lvii.]: at Constantinople the Archdeacons. But Sozomen adds, in some churches, the Deacons, in others, the Priests, read the Gospel [H. E. lib. vii. cap. xix.]. In the time of St. Jerome in the Western Church the duty was reserved to Deacons [Ep. xciii. ad Sabinian. Op. tom. iv. col. 758], and by St. Gregory [Epist. App. v. tom. ii. col. 1289, A.]. The Council of Vaison, A.D. 529, c. ii., declared they were worthy to read it [Labbe, v. col. 822, C.], and Isidore [de Div. Off. l. ii. c. viii.] and Honorius [lib. i. c. clxxx.] mention that they did so [ap. Hittorp. col. 208, D., 1226, E., 1238, D.]. The Greek Church assigns the reading of the Gospel in the Holy Communion to them, but there is no mention of a delivery of the Gospel to them at ordination in the Euchologium.

licensed by the Bishop] In the Sacramentary of St. Gregory, at the delivery of the stole to the Deacon, the Bishop says, “Imponimus ut præcones regis cœlestis irreprehensibiliter existere mereamini.” Archbishop Whitgift says, “Surely I think no man is admitted into the Ministry but he is permitted to preach in his that they having always the testimony of a good conscience, and continuing ever stable and strong in thy Son Christ, may so well behave themselves in this inferior Office, that they may be found worthy to be called unto the higher Ministries in thy Church; through the same thy Son our Saviour Jesus Christ, to whom be glory and honour world without end. Amen.

PREVENT us, O Lord, in all our doings with thy most gracious favour, and further us with thy continual help; that in all our works begun, continued, and ended in thee, we may glorify thy holy Name, and finally by thy mercy obtain everlasting life; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

THE peace of God, which passeth all understanding, keep your hearts and minds in the knowledge and love of God, and of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord: And the blessing of God Almighty, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, be amongst you, and remain with you always. Amen.

¶ And here it must be declared unto the Deacon, that he must continue in that Office of a Deacon the space of a whole year (except for reasonable causes it shall otherwise seem good unto the Bishop) to the intent he may be perfect, and well expert in the things appertaining to the Ecclesiastical administration. In executing whereof if he be found faithful and diligent, he may be admitted by his Diocesan to the Order of Priesthood, at the times appointed in the Canon; or else, on urgent occasion, upon some other Sunday, or Holy-day, in the face of the Church, in such manner and form as hereafter followeth.

desta, pudor constans, innocentiae puritas, et spiritualis observantia disciplina. In moribus eorum praecepta tua fulgeant, ut suae castitatis exemplo imitationem sancta plebs acquirat, et bonum conscientiae testimonium praefferentes, in Christo firmi et stabiles perseverent, dignisque successibus de inferiori gradu per gratiam tuam capere potiora mereantur.

Salisbury Use.

Terminando secreta: Per eundem Dominum nostrum, Jesum Christum, Filium tuum, qui tecum vivit et regnat in unitate ejusdem.

ACTIONES nostras, quaesumus, Domine, et aspirando praeveni, et adjuvando proseguere; ut cuncta nostra operatio et a te semper incipiat, et per te coepta finiatur. Per.

Salisbury Use.
Canon Missae ad
fin. Greg.
Subb. in xii. lect
mensis primi.

BENEDICTIO Dei Patris et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti et pax Domini sit semper vobiscum.

MS. Leofric.
Exon. fol.
ccccxxii.

own cure without further licence, except it be upon some evil usage of himself afterwards either in life or doctrine" [Defence, &c., Tr. xiii. vol. iii. p. 41].

Ordination and Mission are distinguished in St. Mark iii. 14; St. Matt. x. 5; St. Luke vi. 13; ix. 2; and in the XXXIII. Article; the XXXVI. and L. Canons of 1604 require a licence. The Bishop under Christ being the fountain of spiritual power in his Diocese, by such an act or issue of his jurisdiction, delegates a portion of his authority, not absolutely, but revocably, to the clerk deputed to perform Ecclesiastical acts. A Rector or Vicar is entrusted with this Mission by Institution, "Missus a jure ad locum et populum curae suae;" a Curate by licence. No power can deprive a Clerk, or make his Orders void, in respect to the inward power conferred upon him by ordination; but admission, suspension, or deposition is competent to the Ordinary, in respect to the outward exercise of that power and ordinary ministration publicly in the Church, as well as in private, either for a set time, or during his life. Admission is given by a licence, the formal permission to perform certain sacred functions in specified places, to which an unbeneficed curate shall be appointed.

Almighty God, giver of all good things] This prayer is also to be found in an Anglican Pontifical of the Monastery of Jumieges [ante ann. dcccc.], and in another of St. Dunstan [Martene de Ant. Eccl. Rit. vol. ii. p. 39]. Also in Egbert's Pontifical, and in Lacy's.

THE FORM AND MANNER OF
ORDERING OF PRIESTS.

---

1 Cor. xiv. 20. ¶ When the day appointed by the Bishop is come, after Morning Prayer is ended, there shall be a Sermon or Exhortation, declaring the Duty and Office of such as come to be admitted Priests; how necessary that Order is in the Church of Christ, and also how the people ought to esteem them in their Office.

Exod. xxviii. 2. 4. ¶ First, the Arch-Deacon, or, in his absence, one appointed in his stead, shall present unto the Bishop (sitting in his chair near to the holy Table) all them that shall receive the Order of Priesthood that day (each of them being decently habited) and say, ¶ Deinde (i. e. post Evangelium) dicat Archidiaconus: Recedant qui ordinati sunt diaconi; accedant qui ordinandi sunt sacerdotes. Salisbury Use.

Sermon or Exhortation] "Legebantur ordinandis Canones ecclesiastici qui de sacris ordinationibus agunt, aut Episcopus ipse sermonem ad eos exhortatorium habebat de dignitate officii-que singulorum ordinum, nisi id jam præstitisset Archidiaconus, qui (ut præscribunt antiqui libri rituales) eos de omnibus in suo ordine agendis prius instruxisse debuerat." [Martene, lib. i. cviii. art. viii. § 3, tom. ii. p. 48.] In the Winton Pontifical is this rubric, "Hos [Sacerdotes] domnus præsul de dignitate officii sacerdotalis diligenter instruens dicat." Then follows an Exhortation, setting forth the duty and office of such as are to be ordained Priests. [Maskell, Mon. Rit. iii. 202.]

First, the Arch-Deacon] In a Pontifical of Corbey of the twelfth century, the Archdeacon comes and presents him that is to be ordained Priest to the Bishop. In the Greek Church, the rubric is: "He that is to be ordained is led up by the Archpriest, and the Archdeacon coming forward shall say, 'Let us attend;' then the Patriarch reads the citation or diploma of election." [Eucholog. Morin, P. ii. p. 63.] In a later Ordinal, the Archpriest presents the Deacon for priesthood. By the Coptic Ordinal, when the Candidate is presented, the Priests first give testimony of his good works, and his knowledge of the word of doctrine, that he is gentle, kind, compassionate; that his wife is such as the law and Canon require; and that he is a Deacon. The Archdeacon says, "May the peace of our Lord be upon this man standing at Thy altar, and expecting Thy heavenly gifts, that he may be raised from the Order of Deacons to the Priesthood" [Ib. p. 445, E.]; and by the Syro-Nestorian Ordinal the Archdeacon leads him by the right hand, saying, "We offer to Thy holiness, holy Father, elect of God, my Lord Bishop, this God-loving man, who standeth here that he may receive the laying on of the divine hand to pass from the Order of Deacon to the Priesthood." [Ib. p. 336.]

or, in his absence] "Every Archbishop, because he must occupy eight Chaplains at Consecrations of Bishops, and every Bishop, because he must occupy six Chaplains at giving of orders, may every of them have two Chaplains over and above the number above limited to them" [21 Hen. VIII. c. xiii. § 24]. The number of Chaplains was intended to add dignity to the presence of an Archbishop, and one of the Bishop's might act as the deputy of the Archdeacon, besides assisting in the laying on of hands upon Deacons to be ordained Priests.

decently habited] The Salisbury Pontifical directs, "Omnes etiam provident de vestibus sacris sibi necessariis." Also immediately before the Litany is the rubric, "Deinde accedentes qui ordinandi sunt Diaconi et Sacerdotes cum vestibus suis," &c. The rubric in the Bangor Pontifical is, "Deinde accedentes qui ordinandi sunt Diaconi et Sacerdotes cum vestibus suis et titulis, et stantibus cunctis," &c. The Winchester Pontifical agrees with the Exeter in calling up the Deacons and Priests separately.

The rubric in the Churching of Women uses the words "decently apparelled," and the Bishops in the Savoy Conference have explained the word "εὐσχημόνως," in a fit scheme, habit or fashion, decently; and that there may be uniformity in those decent performances, let there be a τάξις, rule or canon for that purpose." [Cardw. Conf. 346.] "The Ministers" included "garments under the name of decency" [p. 338], and the Bishops answer, "Reason and experience teaches that decent ornaments and habits preserve reverence, and are therefore necessary . . . to the solemnity of religious worship. And in particular no habit more suitable than white linen, which resembles purity and beauty, wherein angels have appeared [Rev. xv.], fit for those whom the Scripture calls angels, and the habit was ancient [Chrys. Hom. lx. ad Pop. Antioch. p. 350]."

1 Cor. iv. 15.
Isa. lxi. 6.
Heb. v. 4, 5.

REVEREND Father in God, I present unto you these persons present, to be admitted to the Order of Priesthood.

The Bishop.

Ezra vii. 10.
Ps. cxxxii. 9, 16.
Mal. ii. 7.

TAKE heed that the persons, whom ye present unto us, be apt and meet, for their learning and godly conversation, to exercise their Ministry duly, to the honour of God, and the edifying of his Church.

¶ The Arch-Deacon shall answer,

I HAVE enquired of them, and also examined them, and think them so to be.

¶ Then the Bishop shall say unto the people ;

Isa. lxi. 6.
Ps. cxxxii. 9, 16.
Acts xxiv. 16.
1 Tim. iii. 7.

GOOD people, these are they whom we purpose, God willing, to receive this day unto the holy Office of Priesthood : For after due examination we find not to the contrary, but that they be lawfully called to their Function and Ministry, and that they be persons meet for the same. But yet if there be any of you, who knoweth any Impediment, or notable Crime, in any of them, for the which he ought not to be received into this holy Ministry, let him come forth in the Name of God, and shew what the Crime or Impediment is.

¶ And if any great Crime or Impediment be objected, the Bishop shall surcease from Ordering that person, until such time as the party accused shall be found clear of that Crime.

¶ Then the Bishop (commending such as shall [See below.] be found meet to be Ordered to the Prayers of the congregation) shall, with the Clergy and people present, sing or say the Litany, with the Prayers, as is before appointed in the Form of Ordering Deacons ; save only, that, in the proper Suffrages there added, the word [Deacons] shall be omitted, and the word [Priests] inserted instead of it.

¶ Then shall be sung or said the Service for the Communion, with the Collect, Epistle, and Gospel, as followeth.

OREMUS, dilectissimi, Deum Patrem omnipotentem, ut super hos famulos suos, quos ad presbyterii munus elegit, cœlestia dona multiplicet, et quod ejus dignatione suscipiunt, ipsius consequantur auxilio.

Salisbury Use.

Then the Bishop shall say [ii. 122] cites the following: "Allocutio ad populum ad ordinandum Presbyterum : Quoniam, dilectissimi fratres, conversatio illius, quantum noscere mihi videor, probata ac Deo placita est, et digna, ut arbitror, ecclesiastici honoris augmento . . . quid de ejus actibus aut moribus noveritis, quid de merito censeatis, Deo teste, consulimus. Sed ne unum fortasse vel paucos aut decipiat assensio aut fallat affectio, sententia expectanda est multorum." [Pont. Noyon., A.D. 800.] "Si quis autem habeat aliquid contra hos viros, pro Deo et propter Deum cum fiducia exeat et dicat." [Pont. S. Corn., ante A.D. 600.]

In the Harl. MS. 2906, fo. 11, is this Allocutio ad populum : "Fratres, rectori navis et navigio deferendis eadem est vel securitatis ratio vel timoris. Communis eorum debet esse sententia quorum causa communis existit. Nec frustra a patribus reminiscimur institutum ut de electione eorum qui ad regimen altaris adhibendi sunt consulatur et populus. Quia de actu et conversatione presentandi quod nonnunquam ignoratur a pluribus scitur a paucis; et necesse est ut faciles quos obedientiam exhibeat ordinato cui assensum præbuerit ordinando. Fratrum nostrorum et Presbyterorum illorum conversatio quantum mihi videtur probata et Deo placita est, et digna, ut arbitror, ecclesiastici honoris augmento. Sed ne unum fortasse vel paucos aut decipiat aut fallat affectio, sententia est expectanda multorum. Itaque quid de eorum actibus aut moribus noveritis, quid de merito censeatis, Deo Teste, consulimus. Debet hanc fidem caritas vestra habere quam secundum præceptum evangelicum et Deo exhibere debetis et proximo, ut his testimonium sacerdotii magis pro merito quam affectione aliqua tribuatis, et qui devotione omnium expectamus intelligere tacentes non possumus. Scimus tamen quid est acceptabilis Deo. Aderit per Spiritum Sanctum consensus unus animorum, et ideo electionem vestram debetis publica voce profiteri."

The appeal to the testimony of the people at the ordination of Priests is alluded to by Lampridius, in the life of Alexander Severus; by St. Leo [Ep. lxxxviii.], who says: "Ut Sacerdos Ecclesiæ præfutura non solum attestazione fidelium sed etiam eorum qui foris sunt testimonio muniat;," and by St. Cyprian [Ep. xxxiii.], who says, that in Ordination, he was wont to consult beforehand with the brethren, and weigh the merits and manners of each with common counsel. [Comp. Ep. lxxviii., and St. Basil, Ep. clxxxi.] The edict of Theophylact, patriarch of Constantinople [Can. vi.], required Ordinations to be held "ἐν μέσῃ τῇ ἐκκλησίᾳ, παρόντος τοῦ λαοῦ καὶ προσφωνούντος τοῦ ἐπισκόπου εἰ καὶ ὁ λαὸς δύναται αὐτῷ μαρτυρεῖν;" and by the III. Council of Carthage [c. xxii.] no Clerk was to be ordained without examination by the Bishop and the witness of the people.

the Litany No Litany was appointed in the Pontifical of Rheims. It first occurs in the Sacramentary of Pope Gregory. In the Greek Euchologium these petitions occur:—

ὑπὲρ τοῦ δὲ τοῦ νυνὶ προχειρίζμενου πρεσβυτέρου καὶ τῆς σωτηρίας αὐτοῦ τοῦ Κυρίου δεηθῶμεν.

ὅπως ὁ φιλόανθρωπος ΘΕΟΣ ἡσπικλον καὶ ἀμώμητον αὐτοῦ τὴν ἱερωσύνην χαρίζεται δεηθῶμεν. [Assemani, P. iv. p. 109.]

the Service for the Communion The Rubric of 1549 directed: "When the Exhortation is ended, then shall be sung for the

The Collect.

James i. 17

ALMIGHTY God, giver of all good things, who by thy Holy Spirit hast appointed divers Orders of Ministers in the Church; Mercifully behold these thy servants now called to the Office of Priesthood; and replenish them so with the truth of thy doctrine, and adorn them with innocence of life, that, both by word and good example, they may faithfully serve thee in this Office, to the glory of thy Name, and the edification of thy Church; through the merits of our Saviour Jesus Christ, who liveth and reigneth with thee and the Holy Ghost, world without end. Amen.

The Epistle.

Ephesians iv. 7 [—13].

* * * * *

¶ After this shall be read for the Gospel part of the ninth Chapter of Saint Matthew, as followeth.

St. Matt. ix. 36 [—38].

* * * * *

¶ Or else this that followeth, out of the tenth Chapter of Saint John.

St. John x. 1 [—16].

* * * * *

¶ Then the Bishop, sitting in his chair, shall minister unto every one of them the Oath concerning the Queen's Supremacy, as it is before set forth in the Form for the Ordering of Deacons.

¶ And that done, he shall say unto them as hereafter followeth.

John xiii. 17.
1 Cor. iv. 1.
2 Cor. v. 18—20.

YOU have heard, Brethren, as well in your private examination, as in the exhortation which was now

[D]EUS, sanctificationum omnium auctor, cujus vera consecratio pleneque benedictio est, Tu, Domine; super hos famulos tuos, quos presbyterii honore dedicamus, munus tue benedictionis effunde: ut gravitate actuum et censura vivendi probent se esse seniores, his instituti disciplinis quas Tito et Timotheo Paulus exposuit, ut, in lege tua die ac nocte meditantes, quod legerint credant, quod crediderint doceant, quod docuerint imitentur; justitiam, constantiam, misericordiam, fortitudinem, ceterasque virtutes in se ostendant, exemplo probent, admonitione confirment, ac purum et immaculatum ministerii sui donum custodiant . . .]

[Salisbury Usa.
Gregor.]

Introit to the Communion this Psalm: 'Expectans expectavi Dominum' [Ps. xl.]; or else this Psalm: 'Memento, Domine, David' [Ps. cxxxii.]; or else this Psalm: 'Laudate nomen Domini' [Ps. cxxxv.]. These were some of the Psalms recommended to be said secretly by the Elect Bishop in old forms, whilst the congregation were praying for him.

The Collect] This Collect corresponds to the Consecratio of the Pontificals, and, in its opening, to the Benedictio, the reading "all good things" being a translation of a corrupt reading, "bonorum," noticed by the ritualists, for "honorum," which denoted ecclesiastical orders. In the Pontificals of Egbert and Dunstan, this Prayer is entitled "Consummatio Presbyteri." In the Greek Euchologium this Prayer occurs: Τέλειον ἀνάδειξον δοῦλόν σου ἐν πάσιν, εὐαρεστοῦντά σου καὶ ἁγίως πολιτευόμενον τῆς δωριθείσης προγνωστικῆς δυνάμεως μεγάλης ταύτης ἱερατικῆς τιμῆς. [Assemani, Cod. Lit. tom. xi. p. 109.]

The Epistle and Gospel] "In Ordinatione Presbyterorum: Lectio Libri Sapientiae, 'Sacrificium salutare est attendere mandatis;' Sequentia, S. Evangelii secundum Matthæum, 'Vigilate ergo quia nescitis.'" [D. Hieron. Comes ap. Pamelium, ii. 60.] The Gallican Church read for the Epistle, Titus i. 1—6. The Gospel St. John x. 1 was read in that Church in Natali Episcoporum [Mabillon, lib. ii. No. lxxviii., lxxi.]. The Natalis of a Bishop was the commemoration of the day of his consecration [ap. Migne, lxxiv. 206]. In the German Liturgy, the Gospel was St. Matthew: "In illo tempore dixit Jesus . . . constituet eum;" or St. John: "In illo tempore loquente Jesu . . . opera Abraham facito." [Gerbert, 444.]

You have heard, brethren, &c.] In a French Pontifical of the sixth century, there is an Exhortation to the people at the Consecration of a Bishop which resembles this address in spirit: "In locum defuncti talis successor praparetur Ecclesiae, cujus

2 Cor. ii. 15, 16.
iii. 5. iv. 7.
viii. 23.
2 Tim. iv. 5.
Luke xii. 42, 43.
xix. 10.
2 Tim. ii. 2.
Acts xx. 31. 28.
1 Pet. ii. 25.
John xvii. 15.

made to you, and in the holy Lessons taken out of the Gospel, and the writings of the Apostles, of what dignity, and of how great importance this Office is, whereunto ye are called. And now again we exhort you, in the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that you have in remembrance, into how high a Dignity, and to how weighty an Office and Charge ye are called: that is to say, to be Messengers, Watchmen, and Stewards of the Lord; to teach, and to premonish, to feed and provide for the Lord's family; to seek for Christ's sheep that are dispersed abroad, and for his children who are in the midst of this naughty world, that they may be saved through Christ for ever.

2 Tim. i. 6.
2 Cor. iv. 7.
John x. 10, 11.
14, 15.
Matt. xx. 28.
2 Cor. xi. 2.
Eph. v. 23—27.
30—32.
Luke xii. 45—48.
Ezek. xxxiv. 2—
10. xxxiii. 7, 8.
Jer. xxiii. 1, 2.
11, 12.
2 Cor. vi. 20. 18.
Eph. iv. 11—13.
Heb. xiii. 17.
1 Tim. i. 18, 19.
iv. 13—16.
2 Tim. ii. 15, 25.
iv. 2.
Heb. vi. 1.
Eph. iv. 3—6.
13, 14.
Col. i. 28.
Rev. ii. 2, 3.

Have always therefore printed in your remembrance, how great a treasure is committed to your charge. For they are the sheep of Christ, which he bought with his death, and for whom he shed his blood. The Church and Congregation whom you must serve, is his Spouse, and his Body. And if it shall happen the same Church, or any Member thereof, to take any hurt or hindrance by reason of your negligence, ye know the greatness of the fault, and also the horrible punishment that will ensue. Wherefore consider with yourselves the end of your Ministry towards the children of God, towards the Spouse and Body of Christ; and see that you never cease your labour, your care and diligence, until you have done all that lieth in you, according to your bounden duty, to bring all such as are or shall be committed to your charge, unto that agreement in the faith and knowledge of God, and to that ripeness and perfectness of age in Christ, that there be no place left among you, either for error in religion, or for viciousness in life.

Forasmuch then as your Office is both of so great excellency, and of so great difficulty, ye see with how great care and study ye ought to apply yourselves, as well that ye may shew yourselves dutiful and thankful unto that Lord who hath placed you in so high a Dignity, as also to beware, that neither you yourselves offend, nor be occasion that others offend. Howbeit, ye cannot have a mind and will thereto of yourselves; for that will and ability is given of God alone: therefore ye ought, and have need, to pray earnestly for his holy Spirit. And seeing that you cannot by any other means compass the doing of so weighty a work, pertaining to the salvation of man, but with doctrine and exhortation taken out of the holy Scriptures, and with a life agreeable to the same; consider how studious ye ought to be in reading and learning the Scriptures,

Rom. xi. 3.
1 Cor. iii. 9—15.
2 Cor. ii. 14—16.
iv. 1—7. 11.
v. 20.
1 Tim. i. 12.
1 Cor. ix. 26, 27.
viii. 9, 11, 13.
2 Cor. iii. 5, 6.
Phil. ii. 13.
John xv. 4.
Luke xi. 13.
John xvi. 23, 24.
1 Cor. iii. 7.
Luke vi. 39.
Matt. v. 13.
1 Tim. iv. 13, 16.
2 Tim. iii. 14—17.
Matt. xiii. 52.
2 Tim. ii. 22, 24, 25.
Tit. ii. 7.
1 Tim. iii. 2—6.
Deut. vi. 6, 7.
Luke v. 10, 11.
viii. 14.
Matt. vi. 24.
2 Tim. ii. 3, 4, 10.

pervigili cura et instanti solitudine ordo Ecclesiae et credentium fides in Dei timore melius convalescat. Qui praecipienti Apostolo in omni doctrina formam boni operis ipse praebat, cuique habitus, sermo, vultus, incessus, doctrina, virtus sit. Qui ut pastor bonus fide instruat, exemplum patientiae doceat, doctrinam religionis instituat, in omni bono opere confirmet caritatis exemplum . . . . Sit in [populo] quasi unus ex illis, omnia iudicii Domini nostri, non pro se tantum sed et pro omni populo qui solitudini suae creditur, contremiscens, ut qui meminerit de speculatorum manibus omnium animas requirendas, pro omnium salute pervigilet, pastoralis ergo creditas sibi oves Domini diligentiae ejus semper se flagrantissimum adprobans." [Morin, p. 265.]

Compare also with the earlier portion of the Exhortation, the following:—"Eja dilectissime frater, satage atque elaborare non desinas ad perficiendum opus quod inchoaturus es, ut oves tibi traditas tandem aliquando ad ovile Dominicum salubre et refectionis pabulo educatas representari te una cum eis merearis. Imploranda est et cum gemitibus crebrisque suspiriis Domini misericordia exoranda, ut opem ferat, quatenus oves quas vobis ad regendum tradidit, juxta Ipsius voluntatem in procella hujus saeculi regere possimus, atque ad ovile Ipsius vitam rectam institutam, quae via recta est una nobiscum, perducere valeamus. Si pastores ovium semetipsos labore inficiunt ut oves dominorum suorum absque damno custodiant, quid nos e contra in die districti iudicii dicturi sumus, quando apparuerit Pastor pastorum, Judexque virorum, et ceperit rationem ponere cum servis Suis de talentis quae tradidit?" [Exhort. ad Episc. Cons., Pont. Bisunt., ad ann. circ. DC., Martene, ii. pp. 166—168.]

to bring all such, &c.] Compare the concluding portion of the "Consecratio" in the Sarum Pont. [see also Pont. Egb. p. 23], "et per obsequium plebis tuae . . . et inviolabili caritate, in virum perfectum, in mensuram aetatis plenitudinis Christi in die justitiae et aeterni iudicii, conscientia pura, fide plena, Spiritu Sancto pleni persolvant."

Forasmuch then as your Office, &c.] The hint for this may have been taken from the opening clause of a short admonition in the Sarum Pontifical, addressed by the Bishop to the newly ordained Priests, immediately after the final benediction: "Quia res quam tractaturi estis satis periculosa est, fratres carissimi, moneo ut diligenter et honeste," &c.

as also to beware, &c.] "Cavere debent Presbyteri ne verbum Dei quod annunciant pravis actibus vel moribus corrumpant." [Serm. ad Presb., Martene, ii. p. 51.]

And seeing that you cannot] "Praedicationi insta, verbum Dei plebi tibi commissae affluenter mellifluaque atque distincte praedicare non desinas. Scripturas Divinas lege, immo si potest and in framing the manners both of yourselves, and of them that specially pertain unto you, according to the rule of the same Scriptures: and for this self-same cause, how ye ought to forsake and set aside (as much as you may) all worldly cares and studies.

Luke xiv. 28. 31.
33.
Mark x. 29, 30.
John iv. 34.
1 Tim. iv. 15.
Acts xxi. 13.
2 Cor. xii. 15.
Heb. iii. 1, 2.
1 Chron. xvi. 11.
Eph. vi. 18.
John xv. 7. 15, 16.
xvi. 23, 24.
v. 39.
1 Cor. ii. 13.
Luke xxiv. 25—
27.
Heb. iv. 12. v. 13.
Phil. iii. 13, 14, 17.
1 Cor. xi. 1.

We have good hope that you have well weighed and pondered these things with yourselves long before this time; and that you have clearly determined, by God's grace, to give yourselves wholly to this Office, whereunto it hath pleased God to call you: so that, as much as lieth in you, you will apply yourselves wholly to this one thing, and draw all your cares and studies this way; and that you will continually pray to God the Father, by the Mediation of our only Saviour Jesus Christ, for the heavenly assistance of the Holy Ghost; that, by daily reading and weighing of the Scriptures, ye may wax riper and stronger in your Ministry; and that ye may so endeavour yourselves, from time to time, to sanctify the lives of you and yours, and to fashion them after the Rule and Doctrine of Christ, that ye may be wholesome and godly examples and patterns for the people to follow.

1 Tim. iv. 12.
Col. ii. 6—8.
1 Pet. i. 13—15.

And now, that this present Congregation of Christ here assembled may also understand your minds and wills in these things, and that this your promise may the more move you to do your duties, ye shall answer plainly to these things, which we, in the Name of God, and of His Church, shall demand of you touching the same.

DO you think in your heart, that you be truly called, according to the will of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the order of this Church of England, to the Order and Ministry of Priesthood?

Answer.

I think it.

The Bishop.

ARE you persuaded that the holy Scriptures contain sufficiently all Doctrine required of necessity for eternal salvation through faith in Jesus Christ? and are you determined out of the said Scriptures to instruct the people committed to your charge, and to teach nothing, as required of necessity to eternal salvation, but that which you shall be persuaded may be concluded and proved by the Scripture?

Answer.

I am so persuaded, and have so determined by God's grace.

The Bishop.

WILL you then give your faithful diligence always so to minister the Doctrine and Sacraments, and the Discipline of Christ, as the Lord hath commanded, and as this Church and Realm hath received the same, according to the Commandments of God; so that you may teach the people committed to your Cure and Charge with all diligence to keep and observe the same?

Answer.

I will so do, by the help of the Lord.

feri, lectio sancta in manibus tuis, maxime in pectore semper inhaereat, ipsam vero lectionem oratio interrumpat." [Pontif. ap. Martene, l. ii. 166—168.]

That, by daily reading, &c.] Compare the following clauses in the "Consecratio" of the Salisbury Pontifical: "Ut in lege Tua die ac nocte meditantes, quod legerint credant, quod crediderint doceant, quod docuerint imitentur; justitiam, constantiam, misericordiam, fortitudinem, cæterasque virtutes in se ostendant, exemplo probent, admonitione confirmant, ac purum et immaculatum ministerii sui donum custodiant." [See also Pont. Egb. p. 23. MS. Pont. Harl. 2906, fo. 13. MS. Pont. Claud. A. iii. 47, b.]

Do you think, &c.] A short examination is cited by Martene, from a Pontifical "ad usum Ecclesiæ Suessionensis."

"Vis Presbyterii gradum in nomine Domini accipere? R̄. Volo.

"Vis in eodem gradu quantum prævalet et intelligis secundum Canonum sanctiones jugiter manere? R̄. Volo.

"Vis Episcopo ad cujus parochiam ordinandus es obediens et consensiens esse, secundum justitiam et ministerium tuum? R̄. Volo." [Martene, Pont. Suess. A.D. 600, tom. ii. Ord. vii. c. 140, E.]

in your heart] That is, as if from his experience in the diaconate.

Are you persuaded] This question includes the fourth in the Ordering of Deacons, and differs from the third in this respect, that the Priest has to interpret the Holy Scriptures, whilst the Deacon requires a licence to preach. In the Roman Pontifical, the candidates for Priesthood repeat the Creed, "stantes profitentur Fidem quam prædicaturi sunt."

Will you then give, &c.] This and the question following it resemble the Fifth Question in the Ordering of Deacons. An illustration of them occurs in the following Canon:—"Placuit, ut omnes Sacerdotes qui Catholicæ Fidei unitate complectimur nihil ultra diversum aut dissonum in ecclesiasticis Sacramentis aga-

The Bishop.

Matt. vii. 15, 20.
Acts xx. 29.
2 Tim. ii. 17, 23.
25, 26. iii. 6, 7.
13.
1 Thessa. v. 14.
James v. 14.
1 Tim. vi. 3—5.
20, 21.
Luke x. 16.

WILL you be ready, with all faithful diligence, to banish and drive away all erroneous and strange doctrines contrary to God's word; and to use both publick and private monitions and exhortations, as well to the sick as to the whole, within your Cures, as need shall require, and occasion shall be given?

Answer.

I will, the Lord being my helper.

The Bishop.

Acts vi. 4.
Eph. vi. 18.
Col. iv. 12.
1 Cor. ix. 16.
1 Tim. iv. 13—16.
1 Cor. ii. 1, 2.
Phil. iii. 7, 8.

WILL you be diligent in Prayers, and in reading of the holy Scriptures, and in such studies as help to the knowledge of the same, laying aside the study of the world and the flesh?

Answer.

I will endeavour myself so to do, the Lord being my helper.

The Bishop.

1 Tim. iii. 8—13.
iv. 12—16.
Ps. cxix. 9.
1 Pet. v. 23.

WILL you be diligent to frame and fashion your own selves, and your families, according to the Doctrine of Christ; and to make both yourselves and them, as much as in you lieth, wholesome examples and patterns to the flock of Christ?

Answer.

I will apply myself thereto, the Lord being my helper.

The Bishop.

WILL you maintain and set forwards as much as lieth in you, quietness, peace, and love, among all Christian people, and especially among them that are or shall be committed to your charge?

2 Tim. ii. 22.
Matt. v. 9.
1 Pet. iii. 4.
1 Thessa. iii. 12, 13.
Luke ii. 14.

Answer.

I will so do, the Lord being my helper.

The Bishop.

WILL you reverently obey your Ordinary, and other chief Ministers, unto whom is committed the charge and government over you; following with a glad mind and will their godly admonitions, and submitting yourselves to their godly judgments?

Heb. xiii. 17.
1 Pet. ii. 13.
v. 5.
Rom. xiii. 5.
1 Cor. xiv. 33.

Answer.

I will so do, the Lord being my helper.

¶ Then shall the Bishop, standing up, say,

ALMIGHTY God, who hath given you this will to do all these things: Grant also unto you strength and power to perform the same; that he may accomplish his work which he hath begun in you; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Phil. ii. 13.
2 Cor. iii. 5.
Matt. xxviii. 20.
Phil. i. 6, 9—11.
Matt. xiii. 12.

¶ Sequitur præfatio sacerdotum, cum nota, Salisbury Use. stando.

OREMUS, dilectissimi, Deum Patrem omnipotentem ut super hos famulos suos, quos ad presbyterii munus elegit, cœlestia dona multiplicet, et quod ejus dignatione suscipiunt, ipsius consequantur auxilio.

mus. Unus igitur ordo orandi atque psallendi nobis per omnem Hispaniam atque Galliam conservetur, unus modus in Missarum solemnitatibus, unus in Vespertinis Matutinisque officiis." [Conc. Tolet. IV., A.D. 633, c. 2. Labbe, tom. vi. col. 1450, B.]

Will you be diligent to frame, &c.] Priests and Deacons were required "professionem Episcopo suo facere ut caste ac pure vivant sub Dei timore ut dum eos talis professio obligaverit, vitæ sanctæ disciplinam retineant." [IV. Conc. Tolet., c. xxvii. Labbe, tom. vi. col. 1460, A.] By the Canons of the African Church [B. xiii. c. xxxvi.], and the III. Council of Carthage [c. xviii.], Bishops, Priests, and Deacons are not to be ordained until they have made every one in their household Catholic Christians [Martene, lib. i. c. viii. art. 2, § 17, tom. ii. col. 15, B. Ed. Rouen, 1700]. In the Legatine Constitutions of Cardinal Pole, Clerks are required "curare ut domesticorum suorum vita honesta et probata sit." [Decr. v., Cardw. Doc. Ann. i. p. 185. Compare Art. XXXII., and Mason de Min. Anglic. l. ii. c. viii.]

Will you reverently, &c.] Ordinaries by Canon Law are those "quibus competit jurisdictio ordinaria de jure privilegii vel consuetudine." [Lynd. Prov. lib. i. tit. ii.] The Ordinary is (1) the Bishop, in the diocese; (2) the Dean, in the cathedral; (3) the Archdeacon, in the Archdeaconry. The "chief Ministers" are incumbents of parishes. St. Jerome says to Nepotian, "Eſto subjectus Pontifici tuo et quasi animæ parentem suscipe" [Ep. xxxiv., Op. tom. iv. c. 261]; and St. Augustine, "Episcopo tuo noli resistere, et quod facit ipse, sine ullo scrupulo vel disceptatione sectare" [Ep. xxxvi. ad Casul., tom. ii. c. 81, E.].

The Council of Toledo decrees (Canon x.), "Placuit huic sancto concilio — ut debitum per omnia honorem, atque obsequii reverentiam præeinenti sibi unusquisque dependat, juxta illud beati Papæ Leonis edictum: Qui scit se quibusdam esse præpositum, non moleste ferat aliquem sibi esse prælatum, sed obedientiam quam exigit, etiam ipse dependat." [Conc. Mansi, tom. xi. col. 143, ap. Mask. Mon. Rit. iii. 222.]

Almighty God] After the short examination cited above from Martene follows the prayer:—"Voluntatem tuam bonam et

1 Thess. v. 25.

¶ After this, the Congregation shall be desired, secretly in their Prayers, to make their humble supplications to God for all these things: for the which Prayers there shall be silence kept for a space.

Acts ii. 3, 4.
2 Cor. iv. 6.
Acts x. 38.
Rev. i. 4. iii. 1.
1 John ii. 20. 27.
John xiv. 26.
Isa. lx. 19.
Luke xxiv. 25—
27.
Ezek. xxxvi. 25—
27.
1 Tim. i. 14.
Ps. lxxiii. 1, 2.
cxxxii 6, 7.
lxxiii. 24.
John xvii. 3.
xv. 26.
Rev. v. 12, 13.
iv. 8.

¶ After which shall be sung or said by the Bishop (the persons to be Ordained Priests all kneeling) Veni, Creator Spiritus; the Bishop beginning, and the Priests, and others that are present, answering by verses, as followeth.

COME, Holy Ghost, our souls inspire,

And lighten with celestial fire.

Thou the anointing Spirit art,

Who dost thy seven-fold gifts impart.

Thy blessed Unction from above,

Is comfort, life, and fire of love.

Enable with perpetual light

The dulness of our blinded sight.

Anoint and cheer our soiled face

With the abundance of thy grace.

Keep far our foes, give peace at home;

Where thou art guide, no ill can come.

Teach us to know the Father, Son,

And thee, of both, to be but one.

That, through the ages all along,

This may be our endless song;

Praise to thy eternal merit,

Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

¶ Expleta autem hac oratione (i. e. the "Con- Salisbury Usa. secratio") genuflectendo coram altare incipiat Episcopus hymnum.

VENI, Creator Spiritus, Mentes tuorum visita:

Imple superna gratia

Quæ tu creasti pectora.

Qui Paraclitus diceris,

Donum Dei altissimi:

Fons vivus, ignis, caritas,

Et spiritalis unctio.

Tu septiformis munere,

Dextræ Dei tu digitus:

Tu rite promissum Patris,

Sermone ditans guttura.

Accende lumen sensibus,

Infunde amorem cordibus:

Infirma nostri corporis

Virtute firmans perpetim.

Hostem repellas longius,

Pacemque dones protinus:

Ductore sic te prævio

Vitemus omne noxium.

Per te sciamus da Patrem,

Noscamus atque Filium:

Te utriusque Spiritum

Credamus omni tempore.

Sit laus Patri cum Filio,

Sancto simul Paraclito:

Nobisque mittat Filius

Charisma Sancti Spiritus.

Amen.

Or this,

COME, Holy Ghost, eternal God,
Proceeding from above,
*Both from the Father and the Son,
The God of peace and love.*

Visit our minds, into our hearts
Thy heavenly grace inspire;
That truth and godliness we may Pursue with full desire.

rectam ad perfectionem sibi beneplacitam Deus perducere dignetur." [Martene, Eccl. Rit. ii. 146.]

After which shall be sung] The rubric in Lacy's Pontifical is, "Episcopus cum ministris suis ante altare in medio genuflectat cantando Ympnum, 'Veni Creator Spiritus.' Et chorus prosequatur. Et incipiat Episcopus cum suis ministris quemlibet versum illius ympni et chorus prosequatur."

Come, Holy Ghost] The short version of this hymn was added in 1662, and is first found in Bishop Cosin's "Private Devotions," 1627. This hymn was probably introduced into the service late in the eleventh century, when it occurs in the Pontifical of Soisson [Martene, Ordo vii., tom. ii. col. 141, C.]. Two centuries later, in the Pontifical of Mayence, there is this rubric, "Episcopus incipiat Clero prosequente 'Veni Creator Spiritus' . . . item chorus cantet sequentiam 'Sancti Spiritus adsit,' etc., et si multitudo ordinandorum requirit, addatur hymnus, 'Veni Creator.'" [Ibid. Ordo xvi. col. 221, B. Assemani, Cod. Liturg. Ordo ii., P. i. p. 308.] It is found in all English Pontificals with the exception of that of Winchester; and in two Pontificals, one printed by Morin [de Sac. Ord. P. ii. p. 281, D., 279, E.], the other by Asseman

Thou art the very Comforter
In grief and all distress ;
*The heav'nly gift of God most high,
No tongue can it express.*

The fountain and the living spring
Of joy celestial ;
*The fire so bright, the love so sweet,
The Unction spiritual.*

Thou in thy gifts art manifold,
By them Christ's Church doth stand :
*In faithful hearts thou writ'st thy law,
The finger of God's hand.*

According to thy promise, Lord,
Thou givest speech with grace ;
That through thy help God's praises may Resound in every place.

O Holy Ghost, into our minds
Send down thy heav'nly light ;
*Kindle our hearts with fervent zeal,
To serve God day and night.*

Our weakness strengthen and confirm,
(For, Lord, thou know'st us frail ;)
That neither devil, world, nor flesh, Against us may prevail.

Put back our enemy far from us,
And help us to obtain
*Peace in our hearts with God and man,
(The best, the truest gain ;)*

And grant that thou being, O Lord,
Our leader and our guide,
*We may escape the snares of sin,
And never from thee slide.*

Such measures of thy powerful grace
Grant, Lord, to us, we pray ;
*That thou may'st be our Comforter
At the last dreadful day.*

Of strife and of dissension
Dissolve, O Lord, the bands,
*And knit the knots of peace and love
Throughout all Christian lands.*

Grant us the grace that we may know
The Father of all might,
*That we of his beloved Son
May gain the blissful sight,*

And that we may with perfect faith
Ever acknowledge thee,
*The Spirit of Father, and of Son,
One God in Persons Three.*

To God the Father laud and praise,
And to his blessed Son,
And to the Holy Spirit of grace, Co-equal Three in One.

And pray we, that our only Lord
Would please his Spirit to send
*On all that shall profess his Name,
From hence to the world's end.*
Amen.

¶ That done, the Bishop shall pray in this wise, and say,

Let us pray.

ALMIGHTY God, and heavenly Father, who, of thine infinite love and goodness towards us, hast given to us thy only and most dearly beloved Son Jesus Christ, to be our Redeemer, and the Author of everlasting life ; who, after he had made perfect our redemption by his death, and was ascended into heaven, sent

DOMINE sancte, Pater omnipotens, æterne Deus : honorum dator, et distributor omnium dignitatum . . . . . Unde et sacerdotales gradus, atque officia Levitarum, sacramentis mysticis instituta creverunt, ut cum pontifices summos regendis populis præfecisses, ad eorum societatis et operis adjumentum, sequentis

Salisbury Use.
(Sacr. Greg.)

1 Thess. v. 25.
Exod. vi. 3.
Matt. vi. 9.
John iii. 16.
1 John iv. 9.
Eph. i. 7.
Heb. v. 9.
John xix. 30.
Heb. x. 14.

[Codex Liturg. Ordo iv., tom. i. p. 367, Rome 1755], there are the following rubrics :—"Deinde Episcopo incipiente cantatur hymnus 'Veni Creator Spiritus.'" "Pontifex flexis genibus incipit alta voce, schola prosequente, 'Veni Creator Spiritus.'" Dean Comber [Discourse &c. chap. vi. § i. p. 341] observes, that the composition of this hymn was ascribed to St. Ambrose. It is not, however, claimed by his Benedictine editors. In the Salisbury Breviary it occurs as a hymn for Pentecost, "Ad Tertiam."

Almighty God, and heavenly Father] This Prayer corresponds to the Consecratio of the elder Pontificals. In MS. Harl. 2906, fo. 12, it forms part of the "Vere dignum et justum est," as it does also in the Salisbury Pontifical. A very similar Prayer is to be found in the Syro-Nestorian Ordinal : "Domine Deus fortis et omnipotens, elegisti Ecclesiam Sanctam Tuam, et posuisti in eâ Prophetas et Apostolos et Doctores et Sacerdotes, et in opus ministerii et in edificationem corporis Ecclesiastici. Tu ergo respice etiam nunc in servos Tuos . . . ornent quoque et illustrent operibus justis filios Ecclesiæ sanctæ Catholice ad laudem Nominis Tui Sancti." [Syr. Nest. Ord. P. ii. p. 386.]

Eph. iv. 8. 11—13.
 Rom. x. 13—15.
 18.
 1 Pet. iv. 11.
 Ps. cxlv. 10—12.
 lili. 1.
 Matt. xxviii. 19, 20.
 Acts i. 21, 22, 24.
 2 Tim. ii. 2.
 Ps. lxxviii. 19.
 1 John v. 14.
 1 Cor. i. 1, 2, 4.
 Eph. v. 20.
 Ps. ciii. 1, 2.
 Hosea vi. 3.
 2 Pet. iii. 18.
 Phil. iii. 13, 14.
 8, 9.
 Ps. cxxxv. 19—
 21. cxlix. 1.
 xl. 16.
 Ps. lxxxvi. 9, 12.
 Phil. ii. 9—11.
 Rev. xi. 15.
 v. 13, 14.

abroad into the world his Apostles, Prophets, Evangelists, Doctors, and Pastors; by whose labour and ministry he gathered together a great flock in all the parts of the world, to set forth the eternal praise of thy holy Name: For these so great benefits of thy eternal goodness, and for that thou hast vouchsafed to call these thy servants here present to the same Office and Ministry appointed for the salvation of mankind, we render unto thee most hearty thanks, we praise and worship thee; and we humbly beseech thee, by the same thy blessed Son, to grant unto all, which either here or elsewhere call upon thy holy Name, that we may continue to shew ourselves thankful unto thee for these and all other thy benefits; and that we may daily increase and go forwards in the knowledge and faith of thee and thy Son, by the Holy Spirit. So that as well by these thy Ministers, as by them over whom they shall be appointed thy Ministers, thy holy Name may be for ever glorified, and thy blessed kingdom enlarged; through the same thy Son Jesus Christ our Lord, who liveth and reigneth with thee in the unity of the same Holy Spirit, world without end. Amen.

1 Tim. iv. 14.

¶ When this Prayer is done, the Bishop with the Priests present shall lay their hands severally upon the head of every one that receiveth the Order of Priesthood; the Receivers humbly kneeling upon their knees, and the Bishop saying, ordinis viros et secundæ dignitatis eligeres . . . . . hac providentiâ, Domine, apostolis Filii tui Doctores fidei comites addidisti; quibus illi orbem totum secundis prædicationibus impleverunt . . . .

¶ Benedicente eos Episcopo postea, et manum super capita eorum tenente, et nihil eis dicente, et una manu tangente, et omnes presbyteri qui præsentés sunt, manus suas super capita eorum levatas teneant. . . . .

Salisbury Use.

When this Prayer is done, &c.] The rubric in the Pontifical of Egbert is, "Et benedicente eum Episcopo, manus super caput ejus teneat. Similiter et presbyteri, qui presentes sunt, manus suas juxta manum Episcopi super caput illius teneant." It occurs also in the Sacramentary of Pope Gregory. In MS. Harl. 2906 [fo. 11], the rubric is, "Eo inclinato imponat manum super caput ejus et omnes Presbyteri qui adsunt cum eo pariter," &c. In the MS. Pontifical of the tenth century, Claud. iii. 45, b., the word "ponant" occurs instead of "teneant." In several French MSS. the word used was "teneant;" in the Ordo Romanus, and an English Pontifical cited by Menard, it is "ponant." In the Roman Pontifical, the Bishop and Priests lay both their hands on the head of the Candidate, after which they hold their right hands extended over them. The 3rd Canon of the IV. Council of Carthage directs: "Presbyter cum ordinatur, Episcopo eum benedicente, et manum super caput ejus tenente, etiam omnes Presbyteri qui presentes sunt, manus suas juxta manum Episcopi super caput illius teneant." [Maskell, Mon. Rit. iii. 205.] The Church of England has now prescribed only one imposition of hands, and confers explicitly in her form the power, [1] of Preaching; [2] of Consecrating the Holy Eucharist; and [3] of Absolution of Penitents. The Greek Church does not give such a commission formally, but uses Invocation of the Holy Ghost, a Prayer of Consecration, a Benediction, and a Prayer that "the Priest may be presented unblameable at the altar of God, to preach the Gospel of His salvation, to minister the Word of His truth, to offer oblations and spiritual sacrifices, and to renew His people by the laver of regeneration." [Græc. Ord. ap. Morin. P. ii. p. 55.] The Commission to consecrate the Holy Eucharist was never given until the tenth century, when this rubric occurs [Morin, P. ii. 262; P. iii. Exerc. vii. c. i. § 16, p. 105]: "Let him take the Paten with the oblation and the Chalice with the wine, and say, 'Receive power to offer sacrifice to God and celebrate Mass.'" In England it appears in the Bangor Pontifical before the close of the thirteenth century [Maskell, Mon. Rit. iii. 213]. Compare the Pontificals of Beauvais, Mayence, Noyon, Besançon, Cambray, Apamea, given by Morin [pp. 271, 277], and Martene [tom. ii. pp. 138. 174. 192. 197. 221].

the Receivers humbly kneeling] The Candidate kneels because in the presence of the ambassador and representative of

John xx. 21—23.
2 Tim. i. 6, 14, 12.
Exod. xl. 15.
xxvii. 18, 20.
23.
Job. v. 4.
Matt. xvi. 19.
2 Tim. iv. 1, 2.
Matt. xxviii. 19, 20.
1 Cor. xi. 23—25.
Luke xii. 42, 43.
Rev. ii. 10.

RECEIVE the holy Ghost for the Office and Work of a Priest in the Church of God, now committed unto thee by the Imposition of our hands. Whose sins thou dost forgive, they are forgiven; and whose sins thou dost retain, they are retained. And be thou a faithful Dispenser of the Word of God, and of his holy Sacraments; In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

¶ Then the Bishop shall deliver to every one of them kneeling, the Bible into his hand, saying, our Blessed Lord, executing his office in His name, and by His authority; and also, as invoking the confirmation of His servant's words by the Saviour Himself.

Receive the holy Ghost Archbishop Whitgift says, "Christ used these words: 'This is My Body,' in the celebration of His Supper, but there is no special commandment that the Minister should use the same, and yet must he use them because Christ used them; even so, when Christ did ordain His Apostles Ministers of the Gospel, He said unto them, 'Receive the Holy Ghost,' which words, because they contain the principal duty of a Minister, and do signify that God doth pour His Holy Spirit upon those whom He calleth to that function, are most aptly also used of the Bishop, who is God's instrument in that business in the ordaining of Ministers. St. Paul, speaking to Timothy, saith: 'Neglect not the gift that is in thee, which was given unto thee by prophecy with the laying on of the hands of the Eldership.' In which words the Apostle signifieth that God doth bestow His gifts and Spirit upon such as be called to the Ministry of the Word, whereof Ordination is a token, or rather a confirmation." [Defence, Tr. iv. vol. i. p. 490.] So Calvin, "Unde colligimus non inanem fuisse ritum, quia consecrationem quam homines impositione manuum figurabant, Deus Spiritu Suo inflavit." [Comm. in Epist. i. ad Timoth. c. iv. 14, tom. vii. p. 458.]

All sacerdotal power is derived from the Holy Ghost; the Church, therefore, holds that the reception of the Holy Ghost is necessary to constitute a Christian Priest, and that this gift can be conferred only through the hands of a Bishop. The priesthood is a grace of the Holy Spirit. "The Holy Ghost," says Bishop Cosin, "is then given to them, partly to direct and strengthen them in their ways, and partly to assume unto Itself for the more assurance and authority those actions which belong to their place and calling." [Serm. vi.] Being the very words employed by our Lord when He ordained His Apostles, they are the original Charter of the institution of the Ministry, from which alone the limits and extent of its authority are to be known. In the office of Holy Baptism, the Priest says, acting in the Name and person of Christ: "I baptize thee in the Name," &c. In the Holy Eucharist he repeats the very words of the Lord, and applies them to the sacred elements. In Absolution of the Sick, he says, "By His authority committed to me, I absolve thee;" and in the office of Matrimony, "I pronounce that they be man and wife together in the Name," &c. So here, because He gives a portion of His Spirit to those whom He sends, the Bishop, in His Name, says, "Receive the Holy Ghost;" that is, the enabling gift, the power, the qualifying grace (χάρις διακονίας) for the ministration of Divine things. [Eph. iii. 8. 2 Tim. i. 6. Eph. iv. 7. 11, 12.] As St. Cyprian says: "Intelligimus non nisi . . . Dominica ordinatione fundatis licere baptizare et remissam peccatorum dare" [Ep.

Antequam dicatur postcommunio, ponat Epi- Salisbury Use.
scopus manus suas super capita singulorum,
dicens:

ACCIPE Spiritum Sanctum: quorum remiseris peccata, remittuntur eis: et quorum retinueris, retenta erunt.

lxiii.]; and St. Jerome: "Acceperunt Apostoli Spiritus Sancti gratiam qua peccata remitterent et baptizarent" [ad Hedib. Ep. cl.]. All the efficacy that there is in the administration of any Ecclesiastical office depends wholly upon the co-operation of the Holy Ghost: "whether we preach, pray, baptize, communicate, condemn, give absolution, or whatsoever, as disposers of God's mysteries, all words, judgments, acts, and deeds are not ours, but the Holy Ghost's" [Hooker, Eccl. Pol. b. v. c. lxxvii. 5. 8]; and the gift is the spirit of power, of love and soberness, the spirit of confirmation, and of ghostly strength.

It will be observed that the form is in the words of Scripture, "Receive ye . . . retained" [John xx. 22, 23]; and the words, "Be thou a faithful dispenser of the Word of God, and of His holy Sacraments," are simply a clearer rendering of "Ministers of Christ, and stewards of the mysteries of God" [1 Cor. iv. 1], being equivalent expressions denoting the Priest to be invested with the whole ministry of the Gospel committed unto him, the Word of God and His holy Sacraments forming wholly the mysteries of God. An objection having been made to the ancient form, as not sufficiently distinguishing between a Bishop and a Priest, on the advice of Bps. Gunning and Pearson [Prideaux, Valid. of the Orders, p. 72], the words, "for the office and work of a Priest in the Church of God, now committed to thee by Imposition of our hands," were inserted in the Form.

Whose sins thou dost forgive The form for conveying the power of Absolution is comparatively modern. The actual words, "Receive the Holy Ghost: whose sins ye remit," &c., are first found in a book belonging to the Cathedral of Mayence, of the thirteenth century [Morin, 279, E.; Martene, ii. 327]. Martene cites the following passage from the life of a Bishop of Cambrai, who lived in the tenth century, where the writer is speaking of that Bishop being ordained Priest, and, among other circumstances, remarks, "Cumque ad manus impositionem pontificalis diceretur novo presbytero, 'Accipe Spiritum Sanctum, quorum remiseris peccata,'" &c. Martene, however, adds most justly, "Verum quid unicum testimonium tot pontificalibus libris opponendum." [Martene, tom. ii. 23.] It appears in the Bangor MS. of the thirteenth century, and in a Pontifical of Rouen of the fourteenth century [Morin, P. iii. Exerc. vii. cap. ii. § 2, p. 107, A.]. It is not in the early English MSS. of Egbert or Dunstan, or the Winchester Use; it is not in any of the foreign orders printed by Martene before the twelfth century; it is not in the old Sacramentaries of St. Gregory or Gelasius; nor, lastly, does one of the ancient ritualists, Isidore, Amalarius, Strabo, Alcuin, Micrologus, or Ivo Carnotensis, allude to it in the most distant terms [Maskell, Mon. Rit. iii. 220].

the Bible into his hand In 1549, the chalice also was directed to be delivered to the Priest by the Bishop, thus

1 Cor. iv. 1, 2.
2 Cor. x. 13—16.
Tit. ii. 15.

TAKE thou Authority to preach the Word of God, and to minister the holy Sacraments in the Congregation, where thou shalt be lawfully appointed thereunto.

¶ When this is done, the Nicene Creed shall be sung or said; and the Bishop shall after that go on in the Service of the Communion, which all they that receive Orders shall take together, and remain in the same place where hands were laid upon them, until such time as they have received the Communion.

¶ The Communion being done, after the last Collect, and immediately before the Benediction, shall be said these Collects.

Ps. xxiv. 3—5.
cxxxix. 8.
Ps. cxxxii. 9.
1 Sam. iii. 19.
Isa. iv. 10, 11.
Matt. x. 20.
2 Thess. iii. 1.
Luke viii. 11, 15.
1 Pet. i. 23, 25.
1 Thess. ii. 13.
Matt. v. 16.

MOST merciful Father, we beseech thee to send upon these thy servants thy heavenly blessing; that they may be clothed with righteousness, and that thy Word spoken by their mouths may have such success, that it may never be spoken in vain. Grant also, that we may have grace to hear and receive what they shall deliver out of thy most holy Word, or agreeable to the same, as the means of our salvation; that in all our words and deeds we may seek thy glory, and the increase of thy kingdom; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

PREVENT us, O Lord, in all our doings, with thy most gracious favour, and further us with thy continual help; that in all our works begun, continued, and ended in thee,

ACCIPE potestatem offerre sacrificium Deo, missamque celebrare tam pro vivis quam pro defunctis.

¶ Tunc vertat Episcopus, et dicat offertorium . . . . .
Dum cantatur offertorium, ponantur tot hostiæ quot sufficiant presbyteris ordinandis ad communicandum. . . . .

Post communionem Episcopi, Sacerdotes accedant ad communicandum.

BENEDICTIO Dei Patris✠, et Filiū✠, et Spiritus ✠ Sancti, descendat super vos, ut sitis benedicti in ordine sacerdotali, &c.

following the rubric in the Salisbury Use, which directed, "Quo facto, accipiat patenam cum oblatiis et calicem cum vino, et det singulis, inter indices et medios digitos, cuppam calicis cum patena," &c. This rite of delivery of the sacred vessels was quite justifiably abandoned, for it had no prescription in antiquity, as Menard shows [Migne, lxxviii. 493]. It is not mentioned by Dionysius, or the Apostolical Constitutions, in the Pontificals of Rheims, St. Eloy, and others of ancient date, nor by the IV. Council of Carthage, or IV. Council of Toledo, nor by the early fathers, or ritualists, such as Isidore, Rabanus, &c.

in the Congregation] In the Prayer Books of 1549, 1552, it is this Congregation. The change to "the" is important. The commission, hitherto, was limited to the single diocese in which the Priest was ordained, but now was made general throughout the Church, in whatsoever part he was lawfully called to minister.

The words, "In the Church and Congregation whom you must serve," have just been used in the exhortation as synonymous, just as in the XXIV. Article, where in the title, "the Congregation," and in the body of it, "the Church," is used. In the early translations of the Bible, the word ἐκκλησία, now translated "Church," appears as "Congregation" [Matt. xvi. 18. Acts ii. 47; vii. 3; xii. 1. Eph. i. 22, 23], and in the Bishops' Bible, published in 1568, six years after the date of the Articles, although "the Church" is the general translation, yet, in the words of the Saviour to St. Peter, the passage is turned, "On this rock I will build My Congregation:" in 1603, the word also appears, "the whole Congregation of Christian people dispersed throughout the world." In the Latin version of the Articles XIX. XXIII. XXIV. "Congregation" is rendered by "Ecclesia." Dr. Reynolds in 1662 took exception to the words "in the Congregation," as implying that any man without lawful calling might preach and administer Sacraments out of the Congregation, but the Bishops replied, that, by the doctrine and practice of the Church of England none but a licensed Minister might preach, nor either publicly or privately administer the Eucharist [Cardw. Doc. Ann. No. cii. § 2]. Probably the word Congregation was used to avoid misapprehension, owing to the popular but mischievous appropriation of the word Church to designate the Clergy [Twysden's Answ., p. 13], or its application in the sense of an assembly or place of assembly [Fulke's Defence, ch. iv. § 2].

Most merciful Father] This prayer corresponds to the Consummatio of the elder Pontificals, and the Benedictio of the Harl. MS. 2906, fo. 13. To the Benedictio in the Exeter Pontifical this rubric is added:—"Et moneantur attente audire."

we may glorify thy holy Name, and finally by thy mercy obtain everlasting life; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

THE peace of God, which passeth all understanding, keep your hearts and minds in the knowledge and love of God, and of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord: And the blessing of God Almighty, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, be amongst you, and remain with you always. Amen.

BENEDICTIO Dei omnipotentis, Salisbury Use,
 Patris ✠ et Filii ✠ et Spiritus ✠ Sancti, descendat super vos et maneat semper. Amen.

¶ And if on the same day the Order of Deacons be given to some, and the Order of Priesthood to others; the Deacons shall be first presented, and then the Priests; and it shall suffice that the Liliary be once said for both. The Collects shall both be used; first, that for Deacons, then that for Priests. The Epistle shall be Ephes. iv. 7—13, as before in this Office. Immediately after which, they that are to be made Deacons shall take the Oath of Supremacy, be examined, and Ordained, as is above prescribed. Then one of them having read the Gospel (which shall be either out of S. Matt. ix. 36—38, as before in this Office; or else S. Luke xii. 35—38, as before in the Form for the Ordering of Deacons,) they that are to be made Priests shall likewise take the Oath of Supremacy, be examined, and Ordained, as is in this Office before appointed.

And if on the same day] Lacy's Pontifical (p. 84), has the following rubric:—"Aliqui prælati faciunt simul vocare eos qui ordinandi sunt Diaconi et Sacerdotes, quibus sigillatim vocatis et introductis, Episcopus cum ministris prosternat se ante altare dum Letania a choro cantatur. Aliqui vero dicunt Letaniam solum in ordinatione Presbyterorum. Finita Letania redeant Sacerdotes electi ad loca sua, remanentibus Levitis ad consacrandum."

THE FORM OF ## ORDAINING OR CONSECRATING

OF AN

ARCH-BISHOP, OR BISHOP;

Which is always to be performed upon some Sunday or Holy-day.

INCIPIT

Salisbury Use.

CONSECRATIO ELECTI

IN

EPISCOPUM,

Quæ est agenda die Dominica, et non in alia festi-vitate, antequam missa celebretur.

¶ When all things are duly prepared in the Church, and set in Order, after Morning Prayer is ended, the Arch-Bishop (or some other Bishop appointed) shall begin the Communion Service; in which this shall be

The form of Ordaining, &c.] The distinction of the Order of Bishops from that of Priests was definitely asserted for the first time in 1661, by the addition of the words in the Preface to the Ordinal, "Episcopal Consecration, or Ordination," and "every man which is to be ordained or consecrated a Bishop;" and in the heading, "form of ordaining or consecrating a Bishop," although previously implied in the Preface, which speaks of "these Orders of Ministers in Christ's Church, Bishops, Priests, and Deacons." It was not until the close of the sixteenth century that the distinction between the Orders of Bishops and Priests was asserted. On February 9th, 1589, Dr. Bancroft, in a sermon, maintained the superiority of Bishops jure divino; the doctrine was completely acknowledged during the primacy of Laud, and enforced by Bishop Hall in a well-known treatise on the subject. Many writers have held that although the Episcopate is distinguished from the Presbyterate jure divino, yet they together form but one order, because both hold the administration of the Word of God and Sacraments, and have the common trust of the power of the keys, and the Episcopate includes within it the Priesthood of the second degree, being its extension, consummation, and completion, i. e. being the highest Priesthood. Epiphanius condemned Aërius for asserting the identity of the orders [Hær. lxxv. Comp. St. August. de Hær. c. liii.]. St. Jerome says: "In Episcopo et Presbyter continetur." [Ep. cii. ad Evang. tom. iv. c. 803.] St. Ambrose, or rather Hilary the Deacon, observes: "In Episcopo omnes ordines sunt; quia primus sacerdos est, hoc est, princeps est sacerdotum." [In Ephes. c. iv. 11, tom. ii. col. 241, D. App.]. "Episcopi et Presbyteri una ordinatio est. Uterque enim sacerdos est." [In 1 Ep. ad Timoth. c. iii. 10, col. 295, Ed. Par. 1690.] Anicetus, in the same sense, called the Priesthood "bipartitus ordo" [Ep. iii. § 1; Labbe, tom. i. c. 529, c.]; and so do Ælfric's Canons, A.D. 1052, § xvii.; Spelman's Conc. p. 576; Theodulf's Capitulars, A.D. 791, c. i.; Labbe, tom. ix. c. 185, A.; and our own Reformers, the Bishop of St. David's, with doctors Thirleby, Redman, and Coxe, held, that, in the beginning, Bishops and Priests were identical [Burnet's Hist. of Reform. B. iii. v. ii. p. 211], there being, as the Bishops held, no mention in the New Testament, but of two degrees or distinctions in orders, but only of Deacons or Ministers, and of Priests or Bishops [Ib. Add. p. 300]. Thorndike admits that the name of Priest [Sacerdos] is common to both estates, as in regard of the offices of Divine Service, which are performed by both, so, in regard of the government of the Church, common to both [Prim. Gov. of Churches, ch. vii. vol. i. P. i. p. 33. Comp. Bp. Taylor's Episc. Asserted, § 28]. Bellarmine says, "Septimus ordo Sacerdotum est: at Ecclesia Catholica distinctionem agnoscit, ac docet jure divino Episcopatum Presbyterio majorem esse, tum ordinis potestate, tum etiam jurisdictione. Sic enim loquitur Conc. Trident. [Sess. xxiii. c. iv. can. vi. vii.] Eandem sententiam docent et defendunt Theologi doctores apud Magistrum in libro iv. Sent. dist. xxiv., et S. Thom. in ii. 2, qu. clxxxiv. art. vi. de clericis." [Cap. xiv. col. 265, A. C. Colon. 1620.] As Dodwell observes, "Philo sometimes reckons the High Priest in the same order with the common Priests, sometimes he makes him a distinct order by himself." [One Priest, etc., ch. xii. s. vi. p. 348, Lond. 1683.] Fulke timidly says, "The Orders of Bishops, Elders, and, as they be commonly called, Priests and Ministers, is all one in authority of ministering the Word and Sacraments. The degree of Bishops, as they are to be taken for a superior order unto Elders or Priests, is for government and discipline specially committed unto them, not in authority of handling the Word and Sacraments." [Defence, etc., ch. xv. § i. p. 461, Ed. Camb. 1843.] The Anglo-Saxon Church distinctly held that there were three orders [Soames, Hist. p. 271, ed. Lond. 1844. Bp. Lloyd, Anc. Gov. of Brit. Church, ch. iii. § 8. Comp. Becon, Catech. P. vi. p. 319, Ed. Camb. 1844]. So Bishop Jewel says, that the doctrine of the English Church is that there are three orders [Apol. Eccles. Ang. pp. 10, 11, ed. Camb. 1847, comp. pp. 271—274. Def. of Apol. P. ii. p. 271, vol. iii. Camb. 1848]. Isidore calls the Episcopate an order [Etymol. l. vii. c. xii. p. 62, H. col. 1617. Comp. Hallier, de Sac. Ord. P. ii. cap. i. § 1. 14, tom. ii. p. 14], and Estius agrees that it is so truly and properly [l. iv. dist. xxiv. § 28, col. 37, B.]. The distinction between the Episcopate and Priesthood lies in the special function of the former, the power of giving Ordination and administering of Confirmation: the Priest's authority to minister is derived from the Bishop who ordains him thereunto [Bp. Cosin, Sermon. vi. vol. i. p. 100. Hooker, Eccles. Pol. b. vii. c. 6, § 3. Bp. Taylor, Episc. Asserted, § 31, 3. 5. § 37, § 28. Prideaux, Val. of Orders, p. 46, Ed. Lond. 1716]. Besides, the Bishop receives an ordination by laying on of hands of Bishops, in order to receive his consecration to the Episcopate, having already received ordination to the Priesthood by the laying on of hands of a Bishop and Priests [Bp. Pearson, Det. i. vol. i. p. 277].

The Collect.

John xx. 21, 22.
Matt. x. 1, 8.
Acts ii. 4.
John xxi. 15, 16.
Acts xx. 28.
Eph. vi. 18—20.
1 Cor. xii. 7—10.
xiv. 33, 40.
2 Tim. iv. 1—8.
Heb. xiii. 7, 17.
2 Thess. i. 11, 12
Rev. ii. 10.

ALMIGHTY God, who by thy Son Jesus Christ didst give to thy holy Apostles many excellent gifts, and didst charge them to feed thy flock; Give grace, we beseech thee, to all Bishops, the Pastors of thy Church, that they may diligently preach thy Word, and duly administer the godly Discipline thereof; and grant to the people, that they may obediently follow the same; that all may receive the crown of everlasting glory; through Jesus Christ our Lord.
Amen.

¶ And another Bishop shall read the Epistle.

1 Tim. iii. 1[—6].

* * * * *

¶ Or this, for the Epistle.

Acts xx. 17[—35].

* * * * *

¶ Then another Bishop shall read the Gospel.

S. John xxi. 15[—17].

* * * * *

¶ Or else this.

S. John xx. 19[—23].

* * * * *

¶ Or this.

S. Matt. xxviii. 18[—20].

* * * * *

Sunday or Holy-day] Inferior orders were conferred at stated times; but Consecration of Bishops could be held on all Sundays [III. Carthag. c. xxxix., A.D. 397]. Leo the Great wrote to Hilary of Arles, saying, “Nec sibi constare status sui noverit fundamentum, qui non die Sabbati vespere, quod lucescit in prima Sabbati, vel ipso Dominico die fuerit ordinatus;” adding, that this was the ancient rule, “majorum disciplina.” Hugo de St. Victor [Theol. de Sacr. Erud., l. ii. P. ii. c. xx.] says, “The Sacred Canons permit consecrations of Bishops on Sundays only.” [Comp. Surius, A.D. 1035, tom. vii. c. xv. Maii iv.] Alcuinus Flaccus, of the ninth century, declares that Bishops being vicars of the Apostles, as of Christ, are consecrated on Sundays, because on that day the Lord, by the gift of the Holy Ghost, vouchsafed to illuminate the hearts of the Apostles [De Div. Off. Sabb., in xii. lection]. As Bishops are successors of Apostles, the proper day was extended to festivals of Apostles, and then to holydays in general. Thus, Pelagius II. was consecrated on St. Andrew’s Day [in vita ab Anastasio], and Udalric, Bishop of Aosta, on the Holy Innocents’ Day [Surius, Julii iv.].

in the Church] The usual custom was for a Bishop to be consecrated in his own cathedral, as St. Cyprian says [Ep. lxxviii.], “Diligenter de traditione Divina et Apostolica observatione servandum est et tenendum, quod apud nos quoque et fere per provincias universas tenetur, ut ad ordinationes rite celebrandas, ad eam plebem, cui Præpositus [al. Episcopus] ordinatur, Episcopi ejusdem provincie proximi quique convenient, et Episcopus deligatur plebe præsentē.” Julius I., in his “Epistola ad Orientales,” preserved in the second Apology of St. Athanasius, objects that George was not duly, according to the Canons, appointed and made Bishop at Alexandria, by the Bishops of the province. “Non oportuit creationem novi Episcopi illegaliter et præter Canonem Ecclesiasticum fieri, sed in ipsa Ecclesia.” So St. Augustine requested the primate of Numidia to come and consecrate the new Bishop of Fussala [Ep. cclxi.]. By the IV. Counc. of Toledo, c. xviii., “Episcopus ibi consecrandus est ubi Metropolitanus eligeret; Metropolitanus tamen non nisi in civitate Metropoli;” and Thomassin [Discipl. P. ii. lib. ii.] gives numerous infractions of the rule of consecrating in a Bishop’s own church.

after Morning Prayer is ended] The ancient time was the third hour, in memory of the descent of the Holy Ghost at Pentecost, and was appointed by Pope Anacletus [Gratian, dist. lxxv. Honorius, lib. i. cap. clxxxix. Glossa, Juris Canon. Ordin. dist. lxxv.]. The part of the Service where the Office of Consecration began varied, but, as Martene shows, invariably preceded the Gospel; thus the Pontificals of Noyon, Autun, and Rouen prescribe it at the Secret Prayer, but those of Besançon, after the Use of Tours and Rheims (a MS. 600 years old), at the preface. In the Greek Church the consecration took place before the Epistle [Goar. Rit. Græc. p. 302]. In some instances in the Western Church, it immediately joined with the Canon in the Liturgy [Martene, ii. p. 329].

the Arch-bishop] A Bishop ought to be consecrated by his Metropolitan, or by the licence of the latter. That Metropolitans existed in the early centuries of the Church is shown by the Apostolical Canons, c. xxvi., P. Clement I. Ep. i., P. Stephen, Epist. iii., and, P. Anacletus, Ep. i., who says,—“Reliqui provinciales Episcopi, si necesse fuerit, cæteris consentientibus, a tribus, jussu Archiepiscopi, consecrari possunt Episcopis; sed melius est, si ipse cum omnibus eum elegerit, et cuncti pariter sacraverint pontificem.” The Metropolitan was at first designated πρῶτος ἐπισκόπων, or, πρόκριτος τῶν λοιπῶν [Const. Apost. l. viii. c. iv.]. The metropolitan cities are defined by Tertullian [De Præsc., c. xx.], to be, “Ecclesias apud unamquamque civitatem, a quibus traducem fidei et semina doctrinæ; cæteræ exinde Ecclesiæ mutuatae sunt, et quotidie mutantur ut Ecclesiæ fiant.” Hallier [P. iii. s. v. c. iv.], traces through successive centuries the indefeasible right of the Metropolitan to consecrate his suffragans. The Bishops of the same province were to assist at consecrations, as Anacletus says [Epist. ii. dist. lxi. c. Ordin.], “Ordinationes Episcoporum auctoritate apostolica ab omnibus qui in eadem provincia Episcopi sunt celebrandæ.” [Comp. St. Cyp., Ep. lxxviii. Euseb., l. vi. c. x. Rabanus Maurus, de Inst. Cleric., lib. i. c. iv. Isidore, de Eccles. Off. l. ii. c. vi. I. Counc. Nicæa, c. iv. Laodicea, c. 365, c. xii. Antioch, 341, c. xix. Sardica, 347, c. v. IV. Carthage, 397, c. xxxix. Riez, 439, c. i. Chalcedon, 451, c. xxv. Orange, 441, c. xxi. Orleans, 538, c. iii. II. Counc. Auvergne, 533. II. Counc. Tours. III. Paris, 557, c. iii. Constantinople, 691. Rome under Sylvester. Aix, c. ix. Vienne, and Anjou, &c.] or some other Bishop] The rubric immediately following the Gospel is more explicit: it says, “some other Bishop appointed by lawful commission.” In the absence of the Archbishop the Bishop senior, according to consecration or in point of rank [Hallier, u. s. § viii.], was consecrator. A Metropolitan was consecrated by (1), Bishops of his province, or (2), the nearest Metropolitan, or (3), by the patriarch or primate [Ibid. art. ii. § i. II. Counc. Orleans, c. vii. III. Orleans, c. iii.]. In case of two Bishops only acting at a consecration, they and the Bishop elect were deposed [Morinus, P. iii. Exerc. iv. § ii. v.].

The Collect] This Collect is identical with that for St. Peter’s Day, omitting the Apostle’s name, and with some slight verbal differences, and the insertion of the clause, “and duly administer the godly discipline thereof.”

And another Bishop] Three Bishops are thus required, the Consecrator, the Epistoler, and Gospeller. In a Greek ritual of the fifteenth century, three Bishops present the Bishop elect [Assemani, xi. 160].

The Epistle and Gospel] The Epistle [1 Tim. iii. 1] is given by Morin [P. ii. 264], from a MS. more than 700 years old in ¶ After the Gospel, and the Nicene Creed, and the Sermon are ended, the Elected Bishop (vested with his Rolchet) shall be presented by two Bishops unto the Arch-Bishop of that province (or to some other Bishop appointed by lawful Commission) the Arch-Bishop sitting in his chair near the holy Table, and the Bishops that present him saying,

Acts i. 21—26.

MOST Reverend Father in God, we present unto you this godly and well-learned man to be Ordained and Consecrated Bishop.

¶ Then shall the Archbishop demand the Queen's Mandate for the Consecration, and cause it to be read. And the Oath touching the acknowledgment of the Queen's Supremacy, ¶ Ipsa vero electus sacerdotalibus vestibus induatur, præter casulam, et pro casula induatur capa, et sic duo comprovinciales episcopi deducant eum per manus coram metropolitano examinandum, ipso metropolitano sedente in loco examinationis, dorso verso ad majus altare . . . Salisbury Use.

his time. It is given also in the Syr. Maronit. Ord. [Ib. P. ii. 356]. It occurs also in the "Ordo Romanus" and a Pontifical of Compiègne, according to the Use of Soissons [Catalani, § xiv. p. 191], and in the Sacramentary of Leofric [Bodl. Lib. fol. 278].

It was used also in Germany [Gerberti, p. 416]. The Gospel was,—

St. Matt.—"In illo tempore circuibat . . . infirmitatem."

St. Mark.—"In illo tempore circuibat . . . sanabantur."

St. Luke.—"In illo tempore convocatis Jesu discipulis . . . curantes ubique."

The following Epistles and Gospels are given in the "Comes Hieronymi" [Pamelius, ii. 60, 61].

"In ordinatione Episcoporum. Lectio Epistolæ B. Pauli Apost. ad Timotheum."

"Carissime, fidelis sermo, Si quis Episcopatum desiderat."

"Sequentia S. Evangelii secundum Johannem, Nisi granum frumenti."

"Sequentia S. Evangelii secundum Matthæum, Vigilate ergo quia nescitis."

"Item Lectio Epistolæ B. Pauli Apost. ad Titum, Oportet Episcopum sine crimine esse."

"Sequentia S. Evangelii secundum Marcum, Circuibat Jesus in circuitu docens."

"Item Sequentia S. Evangelii secundum Matthæum, Convocatis Jesus duodecim."

"Item Sequentia S. Evangelii secundum Lucam, Designavit Jesus duodecim."

"Item Sequentia S. Evangelii secundum Johannem, Ego sum Pastor bonus."

The Gospel in an old Pontifical printed by Morin [p. 246], is from St. Luke xxii. 24—30; but from St. Mark, in the Pontifical of Compiègne according to the Use of Soissons of the sixth century, quoted by Catalani [i. p. 191], and in the "Ordo Romanus." In the Salisbury Pontifical, the Epistle is from Hebrews, "Fratres, omnis Pontifex . . . Melchisedec" and the Gospel from St. John, "In illo tempore dixit Jesus discipulis suis . . . unus Pastor."

The Gospel from St. John xx. 19, occurs in the Syro-Nestorian Use [Morin, ii. 395].

vested with his Rolchet By the Sarum Pontifical, the elect was to wear his Priest's habit, except having a cope instead of a chasuble. A Pontifical of Rouen of the eleventh century, requires an albe, stole, and cope. By the Prayer Book of 1549, he was "to have upon him a surplice and cope," the presenting Bishops "being also in surplices and copes, and having their pastoral staves in their hands." The Rochet was prescribed for the use of Bishops by the Council of Arenda, 1473 [c. iii.]. The word Rochet is derived from the Anglo-Saxon roc by Somner and Spelman, but Meursius, Gerard Voss [De Vit. Serm., lib. ii. c. xvi.], and Ferrarius, derive it from the German rock. According to Ceccoperius, the French form of the name was adopted at Avignon when the Popes resided there. The rochet differs from the albe in reaching only to the knees, and from a surplice, in having strait sleeves. In 1298, rochets are mentioned in an inventory of St. Paul's [Monast. iii. p. 381]. Cardinal Baronius, Gavanti and Georgius, think the "linea" worn by St. Cyprian was the rochet. Until the thirteenth century it was known as the linea, or camisia Romana, and corresponds to the mantle [Cær. Rom. l. i. c. i.]. Chaucer uses the word "rokette" [Romaunt of the Rose, 1240], and Bishop Latimer, in his sixth Sermon before Edward VI., mentions that he travelled in his rochet [Comp. St. Elphege's dress, Act. Sanct. ii. 130].

shall be presented by two Bishops "Episcopus qui ordinandus est duo Episcopi per manum de Secretario . . . deducant ante altare." [Morin, 250. 234. Comp. Martene, ii. p. 340.]

It appears by old Pontificals of Salzburg, Besançon, and Bec, that the consecrator sat in a throne before the altar, the two assistant Bishops facing him, and the elect in front of all. Simeon of Thessalonica [De Sacr. Ord. c. vii.] represents the assistant Bishops seated on either side of the consecrator. The Bishop, when presented, will be in the centre, with the senior Bishop on his right hand: in the old Pontificals, he is required to bend the head, as a mark of subjection to the consecrator, and of humility in receiving the gift of God. In old Pontificals of Besançon [ann. dc.], Mayence [dc. ann.], Lyons [ccc. ann.], and the Use of Tarento, the consecrator inquired of the presenters whether they knew the elect to be worthy; they answered, "Scimus et credimus illum esse dignum, quantum humana fragilitas nosse sinat," and all said, "Deo gratias." But this custom was abandoned when the Popes took elections and confirmations into their own hands [Catal. i. p. 178].

Most reverend Father in God In many ancient Pontificals the form ran, "Reverende Pater," but in the acts of the Council of Chalcedon, the title "Reverendissime" is used. The ancient Bishops were called Fathers by their juniors [Jo. Filisac, de Sac. Episc. Ordin. cap. x. § iv.]; and in the I. Council of Toledo, Bp. Dutinius says, "I am of the same opinion as my lord and father, Bp. Symphosius." St. Augustine calls the elder Bishops fathers, and the juniors brothers [Epist. cx. So Paulinus, Epist. xxiv.]. St. Epiphanius [Hær. lxxv.], says, "Episcoporum ordo ad gignendos patres Ecclesiæ præcipue pertinet. Hujus enim est Patrum propagatio." [See also Bingham, Aut. B. ii. c. ii. § viii.]

the Queen's Mandate Estius, lib. iv. dist. xxiv. c. xxi. xxxii., proves that the lay people have a voice in the election of a Bishop. However, in lapse of time, as Van Espen [Jus. Eccles. P. i. tit. xiii. c. ii.] says in the twelfth century, "Elections of Bishops passed to the Cathedral Chapters, owing to the tumults and factions raised among the laity in such circumstances." [See Juennius de Sacr. Ord. Diss. ix. qu. i.] John XXI. in 1322 [Raynauld, tom. xv. in app.] first reserved to himself the elections of Bishops in the provinces of Aquileia, Milan, Genoa, Pisa, and Naples, owing to the riots which had taken place, but added, shall be ministered to the persons Elected, as it is set down before in the Form for the Ordering of Deacons. And then shall also be ministered unto them the Oath of due obedience to the Archbishop, as followeth.

The Oath of due Obedience to the Archbishop.

Heb. xiii. 17.

IN the Name of God. Amen. I N. chosen Bishop of the Church and See of N. do profess and promise all due reverence and obedience to the Archbishop, and to the Metropolitan Church of N. and to their successors: So help me God, through Jesus Christ.

¶ This Oath shall not be made at the Consecration of an Archbishop.

¶ Then the Archbishop shall move the Congregation present to pray, saying thus to them:

Luke vi. 12, 13.
Acts xiii. 1-4.
Heb. iii. 1.
1 Cor. xi. 1.

BRETHREN, it is written in the Gospel of S. Luke, That our Saviour Christ continued the whole night in prayer, before he did choose and send forth his twelve Apostles. It is written also in the Acts of the Apostles, That the Disciples who were at Antioch did fast and pray, before they laid hands on Paul and Barnabas,

IN Dei nomine. Amen. Ego N. talis Salisbury Use. ecclesiæ electus, et a te, reverende pater, nomine N. Cantuariensis archiepiscopi, totius Angliæ primas, consecrandus antistes, tibi et sanctæ Cantuariensi ecclesiæ metropoliticæ, tuisque successoribus in dicta ecclesia Cantuariensi canonice substituendis, debitam et canonicam obedientiam, reverentiam et subjectionem me per omnia exhibiturum profiteor et promitto . . . sic me Deus adjuvet, et sancta Dei evangelia. Et prædicta omnia subscribendo propria manu confirmo.

ADESTO supplicationibus nostris, omnipotens Deus, ut quod nostræ humilitatis gerendum est ministerio, tuæ virtutis impleatur effectu.

that he only took this step until, the storm being past (he alludes to the rival Pope at Avignon), full security in elections could be secured to churches. In 1448, by concordat between P. Nicholas V. and the Emperor Frederick III., elections were to be made in cathedrals and abbey churches; and by concordat between P. Leo X. and Francis I. at Bologna in 1516, it was agreed that elections should no longer take place in metropolitan or cathedral churches of the kingdom, Dauphiny, or the provinces of Die and Valence, but that on a vacancy the king should nominate a Doctor or Licentiate in Divinity or Law, of the age of twenty-seven years, within six months after such a vacancy, and the Pope should issue his bull. In Spain, by concordat between Charles V. and P. Adrian VI., it was agreed that the nomination of all Bishops and Abbots should be vested in the Crown [Mariana, lvi. c. v.]; and in Naples Clement VII. gave to Charles V. the right of nomination to twenty-four sees [See also Thomassin, de Vet. et Nov. Eccles. Disc. lib. ii. c. xxxv. Catalani, de Cons. Elect. i. tit. xiii.]. In some instances the king sent a precept signed by his own hand, or an indulus without the privy seal, nominating a Bishop; and in Spain [XII. Toledo, c. vi.], the Archbishop of Toledo acted as the king's delegate [Hallier, P. vii. S. v. § vii.]. Thomassin [P. ii. liv. ii. chap. 34, § 8], shows that in the sixth and seventh centuries the kings of France issued mandates for consecration.

Oath of due Obedience] In the Greek Church, the oath of allegiance to the Emperor is required [King's Rites of Greek Church, pp. 295-299]. By the XI. Council of Toledo, A.D. 675, an oath of obedience to his superior was exacted from a Bishop elect [Thomassin, P. ii. liv. ii. ch. 41]; and in the ninth century, Gaulish Bishops made professions of obedience to their Metropolitans [Ib. P. iii. l. ii. ch. 36]. An ancient form was as follows:—"Ego ille Sanctæ N. Ecclesiæ nunc ordinandus Episcopus subjectionem et reverentiam a sanctis Patribus constitutam secundum præcepta Canonum, S. sedis N. Ecclesiæ rectoribusque ejus in præsentia domini Archiepiscopi perpetuo me exhibiturum promitto et super sanctum altare propria manu firmo." [Ex. Pont. Turon., ann. dcc. ætat. superante, Martene, II. 415.] In the Roman Pontifical, the oath of obedience to the Pope is here made by the Elect [Catal. i. 178-179].

In the Sarum Pontifical the profession given above is preceded by the question, "Vis sanctæ Cantuariensi Ecclesiæ et mihi, meisque successoribus subjectionem, et obedientiam per omnia exhibere, secundum canonicam auctoritatem, et decreta sanctorum pontificum? Resp. Volo." The same question occurs with slight variations in the Winton and Bangor Pontificals. In that of Exeter is this remarkable addition, "Vis beato Petro Apostolo, cui a Deo data est potestas ligandi atque solvendi, ejusque vicariis, Romanis pontificibus, atque sanctæ ecclesiæ Cant." &c. All three Pontificals omit the form in which the profession itself is to be made.

Brethren, it is written] In the Gallican Liturgy is an "Exhortatio ad populum cum Episcopus ordinatur;" it ends, "Nunc and sent them forth. Let us therefore, following the example of our Saviour Christ, and his Apostles, first fall to prayer, before we admit and send forth this person presented unto us, to the work whereunto we trust the Holy Ghost hath called him.

¶ And then shall be said the Litany, as before in the Form of Ordering Deacons; Save only, that after this place That it may please thee to illuminate all Bishops, &c. the proper Suffrage there following shall be omitted, and this inserted instead of it;

John xv. 16.
Eph. iv. 11, 12.
i. 22, 23.
1 Pet. iv. 10, 11.

THAT it may please thee to bless this our brother Elected, and to send thy grace upon him, that he may duly execute the Office whereunto he is called, to the edifying of thy Church, and to the honour, praise and glory of thy Name;

Answer.

We beseech thee to hear us, good Lord.

¶ Then shall be said this Prayer following.

Matt. vii. 11.
Eph. iv. 11–13.

ALmighty God, giver of all good things, who by thy Holy Spirit hast appointed divers Orders of Ministers in thy Church; mercifully behold this thy servant now called to the work and Ministry of a Bishop; and replenish him so with the truth of thy doctrine, and adorn him with innocency of life, that, both by word and deed, he may faithfully serve thee in this Office, to the glory of thy Name, and the edifying and well-governing of thy Church; through the merits of our Saviour Jesus Christ, who liveth and reigneth with thee and the Holy Ghost, world without end. Amen.

¶ Then the Archbishop, sitting in his Chair, shall say to him that is to be Consecrated, Oremus, dilectissimi nobis, ut huic Salisbury Use. viro ad utilitatem ecclesiæ provehendo, benignitas omnipotentis Dei gratiæ suæ tribuat largitatem. Per Dominum.

¶ Et statim a duobus episcopis incipiatur: Kyrie eleison, Cum litania . . . et dicatur litania sicut in ordinibus, et cum ventum fuerit ad versum qui pro domino episcopo cantatur, surgat consecrator, et dicat conversus ad electum sic:

UT hunc electum benedicere digneris.

Resp. Te rogamus.

Ut hunc electum benedicere et sanctificare digneris.

Resp. Te rogamus.

Ut hunc electum benedicere, sanctificare et consecrare digneris.

Resp. Te rogamus.

. . . Domine sancte, Pater omnipotens, æterne Deus: Honor omnium dignitatum, quæ gloriæ tuæ sacris famulantur ordinibus . . . Et idcirco huic famulo tuo, quem ad summi sacerdotii ministerium elegisti, hanc, quæsumus Domine, gratiam largiaris, ut quicquid illa velamina in fulgore auri . . . signabant, hoc in ejus moribus actibusque clarescat. Comple, Domine, in sacerdote tuo ministerii tui summam . . .

. . . ipso metropolitano sedente in loco examinationis . . . Tunc dicat metropolitanus:

igitur, dilectissimi fratres, testimonii boni operis electum, dignissimum sacerdotio consonantes laudibus clamate et dicite dignus est." [Migne, l. xxii. p. 325.] The elect was at this part of the service recommended in some old forms to say in private or secretly the penitential Psalms, and Ps. cxv., "Credidi;" Ps. lxxxiv., "Benedixisti;" Ps. lxxxvi., "Fundamenta;" Ps. lxxxv., "Inclina;" Ps. cxxxi., "Memento;" Ps. lxxxvii., "Domine;" Ps. lxxxiii., "Quam dilecta."

The Litany] The Litany was enjoined by the "Ordo Romanus" and a Pontifical of Lyons of the third century [Catalani, i. 194]: "Tunc duo Episcopi incipiant Litaniam, et inter alia dicant, Ut fratrem nostrum electum pontificem in vera religione conservare digneris." [Morinus, 275. Assemani, e Cod. DC. ann., Cod.

Liturg. viii. 180.] The Litany always formed part of the Greek ordinations [Goar., Rit. Gr. p. 303. Assemani, Cod. Liturg. x. p. 13. Martene II., 362. 372. 404. Morin, 361]. The Greek petitions were, Ὑπὲρ τοῦ δούλου τοῦ Θεοῦ, τοῦ δαίματος, τοῦ νυνὶ προχειριζομένου Ἐπισκόπου καὶ τῆς σωτηρίας αὐτοῦ τοῦ Κυρίου δεηθῶμεν. Ὅπως ὁ φιλόανθρωπος Θεὸς ἄσπιλον καὶ ἀμώμητον αὐτοῦ τὴν ἀρχιερωσύνην χαρίσθῃται τοῦ Κυρίου δεηθῶμεν. [Goar. p. 303.] The Litany in the Church of Constantinople occurs in a later part of the Office [Goar. 303]; in the Syro-Nestorian ritual, after the Gospel [Assemani, x. 13]; in some western uses before [Martene II., 362. 372], in others after the Epistle [Ib. p. 404].

1 Tim. v. 22.
Act. xx. 28.
1 Tim. iii. 2. 7.

BROTHER, forasmuch as the holy Scripture and the ancient Canons command, that we should not be hasty in laying on hands, and admitting any person to government in the Church of Christ, which he hath purchased with no less price than the effusion of his own blood; before I admit you to this Administration, I will examine you in certain Articles, to the end that the Congregation present may have a trial, and bear witness, how you be minded to behave yourself in the Church of God.

ARE you persuaded that you be truly called to this Ministration, according to the will of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the Order of this Realm?

Answer.

I am so persuaded.

The Archbishop.

ARE you persuaded that the holy Scriptures contain sufficiently all doctrine required of necessity to eternal salvation through faith in Jesus Christ? And are you determined out of the same holy Scriptures to instruct the people committed to your charge; and to teach or maintain nothing as required of necessity to eternal salvation, but that which you shall be persuaded may be concluded and proved by the same?

Answer.

I am so persuaded, and determined, by God's grace.

2 Tim. iii. 15.
Titus i. 7. 9.
ii. 1.

ANTIQUA sanctorum patrum institutio docet et præcipit, ut is qui ad ordinem episcopatus eligitur, antea diligentissime examinetur cum omni caritate, de fide sanctæ Trinitatis, et interrogetur de diversis causis vel moribus, quæ huic regimini congruunt, et necessaria sunt retineri, secundum apostoli dictum, manus cito nemini imposueris; et ut etiam is qui ordinandus est antea erudiat, qualiter sub hoc regimine constitutum oporteat conversari in ecclesia Dei, et ut irreprehensibiles sint etiam, qui ei manus ordinationis imponunt.

Salisbury Use.

EADEM itaque auctoritate, et præcepto, interrogamus te, dilectissime frater, caritate sincera, si omnem prudentiam tuam, quantum tua capax est natura, divinæ Scripturæ sensibus accommodare volueris?

Resp. Ita volo, ex toto corde, in omnibus obedire et consentire.

THE EXAMINATION.

An examination was appointed by the IV. Council of Carthage, c. i., and by II. Nicæn, c. xi. See also Martene, de Ant. Rit. lib. i. c. viii., Art. X. n. viii. The following form is from an Italian Pontifical, and one of the eighth century:—"Sedeat dominus Papa in sua sede, facto ibi silentio fiat examinatio talis. Antiqua S. Patrum institutio docet et præcipit, ut is qui ad ordinem Episcopatus eligitur, maxime, ut legimus in Canone Carthaginensi, antea diligentissime examinetur cum omni caritate de fide SS. Trinitatis, et interrogetur de diversis causis vel moribus quæ huic regimini congruunt, et necessaria sunt retineri, secundum Apostoli dictum 'Manus cito nemini imposueris,' et ut etiam is qui ordinandus est antea erudiat, qualiter sub hoc regimine constitutum oporteat conversari in Ecclesia Dei . . . eadem itaque auctoritate et præcepto interrogamus te, dilectissime frater." [Pont. of Bari, Catalani, i. tit. xiii. App. pp. 228, 229. Morin, p. 263, ex cod. dcc. ann. Martene, a cod. dcccc. ann., ii. p. 386.] In the Vatican MS. of Gregory's Sacramentary, the rubric runs, "Examinatio in ordinatione Episcopi ante Litaniam facienda." [Migne, lxxviii. 223.] In the Sarum Pontifical the Examination is much longer than in the Prayer Book, and includes a series of questions on the Creed and articles of the faith. In the Greek Church the Bishop elect is also examined in the Creed and articles of the faith [Assemani, P. iv. 233, &c.].

In the very ancient "Ordo Romanus" [Mabillon, Mus. Ital. i. p. 87], the Bishop of Rome, sitting in his chair, calls to him Bishops or Priests and bids them sit with him. The whole Clergy standing, he bids his chaplain desire the people of the city to enter. While he goes to bring them in, the Bishop chooses one of the Priests to answer his questions. When they are brought in, they are inquired of by the Bishop, "Quid est, fratres, quod vos fatigastis?" They answer, "Ut nobis concedas patronum. Habetis vestrum?" R. Habemus. Quo honore fungitur? R. Diaconus, Presbyter, or what he is. "Quantos annos habet in Diaconatu aut Presbyteratu?" R. ——. De ipsa Ecclesia est an de alia? De ipsa," (but if of any other Church)

The Archbishop.

John v. 39.
Ps. cxix. 18.
Ezek. iii. 17.
Titus ii. 7, 8.
2 Tim. iv. 2.

WILL you then faithfully exercise your self in the same holy Scriptures, and call upon God by prayer, for the true understanding of the same; so as ye may be able by them to teach and exhort with wholesome doctrine, and to withstand and convince the gain-sayers?

Answer.

I will so do, by the help of God.

The Archbishop.

Titus i. 5. iii. 10.

BE you ready, with all faithful diligence, to banish and drive away all erroneous and strange Doctrine contrary to God's Word; and both privately and openly to call upon and encourage others to the same?

Answer.

I am ready, the Lord being my helper.

The Archbishop.

Titus ii. 11, 12.
1 Tim. iii. 1—7.
iv. 12. v. 14.
Titus ii. 7, 8.

WILL you deny all ungodliness and worldly lusts, and live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world; that you may shew your self in all things an example of good works unto others, that the adversary may be ashamed, having nothing to say against you?

Interrogatio. Vis ea quæ ex divinis Scripturis intelligis, plebem cui ordinandus es, et verbis docere et exemplis?

Resp. Volo.

Interrogatio. Vis mores tuos ab omni malo temperare, et quantum poteris, Domino adjuvante, ad omne bonum commutare?

Resp. Volo.

"Dimissorium habet de Episcopo suo? R. Habet." They produce the letter. "Conjugem habuit? Disposuit de domo sua? R. Disposuit. Quid vobis placuit de eo? R. Et castitas, hospitalitas, benignitas, et omnia bona quæ de eo sunt prolata. Videte, fratres, ne aliquam promissionem fecisset vobis. Scitis quod simoniacum et contra Canones est. R. Absit a nobis. Vos videritis. Habetis decretum? R. Habemus." It is then read by the chaplain, and when it has been read the Elect is brought in. The Bishop says, "May God protect us;" and then says to the Elect, "What seekest thou, brother?" to which he replies, "That of which I am not worthy; my fellow-servants led me on." "What honour have you fulfilled? R. Deacon or Priest," &c. "How long have you been in the Diaconate?" &c. He states the time. He is then asked, "Had you a wife," and "Have you disposed of your household?" whether he has made a simoniacal covenant, "What books are read in your church?" "Do you know the Canons?" to the last the Elect replies, "Teach us, sir," to which the answer is, "Ordain at the proper seasons, January, April, September, December." The petition from the people is then read, and the consecration deferred to the morrow, Sunday. On that day the Bishop, with Bishops, and Priests, and clerks enter the church, and, after the Introit, follow a prayer and the Epistle from 1 Timothy, "Fidelis sermo." While the gradual is sung, the Elect is vested by the Archdeacons, sub-Deacons, and acolytes, with dalmatic, chasuble, and staff, and brought in: the Bishop says, "The Clergy and people of . . . have chosen . . . to be consecrated Bishop; let us pray that our Lord God Jesus Christ may grant unto him the episcopal chair, to rule the Church and all the people." The Litany follows, and the Elect receives the benediction. After the Alleluia, follow the Gospel and Mass, and the newly-consecrated Bishop communicates the people.

In another "Ordo" of St. Gall (p. 91), at night, after the Introit, the Bishop of Rome says, "Gloria in excelsis;" and there is a prayer; then one Priest and one Deacon, going from the altar, lead in the Elect, having clothed him with albe (linea) and girdle, "analogium," the little dalmatic, brachiale, stole, and great dalmatic, whilst the choir sing "Immola Deo," the tract "Qui seminat," and the Gospel, "Misit illos binos ante faciem suam." He is then led up by a Priest on the right, and Deacon on the left. They then take off his chasuble, and the Bishop reads the brief, "Our citizens have chosen this man as their pastor, let us pray that Almighty God will pour down on him the Spirit of His grace, and that he may be worthy to govern in the episcopal chair." The choir sing the Kyrie and Litany. The Elect bows his head before the altar, and the Bishop, laying his hand upon him, says a prayer like a collect, and sings another as the Preface (contestata) is chanted. The newly-ordained Bishop kisses the Bishop's feet, and receives the kiss of peace.

Will you then faithfully exercise, &c.] The study of Holy Scriptures is required by the Council of Tours, 813, c. ii., iii., iv.

Answer.

I will so do, the Lord being my helper.

The Archbishop.

2 Tim. ii. 16. 22
— 25. iv. 2.
Tit. i. 13. ii. 15.
1 Tim. i. 9—11.
v. 20. 19.
2 Cor. xiii. 10.

WILL you maintain and set forward, as much as shall lie in you, quietness, love, and peace among all men; and such as be unquiet, disobedient, and criminous, within your Diocese, correct and punish, according to such authority as you have by God's word, and as to you shall be committed by the Ordinance of this Realm?

Answer.

I will so do, by the help of God.

The Archbishop.

Titus i. 5.
2 Tim. ii. 2.
Acts xiv. 23.

WILL you be faithful in Ordaining, sending, or laying hands upon others?

Answer.

I will so be, by the help of God.

The Archbishop.

2 Tim. ii. 24.
Luke vi. 36.
1 John iii. 17.
Heb. xiii. 2.

WILL you shew yourself gentle, and be merciful for Christ's sake to poor and needy people, and to all strangers destitute of help?

Answer.

I will so shew myself, by God's help.

¶ Then the Archbishop standing up shall say,

ALMIGHTY God, our heavenly Father, who hath given you a good will to do all these things, Grant also unto you strength and power to perform the same; that, he accomplishing in you the good work which he hath begun, you may be found perfect and irreprehensible at the latter day; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

¶ Then shall the Bishop elect put on the rest of the Episcopal habit; and kneeling down, [Veni, Creator Spiritus] shall be sung or said over him, the Archbishop beginning, and the Interrogatio. Vis semper esse divinis Salisbury Use.

negotiis mancipatus, et a terrenis negotiis vel lucris turpibus esse alienus, quantum te humana fragilitas concessit posse?

Resp. Volo.

Interrogatio. Vis humilitatem, et patientiam, in temetipso custodire, et alios similiter docere?

Resp. Volo.

Interrogatio. Pauperibus et peregrinis, omnibusque indigentibus vis esse, propter Nomen Domini, affabilis et misericors?

Resp. Volo.

Tunc dicat ei pontifex:

HÆC omnia et cætera bona tribuat tibi Dominus, et custodiat te, atque corroboret, in omni bonitate.

Respondeant omnes astantes: Amen.

Hæc tibi fides augeatur a Domino ad veram et æternam beatitudinem, dilectissime frater in Christo.

Et respondeant omnes: Amen.

... et dicat ordinator: Veni, Creator, ut supra in ordinibus.

Will you shew yourself gentle, &c.] This kindness to the poor and strangers is enjoined by the Council of Tours, A.D. 813, c. iv. v. vi.

Almighty God] Assemanni [P. iv. 241] gives the following benediction as in use in the Greek Church:—Ἡ χάρις τοῦ παναγίου Πνεύματος εἴη μετὰ σοῦ πατρίζουσα, στηρίζουσα, καὶ συντελίζουσα σε πάσας τὰς ἡμέρας τῆς ζωῆς σου.

Then shall the Bishop elect] After the benediction ("Adesto supplicationibus nostris," &c.), the Salisbury Pontifical has this rubric:—"Interim autem, dum hæc fiunt, innuat dominus metro-politanus Archidiacono, et ipse descendens cum acolytis et subdiaconis vadat extra chorum, ubi expectat qui ordinandus est, et accipiens vestimenta induat eum cum sandaliis, alba, stola, manipulo, tunica, dalmatica, et casula, sine mitra et absque baculo vel annulo." By the Sarum Pont., two Bishops vested in copes lead the Elect up to the consecrator; by the Bangor, two Bishops in chasubles. By the Winchester Pontifical, the Archdeacon leads the Elect up to the Altar where the Metropolitan is standing, and presents him. The Winchester rubric, with regard to the vesting of the elect Bishop, is simply . . . "et accipiens vestimentum

Bishops, with others that are present, answering by verses, as followeth.

COME, Holy Ghost, our souls inspire,

And lighten with celestial fire.

Thou the anointing Spirit art,
Who dost thy seven-fold gifts impart.

Thy blessed Unction from above,
Is comfort, life, and fire of love.

Enable with perpetual light
The dulness of our blinded sight.

Anoint and cheer our soiled face
With the abundance of thy grace.

Keep far our foes, give peace at home:
Where thou art guide, no ill can come.

Teach us to know the Father, Son,
And thee, of both, to be but One.

That through the ages all along,
This may be our endless song;

Praise to thy eternal merit,
Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

¶ Or this:

COME, Holy Ghost, eternal God,

&c. as before in the Form of Ordering Priests.

¶ That ended, the Archbishop shall say,

Lord, hear our prayer.

Answer.

And let our cry come unto thee.

Let us pray.

ALMIGHTY God, and most merciful Father, who of thine infinite goodness hast given thine only and dearly beloved Son Jesus Christ, to be our Redeemer, and the Author

[For the original of this hymn see form for Ordination of Priests.]

induat eum," omitting the list of vestments given in the Salisbury Pont. [Maskell, Mon. Rit. iii. 253, 254]. By the first Prayer Book of Edward VI., confirmed by Act 2 & 3 Edw. VI. c. i. [comp. Cranmer's Memorials, c. xxiv. 363-364], whensoever the Bishop shall celebrate the Holy Communion in the church, or execute any other public ministration, he shall have upon him beside his rochet a surplice or albe, and also a cope or vestment [i.e. cope or chasuble], and also his pastoral staff in his hand, or else borne or holden by his chaplain. Bp. Goodrich, of Ely, 1554, Bp. Bell, of Worcester, 1556, Bp. Pursglove, of Hull, 1579, and Archbishop Harsnet, 1631, are represented on their brasses in mitre, cope, and rochet, and holding the pastoral staff. The mitres and pastoral staves of Trelawny and Mews are preserved in Winchester Cathedral; Laud's staff is in St. John's College, Oxford, and there is one of Caroline date in the vestry of York Minster. Mitres were worn at a coronation in the last century; pastoral staves are now carried before several of our Bishops; copes are worn at coronations and royal marriages and christenings. The Primate wore his cope in Convocation in 1562 and 1640, and Bp. Cosin wore a white satin cope without embroidery. The chimere is a dress of black satin with lawn sleeves [Soames, iii. 560], the latter properly belonging to the rochet. Hody says, that in the reigns of Henry VIII. and Edward VI. the Bishops wore their Doctor of Divinity scarlet habit with their rochet, the colour being changed for the present ugly and unauthorized black satin chimere late in the time of Q. Elizabeth. The following notices occur of the chimere, but the derivation of the name is unknown:—"Chimeres and Rochets" [Abp. Parker's Works, p. 475]. Chimere, a robe made of velvet, grogram, or satin, used also in riding [Archæol., xxx. 17], a gown cut down the middle, generally used by persons of rank and opulence [Halliwell]. "A scarlet episcopal gown" [3 Zur. Lett. 271]. "His upper garment a long scarlet chimere, down to the feet, and under that a white linen rochet." [Foxe, vi. 641.]

Veni, Creator Spiritus] In the Ordo preserved by Morin [p. 265], here follows the Sermon. In the Bari Pontifical, after the "Vere Dignum," the "Veni Creator Spiritus" is added in a later hand [Catalani, i. p. 230]. This hymn does not occur in the Sacramentary of St. Gregory, the ancient "Ordo Romanus," or the early Pontificals; but it appears from the Use of Lyons, of everlasting life; who, after that he had made perfect our Redemption by his death, and was ascended into heaven, poured down his gifts abundantly upon men, making some Apostles, some Prophets, some Evangelists, some Pastors and Doctors, to the edifying and making perfect his Church; Grant, we beseech thee, to this thy servant such grace, that he may evermore be ready to spread abroad thy Gospel, the glad tidings of reconciliation with thee; and use the authority given him, not to destruction, but to salvation; not to hurt, but to help: so that as a wise and faithful servant, giving to thy family their portion in due season, he may at last be received into everlasting joy; through Jesus Christ our Lord, who, with thee and the Holy Ghost, liveth and reigneth, one God, world without end. Amen.

James i. 17.
Rom. i. 15. 11. 13.
x. 15.
2 Cor. v. 18. x. 8.
2 Tim. ii. 25, 26.
Matt. xxiv. 45.

Luke xii. 42. 44.
Matt. xxv. 21.
2 Tim. iv. 8.

¶ Then the Archbishop and Bishops present shall lay their hands upon the head of the elected Bishop kneeling before them upon his knees, the Archbishop saying,

John xx. 21, 22.
Matt. xxviii. 20.
Acts xix. 6.
xx. 17, 18, 28.
1 Pet. iv. 10.
2 Tim. i. 6, 7.

RECEIVE the Holy Ghost, for the Office and Work of a Bishop in the Church of God, now committed unto thee by the Imposition of our hands; In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen. And remember that thou stir up the grace of God which is given thee by this Imposition of our hands: for God hath not given us the spirit of fear, but of power, and love, and soberness.

. . . . Sint speciosi, munere tuo, pedes Salisbury Use.
ejus ad evangelizandum pacem, ad evangelizandum bona tua. Da ei, Domine, ministerium reconciliationis, in verbis et in factis, in virtute signorum et prodigiorum. Sit sermo ejus, et prædicatio, non in persuabilibus humanæ sapientiæ verbis, sed in ostensione spiritus et virtutis. Da ei, Domine, claves regni cælorum, ut utatur, non gloriatur, potestate quam tribuis in ædificationem, non in destructionem . . . . Sit fidelis servus et prudens, quem constituas tu, Domine, super familiam tuam; ut det illis cibum in tempore opportuno . . . .
Terminando secreta: Per Dominum nostrum Jesum Christum Filium tuum, qui tecum vivit et regnat, in unitate Spiritus Sancti, Deus. Per omnia sæcula sæculorum.

Et respondeant omnes: Amen.

that in certain churches a Mass of the Holy Ghost was sung, and in others that this hymn was used. In the Euchologium of Allatius after the profession of faith by the Elect, the consecrator said,—“Gratia Spiritus Sancti sit tecum” [§ xxi. tom. i. p. 201]. By the Pontifical of Mayence, about the twelfth century, the Mass of the Holy Ghost was ordered to be sung, and also by the Pontifical of Lyons, written in the fourteenth century [Catalani, § xiv. p. 191]. Thomassin has printed this hymn in his collection of very ancient hymns of the ancient Church [Op. tom. ii. p. 375. See also Brev. Sarisb. Pars hiemalis, fol. 97, MS. Sarisb.

fol. 71]. The first English version (added in 1662), has been attributed to John Dryden.

Receive the Holy Ghost] None of the old English Pontificals, except the Exeter, contain this “Form;” and Martene acknowledges, “Verba illa . . . toti antiquitati ignota fuerunt: adeo ut vix in ullo Pontificali annos 400 attigente reperiantur. Nam ex omnibus quæ percurrimus, tria tantum illa habent, Arelatense, Andegavense, et Gulielmi Durandi.” The “Form” occurs in the Roman Pontifical. In the Greek Church the form is, Ἡ θεία χάρις, ἡ πάντοτε τὰ ἀσθενῆ θεραπεύουσα, καὶ τὰ ἐλλείποντα ἀνα-

¶ Then the Archbishop shall deliver him the Bible, saying,

1 Tim. iv. 13—16.
John x. 2. 12.
Acts xx. 28, 29.
1 Pet. v. 1—8.
Ez. k. xxxiv. 2—
4. 11. 16.
1 Thess. v. 14.
Luke iv. 18.
xix. 10.
2 Cor. x. 1, 2. 8. 9.
11. 3. 5, 6. 10.
1 Pet. v. 4.

GIVE heed unto reading, exhortation, and doctrine. Think upon the things contained in this Book. Be diligent in them, that the increase coming thereby may be manifest unto all men. Take heed unto thyself, and to doctrine, and be diligent in doing them: for by so doing thou shalt both save thyself and them that hear thee. Be to the flock of Christ a shepherd, not a wolf; feed them, devour them not. Hold up the weak, heal the sick, bind up the broken, bring again the out-casts, seek the lost. Be so merciful, that you be not too remiss; so minister discipline, that you forget not mercy: that when the chief Shepherd shall appear you may receive the never-fading crown of glory; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

¶ Then the Archbishop shall proceed in the Communion-Service; with whom the new Consecrated Bishop (with others) shall also communicate.

¶ Postea det eis codicem evangeliorum, dicens: Salisbury Use.

ACCIPE evangelium et vade, prædica populo tibi commissio.

Quum datur baculus dicat ordinator:

Accipe baculum pastoralis officii: et sis in corrigendis vitiis pie sæviens, iudicium sine ira tenens, in fovendis virtutibus auditorum animos demulcens, in tranquillitate severitatis censuram non deserens.

¶ Et dominus metropolitanus, vel consecrator, peragat missam.

πληροῦσα, προχειρίζεται τὸν δεινὰ, τὸν θεοφιλέστατον Πρεσβύτερον, Ἐπίσκοπον. [Goar., Rit. Gr. p. 302.]

shall deliver him the Bible] St. Dionysius in Eccles. Hier., c. v., explains the delivery of the Gospels to imply the necessity of knowing, preaching, and meditating, on them. [See also Durandus l. ii. c. xi. Sym. Thess., c. vii. P. Damian, Sermon i. de Dedic. Amal. Fort. l. ii. c. xiv, and Haberti in Obs. ad Pont. Græc. p. 79.]

The IV. Council of Carthage, c. ii., directs, "Episcopus cum ordinatur, duo Episcopi ponant et teneant Evangeliorum codicem super caput et cervicem ejus: et uno super eum fundente benedictionem, reliqui omnes Episcopi, qui adsunt, manibus suis caput ejus tangant." In the first Prayer Book of Edward VI., 1549, this old tradition was observed, for the Archbishop was required to "lay the Bible upon his (the elected Bishop's) neck."

The Roman Pontifical requires the open Gospels to be laid without a word on the neck of the Elect, and Catalani says, that with this agree the Greek and Syrian rituals, a Pontifical of Mayence, and Roger Wendover, s. a. 1093.

A MS. of Arles quoted by Martene [De Ant. Eccles. Rit., l. i. c. viii. Art. X. n. xv.], leaves it indifferent whether open or closed, and so do Latin rituals, except the "Ordo Romanus" and that of C. Cajetan, which prescribe it to be closed; but the Apost. Constit. [lib. viii. c. iv.], Symeon of Thessalonica [c. vii.], and the Greek Maronite and Jacobite rites prescribe it to be open. Two old Pontificals require the Gospels to be laid between the shoulders and on the neck, the Greek rituals and Symeon of Thessalonica say it was to be laid on the back of the head and neck (τῇ κεφαλῇ καὶ τῷ τραχήλῳ) and the Nestorians, on the back. Three Deacons held the book [Const. Apost., lib. viii. c. iv.]; but the "Ordo Romanus" [IV. Conc. Carth., c. ii.], the Sacramentary of Gregory, and other rituals, appoint Bishops for the act. From the words of the Gospel which chanced to open, the superstitious of the Middle Ages drew auguries, and this custom seems to have led to the direction that the book should be shut. Amalarius Fortunatus [De Off. Eccles., l. ii. cxiv.] says of this ceremony, "Neque vetus auctoritas intimat, neque Apostolica traditio, neque Canonica auctoritas;" Alcuin [De Div. Offic.] agrees with Amalarius. This statement must be somewhat corrected, as we find the rite enjoined in the Pontifical of Egbert, the Sacramentary of St. Gregory, and the IV. Council of Carthage. Hallier makes this, with the laying on of hands, two forms, as he notes two matters of Consecration, "Receive the Holy Ghost," and, "Take the Gospel" [P. iii. s. viii. c. ix. Art. 3]. Probably the custom of the delivery of the Bible was derived from the old English custom of giving the Gospel to the Deacons, mentioned 900 years ago as Martene shows [tom. ii. p. 314].

Give heed unto reading, &c.] The following passages may be cited as illustrating this charge:—"Sint speciosi munere Tuo pedes horum ad Evangelizandam pacem, ad Evangelizandum bona Tua. Da eis, Domine, ministerium reconciliationis . . . Utantur nec glorientur potestate, quam tribuis, in ædificationem, non in destructionem. Sint servi fideles et prudentes quos constituas Tu, Domine, super familiam Tuam, ut dent illis cibum in tempore necessario" [Morin, P. ii. 216. MS. Leofrici, fol. 280. Pont. Egberti, Eboraceus. Martene, p. 341. Gelasii Sacram. Muratori, Lit. Rom. Vet. tom. i. pp. 625, 626].

"Cum baculus datur.—Accipe baculum sacri regiminis signum, ut imbecillos consolides, titubantes confirmes, parvos corrigas, rectos diriges in viam salutis æternæ" [Morin, P. ii. 266, ex. cod. ann. dcc. ætat superante]. In the Greek ritual occurs, λάβε ταύτην τὴν βακτηρίαν ἡ ἐφ' ἣ στηριζόμενος θεοφιλῶς τὸ ποιμνίόν σου, ὅτι καὶ λόγον μέλλεις ἀποδοῦναι ὑπὲρ αὐτοῦ τῷ Θεῷ ἐν ἡμέρᾳ κρίσεως. [Assemani, P. iv. p. 231.]

"Pascite gregem Dei, qui creditus est manibus vestris, et visitate illum spiritualiter, non violenter sed sponte, non propter lucra turpia . . . ut sitis bonum exemplar, ut cum apparebit Princeps Pastorum, accipiat ab eo coronam quæ non marcescit" [Morin, Ord. Syr. Maron. P. ii. p. 355].

¶ And for the last Collect, immediately before the Benediction, shall be said these Prayers.

MOST merciful Father, we beseech thee to send down upon this thy servant thy heavenly blessing; and so endue him with thy holy Spirit, that he, preaching thy Word, may not only be earnest to reprove, beseech, and rebuke with all patience and doctrine; but also may be to such as believe a wholesome example, in word, in conversation, in love, in faith, in chastity, and in purity; that, faithfully fulfilling his course, at the latter day he may receive the crown of righteousness laid up by the Lord the righteous Judge, who liveth and reigneth one God with the Father and the Holy Ghost, world without end. Amen.

PREVENT us, O Lord, in all our doings, with thy most gracious favour, and further us with thy continual help; that in all our works begun, continued, and ended in thee, we may glorify thy holy Name, and finally by thy mercy obtain everlasting life; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

THE peace of God, which passeth all understanding, keep your hearts and minds in the knowledge and love of God, and of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord. And the blessing of God Almighty, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost be amongst you, and remain with you always. Amen.

Ps. lxxvii. 1.
2 Tim. i. 2.
iv. 3—8.
1 Tim. iv. 11, 12.
14, 15.
2 Tim. iv. 4—8.
Rev. ii. 10.
1 Tim. vi. 13—16.

Most merciful Father] This Prayer is an adaptation of the "Benedictio super populum," by the newly-ordained Bishop, in the Salisbury Pontifical:—

"Deus, qui me indignum et peccatorem ad Pontificale officium dignatus est promovere, sua vos illustret atque sanctificet benedictione. Amen.

"Donet mihi per gratiam suam bene operandi facultatem: et vobis sui famulatus promptissimam obeditionem. Amen.

"Sicque vos doctrinis spiritualibus et operibus bonis repleti in præsenti vita concedat: ut ad pascua vitæ æternæ cum cæteris ovibus suis vos pariter introducat. Amen."

A somewhat similar prayer is to be found in Assemani's collection [P. iii. pp. 55, 88, 89], at the delivery of the Episcopal ornaments, and in the Prayer of Consecration [P. iv. 165], Ποίησον γίνεσθαι τοῦ Ἀληθινοῦ Ποιμένος, ὁδηγὸν τυφλῶν, φῶς τῶν ἐν σκότει, παιδευτὴν ἀφρόνων, φωστῆρα ἐν κόσμῳ, ἵνα, καταστίσας τὰς ἐμπιστευθείσας αὐτῷ ψυχὰς ἐπὶ τῆς παρούσης ζωῆς, παραστῇ τῷ βήματι τοῦ ἀκαταισχύντως, καὶ τὸν μέγαν μισθὸν λήψῃται ὃν ἐτοίμασας τοῖς ἀβλήσασιν ὑπὲρ τοῦ κηρύγματος τοῦ εὐαγγελίου σου.

FINIS.

GENERAL APPENDIX.

I.

THE "STATE SERVICES."

UNTIL the year 1859 modern editions of the Book of Common Prayer contained four services for special days of the year, which were commonly called "State Services," because they commemorated certain public events connected with the political history of the country; and because the use of them was enjoined by the State alone rather than by the Church and State together. These formed no part of the Book put forth by authority of Crown, Convocation, and the Houses of Lords and Commons in 1661, and therefore no part of the Book alone sanctioned by the Act of Uniformity<sup>1</sup>. The authority for the three which have been discontinued was of a mixed character, partly civil and partly ecclesiastical; the authority for that which is still enjoined by the State is to this day solely that of the State, and of one branch of the State alone. In giving a short summary of the history and obligation of the several Forms, it will be convenient to mention the particulars of each case separately.

§ The Form of Prayer for the Fifth of November.

The Act of Parliament 3 Jac. I., cap. 1, provided for the annual observance of this day in commemoration of the discovery of the Powder Plot, and ordered that all ministers in every Cathedral and Parish Church should say Morning Prayer, and "give thanks to Almighty God for this most happy deliverance," and that all "persons inhabiting within this realm of England and dominions of the same" should resort to some Church and be present during such service. No particular form, however, was prescribed, and none was prepared by Convocation; but a form drawn up by the Bishops was issued by Royal authority in 1606. In April, 1662, this form was revised by Bishop Cosin, and adopted by Convocation on the 26th of that month, together with those for January 30, and May 29, and was attached to the Prayer Book by virtue of a Royal Proclamation, enjoining the use of all the three, of May 2, 1662. The form remained unaltered until the accession of William III., when, as he happened to have landed in England upon that day, and was regarded as the means of a similar deliverance to that then commemorated, various interpolations relating to his accession, as well as some alterations (e. g. the substitution of Luke ix. 51—57 as the Gospel, instead of Matt. xxvii. 1—10, the account of Judas's betrayal of his Master, "which for some good reasons, I suppose," says Wheatley, significantly, "was then thought proper to be discontinued") were made by Bishops Patrick and Sprat without the sanction of either Convocation or Parliament. This service was then re-issued by Proclamation of October 18, 1690, and was the form which continued to be enjoined until its recent removal.

§ The Form of Prayer for the Thirtieth of January.

This day was appointed to be observed "as an anniversary day of fasting and humiliation, to implore the mercy of God," by Act of Parliament 12 Car. II., cap. 30. The form of Prayer was prepared by a Committee of Convocation appointed May 16, 1661, which consisted of Bishops Warner of Rochester, King of Chichester, Morley of Worcester, and Reynolds of Norwich, together with eight representatives of the Lower House; it was approved April 26, 1662, and enjoined, with the preceding service, by Proclamation of May 2, 1662<sup>2</sup>. Upon the accession of James II., however, certain alterations were made by royal authority alone, which were not improvements, intensifying in some degree the tone and language of the earlier service, and, especially, enlarging the introductory Hymn by the addition of various passages of Holy Scripture prophetic of our Blessed Lord's Sufferings and Death. This form (the order for the use of which was dated December 23, 1685) was not altered during the reign of William III., and was the one which remained in use subsequently.

§ The Form of Prayer for the Twenty-ninth of May.

The Act 12 Car. II., cap. 14, appointed May 29 to be observed with public thanksgivings for a double reason, as being the birthday of Charles II. as well as the day of his Restoration.

<sup>2</sup> It has not, we believe, been previously distinctly noticed that two editions and versions of a Form were issued "by His Majesty's direction," before that which was prepared by Convocation. One of these appeared in 1661, in which the introductory Hymn was longer than that in the subsequent service, some of the proper Psalms different, and a very long prayer, full of the strongest expressions, occupied the place of the first Collect, which, together with some portions of the other prayers, was taken from "Private forms of prayer, fitted for the late sad times; particularly a form of prayer for the thirtieth of January," a book in which Bishop Brian Duppa had a share, printed at London in 1660. By a singular oversight, the Collect for the Royal Family was copied without alteration from a Prayer Book of the reign of Charles I.; and consequently petitions were offered in it for "Queen Mary, Prince Charles, and the rest of the royal progeny," when that Prince had become the reigning monarch. A second edition, corrected in this respect, appeared, with a proclamation for its use, dated January 7, 1662; it was somewhat curtailed, but was still longer than the Form finally adopted by Convocation. Burnet says that Sancroft drew for the three days "some Offices of a very high strain. Yet others of a more moderate strain were preferred to them. But he, coming to be advanced to the See of Canterbury, got his Offices to be published by the King's authority" (Own Times, i. 333). Probably these were the alterations introduced on James's accession.

<sup>1</sup> At the end of the Printed Sealed Copies, the following is found in manuscript:—

"The Formes of Prayer for the V of November, the XXX of January, & for the XXIX of May are to be printed at the end of this Book."

This notice was probably written by the Commissioners appointed to revise the standard copies [see p. xliii], but it is not found in the one manuscript of the Prayer Book which remains, that kept at Dublin, and it may be safely asserted that it had not the authority of the Crown, of Convocation, or of the Houses of Lords and Commons.

The history of the State Services themselves is fully given, from the two opposite points of view, in Rev. A. P. Perceval's "Original Services for the State Holidays," Lond. 1838, in which the original and altered Forms are exhibited in parallel columns, and in a pamphlet by Rev. T. Lathbury, "The Authority of the Services . . . considered," Lond. 1843.

The service was prepared, as in the preceding case, by a committee of Convocation, consisting of Bishops Wren of Ely, Skinner of Oxford, Laney of Peterborough, and Henchman of Sarum, together with eight members of the Lower House; its approval by the two Houses and issue under the authority of the Crown were simultaneous with those of the form for January 30. Since, however, various portions herein referred to the birth of Charles II., the use of which after his death would have been out of place, the form was revised upon the accession of James, who upon its re-publication issued an order for its observance, dated April 29, 1685, which mentioned the reason for its alteration, and stated that it was "now, by our special command to the Bishops, altered and settled to our satisfaction." From this time the form continued without any further change.

§ The Form of Prayer for the Accession of the Sovereign.

This is the only one for which there was never any degree of parliamentary authority, formerly or at present. The other services, although not specially prescribed, were recognized by the enactments which ordered that their several days should be observed with particular thanksgivings; but even this modified authority is wanting to the service for the Accession. In principle, however, it is the oldest of all the State Services. The first form was issued in 1578, to be used on November 17, the day of the accession of Queen Elizabeth; but during the reign of James I., the observance of the day appears to have been laid aside, his reign being sufficiently marked by the form for November 5, and that for August 5, the day of his escape from the conspiracy of the Gowries. A form, however, was issued in 1626 for the accession of Charles I., the history of the preparation of which is not known, but which appeared only under the King's authority. Among the Canons passed by Convocation in 1640 was one which recognized this form and enjoined the observance of the day; but an Act passed in 1661 (13 Car. II. cap. 12), expressly forbade the enforcement of these Canons, and the day and form alike remained unsanctioned, and were then disused, the King's accession being more fitly commemorated on May 29. But on the accession of James II. both were revived; a new form was prepared, which retained but one of the prayers in the previous form (that which commences, "O Lord our God, Who upholdest and governest"). It appeared with a proclamation for its use dated December 23, 1685, which sets out with stating, "Whereas not only the pious Christian emperors in ancient times, but also of late our own most religious predecessors, kings of this realm, did cause the days on which they began their several reigns to be publicly celebrated every year (so long as they reigned) by all their subjects with solemn prayers and thanksgiving to Almighty God; this pious custom received lately a long and doleful interruption upon occasion of the barbarous murder of our most dear Father of blessed memory, which changed the day on which our late most dear brother succeeded to the Crown into a day of sorrow and fasting. But now we thinking fit to revive the former laudable and religious practice, and having caused a form of prayer and thanksgiving to be composed by our Bishops for that purpose, our will and pleasure is," &c. During the reign of William III. the day and form were not observed, his accession being added to the service for November 5; but with Anne they returned into use, King James's service being revised and altered, and re-issued under the authority of a Proclamation of February 7, 1703-4. This remains the form still enjoined for use on June 20, the anniversary of the accession of Her present Majesty, except that during the reign of George I., part of the first lesson appointed in James's book (Josh. i. 1-9) was restored in place of the lesson substituted by Queen Anne (Prov. viii. 13-36).

From this brief summary it is evident that the three earlier forms had in their original condition sufficient authority; the days were appointed by Parliament for special services, such services were prepared by Convocation, and then were ratified by the Crown. The subsequent alterations lacked both parliamentary and ecclesiastical sanction, except in so far as the former was afforded by the recognition of the days and their services through the incorporation of the whole Prayer Book

Calendar, in the Act for the regulation of the Calendar, 24 Geo. II., cap. 23. Considerable difficulty was in consequence felt by many Clergy as to the legality of the forms, the reconcilability of their use with the terms of the Act of Uniformity, and the right of the State to impose them; added to which, the tone of portions of them jarred painfully in their bitterness and vehemence with that of the ordinary devotions of the Church. "Popish treachery," "hellish malice," "bloodthirsty enemies," and the like expressions, which were chiefly found in the form for November 5, were felt by most to be out of place in a service of solemn thanksgiving and intercession. In consequence, the observance of the several days gradually fell into comparative disuse, and was kept of late years only in Cathedrals, College Chapels, and in some (and some only) of the Churches where Daily Prayer was offered. The subject was considered in the Lower House of Convocation in 1857, and a Report from a Committee appointed to examine it (presented July 10), stated that the services as they then stood, with the alterations which had from time to time been made, rested on the sole power of the Crown. The mind of Clergy and Laity was therefore prepared to some extent for the debates in Parliament in June 1858 (in which special reference was made to the Report of Convocation) on the expediency of abolishing the observance of the three days, which resulted, in the first place, in Addresses to the Queen from both Houses, praying for the discontinuance of the Forms of Prayer. Upon these Addresses followed on January 17, 1859, the issue of the "Warrant" by Her Majesty, which ordered that the use of these forms "be henceforth discontinued," and that they "be not henceforth printed and published with, or annexed to, the Book of Common Prayer." The repeal of the several Acts enjoining the observance of the anniversaries (including also the Act of the Parliament of Ireland, 14 & 15 Car. II., cap. 23, for the observance in Ireland of the 23rd October in commemoration of the Rebellion of 1641) was then in the last place enacted by Stat. 22 Vict. cap. 2, which received the royal assent on March 25, 1859. It is, however, a matter for regret that the history of great national mercies and sins should by this total repeal have altogether lost its public religious aspect, in connexion with the teaching of the Church of the land; well would it have been if but one Collect for each day had been left by proper authority to preserve the memory and lessons of events which were of the highest national moment.

But if any doubt rested on the degree of obligation attaching to these three earlier forms, much more must it be a question how far the remaining service, that for the Accession, can still bind the Clergy to its use, when it rests simply and entirely upon the authority of Proclamation alone, without sanction from either Parliament or Convocation. Every true Christian Englishman who has a real sense of the dignity, greatness and responsibility of the Sovereign set over him by God, and a real interest in the welfare of the nation, must desire that the day which annually commemorates the perpetuity of our Constitution should be marked with a special offering of praise and prayer; praise for the great mercies vouchsafed to our land, and prayer that Prince and People may alike, from the consideration of those mercies, continually learn and practise better their own mutual duties. Greatly therefore is it to be wished that a form were prepared by Convocation and duly sanctioned by Parliament, in which all could gladly and without scruple take part; a form which would be indeed at once the annual solemn confession by the Church on behalf of the People that by God alone "Kings reign and Princes decree justice," and the annual witness to the old loyalty that jealously guards alike the Altar and the Throne.

OTHER SUPPLEMENTARY SERVICES.

§ Service in Commemoration of the Fire of London.

A Form of Prayer appointed to be used annually on September 2, in commemoration of the Fire of London (which commenced on that day), appears in some Oxford Prayer Books printed between 1681 and 1683. It was first issued for use, "by his Majesty's special command," on October 10, 1666, and contained, like other special forms, a hymn instead of the Venite, proper Psalms and Lessons, &c.; but was without any special mention of the Fire or of the City of London. In 1696 it was revised and re-issued under Archbishop Tenison's authority, with a different hymn, and other changes, and with a Collect added which prayed for the preservation of the City from fire. The service was reprinted in a separate shape by the king's printers from time to time, even as lately as the year 1821: and a Latin version of it is included in the Latin Prayer Book published by Thomas Parsell, of which the last edition appeared in 1744. Its use was continued in St. Paul's Cathedral until the year 1859, when the observance of the day ceased, together with that of the state holidays abrogated by Parliament.

§ The Office used at the Healing.

Prayer Books printed in the earlier part of the last century, and particularly during the reign of Queen Anne, frequently contain the prayers used on the occasion of the touching by the sovereign for the cure of the king's evil. The earliest edition in which the office has as yet been found is of the date of 1707, and the latest is that printed by Baskett in Oxford in 1732 (Bodl. Libr.). A Latin version, however, continued to appear in the later editions of the Latin Prayer Book published by Thomas Parsell, of Merchant Taylors' School, to the year 1744. But as the service possessed no liturgical authority, and had no rightful place in the English Service Book, it is not necessary to notice it here in any detail. It was first, as it seems, compiled in a regular form in the reign of Henry VII., whose Office was printed by Henry Hills, the king's printer, in 1686, in quarto<sup>1</sup>, and is to be found reprinted in Pegge's "Curialia Miscellanea" (Lond. 1818), and in vol. iii. of Maskell's "Monumenta Ritualia." The order of the service appears to have varied with each sovereign, and the ceremonial used by Queen Anne was considerably shorter than that adopted by her predecessors.

Although the service appears in Prayer Books of the Georgian era, it is said that it was never used by a sovereign of the house of Hanover. The power of touching was exercised by the son of James II. as James III. in the hospitals at Paris, and by Prince Charles Edward at Edinburgh; but it is not known whether the last representative of the house of Stuart, the Cardinal of York, <sup>1</sup> This edition is in Latin, with English rubrics. An edition entirely in English was also printed by the same printer in the same year in duodecimo, of which a copy exists among Ant. à Wood's books in the Bodl. Libr., No. 893, iv.

ever claimed to use it, although two silver touch-pieces for distribution at the healing were struck by him as Henry IX.

An English form from a Prayer Book of 1710 is given, as well as the earlier Latin form, in Pegge's "Curialia Miscellanea," and from a Prayer Book of 1715 (also with the Latin form) in the Notes to A. J. Stephens' edition of the Prayer Book, vol. ii. pp. 990—1005, in both cases accompanied with notices of the rite; but the fullest historical account of the whole subject is to be found in a pamphlet by Edw. Law Hussey, Esq., M.R.C.S., of Oxford, reprinted in 1853 from the Archæological Journal, and entitled, "On the Cure of Scrofulous Diseases attributed to the Royal Touch."

The Form of Consecrating Cramp-rings on Good Friday, as a remedy against contraction of the nerves and the falling-sickness, — a practice used by Henry VIII. and Queen Mary, in the assertion of a similar power to that claimed to be exercised in the preceding rite, was never printed in the Prayer Book, as it was never used by any sovereign since the Reformation, although apparently revised and prepared for use in the reign of James II. It is printed in English (from a MS. of the latter date) in Pegge's "Curialia Miscellanea," and in vol. iii. of Maskell's "Monumenta;" a Latin form, prepared for Queen Mary in 1554, is to be found in Burnet, and in Wilkins.

§ The Form used at the Meeting of Convocation.

This Latin form was first printed in 1700 by the king's printer, and again in 1702, with the title, "Forma precum in utraque domo Convocationis, sive Synodi Prælatorum et cæteri Cleri, seu Provincialis seu Nationalis, in ipso statim cujuslibet sessionis initio solemniter recitanda." It is found in Parsell's Latin Prayer Book, of which the fourth edition appeared in 1727, and a later one in 1744; and, from thence, in Bagster's "Liturgia Anglicana Polyglotta," published in 1825. It consists of the Litany (which is said in the Upper House by the junior Bishop, and in the Lower by the Prolocutor) with a special supplication inserted after that for the Clergy, a prayer after that for the Parliament, and the following four Collects before the Prayer of St. Chrysostom, viz. that for St. Simon and St. Jude, the second for Good Friday, and those for St. Peter and for the fifth Sunday after Trinity. The form is reprinted in the Appendix to Perceval's "Original Services for the State Holy Days," pp. 102, 103.

W. D. M.

II.

THE SCOTTISH PRAYER BOOK OF 1637.

The Scottish "Service Book," as it was called at the time of its introduction, is alike interesting from the great names with which it is associated, from the calamitous circumstances of its first appearance, from its relation to the first Book of Edward, and from the influence which, in spite of its failure in Scotland, it exercised on the final revision of the English Book. A brief description of this Prayer Book—popularly, but incorrectly, called Abp. Laud's—is now presented to the reader.

To begin with its historic antecedents. A real Episcopacy—as distinct from what is known in Scottish history as the "Tulchan Prelacy"—was provided for Scotland by the consecration, in 1610, of Abp. Spottiswood, Bp. Lamb, and Bp. Hamilton, for the sees of Glasgow, Brechin, and Galloway. Spottiswood became Abp. of St. Andrew's in 1615; and in the same year he seems to have drawn up a list of the wants of the Scottish Church, among which was included the lack of a form of Divine Service [Grub's Ecll. Hist. of Scotland, ii. 305]. At that time Knox's "Book of Common Order" was used, along with extemporary prayer. In 1616, the General Assembly at St. Andrew's, under Spottiswood's presidency, agreed to the proposal (which King James had expressly supported), that an uniform order of Liturgy should be framed,

"to be read in all kirks on the ordinary days of prayer, and every Sabbath-day before sermon." "The King," says Mr. Grub, "certainly intended to pave the way for the introduction of the English Prayer Book," while many of the Ministers of the Assembly merely contemplated a book on the model of the "Common Order" [Grub, ii. 375]. James determined to accustom the inhabitants of Edinburgh to the presence of the English ritual (which he had once rudely and ignorantly satirized), by establishing it in the Chapel Royal at Holyrood, where, on Saturday May 17, 1617, it was for the first time performed with "singing of choristers, playing on organs, and surplices," in the King's own presence. A Celebration followed on Whit Sunday, when Bp. Andrewes preached. The Dean of the chapel, Bp. Cowpar, at first declined to communicate kneeling: Laud, who was in attendance on the Court, gave offence by performing a funeral in a surplice; and it was evident that the example of the Chapel Royal would not be willingly followed by the Scottish kirks. One other public step was taken in James's reign—the promulgation, in 1620, of an Ordinal for Scotland—a very unsatisfactory rite, which ignored the Order of Deacons. But the King received from Abp. Spottiswood the draft of a Liturgy, which he caused to be revised by Dean Young of Winchester, and then returned, with marks of his own, to Spottiswood [Lawson, Hist. Episc. Ch. i. 497].

Charles I., at his accession, resumed the project of a Scottish Liturgy, and carefully considered the book which his father had received. Rather more than a year after Laud's translation to the see of London—that is, in September, 1629—the Bishop (then just able to sit up after a severe illness) was visited by Dr. John Maxwell, one of the Edinburgh Clergy, who told him in the King's name that he was desired to communicate with some Scottish Bishops, including Abp. Spottiswood, concerning a Liturgy for that Church. "I told him," says Laud [Works, iii. 427], "I was clear of opinion that if His Majesty would have a Liturgy settled there, it were best to take the English Liturgy without any variation . . . . He replied that he was of a contrary opinion; and that not he only, but the Bishops of that kingdom, thought their countrymen would be much better satisfied if a Liturgy were framed by their own Clergy, than to have the English Liturgy put upon them; yet, he added, that it might be according to the form of the English Service Book." Laud replied, that if this were so, he would take no further step until he was able to see the King. This he did in October; Charles "avowed the sending of Dr. Maxwell, and the message," but acquiesced in Laud's opinion. "And in this condition," says Laud, "I held the matter for two if not three years at least." Maxwell, meantime, was the bearer of a Royal Letter to Archbishop Spottiswood, "pressing greater conformity to the Church of England" [Lawson, i. 449].

In June, 1633, King Charles was crowned at Holyrood; and Maxwell appeared among the prelates as Bishop-elect of Ross. A few days later, Laud preached in the Chapel Royal on the benefits of ecclesiastical conformity; and some thought that this would have been a favourable time for proposing the reception of the English Liturgy in Scotland. But it appears that in this summer—otherwise memorable for Laud's translation to Canterbury—Charles gave way to the urgency of some of the Scottish Bishops for a Liturgy of their own. They used not only the argument from national feeling, but another which would have great weight with the King and Laud: "that, if they did not then make the book as perfect as they could, they should never be able to get it perfected after" [Laud, iii. 343]. The King ordered an Episcopal committee in Scotland to prepare a Liturgy, and to communicate with Laud, who was commanded to give his "best assistance in this way, and work." "I delayed as much as I could," he says, "with my obedience, and, when nothing would serve but it must go on, I confess I was very serious, and gave them the best help I could" [Laud, iii. 428]. Bishops Juxon and Wren were to assist Laud. Charles, in the meantime, determined that nothing should be wanting for the due performance of the English ritual at Holyrood: in October, 1633, he sent orders for that purpose, one of which was, "that there be prayers twice a day with the quire, according to the English Liturgy, till some course be taken for making one that may fit the customs and constitutions of that Church." Laud also wrote repeatedly to Bishop Bellenden, Dean of the Chapel, exhorting him to preach "in his whites" on Sundays, and otherwise to see to the due order of the worship.

The compilation of the Scottish Liturgy appears to have occupied between two and three years. Of the Scottish prelates, some, as the Archbishop of Glasgow, were more or less indisposed towards the undertaking, others were decidedly favourable, as Lindsay of Edinburgh, who was afterwards denounced at the Assembly of Glasgow, as "a bower to the altar, a dedicator of churches," and even "an elevator at consecration;" Bellenden of Aberdeen, Whiteford of Brechin, and Sydserf of Galloway, who was pelted in 1637 by female fanatics, and accused of Arminianism and Popery, and driven into exile, where, alone of Scottish Bishops, he survived until the Restoration. But the two chief compilers were Maxwell, Bishop of Ross, and Wedderburn, of Dunblane. In fact, if the book were to be called after any one man, it should be known as "Maxwell's Liturgy." He was a person of much practical energy, and very obnoxious to the Scottish Puritans. As early as 1636, or earlier, he established the English ritual in his Cathedral of Fortrose, where he afterwards, for some time, upheld the Scottish; he was denounced in 1638, as "a bower at the altar, a wearer of cope and rochet," and as having "consecrated" Deacons. Wedderburn was a Scotsman educated at Oxford, had been intimate with Casaubon, and held prebends at Wells and Ely; Laud knew him personally, "wished him very well for his worth sake," and thought that although "a mere scholar and a book-man," he was certain to do good service, if "his heart" could be kept up. The Presbyterians denounced him as having, by lectures at St. Andrews, "corrupted divers with Arminianism," and left evidence "in all the nooks of the kingdom, of his errors and perverseness, having been special penner, practiser, urger of our books and all novations." As an orthodox theologian, he had objected to the inadequacy of the Ordinal of 1620, and he felt very strongly the desirableness of making the new Service Book more perfect, by conforming it in certain important points to Edward VI.'s first Liturgy; for Laud cites a note of his, to the effect that if the forms of administering the Sacrament be left as they stood in that Liturgy, "the action will be much the shorter; besides, the words which are added since, 'Take, eat, in remembrance,' &c., may seem to relish somewhat of the Zuinglian tenet" [Laud, iii. 357].

Archbishop Laud himself disclaims, and with perfect justice, the authorship of the Scottish Liturgy; but allows that he took a deep interest in, and prayed heartily for, its success. Again, he writes, "I like the book exceeding well, and hope I shall be able to maintain any thing that is in it, and wish with all my heart that it had been entertained there" [Laud, iii. 335]. We find him urging on the English printers, revising proofs, encouraging Maxwell, receiving his queries as to certain suggestions, and "notes" from Bishop Wedderburn, as to which he takes the King's pleasure, "sits down seriously" with Bishop Wren to consider them, remits them to Charles with remarks, receives back from him those which he has approved, and sends them to Wedderburn written in an English Prayer Book, April 20, 1636 [Laud, vi. 456]. One or two of the points which he takes, may illustrate the minute carefulness of his criticism. The Psalms cannot be well sung without a colon in the middle of each verse. As to the Offertory sentences, "we admit of all yours," but some others from the English Book are recommended in addition.—"God be thanked," he concludes; "this will do very well, and, I hope, breed up a great deal of devout and religious piety in that kingdom." He asks Wedderburn to send him a list of desideranda which would make the Liturgy still more perfect, whether the times will bear them or not: he may find some use for them. The King himself was eager and painstaking; having sanctioned a first draft of the book on September 28, 1634, he gave a royal warrant in April, 1636, for the revised form sent by Laud to Wedderburn; and most of Laud's alterations were written down in his presence. As early as September 30, 1633, Laud had urged Spottiswood to proceed strictly according to law, "because His Majesty had no intendment to do any thing but that which was according to honour and justice, and the laws of that kingdom" [Laud, iii. 429]. And he tells us that he ever advised the Scottish Bishops, both in the King's presence and at other times, both by word and writing, "to do nothing in this particular but by warrant of law," protesting that, as he knew not the Scottish laws, he must leave the manner of introducing the Liturgy wholly to them. "And, I am sure, they told me they would adventure it no way but that which was legal" [Laud, iii. 336].

The misfortune was, that some of the Scottish Bishops, as well as Charles I. himself, appear to have regarded as legal what to the Scottish nation seemed an intolerable excess of power. Spottiswood, if we may trust the report of his conversation with the Earl of Rothes, relied on royal prerogative as sufficient to warrant the introduction of the Liturgy, or indeed of any other ecclesiastical change [Lawson, i. 519]. But Maxwell took a higher line, to the effect that the Bishops, who "had the authority to govern the Church, and were the representative Church of the kingdom," had as such concurred with the King in introducing the Liturgy [Lawson, i. 511]. Maxwell on this occasion spoke of General Assemblies, as "consisting of a multitude;" whereas it is remarkable that Laud in his History expresses an opinion that "the Bishops trusted with this business went not the right way, by a General Assembly and other legal courses of that kingdom" [Laud, iii. 278]; and in letters to Strafford and Spottiswood, he speaks of the Bishops' "improvidence" in being too desirous to "do all in a quiet way," in not "taking the whole Council into consideration," "engaging" the lay lords, and "dealing with" the ministers. "The King," he writes, "ought to have dealt more thoroughly with the lords of the Council, and sifted their judgments" [Laud, vi. 555]; and he proceeds to impute treachery to one whom he had trusted, the Earl of Traquair: an imputation which Collier in his History repeats [viii. 114]. The gross mistake of publishing the Canons, which commanded the use of the Liturgy, before the Liturgy itself appeared, has often excited astonishment. The Canons were promulgated by letters patent, on the ground of royal prerogative in causes ecclesiastical, May 23, 1635, and published early in 1636. The Service Book was authorized by a royal warrant of October 18, 1636, and by an Act of the Scottish Privy Council, December 20, 1636. But although a new Ordinal, of which no copy is now supposed to exist, but which appears to have recognized the Order of Deacons, and to have had the form "Receive the Holy Ghost," appeared at the close of 1636 [Grub, ii. 368], the Service Book was not actually published until Lent 1637.

We may lay all due stress on the various instances of mismanagement in this memorable transaction; but if Charles I. had taken a moderate course, avoiding the display of high-handed authority and the appearance of English dictation, and laying the proposed book before the General Assembly and the Parliament, its chance of acceptance could not have been materially improved; although there might have been fewer outbreaks of fanatical wrath, fewer outrages in the name of religion. The book—although, as we shall see, not faultless—was, in fact, too good to be appreciated by a people so deeply alienated, as Mr. Grub observes [ii. 399], "from what had been the common heritage of Christendom for fifteen centuries." Bramhall, then Bishop of Derry, wrote to Spottiswood that the book was "to be envied, perhaps, in some things, if one owned all," and agreed with Dr. Duppa, afterwards Bishop of Winchester, that since the first six centuries there had been no such Liturgy; and Maxwell declared it to be "one of the most orthodox and perfect Liturgies in the Christian Church." But this, to the Scots, was no recommendation.

Passing by the disasters which followed the attempt to introduce it at Edinburgh, July 23, 1637, we proceed to take a survey of its contents:—

"Prefixed to it was the royal proclamation enjoining its use . . . A preface followed, which made reference to the constant use of some prescribed order of prayer in the Church, to the desirableness of uniformity, and to the propriety of adhering to the English form, even as to some festivals and rites which were not yet received in Scotland" [Grub, ii. 382]. Then came some remarks on ceremonies, the order for the Psalms (which were taken from the Bible version) and the Tables of Psalms and Lessons. "The Lessons for Sundays are almost precisely identical with those in the Elizabethan Table of 1561 . . . The same may be said of the Holyday Proper Lessons, except that some First Lessons are omitted, and a few unimportant substitutions" [Scottish Eccles. Journal, iv. 199]. By the King's express order (October 18, 1636), six chapters from Wisdom were appointed for three Saints' days, six from Ecclesiastics for three others. He also commanded that some names of Scottish Saints, especially those of royal blood, and some of the most holy Bishops (as David, Kentigern, Colman, Columba, Palladius, Ninian, Margaret), should be placed in the Calendar; no Lessons for ordinary days were taken from the Apocrypha; the space thus left being filled by a large increase of chapters from the Old Testament Canon. Thus, instead of our four chapters from Leviticus, eight were prescribed; from Numbers, twenty-four instead of eighteen; from Ezekiel, twenty-eight instead of nine; and between November 22 and December 17, fourteen chapters from 1 Chronicles, and thirty-four from 2 Chronicles, two very important books passed over in our arrangement. Ecclesiastes was finished on July 27, and was followed by Isaiah. Jeremiah was begun on August 31; on Michaelmas-Day, which had no Proper Lessons, Ezekiel was begun at Evening Prayer; Hosea on October 19; and Malachi was finished November 22. Then, on December 17, the latter chapters of Isaiah were begun again, from the forty-seventh onwards; so that the sixty-sixth concluded the year, as in our course. The rubric before the Daily Office, ordered that the accustomed place of the church, chapel, or chancel, should be used, except it should be otherwise determined by the Ordinary; that chancels should remain as in times past; and that the "ornaments" of the Clergy should be such as should be prescribed by the King, according to the Act of Parliament in that behalf. The duty of saying the Daily Office, either privately or openly, was laid on the Clergy, "except they be hindered by some urgent cause; of which cause, if it be frequently pretended, they are to make the Bishop of the diocese, or the Archbishop of the province, the judge and allowor."

In the Daily Office, the first sentence was, "Cast away from you all your transgressions;" and there were fewer sentences than in our book. The Confession was to be said by the people after or with the Minister. The "Presbyter" was to pronounce the Absolution, "standing up and turning himself to the people, but they still remaining humbly on their knees." This was a considerable improvement on the English rubric as it then stood, "the Absolution to be pronounced by the Minister alone;" and here we may observe a case in which the Caroline revisers of our own book looked to the Scottish Service Book, although they altered "Minister" into "Priest," avoiding (as they avoided some other faults) the concession to anti-Catholic prejudice implied by the substitution of "Presbyter." The "power and commandment" was said to be given to the Presbyters of the Church of God, the Ministers of His Gospel; but after "and His Holy Spirit," came a clause which might be interpreted in a sense which would favour Puritanism; "that we may receive from Him absolution from all our sins." The twenty-third Psalm was substituted for the Benedicite. "Presbyters and Ministers" were named in the third versicle before the Collects. The Collect for Clergy and People was called a prayer "for the holy Clergy." The second of our Ember Collects was placed before the Prayer of St. Chrysostom.

In the Athanasian Creed, one or two alterations were made in the English text; "He therefore that would be saved, let him thus think," &c. "So He who is God and Man," &c. Laud, writing to Wedderburn, April, 1636, had refused to allow any more emendations in this Creed. The Litany prayed for the governing of "the Holy Catholic Church universally."

There was a peculiar Collect for Easter Even, which has been the model of our present noble one, the work of the last revisers. It is:—

"O most gracious God, look upon us in mercy; and grant that as we are baptized into the death of Thy Son, our Saviour, Jesus Christ, so by our true and hearty repentance all our sins may be buried with Him, and we not fear the grave; that as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of Thee, O Father, so we also may walk in newness of life, but our sins never be able to rise in judgment against us, and that for the merits of Jesus Christ that died, and was buried, and rose again for us."

The Communion Office was in more ways than one indicative of Wedderburn's desire to return to the First Liturgy of Edward; and "great need there was," said David Mitchell, afterwards for a few months Bishop of Aberdeen, "to return to it, propter Sacramentarios" [Lawson, i. 547]. Bishop Horsley's expressed admiration of the Scottish Communion Office, which is a revised form of the Office of 1637, is well known: he considered that it was decidedly better than the English Office of 1662, although the latter was "very good."

<sup>1</sup> In the "Remains" of Dean Granville, of Durham, published by the Surtees Society (Part ii. p. 117), he states that on Holy Thursday, 1683, he had a conversation with Burnet, Archbishop of St. Andrew's, who, "sadly bewailed" the want of liturgical worship in Scotland, "as also that they had not at first, after the King's restoration, attempted to introduce the Liturgy of the Church of England, together with the Bishops: which he and the Bishops of Scotland were now convinced they might have done with as little trouble as they did the other."

The introductory rubric ordered that the Holy Table (which was never spoken of in the Office simply as the Table) should have "a carpet, and a fair white linen cloth upon it, and other decent furniture, meet for the high mysteries there to be celebrated," and should "stand at the uppermost end of the chancel or church." The Presbyter was to begin "at the north side or end thereof;" our book has nothing about "end." He was to turn to the people when reciting the Commandments; a direction not given in England until 1662. An anti-Sabbatarian feeling expressed itself in the words, that the people were to ask God's mercy for their transgression of the law, "either according to the letter, or to the mystical importance of the said Commandment;" and it is remarkable that the difficulty felt as to the prayer referring to the Fourth Commandment not only suggested this qualifying clause, but afterwards led many of the nonjurors to substitute the Evangelical summary of the Law, commonly called "the Short Law," for the Ten Commandments. Instead of "Have mercy upon the whole Church," the reading was, "Have mercy upon Thy Holy Catholic Church, and in the particular Church in which we live, so rule," &c.

It was expressly provided that the people should say, "Glory be to Thee, O Lord," at the announcement of the Gospel, and also "Thanks be to Thee, O Lord," at its end. The Nicene Creed was to be said or sung: this alternative was given in England in 1662. The Offertory began with the account, in Genesis iv. 3, of Cain and Abel. The thanksgiving of David [1 Chr. xxix. 10, sq.] was one of the sentences; the Scottish Office, since the revision of 1755, has ordered it to be said at the moment of presenting the alms. There were no sentences from the Apocrypha. The alms were loosely called oblations (in the present English book a distinction is observed): and they were to be "humbly presented on the Holy Table," an order which our present book has adopted. There was another order for the "offering up and placing" of the elements upon the Lord's Table; and our present book has substantially adopted this also, and has a reference to the elements as "oblations" in the prayer, whereas the Scottish book had no such reference. The words "militant here in earth," were retained. Where we read, "all Bishops and Curates," the Scottish reads, "all Bishops, Presbyters, and Curates." At a Celebration these words were added: "And we commend especially unto Thy merciful goodness the congregation which is here assembled in Thy name, to celebrate the commemoration of the most precious Death and Passion of Thy Son and our Saviour Jesus Christ." The Liturgy of 1549 was not followed in its mention of the Blessed Virgin, the Patriarchs, Prophets, &c., nor in its commendation of the departed faithful to God's mercy; but other parts of the language of 1549 were adopted, the Prayer, after "any other adversity," proceeding, as now the Scottish form does: "And we also bless Thy holy Name for all Thy servants who having finished their course in faith do now rest from their labours. And we yield unto Thee most high praise and hearty thanks for the wonderful grace and virtue declared in all Thy Saints, who have been the choice vessels of Thy grace, and the lights of the world, in their several generations; most humbly beseeching Thee that we may have grace to follow the example of their steadfastness in Thy faith, and obedience to Thy holy commandments; that at the day of the general resurrection, we, and all they which are of the mystical body of Thy Son, may be set on His right hand, and hear that His most joyful voice, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world. Grant this," &c. It is easy to see that the Caroline revisers had this before them when they framed the commemoration of the departed servants of God for the book of 1662.

The service then proceeded as it was settled in the Second Book of Edward, until the Preface: the word "blessed" being inserted before "Virgin" in the Christmas Preface. The Invitation, Confession, Absolution, Sentences, Preface, and Tensanctus were kept in the place which they held in the English rite, by Laud's desire; but the Prayer of Access was deferred until just before Communion. The rubric before consecration was:—

"Then the Presbyter, standing up, shall say the Prayer of Consecration, as followeth. But then during the time of consecration, he shall stand at such a part of the Holy Table, where he may with the more ease and decency use both his hands."

On this it is to be observed: (1) that Laud had expressly required that "every prayer or other action in the Communion should be named in the rubric, that it might be known what it was,—The Prayer of Consecration, the Memorial or Prayer of Oblation." And until 1662 the English book had no such words as "the prayer of consecration." (2) That from Laud's own words [Laud, iii. 347], and from the obvious sense of the passage, it is plain that the celebrant was intended to perform the consecration standing in front of the Holy Table. This was objected to in "Rome's Master-piece," as "smelling very strongly of Popery" [Laud, iv. 495]. In reference to such changes, Laud argues that "the north end of the table in most places is too narrow, and wants room, to lay the Service Book open before him that officiates, and to place the bread and wine within his reach." [Here again Laud allows the word "end" to stand for "side."] And (3) that this throws light on the present English rubric, which was clearly framed with the Scottish rubric in view; and discourages that interpretation of it which would have the Priest stand before the Table only while ordering, not while consecrating, the elements.

The actual Prayer is like our own until "Hear us," except that it reads "which" for "who" after "Father," and also inserts "and Sacrifice" after "precious death"—an insertion not taken from the Liturgy of 1549; then after the words, "beseech Thee," comes the Invocation, a passage of which Laud says [iii. 354]: "Tis true, this passage is not in the Prayer of Consecration in the Service Book of England; but I wish with all my heart it were. For though the consecration of the elements may be without it, yet it is much more solemn and full by that invocation." The form may be compared with those of Edward's First Liturgy and the present Scottish office.

First Book.

1637.

Present Scottish.

And with Thy Holy Spirit and word<sup>1</sup> vouchsafe to bless and sanctify these thy gifts and creatures of bread and wine, that they may be unto us the Body and Blood of Thy most dearly beloved Son Jesus Christ: Who in the same night . . .

And of Thy Almighty goodness vouchsafe so to bless and sanctify with Thy word and Holy Spirit these Thy gifts and creatures of bread and wine, that they may be unto us the Body and Blood of Thy most dearly beloved Son: so that we receiving them according to Thy Son our Saviour Jesus Christ's holy institution, in remembrance of His death and passion, may be partakers of the same His most precious Body and Blood: Who in the night . . .

And of Thy Almighty goodness vouchsafe to bless and sanctify with Thy word and Holy Spirit these Thy gifts and creatures of bread and wine, that they may become the Body and Blood of Thy most dearly beloved Son.

<sup>1</sup> It seems certain that by "word" is meant the words of institution.

It is remarkable that early in the eighteenth century, Bishop Rose of Edinburgh was accustomed, when using the English Office of 1662, to insert this Invocation: and it became one of the famous Usages. The present Scottish rite, since 1755, has placed the Invocation after the Oblation, and, since 1764, has omitted the Western phrase "to us," and the sentence, "so that we receiving," &c.

The English Office until 1662 had no directions for any "manual rites" in consecration. But the practice, as we infer from Laud's letter to Wedderburn, and from Cosin [Works, v. 340], was for the Priest to take the paten and chalice into his hands. But the Scottish Book prescribed all the four manual rites, just as the Book of 1662, evidently borrowing from it, has prescribed them. This is one of the most important instances of the beneficial effects of the Scottish Book on the Caroline revision.

After the words of institution came, "Immediately after this shall be said the Memorial, or Prayer of Oblation, as followeth:"

"Wherefore, O Lord and heavenly Father, according to the institution of Thy dearly beloved Son our Saviour Jesus Christ, we Thy humble servants do celebrate and make here before Thy Divine Majesty, with these Thy holy gifts" [here the present Scottish Office, since 1743, has added "which we now offer unto Thee," an express oblation in this place being one of the greater "Usages," and ranking as such with the Invocation of the Holy Spirit, the mixed cup, and the non-exclusion, to say the least, of prayer for the departed<sup>1</sup>]; "the memorial which Thy Son hath willed us to make; having in remembrance His blessed Passion," [the present Scottish adds, "and precious Death,"] "mighty Resurrection, and glorious Ascension; rendering unto Thee most hearty thanks for the innumerable benefits procured unto us by the same." [Here the present Scottish inserts the Invocation.] "And we entirely desire Thy Fatherly goodness," &c., as in our present book down to "humbly beseeching Thee," when following the book of 1549, it proceeded, "that whosoever shall be partakers of this Holy Communion may worthily receive the most precious Body and Blood of Thy Son Jesus Christ, and be fulfilled with Thy grace and heavenly benediction, and made one body with Him, that He may dwell in them, and they in Him. And although we be unworthy," &c., as in the present English. Then came the Lord's Prayer; Laud, it may be added, having thoroughly approved the placing of it and of the Prayer of Oblation before the Communion. Then the Prayer of Access; and then the Communion, the Bishop or the Celebrant being ordered first to receive, and then to administer to the other clergy, "that they may help him that celebrateth" (as it then stood in the English Book, "that they may help the chief Minister") "all humbly kneeling:" the English Book then had no such adverb; "meekly" was added in 1662. The benediction, "the Body of our Lord," &c. (which was much objected to by the Puritans, as suggestive of transubstantiation!) was to be said by the Celebrant himself when receiving, and to be followed by Amen; and the "Take and eat this," "Drink this," which had been first inserted in 1552, were, according to Wedderburn's request, omitted. Laud writes, "I see no hurt in the omission of those latter words, none at all. And if there be any, it proceeded not from me." [Laud, iii. 357.]

After the administration, the Celebrant was to cover the remains of the Sacrament "with a fair linen cloth or corporal:" no such rule then existed in the English Book, but it was adopted—excepting the word "corporal," and with the addition of the word "reverently"—in 1662. The Collect, "Almighty and everliving God," then followed, as in the English Book; the strange error which from the First Book downwards had made this prayer, while addressing the Father, speak of "Thy mystical Body," was not corrected. The office was concluded by the Gloria in Excelsis and the Blessing. Among the rubrics after it there was a direction that after service what had been collected from the people should be divided in the presence of the Presbyter and churchwardens; half was to be for the Presbyter's use, "to furnish him with books of holy divinity;" half for purposes of piety and charity within the parish. There was also a careful provision,—which did not then exist in the English Book, but was adopted in 1662,—for the prevention of irreverent use of the consecrated remnants. To this was added: "And to the end there may be little left, he that officiates is required to consecrate with the least; and then if there be want, the words of consecration may be repeated again, over more either bread or wine; the Presbyter beginning at these words in the Prayer of Consecration: 'Our Saviour, in the night that he was betrayed, took,' " &c. This provision was also adopted, and made somewhat more definite, in 1662. The last rubric provided that every parishioner shall communicate at the least three times in the year, "of which Pasch or Easter shall be one; and shall also receive the Sacraments and other rites according to the order in this Book appointed." This, excepting the word Pasch, which was a peculiarly Scottish term for Easter, was then the language of the English Book; but the Scottish omitted the rule about parishioners reckoning at Easter with the parson, vicar, or curate, &c., and paying all ecclesiastical dues.

The only features in the Occasional Offices worthy of special notice are the following. In the first prayer at Public Baptism, before the entreaty that God would mercifully look upon these children, came the sentence, "Sanctify this fountain of Baptism, Thou which art the Sanctifier of all things." The First Book had placed this sentence, together with a signing of the Cross, in a Collect beginning, "O most merciful God, our Saviour Jesu Christ," which, with other prayers, was to be said after the water in the font had been changed, and before any child was baptized therein. Bucer had objected to this; "his fear was, lest it should engender the idea, that into the elements themselves, there was infused some magical efficacy" [Wilberforce on Holy Bapt., p. 247]. His objection, however unreasonable, had led to the omission of the benediction of the water in the Second Book; and the compilers of the Scottish Service Book resolved to return to the precedent of 1549, and to borrow from its elaborate benedictory office one sentence which should represent the idea, and might be inserted in the actual Order of Baptism. This was one of the points which gave great offence; it was a "consecration of holy water." And in the prayer before administration, "Almighty everliving God," which had stood at the end of the benedictory form of 1549, the reading was, "this water, which we here bless and dedicate in Thy Name to this spiritual washing." The Caroline revisers substantially imitated this, when they inserted the clause, "Sanctify this water," &c., into the latter of these two prayers.

The Communion address was to be heard by the people, "sitting and attending with reverence;" a direction not found in the English Book.

Such was the Service Book of 1637. Its history, to the thoughtful Churchman, is suggestive of much hope and comfort. After all the learned labour and devout solicitude bestowed upon it, after all the prayers made for its success, it comes forth associated with all that could most deeply prejudice the people of Scotland in its disfavour; it is made the occasion of sacrilegious outbreaks; it is spurned and denounced, with prayers that God would "confound" it; and it virtually kindles the first flame of civil war. Those who have been most heartily interested in it, have to mourn, as Laud did, over the failure of their hopes, and to prophesy that Scotland "will one day have more cause" than themselves for sorrow [Laud, iii. 338]. Bishop Wedderburn, driven, like most of the Scottish prelates, to seek a refuge out of Scotland, dies at or near Canterbury, in 1639 [Lawson, 611]. Bishop Maxwell, appointed by the King to Irish sees, plundered and wounded by Romanist insurgents, dies Archbishop of Tuam, February 14, 1646—being found lifeless on his knees; an end, surely, not unfitting for one who had so laboured to promote God's worship. Years pass away; the Restoration arrives, and the Church of England has to re-settle her Prayer Book. In this work, the ill-fated Scottish Prayer Book is unexpectedly and manifoldly influential; it assists the orthodox Caroline revisers to raise the tone of the English Book, by various significant though gentle alterations, and in this way it materially strengthens the hold of Catholic belief and devotion on the hearts of the English race. In Scotland, indeed, the restored Church, for the most part, worships without a Liturgy; but when dis-established in 1689, after some years, it adopts from the Book of 1637 a Communion Office which, passing through several revisions, becomes the known standard of a deeply earnest churchmanship, imparts one of its main features to the American rite, and may yet, in God's providence, do a work for Faith and Unity.

<sup>1</sup> Of these four usages the book of 1637 sanctioned only one, the Invocation.

"Then I said, I have laboured in vain, I have spent my strength for nought, and in vain: yet surely my judgment is with the Lord, and my work with my God." [Isa. xlix. 4]. W. B.

III.

THE IRISH PRAYER BOOK.

The introduction of the Revised English Prayer Book into Ireland after the Restoration was effected not merely by Royal authority, or as an act of servile imitation and compliance, but as the result of deliberate and careful consideration on the part of the Convocation and Parliament of that kingdom. Among the MSS. of Archbishop King preserved in Trinity College, Dublin, is a volume containing the journals of the Irish Convocation in 1661—1665, from which it appears that in August and September the English book was examined by both Houses separately, and approved, the Lower House recommending the addition of Forms of Prayer for the Lord Lieutenant and for October 23. In November they resolved that an Act of Parliament should be asked for, enjoining the use of the Book on the Irish Church: but, from some unknown causes, the procuring such an Act was delayed for nearly four years<sup>1</sup>. At length, on January 17, 166 $\frac{1}{2}$ , the Bill for Uniformity was read for the first time in the House of Commons; after the second reading, on February 1, it was referred to a committee, which reported that alterations were necessary in regard to dates which had already elapsed, and one or two other minor points. A new Bill was consequently introduced on May 18, 1666, which passed the House of Commons on May 22, and the House of Lords in due succession, and received the Royal Assent on June 18.

The English Prayer Book is therefore the Prayer Book also of the Irish Church by its own free adoption. But it contained, and still in a lesser degree contains, several additions which render it a distinct book, and which we now proceed to point out in brief detail<sup>2</sup>.

I. In 1662 an Act of the Irish Parliament was passed (14 and 15 Car. II. cap. xxiii.) which ordered that October 23 be yearly kept as a day of thanksgiving for the discovery of the conspiracy to seize Dublin Castle and murder all the Protestants in 1641, which was revealed, as the Act states, not many hours before the time appointed for its execution, by Owen O'Connelly, "a meer Irishman," who had been brought up as a Protestant<sup>3</sup>. This Act ordered that Morning Prayer should be offered in all churches, without prescribing any particular form of thanksgiving; but on November 11 in the same year the Irish Convocation, in a declaration of acceptance of the revised English Liturgy, ordered that a new service be prepared for this day, as well as a Prayer for the Lord Lieutenant<sup>4</sup>.

Considerable delay ensued in the preparation of the form, and the execution of the necessary formalities for giving it legal sanction, as well as in the extension of the Act of Uniformity to Ireland. In a letter from the Marquis of Ormonde, as Lord Lieutenant, to the Earl of Arlington, dated at Dublin, July 7, 1666 (preserved amongst Carte's MSS. in the Bodleian Library, vol. li. p. 129) we read, "The Lord Primate [Margetson] brought me the enclosed draught of a warrant for the King to signe, whereby certain prayers fitted for this kingdom are ordered to be added to the Booke of Common Prayer, which cannot be printed till his Majestie shall please to send the warrant signed." These prayers are consequently not found in the MS. Book of Common Prayer attached to the Irish Act of Uniformity, that Act having received the Royal assent on June 18, 1666, nor is October 23 mentioned there in the Calendar, in the list of "Certain solemn days." The warrant, however, for which the Primate asked was issued on August 15; and the service for October 23 consequently appears in the first Irish edition of the revised Common Prayer, which was published in the same year (1666), printed by John Crook at Dublin, in quarto<sup>5</sup>; although the service seems to have been added here after the rest of the volume (which was printed at different times) had been finished<sup>6</sup>.

On the accession of George I., all the State Services were revised by the Irish Bishops, for the sake of bringing them into accordance with the English altered versions of those which were in joint use, and the five (together with the prayers for the Lord Lieutenant) were then re-issued by a warrant from the King in Council, dated November 3, 1715.

This form retained its place in the Prayer Books in use in Ireland, (although since the Union it was not mentioned in the Order in Council prefixed to the State Services), until the discontinuance of the State Services in England, when the observance of the day was abrogated by the same statute which abolished three of the English State holidays, viz. 22 Vict. cap. 2., which received the Royal Assent, March 25, 1859. The abrogation, however, was not conducted according to the constitutional course which was followed with reference to the English offices. No Irish Convocation was summoned to consider the matter; and a Service which possessed the authority of the Church as well as of the State was abolished by being included in a bill which originally was contemplated only with regard to the three days, the disuse of the offices for which had been recommended by the English Convocation, and enjoined by Royal Warrant of 17th January, 1859, pursuant to previous addresses from the Houses of Parliament.

II. The Prayer for the Lord Lieutenant still used in the Daily Service, after that for the Royal Family, appears in the MS. Book of Common Prayer, but, strange to say, is omitted in the first printed edition. This appears to show that the earlier portion of that book was printed before the passing of the Irish Act of Uniformity to which the MS. was annexed. The prayer thus authorized by the three estates of the realm is the second of the two prayers which are printed in the present Irish editions, the first of these having been added (without any apparent reason)

<sup>1</sup> See "The Irish Convocation of 1661," an article [by Rev. J. C. Crotthwaite] in the "Irish Ecclesiastical Journal" for Dec. 1843, vol. ii. pp. 290—292.

<sup>2</sup> The original MS. of the Irish Book is fortunately still preserved in the Rolls' Office in Dublin; it was edited by Archibald J. Stephens, Esq., in 1849-50, in three vols. for the Eccl. Hist. Soc., with full and elaborate historical introductions. A valuable sketch of the history of the Irish Book, by Rev. W. Keatinge Clay, B.D., is to be found in the "British Magazine" for Dec. 1846, pp. 601—629.

<sup>3</sup> The observance of the day had been enjoined twenty years previously by "An Act of State made by the Lords Justices and Council of Ireland," Nov. 23, 1642, which was printed by Bladen at Dublin, at the same date. But the subsequent troubles had of course prevented the carrying out of this Ordinance. A copy of it is to be found in the King's Inn Library at Dublin, with the press-mark, N. 8. 16*. [See inform. J. P. Prendergast, Esq.]

<sup>4</sup> Stephens' Intro. to the Irish Prayer Book, vol. i. p. xc.

<sup>5</sup> Only one copy of this edition is known to be extant, which was in the library of the late Earl of Charlemont. At the auction of that collection in 1865 it was sold for £5 10s., and is now in the British Museum.

<sup>6</sup> Dr. Elrington in Stephens' Irish C. P., vol. i. cxxiii., British Magazine, 1846, p. 619.

by the authority only of an Order of the King in Council, dated November 3, 1715. The following words, which originally formed part of the commencement of the other prayer, "by Whose will, providence, and Spirit powers are ordained, governments established, and diversities of administrations are dispensed," are found omitted in Prayer Books printed in 1700 and 1710, as well as in all later editions; an omission which probably commenced at the accession of William III.

A "praier for the Lord Deputie" is found in the earliest Irish Prayer Book, printed at Dublin in 1551, and is said to have continued in use, but with several variations, until the passing of the Act of Uniformity in 1666.

III. Another form peculiar to the Irish book is that "For the Visitation of Prisoners," consisting of three Offices, one to be used when "a prisoner is confined for some great or capital crime," another when "a criminal is under sentence of death," and a third "for imprisoned debtors." These were prepared in the Convocation held in Dublin in 1711, and were printed and annexed to the Prayer Book, "pursuant to Her Majesty's directions," by a warrant of the Lord Lieutenant and Council, dated April 13, 1714.

IV. "A Form of Consecration, or Dedication of Churches and Chapels, according to the use of the Church of Ireland," followed by "An Office to be used in the Restauration of a Church," and "A Short Office for Expiation and Illustration of a Church desecrated or prophan'd" appears in the quarto edition of the Prayer Book printed by John Crook in 1700, and in subsequent folio editions printed by Grierson. These forms were reprinted from an edition printed separately by the former printer in 1666, but it is not known by whom they were prepared, or by what authority they were annexed to the Prayer Book. Although not now attached to the Book, the Form of Consecration is that which is still in use.

V. In the quarto edition of 1700 and the folio of 1721, the following unauthorized additions are also found: 1. "A Form for receiving lapsed Protestants, or reconciling converted Papists to our Church," which is said to have been written by Anthony Dopping, Bishop of Meath, and which was first printed separately in 1690; and 2. the Commemoration "Prayers for the use of Trinity College, Dublin." A Form of Bidding Prayer was prepared and enjoined by decree of Convocation of February 5, 1662<sup>1</sup>; but it is not known how far its use was observed, or when it was discontinued. W. D. M.

<sup>1</sup> Printed in Irish Ecc. Journ., ubi supra, p. 291, and Brit. Mag. xxx. 6:3.

IV.

ADDITIONAL NOTE ON THE LATIN PRAYER BOOK.

By an unfortunate oversight there is no account at page [19 of the valuable Latin Version of our present Prayer Book which was made by the learned and orthodox Dean Durel shortly after its settlement in 1662. The title-page of this Latin Prayer Book is as follows: "Liturgia, seu Liber Precum Communium, et administrationis Sacramentorum, aliorumque Rituum atque Cereemoniarum Ecclesie, juxta Usum Ecclesie Anglicane: unà cum Psalterio seu Psalmis Davidis, ea punctatione distinctis, qua Cantari aut Recitari debent in Ecclesiis. Itemque Forma et Modus Faciendi, Ordinandi et Consecrandi Episcopos, Presbyteros, Diaconos. Londini, excudit Rogerus Nortonus, Regius in Latinis, Græcis et Hebraicis typographus; vaneuntque apud Sam. Mearne, Regium Bibliopolarum in vico vulgariter dicto Little-Britaine, 1670."

There is some reason for supposing that this version was intended to be authorized as the standard Latin Book of Common Prayer, although no record remains of its being placed before the Convocation. Durel was Canon of Durham when he published it, having been appointed to his stall by Cosin, the principal Reviser of the Prayer Book, who had probably made his acquaintance during their exile when both were living at Paris. But for some years after the Restoration, Durel was Chaplain of the Savoy<sup>1</sup> and Dean of Windsor, the one post seeming to associate him officially with the proceedings connected with the Restoration of the Church, and the other (as Confessor to the Sovereign) with King Charles II. Among Archbishop Sancroft's papers in the Bodleian Library there is also a letter from Durel submitting a specimen of his Latin version to the Primate for approval, and it is dedicated to the King in a very similar tone to that adopted by the last translators of the Holy Bible in their dedication of it to James I. These circumstances do not prove that Durel's Version had any actual authority given to it, but they seem to indicate that it was undertaken at the suggestion of men in high office and having great influence in ecclesiastical affairs; and it is not unlikely that further evidence may be discovered on the subject.

Dean Durel's Latin Version is a most excellent one, whether it is viewed as to scholarship, theology, or loyalty to the Church of England. The Psalms, Canticles, Epistles, and Gospels, are all printed from the ancient Salisbury Use; and the expressions of the latter are often followed, and even retained, in the Prayers, although most of these have been re-translated from the English.

ing is its title:—"La Liturgie, c'est à dire, Le Formulaire des Prières Publiques, de l'Administration des Sacrements, et des autres Cérémonies et Coutumes de l'Eglise, selon l'usage de l'Eglise Anglicane, avec le Pseauteur ou les Psaumes de David, Ponctuez selon qu'ils doivent estre ou chantez ou leüs dans les Eglises. A Londres: Pour Jean Dunmore et Octavien Pulleyn le Jeune à l'Enseigne du Roy en la petite Bretagne, 1667." Durel wrote several learned works, explaining the position, doctrines, and worship of the Church of England.

<sup>1</sup> It was probably his connexion with the French chapel of the Savoy which led Durel to translate the Prayer Book into French. This version has been used ever since in the Channel Islands, though others of a Protestant character have also been introduced in modern times. The follow-

V.

ADDITIONAL NOTE ON THE LITANY.

At page 60, a suggestion is mentioned that "Son of David" was substituted for "Son of the Living God," in the latter part of the Litany, through some misunderstanding of the contracted form in which "Fili Dei vivi" was written. It has since been observed by Mr. Bright that "Jesu Fili David, miserere . . ." was a not uncommon expression in mediæval devotion.

In the book of records of University College, Oxford, there is an entry to the following effect. "A composition twixt K. Henry VII. and y<sup>e</sup> College concerning Dame Anne late Countess of Warwick, 8 H. 7. . . and that the said Master, or any other Fellows of the said place that so shall sing the said high Masse in his stede that daye, shall devoutly remembre in his Masse these words in his second Memento: 'Jesu Fili David miserere animæ Famuæ tuæ Anne nuper Countesse Warwick'. . . and that every pource scholer of the ten pource scholers founded by the charitable alms of the Founders of the said College shall say devoutly kneeling on their knees, betweene the Levation and the Reception of the most glorious and blessed Body of Criste, 'Jesu Fili David miserere Famulæ tuæ . . . .'

Similar words are also found in a Composition of a Benefactor to Magdalen College, Oxford, in the time of Henry VIII., "Jesu Fili David, miserere famuli tui Roberti." [Stat. Magd. Coll. Oxford, ii. 121.]

An interesting authority for the expression "all our sins, negligences, and ignorances," has also been discovered in an edition of the Salisbury Hours of the Blessed Virgin, published at Paris in 1530. The following Suffrage is there directed to be used at the elevation of the Blessed Sacrament. "Sanguis tuus, Domine Jesu Christe, pro nobis effusus sit mihi in remissionem omnium peccatorum, negligentiarum, et ignorantiarum mearum." For this and one or two other additional illustrations of the Litany which are printed in the second edition of Part I., the Editor is indebted to the Rev. HENRY PHILIPPS, of Cheltenham, who has also contributed several valuable suggestions respecting the originals in some of the Occasional Offices.

VI.

ECCLESIASTICAL VESTMENTS.

In the Ritual Introduction to this Volume, Section III., a description is given of the Material and Colour of the "Ornaments of the Ministers" as anciently used by the Church of England in common, for the most part, with the Eastern and Western Communions. A few observations are here added as to their Form, in order to give a more distinct idea of their character than is conveyed by the mere names which designated them in the various documents there referred to, and to furnish an explanation of the Illustrations given in the accompanying Plates. As, also, the restoration of these Ornaments in many churches is constantly giving rise to inquiries about their signification, it is desirable to state the symbolical meaning involved in their use. The latter was done by authority so late as the year 1541-2 (only seven years before the publication of the First Prayer Book of K. Edward VI., and at the very time when the Convocation of Canterbury was revising the old Service Books) when there was drawn up, by Archbishop Cranmer or under his direction, a "RATIONALE" of the "Ceremonies to be used in the Church of England, together with an Explanation of the Meaning and Significancy of them." [Collier, Eccles. Hist. vol. v. pp. 104-122, ed. 1852.] The descriptions given of the Vestments in this document are limited to those worn by the Celebrant himself, but they sufficiently indicate the importance attached to the Ministerial Ornaments; for the Rationale says that "The Priest . . . puts upon him clean and hallowed Vestments, partly representing the Mysteries which were done at the Passion; partly representing the Virtues which he himself ought to have that celebrates the Mass."

The Vestments mentioned in the Rationale are the following:—1. the Amice; 2. the Albe; 3. the Girdle; 4. the Stole; 5. the Phanon, i.e. the Maniple or Sudarium as it was also called; 6. the Chasuble. The Rubric in the Prayer Book of 1549 specifies only, 1. the Albe; 2. the Vestment or Cope; 3. the Tunicle; but, of course, it does not exclude the others named in the Rationale, and in fact the whole were in use under the First Prayer Book. These two lists, then, comprise eight Ornaments which are now to be described.

1. The AMICE, Amictus (the Armenian Vakass and, perhaps, the Eastern Omophorion seem to correspond to this, especially the former).—This is a broad and oblong piece of Linen with two strings to fasten it: in its more ornate form it is embroidered on the outer edge with a rich fillet or otherwise adorned. When used it is first placed on the head, then slipped down to and worn on the shoulders beneath the Albe; so that, when left somewhat loose, it has the appearance of an ornamental collar as shown in the drawing, Plate II.

The Rationale says—"He putteth on the Amice, which, as touching the Mystery, signifies the veil with the which the Jews covered the face of Christ, when they buffeted Him in the time of His Passion. And as touching the Minister, it signifies faith, which is the head, ground, and foundation of all virtues; and therefore, he puts that upon his head first."

2. The ALBE, Alba (the Eastern Stoicharion and the Russian Podriznik).—This is a loose and long garment coming down to the feet and having close-fitting sleeves reaching to the hands. Anciently it appears to have been made usually of Linen, though in later times rich silks of different colours were frequently used, while in the Russian Church velvet is often employed. It was very commonly ornamented with square or oblong pieces of Embroidery called Apparels; these were stitched on or otherwise fastened to various parts of it, especially just above the feet and near the hands, where they had somewhat the appearance of cuffs. The Rubric of 1549 directs the use of "a white Albe plain;" this may have meant a Linen Albe without Apparels, yet Silk or similar material seems not to be forbidden provided it be white: Embroidery, such as shown in the sketch; Plate I., appears sufficiently "plain" to be consistent with the language and intention of the Rubric. Old-fashioned Surplices are always thus ornamented about the shoulders, a tradition of ancient custom.

The Rationale says of the Minister that "he puts upon him the Albe, which, as touching the Mystery, signifieth the white garment wherewith Herod clothed Christ in mockery when he sent Him to Pilate. And as touching the Minister, it signifieth the pureness of conscience, and innocency he ought to have, especially when he sings the Mass."

The SURPLICE, Superpelliceum, Plate II. (whether with or without Sleeves) and the ROCHET, Rochetum, being both of them only modifications of the Albe, this language of the Rationale respecting it appears to apply equally to them.

3. The GIRDLE, Cingulum (the Eastern Poyass).—This is a Cord or narrow Band of Silk or other material (usually white) with Tassels attached; or, as in the Eastern Church, a broad Belt (often of rich material) with a clasp, hooks, or strings. It is used for fastening the Albe round the Waist.

The Rationale thus explains it:—"The Girdle, as touching the Mystery, signifies the scourge with which Christ was scourged. And as touching the Minister, it signifies the continent and chaste living, or else the close mind which he ought to have at prayers, when he celebrates."

4. The STOLE, Stola (the Eastern Epitrachelion of the Priest, the Orarion of the Deacon, the Lention of the Sub-deacon).—This is a strip of Silk about three inches wide, and about eight and a half feet long; it may be plain or richly ornamented; especially at the ends, of which examples are given in Plate II. The Priest wears it hanging over his neck, and when he celebrates it is usually crossed on the breast and passed under the Girdle: the Deacon wears it suspended over the left shoulder; but, when assisting at the Celebration, he often has it brought across his back and breast and fastened at his right side. As used by the Greek Priest it has the appearance of two Stoles joined together, the upper end having a hole through which the head is put, and thus it hangs down in front.

The Rationale says thus of it :—"The Stole, as touching the Mystery, signifieth the ropes or bands that Christ was bound with to the pillar, when He was scourged. And as touching the Minister, it signifieth the yoke of patience, which he must bear as the servant of God."

5. The MANIPLE, Manipulus, sometimes called Fanon or Phanon and Sudarium (the Eastern Epimanikia and the Russian Pórutchi; each of these are, however, a kind of Cuffs worn on both hands).—Originally it appears to have been a narrow strip of Linen, usually as wide as a Stole and about two and a half feet long [see Plate II.], and seems to have been employed as a kind of Sudarium for wiping the hands and for other cleanly purposes, whence it probably took one of its names. Subsequently, however, it became a mere ornament, being made of rich materials and often embroidered, or even enriched with jewels. It hangs over the left arm of the Celebrant and his assistants; it should be fastened near the wrist, in a loop, to prevent its falling off.

The Rationale describes its meaning together with the Stole in these words: "in token whereof" (i. e. of patience) "he puts also the Phanon on his arm, which admonisheth him of ghostly strength and godly patience that he ought to have, to vanquish and overcome all carnal infirmity."

6. The CHASUBLE or VESTMENT, Casula (the Eastern Phelonion and the Russian Phelónie or Phelonion).—This vesture is worn over the Albe: originally it was nearly or entirely a circular garment, having an opening in the centre through which the head of the wearer passed; and thus it fell gracefully over the shoulders and arms, covering the entire person in its ample folds and reaching nearly to the feet both before and behind: at a later period it was made narrower at the back and front by reducing its circular form, and so it frequently terminated like a reversed pointed arch; the sleeve part also became shorter, reaching only to the hands and thus avoiding the need of gathering it up on the arms. Ultimately, whether from economy, or bad taste, or supposed convenience, the sleeve parts were cut away to the shoulders in the Latin Communion; and even the Russian vestment has been so much reduced in the front that it covers little more than the chest: however, the older form has been for the most part retained in the rest of the Eastern Communion. The drawing on Plate I. shows the form which prevailed in the Church of England prior to the Reformation; it has the merit of being both elegant and convenient. The same picture shows the mode of ornamenting it, namely, by embroidering the collar and outer edge, and by attaching to it what is called the Y Orphrey; though very commonly the Latin Cross, and sometimes the Crucifixion, was variously embroidered on the back, only the perpendicular Orphrey (or Pillar, as it is termed) being affixed in the front.

The Rationale is thus given :—"The overvesture, or Chesible, as touching the Mystery, signifieth the purple mantle that Pilate's soldiers put upon Christ after that they had scourged Him. And as touching the Minister, it signifies charity, a virtue excellent above all other."

7. The COPE, Cappa (the Armenian Phelonion is a similar Vestment and is used instead of the Chasuble).—It is a kind of full, long Cloke, of a semicircular shape, reaching to the heels, and open in front, thus leaving the arms free below the elbows. Most commonly it has a Hood, as shown in the drawing, Plate II.; where also is represented the Orphrey and an illustration of the mode of enriching the material by embroidery. The mode of fastening it, by a Band, to which is often attached a rich ornament, called the Morse is there also exhibited. It is worn over either the Albe or the Surplice.

The Rationale does not mention it; probably because it was not one of the Eucharistic Vestments then or previously in use. But that it might be used at the Altar (though probably not by the Celebrant when consecrating the Oblations) is plain from the fact that the Rubric of 1549 in naming "Vestment or Cope," apparently allows a choice between it and the Chasuble; but it may only have been intended that, in a place where both are provided, the Chasuble alone should be worn where the whole Eucharistic Service was used; for a Rubric at the end of the Service specifies the Cope as the Vestment to be employed at those times when only the earlier portion of the Service is intended to be said, no Consecration being designed because of its being known that there would "be none to communicate with the Priest." The 24th Canon of 1603 does indeed recognize the Cope as the Celebrant's Vestment to be used in Cathedrals; but the Rubric of 1662, having later and larger authority, seems to point to the Chasuble of the Book of 1549 as the Vestment in which to consecrate.

8. The TUNICLE, Tunica; also called, as worn by the Deacon or Gospeller, Dalmatic, Dalmatica (the Eastern Stoicharion or Saccus of the Deacon).—This is a kind of loose coat or frock, reaching below the knees, open partially at the lower part of the sides; it has full, though not large, sleeves; in material and colour it should correspond with the Chasuble. Examples of its Orphreys and of the mode of embroidering it are shown in the two illustrations on Plate I. The Deacon's Dalmatic was usually somewhat more ornamented in the Western Church than was the Tunicle worn by the Sub-deacon or Epistoler.

This Ornament, like the Cope, is not mentioned in the Rationale, probably because, as was observed above, only the Vestments of the Celebrant are there specified.

T. W. P.

FRONT OF CHASUBLE WITH STOLE, AND A.L.B

NETS SHEWING CHASUBLE · IN USE.

BACK OF CHAIRS :

LONG DYNAMIC.

SKETCH OF A PRIEST IN COPE AND SURPLICE.

SKETCH OF SIDE OF MITRE

ELEVATION OF MITRE, as laid out by the side of Mitre

AND MANIPLES.

riest and his
1. [See Ecc.

ul school of, 7.

ention, 65.

. 428. 432.

h, 569.
f, 8.

Sacrifice

58. 164;
Eastern
orations
St. Cuthgement,

1661—

234.

9; on private ecting Metri-
Music, ibuted ion in ays of 1, 188;

, xlv;
iturgy

] ; ren-

FIGURE OF THE VIRGIN, BY ANDREA ORCAGNA.

(FROM THE "LAST JUDGMENT," SANTA MARIA NOVELLA, FLORENCE.)

INDEX AND GLOSSARY.

- Abgarus, King of Edessa, his cure and conversion, 130.
- ABLUTION, the rinsing of the Chalice after the Celebration of Holy Communion. It is done with wine and water, which are reverently drunk by the Priest. [See sixth Rubric after Communion Office.] 198.
- Abolition of early Liturgies of Europe, 147.
- ABSOLUTION, the priestly act whereby the pardon of God is conveyed to penitents. Also the form of words employed.
- Absolution in Communion Office, 177; in Mattins and Evensong, 4. 177; Manual Sar. on, 285, n. 1; of Sick, 284; power of, when first stated, 539. 563; form of conveying power of, 563.
- ABSTINENCE, a less rigorous kind of Fasting.
- Accession Service, [29]. 414. 579.
- Accessories of Divine Worship, Comparison of Rubrics, lxvi; the Reformers' standard in the time of Elizabeth, lxvi.
- "Accustomed duty" to Priest and Clerk, 268.
- Act authorizing drawing up of the English Ordinal, 535; same repealed, 536; authorizing use of Ordinal 1566, 536.
- Act of Uniformity, 1 Eliz., [4]; what it empowers the Sovereign to authorize, [2]; 13th and 14th Charles II., lxix.
- Act 5 Geo. IV., Omission of Burial Office, 293.
- Act 22 Vict., repealing the State Services, 579.
- Acta Sanctorum, 36.
- Acts of Queen Mary repealed, [4].
- Admission of Catechumen, how represented in our Office, 217.
- Admonition before Marriage, 264.
- Adoption included in New Birth, 214.
- Adullam, Cave of, 393. 515.
- Adults, Baptism of, 236.
- Advent "O Sapientia" Antiphon, 76; Ember days, 75; First Sunday—what is represented, 73; Fourth Sunday—alteration in the Collect, 75; general principle of its observance, that of our own Church, 73; how kept in the Eastern Church, 72; how observed anciently by the "Religious," 73; Hymns, to be sung daily up to Christmas Eve, 73; its observance primitive under another name, 72; said to be instituted by St. Peter, 72; observed as a Lent, 72; Rule for finding, [27]. 73; Epistles and Gospels for Wednesdays and Fridays, 73; as a preparation for Christmas, 73; Second, events preceding it, 450; period of, 445.
- Advents of the Lord, 383.
- Advertisements and Injunctions of Q. Elizabeth, lxvi, lxvii.
- Ælfric, Injunctions on vernacular teaching, xxiii; Canons of, on Communion of Sick, 289.
- AFFUSION, the pouring of the water on recipients of Holy Baptism. [See IMMERSION.]
- Affusion, Baptism by, 211. 226.
- "After," its Liturgical sense, 3.
- Agatha, St., [41].
- Age, Canonical, for Ordination, 541. 544.
- Agnes, St., Benediction of lambs at her Church, [39]; touching saying of St. Augustine, [39].
- Aholiab, his inspired wisdom given for Ceremonial Worship, xlvii.
- Aidan, St., 37. 43.
- AISLE, the side or wing of a Church, separated from the Nave by the arcade, i. e. the piers and arches.
- ALB, or ALBE, the white linen robe worn by the Priest and his assistants at the celebration of Holy Communion. [See Ecc. Vestments, Plate I.]
- Alban, St., the first recorded British Martyr, [49].
- Albanopolis, Martyrdom of St. Bartholomew, 140.
- Aleuin, Quotations from, on Candlemas, 131.
- Alderson, Baron, on publication of banns, 262.
- Aless, Translator of the Prayer Book into Latin, xxx.
- Alexandria, St. Mark martyred there, 134; catechetical school of, 241; Liturgy of, 146; use of "Missa Sicca" at, 197.
- Alexandrine Manuscript and the Te Deum, 11.
- All conditions of men, Prayer for, its authorship and intention, 65.
- "All holy Martyrs" festival, 114.
- All Saints' festival, 143; Sarum Psalms, 339. 359. 377. 428. 432. 435. 446. 459. 483.
- Allegation of impediment at time of Marriage, 265.
- Allegiance, Oath of, required of Bishops in Greek Church, 569.
- Allegiance and Conformity, Declaration of, in A. of Unif., 8.
- "Alloweth," old word for "approves and accepts," 220.
- Almanacks, Prohibited times for Marriage in, 263.
- Alms, Offering of, 174.
- Alphabet Psalms, 477, 478. 486.
- Alphege, St., [45].
- ALTAR, the "Table of the Lord," whereon the Christian Sacrifice of the Eucharist is offered to God.
- Altar, a term properly applied to the Lord's Table, 158. 164; early names for, 158; of stone or wood, 158; wooden in Eastern Church, 158; in private house, 290; its position and decorations in primitive times, 159; of St. Peter at Rome, 158; of St. Cuthbert at Durham, 158; the, seen by St. John, its arrangement, xlix; rails, 165.
- Alterations at the Revision of 1559, xxxiv; Alterations in 1661—principles on which the Convocation acted, [13].
- Amalarius, his use of the Benedictus, 16.
- Amalgamation of Offices for Private and Public Baptism, 234.
- Ambrose and Augustine, SS., and the Te Deum, 10.
- Ambrose, St., on Amen after Prayer of Consecration, 189; on Benediction of Water, 224; on burial, 295; case of private celebration, 290; on Confirmation, 251; tradition respecting him, [45]; excommunicates the Emperor—introduced Metrical Hymns, [45]; his influence over Western Church Music, lvii; his writings—contests with Heresy—saying attributed to him, [45]; on Marriage, 261; on Prayer of Invocation in Confirmation, 257; on trine immersion, 211; what he says of the Psalms, 316.
- Ambrosian Rite, 45, 46. 147.
- Amen after Lord's Prayer, 6; after Prayer of Consecration, 188; on receiving consecrated elements, 190.
- American Church, Burial Office of, 299; Prayer Book, xlv; Prayer Book, its variations from that of England, xlv; Liturgy in extenso, 206; Liturgy referred to, 151. 167. 170.
- Amphibalus sheltered by St. Alban, [49].
- Ampulla of St. Remi, at Rheims, [57].
- Anabaptism, its growth during the Great Rebellion, [14]; rendered baptism of Adults necessary, 236.
- Anabaptist heresy protested against, 220.

- ANAPHORA, the most solemn portion of the Eastern Liturgy, beginning with the Sursum Corda, and including the Consecration, 148.
- Ancient Customs in Baptism, 217. 221.
- Ancient English Collects, 38. 64. 113. 115. 133. 141.
- Ancient English Exhortation at Communion, 178; at Baptism, 229.
- Ancient English Questions and Exhortations in Communion of Dying, 292.
- Ancient English version of Nicene Creed, 169.
- Ancient English versions of Lord's Prayer, 31; of Apostles' Creed, 36.
- Ancient Form of Confession, Misereatur, and Absolution, 5.
- Ancient Offices for Churching of Women, 304.
- Ancient precedent for the Thanksgiving after Baptism, 228.
- Andrew, St., affecting words at his crucifixion, 129; his Festival, his History, 129; his labours and martyrdom, 129; patron of the Scotch and Russian Churches, 129.
- Andrewes, Bishop, on catechizing, 243; on Churching of Women, 305; on Eucharistic Commemoration of Departed, 192, 193; on the Absolution, 4; suggestion as to the sentences, 1; on meaning of κατηχέω, 241, n. 1; on Offerings at Churchings, 306; quotation, 51; used Wafer Bread, 198.
- Angel, primitive name for Bishops, 531.
- Angelic Hymn, 194.
- Angels, why commemorated, 141; their names, 141; their presence at Holy Eucharist, 184.
- Anglican Communion, aspect of, towards the rest of Christendom, lxxx.
- Anne, St., mother of Blessed Virgin Mary, [51].
- Annotine Easter, 107.
- Annunciation, The, mentioned by many of the earliest writers, 133.
- ANONING OF THE SICK, an Apostolic practice of which Extreme Unction is declared in the Articles to be a "corrupt following." [See Visitation of the Sick.]
- Anointing at Baptism in Sarum rite, 227, Orig.; P. B. of 1549, 227, n.; Office of 1549 for, 287; Oil, 378.
- Anselm, St., "I put Thy precious passion," &c., 292.
- "Answer" of all the people, 8.
- ANTHEM, a musical composition sung after the Third Collect at Mattins and Evensong. The term used to be applied to the Canticles. [Rubr. before Venite exultemus.]
- Anthem, Form of the word, in various languages, lxii.
- Anthem or Hymn, valuable Auxiliaries, lxiv; how they may popularize Church doctrine, lxiv; should respond to the service of the day, lxiv.
- Anthem, in Bur. Office, 297; in Vis. of Sick, 277; its proper place in the Service, lxiii; not rubrically recognized till 1661, lxiv; Synonym for Antiphonal, or Responsive Music, lxii; to what we owe the modern ones, lxii.
- Anthems, in the injunctions of Edward VI., xxvi.
- Ant hymn, mistake of Barrow and Johnson, lxii.
- Antichrist, instrument of the Evil One, 514; City of, 382; Church of, 400; final contest with him, 420, 421; ten kingdoms of, 435; Antichrist prefigured by Sehon, Og, &c., 509; subjugation of, 328. 447. 449; types of, 387.
- Antichristianism, a compromise, 331.
- Antioch, a great intellectual and theological Centre, lvi; its early Church Singing and Music, lvi.
- Antiphon of the Litany, 422; at burials in Mediaeval Ch. 297; Salvator mundi in Vis. of Sick, 286; Ne reminiscaris in Vis. of Sick, 277.
- Antiphonal Singing, its early introduction, lvi; structure of Psalms, 506.
- Antiphons as examples of the use of Holy Scripture in Acts of Adoration, 76; for third and fourth weeks in Advent, 76.
- Anti-ritual party, 1564-65, Remonstrance of the Queen, lxvii.
- Apostles and Evangelists, Sarum Psalms, 339. 359. 377. 380. 397. 400. 453. 455. 476. 479. 483. 500. 511.
- Apostles, succession of Ministry from, 531; Bishops ordained by, 531; institution of the Order by our Lord, 530; power and authority of, 530; the three chosen ones pillars of the Church, 80; mystically signified by stars, 508; their office as rulers foretold, 407; their tribes, 407; care for the faith of their converts, 18.
- Apostolate, in substance an Episcopate, 530.
- Apostolic Christianity, how it reached Britain, xvii; "hours of prayer," constitutions quoted, 62; usages in H. Eucharist, 145; practice of Confirmation, 251.
- Apostolical Constitutions on Benediction of Water, 224; forbade single immersion, 211; on Gloria in Excelsis, 194; on Lord's Prayer after Baptism, 228.
- Apostolical Succession, Scriptural authority for, 531; Patristic authority for, 531.
- Appendix to Burial Office, 301; to Communion Office, 200; of four Prayers to Visitation of the Sick, 275. 287.
- Archbishop of Canterbury, legatus natus, 262.
- Archdeacon, duties of, in connexion with Ordination, 545. 554.
- Arian Form of Baptism, 211; heretics, their alteration of the Gloria Patri, 7.
- Arius, Heresy of, 42.
- Arles, Council of, on Lay Baptism, 212.
- Armenian Church, their time of observing Christmas, 83.
- Arnold's "Christian Life" quoted, 55.
- Article XXV., on Marriage, 273; on Sacraments, 249; XXVI. and XXXI. on Eucharistic Sacrifice, 188; XXVII. on Infant Baptism, 215; XXVIII., explanatory of "Black" Rubric, 199.
- Articles accessory to Divine Service not expressly mentioned, not forbidden, lxxi; of the Christian Faith, 245; "to stablish Christian quietness," 1536, 230, Orig., and n.
- Asaph and his brethren choristers, liii.
- Ascension Day noticeable, Ritual provision for it, 111; Sunday after, significant name of, 111; Psalms, 332. 341. 346. 380. 473.
- Ascension-tide, Sarum Psalms, 339. 341.
- Ash-Wednesday, Communion Service on, 307; Psalms, 322. 356. 367. 385. 457. 503. 516; its name ancient and popular, 91.
- Ashes, Benediction of, 92. 307.
- Assent and Consent of the Clergy, [7].
- Athanasius Creed, its reputed Authorship, 41.
- Athanasius, St., baptized some boys when himself a boy, 212; discouraged much musical inflexion in saying the Divine Offices, lviii; on Gloria in Excelsis, 194.
- Atheism, more subtle than open, 331.
- Athelstan's Psalter, Gloria in Excelsis in, 196.
- Augustine, St., and Te Deum, [53]; on burials, 295. 296; on catechizing, 241; on "children of God," 245; on Cross in Baptism, 209, n. 6; on Cross in Benediction of Water, 225, n. 1; effect on him of Church Music, lvii; regarding ceremonies, [21]; on Christianity in Britain, 453; on "the Lord is King," 453; on Infant Baptism, 215; on Lay Baptism, 212; on Manichæan rejection of Water, 210; on Marriage, 261; note from his Confessions, 10; on the early use of Psalm xxii., 342; on obligations of Sponsors, 248; prayed for his deceased mother, 301; Sermon on St. Stephen's Day, 78; on Sursum Corda, 183; visited the sick, 275.
- Augustine, St., of Canterbury, his Mission from St. Gregory, [47]; false impressions of, xvii; his difficulties with the British Church, xvii; Archbp. of Canterbury, [47]; revision of English Liturgy, 147. 149.
- Augustinian Canons, [53].
- Auricular Confession, 283; use of, 177.
- Authority, who in place of, [11].
- Average age of mankind, 445.
- Babylon, the Mystical, 381. 418. 510.
- Bacon, Lord, his saying respecting Nonconformists, xxxix.
- Baker, Sir Richard, on the Lord's Prayer, 6.
- Baneroft, Bishop, his collection of Canons, lxviii.
- BANNS, the publication in Church of intended marriages, 171. 261.
- Banns, rubric on, incorrectly printed in modern Prayer Books, 262.
- BAPTISM, the initiatory Sacrament, wherein we are born again of water and of the Holy Ghost.
- Baptism, the actual administration, 226; of Adults, 236; administration of, in 6th century, 209; administration of, in Primitive Church, 209; allowed in private houses to royal children by a mediæval rubric, 215; ancient customs in, 217. 221; answers on, in Catechism, 244—246. 249, 250; by father of child, why not seemly, 216; clinic, 211; conditional, 235; earliest office for, 209; its effect, 213; essentials of, 210; evidence on, from Acts of Apostles, 209; "Form" in, 210; variation of, 211; history of, 208; how long after birth, 231; how typified in the beginning of Miracles, 85; of Infants, 208; Introduction to Offices for, 208; iteration of, 217; Jewish, 208; of St. John Baptist, 208; "Matter" in, 210; the Minister of, 212. 239; not to be delayed, 215. 231; of the world by the Deluge, 218; of our Lord, consecrated water, 84; of our Lord, anciently commemorated, 83; Private, 231; Public, Office for, 215; in Riper Years, 236; by sprinkling, 211; by surgeons, 212; by women, 212; time for, 217; uses of word in N. T., 208; Verbal and typical foreshadowings of, 208; Vows, 222.

Βάπτισμα, Βαπτίζω, Βάπτω, 208.

Baptismal Office—its former Preface, 102.

Barnabas, St., Festival, Epistle, and traditions respecting him, 136; on duration of world, 445.

Bartholomew, St., identified by some with Nathanael, 139; traditions respecting him, 140.

Barwick, Dean, first to restore the Choral service in 1660, xxxvii.

Basil, St., on daily offices of the Primitive Church, 62; on Baptismal Renunciation, 222; his Epistle to Neocæsarea, 46; Liturgy of, 146; on Marriage, 261; on trine immersion, 211.

Battle cry of "St. George for England," its probable origin, 45.

Baxter, his obj. to prayer after marriage service, 272; Prayer Book of, xxxix. [12].

"Beating the bounds," 48.

Beauvais, Bapt. Office of, 220.

Bede, The Venerable, 40; on the "Baptism of John," 208; on St. Cuthbert's Confirmations, 252; his Calendar, [36]; his Martyrology, [37]; his Shrine, [47].

Bees swarming on lips of St. Ambrose, 45.

"Before the people" in Commun. rubric explained, 186.

Beheading of St. John Baptist, 53.

Beleth, his authority for St. Jerome's Lectionary, 70.

Belief, vow of, in Baptism, 222.

Bell at Pittington, near Durham, its legend, 51.

Bellarmino on the Episcopate as an Order jure divino, 566.

Bells on Maundy Thursday, and Easter Eve, 103.

Benedicite, its proper Doxology, 15; of Jewish origin, 13; when to be substituted for the Te Deum, 11. 15.

Benedict, St., Life of, 6; his Rule, [43]; his Rule for the daily offices, [63]; his Rule, the earliest direct mention of the Te Deum, 10; his Rule on the Gloria Patri, 7.

Benedict and Gregory, SS., their practice, on what based, [63].

Benedictio Fontis, 224, 225, Orig.

Benedictio Sacramentalis, after Marriage, 272.

BENEDICTION, the priestly act whereby the blessing of God is conveyed to the faithful.

Benediction in Confirmation, 260; in Communion Office, 195; of Elements, the nucleus of the Liturgy, 145; on Easter Even in Early English Church, 103; of Font, 209, 210. 584; of primitive antiquity in Liturgical use, 28; of the water, 224; of water, its spiritual import, 225; of water, separate from adm. of Baptism, 224; of water, in P. B. of 1549, 225; of water quite distinct from that of Eucharistic Elements, 226; of Palms, 96; final, after Marriage, 273; in Vis. of Sick, 286; Levitical, in Vis. of Sick, 287; Apostolic, in Bur. Office, 300.

Benedictus, the proper Canticle after 2nd Lesson, 16; its position and Ritual meaning, 16; in Communion Office, 184.

Bernard, St., his saying on the death of the Innocents, 81; on the Candlemas Festival, 131.

Bethell, Bp., on Baptismal Regeneration, 230.

Bethphania, a name for the Epiphany, 83.

Betrothal, 236.

Beverley, St. Mary's, register on prohibited seasons for Marriage, 263.

Bezaleel, his inspired wisdom given for ceremonial worship, xlvii.

Bible, delivery of, to Bishops, 538. 575; delivery of, to Priests, 538. 564; imposition of, on Bishop elect's neck, 575; the Great, title of, xxvii.

Bidding of Holydays, 171.

BIDDING PRAYER, a proclamation of persons commended to the prayers of the faithful, made by preachers before sermons (Can. 55).

Bidding Prayer, 172; in Ireland, 586.

Bidding Prayers; petition for giver of holy bread, 198.

Bill, King's printer, royal mandate to him A.D. 1661, xxxvii.

BISHOP, a Church officer of the highest order, having spiritual capacity to ordain and confirm in addition to the spiritual capacities belonging to the priesthood.

Bishop and Priest, Names of, not at first distinguished, 531.

Bishop or Priest, the proper Minister of Adult Baptism, 239.

Bishops, a distinct Order from Priests, 566; superiority of, "jure divino" asserted by Bancroft, 566; inherit the ordinary parts of the Apostolic office, 530; ordained by the Apostles, 531; Order of, essential, 531; no Church without, 543; succession of, 542; Fathers in God, 546; Election of, 568; to be consecrated by their Metropolitan, 567; three, required at a consecration of one, 567; consecrated in their own Cathedral, 567; Consecration of, held on Sundays or Holydays, 567; elect, habit of, at Consecration, 568; vestments of, as represented on Brasses, 574; vestments of, by 2nd Prayer Book of Edward VI., 574; Summary of ancient Offices for Consecration of, 534, 535; Delivery of Bible to, 538; five consecrated according to the Ordinal of 1549, 536; one consecrated according to the Ordinal of 1552, 536; of the same Province to assist at Consecrations, 567; deposed if only consecrated by two others, 567; Senior, consecrator in absence of the Archbishop, 567; Service for Consecration of, 1662, 537; special powers of, 543; only to ordain in their own diocese, 541; sanction required for Adult Baptism, 238.

"Black Rubric," 199.

Blasius, St., B. and M., [41].

Blessing in Communion Office, 195; in Marr. Service, 270.

Blood-thirsty, application of term, 395.

Blow on cheek in Confirmation, 252. 259.

Boanerges, meaning of, 80.

Bodleian Library Psalters, 314; MS., 292.

Body of the Church, why permitted for Celebration of H. C., 165; the place for Marriage, 263.

"Body prepared," LXX and Vulg., 370.

Bona, on Collects, 68; on Gloria in Excelsis, 194.

Boniface, St., 49; on Conditional Baptism, 235.

"Bonour" and "buxum," meaning of, 267, n. 6.

Book of Common Prayer, 1661, Preface of—its moderation—written by Sanderson, Bp. of Lincoln, 11; its chief Illustrators, and Commentators, v; National Versions of it, xlv; materials used in its composition, xxvii.

Book of the Gospels, reverence anciently shown to it, xlix.

Books of Hours, xxiv.

Books of Reference to Lessons, Gospels, and Epistles, xxiv.

Borromeo, Carlo, a Musical Commissioner, by appointment of the Council of Trent, lix.

Bouchier, his Commentary and early Calendar, 36.

Boughen, Edw., on Sign of Cross in Confirmation, 258.

Boughton Monchelsea, Espousals in register, 267.

Bowing at the Holy Name elsewhere than in the Creed, 20.

"Boy-Bishop," [61].

Boys, Dean, on the Prayer Book, v.

Bracara or Braga, Council of, on burial of suicides, 294.

"Bread," and "mingled wine," of Wisdom's Table, 152; breaking of, in Consecration, 187; fermented or leavened in Eastern Church, 198; for Sacramental use, 198.

Breastplate of Aaron, 407.

Breviary, Daily Services of, xxviii; its complex character, [63]; Hymns, unsuccessful attempts to translate them, lxii; Roman, Reformation of, xx; services, never familiar to the laity, xx.

Bride and Bridegroom in 45th Psalm, 378.

Bride, The voice of the, 330.

- BRIEFS, declarations and recommendations read after the Nicene Creed to commend special objects for the Offertory.
- Briefs, 171.
- Bright, Mr., on the Ancient Collects, 118.
- British Bishops, their independence, xvii. 47; Church, founded in Apostolic age, 532; represented at Councils, 532; mentioned by Fathers, 532; its Rites, its Bishops, xvii; Museum Psalters, 314.
- Britius or Brice, St., [59].
- Broadwater, Marriage custom at, 263.
- Brook, Lord, Anecdote of, 51.
- Brougham, Lord, on Lay Baptism, 213, n. 2.
- Bryling, Nicholas, Greek text of Ath. Creed, 45.
- Bucer, his desire for frequent Communion, 308; on frequent Communion, 177; his interference with Benediction of water, 225; his objection to answers of Sponsors, 224; his objection to the exorcism in Baptism, 219; his objection to prayers for the dead, 295; placed at Oxford by Somerset, xxx.
- Bull, Bishop, recites Bapt. Off. from memory, xxxvi; on Nicene Creed, 171, n. 1.
- Bunsen, on Liturgy of St. Mark, 146.
- Burial of the Dead, 293; Office, in what cases to be used, 293; Ps. xlii. formerly used, 295. 372; Office, Psalms, 369. 445; Office with Evensong at St. Paul's, 296.
- Burial with Christ in Baptism, 211.
- Burleigh, Lord, his challenge to Dissenters, xxxix.
- Burney, Dr., on Modern Jewish Music, lvi.
- Burn's Ecc. Law on Baptism by Midwives, 212.
- Burton, author of Anat. of Melancholy, used Wafer Bread, 198.
- "Buxum," meaning of, 267, n. 6.
- Cæsarea, Creed of, 170.
- Cæsarius of Arles, on Sursum Corda, 183; his Rogations, 46; Sermons on Advent, 72.
- CALENDAR, the list of months and days, together with the Sunday letters and Holydays.
- Calendar, Additions in 1661, [37]; alterations in 1752, [27]; changes in 1561, xxxv; of Church of England, Changes and Reformation, [36], [37]; of the Church of England, always local in character, [36]; Ecclesiastical, what it comprises, [36]; English, necessary changes in, 36; English, its transitions, [36]; the existing English, with whom it originated, [39]; Introduction to, [36]; of Lessons, 1549, xxviii. [25]; table of its Transition, [36].
- "Calendarium Floriacense," 36.
- Calendars, Byzantine, [37]; of the Church of England, published by Stationers' Company, [36]; their early use and origin, [36].
- Calvin's interference in the English Reformation, xxx, xxxi.
- Candlemas Day, why so called, 131.
- CANON.—1. The Prayer of Consecration. 2. An ecclesiastical law so called. 3. The official designation of certain dignitaries in Cathedral and Collegiate Churches.
- Canon 71, on private celebration, 290; 81, enjoins large stone font, 217; 18, on reverent gesture, 20; 20, requires flagon, 199; 29, altered in 1865, 216; its strictness partly accounted for, 217, n. 1; 30, on the Cross in Baptism, 227; 55, on Bidding Prayer, 172; 59, on Catechizing, 243; 60 and 61, on Confirmation, 253; 62, on Banns or Licence, 261, 262; 64, on bidding of Holydays, 171; 67, on Visitation of the Sick, 275; 68, on delaying Baptism, 216; on refusing to Bury, 293; 69, on deferring Baptism, 232; 112, on age for Communicants, 253; 113, on Seal of Confession, 283; Latin, of 1571 on Catechizing, 243; Law of Burial, 293, 294.
- Canon Missæ, 145. 186. 201. 203. 205.
- Canonical limitations as to hours and seasons for Marriage, 263.
- Canonization by the Popes, [36].
- Canons, early Eng., on Comm. of Sick, 289; how far binding on the Clergy and Laity, lxviii; of 1640, their design, lxviii.
- Cantate Domino, why inserted in Daily Service, 34.
- CANTICLE, a prose hymn used in Mattins and Evensong. All the Canticles are from Holy Scripture, except "Te Deum laudamus."
- Canticles, The, Ancient Ritualistic use of Holy Scripture, 9; their leading principle, 10.
- "Canticum de Evangelio," spoken of by St. Benedict, 16.
- "Cantus Ambrosianus," extended use of the term, lvii; Antiphonalis, 315; Collectarum, lviii. lx; Directus, 315; Prophetarum, lviii. lx; Responsarius, 315.
- Capella, Origin of the term, [59].
- Cappadocia, Martyrdom of St. Matthias, 133.
- Caps of children to be removed in Baptism, 226; to be worn by women to be Baptized, 240.
- Captivity of Church and Incarnation, 436.
- Cardwell, Dr., his suggestions as to the Revision of 1552, xxxi.
- Carter on Eucharistic words, 153.
- Carthage, 4th Council of, on Marriage, 261.
- Cassino, Mount, Cradle of Benedictine Order, [43].
- CASSOCK, the garment worn by ecclesiastics under their official vestments and at other times. The "apron" worn by Bishops, &c., is a cassock curtailed.
- Catalonian Pontifical on Confirmation Address, 256.
- Catechetical Lectures of St. Cyril of Jerus. and of St. Clem. Alex., 241; works of English Divines, 243.
- CATECHISM, an oral instruction to be learned by young persons, that they may be the better prepared to receive Confirmation.
- Catechism, basis of, 243; comprehensive but not exhaustive, 243; definition of in P. B., 244; on effect of Baptism, 213; Introduction to, 241; latter part of its history, 242; of 1549, Commandments in, 246; in P. B., origin of, 241; in Hermann's Consultatio, 242, n. 1; of Council of Trent, 242; in Latin and English of Poynt, 242.
- Catechisms, Protestant, 242.
- "Catechismus," derivation of, 241.
- Catechizing in Church not superseded by school work, 243; of our Lord, 241.
- Catechumens, admission of, 209, n. 4, 210; instruction of, 241.
- Cathari, or Puritans, their "baptism with fire," 210.
- "Cathedra Petri," an ancient Festival of SS. Peter and Paul, 131.
- Cathedral and Collegiate Churches to provide copies of Book of Common Prayer, [10].
- Cathedrals, &c., to observe rule of weekly celebration at least 198.
- Catholic Church of Christ, position of English Church in, [13].
- Cautelæ Missæ, 197.
- Caution to be observed in Vis. of Sick, 283, n. 1.
- Cecil licensed Poynt's Catechisms, 242.
- Cecilia, St., [61].
- Cedde, St., v. Chad.
- Celebrant, his office, his dress, his position at the Altar, 159; his posture in receiving, 189.
- Censing of the Altar, 149. 200.
- Cephas, 138.
- Ceremonial before Mossic Ritual, xlv; Worship, xlv; its principles, xlv. l, li; recognized and observed by our Lord, lxviii; as set forth by St. John, xlix, l.
- Ceremonies of the Ch. of England, explanatory Canon on, xxi; empty, condemned, lxviii; in some cases could not be reformed, [22]; their abuse illustrated, [21]; Christian, ordained by our Lord, lxviii; justification of, [20]. [22]; of human institution may be changed, [21], [22]; rights of National Churches to be respected [22]; St. Augustine on their excessive number [21]; why some were rejected, [21].
- Certification of Private Baptism, form of, 232.
- Chad, St., [43]; his custom in a thunder-storm, 50.
- CHALICE, the cup that is used in the celebration of the Holy Eucharist.
- Chambers' Translation of the Sarum Psalter, 21; Sarum Psalter, ending of Collects, 70.
- CHANCEL, the eastern division of a church, where the Altar and Choir are placed, and in which Divine Service is celebrated.
- Chancels, their desecration in the last century, 64.

Changes in Prayer Book after Hampton Court Conference, xxxvi;
 Liturgical in 1549, their nature and principles, xxviii.
 Chant of the old Litany retained and harmonized, lx.
CHAPEL, a building licensed for Church Services other than a Cathedral, Collegiate, or Parish Church.
 Charles I. and Liturgy for Scotland, 581; Martyrdom, Service abolished, [39]. 578.
 Charta, Cornutiana, 70.
CHASUBLE, the outermost and distinctive vestment of the priest who celebrates the Holy Eucharist: it is never worn at any other service. [See Ecc. Vestments, Plate I.]
 "Child of God," a Scriptural term, 244.
CHIMERE, the garment worn by a Bishop over his rochet, now usually of black satin, but properly of scarlet.
 Chimere, notices of, 574.
CHOIR.—1. The chorus or body of men and boys who sing in the Divine offices. 2. That part of a cathedral, church, or chapel, in which they sing (chancel).
 "Choir," its early use for our present word "answer," 8; of the Temple, Levites, 313; Surpliced, their origin, 313.
 Choral Processions in the Jewish Church, lii.
 Choristers of the Temple, liii.
 Chosen Disciples, The Three, their work and influence, 80.
CHRISM, holy oil used in anointing at Coronations, or in the unction of the Sick, provided for in the 1st Book of Edward
 VI.
 Chrism, used in Baptism, &c., 209, 210, 222, 227, Orig.; used in Confirmation, 251, 252, 258; when it was Consecrated, 99.
CHRISOM, the white robe formerly put on children when they were baptized.
 Chrisom, 209, 210, 222; formerly offered at Churchings, 306;
 in P. B. of 1549, 227.
 Christ, the True Bread from Heaven, 151; the Light, 485; the Representative Penitent, 322, 356, 385, 457, 516; and the Bride, 379, 502; bringing His sheaves home, 501; and the two-edged sword, 524; Creator of natural and spiritual world, 521.
 Christ's two Natures prophetically shown, 336, 351; glory that of His Church, 379, 480; Evening Sacrifice, 514; victory by Incarnation, 517.
 Christian Name used in offices of Church, 244; Service, the first, liv; Year, no way connected with January 1st, 83; the, beginning on Lady Day, 73.
 Christmas Day, how early the Festival was observed, 76; Sermons of Gregory Nazianzen and Basil, 77.
 Christmas Eve, coincidence in the Lesson and Psalm, 76, 379.
 Christmas and Epiphany Festivals, their association, 77; how it was anciently observed, 77; Psalms, 339, 377, 436, 441, 476, 504; Sarum Psalms, 377, 380, 414, 436, 441, 452, 454, 476—479, 484, 503, 504, 518, 520, 521.
 Chrysostom, St., on Baptism, 209; Christmas Homily, 76; eulogium of the Benedicite, 14; efforts to counteract Arian Hymns, lvii; Prayer of, first use in Western Ritual, 28; on Fasting, 90.
 Church, The, how it is made an Ark of safety, 87; of Jews and Christians continuous, 465; the true anima mundi, 459; its history in 106th Psalm, 467; its early refuges from persecution, 329; early British, 532; of England, Title found in Magna Charta, [2]; Music, its Divine authority, lii; no "Non-essential," lii; Song, its vicissitudes, lix; officers, representative, li.
 Churches of France and England, their early connexion, [39]. 147.
 Churches, their earliest form and arrangement, xlix.
 Churching of Women, 304; time for, 306; place for, 305;
 cloth, formerly at St. Benet's Gracechurch, 304; Psalms, 482, 501.
CHURCHWARDENS, lay officers appointed to take charge of the fabric and furniture of churches, to keep order during service, to present at visitations, &c.
CIBORIUM, a vessel for the reception of the consecrated wafers, 173, n. 2.
 Citations, 171.

Circumcision, Festival of, 82; its true idea, 83; Sarum Psalms, 339, 346, 377, 380, 439, 452—454.
 Clarendon, Lord, Anecdote of, xlii, n.
 Clee Church, dedication inscription, [59].
 Clement, St., of Alexandria, mentions Feast of Nativity, 77; cate-chized, 241; on Gloria Patri, 7.
 Clement, St., of Rome, [61].
 Clementine Liturgy, Position of Sanctus and Hosanna in, 183.
 Clergy and Lay people, distinction asserted, 540; nature of distinction, 540.
 Clergy and People, Prayer for, Cosin's proposed alterations in, 28.
 Clerk to accompany Priest in Vis. of Sick, 276, 277, marg.
CLERKS.—1. Ordained clerics. 2. Laymen assisting in Choir.
 Clerks, commonly reduced to one, [64]; to sing at burial of dead, 296.
 Clinic Baptism, 211.
 Cloveshoo, Council of, xviii.
 Clovis, Conversion of, [57].
 Coffins, baskets, or pots, in Ps. lxxxi., 433.
 Coke, Lord, on Confirming by name, 258, n. 2; on Pope Pius IV.
 and Prayer Book, xxxv.
 Colet, Dean, his intimacy with Erasmus, 242.
COLLECT, a short prayer (methodically constructed) either proper to a day, week, or season, or common to all times.
 Collect of the day, 69, 168; its office, rules for its use, 24; 2nd
 Even Song, ancient English Version, 38; 3rd Even Song, Cosin's proposed alteration, 40; Third, Old Rubric, 25; for Purity, 166; for Sovereign, 167; for early Christmas-day Communion, 77; for St. Stephen's Day, its enlargement in 1661, 79; for Epiphany, 6th Sunday Original by Bp. Cosin, its peculiar suitability, 88; for Easter procession, 105; after Baptism, its doctrinal import, 228; in Confirmation Office, 259; in Vis. of Sick, 285; in Burial Office, 300; Epistle and Gospel in Comm. of Sick, 289; for St. Mary Magdalen's Day, [51].
 Collects, Origin of Name, 69; structure and characteristics, 69, 70; comparison of two composed at an interval of 1000 years, 69; come to us chiefly from the 5th and 6th centuries, 68; their primary use—from ancient Sacramentaries, 70; New, in 1552, 1661, 70; Occasional, at end of Communion Office, 195; for Easter and Low Sunday changed in 1661, 107.
 Colloquial Tone in Divine Service, lix.
 "Collusion" in connexion with Private Baptism, 232.
 Colours, Ecclesiastical, English, lxxviii; comparative table of,
 lxxix.
 Comber, Dean, on use of Jubilate, 17
 "Comes" of St. Jerome, 70.
 Comfortable Words, 182.
 Commandments, their Eucharistic use and its probable origin, 166; in the "Great Bible" translation, 247.
 Commemoration of Founders and Benefactors, Psalms for, 518, 520.
 "Commemorations," [16]; of Departed, 302; of Departed in Primitive and in English Liturgies, 156, 176; of Martyrs, [36]; of B. V. Mary, 134.
 "Commendatio Animarum," 287.
 "Commendatio Benefactorum," Elizabethan form of, 303.
 Commendation of Souls, Sarum Psalms, 486, 511.
 Commendatory words in Burial Office, 298.
 Commentators on the Prayer Book, v.
COMMINATION, "A denouncing of God's anger and judgments against sinners," used on Ash-Wednesday, and "at other times as the Ordinary shall appoint."
 Commination, 307; when to be used, 307; formerly used on Sundays, 308; Psalm, 385.
 Commission to revise Calendar, xxxv.
 Committee of Convocation for Office of Adult Baptism, 237; for revision of 1661, xl; for Reform of Service Books, their cautious progress, xx, xxi.
 Committee of Revision, 1559, xxxiv; how their completed work was finally authorized, xxix.

- Common Order, Knox's Book of, xliv.
 "Common Prayer," a very ancient term, [2].
 Commons, House of, desire to enforce reverence, xlii; care to preserve Prayer Book and Act of Uniformity intact, xliii.
 COMMUNION, the receiving of the Body and Blood of Christ by the faithful in the "Lord's Supper," and the consequent union of them with Christ, and Christ with them.
 Communion with God by bodily acts chiefly, xlii.
 Communion, variable parts of Service, very ancient, 68; on Good Friday, 101; "Table," an objectionable term, not found in P. B., 164; Psalm xxxiv. in Lit. of St. James, 359; spiritual, 291; after Marriage, 262, 263, 273, 274; of the Sick, 289; of Clergy and People, 151, 189. [See Holy Communion.]
 Compatrini et Commatrinæ (sponsors), 222, Orig., 224.
 "Compiled," a term inapplicable to our Prayer Book, vi.
 Compline and the departed, 506.
 Conception of B. V. Mary, [61].
 "Concerning the Service of the Church," [15].
 Concessions offered by the Bishops at Savoy Conference, xxxix.
 Condensation of Old Services, xxviii.
 Conditional Baptism, 235.
 Conditions proposed by St. Augustine to British Bishops, xviii.
 Confederacies against Christ, 435.
 "Confess," word formerly used where now "Confirm," 241, 255.
 Confession and Absolution in Communion Office, 149, 181, 200.
 Confession, Auricular, or private, 283; national, in 106th Psalm, 466; law of Ch. of Eng. on, 283; private, remedial, 177; of Sick, various directions for, 283; in Visit. of Sick, 283.
 CONFIRMATION, the laying on of hands by a Bishop, for the purpose of strengthening persons in the grace of Baptism by a further outpouring of the Holy Spirit.
 "Confirm," confusion in use of term, 241, 255.
 Confirmation, a Sacrament, 252; connected with Catechizing, 241; act of, 258; custom of modern Eng. Bishops in, 252, and n. 1; in mediæval English Church, 251—260; in Eastern Church, 252, 257, n. 1; "a lesser Ordination," 253; essential to perfection of Christian life, 251; effect of, 253; followed by Baptism immediately, 251; to follow Adult Baptism, 238; of Infants, 251; separated from Baptism in later days, 252; necessary before Holy Communion, 251, 260; frequency of, 253, and n. 2; Office, 254; Introduction to, 251; in P. B. of 1549, 254, &c.; act of, 258; Office, mediæval, 256, Orig. &c.; Address of Bp. Cosin, 256; age for, 253, and n. 3; blow on cheek in, 252, 259; change of name in, 258, n. 2; Chrism in, 251, 252, 258; the complement of Baptism, 253; sign of Cross in, 252, 258.
 Congregation, meaning of, 564; synonymous with Church, 564.
 CONSECRATION.—1. The priestly act whereby the Eucharistic elements become the Body and Blood of Christ. 2. The Episcopal act whereby other Bishops are made. 3. The solemn Benediction and de-secularization of churches, &c.
 Consecration of Bishops, anciently at the third hour, 567; always preceded the Gospel, 567; before the Epistle in the Greek Church, 567; of churches, service in Irish Prayer Book, 586; Service, the first, liii; Services, modern, liii; Prayer of, 186; of Elements, effected by words of Institution, 187; great exactness and reverence necessary in, 187, 188; in Holy Eucharist, its effect, 155.
 Consent, Mutual, 265.
 Constantinople, its Arian Hymnology, lvii; Council and Creed of, 170.
 Constitutions, Archbp. Grey's, Archbp. Peckham's, Archbp. Winchelsy's, lxxiv.
 Consuetudinary of Sarum, on Festival of Annunciation, 133.
 Contact of water necessary in Baptism, 212—226.
 "Contestatio," Gallican term for Proper Preface, 185.
 Contracts of de futuro and per verba de presenti, 267.
 "Convenient," meaning of term, 274, 306; number to communicate required by ancient Councils, 197; place for Churching, 305.
 Convocation, Office for meeting of, 580; Prayer for, included in that for Parliament, 61.
 Conybeare and Howson referred to, Life and Labours of St. Paul, 131.
 COPE, a vestment like a long cape or cloak, worn in solemn services, processions, &c. [See Ecc. Vestments, Plate II.]
 Cope worn by Bishop Cosin, 574; substituted for Chasuble, 159.
 Copes, when worn by Bishops, 574; worn in Convocation, 1562 and 1640, 574.
 Coptic Liturgy of St. Mark, 146.
 Cornelius and his household baptized, 211.
 Cornelius à Lapide, calculation regarding the miracle of the loaves, 95.
 Cornu Altaris, 160.
 Coronation Office, Prayer of Oblation in, 174.
 Coroner's warrant for burial, 294.
 CORPORAL, the white linen cloth on which the Elements are consecrated; it lies upon and in the centre of that which covers the Altar.
 Corporal, 191.
 Correctors of the Press for Prayer Book of 1662, xlii.
 Cosin, Bishop, his Liturgical learning, Preface vi; his Durham Prayer Book, xli; his careful directions to the Printer, xlii; his statement on Rubrics, xxi; his prophetic desire to place the Rubric beyond controversy, lxxv; his note to the first Rubric, lxvi; Collects which he composed or compiled, 70; Additional Proper Psalms proposed by him, [26]; "Tables and Rules" from his Private Devotions, [27]; additions to Calendar from his Private Devotions, [37]; his wish to revive the use of invitatories, 7; his Rubric on Antiphonal use of Psalms, 8; his Rubric on singing the Lessons, 9; on "Jube," 307; his Ember Collect, 63; his Thanksgiving for restoration of peace, 67; his alteration of Collect for St. Stephen, 79; his Collect for Third Sunday in Advent, 74; his Collect for Sixth Sunday after Epiphany, 87; his Collect for Easter Even, 102; his Collect for Rogation days, 110; his Rubric as to position and furniture of Holy Table, 165; his Rubric on Epistles and Gospels, 168; his proposed Rubric with regard to Alms, 199; his classification of Offertory sentences, 174; his propositions with regard to Church Militant Prayer, 175; on Exhortations in Communion Office, 177, 180; his alteration of Prayer of Humble Access, 186; his alteration of Rubric on Confession in Communion Service, 182; his proposed restoration of ancient mode of Consecration, 186; alterations after Prayer of Consecration, 189; on position of Prayer of Oblation, 192; on Eucharist for Departed, 192, 296; his emendation of Rubric on Occasional Collects, 195; his alterations of Final Rubrics of Communion Office, 197; on Solitary Masses, 198; his emendation of Rubric in Baptismal Office, 217; his direction for kneeling at Font, 218; his directions for Gospel at Baptism, 220; his wish to restore old custom in Baptismal Confession of Faith, 223; on Benediction of Water, 225; his alterations in Form of Baptismal Renunciation, 222; his alterations in Baptismal Interrogations, 224; first introduced Vow of Obedience in Baptismal Office, 223; his alterations in Exhortation to Sponsors after Baptism, 229; his addition to Rubric on Minister of Baptism, 213; on certification of Private Baptism, 232; his transference of Lord's Prayer in Private Baptism, 233; his alteration at end of Office for Private Baptism, 234; on Office for Adult Baptism, 236; on latter part of Catechism, 242; on Sacrament of Confirmation, 252; on Confirmation Office, 254, 255; MS. Confirmation Address of, 256; on lax practice in Confirmation, 253; on Impediments of Marriage, 262; on times for Marriage, [28], 262; on procession in Marriage Service, 271; his alterations in Marriage Exhortation, 264; his proposal regarding delivery of money in Marriage, 268, 269; on Comm. after Marriage, 274; on Confession of Sick, 283; his provision for responses in Visitation of the Sick, 276; his Rubric after Vis. Office, 288; on Puritan objection to Christian burial, 296; on burial in Divine Service, 296; suggested first Rubric of Burial Office, 293; on custom of Priest casting earth, 298; his introduction of Benediction in Bur. Office, 301; on time for Churching, 306; his Rubric for Churching of Women, 304; his

- alterations in Communion Service, 307; revised Service for Nov. 5, 578; his four sets of notes on the Book of Common Prayer, xli.
- Council of Laodicea ordered alternate use of Psalms and Lessons, 9.
- Council of Maçon enforced observance of Advent, 73; forbade Baptism save at Easter, 216.
- Conc. Nannetens. on Visit. of Sick, 280.
- Councils enjoined Visit. of Sick, 275.
- Covers for Chalices, 188, n. 1.
- Covering Consecrated Elements, 191.
- Coverings and hangings anciently used for Altars and Chancels, lxxviii.
- Cramp rings, their use and origin, [57]; Service for consecrating them, 580.
- Cranmer, Abp., his answer to Devonshire rebels, 216, n. 1; asserted antiquity of the Prayer Book, xxx; his efforts for Ritual revision, xx; his letter to the King, xxi; on Rites and Ceremonies, [2].
- Creation, its true story truly told by the Creator, 461.
- CREED, a form of words in which the Church solemnly asserts the Catholic Faith. The three Creeds are also used as Christian Hymns or Canticles.
- Creed, Apostles', traced back to the time of the Apostles, 18; as stated by Irenæus, 18; its form in the latter part of the fourth century, 17; used in its present form in the eighth century, 17; ancient tradition of the early Church, 18; numerous versions of it in early English, 36, 37; ancient Trilingual version, 36; always used in the daily Offices of the Church of England, 17; its position in the Service, 19; an expository paraphrase of it, 20.
- Creed, Athanasian, supposed origin, 41; Confession of Orthodoxy against heresy, 42; in ancient usage always sung, 41; expository notes on, 42.
- Creed, Nicene, 169.
- Creed in Bapt. Office, 228; in Baptism, how divided in first Eng. Office, 223.
- CREDENCE, the side-table on which the Elements are placed previous to the lesser Oblation or Offertory.
- Credence Table, 159; sanctioned by the Queen in Council, lxxi.
- Creeping to the Cross, what it was, 100.
- Crisis of Old and New Dispensation, 480.
- Crispin, St., [57].
- "Cristene," for "Baptize," in baptismal Form, 231, Orig.
- Critics, Modern, on the Psalter, 313.
- Cross.—1. The sacred sign used in Holy Baptism, &c. 2. The Ornament placed over the centre of the Altar, and used generally as a badge of Christianity.
- Cross of St. Andrew, [45]; a part of our national banner, 129; sign of the Son of Man, 439; sign of Christ Triumphant, 436; in Baptism, 209, n. 6, 210; its lawful use in Baptism explained, 227, n. 1; over the Altar, 159; the reverence to it always popular, 100; sign of, in Benediction of Water, 225, and n. 1; sign of, in Confirmation, 252, 258; sign of, in Marriage Benedictions, 270, 272, 273; buns, their probable origin, 151, n. 4; quarter days, [53]. [59].
- CROZIER, the Cross borne by or before Archbishops only. The term is often, but incorrectly, applied to the crook or pastoral staff proper to the Episcopal Order generally.
- CURATE.—1. Any person having the cure of souls committed to him by the Bishop. 2. One acting for a beneficed cleric. [See Canons of 1604.]
- "Curate," old use of term, 28, 254, 551; comprehensive sense of word, 232, n. 1.
- Chrysostom, St., Liturgy of, 146, 173; Prayer of, 196; on Eucharistic Commemorations, 156; on Amen after Prayer of Consecration, 189; on Sursum Corda, 183; on Gloria in Excelsis, 194.
- Curtains at ends of Altar, 165.
- Custom, gives some sanction to neglect of rule, lxxix.
- Cuthbert, St., Confirmations by, 252.
- Cyprian, St., on the Apostolic Hours of Prayer, [62]; on Common Prayer, 2; on Martyrdom of the Innocents, 81; on Sursum Corda, 183; on Baptism, 209; on the Minister of Baptism, 212; on Infant Baptism, 215; on Interrogatory in Baptism, 222; on Benediction of Water, 224; on heretical baptism, [55]; on Confirmation, 251; on Creed in Baptism, 223; on clinic baptism, 211; on burial, 295, n. 2.
- Cyril, St., his exposition of the Lord's Prayer, 31; on Lord's Prayer at Greater Oblation, 191; on mode of receiving Elements, 190, 191; on Confirmation, 251.
- Cyril, St., of Jerusalem on Eucharistic Commemorations, 156; on Sursum Corda and Tensanctus, 183; on Baptism, 209; on Bapt. Renunciation, 222; on Benediction of Water, 224; on Creed in Baptism, 223; on effect of Baptism, 213; Catechetical Lectures of, 91, 241.
- Daily Celebration, 161; no Canon respecting, in English Church, 162; provided for in P. B. of 1549, 162.
- Daily Morning Prayer, Cosin on its proper beginning, 5; Offices, whence derived, 62; Prayer enjoined, 20; where to be said, 64; Service Books, early endeavours to render them intelligible, xix; Service, duty of Laity, [20]. [63]; principle of clerical use of, [19]; coincidences of the Scriptures in, &c., 416.
- DALMATIC, the outer vestment of the Gospeller at the Holy Eucharist. [See Ecc. Vestments, Plate I.]
- Damasus, Pope, and the Benedicite, 15; and the Lectionary, 70.
- Daniel on Gloria in Excelsis, 194, 195.
- David, a declared Prophet, 333; his office as chief Psalmist, 313; type of Captain of our Salvation, 517.
- David, St., [48].
- Davies's Rites of Durham on the Jube, 307.
- Day, John, his great choral work, lxxiii.
- Daye's Hermann, 215, 217, 218, 220, 221, 256, 259, Orig.; on joining hands in marriage, 270.
- DEACON, a Church officer of the third order, whose duty it is to assist the priest in divine service and pastoral work.
- Deacon, his duties at the altar, 160; not to say Absolution, 4; not to celebrate marriage, 264.
- Deacons, Baptism by, 550; Delivery of New Testament to, 538, 552; Reading of Gospel by, 552; form and manner of making, 545; Habit of candidates, 546; Prayers common to various offices for making, 532; Revision of Service for making, 1662, 537; Summary of office for making, 532, 533; to continue in their office one year, 541.
- Deadly sins, the seven, 245.
- Death unto sin in Baptism, 213.
- Decalogue, probable origin of its Eucharistic use, 166.
- DECANI and CANTORIS, the two sides of a choir, on one of which is the stall of the Dean or other principal officer, and on the other that of the Precentor.
- "Declare," "Declaratory," meaning of, 5.
- Declaration on kneeling, 199.
- Dedication of Church, Sarum Psalms, 379, 380, 435, 439, 446, 452, 455.
- Delegates of press at Oxford, their alteration of rubric, 262.
- Delivery of Elements to each person separately, 190; various forms in, 189; into hands, 190.
- Deluge, its typical import, 218.
- Demoniack possession, deep sense of it in the Early Church, 94.
- Demons cast out, a continuation of our Lord's personal victory over Satan, 94.
- Denial of Cup to Laity, 150.
- Denton on the Lord's Prayer, referred to, 248.
- Denys, St., or Dionysius, [57]; Areopagite, of France, [39]. [57].
- "Depart," old Eng. word for part asunder, 267.
- Departed, commemorated in H. Eucharist, 156, 174, 175, 192; Sarum Psalms for the, 399, 482, 486, 496, 497, 503, 510, 511, 518, 520, 522—524.
- Depraving of Common Prayer forbidden, [4], [5].
- Deprivation of Ministers, 283, n. 2.
- Descent into Hell, 20, 102, 440, 473.
- Desecrated Churches, Service for in Irish Prayer Book, 586.
- Development of Liturgy, a gradual process, 145.
- Devonshire Rebels, their demands, and Cranmer's reply, xx.

- Dickinson, his list of printed Service Books, xix.
 Diocletian persecution in Ps. lxxxiii., 434.
 "Dionysius the Areopagite," on Oblation of Elements, 172.
 Dipping of the Child in Baptism, 226.
 Diptychs, Names of Martyrs inscribed on, 36; their Eucharistic use, 149. 156.
 Directorium Pastorale on Abstinence, 91; on Baptism by surgeons, 212, n. 1; rules for avoiding infection, 292.
 Directory, Presbyterian form of Communion, 207.
 "Disciplina arcani" with regard to H. Eucharist, 146, n. 2.
 Discipline, disuse of, 162; the difficulty of enforcing it, lxviii.
 Discretion, years of, 238.
 Dissenters, Burial of, 293; Prayer Book, xxxix.
 Distribution of Elements in Comm. of Sick, 290.
 "Divine Service," meaning of term, lxx. [15]. 296; Worship, its central point, 24.
 Doctors, Four great, [43]. [45]. [53]. [55].
 Doctrine of Holy Communion, 151.
 Documents relating to Act of Uniformity, lxxiv, lxxv.
 Dogs, Non-Christian Jews so called, 395, 396.
 Dominica Expectationis, 111.
 "Dominicæ Vagantes," 128.
 Dominical or Sunday letter, [29]. [34]. [35].
 Donne, Dr., Marriage sermon, 274.
 Door of the church ancient place for Churching of Women, 304.
 Doubtful Baptism, 240.
 Doubts, Ritual, how to solve them, lxx. [18].
 Doxology at end of Exhortation in Comm. Office, 180; of Lord's Prayer, 6; of 107th Psalm, 472; proper to Benedicite, 15; the Great, 194.
 "Duly," equivalent to Latin "Rite," 193.
 Dunstan, St., [47].
 Duppa, Bishop, his Prayer Book, 51; on Churching of Women, 305; private prayers, 578; opinion of Scottish Liturgy, 582.
 Durandus, a laborious and painstaking writer, 72; on connexion between Christ and His Martyrs, 78; on Canonical seasons for Marriage, 263; on Missa Sicca, 197; on the time of observing Lent, 89; on the use of the Venite, 8; on three Epiphanies, 83.
 Durel's Latin Prayer Book, 586.
 Durham Cathedral, Copes worn at, 159.
 Duty to God and our neighbour on tablets at Ely, 242; towards God, 247; towards neighbour, 248.
 Dying, Holy Communion administered to, 289.
 Dykes, Dr., on manner of performing Divine Service, li.
 Dymchurch, register at, on prohibited seasons for marriage, 263.
- Endfrid, his gloss on the Evangelists, 31.
 Early Church, its witness to the principle of Ceremonial Worship, lxviii.
 Ears, opening or piercing the, 370.
 Earth cast on body at burials, 298.
 East, Turning to the, 7. 19.
 Easter, time of its celebration, [29]. 104, 105; error in tables, to find, [27]; festival, former extension to seven days, 105; its names, 104; notices given for its uniform celebration, 104; principal festival of the year in early Church, 103; Day, two celebrations in the Salisbury Use, 105; Anthems, Latin and English, 105; Psalms, 319. 392. 477. 479. 480. 484; Psalm, Sarum, 318.
 Easter Even "a high day" in the Jewish Ritual, 102; Baptisms on, in early Church, 102; ancient Collects and alterations, 102; Sarum Psalms, 318. 332. 333. 316. 349. 353. 388. 421.
 Eastern Church, its conservation of ancient customs and formularies, 68. 72; Liturgy of, 146; its prayers long and involved, 69; its regulations for vestments, lxxvii. lxxix; resistance to insertion of Filioque, 170; its form in Baptism, with possible origin, 211, n. 1; Form of Baptismal Renunciation, 222; uses Nicene Creed at Baptism, 223; Confirmation in, 252. 257, n. 1; Daily Morning Psalm, 320; Baptismal office, 223. 225.
 Ecclesiastical censures, lxxix.
Ectene, represented in our Offices, 46. 48. 167.
- Edgar, K., Canon of, on Comm. of Sick, 289.
 Edmund, K., his law of Marriage, 261.
 Edmund, St., [59].
 Edward, St., King of W. Saxons, [43]; translation, [49].
 Edward, Confessor and King, [57].
 Edward VI.'s First Liturgy in extenso, 202.
 Effect of Holy Baptism, 213.
 Egbert, Archbishop of York, his Confirmation Office, 252. 257; Excerpts of, on Viaticum, 289; Excerpts of, on burial, 294; on Spiritual Comm., 291.
 Egypt a type of Antichrist, 428.
 Ἐκκλησιασθήναι, Greek term for Churching of Women, 304, n. 1.
 Elborow on burial of dead, 298, n. 1; on veil at Churchings, 304.
 "Elect of the Elect" among our Lord's Disciples, 80.
 ELEMENTS, the outward visible signs or substances in the Sacraments, technically called materies or "matter."
 Elements, Oblation of, 174; offered by people in primitive Church, 198; delivery of, 189; remaining after Comm. of Sick, how to be disposed of, 291.
 Elizabeth, Queen, her measures to silence disputes, xxxiii.
 Elvira, Council of, on Lay Baptism, 212.
 Ely Cathedral, sculptures relating to St. Etheldreda, [57].
 EMBER seasons, the Quatuor tempora or four times in the year set apart for Ordinations, said to have been called Quatember from the Latin, and hence Ember.
 Ember Days, 63. 75. 92. 544.
 Emblems of Saints, 39—61.
 Embolismus, 6. 191.
 Emergency, Baptism in cases of, 211.
 Empire Spiritual, 319.
 "Endeavour themselves," illustrations of term, 256.
 Enemies of the Psalmist, of what typical, 322.
 "Engagement," substitute for ancient betrothal, 267.
 English Liturgy, its Gallican origin—revisions by SS. Augustine and Osmund, basis of present Vernacular Liturgy, 147.
 Entrance, Great and Little, 169. 173.
 Epact, meaning and use, [31].
 Ephesus, its importance as abode of St. John, 80; Liturgy of, 147. 225.
 Ἐφῶδιον, Eastern name for Viaticum, 289.
 Epiphanius, on Eunomian Baptism, 211; on Prayer for Dead, 301.
 Epiphany, as the close of Christmas-tide, 83, 84; Unity and fitness of Scriptures for, 84; 6th Sunday after, an addition of 1661, 87; 3rd Sunday after, Offertory sentence for, 86; of Christ as a Divine Healer of our infirmities, 86; Sarum Psalms, 351. 379. 380. 402. 414. 437. 451—453.
 Episcopate, Divinely instituted, 530; distinguished from Presbyterate jure divino, 566; called an Order by Isidore, 566; includes within it the Priesthood, 566.
 EPISTLE, the portion of Holy Scripture read before the Gospel in the Liturgy, generally taken from one of the Apostolic Epistles, sometimes from the Acts or Prophets.
 Epistle and Gospel read from "Jube," 307; and from a Lectern, 168.
 Epistles and Gospels, their arrangement, 70.
 Epistles, Ancient, at Consecration of Bishops, 570; at Ordering of Deacons, 549; at Ordering of Priests, 556.
 EPISTOLER, the minister who reads the Epistle and acts as sub-deacon at a celebration.
 Epitaph on two Infants, 81.
 Epitome of the Gospel, Ps. i.—iv., 321.
 Erasmus, possibly author of latter part of Catechism, 242, n. 6.
 Erle, Chief Justice, his decision respecting Chancels, [64].
 Escott v. Martin, case of, 213, n. 2.
 Escorial, Palace of, [53].
 Espousals, 267, n. 1.
 Essentials of Holy Baptism, 210. 226.
 Etheldreda, St., her history in Sculptures at Ely, [57].
 Ethelred, King, his Ecclesiastical Laws, 27.
 EUCHARIST, the Christian sacrifice of praise and thanksgiving, wherein we "show forth the Lord's death till He come."

- Eucharist, its first celebration, liv; Power of Consecrating, when first expressly stated in Ordering of Priests, 539; conveys Divine Presence, 155; a Sacrifice for the benefit of the whole Church, 156. 192; a means of union with God, 157; a symbol, and a means, of union among Christians, 157; strengthening and refreshing the soul, 158.
- Eucharistia, a term applied to Holy Communion in Daye's transl. of Hermann, 217.
- Eucharistic Worship, the only distinctively Christian worship, [63]; preparation, Psalms for, xxvi., 349; xxxiv., 359; Sacrifice, its relation to Jewish Sacrifices, 155; its relation to the Sacrifice on the Cross, 155.
- Eudoxia, Empress, lvii.
- Eunomian form of Baptism, 211.
- Eunuchus, St., [55].
- Eusebius, Martyr of Alexandria, 78; what he records of St. Thomas, 130.
- Evangelical interpretation, Key to, 360.
- EVE or EVEN, the day before a Festival. [See VIGIL.]
- Evening Celebrations, condemned by Fathers, 161.
- Evens or Vigils, the distinction and reasons, [28].
- EVENSONG, the order for Evening Prayer, representing the ancient offices of Vespers and Compline.
- Evensong, its comprehensive meaning, lii; an anticipation of Rest, 35. 506.
- Evidence of a common early Formula, "A Rule of Truth," 18.
- Exactness necessary in adm. of Baptism, 226.
- Examination, Ancient, of Priests at Ordination, 558; by Bishop to precede Ordination, 541; in Consecration of Bishops, 571; of Sick person, 282.
- Examination for Orders, subject of, 542; days appointed for, 541.
- Examiners for Orders, 541; number of, 542.
- "Exapostelaria" and Collects, 68, 69.
- "Excellent things" in Ps. lxxxvii., 439.
- Excommunicate persons, Burial of, 293.
- EXCOMMUNICATIONS, forms of words by which notorious offenders are cut off from the privileges of Church membership.
- Excommunications, 171.
- Exeter, Bp. of, Speech on Marriage, 262.
- Exhortation in our office from "Order of Communion", 150; to Communion, Old English form of, 178; upon the Gospel in Bapt. Office, 220; to Sponsors after Baptism, 229; of Sick, ordered by ancient Canons, 280; previous to Marriage, 263; after Marriage, 273; Ancient, by Bishop at Ordering of Priests, 555.
- Exhortations in Communion Office, 176.
- Exorcism in Baptism, 94. 210; in Baptismal Office of 1549, 219.
- Expectation of the B. V. M., 133.
- Extreme Unction, 275.
- Fabian, St., [39].
- "Fair", its meaning as applied to linen cloth, 164.
- Faith, and superstition distinguished, 245; necessity of, 42—45. 245; St., [57].
- FALDSTOOL, the small kneeling-desk at which the Litany is sung or said; its use enjoined, 48.
- Falling sickness, Gospel used against, 210.
- Family prayer an imperfect substitute for Divine Service, [20].
- FAST, a time set apart for especial self-discipline and humiliation, and the practice of mortification. [See ABSTINENCE.]
- Fast before Easter, from the earliest Christian times, its duration varied, 90.
- Fasting enjoined before Holy Communion, 161; Homily on, 91; of the early Christians, its mode, 90; rules for practice of, 91.
- Fathers, Bishops anciently called, 568.
- Faulkner v. Lichfield, opinions of the Judges, lxxi.
- Feasts and Fasts, Tables and Rules for, 26.
- Felicitas, St., an African Martyr, 43.
- "Felo de se," burial of, 294.
- Ferial and Festival Lauds, Sarum, 399.
- FESTIVAL, a day set apart for the celebration of some great event connected with our blessed Lord or His saints, called also a Holyday.
- Festival, Christmas, its great importance in both religious and social life, 77; of three or seven days at Easter, 105.
- Festivals of our Lord, idea on which the whole cycle is founded, 83.
- "Fides Catholica," earliest title of Athanasian Creed, 41.
- Fifth of November Service, 578.
- "Fili David," an ancient Liturgical expression, 586.
- "Filioque" in Nicene Creed, 170.
- Final Court of Appeal, lxx.
- Fire of London Service, 579.
- First-fruits Offering, 3. 53.
- Five Prayers, The, after the Collects, when to be used, 25.
- Flagellants, their "baptism of blood," 211.
- FLAGON, the vessel used to contain the wine previous to the lesser oblation, sometimes used also in the consecration.
- FONT, the stone vessel which contains the water for Holy Baptism.
- Font, Benediction of, 209, 210. 222; blessed on Easter Eve, origin of custom, 216; proper position of, 217; to be emptied after Baptism, 225.
- Food of body, its action compared with that of Sacramental Food, 158.
- Forbes, Bp., on Nicene Creed, 171, n. 1; Eucharistic Sacrifice, 188, n. 2.
- Foreign Reformers, how far they influenced Prayer Book, xxvii—xxx.
- Foreigners thrust into important offices by Somerset, xxx.
- "Form" at Consecration of Bishops not found in early English Pontificals, 575; at Consecration of Bishops in the Greek Church, 575; of Vestments, lxxx.
- Forms and Ceremonies, xlv; of Dean Granville for Private Confession, 283, n. 3; ordinary, 284.
- Formularies, Ancient, when found unsuitable, and why? xix; of the Church of England, always distinctive, xvii.
- Forty days of Lent, variously computed, 90.
- Fothergill, his Prayer Book in eleven vols.—collection of old English Service Books, vi; MS. on St. Barnabas, 136; MS. on Confirmation, 253.
- Founders and Benefactors, Psalms for, 518—520.
- Four meanings of Holy Scripture, 316.
- Fourth finger why ring finger, 269.
- France, King of, nominates Bishops by Concordat, 569.
- Freeman, Archd., on Gallican origin of English Liturgy, 147; on Gloria in Excelsis, 194; on likeness between Eastern Hymns and Western Collects, 68; on the 1552 Revision, xxxi; on Words of Institution, 187, n. 1.
- French Church, ancient Bapt. Office of, 217; early publication of banns in, 261; early Liturgy of, 147.
- French saints in the Calendar, 37.
- French translation of Prayer Book, 19. 586.
- Frequency of celebration of Holy Communion, 161; enjoined in English Church, 162.
- "Frères Cordonniers," their origin, [57].
- Frewen, Archbishop, xl.
- Friends and neighbours to be present at Marriage, 263.
- FRONTAL, the antependium or vestment that hangs around and in front of the Altar.
- Fulda, Abbey of, its Preces, 46. 53, 54.
- Furniture of God's House, should be reverent in character, li.
- Gabriel the Archangel, his day, 141.
- Gallican Liturgy, xviii. 147; Mass for St. Stephen's Day, 79; origin of Prayer in Benediction of Water, 224, 225, Orig.; rite of Confirmation, 256; version of Psalters, 815.
- "Gang Days," 111.
- Gardiner, Bishop, accepted the Prayer Book xxx.
- Garter, Order of, [45].
- Gates of Brass and Iron, 342.
- Gauden, Bp., on Black Rubrics, 199.
- Gawdie, Sir F., case of, 258, n. 2.

- Γεγένηται, κ.τ.λ., explained, 245.
- Gelasian and Gregorian Sacramentaries, 24—27.
- Gelasian Baptismal Office, on Deluge, 218; interrogatories in, 222; Sacramentary, rule for Processional Litanies, 47.
- Gelasius, Reconc. Penit., 285, marg.
- General Assembly of 1616, and Scottish Liturgy, xlv.
- General Confession, how to be said, 3; Thanksgiving, its authorship, 66.
- "General," &c., sense of, in 16th and 17th Centuries, 249.
- "Generally necessary," meaning of, in Catechism, 249.
- George, St., his cross united with those of SS. Andrew and Patrick in the national ensign, [45].
- George L., Litany at his Coronation, 48.
- German origin of Prayers in Bapt. Office, 218—221; use of Media Vita, 297.
- Germanus on Gallican Liturgy, 148.
- Gestures in Divine Service, li. 3. 7.
- Gibson, Bp., on use of Burial Service, 293.
- Giles or Egidius, St., [53].
- Glastonbury Prayer Book of Pollanus, 167.
- Gloria in Excelsis, 193; position of Priest at, 193, n. 1; its possible origin, 193; expanded form, 194; position of, in Liturgies, 194; limitation respecting its use, [20].
- Gloria Patri, Variations in, 7.
- Godfathers and Godmothers, number of, 216; mouth-pieces of child, 224. 246.
- "Godly discipline," 309.
- "God's help" invoked, a form of oath, 246; "holy will and commandments," 245.
- "God's board," an ancient designation of Altar, 178.
- Gold and silver given at Marriage, 268.
- Golden Numbers, [29]; Litany, word "buxomnes" in, 267, n. 6; Rose, 94.
- Good Friday, its various names, 100; how anciently observed, 100; the hours of, illustrated, 100; how observed in Eastern Church, 101; churches hung in black, 101; Psalms, 342. 370. 388. 408. 439; Sarum Psalms, 342. 349. 367. 370. 388. 395. 419. 449. 483. 497. 513—515.
- Good Physician, manifestation of His power, 86.
- Goodrich, Bp., reputed author of part of Catechism, 242.
- GOSPEL.—1. The history of the Life of our Lord as recorded by the Four Evangelists. 2. A portion selected from this history, appointed to be read in the Liturgy.
- Gospel, 70. 168; The, found in the Psalms, 317; for the Circumcision, Rubric after it, 83; in Bapt. Office, 220.
- Gospels, Ancient, at Ordering of Deacons, 549; at Ordering of Priests, 557; at Consecration of Bishops, 568.
- Gospels and Epistles later than essential portions of Liturgy, 146; changes in them, 71.
- GOSPELLER, the Minister who reads the Gospel, and acts as Deacon, at a Celebration.
- Goulburn on Communion Office, 70.
- Gown, once commonly used in preaching, 172.
- Grace, what it is, 158; Collect for, Gregorian and Roman forms, 25; prefigured by natural provision, 521.
- Gradual Psalms, 496—506.
- Grant on the Bills of Mortality, [14].
- Granville, Dean, his Office for private Confession, 284, n. 3; anecdote about Scottish Liturgy, 582.
- Great Sabbath, 102.
- Greater Festivals, their central position in a series of days, 72.
- Greek Ch., burial custom in, 298; Prayer for Dead in, 301.
- Greek original of Preface in Comm. Office, 182; terms connected with H. Eucharist, 153; words in Kyrie indicative of Eastern origin, 167; version of Prayer Book, [18].
- Gregory, St., his Sacramentary, what it represents, xviii; his revision of Roman Liturgy, 146; the great originator of mission to England, [43]; advice to St. Augustine, xviii; Proper Preface for Circumcision, 83; on Churching of Women, 304; reformer of Church music, lvii.
- Gregorian chants in Merbecke, li; Gregorian music, lviii. [43]; difficulty of adapting it to English words, lix.
- Gregory Nazianzen, on Choir veil or screen, xlix; on Private celebration, 290.
- Gregory, of Nyssa, on trine immersion, 211.
- Gregory of Tours, on his predecessor Perpetuus, 73; Hist. Francor., quotations from, 46; and Gregory the Great, on Lord's Prayer, 191.
- Grindal, Abp., his order to use Communion Service on certain Sundays, 308; his order to read Ep. and Gosp. from Chancel-screen, 307; on Churching of Women, 304.
- Gueranger on corruptions of Roman Liturgy, 150.
- Guidetti, coadjutor of Palestrina in revising Church Song, lix.
- Gunning, Bp., his instrumentality in the restoration of the Prayer Book, 65; on Black Rubric, 199.
- Gunpowder Plot Service, 578.
- Habit of Bishop elect at Consecration, 568; proper for Candidates for Deacon's Orders, 546; proper for Candidates for Priest's Orders, 554.
- Hale's Precedents, Cases of Churching of Women in, 304; on Godly discipline, 309; referred to on hours of Marriage, 262.
- Hallelujah, 405; its first use in the Psalms, 464; in Prayer Books of 1549—1552, 1637, 1661, 7; the Great, 194. 479.
- Hammond on Catechizing, 243.
- Hampton Court Conference, 4; an effort to convince Non-conformists, lxviii; abruptly broken up, xxxvi; on "lawful minister" of Baptism, 213.
- Hands to receive the Elements, 190.
- "Hard Sayings," illustrated, 428.
- Harvest Thanksgiving, admirable Collect for, 110.
- Harvey on the Creeds, 19. 41.
- Hawaiian Version of the Book of Common Prayer, xlv.
- Head of Child to have water poured on it, 226.
- "Healing," Note on Office for, 580.
- Heaven, The Worship of, l.
- Heber, Bp., on Prayer for the Dead, 381.
- Hebrew Chants, Melody to 51st Ps., lvi.
- Hellenism prepared the World for Christianity, lvi.
- Heman and Jeduthun, Choristers, liii.
- Hengstenberg on the Psalter, 313.
- Hereford Use in Espousals, 267.
- Heresies, cause of many, 428.
- Hermann, Archbishop, of Cologne, Ritual Reformer, xxi; his Consultation, xxvii. 181, 182; his form of Marriage Admonition, 265; Catechism in, 242, n. 1; origin of catechizing at Confirmation, 215, Orig., 255; Daye's transl., 256, Orig.; on Seasons for Baptism, 216; Bapt. Exhortation in, 220; Bapt. Collect in, 221; on Infant Communion, 217; Absolution in, 284; the probable origin of joining hands in Marriage, 270; Litany in, xxi.
- Hesychius in St. Leo, quoted on Consumption of Elements, 291.
- Heurtley's Harmonia Symbolica, 17. 36. 223, n. 1.
- Hickes on Eucharistic Sacrifice, 188, n. 2.
- Hickman, Mrs., Touching anecdote of, about Reformation Bapt. Office, 210.
- Hierapolis, Martyrdom of St. Philip, 135.
- Hilary, St., of Arles, [39]; commends faithfulness of British Bishops, [39]; reputed author of the Athanasian Creed, 41; on the Psalms, 316; on Christ's rest in the Church, 505.
- Hilary, St., of Poitiers, reputed author of part of Gloria in Excelsis, 194.
- Hilary Term of Law used to begin on the Festival of St. Hilary, Dec. 13th, [39].
- Hilsey, Bishop, his version of the Athanasian Creed, 41; his Primer, 1539, 22.
- History, Spiritual, its central point, 335.
- Holt, Lord Chief Justice, on change of name, 258.
- Holy Apostles, their commemoration, [37].
- Holy Bible, always publicly read, [15].
- Holy Communion, an ancient and Scriptural phrase, 163; its various designations, 145; originated by our Lord, and asso- ciated* by Him with Ancient Rites, 152; doctrine of, 151; as a Sacrament, 152; as a Sacrifice, 152; may possibly supply omission of Baptism, 240; office, 68. 163; notice, or warning of, 171; on Good Friday, 101; at Burials, 295; at Burials, why proper, 296; at Burials, Office for, 303; at Churchings, 306. [See Communion.]

- Holy Cross Day, [55].
- Holy Days after Christmas, The three, 78; publ. of Banns on, 262, n. 2; bidding of, 171; Minor, [39—61].
- Holy Ghost, how given to the regenerate, 221; Invoc. of, in all Confirmation offices, 257.
- Holy Innocents, early notices of, 81; muffled peal on, 81; ancient Collect for, 81.
- Holy Sacrament, reserved in the Eastern Church, 99.
- Holy Scripture, Coincidences in ancient and present mode of reading it, [23]; its continuous reading, [25]; responsory system of reading it, [24]; its proper use and mode of interpretation, 43.
- Holy Thursday, 111.
- Holy Week, or Great Week, 96; its strict observance, official example of the emperors, 96.
- Homily, pre-reformation, on Confirmation, 253.
- Homily of Common Prayer, &c., on number of Sacraments, 249; of Repentance, on private Confession, 283.
- HOOD, a badge of academical status worn by graduates over their surplices. See Canon 58.
- Hooker, on the Divine Service, lii, note; on death unto sin in Baptism, 214; on iteration of Baptism, 217; on Lay Baptism, 212; on Marriage, 274; on delivery of money in Marriage, 269; on Offerings at Churchings, 306; on Puritan obj. to Christian burial, 296.
- Hooper, Bp., on sense of word "general," 249.
- Hope, Expressions of, in Bur. Office explained, 299.
- Horace on casting earth on dead body, 298.
- Horn Books, engraving of one, xxiii; introduced for the poor, xxiv.
- Hornby, register at, on prohibited seasons for Marriage, 263.
- Horsley, Bp., on Invocation of Holy Ghost, 187; on Scottish Liturgy, 192.
- Hosanna in Preface displaced, 1552, 183.
- Hosanna Sunday, 96.
- Hour for celebration of the Holy Communion, 161.
- Hours of Prayer, how observed by Apostles and early Christians, [62]; seven condensed, xxviii.
- House of Commons, amendments to Act of Uniformity, xlii.
- House of God, what it is, 1.
- Housel, Old Eng. term for H. Euch., 289.
- Hugh, St., [59].
- Human Nature, its perfect ideal personified, 318. 332.
- Humble Access, Prayer of, 185.
- Hyde, Lord Chancellor, corrects an error in MS. of P. B., xlii.
- Hymns and Hymnals, Latin and translations, 71.
- Hymns for Christmas-tide, 77; for St. Stephen's Day, 79; St. John the Evangelist, 80; the Holy Innocents, 81; for the Circumcision, to be sung till the Epiphany, 83; after the Octave of the Epiphany, 85; for daily use, the first and second weeks in Lent, 93, 94; for Passion Sunday, and daily use to Maundy Thursday, 96; for Low Sunday and Season, to be sung daily, 107; for the Ascension, to be sung up to Whitsunday, 111; from Trinity to Eve of Advent, 115; for Whitsuntide, 113; for St. Andrew and other Apostles, 130; their proper position in Divine Service, lxiv; sung by Christ, 480.
- Hypapante, Eastern name for the Purification Festival, 131.
- Hypothetical form in Baptism, 213.
- Idiots to be baptized, 230. 238.
- Idoltrous ceremonies, the origin of "poms," 222.
- "I do," in Confirmation, 256.
- Ignatius, St., lvi; on "one Altar," 158; on Matrimony, 261; Tradition respecting Anthems, lvi.
- "Illatio," Gallican and Mozarabic term for Proper Preface, 185.
- Iliberis, Council of, on Lay Baptism, 212.
- IMMERSION, the dipping into the water of recipients of Holy Baptism. Affusion is now the usual practice.
- Immersion, Baptism by, 209. 211; the Apostolic mode of Baptism, 209; disuse of, necessitates special precautions, 226; trine, 211.
- Impediments of Marriage, 262. 265.
- Imposition of hands in Confirmation, 251, 252; of hands sometimes a mere elevation, 252.
- Imprecations of Psalms, 362. 410, 411. 475. 513.
- Incarnation of our Lord—its fruits in the three kinds of Saints, 78; in connexion with the Martyrs, 78.
- Incense, its use in ancient Church of England, 33; at Gospel, 169.
- Inclination, Prayer of, in Eastern Liturgies, 186.
- "Incomprehensible," its twofold meaning, 43.
- Indulgence Sunday, 96.
- Indwelling of the Holy Ghost, 506.
- Infant Baptism in Primitive Church, 210. 215; Confirmation and Communion, 217. 251.
- Infants, Baptism of, 215.
- Infection, precautions against, 292.
- Infidels, burial of, 293.
- Infrequent Communion of Laity, 150.
- "Inheritor of the kingdom of Heaven," Scriptural term, 245.
- "Inhumatio Defuncti," 293.
- Injunctions on Catechizing, 242, 243.
- Injunctions of Edward VI., xxv.
- Injunctions and Advertisements of Queen Elizabeth, lxvi, lxvii; on wafer bread, 198; and 18th Canon on reverence, 20; on age for Communicants, 253.
- Innocent, St., on Roman Liturgy, 146.
- "Innocents," i. e. idiots, regenerate in baptism, 230, Orig.
- Innovations connected with Holy Eucharist in Mediæval times, 150.
- Institution of a Christian Man quoted, 230.
- Institution of Holy Eucharist, 145. 152, 153. 163, n. 2. 176.
- Interlinear Translations of Office books, xxiii.
- Intermediate state typified in 130th Psalm, 503.
- "Interpretation Clause" of Prayer Book, lxx.
- "Interpretations and Considerations" of Queen Elizabeth, lxvii.
- Interrogation of Sick on Articles of Faith, 281.
- Interrogation preceded Baptism, 222.
- Interrogations in ancient Baptismal Offices, 210; represented modern Catechism, 241; formerly addressed to child, 224; in our Baptismal Office represent Apostolic practice, 222.
- Interrogatories from Sarum "Ritus Baptizandi," 222, Orig.
- Introduction to the Liturgy, 145.
- Introductory Rubrics to Baptismal Office, 215.
- Introductory Service to Baptism, 217.
- INTROIT, the Verse, Psalm, or Hymn which is sung as the Priest goes to the Altar.
- Introit, 71. 149. 200.
- Introits—their selection—ancient names, 71; a list as arranged in the first English Prayer Book, 68; given under each Sunday and Holyday, 73; for Advent, their spirit, 73; to Communion at Ordination Service, 1549, 556.
- Invention of the Cross, [47].
- Inventories of Ornaments, made in 1552, lxxii; of Vestments and Hangings, lxxvii.
- Invitation to Communicants, 180.
- Invitatories to Venite, 7.
- Invocation of the Holy Ghost, 187; in Baptism and Liturgies compared, 221.
- Invocation, Prayer of, in Confirmation Office, 257; of Trinity in Baptism, 209; of Angels and Saints, 47.
- Irenæus on Fasting, 90; on Infant Baptism, 215.
- Irish Clergy, their use of Burial Service, 293.
- Irish Common Prayer Book, xlv. 585.
- Irish Communion Book, 6th Century, 70.
- "Irregularity," sense of word in Canon Law, 283, n. 2.
- Isidore on Founts, 211.

Israel, its History typical, 465.

Italic Version of Psalter, 315.

Iteration of Baptism, 217. 232, 233.

"Jah," in 69th Psalm, 405.

James, St., the Great, 139.

James, St., the Less, 135; Liturgy of, 146; its prayer for living and departed, 156; Psalms before Communion, 182.

James I., King, and Liturgy for Scotland, 580.

Jasper, its symbolism, 407.

Jebb's Choral Service, 59.

Jenner, Sir H., on Prayer for Dead, 301.

Jerome, St., and the Latin Vulgate, [55]; his three versions of the Psalter, 315; Lectionary, its Epistles and Gospels, 68. 70. 295, 296; on Advent, 72; on the Epiphany, 83; on Lay Baptism, 212; on Arian Baptism, 211.

Jerusalem, Liturgy of, 146.

Jesuits, their Symbol, [53].

Jewell, Bp., on death unto sin in Baptism, 214.

Jewish worship, its influence on Christians, [62]; origin of Churching of Women, 304.

Jews, The, their state before the destruction of Jerusalem, 94; a great conversion of them foretold, 397; their enmity and rejection foretold, 393; their sin and punishment foretold, 403.

Jews and Gentiles changing places, 396. 481.

Job a type of Christ, 458.

John, St., the Baptist, Nativity of, 136; his greatness and power as a Prophet, 136, 137; Advent proclamation of Christ, 74.

John, St., the Evangelist, his relationship to our Lord, 79; his two escapes from death, his death at Ephesus, 80; Ante Portam Latinam, [47]; Liturgy of, 147.

Johnson on Euch. Sacrifice, 188, n. 2; Canons referred to on Confirming by name, 258, n. 2; referred to for Marriage Law, 261; referred to on publicity of Marriage, 262; referred to on Catechizing, 241.

Johnson, Dr., his practice of praying for dead, 301.

Joining of hands in Marriage, 270.

Joseph a type of Christ, 466.

"Jube," a lectern on Chancel-screen, 307.

Jubilate, seldom to be used, 17.

Judas, in 109th Psalm, 474.

Judaism has become heathenism, 396.

Judaizing Christians, troublesome to the Early Church, 104.

Jude, St., 143.

Justin Martyr, his account of Celebration of H. Eucharist, 146, n. 5; his notice of Christian Hymns, lv; on Sursum Corda, &c., 183; on Amen, after Prayer of Consecration, 189; early reference to Gloria Patri, 7; on Infant Baptism, 215; on Comm. of Sick, 289.

Juxon, Archbishop, xl.

Kalends of January and Feast of the Circumcision, 82.

Katharine, St., [61].

Katharine, Queen, her Prayers and Meditations, 26.

Κατήχησις, meaning of, 241, and n. 1.

Keble on Eucharistical Adoration, 154. 188.

Kempe v. Wickes, case of, 293.

Ken, Bp., on Catechizing, 243.

Kennett, Bp., his MS. notes on P. B., 258.

"Keys of the Kingdom of Heaven," 138.

Key-stone of the Temple, 334.

Kingdom of Christ, 414.

King's Evil, Office for, [57]. 580.

Kingship of Christ, 453. 477.

Kiss of Peace, 149, 150. 200.

Kneeling, Bishop Cosin's note on, 3; declaration on, 199; posture of celebrant in receiving, 189; posture in Marriage, 269; the proper posture in Adult Baptism, 240.

Knights of the Garter, service at Windsor, &c., [45].

Knox, his Book of Common Order, xlv.

Knox, John, saying of, 51.

Krazer de Liturgiis, xlviii.

Kyrie Eleison, said in Greek, 21; in Communion Office, 167; expanded form of, 167.

"Laither," meaning of, 267, n. 4.

Laity, Daily attendance of, [63]; their part in offering of Eucharistic Sacrifice, 155—188.

Lambert, St., [55].

Lammas Day, [53].

Lancashire, burial of Roman Catholics in, 293.

Languages and Dialects into which the Prayer Book is translated, xlv.

Laodicea, Council of, on Lenten Marriages, 263.

Lasco, or Laski, John à, xxvii. 4.

Last Supper confounded with Institution of Holy Eucharist, 163.

Lathbury on State Services, 578.

Latimer, Bp., on meaning of word "general," 245.

Latin Prayer Book, [18], [19]. xxxv. 586; of 1560, Saints commemorated in, [36].

Latin Service for Convocation, 580.

Latin Version of latter part of Catechism, 242.

Latter part of Catechism, its history, 242.

Laud, Archbishop, and former Collect for Easter Even, 102; and the Scottish Prayer Book, xlv. 185. 580, 581.

"Lawful authority," 27.

Lawrence, St., [53].

Laxity tolerated by some Bishops, xxxv.

Lay Baptism, 211; allowed to be valid, 213; discouraged, 231, Orig. and n.

Laying on of hands by Bishop in Ordering of Deacons, 551; by Priests in Ordering of Priests, 562; in Confirmation, 251.

Lazamon's Brut, referred to, 267, n. 4.

LECTERN, the desk from which the Lessons are read.

Lectern for Epistle and Gospel, 168.

Lecterns for Music-book and for Lessons, 168.

Lectionary, changes made in the Salisbury Use, [25].

Lectionary of St. Jerome, commemoration of Apostles, 129; SS. Peter and Paul, 137.

Lections, Scripture, how to be "read or said," lviii. lx, lxi.

Legal obligations of Canons of 1603-4 and 1640, lxix.

"Legatus natus" of Pope, 262, n. 1.

Legends of Saints, SS. Hilary, [39], Prisca, [39], Anne, [51], Blasius, [41], Benedict, [43], John Baptist, [53].

Lent, different usages as to its duration, 89, 90; abstinence other than from food, 81.

Leo, Emperor, Churching of Women under, 304.

Leo, St., his Epistle to the French Bishops, 42; on Holy Innocents, 81; on trine immersion, 211.

Leonard, St., [59].

Leonardo da Vinci, his picture of Last Supper, a means of propagating error, 163.

LESSONS, portions from the Old and New Testament, read at Mattins and Evensong, and in the Burial Service.

Lessons, The, not always Holy Scripture, [23]; proper for Holydays, [25]; how anciently read, [23]; system established in 1549, [25]; in ancient Baptismal Offices, 209; in Burial Office, 295.

L'Estrange on form in delivery of Elements, 189.

Letters dimissory, 541.

Levitical Benediction, ancient Irish, Gallican, and A. S. uses of, 287.

"Liber Festivalis," xxv; its use of word "worship," 269.

Library of Anglo-Catholic Theology, Works of Bishop Cosin, xli.

Library of S. J. C. Oxon., MS. De Vis. Inf., 280; of Trinity Col. Cam., Trilingual Version of the Creed, 36.

Licence for Marriage, 261; Special, 261, 262, n. 1.

Lights on the Altar, 159.

Lighted taper used in Baptism, 210. 222.

- Lighted tapers at Gospel, 169.
 Lightfoot on Jewish Baptism, 208.
 Lincoln, Diocese of, petition to King James for total abolition of Prayer Book, xxxvi.
 Linen cloth for covering Elements, 191; its use and symbolism, 159. 164. 191.
 Lion, The, a typical enemy, 323.
 Litaneia, use of the word by St. Basil, 46; its technical sense, 46.
 Litanía, Major, Minor, Septena, 47.
 Litanía Septena, 209; septiformis, 209, n. 5.
 Litanies, their general acceptableness to the people, 47; oldest Western Use, 57; proper, of Western Use chiefly, 46.
 LITANY, a "General Supplication" in the form of short petitions, to which the choir and congregation make responses.
 Litany in English, 1544, xxi, xxii; its mediæval use, 48; its excellence, testimonies to, 48; the simple Chant generally used very old, lx; published by Cranmer with musical notation, lx; Canon XV. on, [20]; as a separate service, 48. 175; place for singing it, 48; lesser, in Vis. of Sick, 277, 278, n.; use of, in Ordering of Deacons, 547; in Ordering of Priests, 555; in Consecration of Bishops, 570; additional note on, 586.
 Litera Dominicalis, [16].
 Littledale's Offices of Eastern Church referred to, 257.
 Liturgical studies, their gradual advance, vi.
 Liturgies, Oriental, three Great, 28; ancient, on Words of Institution, 187.
 LITURGY, the Eucharistic Office. The term is sometimes applied loosely to the whole of the Book of Common Prayer.
 Liturgy, inexact use of term, 145, n. 3; its primitive origin, 145; its divisions, 68; of the Roman and Gallican Churches, xviii.
 Liturgy of St. James, the Benediction, 28.
 Liturgy of St. Mark, Ps. xlii., 373; a Prayer for the Sovereign, 27.
 Lombard, Peter, on Sacraments, 250.
 Longley, Abp., on burial of unbaptized, 293; on Reservation for the Sick, 290.
 Looking up to heaven in act of Consecration, 187.
 Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, Prayer for, 585.
 Lords, House of, vote thanks to Convocation for Revision of Prayer Book, xli.
 Lord's Prayer, specimen of old versions, 37; use with special intention, 6. 22; Versions of the 7th and following centuries, 31; anciently part of Introductory Service before Introit, 165. 200; a sort of Antiphon to Communion Office, 165; at greater Oblation, 191; in Bapt. Office, 220; after Baptism, 228; in Vis. of Sick, 278; expositions of, 6. 31, 32. 248; Sir Rd. Baker on, 6; Bp. Andrewes's Paraphrase, 6; Paraphrase by Keble, 32; familiar to mediæval people, 30.
 LORD'S SUPPER, a term applied to the Holy Eucharist. It is an elliptical expression, meaning Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.
 "Lord's Supper," a pre-reformation expression, 163; or "Holy Communion" Office, 163.
 Lord's Table, 158; a term properly applied to the Altar, 164.
 "Low Church party," official attempt to reconcile them, xxxviii.
 Low Sunday, 107.
 Lucian, St., [39].
 Lucy, St., [61].
 Luke, St., 142.
 Lushington, Dr., on use of Burial Service, 293.
 Luther, his Litany, xxi; his transl. of a Prayer in Bapt. Office, 218; his Version of sequence of Notker, 297; prayed for dead, 301.
 Lyndewood on Baptismal Affusion, 226, n. 1; list of Church ornaments, lxxiv; Prov. Const., on Visitation of Sick, 275.
 Lyons Pontifical, on Confirmation Address, 256.
 Machutus or Malo, St., [59].
 Machyn's Diary, 1560, lxi.
 Magdalen College, Oxford, bells rung on Christmas Eve, 103.
 Magi, traditions respecting them—their relics—their names, 84; Royal Memorial of their offering, 84.
 Magnificat and Cantate Domino compared, 34.
 Magnificat, The, special reverence shown to it, 33; Puritans desired to banish it, 33.
 Mahometanism, Probable cause of, in India and the East, 94.
 Maledictions of the Psalms, 410, 411.
 Mamertus, his Rogation Fast, 46.
 Man, The Righteous, 318. 359.
 Manchester Cathedral, custom observed there, 7.
 Manichæans, their rejection of Water, 210.
 Manifestations of Christ's glory, three commemorated at Epiphany, 83; in the Temple, 84; on Sundays after Epiphany, 86, 87; still going on by miracle, 86.
 MANIPLE, a vestment like a short stole, worn on the left arm by the sacred Ministers at the Celebration of Holy Communion. [See Ecc. Vestments, Plate II.]
 Manna a type of Holy Eucharist, 151.
 Mansfield, Lord, on Publication of Banns, 262.
 Manual, Occasional Offices of, xxviii.
 Margaret, St., [51]; sometimes called St. Marina, [51].
 Mark, St., his Labours and Martyrdom, 134; Liturgy of, 134. 146; Psalms before Communion, 182.
 Marriage, Scriptural and Patristic view of, 261; a Sacrament, 261; proper, 268; impediments of, 262; licences, 261; hours for, 262; forbidden seasons for, [28]. 262, 263; Psalms, 501; by Deacons not authorized, 264; Concluding Prayers of Service, 272.
 Marshall's Primer, 4.
 Martene on Bapt. Offices, 220; his collection of ancient writers, [36]; on Confirmation Addresses, 256.
 Martin, St., his translation, [51]. [59].
 Martyr, Peter, placed at Oxford by Somerset, xxx.
 Martyrs in the age of persecution, 37; specially connected with Ch. of England, [37]; all the, Festival of, 143; Many, Sarum Psalms, 332, 333. 341. 346, 347. 359. 363. 483; three kinds, commemorated on three days after Nativity, 78.
 Martyrdom of our Lord life-long, 78.
 Martyrdom of King Charles I., Fast for, [39]; Service, 578.
 Martyrdoms recorded in Scripture, 136; both foretold and commemorated, 429.
 Martyrology of Bede, [36].
 Mary, B. V., her true sanctity, 134; Sarum Psalms for her Festivals, 339. 346. 377. 379. 439. 452—454.
 Mary Magdalen, St., [51].
 Mary, Queen, her proclamation superseding the Reformed Prayer Book, xxxiii.
 Maskell's Monumenta Ritualia, xxvii. [63]; on bidding of Prayers, 21; on Vis. of Sick, 280, 281.
 MASS, the old English designation of the Sacrament of the Holy Communion.
 Mass, explanation of term, 145; how the term fell into disuse, 163; ordered to be "altered into a Communion," 150.
 Mass of Holy Ghost, sung at Consecration of Bishops, 575.
 Masses, Solitary, 197.
 Massingberd's Lectures on P. B., 210.
Μαθηματικα, its full meaning, 208.
 Matthew, St., 140.
 Matthias, St., 133.
 MATRIMONY, HOLY, Christian Marriage, as solemnized by the Church.
 Matrimony, Solemnization of, 261; Psalms for, 404. 501.
 MATTINS, the Order for Morning Prayer, representing the ancient Offices of Mattins and Lauds.
 "Mattins," beginning of, in ancient Sarum Use, 1; in 1549, 6; to be said before Celebration of H. C., 163.
 Maundy Thursday, 408; its various names, 98; ancient Offices for, 99; Sarum Psalms, 411, 412. 414. 416. 418. 420—422. 483. 497. 513—515.

Mabillon, his Analecta and Early Calendar, [36].
 Maccabees on Prayer for Dead, 301.

- Maundy royal, Office for, 99.
 Maximin, burnt a church full of Martyrs, 77.
 Maximum of ceremonial to be sought from tradition, 258.
 Maximus of Turin, De Adventu Domini, 72.
 Maxwell, Bp., and the Scottish Prayer Book, 581.
 Mede, on Christian Sacrifice, quoted, 153.
 Mediæval Bishops, their neglect of Confirmation, 253.
 Mediæval Church of England, H. C. at burials in, 296; processional Psalms at funerals in, 297; how its Services were accumulated, xxix; Liturgy of, 149.
 Melchisedek on Confirmation, 253.
 Melchizedek's offering, 152.
 Melitus, Bishop of Sardis, on Paschal Festival, 104.
 "Member of Christ" a Scriptural expression, 244.
MEMORIAL COLLECT, that of the less of two coincident holydays, used after that of the greater by way of commemoration.
Memoriæ, and Memorial Collects, 26. 65. 168.
 Menard, on Litanies in Baptismal Office, 209, n. 5.
 Menard's notes to Greg. Sacr., 285, marg.
MENSA, the slab of stone or wood used as the surface of the Altar or Lord's Table.
 Merbecke's Prayer Book noted, lxi; arrangement of Burial Service, 294.
 Meton, the Athenian, his Cycle of the Moon, 30.
 Metrical Hymns, early use by and against heretics, lvii; Cranmer's wish to retain those of Sarum, lxii.
 Metrical Hymn Music, its Grecian origin, lvi.
 Metrical Psalms, when introduced, lxii.
 Metropolitan, early existence and title of, 567; by whom consecrated, 567; cities, definition of, by Tertullian, 567.
 Mi Carême, The French, and festivity at Midlent, 94.
 Michael, St., two festivals anciently in his honour, 141; peculiarity in position of churches dedicated to, 141; Sarum Psalms, 332, 333. 339. 346. 359. 452, 453. 459. 510.
 Michaelmas, 141.
 Micrologus, on Collects, 69.
 Midwives licensed to baptize, 212, n. 1.
 Milan, Church of, its Liturgy, 147; Church of St. Ambrose at, its music, lvii; Oblation of Elements at, 198; Council of, on Visitation of the Sick, 275.
 "Millenary Petition," xxxvi.
 "Mincha" of Temple Service, 152, 153.
 Minimum of Ritual in present Rubrics, 191. 258.
MINISTER.—1. The officiant at the Holy Eucharist or other Services. 2. Clerics or laymen acting as assistants.
 "Minister," Bp. Cosin's note on the term, 2; its technical meaning, 2. 213, n. 1; term applied to Bishop, 258, and n. 1.
 Minister of Baptism, 212. 239.
 Ministers, at the Altar, 160; quality of such as are to be made, 544.
 Ministry, Three orders of Apostolical, 540; succession of, from our Lord, 530; succession of, from the Apostles, 531.
 "Ministry of God's Word," meaning of, 177.
 Minors, Marriage of, 262.
 Minor Holydays, [39]. [62].
 Minor Saints, their representations in art, [39]. [61]; All Souls, SS. Thomas and Patrick in Calendars of Stationers' Company, [37].
 Miracles, "The beginning of," 85.
 Miracle of the Loaves, its mystical character, 95.
 "Mirror of our Lady," on Nicene Creed, 171; altered form of Gloria in Excelsis in, 195; on the Sanctus, 183; on Lord's Prayer at Greater Oblation, 191; on Triple Repetition of Lesser Litany, 22; on the word Collect, 69; on Reverent Gestures in Praise, 7. 12; on "Synghe rede ond say," lx.
 Missa, explanation of term, 145, n. 1.
 "Missa Sicea," 197.
 "Missa Sponsalium," 274.
 "Missa Votiva" at Marriage, 271.
 "Missæ pro Rege et Regina," 27. 168.
 Missal of Sarum or Salisbury, xxviii. 68. 149. 184. 200.
 Miss. Gallic. Grimold, 287, marg.
 Miss. Bobiense, Muratori, 228, Orig.
MITRE, the covering for the head proper to the Episcopal Order: it represents mystically the cloven tongues on the heads of the Apostles. [See Ecc. Vestments, Plate II.]
 Mitres and staves of Trelawny, Mews, and Laud, 574.
 Mixed Chalice, its authority and symbolism, 173.
 Monasteries, Ritual effects of their suppression, xix, xx.
 Monday in Holy Week, its distinctive memorial, 97.
 Monica, St., mother of St. Augustine, [53]; her dying request, 295.
 Monotone, different uses, lviii; in reading the Lessons, 9.
 Monotonic recitative, the basis of plain song, lviii.
 Monophysite Liturgy of St. James, 146.
 Moral Law binds Christians equally with Jews, 247.
 "Morian," meaning of, 407. 439.
 Moses a type of Christ, 469.
 Mother of our Lord and "Mother of us all," 33.
 Mourning, its tokens used in Lent, 91.
 Mozarabic, a form of the Gallican Liturgy used in Spain, 147; Proper Prefaces in, 185; Liturgy, Epistle for Epiphany 4th, 87.
 Muratori, Reconc. Pœn., 285.
 Music, Ancient Christian, lvi; of Mediæval Church, lii; remodelled with the Services, lix; among modern Jews, lvi.
 Musical Intonation in Divine Service, li; character of Services retained, lxi; scales, their Grecian names, lvi; scales of St. Ambrose and St. Gregory, lvii; notation of Proper Prefaces, &c., 185.
 Mutual Consent, 265; Salutation, 22. 149. 200.
 "Myroure of oure Ladye," a Ritual Commentary, xix. 6.
 Mystical Body of Christ, how formed, 321.
 "N. or M.," explanation of, 244.
 Nadabar, martyrdom of St. Matthew, 140.
 Name, of Jesus, [53]; Christian, used in Catechism, &c., 244; changed in Confirmation, 258, n. 2; children confirmed by, 258, n. 2.
 Names given in Baptism, 209.
 Naples, King of, allowed to nominate to 24 sees, 569.
 "Natalis Eucharistica," 98.
 Nathanael, whether identical with St. Bartholomew, 139.
 National Flag, crosses of, [45].
 Nativity, of our Lord, its date, 76; of B. V. M., [55].
NAVE, the central portion of the body of church. [See AISLE, CHANCEL.]
 Navy, The, its relations to the Church, lxxviii. 527.
 Neale on Primitive Liturgies, 148; on Words of Institution, 187, n. 1; on the Eastern Hymns, 69; on the Eastern mode of observing Epiphany, 84.
 Neale's Commentary on the Psalms, 59. 314; Hist. Eastern Church referred to, [63]. 222, n. 2; Liturgiology, essay on Liturgical quotations in N. T., 70.
 Neglect of Public Worship fineable, [5].
 Nero's persecution foreshadowed, 391.
 Neva, waters of, blessed, 218, n. 2.
 New birth in Baptism, 214.
 New Creation, the Lord of it, 85.
 New Names, Three of the Apostles distinguished by, 80.
 New Style, [30].
 New Year's Day, a conventional observance, 83.
 Nicæa, Council of, on Lay Baptism, 212; decree for ruling Easter, [27]; and forty days' Fast of Lent, 90.
 Nicene Creed, its origin and Liturgical use, 170; used by Eastern Ch. at Baptism, 223; English, Greek, and Latin versions, 169, 170.
 Nicholl, Sir John, on use of Burial Service, 293.
 Nicholson, Bp., on Catechism, 243.
 Nicolas, St., [61].
 Nicomede, St., [49].
 Nixon, Bp., on Catechizing, 243.

"Noble," its ancient signification, sense of it in the Te Deum, 13.

Nocturnal Services, abolished, [28].

Nocturns, meaning of, 314.

Non-Communicating attendance, 157. 178. 179.

Non-conforming ministers to vacate preferment, [8]; lecturers forbidden to preach, [9]; party in Church, lxviii.

Non-conformists could conscientiously use the Prayer Book but would not, xxxvii; Prayer for, 65.

NORTH-SIDE of the Altar, that part of the front of the Holy Table, which is on the right hand of the Cross, and consequently on the left of the Celebrant.

"North-side" rubric, 160. 165. 533.

Northey, Sir E., his opinion on change of name in Confirmation, 258, n. 2.

Notes "respecting the ministrations" in early Prayer Books, 120.

Notice of Holy Communion, 171; to be given before Communicating, 163.

Notker, author of Media Vita and Dies Iræ, 297.

Nowell, Alexander, reputed author of Catechism, 242.

Nunc Dimittis, its early use, 35.

Nuremberg Office, prayer from, 218.

Oak, St. Augustine's, xviii.

Oath of Supremacy, in Sealed Books, 549; ordered by 1 W. and M. c. 8, 549; ordered by 21 & 22 Vict. c. 48, 549.

Oaths, when to be taken, by Clergy Subscription Act, 1865, 549.

Obedience, oath of, to his Superior exacted from Bishop, 569; oath of, to Pope required from Bishop elect, by the Roman Pontificals, 569; profession of, by Bishop elect to Archbishop of Canterbury in Old Pontificals, 569.

Obedience, vows of, in Baptism, 223.

Obiit Service at Windsor, 302.

"Objections and Exceptions," raised against the Prayer Book at the Savoy, xxxix.

Objections, their frivolous nature illustrated, [13].

OBULATION, the act of offering the Body and Blood of Christ in the Holy Eucharist.

"OBLATIONS," the Bread and Wine placed on the Altar preparatory to Consecration at the offertory or "lesser oblation."

Oblation, of Elements, 149. 172; Prayer of, 191; Prayers of, in ancient Liturgies, 154; Prayer of, in Reformed Liturgies, 154; in Scottish Prayer Book, 583.

Obsecrations of the Litany, 51.

Occasional Offices, hymns might be appropriately introduced in, lxxv.

Occasional Prayers and Thanksgivings, 61.

Occasional Thanksgivings, not fully authorized until 1661, 66.

OCCURRENCE of Holydays, the coincidence of two or more on the same day.

OCTAVE, the eighth day after a festival. The intervening days are said to be "of" or "within" its octave.

October 23rd, Service for, in Irish Prayer Book, 585.

Offerings at Churchings, 306.

OFFERTORY, or lesser oblation, the offering up of the Bread and Wine, and of the Alms in the Holy Eucharist.

Offertorium, a short Anthem (or offertory sentence) sung at oblation of elements, 173.

Offertory, 172; sentences, classifications of, 174; money, application of, 199.

Offices, daily Mediæval, their complex form, [63]; of the Eastern Church, [62], [63]; for anointing the Sick, A.D. 1549, 287; for the departed, Sarum Psalms, 321—323. 345, 346. 349. 370. 372. 373. 385. 401. 404. 482. 496. 497. 503. 510. 518. 520. 522—524; of the Primitive Church, of what they consisted, [62]; Mediæval, well adapted to Communities, [63]; consisted of seven separate Services, [63].

Offrande, 198.

Old Service Books, their directions minute and tedious, [21].

Omission of an order not necessarily a revocation, 258.

Omissions of Names in the English Calendar, [37].

Onesiphorus prayed for after death, 301.

"Open penance" not now possible or desirable, 309.

"Open Prayer," meaning of, [4].

Opposition to the Common Prayer, Reasons for, [12].

Oratory, the first Christian one, how consecrated, liv.

"Order of Common Prayer to be sung in Churches," lx.

"Order of Communion," added to the Mass, 150; referred to, 177. 180. 195.

"Order" for Daily Prayer, its simple meaning, 1; for the Visitation of the Sick, 277; of Prisoners, 586.

Order of delivery of Elements, 190.

Orders, derivation of the word, 540; Sacramental, 540; cannot be made void, 553; English, recognized by Pope Julius, 536.

ORDINAL, the Offices for the Consecration of Bishops, and the Ordination of Priests and Deacons.

Ordinal, English, Derivation of, 532; Revision of, 535; authorized and annexed by Act of Uniformity, 534; incorporated with the Prayer Book, xl; of 1549, 535; of 1552, 536; of 1662, 537; attempt for Revision, 1689, 538; absence of notes on, 532; introduction to, 530; preface to, 540; on Visitation of the Sick, 275.

Ordinarium Missæ, 145. 148.

ORDINARY, the Bishop of the Diocese or other person acting by his authority.

Ordinary, definition of, 551. 559; and justices to determine offences and conviction, [5].

Ordination, Canonical Impediments to, 542; Canonical Requisites for, 542. 559; Essentials of, 538; Words essential to, 539; Effect of, 539; Greek words for, 538; and Mission distinguished, 553; Power of, reserved to Bishops, 543; by Priests null and void, 543; Place of, 541; Times of, 544; Persons to be present at, 541; Testimony of People to precede, 541. 555.

Origen catechized, 241; speaks of forty days' fast, 90.

Oriflamme, the banner of St. Denys, [59].

ORNAMENTS, all the several articles used in Divine Service, whether vestments of the ministers or furniture of the Church.

Ornaments of Church and Ministers, lxx.

"Ornaments," what they mean, distinction by the Judges, lxx; as in use in second year of King Edward to be retained, [6]; some omitted as inconsistent with our Prayer Book, lxxiii; Edwardian, what they were—four sources of information, lxxi; Comparative List, lxxii; of the Church, and ministers—specification of them desired by Bp. Cosin, lxxvi; intentionally legalized in the revision of 1662, lxxv; characteristic of military and other official classes, lxxvii; Essential and Supplemental, lxxvi.

O Sapientia, [61]. [76].

Osiander, a Foreign Reformer, xxvii.

Osmund, St., his revision of English Liturgy, xviii. 17. 147. 149.

OUR LADY, the old English designation of the Blessed Virgin, retained in our Table of Lessons.

"Outward and visible Sign," 249.

Overall, Bp., reputed author of latter part of Catechism, 242; his practice at Greater Oblation, 192; on Solitary Masses, 198.

"Pædagogus" of St. Clement of Alexandria, 241.

"Pain béni," 198.

Palestrina, appointed by Council of Trent to reform Ch. Music, lix.

PALL.—1. A covering for a bier. 2. A vestment woven of lambs' wool, formerly received from the Pope by Archbishops, and figured in the arms of the Abp. of Canterbury.

Palls of Archbishops, how made, [39].

Palnatus, case of, 223.

Palm Sunday, why so called, 96.

Palm bearing, 97; branches, Benediction of, 96.

Palmer on Gallican Liturgy, 148; on Liturgy of St. Mark, 146; on the reading of Holy Scripture, [25]; on Private Celebration,

- 290; on position of Gloria in Excelsis, 194; on Vow of Obedience, 223.
- Pamelius, Liturgicon Ecclesiæ Latinæ, 70; on corrupt forms of Gloria in Excelsis, 194.
- Pamphlets against the Prayer Book in 1660, [12].
- Pantheon at Rome, its Christian dedication, 143.
- Parables, Christ speaking in them, 424.
- Parabolic Instruction, 423.
- Paraphrase of the Apostles' Creed, 20; of the Lord's Prayer by Keble, 32.
- Parents formerly forbidden to act as Sponsors, 216.
- Parish to provide Elements, 198; -Priests to frequently declare the vernacular form for Baptism, 231, Orig.
- Parishioners, what they are liable to provide, lxxiv; to provide true copies of the Book of Common Prayer under penalty, 10.
- Parish Registers, neglect of during the Rebellion, [14].
- Parker, Abp., Consecration of, 536; on wafer bread, 198; Q. Eliz., letter to, on Ritual, lxxvii; on interpretation of Canons, 243.
- Parkhurst, Bp., on wafer bread, 198.
- Parliament, Authorship of Prayer for, 64.
- Parliamentary debate on Settlement of Religion, in 1660, xxxvii.
- Parochial notices, 172.
- Pascha, Dominicæ Passionis, Resurrectionis; Annotinum, 104. 107.
- Pasque Eggs in North of England, 104.
- Passion of our Lord, how read in Salisbury Missal, 96.
- Passion Psalms, 319. 342. 408. 439.
- Passion Sunday, proposed change of Collect in 1688, 95; why so called, 95.
- PASTORAL STAFF, the crook used by Bishops, now generally borne by their chaplains. [See CROZIER.]
- PATEN, the plate on which the Element of Bread is placed for consecration and administration in the Holy Eucharist.
- Patient waiting, 371.
- Patras, martyrdom of St. Andrew, 129.
- Patriarchal age, its witness to the principle of ceremonial worship, xlvi. xlviii.
- Patristic writings, read occasionally as Lessons, [23].
- Paul, St., his Conversion now his only Festival, 131; meaning of his name, 407; and the Collect for Sexagesima, 89; Liturgy of, 147.
- Paul of Samosata, his Baptism held not valid, 212.
- Paul's, St., School, "Catechism with A B C" used at, 242.
- Paulinus, Bp. of Nola, private celebration for, 290.
- "Pax" after marriage, 274.
- Peace, Collects for, their introduction and connexion, 24. 38.
- Peace of God in the Church, 498.
- Peckham, Abp., his Const. on Catechizing, 241; his Const. on Communicants being Confirmed persons, 260.
- Pelagian heresy condemned by St. David, 43.
- Pell, Dr. John, reviser of chronological calendar, [27].
- PENANCE.—1. Repentance, as in Communion Service. 2. Penitential discipline, as in the 33rd Article.
- Penitential, Prefix, how appropriate to Daily Service, 1; Psalms, all used on Ash-Wednesday, 92; Ps. in Vis. of Sick, 277; Psalms, 322. 356. 367. 385. 457. 503. 516.
- Pentecost, its meaning and observance, Jewish and Christian, 112.
- People, The, reciting a Collect in Bapt. Offices, 221.
- Perambulations or Beating Bounds on Rogation Days, exhortation for, 110; Psalms for, 110.
- Perceval on the State Services, 578.
- Perpetua, St., [43].
- Perpetuus, Bp., of Tours, 73.
- Perry, Mr., on "Black Rubric," 199; on Reservation, 290.
- Persecutions, Literal and Prophetic, 429.
- Persons desiring Prayers of Church, Service for, 65.
- "Persuasion," its first introduction as indicating an opinion or sect, [13].
- "Perused," its technical sense, xxxi.
- Pestilence, private Communion in times of, 289. 292.
- Peter, St., claims of his successors at Rome, 138; customs of the Pope and people on his Festival, 137, 138; one of the oldest of the Christian Festivals, 137; united with St. Paul in the day of Commemoration, 137, 138; Liturgy of, 146.
- Peter and Paul, SS., alteration in the Collect by Bp. Cosin, 138.
- Peterborough, Anthem at, in Lent, 297.
- Petitions to restore use of Common Prayer, xxxvii.
- Philip, St., the Apostle, 134.
- Philip, the Deacon, 134; baptizing, 212. 222.
- Philippian gaoler, his Baptism, 211.
- Phillipotts, Bp., on Christ's continuous Sacrifice, 58.
- Physiological analogy respecting union with Head, 244.
- Pica type, [17].
- Pie, The, its complexity and difficulty, [16].
- Pirminius, Ancient Creed in, 17.
- PISCINA, a stone basin, with a drain to carry off water used in the ablutions of sacred vessels, &c.
- Pius IV. offers to confirm the Prayer Book, xxxv. 536.
- Plain Song, The Ancient, utilized at the Reformation, lix.
- Pliny, his mention of Christian Hymns, lv.
- Pollanus, his Glastonbury Prayer Book, 167. 196.
- Polycarp, St., quoted Gloria in Exc. at his Martyrdom, 194; on Visitation of the Sick, 275.
- "Pomp," meaning of, 222.
- Pontifical, varied for each diocese, 532; proposed, 1640, 536.
- Portiforia, or Portuises, xx.
- Portraits of Christ, 377.
- Posidonius, Life of St. Augustine, 295, n. 2; on St. Augustine's Visitation of the Sick, 275.
- Position at Font of persons to be Baptized, 217, Orig.; of person making Baptismal renunciation, 222; of persons making Baptismal Confession of Faith, 223; of Priest and people at Font, 218; of Priest at the Altar, 159.
- Positions of child during trine immersion, 226, Orig.
- "Post Communio," meaning of, 68.
- POST-COMMUNION, the part of the Liturgy which comes after the Communion of the people.
- Post-Communion, 150.
- Poullain. See Pollanus.
- Pouring of Water in Baptism, 226.
- Poynet, Bp., reputed author of Catechism, 242.
- Præparat. Missæ, Psalm, Sarum, 348.
- Praise, a continuous Service, lii.
- Prayer Book, its general acceptance in 1549, xxx; its suppression A.D. 1645, xxxvi; great demand for, when prospect of Restoration, xxxvii; its authorization, xlii; its comprehensive directions, lii; attempt to remodel it in the reign of William III., xliii; Baxter's, Dissenters', and Lord Burleigh, xxxix; of 1549, Holy Comm. at Burials in, 296; its Rubric for reservation, 289.
- Prayer, Common, public, open, distinguished, [2].
- Prayer for Church Militant, 174; its Title, 174; for a Sick Child or person in danger, 287; for Departed, from ancient Vesper Office, 301; of Humble Access, 185; of Consecration, 186; of Invocation in Confirmation Office, 257; of Commendation for one troubled in Conscience, 288.
- Prayers, of Oblation and Thanksgiving, 191; of the Church in New Testament, 69; after Versicles in Vis. of Sick, 278; commendatory at Ordination, 547; in Her Majesty's Navy daily, [20]; for the Sovereign and Family, 27; for the departed, 156. 175. 176. 301; not argued about but prayed, 297.
- Precautions in Administration of Baptism, 226.
- Precedence of Sovereign before Bishops, 53.
- Precentor, his part in Divine Service, li.
- PRECES, the petitions made by the Priest between the Lord's Prayer and the First Collect at Mattins and Evensong.
- Preces, Ferials translated, 21; Ambrosian, St. Fulda, Mozarabic, 46.
- Preface, to the Book of Common Prayer, [11]; of 1549, attributed to Cranmer, [15]; of 1549 compared with that of Quignonez, [15]; of 1661, notes on, [11]; in Communion Office, 182.
- Prefaces, Proper, 184.
- Pre-sanctified Elements, 101.

- Presbyterians, their publications against Prayer Book in 1660, [12]; attempts to influence Charles II. against Prayer Book, xxxvii; their objection to Thanksgiving after Baptism, 228; their objection to proper position of Font, 217; their objections to answers of sponsors, 224; their objection to sanctifying of Water, 218; Form for "Communion, or Supper of the Lord," 206; Minister excused attendance on House of Commons, xl.
- Presence of Christ in H. Eucharist, 155; the cause of Christian Unity, 157.
- Presentation of Christ in the Temple, 131; an act of His humiliation, 132.
- Presentation of Candidates for Orders, Ancient form of, 547.
- PRIEST, a Church officer of the second order, whose distinctive "office and work" is, 1. To offer sacrifice to God. 2. To administer grace to men.
- Priest, Position of, at Altar, 159; after Marriage Service, 271; official dress of, 159. 588; "Priest alone," 4.
- Priests, Form and Manner of Ordering, 537. 554; summary of Service in Sacramentaries, Pontificals, and Ordinals, 533.
- Priesthood, Action of, in Ordination, 543; of the Laity, 22, 23.
- Primitive Church, Seasons for Baptism in, 215; catechizing in, 241; H. C. at burials in, 296.
- Principles of Ceremonial Worship in Early Church, xlviii; in Church of England, li.
- Prisca, St., [39].
- Private Baptism not to be without necessity, 231; provided for by ancient Rubrics, 231.
- Private Celebration, 289; Ritual requirements, 290; no novelty, 290; restrictions regarding, 290.
- Private Confession a recognized practice in Ch. of E., 283; when expedient, 284.
- Private recitation of Daily Offices by the Clergy, [19].
- "Pro-Anaphora," 148.
- Procession of the Holy Ghost, 170.
- Procession in Marriage Service, 271.
- Processional, English, of Cranmer, xxii.
- Proclamations of Queens Mary and Elizabeth, xxxiii.
- Procter, on proposed revision of 1689, xliii.
- Profession of faith required at Baptism, 222; at Visitation of Sick, 281.
- Prohibited times for Marriage, [28]. 263.
- "Promise and vow" in Baptism, 245.
- Promptorium Parvulorum, on word "buxumnesse," 267, n. 6.
- Pronouns, Change of, in Versicles, &c., 6; in Psalms, 324. 347.
- Proper Lessons for Sundays—principle of the Cycle, [26].
- Proper Psalms, Table of, [26].
- Prophecy, connecting the Old and New Dispensation, 16.
- Protestants, lapsed, Service for, in Irish Prayer Book, 586.
- Prothesis, Chapel and Office of, 173.
- Protocletos, a designation of St. Andrew, 129.
- Prymer, The King's, xxv.
- Prymers in English and Latin, xxiv; old English, translation and contents, xix.
- Psalms, The, by whom composed, 313; always intended to be sung, lx; our Lord's application of them, 316; their earliest Liturgical use, 313; Apostolic application of them, 316; manner of using in Divine Service, 313; three modes of saying or singing, 315; their weekly recitation, 314; their monthly recitation, its value, 315; Bible version of, 315; natural division of many into three portions, 331; Proper, principle of their selection, 24. 317; their purpose, 313; their many-sided application, 316; verses of, numbered, 316; to be said in private by Bishop Elect at Consecration, 570; their use as Introits, 68; of degrees, 496—506; in Bur. Office, 295; in Marr. Service, 270; in Vis. of Sick, 286; in Churching of Women, 305.
- Psalms, First Book, what they point to, 373.
- Psalms, Second Book, 373; their characteristic, 412.
- Psalms, Third Book, 416.
- Psalms, Fourth Book, 445.
- Psalms, Fifth Book, 470.
- Psalter, Introduction to, 313; its divisions, 313; ancient systems of, 314; pre-reformation use in English Church, 314; English, its gradual growth, 313. 315; English, what it represents, 316; English, order in which to be read, [22].
- Psalters, "Ecclesiæ Sarum et Eboracensis," 314.
- Public Baptism to be in the Church, 215; Confession and Absolution no novelty, 181.
- Pullain, his "L'Ordre de Prières Ecclésiastiques," 2.
- PULPIT, a raised structure of wood or stone generally used for preaching from.
- "Pulpit," how to be understood in Communion Service, 307.
- Punishment for offences against the Act of Uniformity, [4], [5].
- "Pupilla oculi," on Baptism of Christ, 209, n. 1; on Lay Baptism, 212.
- "Pure Offering" of Malachi, 152.
- Pure Water the matter in Baptism, 211.
- Purification of B. V. Mary, 131, 132; proper time of observing it—why, 132; its Title, Epistle, and Collect altered, 131.
- PURIFICATOR, a linen cloth used for wiping the Chalice after the Ablutions.
- Puritan leaven, its fermenting power, lxviii.
- Puritans, their antagonistic use of the Press, xxxv; their superstitious antipathy to the sign of the Cross, 227; their memorial against Lay Baptism, 212, n. 1; their objection to the Magnificat, 33, 34; their objection to public Confession by people, 181; their objection to Pr. of Invoc. in Confirmation, 257; their objection to Marriage Rubrics, 263; their obj. to word "worship," 269; their objection to word "depart," 267, n. 2; their obj. to Burial Service, 296; their wish to substitute transl. of 1611 for Commandments, 247; their wish to secularize Marriage, 274; their wishes with regard to Catechism, 243; their practice of sermons at funerals, 296; their scandal at the public irreverence, 3.
- Puritanism developed by foreign influence, xxx.
- Pusey, Dr., his letter to the Bishop of Oxford quoted, 50; his "Scriptural Views of Baptism" referred to, 213. 218, n. 2.
- Quadragesima, Sancti Martini, 73; Sunday, 88, 89.
- Queen Elizabeth, her Thanksgiving Prayer, 66.
- Queen's Mandate, History of, 568.
- Quignonez' Reformed Breviary, its influence, xx. [15]; manner of using Apostles' Creed, 17.
- Quinquagesima Sunday, 89.
- Quintin, St., companion of SS. Lucian and Denys, [39].
- Quintianus, his Rogation at Auvergne, 46.
- "Quires and places where they sing," 25.
- "Ratify and confirm," 255, 256.
- "Read," "Say," "Sing," Old technical language, lx.
- "Reading-desk," when invented, [64].
- READING-FEW, the Chancel stall occupied by the Officiant at Mattins and Evensong, 307.
- Real Presence, not denied in Black Rubric, 199.
- Reasons which influenced the Revisers of 1661, [11].
- "Reception into the Church," by the very act of Baptism, 227.
- Recitation of the Daily Service by the Clergy, [19].
- Reconciliation of Churches Service in Irish Prayer Book, 586.
- Recusants, The first, xxxv.
- Reformation, its Catholicity injured by Foreign influence, xxx.
- Reformed Liturgy of Church of England, 150.
- Refreshment Sunday, 94.
- Regeneration in Baptism, 213; most distinctly held by Ch. of E., 229.
- Regina v. Benson, case of, 262.
- Relics of SS. Lambert, [53]; Martin, [51]; The Holy Cross, [47]. [53].
- Remigius or Remi, St., [57].
- Remiremont, Bapt. Office of, 220.
- Renunciation in Baptism, Ancient English and other forms, 222, and n. 2.
- "Renunciation of the Devil," &c., 245; vow of, in Baptism, 222.

- Reordination sacrilegious and heretical, 540.
 Repeal of Acts respecting Divine Service, [6].
 Re-presentation in Eucharist, 155.
 Reproaches on Good Friday, 101.
 RESEDOS, the ornamental structure that is placed above and behind the Altar.
 Reservation of Eucharist, 198; in time of Queen Elizabeth, 290; for the Sick in 1549, 289; recent instances of, 290; in Scottish Church, 290; by Nonjurors, 290.
 Reserve in personal application of Psalms, 439, 440.
 Reserve on subject of Holy Eucharist, 146, n. 2.
 Responds to the Lesson, [23]; Examples of, [16].
 RESPONSES, the answers made by the choir and people after the Versicles or Preces, in the Litany, after the Commandments, &c.
 Responses after Commandments, 167.
 Responsive worship, on what the system is founded, 23.
 Restoration of Charles II. Service, 578.
 Restoration of Church Services in 1660, immediate, xxxvii.
 Resurrection, the, A Psalm of, 402.
 RETABLE, a shelf or ledge behind the Altar, properly a part of the reredos, and often incorrectly called the super-altar. [See SUPER-ALTAR.]
 Reverence done to Gospel in Eucharistic Service, 169.
 Revised Prayer Book made unlawful by Q. Mary, xxxiii.
 Revision of Prayer Book in Elizabeth's reign, xxxiii; accepted by Parliament without discussion, xxxiv; well received by Romanists, xxxiv; in the reign of James after Hampton-Court Conference, xxxvi; of 1661, xl. 537; of 1871, xlii.
 Reynolds, Bp., composed or compiled General Thanksgiving, 66; complained of shortness of Catechism, 242.
 Richard, St., [45].
 "Right hand," meaning of position in Marriage rubric, 263.
 Right hands joined in Marriage, 270.
 Ring, benediction of, 269, Orig.; delivery of, 268; of Edward the Confessor, [57].
 Riper years, Baptism in, 236.
 "Riper Years," limits of, 238, 240.
 Ritual Introduction, xlv.
 Ritualism, elaborate in heaven, xlix; Patriarchal, xlv; Mosaic, really Divine, xlvii; revelation to Bezaleel and Aholiab, xlvii; revelation to King David, xlvii; the old, transfigured by our Lord, liv; of the Apostolic age, xlviii; its revival—what should influence and regulate it, lxxx; usages of English Liturgy, 158; of Adult Baptism, 240.
 Ritus Baptizandi, 210; actual, 222.
 ROCHET, the linen garment ordinarily worn by Bishops, 568.
 "Rock of Ages," mystical sense of, 351.
 ROGATION DAYS, the Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday before Ascension Day, set apart for special prayer and fasting.
 Rogation, meaning of, 109; Sunday and Week—their institution, 110; Fast, Sevenfold Litany on, 47; Week, Collects for, by Bishop Cosin, 110; Epistles and Gospels for, 110; Services and Homily for, 110; observed yearly in the English Church before Ascension-tide, 46; Litanies decreed by various Councils, 46.
 Roman Catholics, burial of, 293; Attempt to reconcile extreme, xxxiv.
 Rome, Liturgy of, 146; never used by Church of England, 147, n. 2; "When at, do as the Romans do," saying of St. Ambrose, [45].
 ROOD-SCREEN, the partition which divides the chancel from the nave. It ought always to be surmounted by the Holy Rood or Cross. [See xlix.]
 Routh, Dr., on Gloria Patri, 7.
 Royal Exchange, Legend on, 316.
 Royal Family, when first prayed for, 27.
 Royal Maundy, Office for, 99.
 Royal Proclamations, under Act of Uniformity, 27.
 Rubric, The First, necessity for it, lxxv; its prominent position, lxxv; why retained, lxxiv; on seasons for Baptism from 1549 to 1661, 216; of 1548 on Catechizing, 242; of present P. B. on Catechizing, 243.
 Rubrics, to what they point, li; their reform by the Convocation Committee, xxi; Four early reformed ones compared, lxvi; after the three Collects—their importance, 25; introductory to Liturgy, 163; after Communion Office, 197; on seasons for Marriage, 263.
 Rubrical directions for reading, saying, singing—what they mean, lx.
 Rufinus on a case of Lay Baptism, 212; his Comment on the Apostles' Creed, 17.
 Rule as to Accessories, authoritative, lxx.
 Rule for Priests and Deacons saying Daily Service, [19].
 "Rule of Truth," what it was, 18.
 Russian or Eastern Liturgy of present day, 146.
 Sabellius, his heresy, 42.
 "Sacerdos," used in an inclusive sense, 224, n. 1.
 Sacerdotal power derived from the Holy Ghost, 563.
 SACRAMENT, an outward visible sign of an inward spiritual grace, and a means whereby we receive that grace. [See the Catechism, 249.]
 Sacramentaries of 5th and 6th centuries, rather compiled than composed, 68; ancient, their Collects, [63]; of SS. Leo, Gelasius, and Gregory, proper prefaces in, 185; of Gelas. and St. Gregory on Confirmation, 251. 257; on Benediction of Water, 224.
 Sacramentary of Gelasius, Third Collect at Evensong, 39; of St. Gregory, what it represents, xviii; on Baptism, 209. 211.
 Sacraments, number of, 249.
 "Sacramentum," or military oath, 157.
 Sacrifice of Christ continuous, 58. 188.
 Sacrifice, Eucharistic, 152. 188. 385.
 Sacrificial terms early applied to H. Eucharist, 153.
 Saints commemorated by Ch. of England, [37]; Eastern, Modern Roman, Salisbury Use, comparative view of, [38—60]; French, in Eng. Cal., [37].
 Saints' Days, origin of their observance, 79. 295.
 Salem, its typical sense, 421.
 Salisbury Breviary, Prayers for King and Queen, 27.
 Salisbury Manual, its Rubrics on Baptism, 212; on seasons for Baptism, 216.
 Salisbury Missal, 149. 200; preference given to it, lxxii; Rubric for First Sunday after Trinity, 116.
 Salisbury Rubric on Font or substitute, 217; as to position of persons to be baptized, 216, Orig.
 Salisbury Use, Ad faciend. Catech., 219, Orig.; in Vis. of Sick, 277, &c., Orig.
 Salisbury and York Vernacular Exhortation to Sponsors, 229, Orig.
 Saliva used in Baptism, 210.
 Salt used in Baptism, 210.
 Salutation in Vis. of Sick, 277.
 Salvation of unbaptized infants, 230.
 Samaritans, Confirmation of, 251.
 Sanicroft, Secretary to Committee of 1661, xli; Supervisor of the Press in 1662, xlii.
 Sanctus in Communion Office, 183.
 Sand substituted for water in Baptism, 211.
 Sanderson, Bp., his mode of public service, during the 15 years persecution, xxxvi; his Preface to P. B., [11]. 236.
 Sarum Exhortations to Sick, 280.
 Sarum Liturgy, Analysis of, 200. 149.
 Sarum Manual on Spiritual Communion, 291.
 Sarum Rite, Dirge of, 294, &c.
 Sarum Rubric on Interrogatories in Baptism, 224; after Marriage, 263.
 "Sarum Use," or Prayer Book, what it was, xviii; Remodelled by St. Osmund, xix; in Matrimony, 261, &c., Orig.
 Satan's misquotation of Scripture, 446.
 Saturnalia, offered difficulties to Church, 82.
 Savoy Conference, what authorized by letters patent, xxxviii;

- how it ended, xli; exceptions of Presbyterians, 4; specimen of their frivolous character, 13, n.; leader of the Opposition, [12].
- Saxon Homilies, A.D. 700, 31.
- "Saying" explained, 2.
- Scambler, Bp., his lawless proceedings, xxxv. [64].
- Schoolmasters required to subscribe to the Act of Unif., [8].
- Scottish Prayer Book, Mr. Bright's History of, 580; not sanctioned by the General Assembly, xlv; its influence on English Book, 584; errors of law, &c. in publishing it, 582; vigorously and successfully opposed, xlv.
- Scottish Liturgy in extenso, 205; referred to, 151. 167. 175. 185. 186. 190. 192. 197. 199.
- Seager's, Mr., Edition of Portiforium Sarisb., xix.
- "Seal" or "Sealing," terms applied to Confirmation, 251.
- Sealed Books, 405; what they were, xliii; engraving of one, front.
- Seasons most proper for Baptism, 215.
- Second Prayer Book of Edward VI., xxxi.
- SEDILIA, seats near the Altar, to be used by the ministers during the sermon at Holy Communion.
- Sennacherib a type of Antichrist, 421.
- Sentences, Exhortation, &c., when prefixed, 1; used as Invitations, 1, 2; "Read with a loud voice" implies intonation, 2.
- Septuagesima, &c., names and reckonings, 88; Epistles and Gospels, 89.
- SERMON, an oral instruction or exhortation, delivered by the preacher at Holy Communion, and at other times, 172.
- Sermon after Marriage, 273.
- Sermons and Lectures to be in English, by injunction of Edward VI., xxvi; at funerals, 296.
- SERVICE, the Canticles and other parts of Mattins, Evensong, or the Liturgy, set to music, more elaborate than Chant or Plainsong.
- "Service of Song," sanctioned by our Lord, lv; its threefold division, lv, n.
- Seven Hours of Prayer, Aggregation and Condensation of, [63].
- Shakspeare [Henry VIII. iii. 2], 222; [King Lear, IV. vi.], 297.
- Sharpe, Abp., on prohibited seasons for Marriage in 1750, 263.
- Shell used for Baptismal affusion, 226.
- Shepherd, The, of Israel, 430.
- Shortening the Services, 5. 25. 40. 65.
- Shrine, Ven. Bede's, Anecdote of, [49].
- Shrove Tuesday, 89.
- Sick, The, a daily prayer for, 65; Visitation of, 275, &c.; Communion of, 289.
- Sidonius Apollinaris, Gallic processions, 46.
- Sign of the Cross, its abuse and disuse, [21]; sign of the Son of Man, 320.
- Signing with the Cross, 226; Canon on, 227; of the water in the Font, 218; in Confirmation, 258.
- Silvester, St., [61].
- Simon Magus, 92.
- Simon Zelotes, St., 142.
- "Simplicity" no characteristic of primitive worship, 148.
- Singing, God's Church a singing Church, liii; during Communion of people, 190.
- "Singing cakes," a term applied to wafer bread, 198.
- Sins, Seven deadly, 245.
- Sion transfigured into the New Jerusalem, 439.
- "Si Quis," 542.
- Slander of the Church and Sacraments, 475.
- Smith, Sir Thomas, secretary to Queen Elizabeth, xxxiii.
- "So to eat," explanation of phrase, 186.
- S. P. C. K.'s translations of the Prayer Book, xlv.
- Socrates on Antiphonal singing at Antioch, lvi; on Missa Sicca, 197.
- Solemn League and Covenant, Declaration against, 8.
- Solemnization of Matrimony, 261.
- Solitary Masses, 197.
- Solomon, a philosopher and yet a ritualist, xlviii.
- * Son of David," Note on, 586.
- "Song, Service of," lxi.
- Southchardefirth [South Charford, now annexed to Breamore and Hale, Hants] parish Manual, 229.
- Sovereign, The, always prayed for in the English Church, 26.
- Spain, King of, allowed to nominate Bishops and Abbots, 569.
- Sparrow, Bishop, Collection and Rationale of, 12; on time for Churching, 306; on Catechizing, 243.
- Special Prayers in Vis. of Sick, 287.
- "Spices, the principal," 378.
- Spiritual Communion, 291.
- "Sponsalia," 261.
- SPONSORS, persons who answer in the name of children who are brought to be baptized; "Godfathers and Godmothers."
- Sponsors simply the mouth-pieces of the child, 224; their responsibility in abeyance while parents live, 229; to wait at church door in P. B. of 1549, 217.
- Sprinkling in Baptism, 211; unauthorized and unsafe, 212. 226.
- Standard adopted as to accessories of Divine Worship, lxvi.
- Standing, posture for the Priest when speaking authoritatively, 4; posture, intention of the Reformers, 23; at the Gospel, 169; of Celebrant in receiving, 189.
- "Standing up," old Rubric, 22.
- Star of Bethlehem, what supposed to be, 84.
- "State of salvation," what, 246.
- "State Services," [39]. 578.
- Statute of Six Articles, its influence on Prayer Book, xx; its repeal, xxi.
- Statute 25 Hen. VIII. on Marriage Licences, 261; 4 Geo. IV. against Clandestine Marriages, 262; 26 Geo. II. on publication of Banns, 262.
- Stephen, St., 78.
- Steps into primitive fonts, Seven, 211.
- STOLE, a long strip of rich silk worn over both shoulders by Priests and Bishops, but over the left shoulder only by deacons.
- Structure of Primitive Liturgies, 148.
- Strype, his description of Lent Services in Chapel Royal, lxiii.
- Strype's Cranmer, [2]. [28]. 216, n. 1.
- Style, Change of, 73.
- Sub-deacon, his duties at the Altar, 160.
- "Sudden death," Objections and Answers, 51.
- Suffrages or Preces, 21.
- Suffrages of the Western Church allied to Great Collect of Eastern, 21.
- Suffrages in Bur. Office of 1549, 299.
- Suicides, Burial of, 293.
- Sumatra, martyrdom of St. Thomas, 130.
- Sundays after Epiphany, how reckoned, 88; and other holydays for Public Baptism, 215; in Lent, not Fast-days, 92.
- Συνενοκεῖτε, explains old English "alloweth," 220.
- SUPER-ALTAR, a small portable slab of costly material formerly used at certain times to consecrate upon, being laid upon the MENSA. [See MENSA, RETABLE.]
- SUPER-FRONTAL, the covering of the MENSA. hanging over the frontal for about six or eight inches. [See FRONTAL.]
- Supremacy restored to the Crown by Act 1 of Elizabeth, xxxiii.
- Sursum Corda, 182.
- Survey of Church goods in 1562, lxxii.
- "Swine's flesh," singular reading of ancient Vulgate, 335.
- Swithun, St., [51].
- Symbolic usages, Divine authority for, lxxv; may be combined with highest spiritual worship, lxxv.
- Symbolism of linen cloths, 164; of Wedding-ring, 268; of Psalm lxxviii., 425.
- Symbols of the Name of Jesus, [53].
- "Symbolum Athanasii," always sung as a Psalm, 41.
- Symmachus, Bp. of Rome, placed Gloria in Excelsis in Liturgy, 194.
- Sympathy between animate and inanimate works of God, 522.
- Synodals explained, [16].

- Tabernacle of the Flesh, 332. 340.
- Table of the Condensation of the Services, xxix; of Contents, freely handled by modern printers—authorized form—successive changes, [2], [3]; of comparative colours of Vestments, lxxix; to find Easter, Quarto-deciman controversy, [29], [30]; of Proper Psalms, additions proposed, [26]; of Proper Lessons, 1559, 1661, [25]; of Apostolic statements corresponding with the Creed, 19; of Authorship and Compilation of the Psalter, 313; of Pre-reformation weekly use of Psalter, 314; of Scripture accounts of Institution of Holy Eucharist, 153; showing origin of various Liturgies, 147; comparing features of Primitive Liturgies, 148; of Burial Lections, 295; illustrating Title of Prayer Book, [2], [3]; of Ornaments, comparative List, lxxii—lxxiv.
- Table-cloth on the Altar, an innovation, 164.
- Tables and Rules for the Feasts and Fasts, [27].
- Tables of Moveable Feasts for the 19th Century, [31], [32].
- Tabular View of variations in the Litany, 53.
- Tallis, his plain Song for the Reformed Litany, lx.
- Taper in Baptism, its symbolism, 222.
- Taylor, Bp. Jeremy, Statement regarding Cranmer, xxx; his prayer for benediction of water, 226; on Marriage, 268. 274.
- "Te Deum," 183; its Music, Ambrosian, lxi. 12; its supposed Authorship, 10; its Rubric, 15; special notice of 9th, 16th, 21st verses, 13; separate use of as a special Thanksgiving, 12; proposed Substitutes for Lent and Advent, 11, n.
- Telephorus, Bp. of Rome, reputed author of "Gloria in Excelsis," 194.
- Temple, dedication of, 353; its glory merged in the Church, 418; Manifestations of the glory of the Lord therein, 84; Music and Singing, liii; Music, not extant, lv.
- Temporary Insanity, Verdict of, 294.
- Temptation of our Lord, its representative Character, 92.
- Ten Commandments, Compendium of, 246, and n. 1.
- Tenebræ, ancient Office in Holy Week, 98.
- Tersanctus in Communion Office, 183.
- Tersanctus in 99th Psalm, 455.
- Tertullian on Amen after Prayer of Consecration, 189; on Baptism, 209, 210; on trine immersion, 211; on renunciation in Baptism, 222; on Confession of Faith in Baptism, 223; on Benediction of Waters, 224; on Lay Baptism, 212; on Confirmation, 251; on Marriage, 261; on Wedding-ring, 268; on Burial, 295, n. 2; on Prayer for Dead, 301; on postures in Prayer, 189; on Early Christian Worship, [62]; on the Jews of Egypt, 315; on Fasting, 90; on meaning of the Psalms, 316.
- Thaddeus, St., Liturgy of, 146, n. 4.
- Thanksgiving after Baptism, 228; after Communion, 193; for Peace, its Authorship and Modification, 67.
- Tharsis and the Isles, 415.
- "Then," after the first Rubric, its force and meanings, 25.
- Theodore, Abp., Penitential of, on the Viatikum, 289.
- Theodoret on rejection of the Jews, 396.
- Theophania, Name anciently in use for Epiphany, 70. 77. 83, 84.
- Third hour for Celebration of H. C., 161.
- Thirtieth of January Service, 578.
- Thirty-nine Articles, assent of the Clergy required to them, Act Unif., 9.
- Thomas, St., the Apostle, 130; Christians of, still a witness to his labours in India, 130; St. Thomas's Day, Collect for, referred to, 245.
- Thomas, St., of Canterbury, his Festival, [87]; said to have instituted the Trinity Feast, 114.
- Thorndike on Prayer of Oblation, 192; on looking eastward, 19.
- Three estates of the Realm, xxxiii; Orders of Ministers held by Church of England, 566.
- Thrupp on the Psalms, 313. 426; on 139th Psalm, 512.
- Thursday in Holy Week, its special observances, 99.
- Time for Mattins and Evensong, [20].
- Times and seasons, their appointment and division, 24; how the Church has always intended to reckon them, 73.
- Tindal, Lord Chief Justice, on Marriage by Deacons, 264.
- TIPPET, a hood of some black material which is not to be silk, worn by Ministers who are not graduates. [Can. 58.]
- "Title" of Prayer Book "Common Prayer," [2]; "other rites and ceremonies," what they mean, [2]; of P. B. "together with the Psalter," [2].
- Titles of our Lord, as used in the Advent Antiphons, 76.
- Toleration, Charles II.'s declaration of his intentions, xxxviii.
- Touching for the Evil, 580.
- Tower of London and Courts of Westminster, Sealed books for, 10.
- Traditional words of Christ on the Cross, 354.
- Traditions, what they imply, xlviii; respecting the Apostles' Creed, 18. 369—410.
- TRANSEPT.—1. The transverse portion of cruciform Churches.
2. The northern or southern end of this.
- Transfiguration of our Lord, [53]. 84.
- Translation of King Edward, [49].
- Translations of the Common Prayer, xlv.
- "Transubstantiation" protested against in Black Rubric, 199.
- Tree of Life a type of Holy Eucharist, 151. 448.
- Trent, Council of, on Water in Baptism, 211; on age for Confirmation, 253; Catechism on Baptismal Affusion, 226, n. 1.
- Trine Affusion, 226; Immersion, 211. 226, Orig.
- Trinity, Holy, great significance of the Festival, 114; the Psalm of Praise to, 401; Sunday, 114; Sunday, Sarum Psalms, 339. 346. 380. 414. 452—454.
- Trinity Coll. Cambridge, Commemoration Service at, 302.
- Trisagion, 183.
- "Troth," meaning of, 267, n. 3.
- Truths of Heathen Philosophy, Church's application of some, 89.
- Tuesday in Holy Week, last day of our Lord's public Ministration, 97.
- TUNICLE, the outer vestment of the Epistoler at the Holy Eucharist: in the Rubric the term is applied also to the DALMATIC, which is almost identical with it in character.
- Twelfth day after Christmas, a memorial of our Lord's Baptism, 83.
- Twenty-ninth of May Service, 578.
- "Two Tables" of Law, 247.
- Types of Eucharist—their number, agreements, and diversities, 146; of our Lord in suffering, 408; of Intermediate State, 473.
- Typical character of David, 320. 324; persecutions, 320.
- Unbaptized infants dying, 230; burial of, 293.
- Unconsecrated Elements for use of Curate, 198.
- UNCTION, the anointing with holy oil at Coronations, and other rites of the Church. [See ANOINTING.]
- Uction in Confirmation, 251. 258; extreme, 275; of the Sick in reformed P. B., 275. 287, n. 1; a term applied to Confirmation, 251.
- "Ungodly," principal and instruments, 318.
- Uniformity, Act of, Edward's, xxxi, xxxii; repealed by Mary, xxxiii.; Primo Elizabethæ, [4]; 14 Carol. II., [6]; Binding on the Clergy, [4]; documents respecting, lxxiv, lxxv.
- Uniformity of Services, xix.
- Union Jack, Crosses in, [45].
- Union with Christ in Baptism, 214.
- "United Ch. of England and Ireland" a misnomer, [2].
- Unity of the Church, 498.
- Unity of mind of the whole Catholic Church, 132, 133.
- Unity underlying divisions of Christendom, 158.
- Unmarried mothers to do Penance before being Churched, 304.
- Unworthy Communion, Great care of Eng. Ch. as to, 179.
- "Upper Room, The," liv.
- "Usages" of the Scottish Liturgy, 584.
- "Use" of the Church of England, [2]; of Holy Communion, 155; of Visitation Office, 275.

"Uses" in England diverse previous to Reformation, xviii. [18].
 147. 149; now to be one and the same, [18].
 Uses of Salisbury, York, and Hereford, in Espousals, 267.

Vaison, Council of, its Canon on the Gloria Patri, 7.
 Valentine, St., [41].
 Vatican, martyrdom of St. Peter, 139.
 Vaughan's "Lessons of Life and Godliness" quoted, 55.
 Veil, 191; formerly insisted on in Churching of women, 304; of Temple, its rending, 337; of Chancel, in Primitive Church, xlix.
 Venantius Fortunatus, his Commentary on Athanasian Creed, 41.
 Venerable Bede, his death in connexion with Ascension Collect, 112.
 Veni Creator sung at Mass, 149. 200; Authorship of, 560; Translation of, ascribed to Dryden, 575.
 Veni Creator Spiritus, use of, at Consecration of Bishops, 575.
 Venite Exultemus, its use in the Temple Service and early Christian, 8; Invitatory to, 7; old custom of reverence, 9.
 Veredemus, Companion of St. Giles, [55].
 VERGER, a lay officer, who carries a staff before dignitaries in processions, attends to the placing of the congregation, &c.
 Verity, Christian, explanation of term, 43.
 Vernacular, its use always encouraged in the Church of England, xxiii; ancient form of Baptism in Sarum Use, 231, Orig.; ancient forms of Lord's Prayer, 30; ancient forms of Apostles' Creed, 36; ancient forms of V. and R. for Peace, 21; ancient forms of Collects, 38. 64. 113. 115. 133. 141; ancient forms of Nicene Creed, 170; Confession at Holy Communion, 180; Exhortation to Holy Communion, 178; Gloria in Excelsis, 195, n.; Exhortation at Baptism, 229; in Marriage Service, 265—268; in Visitation of Sick, 281, 282. 292; Litany referred to, xxii. 48; Te Deum referred to, 13; Athanasian Creed referred to, 41; ancient origin of parts of Litany, 54. 56; ancient expositions referred to, xxiii.
 Vernacular of our Lord and His Apostles, 315.
 Versicles, explanation of term, [16]; from the ancient form translated, 21; before Collects, old Rubric on, 22; in Confirmation Office, 257; in Vis. of Sick, 278.
 Versions, Ancient, of the Psalter, 315.
 Verulam, [49].
 Vessel for bringing water to Font, 217.
 VESTMENT, the Chasuble; the term sometimes includes all the Eucharistic vestments, or may be applied to any one of them.
 "Vestment," term applied to Chasuble as the Eucharistic robe of Christendom, 159.
 Vestments, Eucharistic, 159, 160. 587; their colours, lxxviii; their material, lxxvii; their form and symbolism, 587; illustrations of, 588; to be used in Visitation of the Sick, 276.
 "Viaticum," Communion of the Dying, 289.
 Vicarious penitence of Christ, 386. 457. 503.
 Victricius, reputed author of the Athanasian Creed, 41.
 Vienne, City of, origination of Rogation Fast, 46.
 VIGIL, the fasted Eve of a festival.
 Vigil of Christmas, how observed in ancient Church of England, 77.
 Vigil of Easter, ancient mode of its celebration, 103.
 Vigils, Fasts, and Days of Abstinence, Table of, [28]; not observed in the Paschal Quinquagesima, 111; no longer an Evening Service, [28]; Collects used on, 72.
 Vincent, St., [39].
 Vine, The, illustrations of its mystical meaning, 431.
 Visitation of B. V. Mary, [51]; of Dioceses on accession of Edward VI., xxv.
 VISITATION OF THE SICK, an Office to be used with sick persons, with or without Communion or Anointing.
 Visitation of the Sick enjoined by H. Scripture, Fathers, and Councils, 275. 412; a formal rite, 276; Introduction to, 275.

Visitation of Prisoners Service in Irish Prayer Book, 586.
 Vocation to the Ministry extraordinary and ordinary, 539.
 Voice, of the Church, 321; of the Lord sevenfold, 352.
 VOLUNTARY, a piece of music played after the Psalms, and before and after service; sometimes during the Communion of the People.
 Voluntary, after the Psalms, 9; substituted for the Agnus Dei at Durham, 9; at the conclusion of the Service, 25.
 Vows, Baptismal, 222, 223.
 Vulgar tongue, its gradual adoption in the Services, xxii.
 Vulgate, The ancient, of St. Jerome, 315.

WAFER, or WAFER BREAD, a small unleavened cake used for the Eucharistic Bread. The Rubric permits the substitution of fine wheaten bread of the ordinary kind, 198, 199. 498.
 Walchius' Bibliotheca Symbolica for earliest forms of the Creed, 36; on Protestant Catechisms, 242.
 Waldenses, regarded water as unnecessary in Baptism, 211.
 Wales, Funeral Offertory in, 296.
 Warburton, his discontinuance of use of cope, 159.
 Washing of disciples' feet connected with Institution of H. Eucharist, 157; a sacramental act, as well as symbolical, 98.
 Water, Benediction of, 224; "the outward visible sign or form in Baptism," 211; sanctifying of, 218.
 Waters of the Neva blessed, 218, n. 2.
 Waterland, his history of the Athanasian Creed, 41.
 Wedderburn, Bp. of Dumblane, and the Scottish Prayer Book, 581.
 Wedding breakfast, why after the marriage, 262.
 Wedding ring, 268.
 Wednesday in Holy Week, ancient Office for, 98.
 Welsh Prayer Book, xlv. [10].
 Westminster Abbey, Wafer bread used at, 498.
 Westminster, Monks of, privileged in respect of age, for Ordination, 541; Synod of, on Comm. of Sick, 289; Synod of, marriage enactment, 261.
 Whitgift, Abp., memorialized by Puritans against Lay Baptism, 212, n. 1.
 Whitsun, the English name of Pentecost, its origin, 112; Ember Days, of primitive observance, 114.
 Whitsun Eve, Day, and Season, Sarum Psalms, 380. 404. 461.
 Whitsunday, Collect for, how formerly used, 113; 1549, the English Prayer Book first used on, 113.
 Whitsuntide Psalms, 380. 461. 518.
 "Wilkins' Concilia," on use of Salisbury Missal, lxxii; referred to, 230, marg.
 Will of God, law over all, 246; modes of its expression, 246.
 William III., and the Lesson about Judas, 578.
 William of Malmesbury on Altars of wood, 158.
 Wilson, Bp., on Invocation of Holy Ghost, 187.
 Wimbish, Register at, on prohibited seasons for Marriage, 263.
 Windsor, Obiit Service at, 302; Obiit Sunday, Psalms for, 341, 520.
 Wine used as Matter in Baptism, 211.
 Winepress, its typical and prophetic meaning, 432.
 "With," its Liturgical sense, 3.
 Wolsey, Cardinal, his efforts to bring about a Reformation, xix.
 Woman, her dependence on man, 267.
 Women not to baptize save in extreme necessity, 231, Orig.
 Wood (Ath. Oxon.), on Office for Adult Baptism, 237.
 WORD, The, Personal, in all the Psalms of the First Book, 373; in 119th Psalm, 486; before the Sanhedrim, 433.
 Words of Institution, 187; of Prayer consecrated by our Lord, 356, 357.
 Worship of Heaven, as seen by St. John, xlix; Patriarchal, xlvii; Mosaic or Jewish, so called, but really Divine, xlvii; Spiritual, see Communion with God, xlvii; its principal parts, 2; offered to a person present to receive it, 1; Christian, supplemented

- not supplanted that of the ancient Church, liv; Ceremonial and Musical, our Lord's practice, liii; of the Church of England, application of the Ritual principle, l, li; Daily, transferred from the Cloister to the Parish Church, xx.
- "Worship," meaning of, in Marriage Service, 269.
- Wren, Bp., his order respecting Marriages, 263; his Injunctions on Churching, 305, 306; his Injunctions on Public Prayer for Sick, 288; his directions to Ministers, 136.
- Wyche, Sir Cecil, his discovery of an error in MS. of Prayer Book, xlii.
- Year, The Church's, beginning from Advent and Christmas, 73.
- York Manual, directions as to who are not to communicate, 291; vernac. Exhort. to Sponsors, 229.
- York Minster Library, Fothergill's MSS. in, 253.
- York, Use of, circ. A.D. 700, in Confirmation, 252. 257.
- York Use (Marriage), 264, &c.
- Zaccharie Ferreri de Vicence, reformer of Breviary Hymns, xx.
- Zebedee, Sons of, their aim at exaltation, how granted, 139.

THE END.

3-7.50

Blunt

1872, newly rebound

264.03

C562

B724an

6th ed.

~~Church of England. Book of~~ AUTHOR

common prayer.

The annotated Book of common

TITLE

prayer.

264.03

C562

Church of England. Book of B724an

common prayer.

6th ed.

The annotated Book of common prayer.

50945

